Mi: Go forward. Do you know what you haue allready written?

Laudate Dominum in Sanctus eius.[359]

Note: The Circumference (which is done) conteyneth 7 names:
7 names, conteyn 7 Angels:
Euery letter, conteyneth 7 Angels:
The numbers are applyed to the letters.
Whan thow dost know the 7 names, thow shalt understand the 7 Angells.

The Number of 4,[360] pertayning to the first T, is a Number significatiue: signifying, to what place thow shalt next apply the eye: and being placed aboue, it sheweth removing toward the right hand: Taking the figure for the number of the place applyable to the next letter to be taken. The under number, is significatiue: declaring, to what place thow shalt apply the next letter in the Circumference, toward the left hand. Which thow must reade, untyll it light uppon a letter, without number, not signifying. This is the Whole. So shalt thow fynde the 7 principall Names: known with us, and applyable to thy practise.

Make experience.[361]

Δ: Then telling from the T, 4 more places (toward the right hand) exclusiuely, I finde in that fowrth place, from T, (but being the fifth from the beginning, and with the begynning) this letter h: with 22, ouer it. Therfore, I procede to the right hand, 22 places: and there I finde A, and 11 over it. Going then toward the right hand 11 places furder: I finde a little a with 5 under it: by reason of which under place of 5, I go toward the left hand, 5 places, exclusiuely, where I finde o with 10, under it: wheruppon I procede to the left hand, farder by 10 places, and there I see the letter t, and 11, under it: and therfore going to the left hand 11 places, I see there the letter h alone without any number. Wherfore, that letter, endeth my word, and it is in all, ThAaoth. Ys this, as it shold be?

Mi: That is not the name. Thow shalt understand all in the next call.[362] The Rule is perfect. Call agayn within an howre and it shalbe shewed.

The howre being come we attended Michael his retorn to make the Practise euydent of his first Rule.

Mi: Saluete.[363]

Thow diddest erre: and herein hast thow erred: and yet notwithstanding no error in thee, bycause thow knowest not the error. Understand that the 7 Names must Comprehend, as many letters in the whole, as there are places in the Circle: Some letters are significatiue of them selues. In dede no letters, but dubble numbers, being the Name of God. Thow hast erred in the first name, in setting downe ‘Aa’; that is, twise a togither, which differ the word. Which thow shalt Note to the ende of thy work: Wheresoever thow shalt finde two ‘aa’ togither the first is not to be placed within the Name, but rather left with his inward power. Thow shalt fynde 7 Names proceding from three generall partes of the Circumference: My meaning is, from three generall letters: and onely but one letter, that is, this letter A.[364] Accownt thow, and thow shalt finde the names iust. I speak not of any that come in the begynning of the word but such as light in the myddest: Proue, proue:[365] and thow shalt see. Whereas thow hast ‘go’, it is to be red ‘og’. This is the whole.

Δ: I haue red in Cabala of the Name of God of 42 letters: but not yet of any, of 40 letters: That of 42 letters is this,

אב אלהים בן אלהים רוח אלהים הקדש אלהים שלשה באחד אחד בשלשה

id est: Pater Deus, Filius Deus, spiritus sanctus Deus: Tres in uno, et unus in tribus. Vel Trinitas in unitate et unitas in Trinitate.[367] Or thus, which in Latin is, Pater Deus, Filius Deus, et Spiritus Sanctus, Deus, attamen non tres Dij sed unus Deus.[368] And as this is of God, Unitie in Trinitie, so of Christ onely (the second persone of the Diuine Trinitie) the Cabalists haue a name explained of 42 letters, on this manner,

אב אל בן אל ורוח הקדש אל אבל לא שלשה
אלהים כי אם אלוה אחד

כאשר הנפש המשכלת והבשר אדם אחד
כן האל והאדם משיח אחד

That is in Latine, Sicut anima rationalis, et caro, homo unus, ita Deus et homo Messias unus.[369] I am not good in the hebrue tung, but, you know my meaning.

Mi: The letters being so taken oute, being a name, and a number, doth certefye the old rule of 42 letters, whan you restore them in agayn.[370]

Mi: Note, Oute of this Circle[371] shall no Creature pass, that entreth, yf it be made uppon the earth. My meaning is, if he be defyled: This shalt thow proue to be a mysterie unknown to man. Beasts, birds, fowle and fish do all reuerence to it: In this they were all Created. In this, is all things conteyned. In tyme thow shalt finde it, in ADAMS Treatise from Paradise.[372] Looke to the Mysteries: for they are true. A and ω: Primus et Nouissimus; unus solus Deus viuit nunc et semper: Hic est, et hic erit: Et hîc, sunt Nomina sua Diuina.

Dixi:[373]

Thow art watcht all this night: who is euen now at the Dore: Clerkson. Blessed are those, whose portion is not with the wicked.

Benedicamus Dominum.[374] Halleluyah.

----

†

Tuesday the 20 of Marche: circa 10ã mane.

Δ: Are you Uriel?

Ur: I am. We thank thee for thy great good will.[375] We cannot viset thee now. At the twelfth howre thow shalt use us.

Δ: Fiat voluntas Dei.[376]

A meridie circa 2ã

Δ: At the twelfth howre, my partner was busyed in other affayres, and so contynued tyll abowt 2 of the Clok: when; we comming to the stone, fownd there Michael and Uriel: but Michael straight way[377] rose up and went out, and cam in agayn, and one after him, carrying on his right shulder, 7 little baskets,[378] of gold they seamed to be.

Mi: Shut up your doores. Δ: I had left the uttermore dore of my study, open: and did but shitt the portall dore of it.

Δ: He toke the 7 Baskets, and hanged them rownd abowt the border of a Canapie, of beaten gold, as it were.

Mi: Ecce, Mysterium est. Benedictus Dominus Deus Israel.[379]

Δ: Therewith he did spred oute, or stretch the Canapy: whereby it seamed to couer all the world [which seamed to be in the stone, allso, heven, an erth] so that the skryer could not now see the heven. And the baskets, by equall distances, did seeme to hang in the border of the horizon.

Mi: What wold you haue? Δ: Sapientiam.[380]

Mi: Rede the names thow hast written. Δ: I had written these according to the Rule before giuen, as I understode it:

Thaaoth
Gal~~a~~as Gethog
Horlωn
Innon

A ^aoth
Galetsog

Mi: Loke to the last name. Δ: I had written, (as appeareth) Galetsog, by misreckening the numbers, where I fownd it shold be Galethog with an h and not s.

Mi: Lo, els thow hadst erred. They are all right, but not in order. The second is the first (his name be honored for euer), The first here, must be our third, and the third here, must be our second: thus set downe.

1. Galas
2. Gethog
3. Thaoth
4. Horlωn
5. Innon
6. Aaoth
7. Galethog

Mi: Work from the right, toward the left, in the first angle next unto the circumference.  .

Δ: He shewed than, thus, this letter

Mi: Make the number of 5 on the right hand, (that is, before it) at a reasonable distance, thus 5.

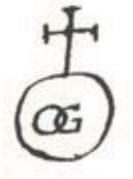
Δ: After that he shewed the second letter, a great roman A, thus A+ 24.

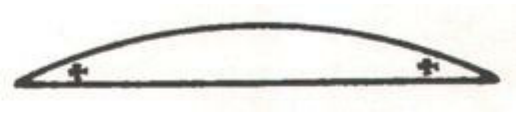
Then he shewed		30.
Then		21.
Then		9.
Then he shewed		14.

Then he shewed this compownd letter, with the circle and cross:



He willed me, at each corner of these Segments of circles, to make little Crosses, and so I did.

Δ: After euery of the 7 letters shewed he did put them up in his bosom as sone as he had shewed them fully. The plates wheron those letters were shewed, hath the forme of the segment of a circle, thus and seemed to be of pure gold. When the 7 letters were placed, he sayd,



Omnia unum est.[381]

Then he pulled all the 7 plates out of his bosom, and Uriel kneeled down before him. Then the plates did seeme to haue two wings (eche of them) and to fly up to heven[382] under the Canapye.

Δ: After this, one of the 7 baskets, (that which is in the east) cam to Michael, and he sayd, Mi: Seal this:[383] For This was and is for euer.

Δ: Then he stode agayn on his leggs like brasen pillers, and sayd,

Mi: Oh how mighty is the name of God, which rayneth in the heavens, O God of the faithfull, for thow rayneth for euer.

Δ: He opened the basket, and there cam a great fyre out of it.

Mi: Diuide the 7 partes of the circle next unto that which thow hast done, euery one, into 7.

Note: (for the tyme wilbe Long) Seuen, rest in 7: and the 7, liue by 7: The 7, gouern the 7: And by 7, all Gouernment is. Blessed be he, yea blessed be the Lord: praysed be our god. His Name be magnified. All honor and Glory be unto him now and for euer. Amen.[384]

1. Δ: Then he toke oute of the fire in the basket, a white fowle like a pigeon. That fowle had a Z uppon the first of 7 feathers which were on his brest. That first feather was on the left side.

   Mi: Note. There is a mysterie in the seuen, which are the 7 governing the 7 which 7 gouern the earth. Halleluyah.

   Mi: Write the letters. Δ: Now, a small 1 in the second fether. Then he couered those first two letters, with the other feathers. The third an 1, like the other. Then he couered that allso. The fowrth an R. He covereth that. The fifth a great roman H. He couereth it. The sixth feather hath a little i. Then he hid that feather. The last feather had a small a.

   Mi: Prayse God.

   Δ: Then he put the fowle into the basket: and set it down by him. Then he hong it up in the ayre by him.

   Δ: Then he lift up his sworde over us, and bad us pray. Δ: We prayed.
2. Δ: Then he stretched out his hand and there cam an other basket to him, and he pluckt out a white byrd, much bigger than the other: as big as a swan: with ‘7’ feathers on his brest.

   Mi: Dixit et factum est.[385]

   Mi: Note. Δ: The first feather hath a little a on it: and it went away. The next a Z great as the first. Then a C great. Then a little a. Then an other little a. Then a feather with a little c. Then one with a little b. Δ: Then he couered them all.

   Mi: Thow hast truth.

   Δ: Then he put up the fowle into the basket, and hung it up by the other in the ayre.

   Δ: Than the third Basket cam to him: and he toke out a byrd all green as grass, like to a peacok in form and bignes.

   Mi: Et viuis tu cum illo: et:

   regnum tuum cum illis est.[386]

   Δ: There started out of this birds brest, 7 fethers, like gold, and fyrie.

   Mi: Pray.
3. Mi: Note. Δ: On the first feather a small p.

   Then a small a.
   A little u.

   Then a small p.
   Then a small n.
   Then a small h.
   Then a small r. Then he put the fowle up into the Basket &c.

Δ: Then there cam an other basket to his hand.
Mi: Dedit illi potestatem in cælus.

Potestas illius magna est.
Orate.[387] Δ: We prayed.

4. Δ: Then he pluckt out a fowle, greater than any of the other, like a griphen (as commonly they are figured) all red fyry, with skales like brass. Then on seuen skales, appered letters.
Mi: Note. Δ: First a little h.

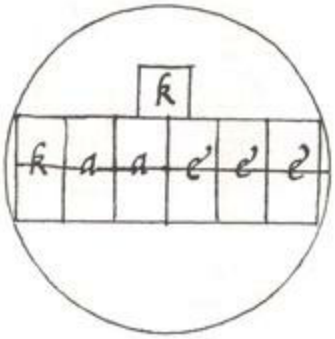
A little d.
A little m.
Then a little h.
Then a little i.
Then a little a.
Then a little i.

Δ: Then he put up the fowle, & hung the basket in the Ayre.
Δ: Then there cam an other Basket to him.
[Δ: Note: All this while the firmament was not to be seen.]
Mi: Magnum est DEVS in Angelis suis.

et magna est illorum potestas in Cælis.

Orate.[388] Δ: We prayed.

5. Δ: Then he pluckt out a bird like an Egle all his body like Gold, and he had a little circle of feathers on his brest: and in it, betwene fowre parallell lines, twelue equall squares: and on the top, on the myddle, one, like the other twelue, thus:



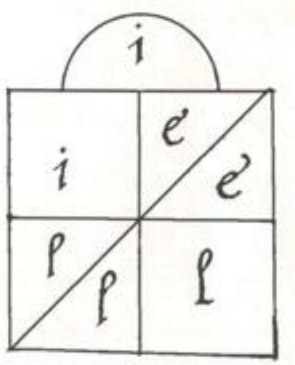
Δ: Then he put up the Egle &c.
Δ: Then cam an other Basket.
Mi: Nuncius tuus est magnus in cælis.

Orate.[389]

Δ: He, and the Basket that wer opened, shut, and set aside, seamed all to be gon: and the Baskets remayning, still hanging on the border of the Canapie. Then he cam agayn, and went awaye agayne. Then cam URIEL and held the Basket: and his leggs seemed to be such great tall pillers of Brass: as Michael did stand on before.

UR: This is a Mysterie. He is here, and not here which was here before.[390]

6. Δ: He opened the Basket and pluckt out like a phenix [or pelican Δ] of the bignes of a swan: all fyrie sparkling. His byll is bent into his brest and it bled. In his brest was a quadrangle made with his own feathers, thus. He put it up, and hung it by the other Baskets.



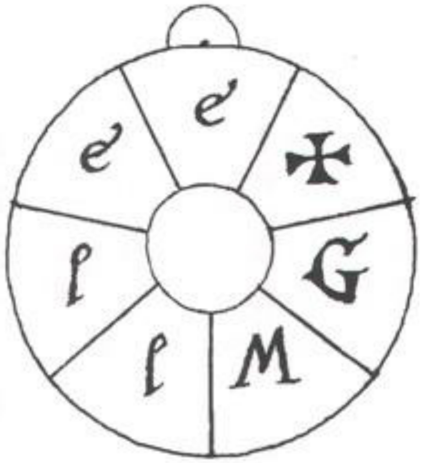
Then cam the last basket. Uriel stode still and sayde,

UR: Dedit angelis potestatem in lumine Cæli.[391]

Orate. Δ: We prayed.

7. Δ: Then cam Michael and toke the Basket of Uriel and becam standing on the great brasen legs, as before.

Δ: He toke out of the basket a strange fowle with many wings: This fowle had in his forhed a Tablet of this fashion:



Mi: Et Coniunxit illos DEVS in unum.[392]

Δ: All the Baskets flew up: and so the Canapie vanished away, and the Heaven appeared.

Δ: Now he cam and sat down in his chayre.

Δ: Michael sayd to Uriel, It is thy part, to expownd these Mysteries: Go to, in the name of our God.

Δ: Uriel cam and stode before him and sayde, What will you: Ô our fellows and seruants to GOD? What will you?

Δ: Perfect knowledg and understanding, such as is necessary for us.[393]

UR: Looke uppon, and see if thow canst not understand it: We will depart for a little space: and come to thee agayne.

Δ: So they went: and left all the stone in fyre, so that neyther the Chayr or Table could be seen in it.

Δ: After a quarter of an howre, Michael and Uriel cam both agayne.

Mi: Loke into the 7 angles: next unto the uppermost Circumference.

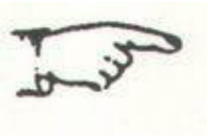
Δ: Uriel cam and stode before Michael.

UR: Those 7 letters[394] are the 7 Seats of the One and everlasting GOD. His 7 secret Angels proceding from euery letter and Cross so formed: referring in substance to the FATHER: in forme, to the SONNE: and Inwardly to the HOLI GHOSTE. Loke uppon it: it is one of the Names, which thou hast Before: euery letter conteyning an Angel of brightness: comprehending the 7 inward powres of God: known to none, but him self: a Sufficient BOND to urge all Creatures to life or Death, or any thing els conteyned in this world.[395] Yt banisheth the wicked, expelleth euyll spirits: qualifieth the Waters, strengtheneth the Just, exalteth the righteous and destroyeth the Wicked. He is ONE in SEVEN. He is twise THREE.[396] He is seuen in the Whole. He is Almighty. His Name is euerlasting: His Truth can not fayle. His Glory is incomprehensible. Blessed be his name. Blessed be thow, (our God) for euer.

UR: Thow must refer thy numbers therin conteyned, to the upper circle. For, From Thence, all things in the inward partes, shalbe comprehended. Looke if thow understand it.

Δ: I finde it to be GALETHOG.

UR: It is so. Δ: I thank God and you, I understand now (allso) the numbers annexed.



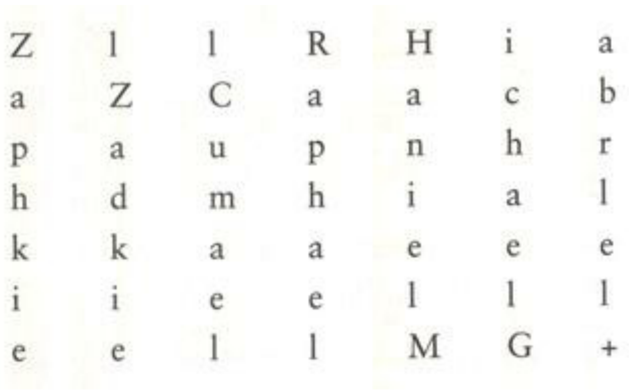
UR: As this darknes is lightened, by the spirit of God, herein; so will I lighten, yea so will the Lord lighten your Imperfections, and glorifie your myndes to the sight of innumerable most holy and unspeakable Mysteries.

UR: To the next part. Δ: Michael sat still, with his sword in his hand.

UR: The parte wherein thow hast labored, conteyneth 7 Angels. Dost thow understand it? Δ: Not yet. Ur: Oh how far is mans Judgment from Celestiall powres? Oh how far are these secrets hidden from the wycked? Glory be unto him, which seeth for euer. Δ: Amen, Amen, Amen.

UR: Note: We cannot tary long. Thow must set down these letters onely, by 7, in a spare paper, thus:[397]

UR: Rede----------------Begyn at the first, and rede downward.[398]



Z	l	l	R	H	i	a
a	Z	C	a	a	c	b p	a	u	p	n	h	r
h	d	m	h	i	a	l
k	k	a	a	e	e	e
i	i	e	e	l	l	l
e	e	l	l	M	G	+

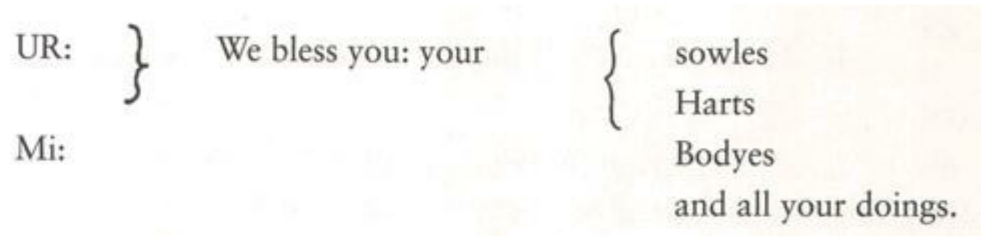
Δ: I rede thus, Zaphkiel, Zadkiel, Cumael, Raphael, Haniel, Michaël, Gabriel.[399]

Ur: Thow hast red right.

Δ: Praysed be God.

Ur: Thus dost thow see, how mercifully God dealeth with his seruants.

Euery letter here, conteyneth or comprehendeth the number of 72 Vertues:[400] Whose names thow shalt know: skarse yet revealed to the world. Uriel and Michael iointly togither pronownced this blessing on us.



UR: } We bless you: your { sowles
Mi:
Harts Bodyes
and all your doings.

Δ: Michael with his sword, and flame of fyre florished ouer our heds.

Yet I will thus much shew you, for your Cumfort beside. What seest thow? Δ: He spake to the skryer. And he saw an innumerable multitude of Angels in the Chamber or study abowt us, very bewtifull with wyngs of fyre. Then he sayd,[401]

Lo, thus you shalbe shaddowed[402] from the wicked. Kepe these Tables secret. He is secret that liueth for euer.

Man is frayle. Fare well.

¶ He must go for the bokes, els they will perish.[403] Δ: He ment that my partner Ed. Talbot, shold go to fatch the bokes from Lancaster (or therby) which were the L. Mowntegles[404] bokes, which Mr. Mort yet hath: wherof mention is made before.

Ended hor. 5. a meridie
Tuesday the 20 Martij
1582.

Wensday 21 Martij, circa 2ã a meridie.

Δ: After appearance was had, there cam in one before Michael (who sat in his seat) and Uriel leaned on the table (as he, usually did). This seemed to be a Trumpeter:[405] he was all in white, and his garments bespotted with blud. He had nothing on his hed. His heare very long hanging behynde him on his sholders. The Trumpet seamed to be gold. The sownd therof was very playne.

Δ: I axed of my skryer, in what manner Uriel now shewed, (and Michael likewise.) Then Michael sayd, I warned thee for axing of my apparell or manner.[406] Et hæc est Gloria illius, quæ non commouebitur ab impijs.

Mi: Quid vultis? Δ: Iuxta voluntate Dei, Sapientiam nobis necessariam &c.

Mi: Sapientia mundi, nihil est, peribit autem in æternum. Veniat æternitas DOMINI, ab uniuersis mundi partibus. Venite, venite, sic vult DEVS ADONAY fac officium Phanaël.[407]

Δ: This Phanael was the Trumpeter, (above mentioned) who thereupon blew his Trumpet, lustily,[408] turning him self rownd abowt, to all the world. Then, from 7 partes of the world, (being equally diuided abowt the Horizon,) cam 7 Cumpanyes of Pillers all of fyrye cullour glittring. And euery Cumpany of Pillers high and great and as thowgh they were Pillers of fyre. The Heauen, the Sonne, and, Mone and Sterrs seemed to tremble.

Mi: Multiplex est Deus Noster.[409]

Mi: Mark this Mystery. Seuen comprehendeth the Secrets of Heven and erth. seuen knitteth mans sowle and body togither (3, in sowle, and 4 in body).

In 7, thow shalt finde the unitie.

In 7, thow shalt finde the Trinitie.

In 7, thow shalt finde the Sonne, and the proportion of the Holy Ghoste.[410] O God, O God, O god, Thy Name (O God) be praysed euer, from thy 7 Thrones, from thy 7 Trumpets, and from thy 7 Angels. Δ: Amen, Amen, Amen.

Mi: In 7, God wrowght all things.

Mi: Note. In 7, and by 7 must you work all things. O Seuen tymes Seuen, Veritie, vertue and Maiestie. I Minister by thy licence. This expownd, by thy Vertue (Δ: Michael spake that, pointing to Uriel.)

Δ: Michael and Uriel both kneeled down, and the Pillers of fyrie and brasen cullour, cam nere, rownd abowt them uniformely.

Mi: Sic est DEVS noster.[411]

Δ: One of the pillers leaned toward the skryer, and had like a pommel or mace hed, on the top of it. And Michael with great reuerence toke out of the top of it a thing like an S.

Δ: Than leaned down 6 Pillers more: and Michael, cryed lowd,

Vnus est DEVS noster, Deus Deus noster.[412]

Δ: Then orderly he opened all the pillers heds: and then the 7 ioyned all togither, distinctly to be discerned.

Mi: Note. Δ: There appeared a great

S
A
A
I

Δ: Then the sides closed up, and hid those letters first shewed. After that appered two letters more

E
M

Δ: He made Cursy, and semed to go from ward, and vanished away.

8
E •

Mus∈ριον est.[413]

Δ: The Pillers all ioyned togither at the tops, making (as it were) One Mace or Pommell, and so flew up to heven wards.

Δ: There seamed two pillers more to come down from heven (like the other in forme) and toke place there, where the other 7, stode, which went away.

Δ: Michael with his sword, Cut them asunder: and cryed out,

Away you workers of Iniquitie. [414]
Perijt Malus cum malis.[415]

Δ: The pillers fell down, and the grownd swallowed them up.

Tanta est tua audacia Sathan[416]
sed DEVS noster viuit.[417]

Δ: The pillers which before ascended, cam down ioyntly: and oute of them a Voyce saying, NON SVM.[418]

Δ: Then the 7 pillers next his right hand, bowed to Michael, And oute of them, a voyce sayd, SVM.[419]

Δ: Then one of the Pillers stode higher than his fellows, and Michael opened all the tops of them, and sayd, Orate.[420] Δ: We prayed.

Mi: Write the Name down in the Tables.

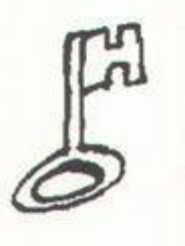
Δ: Then he toke of, 3 of the heds of the Pillers, and sett them downe and there appered, BTZ, great letters in hollow places like square cumfet [421] boxes.

Mi: Ista sunt secreta secretorum.[422]

Invocate Nomen eius, aut nihil agere possumus. [423] The key of Prayer openeth all things.

Δ: We prayed.

Note Key



Δ: Then the other 4 pillers, bowingly shewed 4 letters thus, KASE, and the number 30 with a prik under. Then the Pillers ioyned theyr heds togither very close, and flew up into the firmament with Thunder.

Sic Domine, Sic, Sic.[424]

Mi: Place these in the Table. Δ: I wrote and he sayd, Thow hast done right. Laudate nomen Domini qui viuit in æternum.[425]

Δ: A voyce cam out of the next cumpany of the 7 pillers (ioyning them selues togither) saying, Ipse.[426]

Mi: Et Misericordia tua Domine magna est.[427]

Δ: Michael kneled whan he sayd this.

Δ: Michael shewed out of 4 of theyr heds, of the pillers, (and with all sayd,)

NO, NOT the Angels of heuen, (but I,) are priuie of these things. Δ: So there appeared, 4 letters, HEID.

Δ: Then the other 3 pillers were opened and had ENE on theyr tops.

Dominus collocatur in numero suo.[428]

Δ: The 7 pillers mownted up into the ayre, and it thundred at their going.

Δ: Then the fowrth Cumpany of pillers bowed to Michael: out of them cam a voyce: Viuo sicut LEO in medio illorum.[429]

Mi: Et tua potestas magna est ubique.[430]

Δ: Then Michael pluckt of, fiue of the tops. There appered Δ: then they ioyned all togither: then appered EIMO.

Mi: Hoc non est sine præce.[431]

Δ: The other two opened, and there appeared $\underset{\cdot}{30}$ A.

Δ: Then they closed up, and went away, with a great thunder.

Δ: Then cam 7 other pillers to Michael, and a Voyce oute of them, saying, Serpens sum, et deuoraui serpentem.[432]

Mi: Et bonis et malis serpens es Domine.[433]

Δ: Then they closed all up; and Michael sayd, Orate. Δ: We prayed.

Δ: Then Michael toke of, the heds of 4: then appeared first an I, then MEG. Then he opened the other 3, and CBE appeared.

Mi: Numerus illius, est nulli cognitus.[434]

Δ: They ioyned theyr heds all togither, and ascended up to heuenward: and great lightening after them.

Δ: Then cam an other Septenarie of Pillers: and oute of them a voyce, saying,

Ignis sum penetrabilis.[435]

Mi: Et sit nobiscum, Ô Deus.[436] Pray. Δ: We prayed.

Δ: Then he opened 4 of theyr heds and appered in them ILAO.

Δ: They closed togither agayne.

Δ: Then one other was opened, and I appered.

Δ: Then $\overset{21}{8\cdot}$. appered, and did shut up agayn.[437]

Δ: Then he smote fyre out of the last pyller, and it thundred and there seemed to come out of it innumerable Angels like little Children with wings, and there appered N, and suddenly did shut up.[438] Sic sic sic Deus noster.[439]

Δ: Then they ioyned all togither, and flew up.

Mi: Note down in the table. Δ: I Noted them down.

Δ: Then cam the last 7 pillers, and out of them this Voyce, Finis.

Gaudium et Lux nostra Deus.[440]

Δ: Then they closed all in One.
Mi: Orate. Δ: We prayed.
Δ: Then 6 of the heds opened and appered I H R L A A.

Δ: Then the seuenth opened: Then seamed trees to leap up, and hills, and the seas and waters to be trubbled, and thrown up.

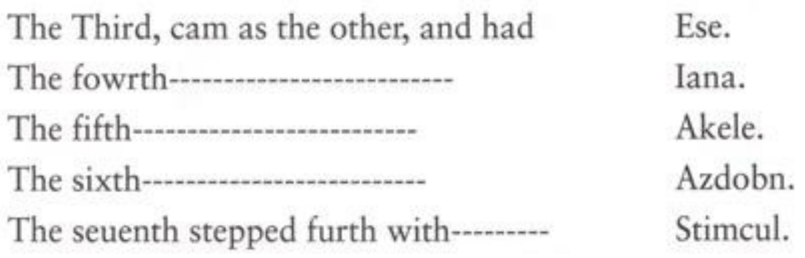
Δ: A voyce cam out of the Pillers: Consummatum est.[441]
Δ: There appeared in that Piller $\overset{21}{8\cdot}$.
Δ: They ioyned togither and flew up to heven ward.
Mi: VNVS VNVS VNVS.

Omnis caro timet vocem eius.[442]
Pray. Δ: We prayed.

Δ: Note: my skryer was very faynt, and his hed in manner gyddy, and his eyes, dasyling, by reason of the sights seen so bright, and fyrie, &c. Michael bad him be of good cumfort, and sayd he shold do well.
Mi: Cease for a quarter of an howre.
Δ: After we had stayed for a quarter of an howre, we comming to the stone agayne, fownd him come all ready to the stone: and Uriel with him. Who, allso, had byn by, all the while, during the Mysterie of the ‘7’ pillers.
Mic: Set two stoles in the myddst of the flowre. On the one, set the stone: and at the other let him knele. I will shut the eares of them in the howse, that none shall heare us. I will shew great Mysteries.
Michael than, with a lowd voyce sayd,

Adeste Filiæ Bonitatis:
Ecce DEVS vester adest:
Venite.[443]

Δ: There cam in 7 yong women apparelled all in Grene, having theyr heds rownd abowt attyred all with greene silk, with a wreath behinde hanging down to the grownd.[444] Michael stroke his sword ouer them, no fyre appearing: Then they kneeled: And after, rose agayn.
Mi: Scribe quæ vides.[445]
Δ: One of them stept out, with a little blue tablet on the forhed of her: and in it written, El.
Δ: She stode a side, and an other cam in, after the same sort, with a great M, and a little e, thus, Me.



The Third, cam as the other, and had	Ese.
The fowrth-------------------------	Iana.
The fifth-------------------------	Akele.
The sixth-------------------------	Azdobn.
The seuenth stepped furth with---------	Stimcul.

Δ: They all togither, sayd, Nos possumus in Cælis multa.[446]
Δ: Then they went theyr way, suddenly disäpering.
Mi: Note this in your next place but one. Δ: I did so.
Mi: Go to the next place. Stay.
Mi: Adeste, Filiolæ Lucis.[447]
Δ: They all, cam in agayn, and answered, Adsumus Ô tu qui ante

faciem DEI stas.[448]

Mi: Hijs nostris benefacite.[221]
Δ: They answered, all, Factum erit.[222]
Mi: Valete.[223]
Mi: Et dixit Dominus, venite Filij Lucis.
Venite in Tabernaculo meo.
Venite (inquam): Nam Nomen meum exaltatum est.[224]

[449][450][451][452]

Δ: Then cam in 7 yong men, all with bright cowntenance, white apparaled, with white silk uppon theyr heds, pendant behinde as the women had.[453]

One of them had a rownd purifyed pece or ball of Gold in his hand.

One other had a ball of siluer in his hand.

The third a ball of Coper.

The fowrth a ball of Tynne in his hand.

The fifth had a ball of yern.[454]

The sixth had a rownd thing of Quicksyluer, tossing it betwene his two hands.

The last had a ball of Lead.[455]

They wer all apparayled of one sort.
Mi: Quanmvis[456] in uno generantur tempore, tamen unum sunt.[457]
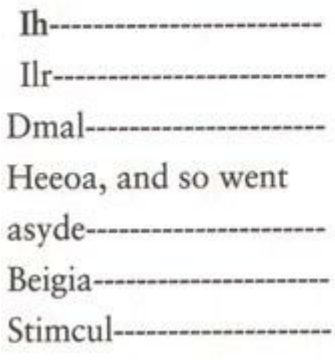
Δ: He that had the gold ball, had a rownd tablet of gold on his brest, and on it written a great

I--------------------------

Then he with the syluer ball, cam furth, with a golden tablet on his brest likewise, and on it written
He with the Copper ball, had in his tablet
He with the tyn ball, had in his tablet
He with the yern ball, had in his tablet



Ih------------------------
Ilr------------------------
Dmal--------------------- Heeoa, and so went asyde---------------------
Beigia---------------------
Stimcul-------------------

He with the Mercury ball, had written
The yong man with the leaden ball, had Mi: Facite pro illis, cum tempus erit.[458]
Δ: All answered, Volumus.[459]
Mi: Magna est Gloria Dei inter vos. Erit semper. Halleluyah.[460]

Valete.[461]

Δ: They made cursy, and went theyr way, mownting up to heven.
Mi: Dixit Deus, Memor esto nominis mei:

Vos autem immemores estis.[462]
I speak to you. Δ: Hereupon, we prayed.

Mi: Venite, Venite, Venite.

Filiæ Filiarum Lucis Venite.
Qui[463] habebitis filias venite nunc et semper.[464]

Dixit Deus, Creaui Angelos meos, qui destruent Filias Terræ.

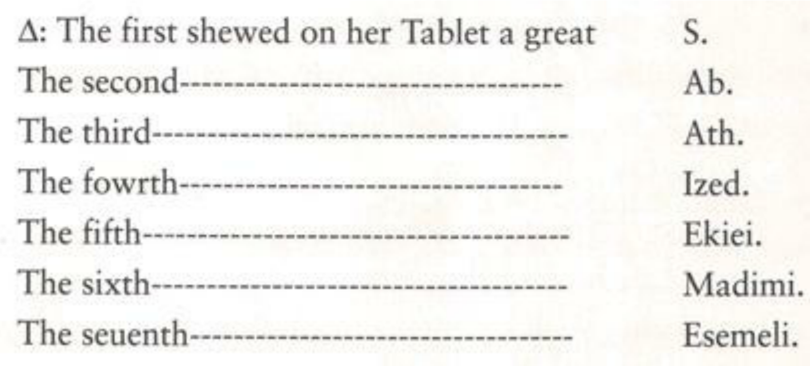
Adsumus,[465] Δ: Sayd 7 little wenches which cam in. They were couered with white silk robes, and with white abowt theyr hed, and pendant down behinde, very long.

Mi: Vbi fuistis vos?[466] Δ: They answered: In terris, cum sanctis et in cælis, cum glorificatis.[467]

Δ: These spake not so playn, as the former did; but as though they had an impediment in theyr tung.

Δ: They had, euery one, somwhat in theyr hands, but my skryer could not iudge what things they were. Mi: Non adhuc cognoscetur Mysterion hoc.[468]

Δ: Eache had fowre-square Tablets on theyr bosoms, as yf they were of white Ivory.



Δ: The first shewed on her Tablet a great S.
The second---------------------------------- Ab.
The third------------------------------------ Ath.
The fowrth---------------------------------- Ized.
The fifth-------------------------------------- Ekiei.
The sixth------------------------------------ Madimi.
The seuenth---------------------------------- Esemeli.

Mi: Quid istis facietis?

Erimus cum illis, in omnibus operibus illorum.[469] Δ:
They answered.

Mi: Valete.[470] Δ: They answered, Valeas et tu Magnus O in Cælis.[471]
Δ: And so they went away.
Mi: Orate.[472] Δ: We prayed.
Mi: Et misit filios filiorum, edocentes Israel.
Mi: Dixit Dominus, Venite ad vocem meam.

Adsumus, [473] Δ: Sayd 7 little Childern which cam in, like boyes couered all with purple, with hanging sleues like preists or scholers gown sleues: theyr heds attyred all (after the former manner) with purple sylk.

Mi: Quid factum est inter filios hominum?

Male viuunt (sayd they) nec habemus locum cum illis tanta est illorum Iniustitia. Veh mundo, scandalis: vel scandalizantibus, Veh illis quibus Nos non sumus.[474]

Δ: These had tablets (on theyr brests) three cornerd, and seemed to be very grene and in them, letters. The first had two letters in one: thus, of EL:

The first ----------  ----- Δ: He sayd, Nec nomine meo timet Mundus.[475]

The second ---------- An ----- Nullus videbit faciem meam.[476]

The third ---------- Aue ----- Non est virgo super terram cui dicam.[477]

[Δ: And pointed to his tablet, wherein that word, Aue, was written.]

The fowrth ---------- Liba ----- Tanta est infirmitas sanctitudinis Diei. Benefacientes decesserunt ab illo.[478]

The fifth ---------- Rocle - Opera manuum illorum sunt vana. Nemo autem videbit me.[479]

The sixth shewed his Tablet and said, Ecce -- Hagonel[480] - Qui adhuc Sancti sunt, cum illis viuo.[481]

The seuenth had on his tablet -- Ilemese -- Hij imitauerunt doctrinam meam. In me Omnis sita est Doctrina.[482]

Δ: I thowght my skryer had missherd, this word Imitauerunt, for Imitati sunt.[483] And Michael smyled and seemed to lawgh, and sayd, Non curat numerum Lupus.[484] And farder he sayd, Ne minimam detrahet à virtute, virtutem.

Mi: Estote cum illis: Estote (inquam cum istis) Estote (inquam) mecum. Valete.[485]

Δ: So they went, making reuerence,[486] and went up to heuen.

Mi: Dictum est hoc tempore.[487]

Mi: Note this in thy Tables. Dost thow understand it? Loke if thow canst.

Δ: He sayd to Uriel, It is thy part, to interpretate these things.[488]

Ur: Omnis Intelligentia est a Domino.

Mi: Et eius Nomen est Halleluyah.[489]

Compose a table, diuided into 7 parts, square.[490]

S	A	A	I $\overset{21}{8}$.	E ~~M~~	M ~~E~~	E 8
B	T	Z	K	A	S	E 30
H	E	I	D	E	N	E
D	E	I	M	O	30	A
I 26	M	E	G	C	B	E
I	L ~~A~~	A ~~L~~	O	I $\overset{21}{8}$.	V	N
I	H	R	L	A	A	$\overset{21}{8}$.

Ur: Those 7 names, which procede from the left hand to the right, are the Names of God, not known to the Angels: neyther can be spoken or red of man. Proue if thou canst reade them.

Beatus est qui secrete.
Nomina sua conseruat.[491]

Ur: These Names, bring furth 7 Angels: The 7 Angels, and Governers in the heuens next unto us,[492] which stand allwayes before the face of God.[493]

Sanctus Sanctus Sanctus
est ille DEVS noster,[494]

Ur: Euery letter of the Angels names, bringeth furth 7 dowghters. Euery dowghter bringeth furth her dowghter, which is 7. Euery dowghter-her-dowghter bringeth furth a sonne. Euery sonne in him self, is 7. Euery sonne hath his sonne, and his sonne is 7.[495]

Let us prayse the God of Seuen, which was and is and shall liue for euer.

Vox Domini in Fortitudine.

Vox Domini in Decore.

Vox Domini reuelat Secreta.

In templo eius, Laudemus Nomen eius El. Halleluyah.[496]

See if thow canst now understand this table. The Dowghters procede from the angle on the right hand, cleaving the myddle: where theyr generation ceaseth. The Sonnes from the left hand to the right to the middle: so proceding where theyr number endeth in one Centre. The Residue thow mayst (by this Note) understande.[497]

Δ: Then Michael, he stroke ouer us ward, with his sword, and the flame of fire yssued oute.

Loke to the corner of the right hand, being the uppermost: where thow shalt finde $\underset{\cdot}{8}$. Refer thyne eye to the upper number, and the letter aboue it. But the Number must be fownd under neth, bycause his prick so noteth.[498] Than procede to the names of the dowghters in the Table: and thow shalt see that it is the first name of them: This shall teache thee.

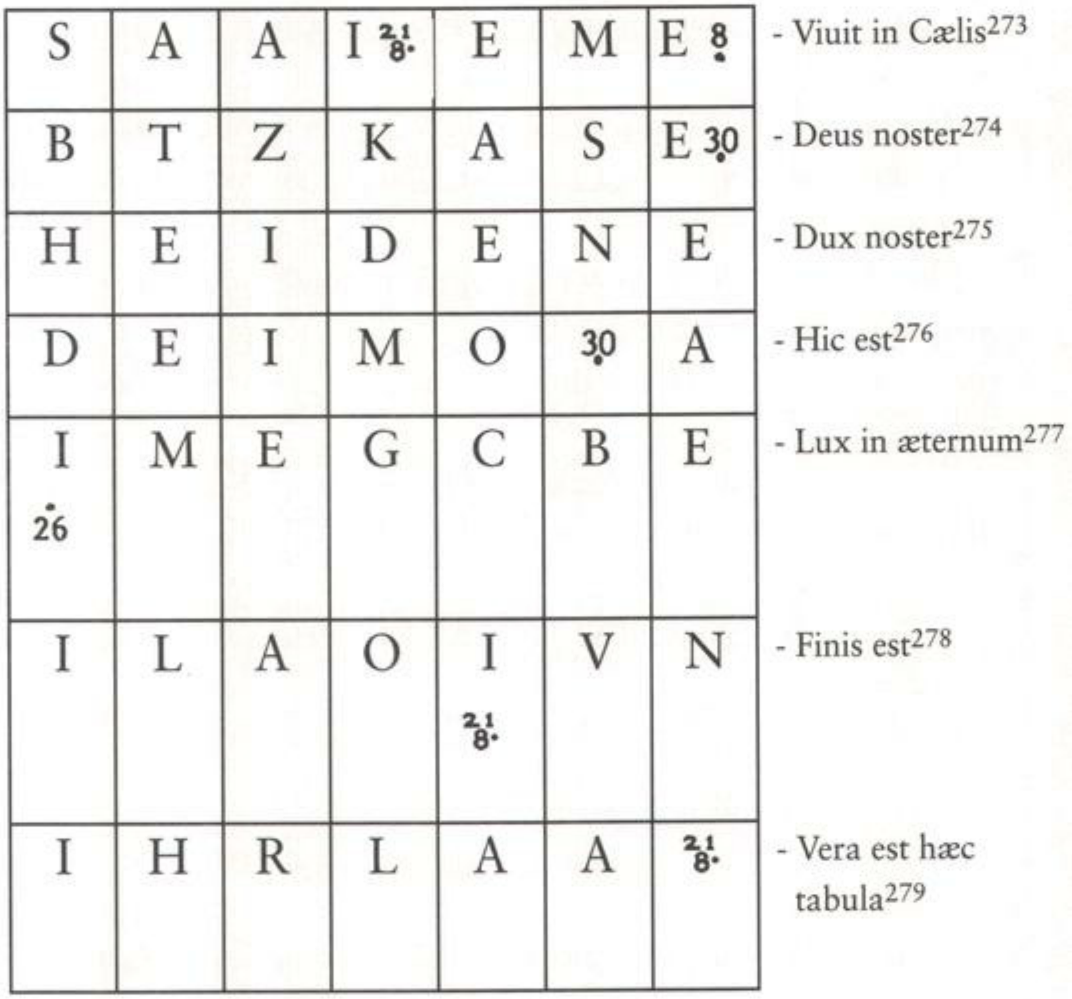
Δ: Loking now into my first and greatest Circle for $\underset{\cdot}{8}$ I finde it with 1 ouer it. I take this to be the first Dowghter.[499]

Ur: You must in this square Table set E by the $\underset{\cdot}{8}$ and now write them Composedly in one letter, thus  .

Nomen Domini viuit in æternum.[500]

Ur: Giue ouer, for half an howre, and thow shalt be fully instructed.

Δ: I did so, and after half an howre comming to the stone, I was willed to make a new square table of 7: and to write and note, as it followeth.



S	A	A	I $\overset{21}{8}\cdot$	E	M	E $\underset{\cdot}{8}$	- Viuit in Cælis[273]
B	T	Z	K	A	S	E $\underset{\cdot}{30}$	- Deus noster[274]
H	E	I	D	E	N	E	- Dux noster[275]
D	E	I	M	O	$\underset{\cdot}{30}$	A	- Hic est[276]
I $\overset{\cdot}{26}$	M	E	G	C	B	E	- Lux in æternum[277]
I	L	A	O	I $\overset{21}{8}\cdot$	V	N	- Finis est[278]
I	H	R	L	A	A	$\overset{21}{8}\cdot$	- Vera est hæc tabula[279]

[501],[502],[503],[504],[505],[506],[507]

Vera est hæc Tabula, partim nobis cognita, et partim omnibus, incognita. Vide iam.[508]

The 30 by E, in the second place, in the upper right corner, serueth not in the consideration of the first Dowghters, but for an other purpose.[509]

The $\overset{\cdot}{26}$ by I, serueth for an other purpose: but not for this Dowghters Dowghter. The 21, is e, and $\underset{\cdot}{8}$ with the prick under it is 1: which togither maketh El, or thus compownded as if it were one letter,  .

The Names of the great Seale must follow the Orthographie of this Table. Virtus vobiscum est. Orate.[510] Δ: We prayed.

Δ: Then there appeared SAAI $\overset{21}{8}\cdot$ M . Here is an E comprehended in L.

Ur: Read now the Table.

Angeli lucis Dei nostri

Et posuit angelos illius in medio illorum.[511]

Ur: In the table are the names of 7 Angels. The first is Zabathiel, beginning from the left uppermost corner, taking the corner letter first, and then that on the right hand above, and than that under the first, and than the third from the first, in the upper row: and then cornerwise down toward the left hand, and then to the fowrth letter from the first in the upper row: where there is I with , which maketh el. So have you Zabathiel.

Ur: Go forward.

2. Δ: So, I finde next Zedekieil.

Ur: This I in the last Syllable augmenteth the true sownd of it.

3. Δ: Then next I finde Madimiel.----- Ur: It is so.
4. Δ: Then-------------- Semeliel.----- Ur: It is true.
5. Δ: Then-------------- Nogahel.----- Ur: It is so.
6. Δ: Then-------------- Corabiel.[284]----- Ur: It is so.
7. Δ: Then-------------- Leuanael.----- Ur: It is so.

Ur: Write these names in the Great Seal, next under the 7 names which thow wrotest last: videlicet, under , An Aue &c. distinctly in great letters.

Ur: Make the E and L of Zabathiel, in one letter compownded, thus ZABATHI . In this, so fashion your E and L. And this name must be distributed in his letters into 7 sides of that innermost Heptagonum. For the other, I will teache you to dispose them. You must make for IEL (in this name onely) I with the annexed. So haue you iust 7 places.

Ur: The next fiue names thow shalt dispose in the fiue exterior angles of the Pentacle: euery angle conteyning one whole name.

Ur: Set the first letters of these 5 names, (in Capitall letters) within the fiue acute internall angles of the Pentacle: and the rest of eche name following Circularly from his Capitall letter, but in the 5 exterior obtuse angles of the Pentacle.

Ur: Set Z, of Zedekieil within the angle which standeth up toward the begynning of the greatest Circle. And so procede toward thy right hand.

Ur: In the middle now of thy Pentacle, make a cross † like a Crucifix and write the last of those 7 names Leuanael thus,

Uriel: Vidit DEVS, opus suum esse bonum et cessauit a Labore suo.

Factum est.[513]

Δ: Michael stode up and sayd,
The æternall Blessing of God the FATHER,
The mercifull Goodnes of CHRIST, his SONNE
The unspeakable Dignitie of GOD the Holy GHOSTE bless you, preserue you, and multiply your doings in his Honor and Glory.

Uriel: AMEN.
Ur: These Angels are the angells of the 7 Circles of Heven, gouerning the lightes of the 7 Circles.
Blessed be GOD in us, and by us,
Which stand contynually before the presence of GOD, for euer.[514]

DIXI.[515]

Δ: Whan may we be so bold, as to require your help agayn.
Mic: Whan so euer you will, we are ready.

Farewell.

Δ: Sit Nomen Domini benedictum, ex hoc nunc, et usque in sæcula sæculorum.:
Amen.[516]

Anno Domini 1582. Martij. 21. } At Mortlake by Richemond

SIGILLVM DEI, ÆMÆTH: EMETH nuncupatum, vel
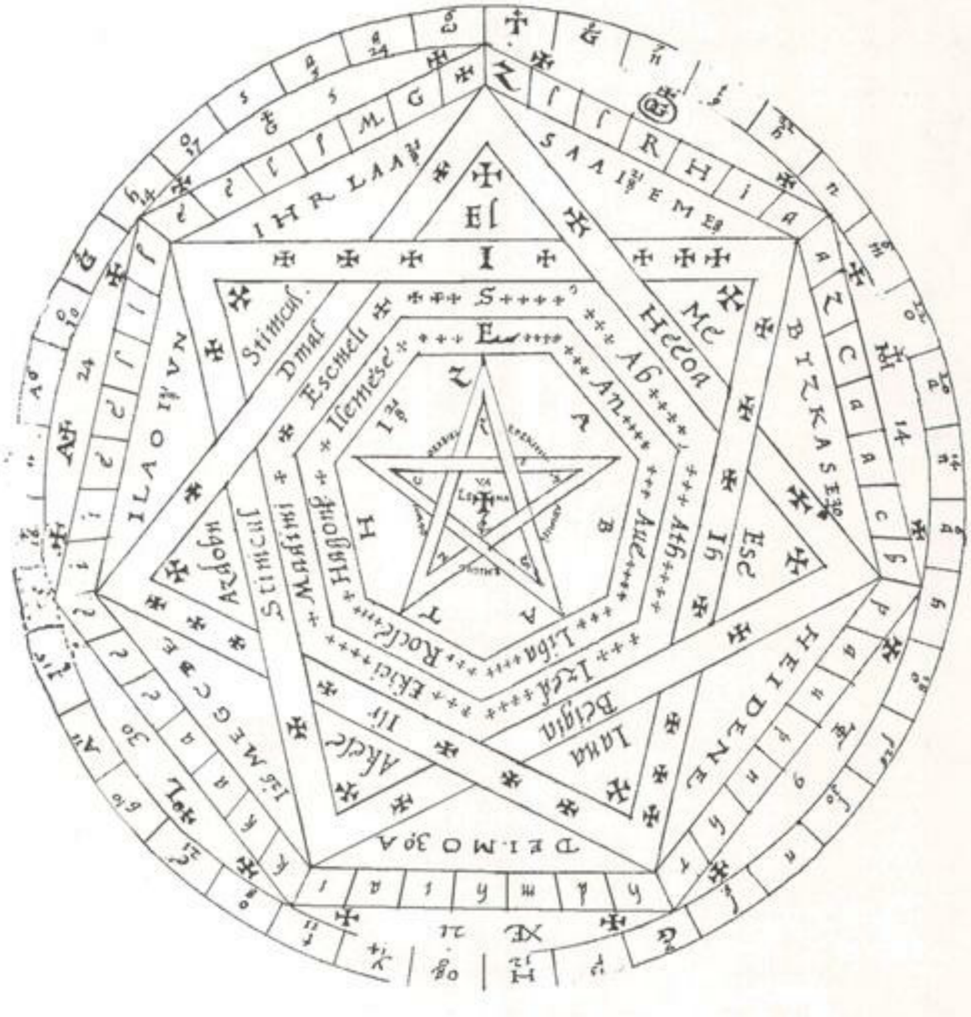
DEI

אמת } hebraicè



El
I
S
E Stimcul
Dmal Escmeli
Ilemese
Me
Hecoa
Ab
An Ath
Aue
Esc
Ih
Liba
Rocle
Ekiei
Iczeg
Bcigia
Iana
Akele
Ilr
Stimcus
Madimi
Hagonel
Azdobn
IHRLAA
SAAI EMEG
BTZKASE
HEIDENE
DEIMO 30 A
ILAOI VN
MEGCBE

Mysteriorum, liber Tertius.

Anno 1582:

Aprilis 28: [518]

Anno 1582 Aprilis 28 a meridie hora 4.[519]

E.T: Onely Michael appeared; Δ: And to diuerse my Complayntes, and requests sayde, Mi: The lord shall consider thee in this world, and in the world to come.

E.T: All the chayre seamed on fyre.

Mi: This is one Action, in one person: I speak of you two.[520]

Δ: You meane us two to be ioyned so, and in mynde united, as yf we wer one man?

Mi: Thou understandest.

Take heade of punishment for your last slaknes.

Δ: Yf you mean any slaknes on my behalf, Truely it was and is for lak of habilitie[521] to buy and prepare things, appointed of you. Procure I pray you habilitie, and so shall I make spede.

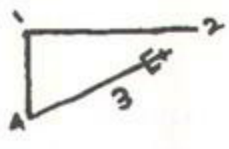
E.T: A great hill of gold with serpents lying on it appeared: he smyteth it with his sword, and it falleth into a mighty great water, hedlong.

Mi: Dost thow understand? Δ: No verylie.

E.T: He razed the hill away, as thowgh there had byn none; and sayd,

Mi: Lo, so it is of this worldly habilitie.

Δ: I pray you how must the Lamine be hanged?



Mi: As concerning the lamine, it must be hanged unseen, in some skarf.[522] The Ring when it is made, I will lessen it according to my pleasure.

I meane by two Cubites, your usuall yarde. Haste, for thow hast many things to do. Glory be to God, Peace unto his Creatures. Mercy to the wicked, Forgivenes to the Faithfull: He liueth, Ô he rayngneth, O thow art mighty, PELE: thy name be blessed. Δ: Amen.

Venito Ese,[523] Δ: He cryed so with a lowd voyce.

E.T: He is now couered, in a myghty couering of fyre, of a great beawty. There standeth a thing before him. I cannot tell what it is.

Laudate Dominum in cælis.

Orate.[524] Δ: We prayed.

E.T: His face remayneth couered with the fyre, but his body uncovered.

Mi: Adesdum Ese.

Adesdum Iana.[525]

Vobis dedit demonstrationem in Tabulis vestris.[526]

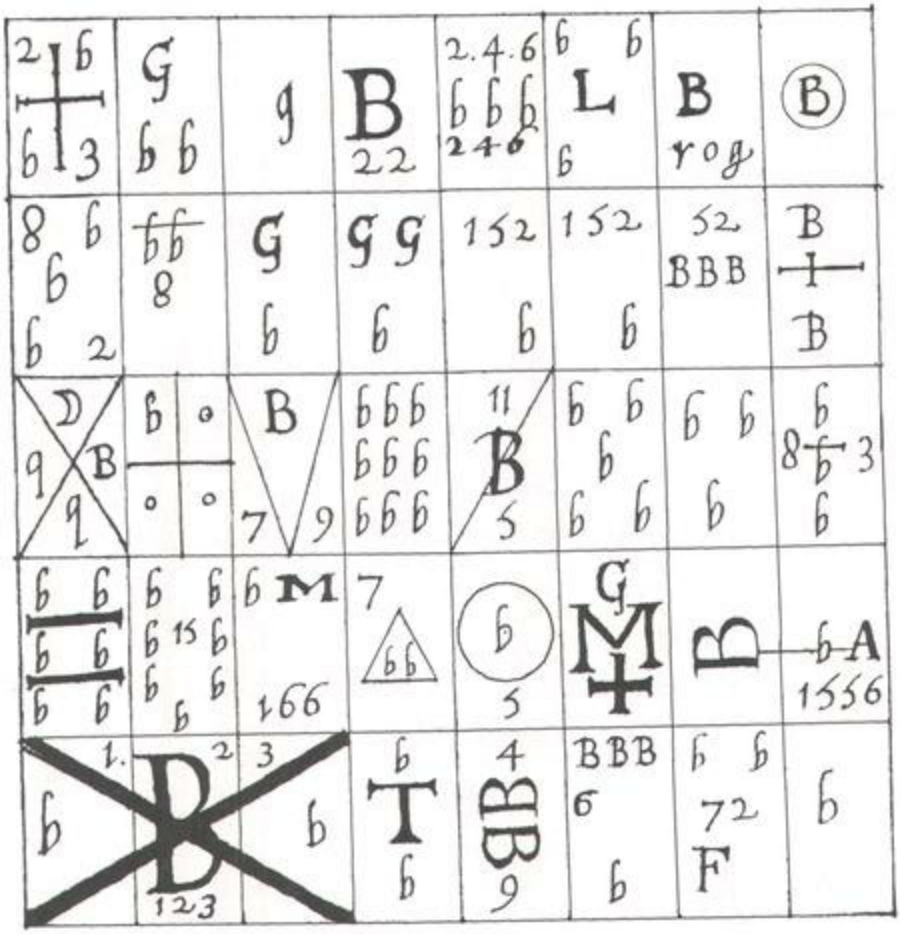
E.T: There appeare of the figure, (before, imperfect) two little women: One of them held up a Table which lightened[527] terribly: so that all the stone was couered: with a myst. A voyce cam out of the myst, and sayd,

Ex hijs creata sunt, [528] et hæc sunt nomina illorum.[529]

E.T: The myst cleareth, and one of the women held up a Table, being thus written uppon.

Numerus Primus.[530]

Δ: The Table semed square, and full of letters and numbers, and Crosses, in diuerse places, diuersly fashioned.

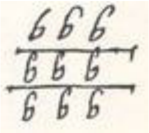


Numerus Primus[531]

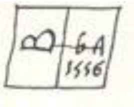
A finger cam out of the mist, and wyped oute, the first shew, with the Cross, letters, and numbers. The second was in like wise. The Third was a b with the tayle upward thus: g . The 52 with the three great BBB, semed to be couered with Gold. The two Crossed ones he did not wipe out with his finger.

The next he blotted oute.

He blotted not oute the three  with the 8 and 3.
The two barrs must go clere and not towch the bars.



The , the square, wherin it standeth, is all gold: and that he let stand.



Fire cam oute and burnt:
The  is all of a bright cullour, like the brightnes of the Sonne, and that was not put out. The places are very blak, but where the letters, and numbers do stand.
E.T. hard a voyce saying, Finis Tenebrarum:[532] Halleluyah.[533]
E.T: There commeth a hand and putteth the little woman into the clowde.
Mi: Prayse God: Be inwardly mery.

The Darknes is comprehended.
God bless you: God bless you: God blesse you.

You must leave of for an howre and a half: for you haue .6. other Tables to write to night.
Prayse God: be ioyfull.

After supper we resorted to our scholemaster.
E.T: I here a voyce but see nothing: he sayeth,

Initium bonum in nomine eius et est. Halleluyah.[534]

E.T: Three quarters of the stone (on the right side) are dark, the other quarter is clere.
Mi: Venite filiæ filiarum ESE.[535]

The nethermost......[536]

E.T: There come six yong maydens, all in white apparell, alike: Now they all be gonne into the dark parte of the stone, except one. There cam a flame of fyre out of the dark, and in the flame written Vnus[537] on this manner:

V nus nus
nus

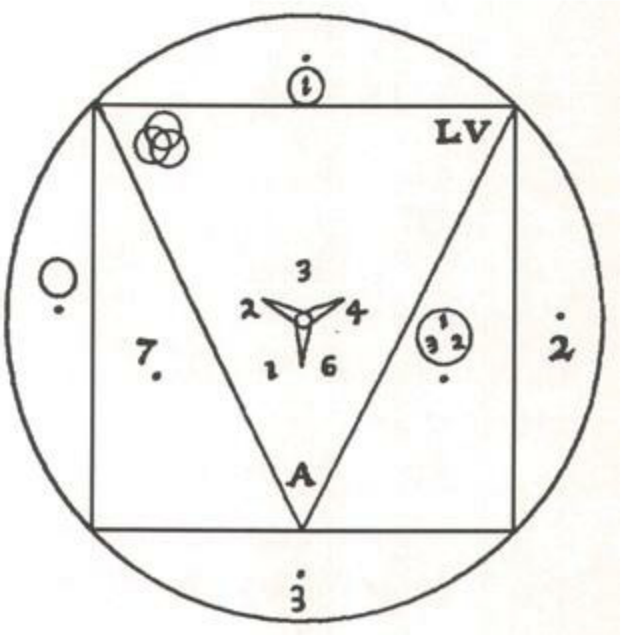
She that standeth without, putteth her hand into the dark: and pulleth out a ball of light: and threw it oute: and it waxed bigger and bigger; and it Thundred.

E.T: A voyce sayd --------- Dies primus.[538]

An other voyce --------- Ubi est Tabula?[539]

An answer --------- Est, Est, Est.[540]

She wyndeth and turneth her self abowt, begynning at her hed, and so was Transformed into a Table, rownde.



E.T: Three faces do shew and shote oute, and euer returne into one hed agayne: and with it cam a mervaylous swete sauour. The Table was of three cullours: white, redd, and a mixture of white[541] and red, changeably. A strong sownding cam withall, as of clattring of harness or fall of waters; or such like.

There cam a sterre shoting oute of the dark, and settled itself in the myddle of the Table: And the fyre which cam oute with the woman, did cumpas the Table abowt.

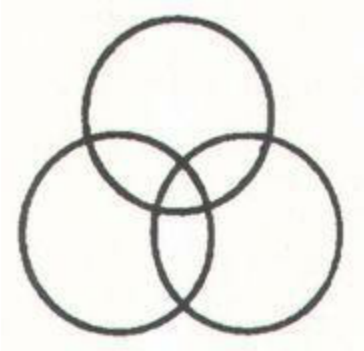
A voyce sayd, O honor, laus et gloria, Tibi qui es, et eris.[542]

The Table sheweth wunderfull fayre and glorious. Onely seuen priks appeare on the Table.

The three angles of the triangle open, and in the lower point appeared a great A.

And in the right upper corner LV. (E.T: The Table trembled.)

And in the other Corner appeared thre circles of æquall bignes, æqually, or alike intersecting eche others by theyr centers.



A voyce: Unus est, Trinus est; in omni Angulo est.

> Omnia comprehendit: Fuit, est, et vobis erit.
> Finis et Origo.[543] (E.T: Ô, Ô; with a dullfull sownd, he pronownced.)

E.T: The woman sayth, Fui: sum quod non sum.[544]

A voyce: Lux non erat et nunc est.[545]

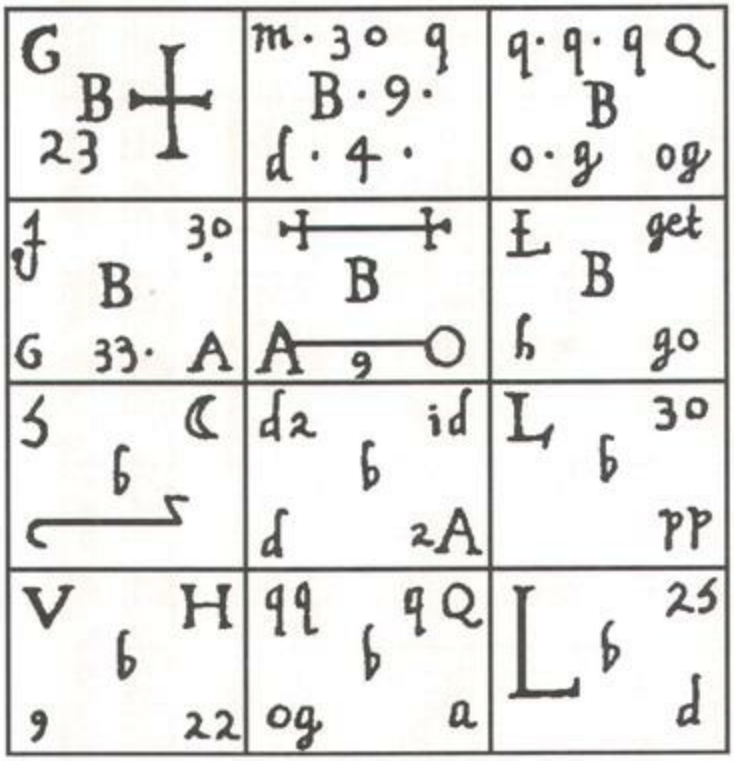
E.T: The woman being turned, from the shape of the Table, into womans shape agayn, went into the dark. Then one part of the darknes diminished. In the dark was a mervaylous turmoyling, tossing, and stur, a long tyme during.

A voyce: For a tyme Nature can not abyde these sightes.

E.T: It is become Quiet, but dark still.

A voyce: Pray and that vehemently, For these things are not revealed without great prayer.

E.T: After a long tyme there cam a woman: and flung up a ball like a glass: and a voyce was hard saying, Fiat. The ball went into the darknes, and browght with it a great white Globe hollow transparent. Then she had a Table abowt her neck, square of 12 places.[546] The woman seamed to daunce and swyng the Table: Then cam a hand oute of the dark: and stroke her and she stode still, and becam fayrer: She sayd, Ecce signum Incomprehensibilitatis.[547]



G
B 23
m·30 9
B·9·
d·4·
q·q·q Q
B o·g og 30
B
G 33· A
B
A 9 O get
B go da id
b d 2A
L 30
b pp
V H
b
9 22
qq q Q
b og a
L b 25
d

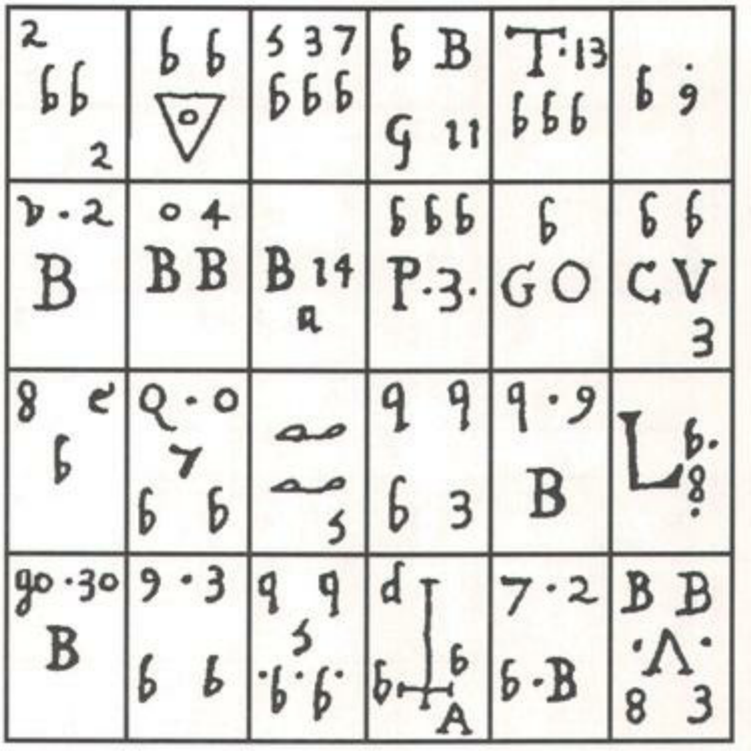
E.T: The woman is transformed into a water, and flyeth up into the Globe of Light.

E.T: A voyce: Est, Est, Est.[548]

E.T: One commeth, (a woman) out of the Dark very demurely, and soberly walking, carrying in her hand a little rownd ball: and threw it into the dark: and it becam a great thing of Earth. She taketh it in her hand agayne, and casteth it up into the rownd Globe and sayd,

Fiat.[549]

E.T: She turned her back toward E.T. and there appeared a Table diuided into 24 partes. Yt seemeth to be very Square.[550]



2 66 2	6 6 ▽	5 3 7 666	6 B G 11	T·13 666	6 9
D·2 B	o 4 BB	B 14 a	666 P·3·	6 GO	6 6 CV 3
8 e 6	Q·o 7 6 6	5	9 9 6 3	9·9 B	L 6· 8
90·30 B	9·3 6 6	9 9 5 ·6·6·	d 6 6 A	7·2 6·B	B B ·Λ· 8 3

A voyce: Scribe. Veritas est.[551]

E.T: A sword cam out of the Dark: and claue the woman a sunder, and the one half becam a man, and the other a woman,[552] and they went and sat uppon the Ball of cley or erth.

Now seemeth the Dark part to quake.

A voyce: Venito Vasedg.[553]

E.T: There cometh a woman oute of the Dark: she sayd, Vita hijs ex mea manu.[554]

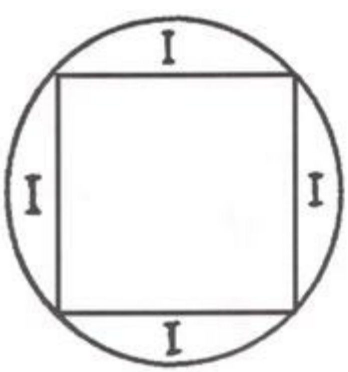
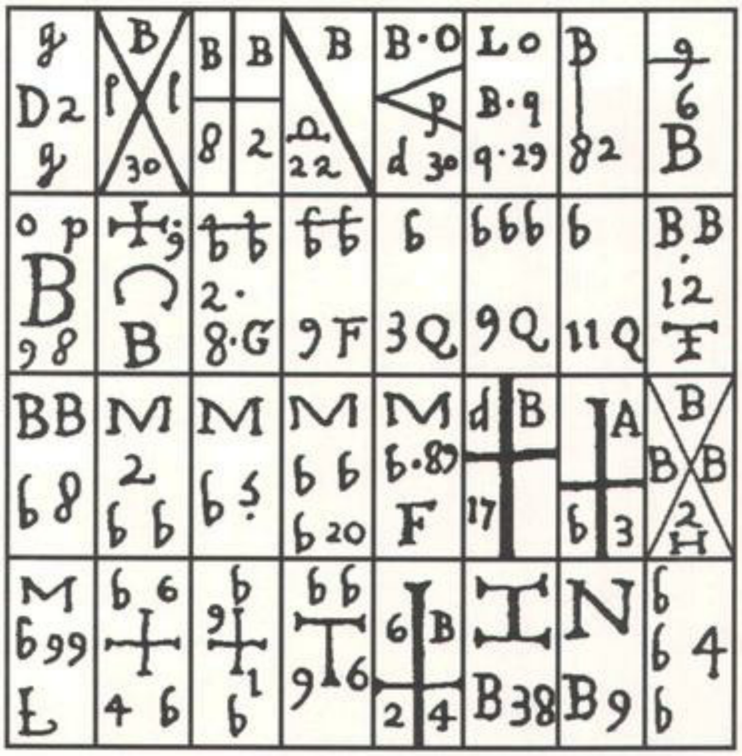
E.T: She sheweth a Table square full of holes, and many things creeping out of it. This square is within a rownd.



A voyce: O Lux Deus noster.[555]

Hamuthz Gethog.

E.T: Then stept out an other woman hauing a sword in her hand. She toke a thing oute of the dark (a bright thing) and cut it in twayn and the one parte she cut into two unæqual partes, and the other half she cutteth into a thowsand (or innumerable) partes. Then she toke all the partes up into her skyrt. She hath a Table, and it hangeth on her shulders. She stept before the other woman, whose hed standeth in the dark.[556] This woman her Table is fowresquare. She is very bewtifull.



g D2 g
B l l 30
B B 8 2
B 22
B·O d 30
L o B·9 9·29
B 82
9 6 B o p B 98
9 B
2· 8·G
9 F
6 3Q
666 9Q
6 11Q
BB 12
BB 68
M 2 66
M 6
M 66 620
M 6·89 F
d B 17
A 6 3
B B B 2 H
M 699 L
6 6 4 6
6 9 1 6
66 T 96
6 B 2 4
B38
N B9
6 6 4 6

Note this Cross with the two bees, the 4 and the 6, is one of the Notes annexed to the second Table of the 4 of Enoch's Tables: And the T of Enoch's Tables semeth to answer with the T first in the Seale of Æmeth, and the cross allso.

She sayd, Lumina sunt hæc Intelligentiæ tuæ.[557]

She sayd, Fere nulli Credendus est hic numerus.[558]

This woman taketh the little peces, and casteth them up, and they become little Sparks of light: and of the things she cast, There were two great rownd things. And they were allso cast up to the white Transparent Globe. And she went away into the Dark: which was, now, very much lessened.[559]

Then the other woman (who was forestept) thrust oute her hed who had the rownd conteyning the Square, with 36 places. She crymbleth clay, and it turneth to byrds. She seameth to be like a witch. Into the bosse of her Table, she put her hand and that bosse, was in the Dark and oute of the bosse, she seemed to fatch that Clay. She sayd,

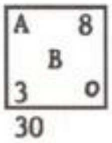
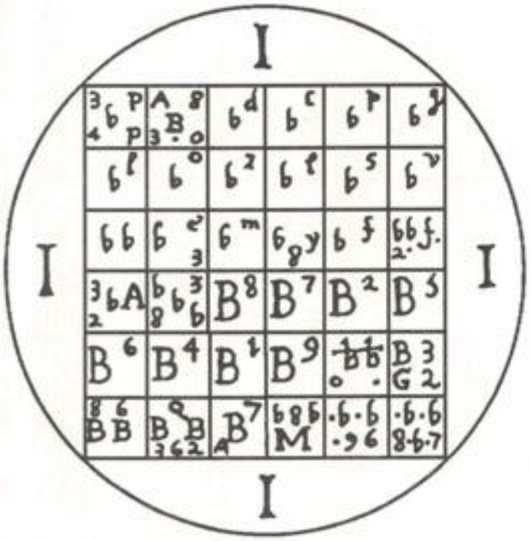
> Ad usum tuum Multiplicati sunt.[560]

E.T: She went into the Dark.





E.T: A voyce is hard saying,

> Omnia gaudent fine.[561]

E.T: There commeth oute a woman; out of the Dark. She plucketh at the dark, and casteth it on the grownd, and it turneth to herbes, and plants becomming like a garden, and they grow up very fast. She sayd,

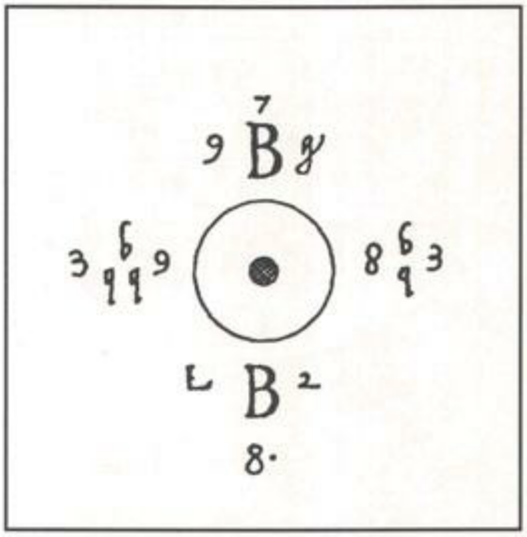
> Opus est.[562]

E.T: She hath a fowre square Table before her.

Then cam one, all in white, and taketh the Darknes, and wrappeth it up and casteth it into the myddle of the Erthen Globe, on which appeared Trees and Plants.

E.T: Then appered Michael, his Chayre, and Table agayne manifestly: which all this while, were not seen.

Mi: Obumbrabit vestigia vestram veritatis luce.[563]



The Actor, The Actor, The Actor:
One Disposer; he, which is one in all; and All in all:
bless you from the wickednes of Deceyte: Create you new vessels: To whome I commyt you.

E.T: He holdeth his sword over us, in manner, out of the stone.

Mi: Fare Well. Serue God. Be patient. Hate vayne glorie. Liue iustly. Amen.

Δ: What spede shall I make for the yard square Table, the Wax, the seale, and the Character? Mi: As thow ar motioned, so do.

Δ: Gloria, Pri et F. et S.S. S.e.i.p.e.n.e.s.e.i.s.s. Amen.[564]

Δ: Note, All the Tables before were by E.T, letter for letter noted out of the stone standing before him all the while: and the 7 Tables following wer written by me as he repeted them orderly out of the stone.

Aprilis 29: Sonday: Nocte hora 8¼.

E.T: Two appeare, Michael and Uriel.

Mi: Et posuit illos in ministerium eius.

Quid desideratis?

Δ: Sapientiam et scientiam nobis necessariam, et in Dei servitio potentem ad eius gloriam.

Mi: Sapere, a Deo: Scire a Creatura et ex creaturis est.

Ur:[565] Venite filiæ.[566]

E.T: Seuen women appeare bewtifull and fayre.

Mi: This work is of wisdom (Δ: Sayd Michael, and stode up.) E.T, sayd to me (Δ), He putteth oute his sword and willeth me to sweare, to that, that he willeth me: and to follow his cownsayle.

Mi: Wilt thow. Δ: Then with much ado, E.T. sayd as followeth,

E.T: I promise,[567] in the name of God the Father, God the sonne and God the holy ghost, to performe that you shall will me, so far as it shall lye in my powre.

E.T: Now they two seeme to confer togither.

Mi: Now you towche world, and the doings uppon earth. Now we shew unto you the lower world: The Gouerners that work and rule under God:[568] By whome you may haue powre to work such things, as shalbe to god his glorie, profit of your Cuntrie, and the knowledge of his Creatures.

To E.T. he spake, What I do wish thee to do, thow shalt here know, before thow go. We procede to One GOD, one knowledge, one Operation.

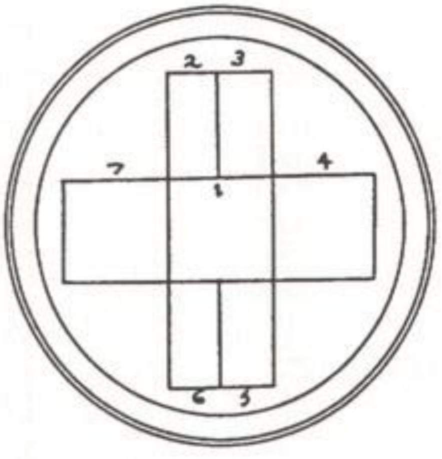
Venite filiæ.[569]

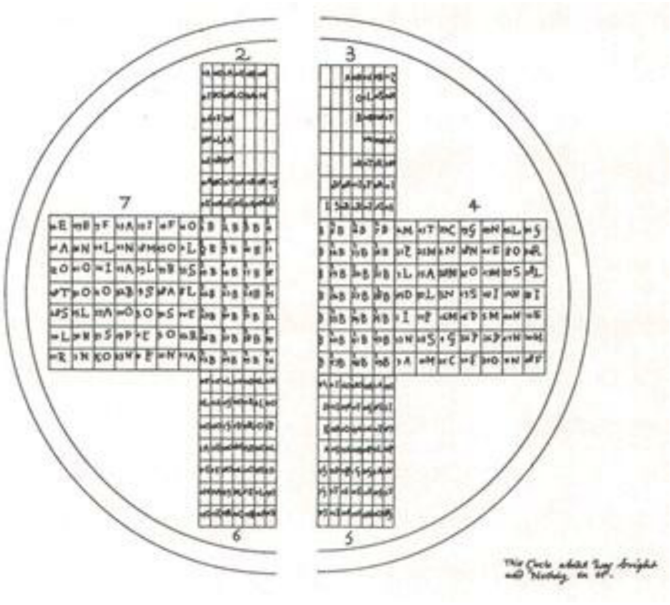
Behold these Tablets: Herein lye theyr names that work under God uppon earth: not of the wicked, but of the Angels of light. The Whole Gouernment, doth consist in the hands of 49: (in God his Powre, Strength, Mercy, and Iustice) whose names are here euident, excellent, and glorious. Mark these Tables: Mark them. Record them to your Cumfort.

This is the first knowledge. Here shall you haue Wisdome. Halleluyah.

Mighty and Omnipotent art thow, O God, God, God, amongst thy Creatures: Thow fillest all things with thy excellent foresight. Thy Glorie be amongst us for euer. Δ: Amen.

E.T: All the 7 (which here appeare) ioyne theyr Tables in One: Which, before they held apart. And they be of this Forme all to-gither. The myddelmost is a great Square and on eche side of it, One, as big as it, ioyning close to it. And ouer it ioyned two, which both togither wer æquall to it: and under it, wer such other two, as may appear in this little pattern. Being thus ioyned, a bright circle did cumpas and enclose them all, thus: but nothing was in the Circle.





[44 E: forte I, as in Baligon.]

E.T: One stept-furth, and sayde,

1: Wilt thow haue witt, and wisdome: Here, it is. (Δ: Pointing to the middle table.)

2: Another sayd, The Exaltation and Gouernment of Princes, is in my hand. (Δ: Pointing to that on the left hand of the two uppermost.)

3: In Cownsayle and Nobilitie I prevayle. (Δ: Pointing to the other of the two uppermost: which is on the right hand.)

4: The Gayne and Trade of Merchandise is in my hand: Lo, here it is.

Δ: He pointed to the great table on the right side of the myddle Table, that I meane which is opposite to our right hand while we behold those 7 Tables.

5: The Quality of the Earth, and waters, is my knowledge, and I know them: and here, it is. (Δ: Pointing to that on the right hand: of the two lowermost.)[570]

6: The motion of the Ayre, and those that moue in it, are all known to me. Lo here they are. (Δ: Pointing to the other Table below, on the left hand.)

7: I signifie wisdome: In fire is my Gouernment. I was in the begynning, and shalbe to the ende. (Δ:

Pointing to the great table on the left hand of the Middle Table.)

Mi: Mark these Mysteries: For, this knowne, the State of the whole earth is known, and all that is thereon. Mighty is God, yea mighty is he, who hath Composed for euer. Giue diligent eye. Be wise, mery, and pleasant in the Lorde; in Whose Name, NOTE, Begynne the Middle Table &c. Δ: I wrote oute of the stone the whole 7 Tables (as you see them here with theyr numbers and letters) while E.T. did vew them in the stone, and orderly express them.

Δ: As concerning 39 V . 47 L &c in the second Table, where are 7 places: and there but 6 numbers and letters, and yet euery place semeth to haue a letter, in the iudgment of E.T. his sight. Which is the Number and letter wanting, and where must it be placed?

Mi: Non potestis hoc videre sine ratione.[571]

> Δ: The Next day, as I was loking on the Tables being finished, and ioyned all togither in One Compownd Figure, E.T. cam to me, and stode by me, and his ey was on the forsayd place which I was forced to leaue empty, in the 7th and last. And behold he saw houering and hopping in the ayre, two numbers and two letters cuppled to them, ouer the sayd place, and the next before it. And that, which I had placed the sixth, was to be put in the seuenth place, and that which was wanting, was to be set in the sixth place being 30 N.[572]

E.T: Euery of the 7 Tables, as they wer written out of the stone do seme afterward to burn all in fyre: and to stand in fyre.

E.T: After all the Tables wer written, eche toke hir Table aparte agayn and stode in theyr order.

E.T: Note moreouer. The First, had Bokes in hir hand.

Kings -------------- The second, a Crown in hir hand.

Nobilitie -------------- The Third, Robes.

Merchants - Δ: - Aqua[573] - The fowrth, animal quadrupes vicium omnim colorum.[574]

Terra[575] - The fifth, Herbes.

Aer[576] - The sixth, a fanne.

Ignis[577] - The seventh, a Flame of fyre in hir hand. Mi: Decedite in nomine eius, qui vos huc misit.[578]

E.T: Uriel opened a boke in his own hand, and sayde,

Ur: The Fontayne of wisdome is opened. Nature shalbe knowne: Earth with her secrets disclosed. The Elements with theyr powres iudged. Loke, if thow canst (in the name of God) understand these Tables. Δ: No: Not yet.

Ur: Beholde; I teache. There are 49 Angels glorious and excellent, appointed for the government of all earthly actions: Which 49 do work and dispose the will of the Creator: limited from the begynning in strength, powre, and glorie.

These shalbe Subiect unto you, In the Name, and by Invocating uppon the Name of GOD, which doth lighten, dispose and Cumfort you.

By them shall you work, in the quieting of the estates, in learning of wisdome: pacifying of the Nobilitie, iudgement in the rest, as well in the depth of waters, Secrets of the Ayre, as in the bowells and entralls of the Earth.

Ur: Theyr Names are comprehended within these Tables. Lo, he teacheth, he teacheth, Lo, he instructeth, which is holy, and most highest. Take hede, thow abuse not this Excellency, nor overshaddow it with Vanitie, But stick firmely, absolutely, and perfectly, in the love of God (for his honor) to-gither.[579]

Be mery in him: Prayse his name. Honor him in his Saincts. Behold him in wisdome: And shew him in understanding. Glorie be to him; To thee ô Lord, whose name perseth[580] throwgh the earth. Glorie be to thee, for euer. Δ: Amen, Amen, Amen.

Ur: Lo, I will breifly teache thee; you shall know the Mysteries in him: and by him, which is a Mysterie in all things. The letters are standing uppon 7 equall numbers. The Number before them is signifying, teaching and instructing (from the first Table to the last,) which are the letters that shalbe ioyned to gither:[581] begynning all, with B, according to the disposition of the number untyll the 29[582] generall names be known. The first 29 are more excellent than the rest. Euery Name doth consist uppon the quantitie of the place: Euerie place with addition bringeth furth his name, which are 49.------- I haue sayde.----------Δ: I pray you to tell me the first Name. Ur: The first Name is BALIGON.

Mi: I haue to say to thee,[583] and so haue I done:

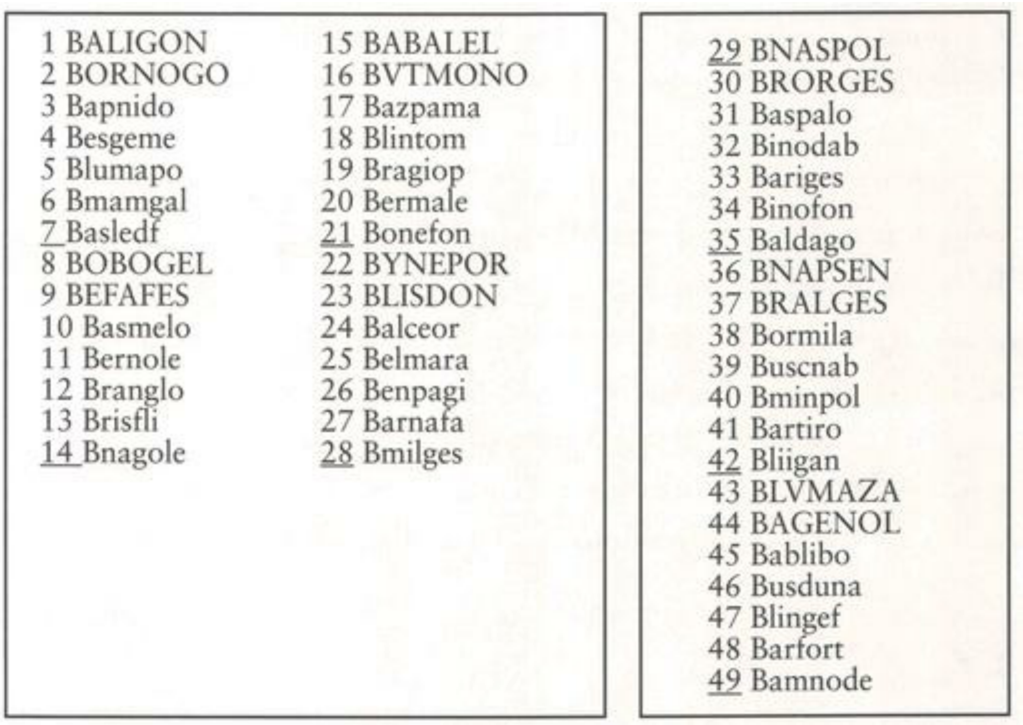
Δ: Now he spake to E.T., of the matter he sware him to, at the begynning of this last Instruction: and he told me afterward what Michael had willed and moved him unto. Wherat he seamed very sore disquietted: and sayd this to me,

E.T: He sayd that I must betake my self to the world, and forsake the world. That is that I shold marry. Which thing to do, I haue no naturall Inclination: neyther with a safe Conscience may I do it, contrary to my vow and profession. Wherfore I think and hope, there is some other meaning in these theyr wordes.

Mi: Thow must of force kepe it. Thow knowest our mynde.

Δ: Deo opt. Max°. omnis honor laus et gloria in sæcula sæculorum. Amen.[584]

Ended, hora noctis, 11½ª circiter.[585]



1 BALIGON
2 BORNOGO
3 Bapnido
4 Besgeme
5 Blumapo
6 Bmamgal
7 Basledf
8 BOBOGEL
9 BEFAFES
10 Basmelo
11 Bernole
12 Branglo
13 Brisfli
14 Bnagole
15 BABALEL
16 BVTMONO
17 Bazpama
18 Blintom
19 Bragiop
20 Bermale
21 Bonefon
22 BYNEPOR
23 BLISDON
24 Balceor
25 Belmara
26 Benpagi
27 Barnafa
28 Bmilges
29 BNASPOL
30 BRORGES
31 Baspalo
32 Binodab
33 Bariges
34 Binofon
35 Baldago
36 BNAPSEN
37 BRALGES
38 Bormila
39 Buscnab
40 Bminpol
41 Bartiro
42 Bliigan
43 BLVMAZA
44 BAGENOL
45 Bablibo
46 Busduna
47 Blingef
48 Barfort
49 Bamnode

Tabula Collecta: 49 Angelorum Bonorum, Nomina continens [per Δ][586]

Coordinatio Angelorum bonorum 49, per Jo. Dee, ita disposita[587]

Coordinatio Angeloru bonoru 49 per Jo. Dee, ita disposita iste est ceteris

Liber 4.

Fryday Maij 4: hor 2½ a meridie

Δ: E.T. wold not willingly now deale with the former Creatures, utterly misliking and discrediting them, bycause they willed him to marry. Neyther wold he put of his hat in any prayer to god, for the Action with them: whereuppon I went into my Oratorie, and called unto God, for his diuine help for the understanding of his laws and vertues which he hath established in and amongst his Creatures, for the benefyt of mankinde, in his seruice, and for his glorie &c. And commyng to the Stone, E.T. saw there those two, whom hitherto, we wer instructed to be Michael and Uriel.

E.T: Michael and Uriel, both kneled holding up theyr hands: and Michael seamed to sweat water abundantly, somwhat reddish or bluddish. There cam 7 Bundells down, (like faggots) from hevenward. And Michael taketh them kneeling. And Uriel taketh a thing like a superaltare and layeth it uppon the Table: and with a thing like a Senser doth make perfume at the fowre corners of the Table: the smoke ascending up: and the senser, at the last, being set on the Table it seemed to fall throwgh the Table.

URIEL semeth to be all in a white long robe tucked up: his garment full of plightes[588] and seemed now to haue wyngs: (which, hitherto, from the begynning of these kinde of Actions he did not) and on his hed a bewtifull crown, with a white Cross ouer the Crown.[589] Uriel taketh the 7 Bundells from Michael: and with reuerence layeth them on the forsayd Superaltare.

E.T: There commeth a man, as thowgh he were all of perfect pure glistring gold: somtyme seeming to haue One eye, and somtyme Three. From under the Table commeth a great smoke, and the place semeth to shake.

Uriel lieth now prostrate on his face: and Michael contynually prayed sweating.

The Glorious man seemed to open the Covering of the 7 bundells (being of diuerse cullored sylk,) and there appered, that these Bundells seemed to haue in them, of all Creatures some, in most glorious shew. The glorious man seemed to stand uppon a little hill of flaming fyre. He taketh-of, of one of the Bundells a thing like a little byrd; and it hoouereth affore him as thowgh it had life: and than it rested uppon the thing like a superaltare.

This glorious man[590] seemeth to be open before, and his brest somwhat spotted with blud. He hath a berd forked of brownish cullour, his heare of his hed, long, hanging down to his sholders: but his face, for beutifull glittring, can not be discerned. His heares do shake, as thowgh the wynde carryed them. This man blesseth the bird, making a Cross ouer it: and, so he did three tymes. He looketh up to heven. Now the byrd, which, before, seamed to be but as byg as a sparrow, seameth to be as great as a swanne: very beutifull: but of many cullours.[591]

Now looketh Michael up, and held up his hands to heven, and sayeth,

> Sic, Sic, Sic, Deus noster.[592]

Uriel, (sayd)- Multiplicabit omnia, benedictione sua.[593]

The former Bewtifull man taketh this fowle, setteth it on the bundell, and on the place, from whence it was taken:[594] And, now, the place where this byrd stode before, seameth allso, to be (proportionally) waxen as big as the byrd, (thus enlarged). This man taketh an other byrd, and putteth the wyng of it, behind the wyng of the first (as-thowgh he yoked them.)[595]

This second byrd, at this his first taking, was as byg, as the first was become, (encreased, as it shewed), and it was allso a very bewtifull ....

E.T: All is suddenly dark, and nothing to be seen, neyther Chayre, nor any thing els.

E.T: A voyce was hard, like Michael his voyce, saying,

It was a byrd, and is a byrd, absent there is nothing but Quantitie.

A voyce:[596] Beleue. The world is of Necessitie: His Necessitie is gouerned by supernaturall Wisdome. Necessarily you fall: and of Necessitie shall rise agayne. Follow me, loue me: embrace me: behold, I, AM.

E.T: Now all the Darknes vanished, the man is gon. Uriel standeth at the Table, and Michael sitteth now in his Chayre: and sayd, Mi: This doth GOD work for your understanding. It is in vayne to stryve: All Government is in his hands. What will you els, what will you els?

Δ: Progressum et profectum in virtute et veritate ad Dei honorem et gloriam.[597]

Mi: This hath answered all our[598] cauillations.

Δ: What hath answered all our Cavillations?

Mi: Thow hast written.

One thing you shall see more, as a persuasion to the Infirmitie.

E.T: The two byrds, which were there, before, and gon out of sight, now are shewed agayn: but none of the bundells appere. They seme to grow to a huge bignes, as byg as mowntaynes: incredibly byg: and they seeme to hover up in the ayre, and to fly up toward heuen, and with theyr wyngs to towch the sky: And one of them with his bill seemeth to take sterrs into it: and the other bird to take them from the same byrd, and to place them agayn in the Skye. And this they did very often: and in diuerse places of the heuen with great celeritie.

After this they semed to fly ouer Cities, and townes, and to break the clowdes in peces, as they passed: and to cause all dust to flye from all walls, and towres, as they passed, and so to make them clene. And in the streetes, as these two Byrds flew, seemed diuerse brave fellows, like bisshops, and Princis and Kings, to pass: and by the wyngs of these byrds, they were striken down. But simple seely[599] ones, like beggers, lame and halt, childern, and old aged men, and wemen, seemed to pass quiettly, untowched and unouerthrown of these two Byrds.

And than they seemed to come to a place, where they lifted up, with the endes of theyr wyngs, fowre Carkasses of dead men (owte of the grownde) with crownes on theyr heds: wherof one seemed to be a Childe. First these 4, seemed leane, and deade: Then they seemed quick[600] and in good liking:[601] And they being raysed up: parted eche from the other, and went into 4 sundry wayes, Est, West, North and Sowth.

Now these two fowles hauing theyr wyngs ioyned togither, light uppon a great hill: and there the First fowle gryped the erth mightyly and there appeared diuerse Metalls, and the ^ Fowle spurned them away, still.

Then appeared an old mans hed, heare and all, on; very much wythered. They tossed it betwene them, with theyr feete: And they brake it: And in the hed appeared (in steede of the braynes) a stone, rownd, of the bignes of a Tennez ball of 4, cullours, White, black, red, and greene.

One of them (he that brake the skull), putteth that rownd stone to the others mowth or byll. The other eateth or nybbleth on it, and so doth the other allso.

¶ Now these two byrds, are turned into men: And eche of them haue two Crownes like paper

Crownes, white and bright, but seeme not to be syluer. Theyr teeth are gold, and so likewise theyr hands, feete, tung, eyes, and eares likewise All gold.

On eche of these two men, ar 26 Crownes of Gold, on theyr right sholders, euery of them, greater then other. They haue, by theyr sides, Sachels, like palmers[602] bags, full of gold, and they take it oute, and seemed to sow it, as corne; going or stepping forward, like Seedmen.

E.T: Then sayd Michael, This, is the ende.

E.T: The two men be vanished away.

Mi: Learne the Mysterie hereof.

Δ: Teache us (ô ye spirituall Creatures.) Than sayd Michael, Mi: Joye and helth giue unto the riche:

Open strong locks:
Be Mercifull to the wicked:
Pluck up the poore:
Read unto the Ignorant:
I haue satisfyed thee: Understand:
Read them ouer: God shall giue thee some light in them. I haue satisfyed thee:

Both, How you shalbe ioyned,

By whome,
To what Intent, and purpose:
What you are,
What you were,
What you shalbe, (videlicet) in Deo.[603]

Lok up this Mysterie:

Forget not our Cownsayle:

O GOD, thow openest all things: Secret are thy Mysteries and holy is thy name, for euer. The vertue of his presence, here left, be amongst you.

Δ: Amen.

Δ: What am I to do, with the wax, the Table, the ring or the Lamine? &c.

Mi: When the things be ready, then thow shalt know, how to use them.

Δ: How shall I do for the grauing of the ring; May not another man do it, thowgh, E.T. graue it not?

Mi: Cause them to be made up, (according to Instruction) by any honest man.

Δ: What say you as concerning the Chamber, for our practise? May my fardermost little chamber, serue, yf the bed be taken downe?

Mi: At my next Call, for the Chamber, you shall know what to do.

Δ: Benedictus Deus in donis suis:

et sanctus in omnibus operibus eius.[604] Amen. ended hor. 4½[605]

----

†

Quartus Liber Mysteriorum

A°. 1582
Nouembris 15.

Post reconciliationem Kellianam.

Miserere nostri Deus

Dimitte nobis, sicut et nos dimittimus[606]

Thursday. Nouembris 15.[607]

...

At the first, Uriel pluckt a thing from under the Covenant Table: and it grew Rownd, Bigger &; bigger, (of fyrie Cullour) bigger then all the world: and he sayd to me Δ:

Uriel: Ultima est hæc ætas vestram, quæ tibi revelata erit.[608]

Then cam swarming into the stone, Thowsand yea Inumerable people, Uriel sayd,

Est in mundo, et incipiet cum illo alter Mundus.[609] and he bad,

Note the forme of the thing seen. Note the cullour. The forme of the thing seen was a Globe Transparent fyre within which the people seemed to stand, Towers and Castells. &c. did appere therein, likewise. This Globe did king CARMARA seeme to go uppon, & to measure it: and there appeared a very riche chayre to be set: allmost at the top of the Convexitie of the sayd Globe. wherein he sat down.

...

Michael: The Mysteries of God haue a tyme: and Behold, Thow art provyded for that tyme.

...

All those before spoken of are Subiect to thy Call....

Of friendship, at any tyme, thow mayst see them: and know what thow wilt.

Every one (to be short) shall at all times and seasons shew thee direction in any thing....

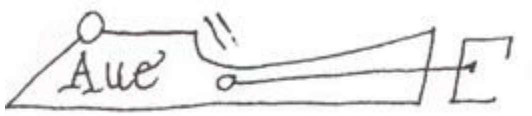
One thing I answer thee, for all offycis. Thow hast in subiection all officis. Use them whan it pleas thee, as thy Instruction hath byn.

...

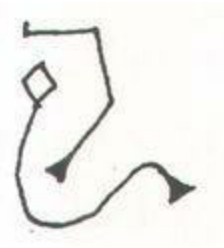
King CARMARA[610] - This king, (being called first by Uriel,) appeared, as a Man, very well proportioned: clad in a long purple Robe: and with a Triple Crowne of Gold on his hed. At his first coming he had 7 (like men) wayting on him: which afterwarde declared them selues to be the 7 Princis Heptarchicall. Uriel deliuered unto this king (at his first appearing) a rod or straight little rownd Staff of Gold: diuided into three equall distinctions, whereof, two were dark or blak: and the third bright red. This red he kept still in his hand.

...

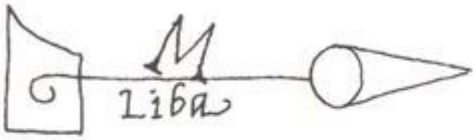
King BOBOGEL appeared in a blak veluet coat, and his hose close, rownd hose with veluet upperstocks: ouerlayde with gold lace: On his hed a veluet hatcap, with a blak feather in it: with a Cape hanging on one of his sholders, his purse hanging abowt his neck and so put under his gyrdell at which hong a gylt rapier, his berd was long: he had pantofells and pynsons. And he sayd, I weare these Robes, not in respect of my self, but of my government, etc.



Prince BORNOGO appeared in a red Robe, with a Gold Cerclet on his hed: he shewed his Seale, and sayde, This it is.



King BABALEL...



Prince BEFAFES appeared in a long red robe, with a cerclet of Gold on his hed. He had a golden girdle: and on it writtén BEFAFES. He opened his bosom, & appeared leane: and seamed to haue feathers under his Robes. His Seale, or Character, is this:

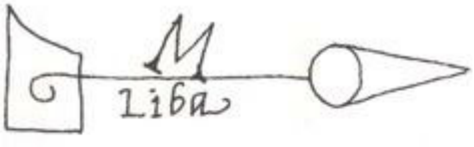
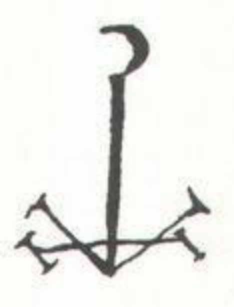
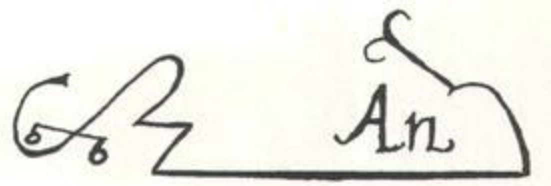
King BYNEPOR...



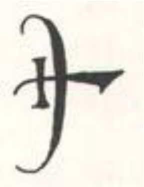
Prince BUTMONO appeared in a red Robe, with a golden Cerclet on his hed: His Seal is this:



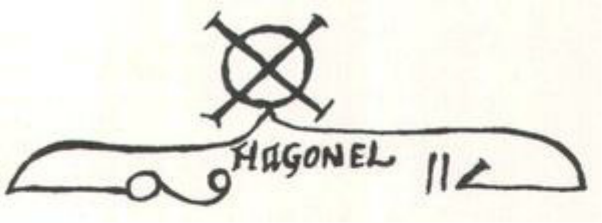
King BNASPOL...



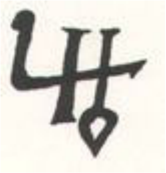
Prince BLISDON appeared in a Robe of many Cullours: and on his hed a Cerclet of Gold. His Character, or seale:



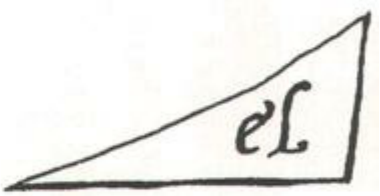
King BNAPSEN...



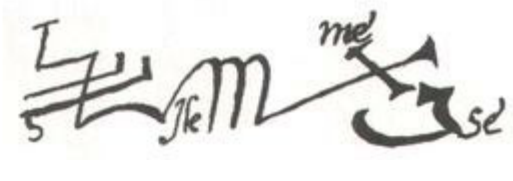
Prince BRORGES appeared in his red apparayle: & he opened his Cloathes and there did issue, mighty & most terrible or grisely flames of fyre out of his sides: whych no mortall eyr could abyde to loke uppon any long while. His Seale, or Character is this:



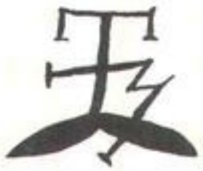
King BALIGON...



King BLVMAZA...



Prince BRALGES appeared in a red Robe with a Cerclet on his hed. This is the Seale of his gouernment:



One[611] (of the 7 which was by him) he who stode before him, with his face from ward him, now turned his face to him ward.[612]

Regnat potestas tua in filijs. Ecce signum Operis.[613]

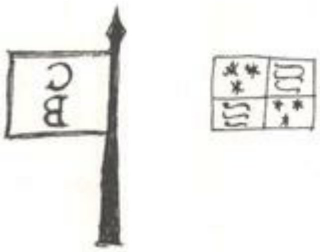
Δ: There appeared these two letters, euersed and aversed, in a white flag and a woman standing by, whose armes did not appere.



Note. My name is Carmara.[614]

Δ: On the other side of the flag appeared the armes of England. The flag semed old.

Adhuc duo, et tempus non est.[615] (Δ: Sayd the man[616] which stode before Carmara,) and lifted up his hand and avaunced his body: and the other 6 gaue him place. He spred his armes abroad: and so turned rownd toward all the multitude (appering within the Globe:) as if he wold require audience. He sayd than thus,

The Sonnes of men,[617] and theyr sonnes, ar subiected unto my commaundent. [618] This is a mystery. I haue spoken of it. Note it throwghly. They ar my seruants. By them thow shalt work mervayles. I gouern for a tyme:[619] My tyme[620] is yet to come. The Operation of the Earth is subiect to my powre:[621] And I am the first of the twelve. My seale is called Barees: and here it is.

(Δ: This he held in the palm of his hand: as thowgh it had byn a ring, hanging allso over his myddle fingers[622]). With a great voyce he sayd, Come ô ye people of the erth:[623]

1. (Δ: Then there cam a great Number of onely Kings, from amongst the rest of the multitude within the Globe: They kneele down; and some kyssed his seale and some did stand frowning at it. Those kings that kissed it, had, eche of them, a sword in one hand, and a payre of Ballance in the other: the balances being euen, and counterpeysed.[624] But the other had allso ballances, which hong uneven, the one scale lower then the other. The euen balanced kings were of glad cheare:[625] but the other wer of a sowre and hevy cowntynance.

It is, and shalbe so: And the workmanship of this, is to this ende.

2. Then cam noble men: (Δ: and he held up his hand,) and they parted them selues into two Cumpanyes: and ouer the heds of them, appered these two wordes. Vera,[626] over one Cumpany: and Impura[627] over the other.

Vera	Impura
......	....
......	....
.......&c	........&c

Verus cum veris, et Impurus cum Impuris.[628]

3. Come ô ye Princes of Nature. Δ: Then cam in Anncient and graue Cowtenanced men in blak gownes: of all manner of sortes.[629] Diuerse of them had bokes: and some had stiks like measures:[630] and they parted into two Cumpanies. Eyther cumpany had his principall. One of these Cumpanies fell at debate among them selues. The other Cumpany stode still. There appeared before eche of these Cumpanyes a great boke. Uppon the bokes was written; on the one, Lucem; and on the other, Mundi tenebras.[631] The Forman spred his hands ouer them, and they all fell down: and the boke with Lucem[632] on it waxed bright: and they which attended on that boke (Lucem) departed.

Gather, by these few spriggs the Cumpas of the whole field. Δ: I demaunded of him, what his name was: and he answered,[633]

I am Primus et Quartus[634] Hagonel.

Δ: This Pri. Quar, shewed his[635] seal ☉ to the Multitudes and they beheld it, and of them some florish, som stand, and some fall.

1. [Δ: Then he sayd,] The first were the Kings of the earth; which tell the priks of the last , take place, are, and shall be. In this thow mayst lern science. Note a mysterie. Take a place, is as much, as, Ende with place.

   Δ: Then he threw down a great many of them before him. Here is his name, (pointing to [Δ = Carmara[636]] on the upper part of the Globe.) Not withstanding I am his Minister - [D in generall particularly Blumaza.]

   There are kings fals and uniust, whose powre as I haue subuerted and destroyed, so shalt thow. Thow seest the weapons.[637] The Secret is not great.

   Δ: I know not what the weapons are. Pri. Quar. sayd, Write, and I will tell thee. Δ: The three, of eche side did syt down while Pri Quar did thus speake.

   I am the first of the fowrth Hagonel.

   Δ: I had thowght that ye sayd before, you had byn the first and the Fowrth of Hagonel.

   Pri Quar. I am HAGONEL, and govern HAGONEL. There is Hagonel the first, Hagonel the second, and Hagonel the third, I am the first that gouern the three. Therfore I am the first and last of the fowre.[638]

   Δ: In the meane space of the former multitude some were falln deade, of some theyr mowthes drawn awry: of some theyr legs broken &c. And then, pointing to (Δ: = Carmara) he sayd,

   In his name, with my name, by my character and the rest of my Ministers, are these things browght to pass.[639] These that lye here, are lyers, witches, enchanters, Deceyvers, Blasphemers: and finally all they that use NATVRE, with abuse: and dishonor him which rayneth for euer.
2. The second assembly were the Gouerners of the Earth, whose glory yf they be good, the weapons which we haue towght thee, will augment: and Consequently, if they be euill, pervert.
3. The third assembly are those which taste of Gods mysteries, and drink of the iuyce of Nature, whose myndes are diuided, some with eyes looking toward heaven, the rest to the center of the Earth. Ubi non Gloria, nec bonitas nec bonum est.[640] It is wrowght, I say, it is wrowght (for thy understanding) by the seuen of the seuen which wer the sonnes of sempiternitie,[641] whose names thow hast written[642] and recorded to Gods Glory.[643]

   Δ: Then he held up his hands, and seemed to speak but was not herd (of EK[644]) as he told me: and theruppon Pri Quar sayd, Neyther shalt thow heare, for it is Vox hominibus non digna. Illi autem cum filijs suis laudauerunt Deum. Benedictus est qui fiius est unicus, et Gloria mundi.[645]

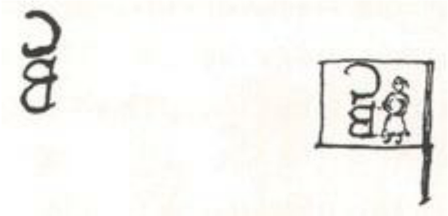
EK saw like a black cloth[646] come-in and cover all the forepart of the stone, so that nothing appeared in the stone. Then was hard a voyce saying, Loke for us no more at this tyme: This[647] shalbe a token, (from this tyme forth) to leaue.[648]

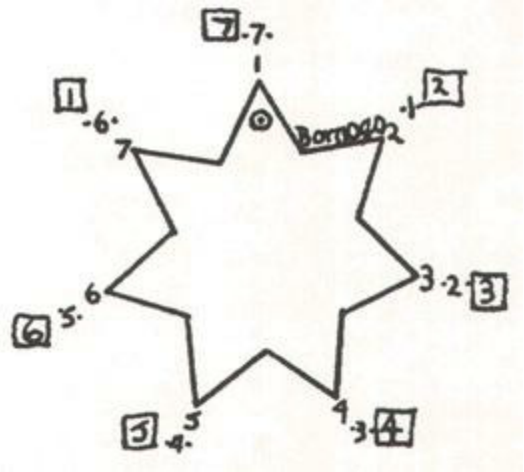
Δ: Laus et Honor sit Deo Immortali et Omnipotenti nunc et semp. Amen.[649]

1582 Die ♀ A meridie: hora 5. Nouemb. 16.

Δ: He with the triple Crown on his hed, in the long purple robe , had now onely that part of the rod in his hand, which was clere red: the other two parts being vanished awaye. He shoke his rod, and the Globe under him did quake. Then he sayde, Ille enim est Deus, Venite.[650] Δ: All the 7 did bow at his speache. He holdeth up the flag, with the picture of a woman paynted on it, with the (as before was noted) on the right side of her.



And on the other side of the flag, were the Armes of England. He florished with the flag very muche, and went as thowgh he did marche, in warlike manner uppon the upper and utterparte of the Globe. He pointed up to the Flag and sayde, There is two to come, there is no more.[651] All the people in the Globe seamed to be glad and reioyce. Now he setteth down the Flag, and sayd, Come, Come, Come; And the 7 cam all before him. They hold up all togither, Heptagonum stellare, seeming to be Copper.[652]



1: The first Holder,[653] sayd, Me nosti:[654] and so pulled his hand of from the Heptagonum.

2: The second of the .7. taketh his hand of and doth reverence and sayd, I am he which haue powre to alter the Incorruption of NATVRE. With my seale, I seale her and she is become perfect. I prevayle in Metalls: in the knowledge of them: I haue byn in Powre with many, but Actually with few. I am of the first of the[655] twelue the Second of the Seuen. Wilt thow know my name?

Δ: Full gladly.

I am BORNOGO: this is my Seale: This is my true Character. What thow desyrest in me shalbe fullfilled. Glory to God. Δ: He kneled down, and held up his hands toward the Heptagonum.

3: The next (or third) sayd, I am the Prince of the Seas: My powre is uppon the waters. I drowned Pharao: and haue destroyed the wicked. I gaue life unto the seas: and by me the Waters move. My name was known to Moyses. I liued in Israel: Beholde the tyme of Gods visitation. I haue measured, and it is ‘8’.[656] This is a mysterie. God be mercifull to his people. Behold, Behold Lo, behold, my mighty powr consisteth in this. Lern wisdome by my words. This is wrowght for thy erudition, what I enstruct thee from God: Loke unto thy charge truely. Thow art yet deade: Thow shalt be reuiued. But oh, bless God truely: The blessing that God giueth me, I will bestow uppon thee by permission.

Ô, how mighty is our god which walked on the waters; which sealed me with his name, whose Glory is without ende. Thow hast written me, but yet dost not Know me. Use me in the name of God. I shall at the tyme appointed be ready. I will manifest the works of the seas and the miracles of the depe shalbe knowne. I was Glorifyed in God. I Skurged the world. Oh oh oh, how they do repent. Misery is theyr ende, and Calamitie theyr meat. Behold my name is print..... for euer: behold it. Δ: He opened his bosom and seamed leane: and seemed to haue feathers[657] under his robes. He had a golden gyrdel: and on it, written BEFAFES. Than he sayd, Blessed be thow Ô God, God, God, for euer. I haue said.

Δ: He toke his hand of from the Heptagonum.

Δ: The blak Cloth was drawn: which is now appointed to be our token from them, that we must leave of for that instant.

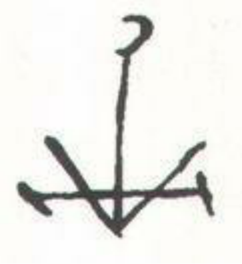
Δ: Deo soli, omnis honor, et Gloria.[658] Amen.

Friday. After drinking at night, circiter horam 8 ã.

Δ: On the left side of H (sitting in the Chayre) appeared yet three, holding up the Heptagonum, on one on the other side below. He sat with his face from EK toward me. I stode and my face sowthward. EK he sat at the same table, with his face Northward.

4: The Fowrth[659] (holding below) Cryed: Earth, Earth, Earth.

EK: He speaketh Hollow, so that I understand nothing. Δ: Than he answered, They are the wordes of my Creation, which you are not worthy to understand. My Powre is in Erth:[660] and I kepe the bodies of the Dead.[661] Theyr numbers are in my bokes. I haue the key of Dissolution. Behold, Behold, All things, yea All things, haue theyr workmanship with me. For I am the ende of working. EK: He falleth down prostrate, and speaketh, I know not what, Δ: Than he sayd, I haue the light of his anger,[662] and I will destroy it. Ô, Ô, Behold, It is a light left within the bottomles pit. It is the ende and the Last. O blessed shall thy name be, Blessed shall thy name be for euer. Behold this is my seale:



Behold, the bowels of the earth are at my opening. Δ: Than I requested him to help me with some portion of Threasor hid,[663] to pay my detts withall and to buy things necessarie &c. He answered, O wordling thow shalt be satisfyed with welth of this world. Behold Behold Lo, lo Behold, vehemently I say Behold. I haue, horded Threasor, for the sonne of perdition,[664] the first Instrument of his destruction. But, lo these Cauerns. Δ: He shewed to EK the Cavernes of the earth, and secret places therof and afterward sayd: Mark this, All spirits, inhabiting within the earth, where, their habitation is, of force, not of will, (except the myddest of my self. which I know not), are subiect to the powre hereof. Δ: Pointing to his Seale.[665] With this you shall govern, with this you shall unlok. With this (in his name who rayneth) you shall discouer her entrayles. How say you now? Can you do it? Ar not your Magiciens acquaynted with me? Yt greueth me to regester the bones of the Wycked. Prayse him Butmono, Prayse him Butmono, prayse him. Δ: Is that your name, I pray you tell me. He answered, yea it is my name. It is the ende[666] of all things. EK: Now he sitteth down.

5. Δ: Now the Fifth turned his face toward EK (Who [EK] sat before me, and opposite unto me) and stepped furth and sayd: I am life and breath in Liuing Creatures.[667] All things liue by me, the Image of One excepted.[668] Behold the face of the Earth. EK: There appeareth all Kindes of brute beastes, fowles, Dragons, and other. Δ: He Clapt his hands to gither and they all, vanished away at ones: they cam agayn: and went then away and retorned no more. But the people within the Globe remayned still as from the begynning: he sayd while the beastes were yet in sight, Lo, all these, do I endue with life: my seale is theyr Glory. Of God I am Sanctifyed: I reioyse: (1) the Liuing, (2) The ende, and (3) begynning of these things,[669] are known unto me: and by sufferance I do dispose them untyll my Violl be run. EK: He taketh owt of his bosom a little vyol glass: and there seameth to be fiue or six sponefulls of oyle in it. Δ: He answered and sayde, That it is: and it is a mysterie. Δ: I spake somwhat of this oyle, and he answered me, and sayd, Thow sayst true. In token of God his Powre and Glory, write down BLISDON. EK: He taketh his hand of from the Heptagonum.

6. The sixth pulleth open his Clothes and red apparell, and there yssueth mighty fyre oute of his sides. [Δ: Note, the cote of the first of these seuen is shorter[670] then any of his fellows coats are.] The sight of the fyre is very owgly, grisely, terrible, and skarsly of mans eye can be beholden. At length he pluckt his coates to gither, and sayd to EK, Ô I wold shew thee, but flesh and blud cannot see. Write shortly, (it is enowgh) Noui Januam Mortis.[671] Δ: Than sayd he to me in an ernest muse, Ô, Muse not, My words ar dark; but with those that see, light enowgh. Et per cussit Gloria Dei, Impiorum parietes. Dixi.

   Δ: In mervaylous raging fyre, this worde BRORGES[673] did appeare, tossed to and fro in the furious flames thereof, so abundantly streaming out, as yf all the world had byn on fyre, so that EK, could not endure (without great annoyance to his ey sight) to behold the same. And finally he sayd, Mysteria in animis vestris imprimite.[674] And so the fyre vanished away.

7. EK: The stone semeth all Blew: and onely One now beholdeth the Heptagonum: all the rest being set down: who semed now to extend theyr hands one toward an other, as thowgh they played, now being rid of theyr work. Now the last putteth his hand to the Heptagonon and turned his face to EK hauing his face (all the while before) turned toward D. He sayd, The Creatures liuing in my Dominion,[675] ar subiect to my powre. Behold I am BRALGES.[676] The powres under my subiection are Invisible. Lo what... are. EK: All the world semed to be in brightnes or w... fire: and therin appered Diuerse little things like little smokes without any forme.[677] He sayd, This is the seale[678] of my Gouernment. Behold I am come, I will teache the names without Numbers. The Creatures subiect unto me shalbe known unto you.

¶ Beware of wauering. Blot out suspition[679] of us for we are Gods Creatures, that haue rayned, do rayne & shall raigne for euer. All our Mysteries shalbe known unto you.[680]

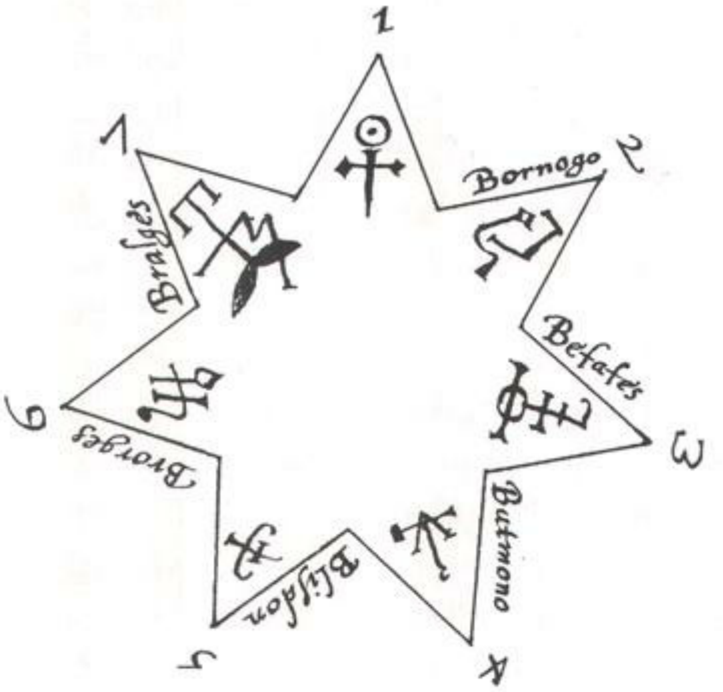
EK: All the 7 vanished away, onely H remayning who sayd (being stand up, and leaning uppon his Chayre, and turned to EK), Behold, these things, and theyr mysteries shalbe known unto you, reseruing the Secrets[681] of him which raigneth for euer: [EK: The voyce of a multitude, answered singing,] Whose name is Great for euer. H Open your eyes, and you shall see from the Highest to the lowest.[682] The Peace of God be uppon you.

Δ: Amen. EK: The blak Cloth was drawn before all the things conteyned in the stone: which was the Token of Ceasing for that tyme:

Sanctus sanctus sanctus Dominus Deus noster.[683]



1
2 Bornogo
Befafes
3 Butmono
4 Blisdon
5
Brorges
6 Bralges
7

Anno 1582: Saterday. Die 17. Nouemb: A meridie hora circiter 1 ã.[684]

Δ: The Cloth remayned drawn, a prety while after we had done our prayers to God, and so was all the things in the stone kept from sight.

Δ: The Man with the Crowne,[685] (he onely) appeared first, and the transparent Globe with the people of the world in it, as before. The Diaphanitie, or (as it wer) the Shell of the forsaid Globe, was very glystring bright. The man[686] shaked his hand toward me and the bak of the Chayre was toward EK. On the globe appered a trace like a seame, of two things ioyned to gither, or rather a very narrow path: which began below on the Convex superfices of this globe and went upward to the verticall point or (as it wer) the zenith prik of it: but from the lower part of the same to the place where the chayre stode, it seamed broder, and more worn, than from the chayre up to the vertex or top prik: for that part (which semed to be about the eighth part of the whole) did appere very smalle, and unworne, or unoccupyed.

Δ: He turning his face toward EK, spake thus, I haue declared things past and present. And now I speak of things to come. The Whole shalbe manifest. Nam ipse unus et Indiuisibilis est. Gloria Gloria Gloria Creatori nostro.[687] Two partes[688] are yet to come, the rest are finished allready. Δ: He shewed the rownd Table[689] with letters and numbers which master Kelly sent me: and than he toke it away agayn. Then he sayd,

> Venite gradatim repetamus,[690] opera Dei.[691]

Δ: The first of the .7. which had yesterday appeared, did now appere with the short robe,[692] as he did before. Than H sayd smylingly (being turned to EK),

> Hæc sunt documenta tua,[693] quæ nondum intelligis.[694]

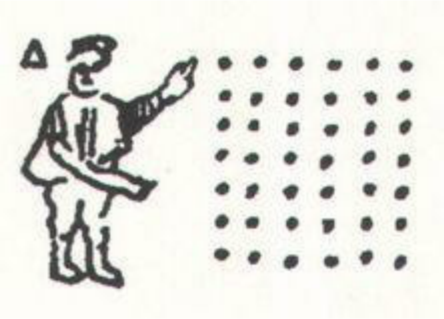
Δ: Than the man with the short robe, the Forman of the 7 (yesterday appearing) sayd,

> Unus est Deus, et Unum est opus nostrum.[696]

Δ: Then cam very many uppon the Globe his convex superficies and they sayd,

> Parati sumus seruire Deo nostro.[697]

Δ: Eche of these had somwhat in theyr hands. Som had crownes, some garments &c.[698]
The number of them was: 42: and stode in this order:



and sayd embracing (as it wer) the whole number of this Cumpany,

Et nomen meum, numerus est totus
Nec est crimen in numero nostro
Moyses nos nominauit.
Potestas istorum, quàm istarum, quamvis non una, tamen in uno sunt.[700]

Δ: I sayd that I thowght there wanted at the begynning of this sentence, this word Tam.[701] He answered, it might be understode by his pointing to them there standing, and sayd farder in respect of this my dowt, Quatenus est hæc vanitas vestrorum? Tu nosti numeros hos esse in Deo, in Mundo, et in minori mundo. In Deo, id est Nobiscum. In Mundo, quantum apud vos: In minori Mundo, quantum in vobis.

(Combinatur animus tuus cogitatione.) Disseritur apud Phõs., idque maximè) de NATVRA, quæ non vobiscum, sed nobiscum (ah, ah, ah) et in nostra potestate est. Videbis Deum. Vidisti opera nostra, Opera (inquam) manuum suarum: Digito Dei mouebimur. A Deo venit. Homo, et cum hominibus fuit: est enim cum illis. Illius namque potestas, vim, virtutem, et esse dat,[702] non nobis solum modo, sed operibus nostris.

Inhumata tibi anima tua, quid quærit?[703]

Δ: I understand you now: He answered Ab humo, homine: Ab homine dictum est.[704] I axed thee, what thow desyrest.

Δ: Wisdom, and Veritie, I answered: // then, he answered, H: Thow shalt. Δ: There cam in a smyling fellow: and they pluckt him, and towsed him. He cryed he wold tell Newes: and they answered, that there was none for him to tell: and he skaped[705] from them, or they let him slyp, with all his clothes torn of: and he semed to crepe or get away under the globe, and (as it wer) to get behinde the Diaphanous Globe.

Δ: These 42 had all of them somwhat in theyr hands: as eyther whole Crownes, or 3/4 of Crownes, or robes &c. Six of them semed more glorious than the rest, and theyr Coates longer: and had cerclets (abowt theyr hed) of Gold: and these had perfect Crowns in theyr hands. The second six had thre quarters of Crownes, the Third six, haue clothes[706] in theyr hands.[707] All the rest semed to haue balls of gold: which they toss from one to an other: but at the catching they semed empty wynde balls: for they gripe them, closing theyr hand, as yf they wer not solid, but empty, like a bladder.[708]

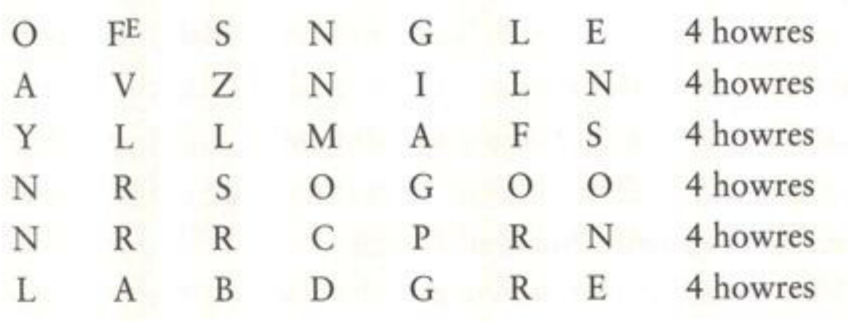
Δ: The first six sayd, Our names cannot be expressed: neyther can the names of these that follow.

Δ: The first six made cursy to the man with the short robe: the second six made cursy to the first, and the Third to the second, and they all, and the short robed man, made cursy to H.

Our workmanship is all one. Δ: Sayd the short robed man.[709]

H: The whole day is diuided into 6 partes:[710] Euery part occupyeth a part of them here. (Δ: Pointing to the 42 standing there.) Therfore yf thow wilt work with Kings (thow knowest my meaning), finally what so euer thow wilt do in theyr estate, Cast thyne eye unto the first place. In all good causes thow shalt work by six in generall. The rest are for Depriuation: I meane the next six. The residue all do serue to the entents and purposes apperteyning unto Kings. But bycause thow shalt not be ignorant, what they are, in name, they shall shew forth theyr Tables.

Δ: Than they, spedyly (eche of them uppon the place of theyr standing) made a square table: and euery table had but one Letter. The first of the first six did go away, and in his table appeared an O, &c, and so of the second six, orderly theyr letters appeared in theyr tables: But the Third six, they cowred down uppon theyr letters, and were loath to shew them: but at length, did &c: and at the last of euery row, they all cam togither &c.



O	FE	S	N	G	L	E	4 howres
A	V	Z	N	I	L	N	4 howres
Y	L	L	M	A	F	S	4 howres
N	R	S	O	G	O	O	4 howres
N	R	R	C	P	R	N	4 howres
L	A	B	D	G	R	E	4 howres

H: Remember how they stode, when they wer secondly disposed unto thee: They stode first in six rows; and next they wer turned into 7.[711] I speak of the greater number and not of the less. In speaking of the greater, I haue comprehended the lesser.[712]

Δ: They went euer away toward the[713] hand.

The third row went of lamenting: being commaunded by the Short robed man. All parted in fire, falling into the Globe. The fifth row did synk into the Globe, euery one in a sundry fyre by him self. The sixth fell with smoke down into the Globe.

EK: Now remayneth onely the man with the Crown H : he made shew with his hands, beckning toward E.K., and sayd, I haue told thee, that theyr workmanship, is to gither. Theyr names are uppon these tables. The first letter, is the Second letter, of the first[714] name of the Table.[715]

Thow hast 49 names in those Tables. Those names thow hast in former Tables by thee written: in that of 7 tymes 7. Confer it with the rownd Table.[716]

The first letter[717] from the point of his[718] sword, is B. That B signifieth the number of the Bees, begynning the 49 names, environing that Circle. In the former Tables thow shalt fynde B.1. B.2. B.3. B.4. &c and so to B.49. Those Bees begynne the names of all the powres that haue governed, do gouern, and shall gouern.

The next letter hath his circle and numbers going rownd abowt it: which thow shalt fynde in the former Tables. The letter standeth in the myddest of euery square, of euery Circle: thowgh some be turned upside down: Which onely signifyeth that they are Spirits of Destruction, wrath and Indignation in Gods Judgment. There are two numbers: that, on the right hand, over the letter, is the number pertayning to that letter.

O in the Circumference is the ninthe letter.[719]

Gather the former Tables to gither, which thow hast made before, conteyning 49, depending onely on B. Where thow shalt finde BOBOGEL, a name consisting on 7 letters, and so the rest. Reade my instructions as concerning those Tables, and thow shalt fynde the truth of them.-----------Ihaue sayd.[720]

Mighty is thy name, O God of Hostes:

Blessed is thy name, Ô Lord, for euer.
Δ:Amen.

* * *

After 7 of the clok at night. die ♄.[721]

H: Lo, here I byd them do, and they do. I haue appointed them, and they are contented. My Charge is not of my self, neyther do I speak darkly, obscurely or without a truth, in affirming that I towght thee those Tables: For they are from him, which made and created all things: I am from them[722] in powre and message, under whome I here rule[723] and shall do, tyll the ende[724] of all things be:[725] Ô, Great and bowntifull in his liberall mercy: The mercy of him, whome we prayse and laude and sing unto, with Joy for euer. Behold thow desyrest, and art syk with desire.[726] I am the disposer thowgh not the Composer of Gods medicines . Thow desirest to be cumforted and strengthened in thy labors. I mynister unto thee The strength of God.

What I say, is not of my self, neyther that which is sayd to me, is of them selues, but it is sayd of him which Liueth for euer.

These Mysteries hath God lastly, and of his great mercyes, graunted unto thee.[727] I haue answered thy dowting mynde.

Thow shalt be glutted, yea filled, yea thow shalt swell and be puffed up with the perfect knowledge of Gods Mysteries, in his mercyes. Abuse them not. Be faithfull. Use mercy. God shall enriche thee.

Banish wrath: yt was the first,[728] and is the greatest[729] Commaundement.

I rayng in him, and liue by him which rayngneth and liueth for euer.

Δ: I pray you make some of these last instructions, more playne, and euident.

H: I haue shewed thee perfectly. Behold I teache thee agayn. O how mercifull is God that revealeth so great secrets to flesh and blud? Thow hast 42 letters. Thy Tables, last, conteyn so many. Euery letter is the name particular by him self of the generall actions, being, and doing of these 42, which appeared with theyr workmanship. The first, was theyr Prince: and he gouerneth onely[730] theestate, condition and being, limited by God unto Kings of the earth. The 7 next him,[731] are those that are Messagers of God his good gifts to those that beleue him, and faithfully serue him: wherof few re ... and rayng now frutefull in his sight.[732]

Regnat, Regnat, Regnat ô regnat Iniquitas super faciem totius terræ Cor hominis impletum est malitia, et nequicijs. Incipit, incipit enim noua illorum potestas, illis non sine re dedita,[733] nec dis . . .[734]

Vide quæso.[735] Δ: He pointed down to the people, in the Globe, all being sore and diseased of some sore, ulcer, botch, &c.

H: All the residue of the Angels, (for so they are in dede) ar ministers of God his wrath and indignation uppon the Faythless:[736] whose myserie is most lamentable. 7 onely, haue 7 letters comprehending the dignitie of theyr vocation:[737] The rest are particular, not onely in powr, but allso in theyr vocation. Like leaves they spring and grow from one branche.

These words which thow seest in the last Table, some of them unhable to be pronownced, are notwithstanding the names of those 7[738] which held the fayr and bewtifull Crownes. Which names (as I sayd before) do comprehend not onely the powre, but allso the Being of the rest.[739] The whole Composition is the truth of the words. I will ones more teach. There were 42 that appeared, besides him, which was theyr prince. The first 7,[740] are called by those names, that thow seest, as OFS &c.

Δ: And so of AVZNILN &c. H : Thow hast sayde.

There are but 6 names,[741] that are in Subjection. I teache breifly. Doost thow not remember the Circle and the prick in the myddest: which was on the right hand[742] of him, that was theyr Prince? That onely representeth 7 in number which being added unto the rest maketh 49. Read the letters. Δ: I red OF &c, and he willed me to strike them out.

H: That is the name of those of the first of the 7.[743] which held the Crownes in theyr hands.

Note: The second line,[744] is the name of the second, and so to the ende of the table. 42 letters: 42 names: 42 persons.

The first, where his fote stode, is both his Name and Character.[745] And so of the second, Third &c.

Notwithstanding, Generally these are the names, the first 7, the One presupposed, the rest being six in order.

This is the truth, and the some of the Tables. Yt is easy to be understode and perfect.

Whan thow wilt work for anything apperteyning unto the estate of a good King: Thow must first call uppon[746] him which is theyr prince. Secondly the ministers of his powre ar Six:[747] whose names conteyne 7 letters apece: as thy Tables do manifest: by whome in generally, or by any one of them, in particularitie, thow shalt work for any Intent or purpose.

As concerning the letters particularly, they do concern the Names of 42 which 42, in generally, or one of them do and can work the destruction, [748] hindrance or annoyance of the estate, Condition or degree, as well for body as government, of any Wicked or yll Liuing Prince. In owtward sense, my words are true. I speak now of the use of one of the first, that I spake of, or manifested yesterday. Sayd I not, and shewed I not, which had the gouernment of Princes?[749] For, as it is a Mystery to a farder matter, so is it a purpose to a present use. Yf it rule worldly princis, how much more shall it work with the Princis of Creation?

Thow desyrest use, I teache use, and yet the Art is to the furder understanding of all Sciences, that are past, present or yet to come.[750]

Frute hath a furder vertue than onely in the eating: Gold his furder condition, property, and quality, then in melting, or common use. Kings there are in Nature, with Nature, and above Nature.[751]

Thow art Dignified.[752]

Δ: Yf I wold haue the King of Spayne his hart to be enclined to the purpose I haue in hand, what shall I do?

H: First Cast thyne ey unto the Generall prince,[753] Gouernor or Angel that is principall in this world.[754] [Δ as yet, is BALIGON or Carmara.]

Secondly consider the circumstances of thy Instruction.[755]

Thirdly place my name,[756] whome thow hast all ready.

Fowrthly, the name of him, which was shewed thee yesterday, whose garments were short, and of purple.[757]

Fifthly, his power,[758] with the rest of his six perfect Ministers.[759] With those thow shalt work to a good ende. All the rest thow mayst use to Gods Glorie. For euery of them shall minister to thy necessities. Moreouer, when thow workest, Thy feete must be placed uppon those tables[760] which thow seest written last comprehending 42 letters, and names. But with Consideration, that the first Character, which is the first of the 7, in thy former boke,[761] be placed uppon the top of the Table,[762] which thow wast, and art, and shalbe commaunded to haue, and use.

Last of all, the Ring, which was appointed thee: with the Lamine comprehending the forme of thy own name: which is to be made in perfect gold, as is affore sayd.[763]

Euen as God is iust, his iudgments true, his mercies unspeakable, so are we the true messagers of God: and our words are true in his mercy[764] for euer.

Glory, ô Glory be to thee, ô most high God.

EK: Now commeth Michael and heaveth in his hand out of the stone and sayeth, GOD Bless you.

H: As concerning the use of these Tables, this is but the first step. Neyther shalt thow practise them in vayne.[765]

And whereas thow dost use a demaunde, as concerning thy doings to a good intent and purpose: and for the prayse and advancement of Gods Glorie, with Philip the Spanish King: I answer that whatsoeuer thow shalt speak, do or work, shalbe profitable and accepted,And the ende of it shalbe good.[766]

Moreouer wheras thow urgest the absence of thy frende, as an excuse for the ring, No excuse can preuayle: Neyther canst thow shew the frutes of a iust mynde, but of a faynting stomack with this excuse. God hath retorned him, and wilbe mercifull unto you both. Thy Chargis in worldly affayres, are not so great, that God cannot Minister help to theyr necessities. Thow shalt be comforted. But Respect the world to come[767] (1); (whereunto thow art provided) and for what ende (2): and that, in (3) what tyme.

Serue God truely: Serue him iustly. Great Care is to be had with those that meddle with Princis affayres. Much more Consideration, with whome thow shalt medle or use any practise. But God hath shaddowed [768] thee from destruction. He preserueth his faithfull, and shaddoweth the iust with a shield of honor.

None shall enter into the knowledge of these mysteries[769] with thee but this Worker. Thy estate with the Prince (now rayngning,[770]) shall shortly be amended. Her fauor encreased, with the good wills of diuerse, that are now, deceyuers.

Thy hand, shall shortly be theyr help:[771] and thow shalt do wunderfull and many benifits (to the augmenting of Gods Glorie) for thy Cuntry.Finally, God doth enriche thee with Knowledge: and of thy self, hath giuen thee understanding of these worldly vanities.[772] He is Mercifull: and we his good Creatures,[773] neyther haue, do, nor will forget thee. God doth blesse you both: whose Mercy, Goodness, and Grace, I pronownce and utter uppon you. I haue sayd:

Δ: Laus, honor, Gloria, virtus et Imperium,

Deo opto. Max°.[774]
Amen.

H: Yf you will stay[775] one half howre, I will say farder unto you.

Δ: We will: by gods leave.

Δ: After that half howre passed, (being 10½ noctis ♄:) he sayde,

H: Venito BOBOGEL Rex et princeps Nobilitatis[776]

Venito cum ministris: Venito (inquam) Venito cum satellitibus tuis munitus.[777]

Δ: I fele: and (by a great thundring noyce, thumming thuming in myne eares) I perceyue the presence of some spirituall creature abowt me.

EK: And I here the thumming.

H: Behold, Before this work be finished,[778] (I meane the Manifestation of these Mysteries) thow shalt be trubbled, with the Contrarie Powres and beyond any accustomed manner. But take heade,[779] they prouoke thee not to work agaynst our Commaundements. Both thy ey and hand shall be manifest witness of it: well, this is true.

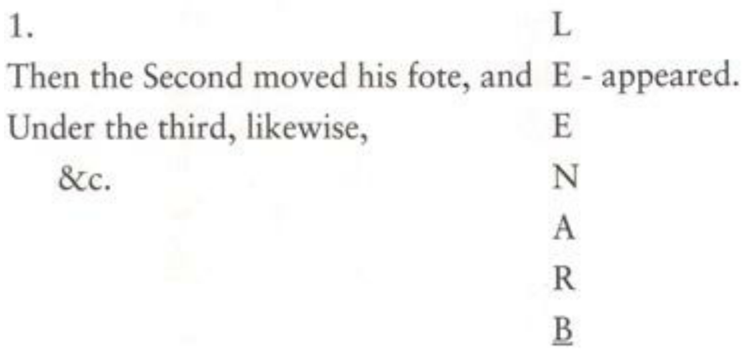
EK: They that now come in are ioly[780] fellows, all trymmed after the manner of Nobilitie now a dayes: with gylt rapers, curled heare: and they bragged up and down. BOBOGEL standeth in a blak veluet coat, and his hose close, rownd hose of veluet upperstoks: ouer layd with gold lace: he hath a veluet hat-cap, with a blak feather in it: with a cape on one of his sholders his purse hanging at his neck and so put under his gyrdell, his berd long: he had pantofells and pynsons.[781] Of these, in Company, are 42. 7 of them, are apparayled like BOBOGEL: sagely and gravely: All the rest are ruffyn like. Some, are like to be men and women: for, in the foreparte they semed women, and in the bakpart, men, by theyr apparayle, and these were the last 7. They daunsed, lept and kissed.

EK: The stone is brighter, where the sage and graue 7 do stand, and where the other do stand the stone is more dark.

EK: Now they come to a circle, the sage and the rest, but the sage stand all to gither.

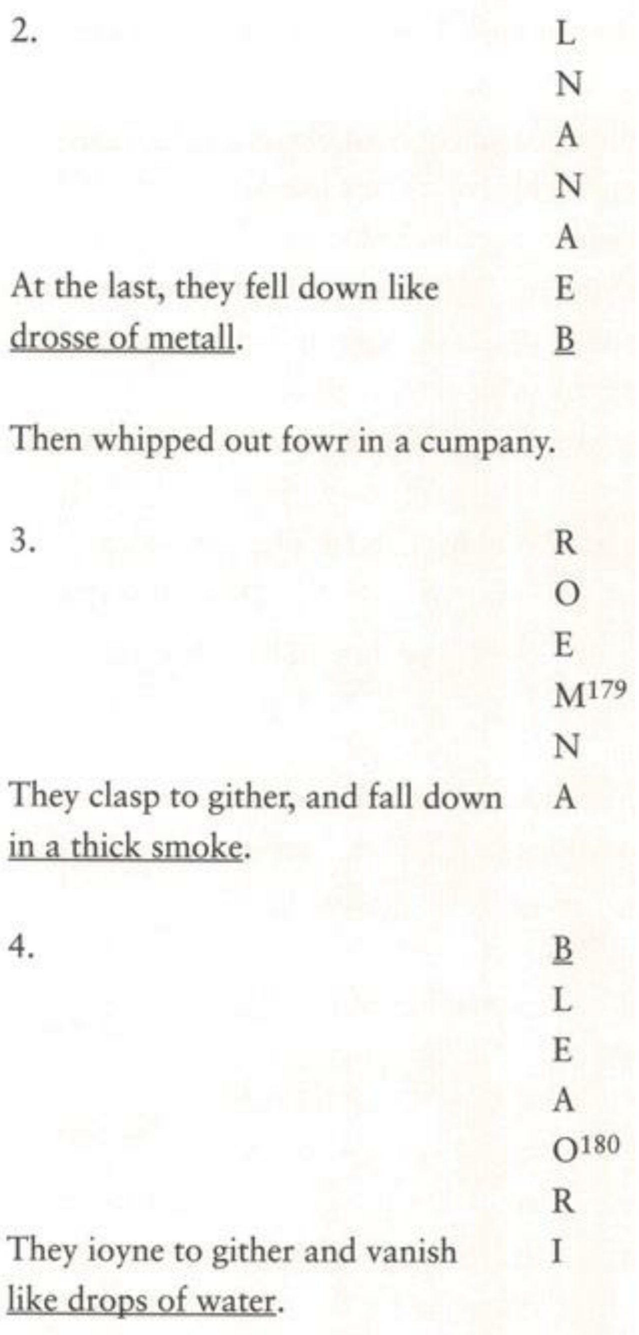
Δ: The first of the sage, lyft up his hand a loft, and sayde:

Faciamus secundum voluntatem Dei: Ille Deus noster est verè nobilis & æternus.[782] He pluckt up his right fote, and under it appeared an L.



1. L
Then the Second moved his fote, and E - appeared.
Under the third, likewise, E
&c. N
A
R
B

Then the last .B. and immediately they grew all to gither in a flame of fyre and so sonk down into the former Globe.[783] Of the rest the first pluckt up his fote, and there appered an L &c.



2. L
N
A N
A
At the last, they fell down like E drosse of metall. B

Then whipped out fowr in a cumpany.

3. R
O
E
M[179]
N
They clasp to gither, and fall down A in a thick smoke.

4. B
L
E
A
O[180]
R
They ioyne to gither and vanish I like drops of water.

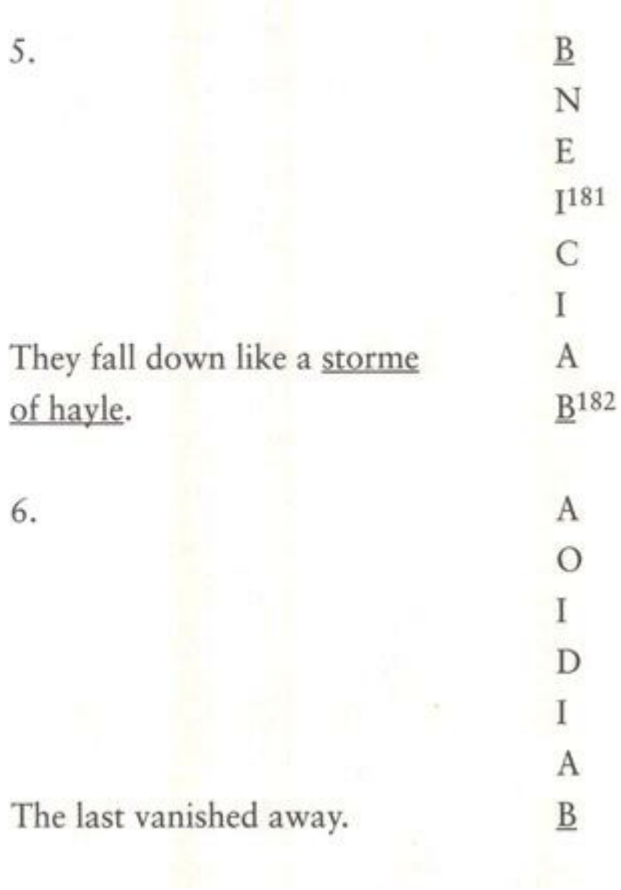
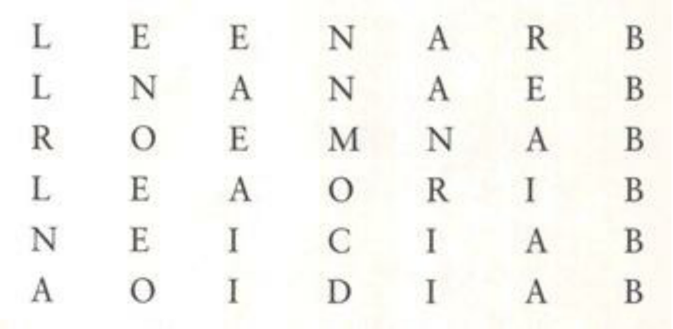
784, 785

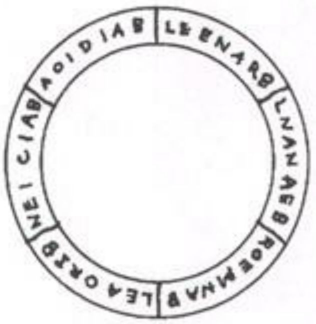


5.	B
	N
	E
	I[181]
	C
	I
They fall down like a storme of hayle.	A
	B[182]
6.	A
	O
	I
	D
	I
	A
The last vanished away.	B

Δ: This I fashioned thus after my first dictata penning of my own fantasie:



L	E	E	N	A	R	B
L	N	A	N	A	E	B
R	O	E	M	N	A	B
L	E	A	O	R	I	B
N	E	I	C	I	A	B
A	O	I	D	I	A	B



AOIDIAB
LEENARB
LNANAEB
ROEMNAB
LEAORIB
NEICIAB

Δ: Then he sayd, Well, I will shew thee more of these things at the next time.
God be with you: God bless you both.

Δ: Amen.

Δ: When shall that next tyme be? A voyce spake, On monday. Δ: Deo soli omnis Honor et Gloria.[788] Amen.

* * *

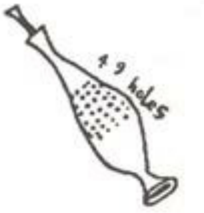
Monday. Nouembris 19: Circiter 1 ã horã a meridie[789]

Δ: Long after our comming to the stone (abowt half a quarter of an howre) the Cloth of sylence remayned drawn: and nothing appeared: but EK heard a far off very pleasant Musik the while.

H: He seamed to take the cloth away with his hands. After that (abowt 6 minutes), Nothing altered or shewed, other than the standing furniture, usually of late appearing there.

EK: Now come in 7 men with Musicall Instruments: and before them cam one with a veluet Coate,[790] and a hat-Cap, with a sword by his syde, and a Cloke or Cape hanging on one sholder: and a blak feather in his hat. &c. Afterward cam 42 more, seeming to be very far behynde the first 7. Their Melody sownded very swetely and pleasantly all the while from the begynning.

The forme of theyr Musicall Instrument:



These Musiciens did play, one with an other, iestingly: they bobbed one an other, and than played agayn. The 42, which semed a far of, cam nerer and nerer, and seamed to bring a rownd thing, like a table[791] in theyr hands. The 7 pipers went away: and the Man with the Cape hanging on one of his sholders (somwhat like a Nobleman) remayned. Then wer they come at hand, the 42 with the rownd table. These seamed to be of two sortes: Of which, the last 7: on the forepart to behold seamed rather wemen,[792] with fardingales[793] very much sprowting out, but theyr face had no peculier attyre of wemen. The 42 held the circle[794] (or rownd Table) up,over theyr hed, flat wise. Then they layd the Circle down, and stode rownd abowt it.

H sayd, Tam mali, quam boni, laudant te,

Deus, Deus, Deus noster.[795]

Δ: The letters appeared to EK, and he told me them, and I began to write:

LEENARB

H: Thow writest in vayne.Thow hast written them allready.

Δ: It is true: I see them now last before noted down.

H: Loke the eight name in the Tables. [Δ: of 49, collected.]. Δ: That eighth is Bobogel. Loke to his Character in the great Circle. Loke the second name in the Table with 7 angles.

Δ: That I finde to be Bornogo.

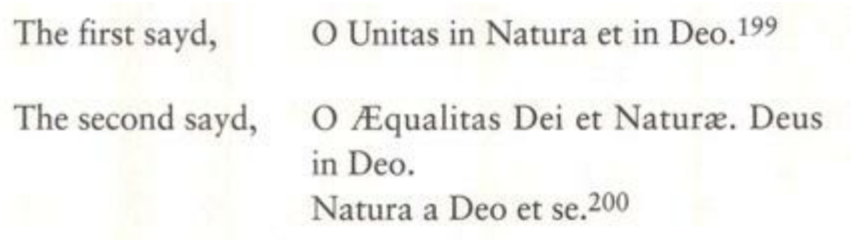
EK: He with the cape on his one sholder, sayeth, Nomen meum est Bobogel:[796] And he that is my subiect, is Governor of the second Angle of the 7.[797]

Bob: I weare these robes, not in respect of my self, but of my Government. I am the Prince, Chief; [EK: He falleth down on his knees and speaketh wordes which I understand not.] yea the onely distributer , giver, and bestower of Wisdome and Science.[798] I weare this apparayle, for that in dede, being a Prince I am a Cownsaylor[799] to estate and dignitie. All Dignitie and gouernment that is not cownsayled by me, and my subiects, is frustrate, voyde, and cleane[800] without firm grownd.

Those which thow sawest, (being pipers) signifie praters.[801] with unaccustomed, and not usuall Instruments: which allwayes seame to sownd that, which None but I my self, with my subiects, (yea not all of them, but the fewest) can performe. But I am true Philosophie. I am true understanding. Oh my descending from him which rayngneth, is euen uncomprehensible of the Angells. Neyther do I know, my self: But what I think,I utter, and What I measure, I am.

He sayd, Ordinationem Infinitæ potestatis eleuate.[802]

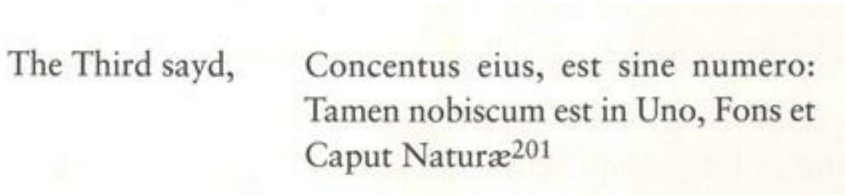
EK: Now come Three[803] out of the 42, and layd theyr fingers uppon the three first letters: and,



The first sayd, O Unitas in Natura et in Deo.[199]

The second sayd, O Æqualitas Dei et Naturæ. Deus in Deo.
Natura a Deo et se.[200]

[804], [805]



The Third sayd, Concentus eius, est sine numero: Tamen nobiscum est in Uno, Fons et Caput Naturæ[201]

[806]

EK: They ioyne them selues to gither and become, all One Man; most beawtifull to behold: Whose hed and to the brest, seamed to be neare to heven. His brest and myddle part, in the ayre: His feete seamed to stand on the earth. There cam like a Fire, oute of the Crown of his hed, and to enter into the heven, hard, by it: This great high and fayre man sayde, Veritas quæsita,nostra est.[807] [808]EK: His apparayle is diuided into two halfes: from the crown of his hed to his fete. The one half seemed to be most fresh florishing herbes: The other half seemed to be of diuerse metalls:[809] and his right fote seamed to be Leade.[810] He sayd (with an Aposiopesis) thus,

Beatus est qui Lumen capitis mei &c.[811]

EK: The rest, all, quake. He sayd farder,

Unus in Capite, unus in pectore, unus in pedibus.[812]

EK: Then stept oute 9, at ones.

EK: Then the great man returned, or was restored to his former estate of three particular men agayn: and they three leaned to the Ientleman[813] with the Cape on his sholder - BOBOGEL - who sayde,

Dee, Dee, Dee, at length, but not to late.[814]

EK: In the place of the former first thre, appeared L E E.

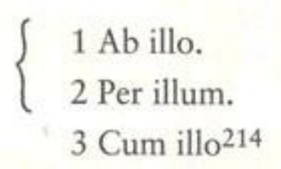
EK: Of the 9, which stept out, they of the first Ternarie[815] sayde, eche thus orderly,

1. Volumus.
2. Possumus.
3. Quid non.[816]

This Ternarie sayd, Faciamus, quæ fecerunt, nam nos Tres sumus Adam; societate.[817]

EK: They become One man, as the other before, but a slender and a weak one, neyther so high as the first, euer laboring or striving with it self to stand up right, but still it bended, bowed, and inclined downward, as thowgh it wold fall for feblenes. The Body of this Compownd man, seamed to be of Gold glittring. When they retorned to theyr distinct shape: they semed naked and to be sorry, and lament: And Bobogel did put them from him, with his sworde, skabbard and all, as it hanged by his side. Theyr letters were ----- N A R.

EK: Then cam the Ternarie—B L N,[818] and orderly they sayd thus,



1 Ab illo.
2 Per illum.
3 Cum illo[214]

{1 Ab illo.
2 Per illum.
3 Cum illo[819]

Bob: Qui caret hijs tribus,[820] [EK: He whispereth to the first Three leaning to him: and with all, seeing me muse at the Aposiopesis, he sayd,] No No, Thow shalt not dowt [pointing to me.]

In ecclesia Dei, laborabit in Vanum.[821]

EK: This Ternarie of men becam to haue one onely hed, and three bodyes and that one hed was in good proportion.

EK: The side of the Diaphonous Globe opened, and this Transformed Ternarie did point into it, toward the multitude: and the people had theyr brests naked, and semed to wepe:[822] and to wipe theyr brests, and where they wiped the place becam fayre.

EK: This Ternary did seme to stand uppon a triangular stone , and to turn (as a horsmyll doth, abowt one axeltree) orderly agaynst, and by, the hole of the Globe so opened. And euery of the three bodyes, in theyr turning, as they cam agaynst the open place of the Globe, they extended, and stretch out theyr hands toward the people: The first seamed to hold a rownd ball in his hand being little, but very fayre white. The second body, his hand had in it, a little sword flamming with fyre. The third had a thing like a hatt band of lawn,[823] of many cullours, which ever as his turne cam to be agaynst the opened hole, he seamed to cast toward the people, and the people did seme to be drawn to him ward, by the Casting of it toward them.

These three bodyes, thowgh they turned contynually, yet did the face or Cowntenance of that One Compownd hed, stedyly and immoveably regard or loke into the Globe at the forsayd hole therof.

H: A wonder to behold the heuen, much more this.

EK: Now this Ternarie separated it self, and the hole or clyft in the Globe did shut to. These three did sit down by Bobogel.

H: Sunt semper, et Cibus illorum est unus.[824]

Δ: Note: The first Ternarie, they semed to stand leaning to Bobogel. The Third Ternarie was set orderly and vicissim,[825] close by Bobogel his feete, one of these betwene two of the first; euer so that orderly one of the first, and one of the Third ternarie, one of the first and one of the third; one of the first and one of the third.

EK: Then cam the Ternarie A N A.[826]

They sayd, orderly thus,

1. Ab illo sed.
2. Cum illo sed,[827] looking on his own belly.

Δ: Then I demaunded of theyr Apparayle: and EK sayd that these were brauer than the former Ternary. Bobogel sayd, Aliqui a dignitate, Cæteri talia quia non sunt Digni.[828] This he sayd, pointing to theyr apparayle. Then the third sayd,

3. Per illum, Per illum, Per illum,[829] with a frowning cowntenance thrusting furth his hand.

EK: They ioyne to gither into one hed and three bodyes.The Hole of the Globe opened very wyde now. This one Compownd Hed had many eyes, many noses, many mowthes, as thowgh it were a Cahos[830] of Faces, in one hed, but three bodyes. One of this bodyes had in his hand a little Ball, like the other before, very white, but with twynkling brightnes in it. The other two bodyes, theyr hands were emptie.

EK: They turn in order agaynst the Hole of the Globe: But the People regarded them not: but at the comming of the hand with the Ball, against the hole, the people loked a little up at it.

Bob. sayd, Et quia carebant in ardentibus ignis.[831]

EK: These, being dissolued into theyr former state, go and sit (with hevy chere) by them that sat affar of from BOBOGEL. Theyr apparaill semed to be simple: theyr good apparayle was gone.

Δ: Here I fownd a certayn error in my writing of the first Notes: which I haue amended in the writing of this: But while that error did trubble me, the spirituall Creature sayd these wordes.

Bob: The Fawt is in EK his remembrance, and not in his will. Note this,

LEE ar the Three that stand with me.

NAR are the Three that I reiect.

BLN are the Thre which are enterlincked with me.

ANA are the Three that are reiected.[832]

Bob. sayd, Omnes naturam ad, Sed, Nôn in illo.[833]

EK: The 30 remayning,[834] cam all away, and satt betwene Bobogel and the reiected Cumpany: and from that Cumpany[835] cam onely 7 to the Circle agayn. Euery of these 7, sett theyr feete, eche uppon a letter of the Circle, which letters are these,[836]

AOIDIAB.

EK: They say, In use,[837] we are perfect; Misused, we are Monsters. Sumus septem Januæ Naturæ, et sui ipsius qui novit Deum.[838]

EK: These 7, seme to vanish into wynde, or white smoke, and to fall into the Globe. And the six reiected, turn into a black smoke: and the rest of the 30[839] semed also converted into black smoke, and to fall into the Globe.

Bob. sayd, In sexto et septimo sunt omnia.[840]

EK: The six that were next him, semed to clyng hard and close to Bobogel. (Bob: Behold.) EK: They be ioyned all into One body, and becam like the sonne, into the forme of a bowle or Globe: and so moved up or rowled up the small narrow race, or line unworne, which remayned higher then the chayre, toward the top of the Diaphanous Globe, as before is declared, so that this Princely Noble man, and his six adherents [LEE:BLN], in this manner went out of sight.[841]

H: Formator horum, Secundus[842]est in Heptagono.[843]

They are diuided into the day, as the other wer, before: But wheras the other are chiefly uppon that day which you call Monday, so ar these to be used onely on the Sabaoth day.

Theyr use, is onely thus (obseruing the former order) with the Circle uppon the grownd.[844] The first six,[845] with theyr King and the seale of theyr Prince, taketh place in the whole body of the day: The other being 6 tymes six,[846] are diuided into the partes of the day as before. The Letters onely where they stode, are theyr names and Characters. What doth the heven behold or the earth conteyne, that is not (or may be) subdued, formed and made by these. What lerning, grownded uppon wisdome, with the excellencies in[847] Nature, cannot they manifest? One in heuen they know.

One and all in Man, they Know.

One and all in erth, they know.

Measure heuen by a parte, (my meaning is, by these few). Let God be Glorifyed: His name praysed. His Creation[848] well taken, and his Creatures, well used.[849]

Δ: I craued for some playner Instruction, as concerning the use of the ... and he answered,

H: Behold: Are thy eyes so blynde? Dost thow see and wilt not see? Thy mynde telleth thee. Thy understanding furdereth, and thy Judgment doth establish it. That as thow sawest a Body in three places, and of Three Compositions: Thowgh but two in forme, So shall this work haue relation to 1: tyme present and present use, to 2: Mysteries far exceding it, And 3: Finally to a purpose and intent, wherby the Maiestie, and Name of God shall and may, and of force must appeare, with the Apparition of his wonders, and mervayles, yet unhard of. [850]

Dixi.[851]

Δ: Than immediately after he began agayne, as followeth,

H: Venito, veni (inquam) adesto Veni Rex. O Rex, Rex, Rex Aquarum,[852] Venito, venito inquam. Magna est tua; maior autem mea potestas. Deus noster, restat, regnat, et est, Quod, et sicut fuit.[853]

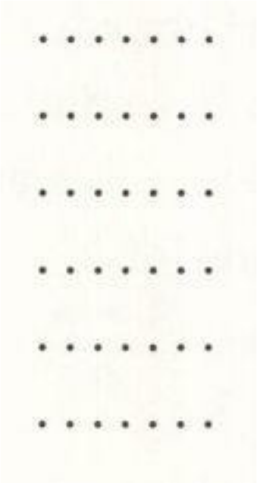
EK: Then cam one and sayd,

------------ Parati sumus nomen eius Creatoris nostri, nomen, nomen laudare Nomen (inquam) Unius nunc et viuentis.

Obscura sunt hæc animis obscuris. Vera et manifesta Veris et perfectis.

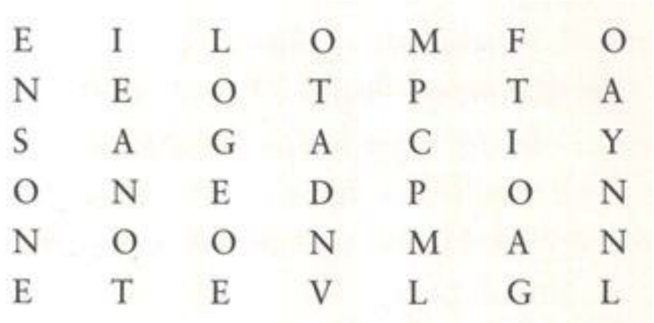
Ecce adsunt.[854] EK: He that sayd this, is as thowgh he were a king, with a Crown on his hed: His apparayle was a long robe whitish: But his left arme was very white, and his right arme, black.[855]

EK: There cam after this King a Cumpany of 42: and euery one of them had a letter in his forhed,and they were 7 in a row, and six, downward.



The King had written in his forhed, BABALEL.[856]

The first 7, (begynning from EK his left hand toward his right) had these letters, and the second, Thirdth &c had these letters as here appeare.



E	I	L	O	M	F	O
N	E	O	T	P	T	A
S	A	G	A	C	I	Y
O	N	E	D	P	O	N
N	O	O	N	M	A	N
E	T	E	V	L	G	L

H: At the next tyme, more.

Δ: Omne quod viuit laudet Deum unum et trinum, in omne æuum.[857] Amen.

EK: The cloth draws.

Nouemb. 20 Tuesday, a meridie circa 2ã.

Δ: After a great half howre attending, and diuerse tymes our prayers to god, The black Cloth was pulled upward: and so vanished away. H appered sitting in his chayre, and his face toward me: and so looking abowt he paused a while: half a quarter of an howr. In the meane space cam one skypping lightly, a little boy, in a grene coate, and sayd, He is here, at an ynche.[858] Than he sayd, Hark. To me he sayd, Ha-sir-ha. Δ: What wilt thow say to me? [Grene Coate:] I am Multin his minister, wilt thow any thing with me? I cannot tarry. Δ: Then this skipiak[859] espyed a spirituall creature comming, and sayd, Ha, ar you there? Δ: And so went out of sight.

Δ: This was King BABALEL, with a crown of Gold on his hed, his garment whitish, and his right sleue on his arme, blak: and the left sleve very white. He seamed to stand uppon water.

The other 42 cam likewise and stode.

Bab: Veni princeps[860] 7 principum qui sunt Aquarum Principes. Ego sum Rex potens et mirabilis in aquis: cuius potestas est aquarum visceribus. Princeps iste[861] (Δ: pointing to a Prince, new come to sight which had a red long robe, and a cerclet of gold on his hed[862]) est Tertius principum in Heptagonon.[863] Δ: I sayd Heptagono: he replyed, Heptagonωn,[864] and sayd: Verè planè, et perspicuè dixi.

Bab: Mensurasti aquas?[865] Befafes answered, Factum est.[866]

Δ: I seemed to dowt of some matter here, and Befafes sayd, Thow shalt be answered in any dowt. I am thy frende. I haue fauored thee in many things.[867] Ph'ers[868] haue imagined vaynely of my name. For thy loue towards me, Thow shalt know my name. I was with Salomon; I was also (unknown) with Scotus.[869] I was, in respect of my powr: unknown, in respect of my name. He called me Mares. Since, I was not with any. And I preserued thee from the powre of the wicked, when I told thee things of truth to come. When I rid thy howse of wycked ones and was with thee in extremities. I was with thee. Behold I was with thee throwghly.

Δ: Then he bad EK Ax me, yf I knew Obelison. Δ: I had to do with Obelison, but by reason of my Skryers nawghtynes, I was in dowt what I might credit. Bef: Thow shalt know this for a most manifest truth hereafter. I am Obelison, the fifth of the Seuenth,[870] which haue the skowrging of Obelison the wicked: but not wicked for euer, neyther accursed to the ende. We Angels haue tymes, and our faultes are amended.[871]

Δ: Shall I Note your name, by Befafes? He answered, My name is so, in dede: The Ægyptians called me Obelison in respect of my nature. Δ: I pray you what is the Etymologie of Obelison? Bef: A pleasant deliuerer.[872]

EK: The former 7, haue Crownes.[873] Theyr letters stand betwene theyr feete.[874]

E I L O M F O &c.

Bef: Thow hast receyued these letters allready.

EK: The water seameth, contynually to pass ouer these letters.

Bab: I Gouern uppon Tuesday.

1. EK: The first seuen take the water and throw it up, and it becometh clowdes.
2. The second throweth it up, and it becommeth hayle and snow. One of the first 7 sayde, Behold, Behold, Behold: All the motion of the waters, and the saltnes thereof is æqually assured by us. We giue good success in battayles, reduce ships & all manner of vessells that flote uppon the seas: Our make is great. Muse not [Δ], For whan the seas are trubbled, with the wickednes or uprore of man, our Authoritie giueth victory from him that is most Victorious. Fishes and Monsters of the sea, yea all that liueth therein, are well known with us. Behold we are (generally) the Distributers of Gods Judgments uppon the waters that couer the earth.

   EK: Than stept furth all the rest.
3. The Third seuen sayd, Some of us conduct the waters throwgh the earthe. Other of us, do beawtify Nature in her Composition. The rest of us ar distributers and Deliuerers of the Threasures and the unknown substances of the seas.[875]

Bab: Praysed be God which hath created us, from the begynning with Glory. His Glory be augmented.

EK: Now the 42 diue into the Water and so vanish away: and Befafes, and Babalel also wer suddaynly gon.

H standing up sayd, LO, Thus thow seest the glory of Gods creatures: Whome thow mayst use,[876] with the consideration of the day, theyr king, theyr Prince, and his Character. The King and prince gouern for the whole daye.[877] The rest according to the six partes of the day.

Use them, to the glory, prayse, and honor of him, which created them to the Laude and prayse of his Maiestie. Δ day is 24 howres. Δ: But whan doth that Day begyn?

H: Thow shalt be towght the rest.

H proceded, and sayd, Vitam dedit Deus omnibus Creaturis. Venite Veni Ignis, veni Vita mortalium (inquam) Venito. Adesdum. Regnat Deus. Ô Venite. Nam unus ille Regnat, et est Vita Viuentium.[878]

EK: Now there commeth a King.[879] and hath a Prince[880] next him and after them 42, like ghostes, or smokes, with out forme: hauing euery of them a little glittring spark of fire in the myddest of them.

The first 7, are red, as blud.
The second 7, not so red.
The third 7 like whitish smoke.
The sparks of these were greater then of the rest.

The fowrth 7
The fifth
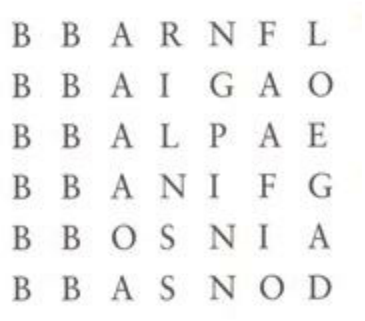
The sixth are of diuerse cullours: All had firie sparks in theyr myddle. Euery spark had a letter in it.

Verè beatus[881] (sayd this King that now cam.)
Δ: I pray you to tell me your name.
King: I am the fowrth King in the Table and the two* and twentyth in number.
Δ: I understand in the Table of the names collected from the 7 Tables of 49.



B	B	A	R	N	F	L
B	B	A	I	G	A	O
B	B	A	L	P	A	E
B	B	A	N	I	F	G
B	B	O	S	N	I	A
B	B	A	S	N	O	D

And in those tables taking of the first septenarie, Baligon for the first King; and in the second septenarie, Bobogel for the second King, and in the third septenarie, taking Babalel, so accownted the third, and in the fowrth septenarie, the first of septenarie is Bynepor, and so accownted the fowrth: but accownting euery one from Baligon he is the 22th: and so the fowrth and the two and twentith.

EK: A Voyce I here, saying, You shall begynne to work agayn, at 6 of the clok next.

Δ: Omnium bonorum largitori, laus perennis et immensa.[882] Amen.

* * *

Δ: Abowt half a quarter of an howre after 6: we retorned to the work and the cloth was drawn away: H sitting in the chayre.

EK: There appeared a little ronning water very clere chrystalline: and on this side the 42 last specifyed.

Bynepor sayd: Lo, [and than he kneled down, and semed to pray, a prety while]. The generall state and condition of all things resteth onely and dependeth uppon the distribution, and participation of my exalted most especiall and glorified powr. My sanctification, glory, and renowne, allthowgh it had begynning, cannot, shall not nor will haue ending. He that Measureth, sayd,[883] and I was the ende of his workmanship. I am like him, and of him, yet not as partaking nor adherent, but distant in One degree. The Fire that holdeth, or is, the first Principle of all things in generally,[884] hath his universall and unmeasurable powre in the workmanship of my Creation. Visible and Invisible, were not, withoute my record. When he [Ipse[885]] cam, I was magnified by his comming, and I am sanctifyed, world Without ende.

Vita suprema,
Vita superior, et Infima, sunt meis mensurata manibus.[886] Notwithstanding, I am not of my self, Neyther is my powre myne owne, Magnified by his name: Behold I dubble life from One, unto a thowsand of Thowsands: and One thowsand of thowsands, to a number, exceding cownt: I speak in respect of mans Capacitie. I am in all and all hath some being by me: yet my powre is nothing in respect of his powre, which hath sent me. Write this reuerently. Note it with Submission: What I speak hath not byn reuealed, no not in these last tymes, of the second last world.[887] But I begynne new worldes. new people, new kings, & new knowledge of a new Gouernment.[888] To be short,

> Vitam tradidit; deditque mihi potestatem > esse, Viuere, et in perpetuum glorifica...
> Omnibus et ubique.[889]

As these cannot be comprehended, what they are, with mor...

So cannot any thing be browght to pas in me, without a living sight, and a perfect mynde.[890] I Gouern uppon Thursday. For Instruction, the rest as before. Thow shalt work mervaylous mervaylously. by my workmanship in the highest. To whome[891] (with overshaddowing thy light with life, and blessing you both, in his name of whome I am the Image,) I prayse God.

EK: Now he descendeth into the Globe, and it becam very bright there among the people: which, allso, at his comming, seamed to be more cherefull.

H stode up and moved his hand, aboue his hed, cumpassing with it a loft.[892] After that cam a Cumpany, with a King,[893] and after him a prince.[894] The king had a red robe on, and a crown on his hed. The Prince had a robe of many cullours, and on his hed a Cerclet. The Cumpany [42] seemed to stand rownd abowt a little hill of Claye. Behynde this Cumpany seamed to stand an innumerable multitude of ugly people, a far of:[895] Those which seeme to stand rownd abowt the little hill seme to haue in the palmes of theyr hands, letters, in order as here appereth.

Δ: The king spake, Beholde, All the Earth with her bowells and secrets what soeuer, are deliuered unto me. And what I am there thow mayst know. I am great, But he, in whome I am, is greater then I. Unto my Prince, (my Subiect) are deliuered the keyes of the Mysteries of the earth. All these are Angells that gouern under him: whose Gouernment is diuided, as before. Use them, they are and shalbe at thy commaundement.[896]

Those that stand afarr off are the Spirits of perdition, which kepe earth with her Threasor, for him &c: and so furth.[897] I haue sayd.

H, standing up, sayd, His name is the fifth and the 29th: and his Prince his name, the fifth, and the 23th.[898] Δ: The first name, I understand in Tabula collecta, The second name I understand, for the fifth to be in Heptagono and the 23th to be so fownd the same, in Tabula collecta.

H: Venite, ubi nulla quies, sed stridor dentium.[899]

EK: Then cam the man agayn, with ugly fyrie flames out of his sides, which was here before, the last day.[900] H beckened with his hand unto him, and his coates went to gither, and so couered that horrible sight.

EK: There appeareth a rownd Table, which 42 hold and toss, all in fyrie flames.

H: Write quickly, thow [EK] canst not behold it.

EK: The first seameth to be a King[901] with a crown on his hed, and the &c.

Lo I gouern (as I[902] haue sayd before) All enchanters, Coniurers, witches, & Wicked spirites that are hated of God, and included for euer, in owteward darknes (except a few which remayn in a second payne, which gape and grone for the mercies of God, and haue tyme of Joye, whose measures I haue, and kepe accownt of) are all at my government. [903] By me, thow shalt cast oute the powre of all wicked spirits. By me thow shalt know the doings and practises of euill men, and more then may be spoken or uttred to man.

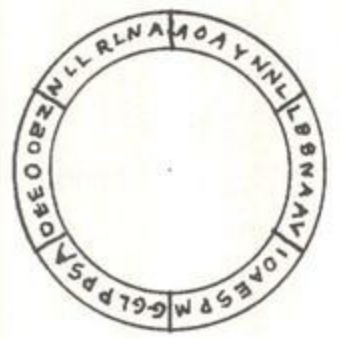
Blessed be his name, whose Glory is euerlasting fode to the Just, and Sempiternall[904]8 to the Wicked.

H: The 36the name, is the King his name,[905] And his Prince his name.[906] is the last [saue one] written in the Heptagonon.[907]

H: Venite vos qui sub mea estis potestate.[908]

EK: Then cam bright People 42: And besides these, all the Ayre swarmeth with creatures. Theyr letters are in theyr forheds: these stand in a circle: they take the letters from theyr forheds, and set them in a Circle.[909]

H: Of these, I am Gouernor my self.[910] Behold I am of tyme present . I am of the last Ternarie.[911] Loke what may be wrowght, in all aëriall Actions, I can distribute and bestow at my pleasure: my tyme and day, is Friday. The day of the last before, is Saterday. The day of the Fifth is Wensday.



H: Behold,
I haue towght thee. His name be blessed who raigneth and liueth for euer.

Δ: Amen, Amen, Amen.

H: I will answer thee of all Dowtes herein (being demaunded of me) to morrow. For, so I call it, for thy sake: Not, for that, it is so to me.

Δ: So he went away.

Δ: Then cam URIEL and MICHAEL, and an other (I think RAPHAEL) and the chayre and table appered, as in the first boke hath byn shewed: And also H had his peculier chayre, at his tymes of teaching me.

MICHAEL (sayd,[912]) Mercifull is our God, and glorious is his name Which chuseth his creatures, according to his own Secret Judgment and good pleasure.

This Arte is the first part of a Threefold Art,[913] ioyning Man (with the Knowledge of 1. the WORLDE, 2. the GOVERNMENT of his Creatures, and 3. the SIGHT of his Maiestie.):

Unto him (Ô., I say) unto him; which is Strength, Medicine, and Mercie[914] to those that feare him:
Amen.

Δ: Gloria, laus, honor, et perennis Jubilatio, sit Deo nostro Omnipotenti, Optimo, Maximoque.[915]Amen.

Δ: Note, Remember, and enquire what it meaneth, that no Mention is made of Bralges the Prince, Nor of Blumaza his king in this Treatise, being a certayn Repetition of the Heptagonum stellare, going next before.[916]

Wensday: Nouemb 21. hora 7 a meridie

Δ: There appered the first table, covered with a cloth of silk changeable cullour red and grene:[917] with a white cloth under it: all hanging very low. The first Chayre allso: wherein Michael used to sit. And H did appere likewise, and his peculier chayre:[918] and he standing by it. But the Diaphanous Globe, and the people or world in it, did not now appere, and, bycause no voyce or word cam from those spirituall creatures, yet: I declared that I did attend theyr pleasure first, as a scholer comming in the presence of his Master, and whan they had sayd those things which were for us first, (at this instant) to lerne, that than, I wold move some dowtes of the premisses, as I was yesterday advised to do. H, he held up his rod (which had two portions or partes of it black and one, red): and sayde, Ô quanta est hõis infirmitas et Corruptio, qui Angelis, idque suis bonis, fidem autem Deo, vix habet? Omnia mundana, fæces: Mundi Corruptiones in se habent: Deus noster, Deus noster, Deus (inquam) ille noster verus, cum Veris suis angelis, eique[919] inseruientibus Semper verus est. Pete quæ vis? Dixi: et quod dixi, obumbratum est veritate, iusticia et perfectione.[920]

Ecce, (Δ: holding up the rod[921]).

Hîc (Δ: pointing to the ende of the rod).

Per hoc (Δ: pointing to the middle of it). Et a Mensurae fine, nos nostramque mensurabis potestatem. Age (inquam) Quid vis?[922]

Δ: I, than, of the premisses used a little discourse: how they might parabolically,[923] betoken other more profownd matter, and litterally other: yet what sense so euer the premisses had, that theyr first rudiments and Text was to be made somwhat playner to me, then yet they were: bycause I dowted as well of the understanding of some of that, I had written, as allso of mys writing: eyther throwgh EK his mys reporting to me matter shewed to him, or by my mys-hering or negligent writing &c. To some part therof he sayd these words ensuing.

H: In umbra mortis non est æqualitas. Obscurum enim nihil est quod per illum [EK] recepisti. Age.[924]

H: Thow hast a work of three proportions in esse;[925] of 7 in forme: which is of it self diuided by a number septenarie, of the course, estate and determination of things aboue, things next, and things below: which, of it self is pure perfect and without blemish.[926] Notwithstanding I will answer thee thus.

The 7 Kings are orderly conteyned in the first of the Seuens diuided in generall numbers: whose names are expressed; published and perfectly formed within the first grownd and fowndacion of this Threefold work.[927] The kings I meane with theyr Characters,[928] and the names of theyr 7 liuing and semper adherent Ministers:[929] Whose names thow mayst see not onely there written, but openly, and most playnely, truely, and sincerely spoken of before:[930] as, by due examination of thy bokes thow shalt manifestly perceyue. Notwithstanding, as euery king, in his Maiestie, doth comprehend the dignitie of his whole seat and estate, so I of my self being the First, haue the gouernment of my self perfectly, as a mysterie known unto my self: which is a thing unlawfull to be published unto man and lawfull[931] in respect of the charge committed unto us: and the slender Dignification of mans frayle estate; Which thow mayst see in the Heptagonon: where, there wanteth a name: the rest of the Cr... the utter Circumference of the Globe, are the Six Kings Or . . . following: according as they are written in the Mysteries of the . . . which do begynne the[932] Powres, with theyr Prince,[933] and theyr Characters orderly taken, by and uppon the Heptagonon . . .

Ô God, how easy is this first understanding. Thow hast byn told perfectly, playnely and absolutely, not onely the Condition dignitie. and estate of all things that God hath framed: But allso withall, thow wart deliuered the most perfect forme and use of them.[934]

But this will I tell thee (to the intent thow shalt know: and forby cause I wold not, thow sholdest be ignorant in true Wisdome) that those Six Names in and uppon the Heptagonum are Collected, do growe and are gathered from the names in generally aforesayd.[935]

Take the Names, I will teache thee to know them, which els, [without] by direction[936] thow canst not fynde.

> Loke thy First Table. I am called BALIGON with men. Thow hast Noted my name (which is secret) among the Angels,[937] begynning with this letter M, consisting of 7 letters, the last being an A.

I am called MARMARA: but otherwise CARMARA : but that letter M, shall not be expressed, &c.

Thow seest, next, BOBOGEL, He it is that is the Second King. Thow seest the name BORNOGO, to be the first[938] uppon the Heptagonum: it is his Prince. And therfore I did Note him with a Coronet, and not with a Crown: nay rather, but with a Cerclet abowt his hed. &c[939]

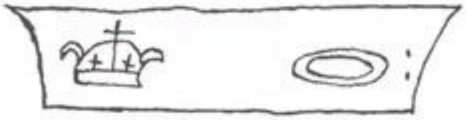
Δ: I concluded (of his instruction) the Kings and theyr Princes, theyr names to be thus lerned out of the Table Collected of 49, names, it is to weete,

1 --Δ-- 44
8 ----- 2
* 15 ----- 9
22 ----- 16
29 ----- 23
36 ----- 30
43 --Δ-- 37

} modo retrogrado quasi[336]

 As far as I remember, he sayd,My Prince is in my self: which is a mysterie

~~My Coniecture (hereuppon, and uppon this retrograde respect to finde the princis among the 49 names in Tabula~~  ~~Collecta) is, that Baginol is the Prince under BALIGON: bycause the letters are all one: but the order of theyr places diuerse: and so is his prince conteyned in him self.~~



Rex Princeps

~~Δ He then allowed of my Coniecture for these .6. but of his Prince~~

~~Δ I than sayd nothing: tyll at the fayr writing hereof, this, here added, cam into my mynde. How well, I know not yet: Novemb .23.~~

941

* Addendo 7 - fit hic processus. Ergo addendo 7, numero 43, proueniet 50: numerus: major 40 quam 49 per .1. qui respicere pt illum: primum Regem Baligon.[942]

 addendo 7, fit processus hic g°. Si 7 addantur numero 37: inde emerget 44. pro proximo principe.[943]

~~ It is not Baginol, but Bagenol, with e not i, and therfore consider.~~ and farder he sayd, The Characters of Kings, are in the Globe:[944] and of the Princis in the Heptagonon.

Δ: Note: from the ☞ on the last side, untyll these words finished, he was out of sight: and whan he had ended these words, he cam in sight agayn: and browght a thing in his hand like a sterre:  or Heptagonum.

H: Beholde. Euery one of these Princis hath[945] his peculier Table. Thow hast Noted the First Table which begynneth, as I will tell thee.

1. 2: In BOBOGEL, that O, (the second letter) is the first of the Table OESNGLE and the second of Befafes, is the second, and the thirdth of the third: and the fowrth of the fowrth and the fifth of the fifth, and the sixth of the sixth, and E, (in the seuenth. Bnagole is the seuenth and last of this first seuen of this first Table: accownted the first. ¶ AVZHILN.

   The second seuen by like order is gathered of Babalel, and the rest of his septenarie. And so furth, to the ende downward as thow didst before &c.
2. 3: In the second Table; L (the first letter therof) is out of Bobogel his last letter, the second letter, is the sixth of Befafes; the third, is the fifth of Basmelo &c and so you haue LEENARB.[947] For the rest kepe that order downward to the ende of the last Name Bamnode. Tranversim, quasi retrograde.[948]
3. 4: In the Third, begyn at the lower[949] letter [of the latter[950] worde] of the last of the second seven: and so upward, toward the right[951] hand: Δ: The last word is of second seven is Bnagole: the last letter therof is e: which is the first of this Third Table: and the i, in Brisfli, is the second, and the 1 in Branglo the thirdth, and than so furth, upward, overthwart, toward the left hand: till ye come to Bobogel, his second letter, being O. Then to N in Bonefor: e in Bermale: o in Bragiop. &c.
4. 5: For the Fowrth, loke, Bobogel. Then loke to this fowrth Table the first B of the Table is the first B of Bobogel. The second B of this Table, is the B of Befafes. The third letter is a, the second letter of Basmelo. The fowrth letter, R, is the thirdth of Bernole. The fifth is the fowrth of Branglo. The sixth, is the fifth of Brisfli. The seuenth is the sixth of Bnagole. And so in to the next sevens downward orderly for the rest of the table.
5. 6: The Fifth begynneth from Bnagole upward: begynning at the last letter being e: and then upward croswise exactly tyll the B of Bobogel. And so of the next seuen, for the next: begynning at the n of Bonefon, and so furth.
6. 7: In the sixth, (the Infernall Table) The first is B of Bobogel, The second is A of the 15th: The third is N of the 22th: the fowrth, is the fowrth of the 29: The fifth of the 36: the sixth of the 43: and the seuenth of the 49: being E in Bamnode, two letters being taken in that last septenarie. The second septenarie begynneth at the first of the 15th, the second at the second of the 22th, (being Y), the third at the thirdth of the 29th, then the 4th of the 30th,: the 5th of the 43th.
7. 1: The Seuenth: the first A, is the A, of Baligon, and so downward all the second letters of the 7 kings: Then all the third letters, then all the fowrth letters, then all the fifth letters, then all the sixth letters only and finally the seventh and last letters of the first names of the Septenaries.

Δ: Note, this Table is made all of Kingly substance &c.

Δ: Now I trust I understand (meterly well,[952]) the making of the 7 Tables. I wold gladly here som instruction of the great Circular table (which you call the Globe) which hath the Kn... with theyr Characters; and so within, 7 tymes 7, seuen tymes . . . 7 tymes 6, seuen tymes furnished with letters and numbers . . . sorts.

H: That doth apperteyn to an other tyme.[953]

EK: The Cloth was lett down, and the stone did yield voyce but nothing visible but the forsayd blak cloth.

H: One thing is yet wanting: a mete receptacle &c. There is yet wanting a stone &c. One there is, most excellent, hid in the secret of the depth &c. In the uttermost part of the Roman Possession.

H: Write. All lawd, Glorie and honor be unto him, which rayneth for euer. Amen. Be of good Cumfort.

Lo, the mighty hand of God is uppon thee.

Thow shalt haue it. Thow shalt haue it, Thow shalt haue it. Dost thow see, loke and styr not from thy place: EK pointed toward it.

Δ: I see it not.

H: It is sanctified, blessed, and . . . .[954] in the use of his Creatures.

Thow shalt preuayle with it, with Kings, and with all Creatures of the world: Whose beauty (in vertue) shall be more worth then the Kingdomes of the earth.

Loke, if thow see it: But styr not, for the Angel of his powre is present.

EK loked toward my west wyndow, and saw there first uppon the matts by my bokes a thing, (to his thinking) as bigg as an egg: most bright, clere, and glorious: and an angel of the heyth of a little chylde holding up the same thing in his hand toward me: and that Angel had a fyrey sword in his hand &c.[955]

H: Go toward it; and take it up.

Δ: I went toward the place, which EK pointed to: and tyll I cam within two fote of it, I saw nothing: and then I saw like a shaddow on the grownd or matts hard by my bokes under the west wyndow. The shaddow was rowndysh, and less then the palm of my hand. I put my hand down uppon it, and I felt a thing cold and hard: which, (taking up, I) perceyued to be the stone before mentioned.[956]

H: Kepe it sincerely.

Veritas in veritate: Deus in Deo, Unus in uno est.[957]

Let no mortall hand towche it but thyne owner[958]

Prayse God.

Δ: Illi qui venturus est Indicare Speculum per ignem sit omnis honor, laus, et gloria, in sempiterna sæcula.[959] Amen.

Liber Mysteriorum Quintus

1583 Martij 23.

Liber 6us.
Liber 7us[960]

Jesus †.

Anno 1583 Martij 23. Saterday a meridie.

Δ: EK being come, with Mr John Husey of Blokley. (on the 22 day of marche) and EK being desirous to understand somwhat of our spirituall frendes as concerning such matter as had falln out very strange to him and Mr Husey: abowt a certayne moniment of a boke and a skroll fownd in Northwik hill[961] by the direction and leading of such a spirituall Creature, as when they had gotten the same, and they endeuored by art to haue some exposition of the skroll, written in strange characters, they wer willed to repayre to me, and there they shold be answered: &c. which thing now they did.[962]

Being therfor now ready to receyue instructions of our frendes, there appered in the stone One,[963] in a foles cote, going abowt a clowde, which appered first in the stone. I charged him if he were the enemy of God to depart. He tore his clothes all, and appeared all hery under: and sayd, Penetrasti vim iniusticæ meæ.[964]

Δ: Glorifie God and depart. He sayd, Feci, Nam decedo.[965] He went away as it had byn a bunsh of fethers pulld in peces. The Clowd wexed bigger, and went all to the right hand. At length the Table appeared, But the Chayre seamed not to be of the same sort it was, but more Glorious. There appeared three, of which, two went away, and one tarryed behynde.

He sayd-----------Auete.

Verum est, et incredibile.[966] He kneeled to the Chayre and spake, but his words could not be discerned.

Via, veritas, et virtus, unum sunt: et multiplex et admirabilis est eius magnitudo: Et venit ab ore tuo flatus, (et vitam habet) quo viuunt omnia, nutu, et illuminatione tua.

Aue Verbum, Aue rerum formatrix[967] et mensura eorum quæ fuerunt, sunt, et erunt: Illuminasti oculos creaturarum monimentis et admonitionibus planis: Vita bonis, mors autem impijs, et a consideratione tua abiectis. Quanta et innumerabiliæ sunt (Iustitia) dona tua? O remiges varpax. Kyrie eleyson.[968]

Δ: All this he sayd Kneeling to the chayre; and then he rose; and I sayde, O beata Trinitas, mitte lucem et veritatem tuam, ut ipam me ducant ad montem sanctum. et ad tabernacula tua.

Me: Ubi, non increduli.

Δ: Nos non sumus increduli: sed spes nostra viuit æterna et Omnipotens est Veritas, fons vitæ.

Me: Adduxi vobis aquam[969] ex eodem riuulo. Medicina verò est imperfectionibus et necessitatibus vestris. Intelligite nunc et quis sum, et quibus ornatus. Bibite, et accipite Ossibus vestris pinguedinen. Multæ namque sunt mortalium imperfectiones. habeo, et habebitis: Adduxi, et videbiter. Verbum est Lumen illud quo omnis imperfectio aboletur. Credentes introibu... in Sanctum eius. vbi potio, et Medicina sempiterna.[970]

Cogitasti verè. Sum etiam, et Credas. Nam veritate et iustitia, vera et perfecta sunt verba et disciplina eius.[971] What willt thow?

Δ: Recte sapere.[972] Me: Thow hast it.

Δ: I perceyue it not otherwise, then that I beleue, it may be the decree of the highest.

Δ: He shewed a Tree, and a great deale of water at the roote or botom of it: and he sayd, Me: Hath this Tree, now, any frute?

Δ: I see it not. But the skryer may say.

EK: The water commeth up the tree, and it swelleth, and it hath frute, great, fayre, and red.

Me: Lo I eate of it my self, and it lighteth the harts of those that are chosen. [He semeth to eate.] So is it in thee.

Δ: Ecce seruus Domini, fiat Decretum eius in me (iuxta misericordiam eius) de me pronunciatum.[973]

Me: Go and thow shallt receyue. Tary, and you shall receyue slepe, and you shall see, But watch, and your eyes shall be fully opened. One thing, which is the grownd and element of thy desyre, is allredy perfyted.[974]

Yt seemeth that you beleue not.[975] But I haue sayde, as he hath sayd and his worde shall endure for euer. For he shall, and will performe it, for he liueth for euer. Oute of Seuen thow hast byn instructed most perfectly of the lesser part,[976] the rest I haue browght you, in this my vessell; A medicine sufficient to extinguish and quenche oute the enemy, to our felicitie: Muse not, thowgh I say ours: for we all liue in tasting of this liquor. His Hed is a marble stone.[977] His hart is the blud of a dragon. His leggs are the tops of the Northen Mowntaynes. His eyes are bright, and his face of many Cullours, eche substance amongst the turmoyle and trubble of nothing. For as then, they were Nothing: Had a forme applyable and necessary according to theyr quantitie and secret qualitie. The heuens are lightened by his two eyes: wherof the one sight is brighter then the other. Aboue and in him self which is by him self, and in no other, is this great and vertuous fowntayne. In nature Intellectuall he hath watred the plantes of her beauty, and stroked up the garments of her felicitie. In her darkest members entreth in the taste and sauour of this percing Medicine; reviving and recalling all things past present and to come, unto theyr lively and dignified perfection. My words ar sentences. My sentences, wisdome; My wisdome the ende in my message of all things. Mighty and glorious is the Vertue of it, whose springs do endure, and are clere for euer: Whose name be blessed.

Δ: Amen. I respect the tyme. God be with you.

Martij 24. Sonday: morning abowt 8.

Δ: The Table appeared, and the Chayre: and he who appeared yesterday: kneeling or rather lying prostrate on his face, as if he were a slepe: He lay a long while.

A thing like a lambs hed did seeme to lik him, and then he rose and wiped his face, as thowgh he had wept.

Me, he sayd, Signa sunt hæc vobis, humilitatis et pænitentiæ; quæ facio omnia, vestra, non mea sunt.[978] Laudetur verbum eius in Cælo, laudetur etiam et in terris: Investigate potentiam in humilitate loquelæ eius, et videbitis gloriam frontis eius. Misericors namque et omnipotens est gloria virtutis eius. Vana sunt, corruptionibus suis; Necessaria verò Necessitatibus vestris. Nam fecit omnia ad laudem eius: et opera manuum suarum (Ecce) collaudant lumen vultus eius. Adinvicem diligite Humilitate viuite. Medicina verò mea (quæ eius est) omnia resanabit.[979]

The feldes wither without the drops of his Mercie. Mans Memorie is dull, unleast it taste of the sprinkling of this vessell. [EK: He hath a great thing under his gown.]

Nature and reason[980] haue disputed profowndly and truely by the sauour hereof: it perceth therfore depely. But understanding and reason haue eleuated and lifted up the dignitie and worthynes of Mans Memorie, by taste hereof. The Immeasurable and unspeakable begynnings (yea with the begynner and Principle therof), are exactly (after a sort) and perfectly known of them. Yt hath towght from the earth unto the heauens: from the heven, unto his seat: from his seate, into his Diuinitie. From his Diuinitie, a Capable measuring of his unmeasurable mercies. It is true, most true, and true shalbe for euer. That from the lowest grass to the highest tree, [from] the smallest valley, to the greatest mowntayn; yea, euen in the distinction, betwixt light and darknes: the measure whereof is the deapest: yea (I say) it hath towght a Iudgment. When he axed wisdome, and forsoke the world, he receyued it: and it measured the things of the world. Great are the inward eyes, and greater are the meanes, which deliuer things subiect or obiect unto them.

Finally it procedeth from him, that procedeth: Whereunto the first was formed, after, and not like. Whose fote slipping hath dasshed his hed in peces, and it becam dark: untill agayn, the Medecine which I haue browght, revived his slombring. Hereby, he, not onely knew all things,[981] but the measure and true use therof. Yf the body haue no inward fyre, it presently falleth. Euery Organ is voyde of qualitie, unleast a meane be adiected. So, is all that thow hast before, more wonderfull, then, as yet, profitable, unleast thow be directed and led-in unto the true use and order of the same.[982] Great are my words, and great is thy thowght: Greater shalbe the ende of these Gods Mercies.

New worlds, shall spring of these.

New manners: strange men: The true light, and thorny path, openly seen. All things in one, and yet, this is but a vision. Wonderfull and great are the purposes of him, whose Medicine I carry. I haue sayde.

Δ: He lay down agayn, a good while, and at length he rose: after my long prayer and confession made to god, and my discourse to him, &c.

EK: He plucketh out a boke: all the leaves are, as thowgh they were gold, and it semeth written with blud, not dry.

Δ: He sayd, Cownt. Δ: He turned ouer the leaves, but EK could not well cownt them: whereuppon he sayd: I will raze out[983] thy dulnes, and at length, make thee clere.

EK: There are 48 leaves. Me: Et finis est.[984] One is one; neyther is, was or shalbe known: And yet there are iust so many. These haue so many names, of the so many Mysteries, that went before. This is the second and the Third: The Third and the last.[985] This is the measure of the whole.

Ô what is man, that is worthy to know these Secrets? Heavy are his Wickednesses, Mighty is his synne. These shallt thow know: These shall you use.[986] The One is a Master, the other is a Minister. The One, is a hand, the other is a finger: Grutch not. Neyther let wickednes tempt you: loue togither. Be contented with your calling: For, all beasts see not a like: yet are they all Creatures: Vessels, not of one bignes, yet are they all full. Both, most sufficient, but according to fayth, and understanding of Conscience. Yet must there be a third; whom, God doth not yet chuse. The tyme shalbe short: the matter great, the ende greater. Ask now what thow wilt and he shall answer thee.

EK: There appered one like my self laying his two armes, one, on EK his sholder: and the other on a man his sholder, unknown to us, but somwhat like to Mr Adrian Gilbert,[987] &c.

Δ: Ys it your will to procede in this matter, you now haue begonne withall: or will you of these characters and places of Threasor hid (here portrayled by picture), say any thing?

Me: As thow wilt. Δ: As the will of God is, so will I. The will of God you know, better than I.

Me: The æternallliquor be uppon you. Ones more, what wilt thow?

Δ: I do prefer the heuenly liquor, before all things, and do desire to be bedewed, with the supercælestiall dew thereof.

Me: Consider the former tree.

Δ: The tre with the water at the fote?

Me: Thow hast sayd. His growing powre, bringeth furth Act.[988] Remember the Prince and Subiects, which haue powre (as is told thee) of Erthly Bowels (The thing there, [~~whose~~]which you desire of me, is no parte of my charge), Call him: It is his office: for by his ministers it hath byn shewed.[989] God doth impart his mercy, to those he loueth, in all necessitie: whether of the one, or of the other, where it is dew: I leave it: his Office is to speak it. Notwithstanding liue in truth and humilitie: Use God his Creatures to his glorie, and thy Necessitie, the proffit of thy own lymms, and cutting out of all Canker and rotten flesh. Thow understandest: For thy eyes shalbe opened. Amen.

EK: He spreddeth his hands abroade, and goeth away, and putteth his boke in his bosom as he goeth.

Δ: Gloria patri.[990] &c. Amen.

* * *

Martij 26. hor. 10 ante Meridiem.

First, appered a clowd: and that vanished away: Three cam in, they made Cursy to the chayre: and two went away. Then the third which remayned, lay down on the grownd, as before. There cam like a lambs hed,[991] and licked him. He sayd then, as followeth: being stand up,

Magna sunt, Alla quæ dixisti,[992] making cursy to the chayre. There was a sownd hard before. After a while he sayd, Me: Thy Kingdom is established in eternitie. Thy hands are invisible, and no man can distinguish thy mercies. I attend your desire.

Δ: As concerning the Characters, and shew of the ten places, we are desirous to know whyther we may require now Bnaspol, or other under him, to say unto us, that, which may content us, for the Case as it standeth with us.

Me: The buylder of the Temple was riche, before it was adorned. With Wisdome, cam the Instruments necessarie for mans worldly use. He hideth no light from those he loveth: neyther shutteth up his tents from such as seke him. Yf one be great, Ô how small is the other? How small therfore is the mynde, and how much weakened that desireth those trifles? But as the smallest thing is feefest to the smallest use, so is the existimation of things of light accownt, necessary for the lightnes and vanitie of this world. A part (Notwithstanding) may beawtify the whole, and a small thing, may cure a great infirmitie. I told thee before, that my fete are not placed uppon such brittle and crakling sand, neyther are my lipps occupyed with the vanitie of nothing. I will not[993]manifest in any point, the thing which thow desyrest, neyther is it any part of my charge.

I haue byn thy scholemaster and director to the Sterne, to rule the reason therof, with those, which can reache the Iudgment therof. All those before spoken of, are subiect to thy call.[994] This vessell at all tymes they greatly accept. Yet haue they times and seasons:[995] When order breaketh in her self, the labor is in vayne. Euery thing is for and to an ende. Of frendeship, at any time,[996] thow mayst see them, and Know what thow willt.

But One thing differeth, the Ende, and the Begynning. That onely, is the El, rod, or measure which all ready is deliuered. The stroke of which, bringeth all things, in theyr degree, to an ende: as far as the seven (magnificencie of euery Seuen) stretcheth out it self.

Euery one, (to be short) shall at all times and seasons,[997] shew thee direction in any thing. But, SO, thow canst not use them, in the determina tion, and full ende of euery practise. It is one thing to affectionate; and an other to effect. What thow seest, is true, and to a former[998] commoditie: For, with Furderance, euery thing in Nature is ayded.

Δ: ---

Reade ouer that, which now, lastly, I declared: Then see, if you be not answered.

Δ: ---

Therfore mayst thow know, what that is, allthowgh thow do not, yet, or presently, put it in practise, by him, whose Charge it is, to deliuer it.[999]

Δ: Of your so greatly commended liquor I am desirous to haue farder understanding.

Me: What liquor is more liuely then the dew of Truth, proceding from a fowntayn most swete and delectable? Euen that veritie which thy mowth hath preached of.[1000] What water recreateth more, or cooleth ignorance deeper than the knowledg of our Celestiall speche?[1001] your voyces are but fayned: shaddows of the wordes and voyces that substantially do comprehend euery substance in his kinde. The things which you do loke on, bycause you see them not in dede, you allso do name them amysse: you are confownded, for your offenses: and dispersed for your punishments: But we are all one, and are fully understanding. We open the eare, and the passage thereof, from the sonne in the morning to the sonne at night. Distance is nothing with us, unleast it be the distance, which separateth the wicked from his mercy. Secrets there are none, but that buried are in the shaddow of mans Sowle.

We see all things: and Nothing is hid from us: respecting our Creation. The waters shall stand, if they here theyr own speche. The heuens shall move, and shew them selues, when they know theyr thunder. Hell shall tremble, whan they know what is spoken to them.[1002] The first[1003] excepted, No man euer was, is, or shall be (excepted where I except) that euer shall understand, hath or doth know the least part (ô it is incomprehensible) of this Vessel. He named all things (which knew it) and they are so in dede, and shalbe so for euer.

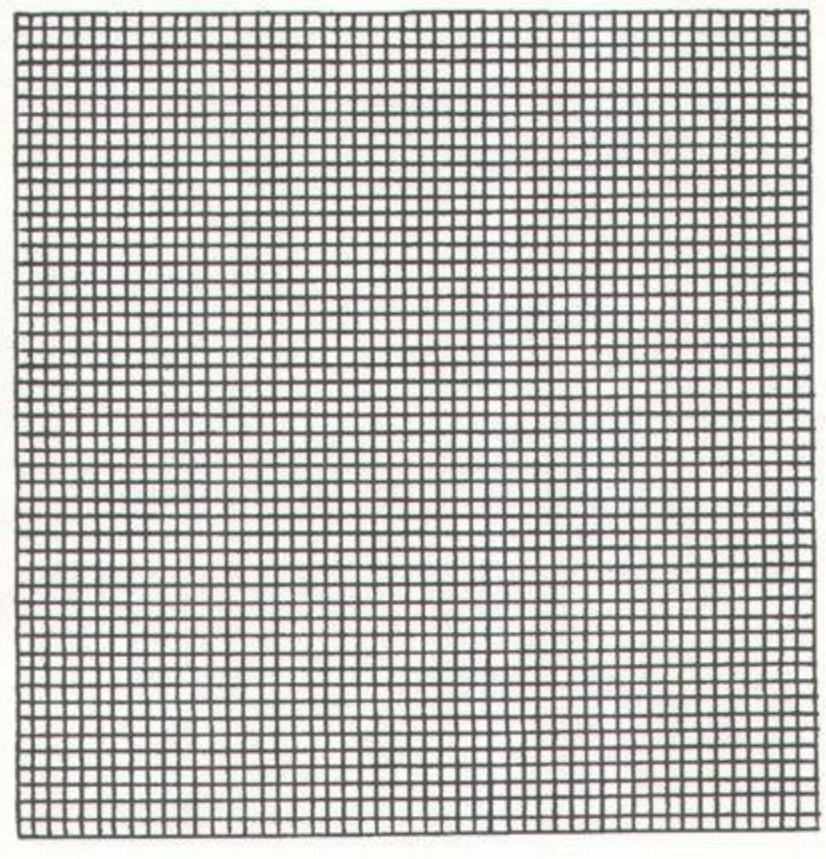
Thow shallt speak with us;[1004] And we will be spoken with, of thee. Three they are excepted, which taken from amongst you, as they were, do yet speak with us, which are provided in the three laws to destroy that Monstre.[46] They are fed with cælestiall fode, and they, talking, speak all understanding. This it is, I take God, (onely him that created me) to recorde. It is determined: else wold I not: And may be undetermined. yf you break his commaundements.[47]

A Stone it is that perceth[48] down all things before it; and kepeth them under him, as the heuens do a clowde. What art thow, (O god,) and how mighty ar the drops of thy mercy, that preparedst man before to examin thy Mysteries? The plagues of those that plagued them selues, shall fall uppon you, yf you transgress[49]one iote of your eyesight :

For, What you desire, is graunted: and if you loue him, you shall endure for euer. I am not as a clowde, sheuered[50] with the wynde: nor as a garment, that waxeth olde, and torn in peces: But I am for euer (bycause my message is such) and my truth, shall endure for euer.

Beholde, Beholde, yea let heven and earth behold: For with this, they were created: and it is the voyce and speche of him, which proceded from the first, and is the first; whose glorious name be exalted in his own horn of honor.[51] Lo, this it is. [EK: He sheweth a boke, as he did before all gold.] And it is truth; Whose truth shall endure for euer.

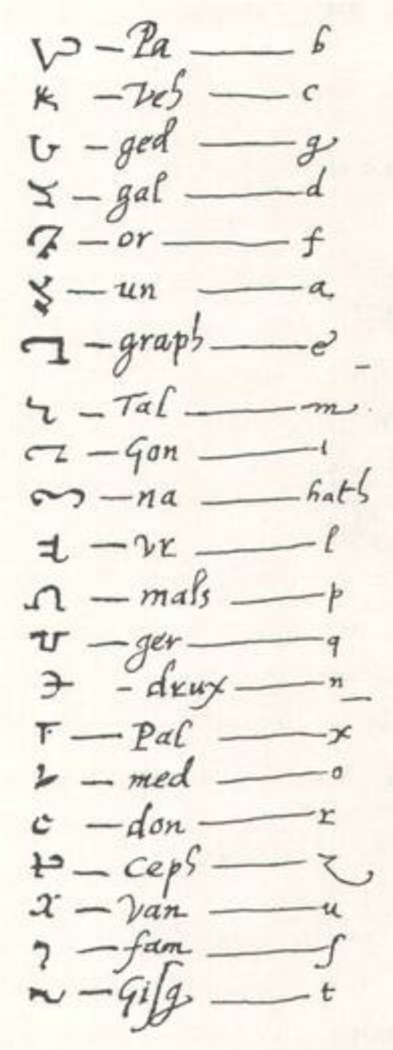
EK: The leaues of the boke, are all lyned: full of square places, and those square places haue characters in them, some more then other:, and they all written with cullour, like blud, not yet dry.[1005] 49 square spaces, euery way, were on euery leaf, which made in all .2401. square places. He wiped his finger on the top of the Table, and there cam out aboue the Table certayn Characters[1006] enclosed in no lines: but standing by them selues, and points betwene them. He pointed orderly to them with his finger, and loked toward the skryer at euery pointing.



Me: Note what they are.

Δ: They are Noted.

EK: He toke from under the Table, a thing like a great globe, and set that in the chayre: and uppon that Globe, layd the boke. He pointeth to the characters: and cownteth them with his finger, being 21, and begynning from the right hand, toward the left. He putteth-off the Crown of gold, from his hed: and layeth it, on the Table. His here appereth yellow. He maketh cursy: and from under the Table taketh a rod of gold in his hand, being diuided into three distinctions.[1007] He putteth the ende of the rod on the first of the Characters, and sayeth, Pa: and there appered in english, or latin letters, Pa: He sayd, veh: and there appered veh in writing: Then Ged: and after that he sayd, Unus Unus Unus, Magnus, Magnus, Magnus, es, [1008] Then he pointed to an other, and sayd Gal, and there appeared Gal: Then or [the voyce seemed Orh.] Then un [the sownd semed und.] Then Graph: [The sownd as Grakpha, in the throte.] Then Tal, [in sownd stall or xtall.] Then gon. Then na [but in sownd Nach as it were in the nose.] Then ur, [in sownd our or ourh.] Than mals, [in sownd machls.] Then Ger, [in sownd, gierh.] Then drux, [in sownd drovx.] Then Pal: the p being sownded remissly. Then med. He sayd, Magna est gloria eius.[1009] Ceph, sownded like Keph, But before that, was Don: Then van, Fam, Then Gisg.



Pa — b
Veh — c ged — g gal — d or — f un — a graph — e
Tal — m
Gon — i na — hath ur — l mals — p ger — q drux — n
Pal — x med — o don — r ceph — z van — u fam — s
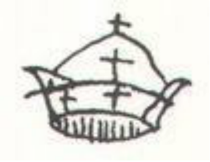
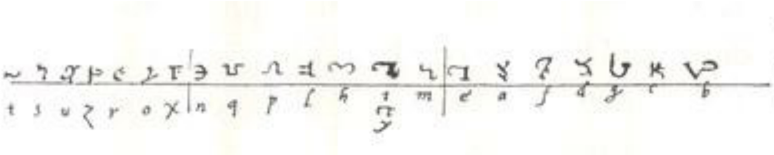
Gisg — t

Then he lay down before it: and there cam two lines and parted the 21 letters into 3 partes, eche being of 7. He sayd, Numerus ô perfectissimus, Unus et Trinus. Gloria tibi, [1010] Amen.

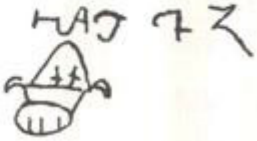


Then he put on his Crown, and pluckt a black veale before all in the Chayre. He sayd, Remember to lerne those names without boke, and to know them.



t s u z r o x n q p l h i m e a f d g c b

Δ Thus I deciphred them after a day or two or three.



Martij 26. a meridie + Tuesday hor. 5½

First there was a great noyce of harmony, hard. There appeared two great Armies fighting, and much bludshed on both sides.[1011] One Captaine is in red harness, the Contrary Captayn, is white and grene. There appered Flags with a croked tree, or like a ragged staff, or cudgell, in them: and they were on the red Capitayns side. He and his soldiers had the worse and were putto flight, and they ran away. The Captayn with the white and grene was Master of the felde: and assembled and gathered his men to gather after the Victorie. Now this Capteyn goeth to a town and semeth with his hand to heave up the towne, being a big towne. There was a voyce hard, saying thus,—So shall it be, with 21 more.

Δ: Wyth what one and twenty?

A voyce:—As yet, you can not know. This shall happen, before the Sonne hath twise gon his course.[1012]

EK: Now the Capteyn appeared alone, on fote, in his harness. He holdeth up his hands to heven: He is now vanished away. I meane the Capteyn in white and grene. Now appeareth the red cloth before the chayre. There come in three: they all make cursy: and two of them went away.

Δ: Our desyre is to know what we are to think of the Man which cam out of my Oratory and layd the fyry Ball at Mr Adrian Gilbert his fete yesterday, as he sat in my study with Mr Kelly and me: whether it were any Illusion, or the act of any seducer?

Me: No wicked powre shall enter into this place.[1013] Neyther shall Iniquitie range where the fyre of his percing Judgment and election[1014] doth light, which shall quicken his deadness, and revive his courrage to the auancement of the name of him, which liueth now. He chose with fire and lightened theyr harts, and they immediately understode and felt the Illumination of his glory.[1015]

What wilt thow?

Δ:

To the performance of the glorie and encreasing of his name, which shortly maketh an ende with for euer.

Δ: This phrase, for euer, is somwhat dark.

Me: With this world, for euer. Δ: This giveth some light.

EK: The stone is become very dark.

Me: As the Buylding is grownded and ended uppon Three, So must the mysteries hereof be practised With Three. The fowrth is the Boke, which, Lo, is here present.

Δ: Must Adrian Gilbert, be made priuie of these Mysteries?

Me: Thow hast sayde.[1016]

Δ: May I note to your name any peculier Character or Syllable to distinguish your speches from ours or others?

Me: Medicina sum.[1017]

Δ: I may then use this syllable Me, to Note Medicina or Medicus Dei.[1018]

Me: Behold, these things, shall God bring to pass by his hands whose mynde he hath now newly set on fyre.[1019] The corners and streights of the earth shall be measured to the depth: And strange shalbe the wonders that are Creeping into new worldes. Tyme shalbe altred. with the difference of day and night.[1020] All things haue grown allmost to theyr fullness. But beware of Pride. We teache duty, Humbleness, and submission. Shortly shall these things come to passe.

Δ: Than, this Adrian Gilbert shall cary the name of Jesus among the Infidells to the great glory of god, and the recouery of those miserable people from the mowth of hell into which, for many hunderd yeres past, and yet contynually they do fall, &c.

Me: Who made thy mowth to prophesy? or, who* [Of God] opened the eyes of thy understanding? Who annoynted thy Jaws, or fed thee with unknown meate. Euen he* it is, that pricked these things forward, and shall use you as his Instruments to a mightie honor.

Δ: May we require description[1021] of the Cuntryes, for his better instruction, &c.

* * *

Me: Let darknes go behinde thee, and tempt him not, that iudgeth.[1022] These things belong not to my charge. Thow knowest them, which are sufficient,[1023] whan short time shall serue, for the whole instruction.[1024] Greater nede were to enquire How or by what meanes thow mayst be made worthy;[1025] and, so, consequently, haue knowledge for the knowing , hauing and using of this cælestiall medicine.

Forget not.

I instructed thee before-hand, and told thee, that both of you must iointly[1026]lerne those holy letters (For, so, I may boldely call them) in memory: with theyr names: to the intent, that the finger may point to the hed, and the hed to the understanding of his charge:

Δ: You perceyue that I haue diuerse affayres which at this present do withdraw me from peculier diligence using to these Characters and theyr names lerning by hart: And therfore I trust, I shall not offend, if I bestow all the convenient leysor[1027] that I shall get, abowt the lerning hereof.

Me: Peace, Thow talkest, as thowgh, thow understodest not. We know thee, we see thee in thy hart: Nor one thing shall not let an other. For short is the time, that shall bring these things to profe: Wherein he that liueth, shall approve him self aliue.[1028] Beautifull are the footesteps of his comming, and great is the reuenge of the wicked.

O Liber, Liber, Liber, bonis vita, malis vero mors ipsa. Magna sunt mirabilia in te inclusa: et magnum est nomen Sigilli tui

Lumen Medicinæ meæ, vobis.[1029]

EK: He holdeth his hands abroad. He draweth the Curten.

Δ: Gloria Laus et honor Deo patri et F. et SS.[1030] Amen.

* * *

Martij 28. Thursday morning. Mawndy Thursday.

A voyce: Pereant omnes qui insidiantur[1031] virtuti nominis mei: et qui Lumen absconderunt Iustitia mea.[1032]

EK: Now the vale is pluckt away.

Three appeare, as before time.

All three sayd,—Multa nos, quia multa patitur ipem.[1033]

EK: The two go away, and the Third remayneth who is like in all points to him, who yesterday to me alone, in your absence had declared himself to be an Illuder. Δ: NOTE, for the better understanding of this dayes Act it may be remembred that E. Kelly, while I, (John Dee) was at London, yesterday (being wensday) had used meanes to haue conference, with the good Creatures, with whome we haue dealing iointly: and that there appeared one very like unto our good frende, who toke apon him to be the same, and now semed to be constrayned[1034] by EK to tell the truth: and therfore his outward beautifull apparell semed to go of, and his body appered hery and he confessed that he was an Illuder[1035] &c. Whereuppon EK was in a great perplexitie of mynde, and was ready to haue gone his way. And at my comming home told me a long processe of this Tragicall Act. But I comforted him, and wold not yeld to his opinion, But did declare my confidence in the goodnes of God: for that we craved at his hands, things good and necessarie: and that therefore he wold not giue his childern a stone for bred, or a scorpion for nedefull food required &c.[1036] And this morning the matter was propownded by me, and thereuppon the former sayings wer used, and all the consequences of matter, which hereafter is recorded.

Δ: The veritie I require of yesterdays doings with EK on my absence.

Camikas zure, he sayd, holding his hands to heuen.

EK: He walketh up and down and semeth angry: and did beat his hands togither. There commeth a little streame of fire whitish from aboue: and cam to his hed. He kneleth down before the Chayre, and loketh up, and sayde,

Me: Oh how brittle are the works of thy hands [he looked up] whose Imperfections are now more innumerable then the sands of the sea: or clowds that were lifted up since the begynning of the world. Darknes dare presume to place him self in Lightnes: yea dishonor, (o God) to dwell in place of glory: His lying lipps presume against Truth: whilest thow suffredst his old and withered face to be garnished with thy beawty. Heavines[1037] is his seat; yet are his lipps myrthfull: and little there that separateth him from the dignitie of honor: But his ponishment is sufficient, his dishonor unspeakable, and his damnation for euer: which how bitter it is, great and unspeakable, Thow, ô thow (I say) that liuest (which hast estranged him so far from thy glory) makest onely manifest. But yet how long shall the sonnes of men puff up them selues with bragging and.boasting of that they see not? But (alas) All things are confownded, and are contrary to thy commaundements: some onely which differ, remayn with concordant myndes praysing thee, and lifting up thy name, as much as strength performeth. But herein is thy glory and long sufferance manifest, in that thow dost not onely with greif behold theyr synnes, but like a iust iudge, fauorably doth ponder the greatnes of theyr enemies which infect theyr myndes, and blynde the light, which thow hast given unto theyr understanding, with inflammations bodyly, instigations worldly, and tentations innumerable. Great therfore and most great, and none greater can be, which deridest the Aduersarie, and healest the weak: whose smallnes of habilitie thow canst augment, wherein the mysteries of thy great glorie and might, is manifest. Thy seal yeld prayses, with incessant and dutifull obedience. Thy name be magnified, thy mercy published to thy glory: Holy Holy, yea great and most holy, is thy euerlasting kindenes for euer.

EK: Now he standeth up, and sayd,

Me: As I haue all ready told,[1038] from whome I cam, so haue I not hydden, what I am, or what message I bring; why it is sent, it is allso written. How long shall I perswade to stedfastnes? But the greater your measures are the greater shalbe the quantitie. These afflictions are necessary. For herin is a measure to distinguish[1039] from falshode, light from darknes, and honor from dishonor. The more they are like us, or shew them selues so, (for, nothing can be more dislike) the more they are Judges of theyr own damnation. Yea, if his strength had byn great, he wold haue devoured thy sowle. [Loking to EK.] But whome God hath chosen, shall none overturne. Brag not: eyther Credyt my words by thyne owne reason. But Consider that diuerse may be dishonored, yea thowgh they be in honor: yet shallt not thow neyther be ouerturned with the one wynde nor the other: thowgh the afflictions that shall follow thee, be great and hard.[1040] In my words are no error: neyther haue you fownd my lipps untrue. Whan I kneeled, I spake for you. But I haue promised that No unclean thing shall prevayle within this place. Neyther am I a revenging spirit nor of any such office. I quicken the dead, revive them that are falln and cure or sow up the wowndes, which they are permitted to work uppon man, as tokens of God his Iustice.

I call the same god, (whome I haue called before) to recorde, that these words are true, my sayings iust, and his mercies more perfect. Whilest heven endureth and earth lasteth, never shall be razed out the Memorie of these Actions.[1041] Use Humilitie: Reioyce whan the enemy is discomforted in his traynes,[1042] and inventions: A ponishment so great, Et cætera. Whan I yoked your feathers[1043] to gither, I ioyned them not for a while. Your flying is to be considered in quantitie, qualitie and Relation.

Thank God: Be mercifull: forget your synnes: and prepare your selues, For great and wonderfull is the immediate powre of him that illuminateth from aboue. It shall light apon you: For those that are present with him, liued with him, eat and drank with him, [and] were instructed by him, Were but hearers onely: At length God was glorified, in one instant all things browght unto theyr remembrance: yea some of them taken to behold the heavens, and the earthly glory. I haue sayd.

Δ:

Me: Behold. Veniat vindictum dei, et percutiat linguam mentientem.[1044]

EK: He goeth his waye and taketh all with him, Table, Chayre, and Curten and all. There cam in a great many with flaming swords, and bring in the wicked spirit, who yesterday delt so diuilishly with EK. One of them holding him by the arme, sayde, Speak now for your self, you could speak yesterday. They all drew theyr swords: they sknorked fire. And there seamed a water to com in, but it went away again.

A voyce:—Dicat, nam nrm non est.[1045]

EK: Now is the Skroll with the Characters browght in, which was fownd by spirituall direction this month, the 12 day, abowt 10½ after none by Mr Kelly and Master Husy.[1046] He semeth now as like our good frende, as may be. Our frende cam with a sponge and annoynted the wicked spirit his lipps.

A voyce:—Els could I not speak.

Δ: Seing now thow canst speak, answer me.

The wicked, sayd:—Ask quickly.

Δ: What is thy Name?—The wicked answered, Gargat.

Δ: What is the sentence of that skroll?—Gar: I know not.

Δ: In the name of Jesus, I charge thee to tell me the truth as concerning That roll here shewed.—Gar: I haue cownterfeted this roll, and browght it: for it is not the true roll.[1047]

Δ: After many words betwene him and me, and the more, bycause he denyed that he knew of any Glorie belonging to God, I urged him so, at length with short and euident argument, that he answered, he must confess the powre and glorie of god: and sayd, that he was damned for euer: and did wish damnation to me. And I requested God to use his Justice on him, for the glory of his name. Then he entreated me somwhile, and somwhile derided me, saying, Art thow so lusty? &c.

Δ: All the Cumpany fell on him, and hewed him in peces: and digged a hole in the earth, with theyr swords, and he fell in, and after that was a myghty roaring hard.

A voyce:—Sic soleo iniustis.[1048]

Δ: The Cumpany went away. There cam a fire and seamed to burn all the howse.

A voyce:—Purifica Domine sanctum tuum, et dele iniquitatem inimicorum nostrorum.[1049]

Δ: Then returned our frende, Me, and all seemed light and bright agayn: likewise all the furniture, of Table, Chayre, Globe in the chayre covered with a red covering &c.

Me: Visio vera, verè denotatur. Denotetur etiam ad gloriam Dei.[1050]

☞ Δ: Master Kelly, is your dowt of the spirit, now taken away?

EK: Ye truely, I beseche God to forgive me.

Me: Dixisti, et factum.[1051]

Δ: As concerning Adrian Gilbert, there might be some dowte in common externall Judgment, of his aptnes to the performance of the voyage with the appertenances, But the Secret of God his prouidence, I will not meddle withall: for he can make infants speak, and the dum to shew furth his glory &c.

Me: Yf God be mighty, acknowledge his powre. Who made the Sonne of nothing? or man, so brittle a substance? Nature thrusteth up her sholders amongst trees and herbs, like a ientle fyre: In beasts and all the creatures of the feelde, waters, and earth, in a palpable imagination: Amongst the sonns of men, she auanceth her self, wholy in the light of understanding. In all these she walketh by her own qualitie, mixing the quantities, with her before iudged proportion. Amongst all these is some distinction, yet all in theyr kindes are perfectly and substantially norrished. Yf Nature haue such powre, What powre hath our God, and how great is his might in those in whome He kindleth a sowle, understanding. The strength of 1. body, and 2. inward man, with 3. the strength of him that allso leadeth him[1052] are augmented and diminished at his pleasure. Yf earth, in myxture become fyre, hom much more shall he encrease, whome God hath strengthened: yf he wold haue conquered with thowsands, he wold not haue sent back the dogged harted people. Yf riches or renown were his felicitie, he wold haue kindled the twelue Lamps[1053] of his æternall light, on a higher mowntayne: But he chose them in the Valleys, and from the watering places. I think this be sufficient to confirme your understanding.

Δ: I trust, God be not offended with this matter propownded &c.

Me: He is pleased: And it is enowgh. Eternitie is mighty and glorious to the righteous.

Δ: Whan shall I make him[1054] priuie of these things?

Me: Whan thow wilt. For euery thing is acceptable with those that are accepted. See thow cownsayle him, and be his Father.

Δ: As concerning John Dauis,[1055] we are to ax somwhat &c.

Me: John Dauis, is not of my Kalender. Lern of them, of whome it is necessary. Be not negligent, in lerning the things before prescribed.[1056]

God be emongst you.

EK: He hath drawn the curten of red.

Δ: Soli Deo sit omnis honor et gloria.[1057] Amen.

Mawndy Thursday, after None. hor 3½

Δ: The Veale being drawn away after a quarter of an howre (almost) after the first motion made by me. Three cam in, and made obedience to the chayre. Two went away, and the third remayned there, as before.

Δ: As concerning the Kalender to be reformed, I am grieved that her Maiestie will not reforme it in the best termes of veritie.[1058] And as for the priuiledge for Mr Adrian Gilbert his voyage, I think not well of it, that Royalties shold not be graunted. Therfore both these points, respecting her Maiestie, I wold gladly haue cownsayle, such as in the Judgment of the highest might be most for my behofe, to follow.

Me: In one gouernment there are sundry principall partes: Euery part in subdiuision conteyneth many and sundry offices. Many Offices require many disposers: yet hath euery disposition continually some partition in his qualitie. All things, one thing: And one thing, something: some thing, many things, and many things, most innumerable. The heuens in proportion are gouerned universally of a few; particularly of many: eche place possesseth his diuision: and euery thing diuided, his propertie. Princis ar governors which move and stir them up to work, as it is provided, and to behold in speculation How euery particular Action, shall haue due, perfect, and appropriated Locall being, motion and Condition. Subiects, (yea, the Highest) are stirred up, by theyr propre Angels:[1059] The inferior sort do follow the disposition of theyr leaders. Vertue and Vice dwell euery where. Light and darknes, are allwayes intermedled.

Consider, How I speak it.

The myndes of all that move, euen unto the least qualitie in Nature, haue of them selues propre vertues: and therfore propre Instigators.[1060] I call to memory thy words, the manner of thy speche, and the secret purpose or meaning, whereunto it is uttred. I see thy Infirmities, and know what thow desyrest. But mark me, whom God commonly choseth,[1061] shalbe whom the Princis of the Erth do disdayn. Consider, how the prophet that slew that Monstrous Gyant, had his election.[1062]

God respecteth not princis, particularly, so much as the state of his whole people. For in Princis mowthes, is there poyson, as well as proverbs. And in one hart, more Synne, then a whole world can conteyn. Yt is not myne office to meddle with theyr vanities, neyther is it a part of my pageant to towch any thing that tasteth not of Medicine. But, what? doth thy mynde reply? Dost thow think, that my cownsayle herin, to a grieved mynde, is, (thowgh it can be) Medicinall? Peraduenture[1063] thow thinkest I am not, [in] thy marrow: yes I haue byn long in the highest part of thy body,[1064] and therfore ame somthing perswaded of thy meaning.

Δ: In dede, I thowght that your good Cownsaile, was or might be a remedie and a medicine to my afflicted mynde, for this unseamely doing, in the two former points expressed.

Me: Behold, where unto thy earthly man wold seduce thee. Dost thow think, that if it pleas god, it shall not please the Prince? if it be necessarie , all ready prepared?

Secretum dico.[1065]

For all things are Limited, with a full measuration, and unserchable forsight: yea, I say, all ready, unto the ende. Be not discomforted. Quayle not at the blast of a small tempest: For those that speak thee fayre,[1066] haue dissembling harts, and priuilie do they shote at thee, with arrows of reproche. Whan they[1067] shall haue nede of thee: I meane, of the help of God, throwgh thee, (some shut up, some entangled, some gadding[1068] like masterles Doggs,) Than shall they gladly seke thee and desire to finde thee. They shall smell oute thy fote steps, and thow shallt not see them. The key of theyr Cares shalt thow be Master of: And they them selues shall not unlok theyr own grievousness. Yea they shall say, Oh let the earth devowr us. But I am to long. I answer thee, all thowgh it be not my office,[1069] to declare that thow desirest: yet for that thow desyrest my Medicine. I say, Thow shalt preuayle agaynst them,[1070] yea euen agaynst the Mightiest. As thow wilt, so shall it be in God his blessings.

Beware of Vayne glory. Use few wordes.

Thy weapons, are small, But thy Conquest shalbe great. Lo. Doth this satisfy thee? Haue a firme faith. It is the greatest lesson. Be it unto thee as thow hast deliuered. One thing, I answer thee, for all Officis. Thow hast in Subiection all Offices. Use them when it pleas thee, And as thy Instruction hath byn.

I haue sayde.

Δ: As things be planted here, for preparation of Table, Sigillum Dei &c, which things are not portable with eas: So, bycause I think, that some seruices to be done in gods purposes by me, will require other places than this howse, so shall diuerse my practises haue (as I think) a more compendious manner, and redy, to be executed in any place &c.

Me: Truely thow hast sayd, and so shall it fall unto thee. As I am here in this place, and yet in dede not, So, here: So shall it fall oute, and follow in the Mysteries of your Associated Operation.

The other[1071] shall be, but, as a necessary help to the first Practises, to plant the Tree: which being confirmed and strongly rooted shall bring furth frute,most abundantly.[1072] The Erth and the tree, can not be separated. This is the ende, and true it is. Let him be record, whom I beare record of here,

And so, with thee, Amen.

I must help thee. Lerne ioyntly the Elements or grownds of this heuenly doctrine;[1073] the ende and Consummation of all thy desired thirst: in the which God shall performe thee, thy Philosophicall Harmonie in prayer.[1074] Thow knowest what I mean.

The Æternall physitien minister his heuenly grace and continuall blessings uppon you, to the Glorie of his name, execution of your procedings, and holy and insatiable desires.

Δ: Amen: Omnipotenti Deo, nostro, Creatori Redemptori et Santificatori, omnis honor laus et gratiarum actio.[1075]
Amen.

Jesus.

On good friday; After None

Δ: There was a savor of fire felt by EK. There semed one with a sword, suddenly to thrust out of the stone at EK his hed. Whereat he started; and sayd he felt a thing (immediately) creeping within his hed, and in that pang becam all in a sweat. And he remayned much misliking the moving and creeping of the thing in his hed. At a quarter of an howre ende it cam to one place: and so ceased somwhat: & then the Curten was drawn away: and there appeared the Table, and the chayre covered. Then cam three, two went away and the one remayned: as before was used.

EK held the paper of the letters in his hand: and Me bad him put it out of his hand.

Me: The taste of this mercifull potion, yea the savour onely of the vessell worketh most extremely agaynst the maymed drowsines of ignorance. Yf the hand be heavy, how weighty and ponderous shall the whole world be? What will ye?

Δ: This he sayd uppon our silence after his former words. I answered, we desyred to lerne the Mysteries of the boke. The Boke now appeared (the cover of the chayre being taken away) the boke lying uppon a rownd thing: which EK, was not yet able to discern what it is.

The first side of the first leaffe of the boke appeared full of the former letters, euery side hauing 49 tymes 49 square places, with letters: some more then other.

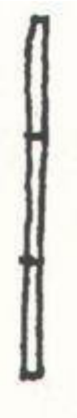
Me: Euery side conteyneth 2400 and one od letter.[1076]

EK: All the letters semed to be of bluddy cullor, and wet. The lines betwene the squares, semed to be like a shaddow. In the first square were 7 letters.

Me: Say after me: But pray first, ere you begynne. Δ: We prayed.

EK: All became blak as pych in the boke.

Then it becam light agayne.



Now he pointeth up, with his rod of gold diuided into 3 equal parts, which rod he toke from under the Table.

Me:

1. Keph van [He lifted his face to heven.] { Don graph fam veh na

EK: Now he kneleth down; and holdeth up his hands:
The letters of the first square, ar 7.

7	6	5	4	3	2	1

Now he pointeth to the second.

2. Med gal [EK: He turneth him self abowt.]
3. un gal un Mals na.
    Me: Twise seven, Thre and All one: and his mercy endureth for euer.
4. Tal un vrh.
5. Fam graph Fam.
6. Ged graph drux med.
7. un van.
8. Tal un don ur un drux. Sownded as δρυξ
9. Med.
10. Tal van fam mals un.
11. un ged gon med gal.
12. Mals un drux.
13. Ged un.
14. Fam graph fam.
15. ged un tal mals graph gal un keph
16. veh un mals veh drux graph na [capcneh]
17. ged med.
18. med gal.
19. Fam graph tal graph ur un pa van ged graph drux

20. Gal med tal drux un.
21. mals na gon un tal
22. ged un
23. van un drux veh don un drux.[1077]
24. Van don graph mals don graph fam

EK: Now he seemeth to wepe, and knock his brest. He pointeth with the rod, up, agayn, and sayd,

25. un gal graph mals gal
26. un keph graph
27. Gal don van keph
28. Gisg un don gal graph tal un na.
29. van un
30. veh graph fam gisg fam
31. ged don un mals un gal. He stayed here a good while.
32. fam graph gal
33. van drux pa un don
34. gal med tal gon med urh
35. un gal graph mals med un gal
39. 38.37.36. veh na graph van un veh na / Tal un na / Med fam fam na graph / gal un mals na /
40. med drux gon keph gal un don. This is a word.
41. mals un drux ged graph mals na gon.

EK: Now he walked up and down before the chayre: and cam agayn and pointed. The letters now following seme to be written with Clay.

42. Med gal un tal na
43. ged graph tal graph gal fam un ur: eight letters[1078]
44. un
45. gal gon drux med keph un
46. na med pal mals med don. Now he walketh agayn, and loketh upward.

Then he pointed agayn.

47. Un gal mals van drux
48. Gal un don
49. ged un don tal graph fam: He walked betwene the shewing of tal and graph. There are six letters in that word.

Me: Say after me (Shall I speak the Mysteries of thy glory, which thow hast secreted from the Inhabitants uppon the erth? Yea lord, it is thy will, whose hed is high, and fete euery where, redy to revenge the blud of Innocents, and to call home the lost shepe.)

Say after me,

1. zuresk[1079] od adaph mal zez[1080] geno au marlan oh muzpa agiod pan ga zez[1081] gamphedax[1082] Kapene[1083] go[le] od Semelábugen donkna[1084] fian[1085] ga vankran vreprez[1086] ádeph[1087] arxe[1088]

drux[1089] Tardemah va tzests[1090] grapad. zed unba[1091] domiól adepóad chieuak mah oshe daph Onixdar[1092] pangepi adamh gemedsol a dinoxa hoxpor adpun dar garmes.[1093]

Me: I teache. Let this lesson instruct thee to read all that shalbe gathered out of this boke hereafter. It is not to be spoken,[1094] but in the time of his own time. It shalbe sufficient to instruct thee: Fare well.

EK: Now he couereth the boke with the veale.

Δ: Prayses and Thankes be rendred to god, of us his sely[1095] ones, now and euer. Amen.

Δ: Note. All the former letters and words in the squares, were onely in the first or upper row, begynning at the right hand, and so going orderly to the left. And secondly Note that this lesson he red, pointing with his rod orderly uppon the same forsaid first row.

Martij 31. Easter day after none abowt 4.

EK hard first a sownd of Musicall harmonie.

Δ: The Veale was pluckt away.

Three cam in, two went away, as was before accustomed.

EK: Now he lyeth down. He riseth and pulleth the veale from the chayre. That veale was of cullor as a raynbow. The boke appeared playne and evidently on the globe in the chayre. EK felt the thing ronne in his hed as the other day it did. Me taketh out the rod from under the Table: He sayd, > Æternitas in Cælo.

Δ: Uppon my staying from speche, he sayd, What wilt thow?

Δ: The proceding instruction necessary for understanding of the boke.

Me: Mensuratur.[1096] Δ: He putteth up his rod to the boke.

Me: Sint oculi illorum clari, ut intelligant.[1097] [He held up his hands and semed to pray.] He pointed now to the second row of the 49 rows of the first page of the boke, and sayd, Secundus a primo.

1. Gon na graph na van fam veh na [Now he walketh up and down.]
2. Ged don med drux na un gal med Keph [He walketh agayn.]
3. Un don gal graph drux [He walked agayn.]
4. med
5. drux un [He walked.]
6. ged graph tal mals [He walketh.] un ur med. [7 letters.]
7. med gon veh un fam tal un drux
8. van un drux gal don graph fam
9. med don gal un
10. van graph van graph gon un na
11. drux med fam
12. mals ur gon ged drux un mals na graph
13. Keph un tal mals med drux med drux
14. un drux graph mals na
15. med mals na graph ~~veh~~ gal [Here, veh or gal is indifferent.]
16. un
17. Tal graph gal med ~~[Keph]~~ [or rather] pal [So it shalbe better understode.[1099]]
18. Tal un don van drux graph
19. ged graph drux un
20. mals don graph fam [Now he walketh.]
21. drux med
22. gal un fam tal un gisg
23. van med don gisg fam

24. tal un drux ged graph gisg [So it is.]
25. un

gal graph van drux graph

26. gal un tal mals na
27. drux un pal gisg
28. med fam
29. van un drux gal graph tal na drux un pal un gisg [12 letters.]
30. med don med mals na un fam
31. van med don
32. tal gon drux med gal un ur
33. un tal van gal un fam
34. ged graph don
35. mals un
36. med
37. gal un pal keph van tal
38. pa un drux veh graph fam
39. med don gal un drux [Now he maketh low obeysance to the chayreward.]
40. Mals un Incomprehensibilis es in æternitate tua.[1100]
41. Mals don graph fam
42. van tal pa ur med fam gal un
43. van med don pal
44. drux un gal med drux
45. mals un gisg don med mals na graph fam.
46. van drux gal graph fam.
47. un gal med drux.
48. ged un drux graph pa drux[1101] fam.
49. gon na graph na van gal keph

Me: Shall I rede it? Δ: We pray you.

2. Ihehusch Gronadox[1102] arden, o na gémpalo micasman[1103] vandres orda beuegiah[1104] noz[1105] plígnase zampónon aneph[1106] Ophad[1107] a medox[1108] marúne gena pras[1109] no dasmat. Vorts manget a-deüne[1110] damph. naxt os vandeminaxat.[1111] Oróphas vor mínodal amúdas ger pa o daxzum banzes[1112] ordan ma pres umblosda vorx nadon patróphes undes adon ganebus Ihehudz

Δ: Gehudz consisteth of 6 letters: But, Gon na graph na van gal keph, consisteth of 7. I wold gladly be resolued of that dowt if it pleas you.

EK: He boweth down, and put the rod away, and than Kneled down.

Δ: He rose and axed me, What wilt thow?

Δ: The former question to be soluted. Me: Thow hast written fals: for, it must be Ihehudz, and so it is of 7 letters.

Δ: Yf euery side conteyne 49 rows, and euery row will require so much tyme to be receyued as this hath done it may seme that very long time will be requisite to this doctrine receyuing: But if it be gods good liking, we wold fayne haue some abridgment or compendious manner, wherby we might the soner be in the work of Gods servyce.

EK: The Chayre and the Table are snatched away,[1113] and seme to fly toward heven. And nothing appeared in the stone at all: But was all transparent clere.

Δ: What this snatching away of Chayre and Table doth meane we know not: But if the Lord be offended with his yonglings, and Novices in thes Mysteries, for propownding or requiring a compendious Method &c, Then we are very sorry, and ax forgivenes for the rashnes of our lipps: and desyre his maiestie not to deale so rigorously with us: as thowgh we had sufficient wisdom or warning, to beware of such motions or requests making to his ministers. Let it not be so sayd of the holy one of Israel: but let his mercies abownd with us to his glorie. Amen.

EK: Now commeth all down agayn, as before.

Me: What are the Sonnes of men, that they put time in her own bosom? or measure a Judgment that is unsearchable?

Δ:

Me: I help thy imperfections: What, man thinketh wisdome, is error in our sight. But bicause my Nature is to cure, and set up those that fall, Thus much understand.

As I haue sayde: The 49 partes of this boke[1114] -49 voyces, Whereunto the so many powres, with theyr inferiors and subiects,[1115] haue byn, are, and shalbe obedient.

Euery Element in this mysterie is a world of understanding. Euery one knoweth here what is his due obedience: and this shall differ thee in speche from a mortall creature.[1116]

Consider with thy self, How thow striuest against thyne own light, and shaddowest the windows of thyne own understanding.

I haue sayde: Be it unto thee, as God will. I am not a powre or whirlewynde that giueth occasion of offence.

Longe sumus a peruersitate destructionis.[1117] Thus much I haue sayd, for thy reformation and understanding.

Δ:[1118]

Me: Lo, untill the Secrets of this boke be written, I come no more: neyther of me shall You haue any apparition. Yet, in powre, my office shall be here.[1119]

Say, what you here, for every word shall be named unto you: it is somwhat a shorter way, and more according to your desyre.

Euery Element[1120] hath 49 manner of understandings. Therin is comprehended so many languages.[1121] They are all spoken at ones, and seuerally, by them selues, by distinction may be spoken. Untill thow come to the Citie, thow canst not behold the beawty thereof.

Nihil hic est, quod non est perfectum.[1122]

I go. I haue sayde, (and it is true,) No unclean thing shall enter: Much less, then, here: For, it is the sight of whose Maiestie we tremble and quake at. He shall teache, of himself; for, we are not worthy.[1123] What then, of your selues? But such is his great and singular fauor, that, he is of him self, and with those, whom he choseth.[1124] For, the ende of all things is at hand,[1125] and Powre must distinguish, or els nothing can prevayle. What you here, yea what thow feelest, by thy finger, Recorde; and seale sure. This is all, and in this is conteyned all, that comprehendeth all, The allmighty powre and profunditie of his glory.

What els?

As thow seest, and till he see, whose sight,[1126] is the light of this his own powre, His might is great. The dew of his stedfastnes and glorious perfection hold up and rectify the weaknes of your fragilitie: Make you strong to the ende of his workmanship to whome I commit you.

EK: He plucketh the veale ouer all.

A voyce afterward:—Ne Ne Ne na Jabes.

Δ: Sanctus Sanctus Sanctus Dominus Deus Zebaoth: Pleni sunt cæli et terra gloria Maiestatis eius. Cui soli omnis honor, laus et gloria.[1127]

Amen.

1583 Aprilis 2. Tuesday. Jesus + before none

Δ: A noyce like a Thunder was first hard. The Chayre and Table appered. There appered fyre in the chayre, and burnt away the veale or covering therof. The cullor of the flame of the fire was as of Aqua vitæ burnt.

A voyce:—Sum.[1128]

EK: There goeth a clowd or smoke from the chayre, and covereth the Table. That smoke filled all the place.

A voyce:—Impleta sunt omnia gloria et honore tuo.[1129]

EK: All is become clere, saue the Table which remayned couered with the clowde still.

A great th-under began agayn, and the chayre remayned all in fire. Now the boke appeareth euidently lying uppon the Globe in the chayre and the letters appered wet styll, as yf they were blud. There appered fire to be thrown oute of the stone, uppon EK.[1130]

The sownd of many voyces semed to pronownce this: Let all things prayse him and extoll his name for euer.

EK: The fire is still in the chayre, but so transparent, that the boke and letters therof may well be seen.

EK felt his hed as if it were on fire.

A voyce:—Sic soleo errores hominum purificare.[1131]

A voyce:—Say what you see.

EK: I see letters, as I saw before.

A voyce:—Moue not from your places;[1132] for, this place is holy.

A voyce:—Read.—EK: I cannot.

Δ: You shold haue lerned the characters perfectly and theyr names, that you mowght now haue redyly named them to me as you shold see them. Then there flashed fire uppon EK agayne.[1133]

A voyce:—Say what thow thinkest. Δ: He sayd so to EK.

EK: My hed is all on fire.

A voyce:—What thow thinkest, euery word, that speak.

EK: I can read all, now, most perfectly: and in the Third row[1134] thus I see to be red,

> 3. Palce[1135] duxma ge na dem oh elóg da ved ge ma fedes o ned a tha lepah nes din. Ihehudétha dan vangem onphe dabin oh nax palse ge dah maz gem fatesged oh mal dan gemph naha Lax ru lutúdah ages nagel osch. macom adeph a dosch ma handa.

EK: Now it thundreth agayn.

A voyce:—Ego sum qui in te. Mihi ergo qui Sum.

Δ: Non nobis domine non nobis, sed nomini tuo damus gloriam.[1136]

Δ: Then EK red the fowrth row, as followeth,

4. Pah o mata nax lasco vana ar von zimah la de de pah o gram nes ca pan amphan van zebog ahah dauez öl ga. van gedo oha ne daph aged onédon pan le ges ma gas axa nah alpod ne alida phar or ad gamésad argla nado oges.

Δ: Blessed be the name of the Highest, who giueth light and understanding.

EK: It thundreth agayn. All is covered.

A voyce:—Orate.[1137]

Δ: We prayed: and returning to the work agayn, the fire covered all still and EK hard voyces, singing (as a far of) very melodiously. Then all became euident agayn unto EK his perfect Judgment.

Δ: EK then red thus,

5. Mabeth ar mices[1139] achaph pax mara geduth alídes orcánor manch[1140] arseth. olontax ar geban vox portex ah pamo. agématon buríse ganport. vdríos pasch. Machel len arvin zembuges. vox mara. gons Ihehusch dah pársodan maäh alsplan donglses adípr[1141] agínot. archad[1142] dons a dax van famlet a dex arge pa gens.

6. Van danzan oripat es vami gest ageff ormaténodah zálpala doniton pasdaes[1143] gánpogan Undanpel adin achaph máradon oxámax anólphe dan ieh voxad mar vox ihedutharh aggs pal med lefe. IAN lefa dox parnix O droes[1144] marsíbleh aho dan adeph uloh iads ascleh da verox ans dalph che damph lam achos.[1145]

EK: There is a great Thundring agayn.

Δ: It is the hand of the highest, who will get him honor by his own works.

EK: The Voyce and sownd of pleasantnes and reioycing was hard: and all was dark.

A small voyce:—Locus est hic sanctus.[1146]

An other voyce:—Sacer est a te Domine.[1147]

EK: All is now opened agayne.

Δ: Then EK, red thus,

7. Amídan gah[1149] lesco van gedon amchih ax or madol cramsa ne dah vadgs lesgamph[1150] ar: mara panosch aschedh or samhámpors asco*. pacadabaah asto[1151] a vdrios archads ors arni. pamphíca lan gebed druxarh fres adma. nah pamphes eä vanglor brisfog mahad. no poho a palgeh donla def archas NA Degel.

8. Vnaem[1152] palugh agan drosad ger max fa lefe pandas mars langed undes mar. pachad odidos martíbah v'dramah noges gar. lenges argrasphe drulthe las aséraphos. gamled cam led caph Snicol lumrad v ma. pa granse paphres a drinox a demphe NA. genile o danpha. NA ges a ne gaph a.

EK: The sownd of Melodie, begynneth agayne.

Δ: The fire cam from EK his eyes, and went into the stone againe. And then, he could not perceyue, or read one worde.[1153] The Fyre flashed very thick and all was couered with a veale.

Δ: Prayse we the lord, and extoll his name. For, his hand hath wrought wundrous works, for his owne glorie.

Amen.

Aprilis.3. Wensday, Forenone †

Δ: First the Curten was drawn away: and then all appeared on fire: The whole place all ouer. EK hard voyces, but could not discern any thing but the hummering of them.

Δ: There cam fire agayn (out of the stone) uppon EK, all his body ouer.

EK: The fire so diminisheth it self that the boke may be perceyved.

A voyce:—Magnus Magnus Magnus.[1154]

An other voyce:—Locus sacer et acceptabilis Deo.[1155]

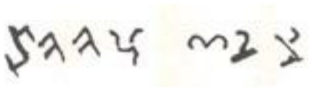
EK fellt the fire to gather up into his hed. Shortly after he could read the boke, as he could do yesterday.



9. Vlla[1156] doh aco par semná gan var se gar on dun. sebo dax se pal genso vax necra par sesqui nat. axo nat sesqui ax[1157] olna dam var gen vox nap vax. Vro[1158] varca cas nol undat vom Sangef famsed oh. sih ádra gad gesco vansax ora gal parsa.

---10. Varo. nab vbrah NA pa uotol ged ade pa cem[1159] na dax. van sebrá dah oghe aschin o nap gem phe axo or. nec a ve da pengon a moroh ah óha aspáh. niz ab vrdráh[1160] gohed[1161] a carnat dan faxmal gamph. gamph nacro vax asclad caf prac crúscanse.[1162]

11. gam. ohe gemph ubráh-ax.[1163] orpna[1164] nex-or napo, gemlo. a cheph[1165] can sedló pam-geman ange hanzu ALLA.[1166] Cáppo-se damo gam-vas oro-dax-vá ges-pálo palme pola.[1167]

EK: All these, (now red,) fall out and all the rows, before, likewise.

A voyce:—Prayse God.

Δ: We prayed. And after, was this shewed,[1168]

Gals-ange no-témpa-ro sama dan genzé axe. falod amruh ácurtoh saxx par mano gan vax no.[1169] gramfa gem sadglá[1170] loh vrox sappóh iad ah oha unra.

Δ: Now appeared an other row.

12. Se[1171] gors axol ma pa a oh la sabúlan. Caph ardox anpho nad v‘rnah ud ago lan vans.[1172] v’xa grad órno dax palmes árisso dan vnra. vánsample galse not zablis óphide ALLA loh. gaslah osson luze adaö max vanget or dámo ans. leóz dasch léöha dan se gla’spa neh.

All becam dark, and it thundred.

A voyce:—Prayse God.

Δ: We prayed.

Δ: Now appered three or fowr rows to gither. The boke seemed to fly, as if it wold fly a peces (the fyre remayning) and to make a great sturring in the place where it lay.

13. Amprí apx ard ardo argá[1173] argés argáh ax. osch nedo les icás. han andam von ga lax man. nosch. dóngo a yntar cey[1174] lude asch úrise alpé gem var dancet.[1175] nap alped v‘rsbe temps a vod nos gema o ulon máncepax oxné pricos a got. zalpa ne doxam órne.[1176]
14. Admag apa ascò[1177] tar. gans oärz am seph selqui quisben alman. gons sa ieh mársibleh gron áscabb gamat. neý aden vdan phand sempés nan narran al. cáno géme dansé álde nótes parcélah arb ner ga lum pancu[1178] príscas ábra músce[1179] an nox. napód[1180] a on dan sem ges asche[1181]

EK: A sownd of many voyces, sayd,—Orate.[1182]

15. Mica suráscha para te gámmes ádrios NA danos. vra lad pacad ur gesme crus[1183] a prásep ed. a palse nax varno zum. zancú asdom baged V’rmigar orch phaphes ustrá nox affod masco gax cámles vnsanba a oh la gras par quas. cónsaqual lat gemdax tantat ba vod. talpah ian.
16. Gescó[1184] a taffom ges nat gam. pamphé ordáquaf cesto chídmap[1185] mischná ia-ísg.[1186] iaiálphzudph a dancét[1187] vnban caf ránsembloh. daf-ma[1188] vp aschem graos[1189] chrámsa[1190] asco dah. vímna gen álde os papéam och láuan vnad. oh drosad údrios nagel panzo ab sescú. Vórge afcál[1191] vslaffda mórsab gaf[1192] ham de Peleh asca.

Δ: This went away, when it was read. It waxed dark.

A voyce:—Orate.[1193] Δ: We prayed.

EK: It beginneth to clere.

A voyce to EK:—Say.

17. Ar’tosa geme oh gálsagen[1194] axa loph gebed adóp: zarcas vr vánta pas ámphe nóde alpan. nócas se ga ormácased lax naph talpt. pámphicas[1195] sandam Voscméh iodh asclad ar. phan gas málse a quaz nam vngem vansel gembúgel a gémbusez á-ro[1196] tehl alts murt valtab bániffa faxed ar chlyfod
18. A tam nat. glun asdeh ahlud gadre fam Shing la dan. guinsé[1197] life[1198] arilsar zabulan cheuách[1199] se. amph lesche andam var ges ar phex are.[1200] NA[1201] tax páchel lapídox ar da vax malcos. vna gra tassox varmára ud ga les vns ap se. ne da ox lat ges ar.

Now it waxeth dark. Δ: We must pray: (sayd I) and so we did. But EK prayed perfectly in this Angels language &c.

19. Asmo dahán pan casme co caph al oh. san ged a bansaa[1202] un adon a seb Ian. agláho dánfa zúna cap orcha[1203] dah os. fámsah ON naäb[1204] ab nagah geha fastod. hansey om hauan lagra gem gas mal. parcóg[1205] dax nedo va geda leb ar'ua ne cap sem[1206] carvan.
20. Onsem gelhóldim geb abníh ian. oxpha bas cappó cars órdriph grip gars. of víndres nah ges páhado vllónooh can vaz a. fam gisril ag nóhol sep gérba dot vánca NA.

sem ah-pa[1207] nex ar-pah lad vamó iar séque.
Vad ro garb. ah sem dan van ged ah paleu[1208]

Now, the fire shot oute of EK his eyes, into the stone, agayne. And by and by he understode nothing of all, neyther could reade any thing: nor remember what he had sayde. All became dark. Then was the curten drawne, and so we ended.

Δ: Gloria patri et filio et spiritui sancto nunc et semper.[1209]
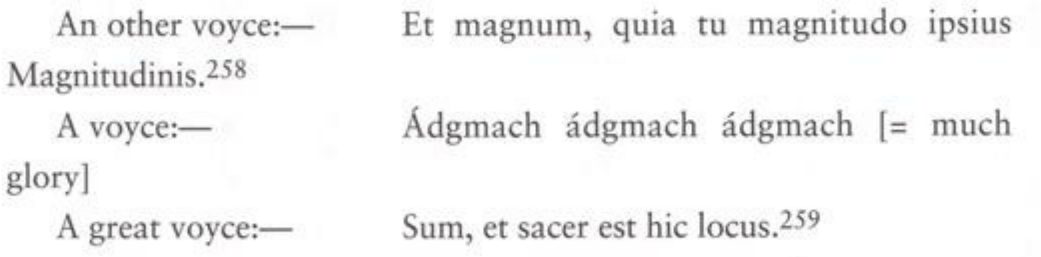
Amen.

Aprilis .3. Wensday + After none hor 5¼

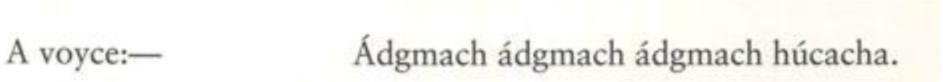
Δ: A prety while, the veale remayned ouer all: then it was taken away. First fire was thrown uppon EK out of the stone. Many voyces concordantly sayd,—Bonum est ô Deus, quia Bonitas ipa es.[1210]



An other voyce:— Et magnum, quia tu magnitudo ipsius Magnitudinis.[258]

A voyce:— Ádgmach ádgmach ádgmach [= much glory]

A great voyce:— Sum, et sacer est hic locus.[259]



A voyce:— Ádgmach ádgmach ádgmach húcacha.

[1211], [1212]

Δ: Then EK read the row on this manner,

21. Padohómagebs[1213] galpz arps[1214] apá nal Si. gámvagad al pódma gan NA. vr cas nátmaz ándiglon ar'mbu.[1215] zántclumbar ar noxócharmah. Sapoh lan gamnox vxála vors. Sábse cap vax mar vinco.[1216] Labandáho nas gampbox arce.[1217] dah gorhahálpstd gascámpho[1218] Ian ge. Béfes argédco[1219] nax arzulgh[1220] orh.[1221] sémhaham[1222] vn'cal laf garp oxox. Loangah.[1223]

Δ: Now appered Raphael [] or one like him, and sayde,

Salus vobis in illo qui vobiscum.[1224]

I am a medicine that must prevayle against your infirmities: and am come to teache, and byd take hede. Yf you use dubble repetition, in the things that follow, you shall both write and work and all at ones: which mans nature can not performe. The trubbles were so great that might ensue thereof, that your strength were nothing to preuayle against them. When it is written, reade it no more with voyce, till it be in practise. All wants shalbe opened unto you. Where I fownd you, (with him, and there,) I leave you. Cumfortable Instruction is a necessarie Medicine.

Farewell.

EK: The boke and the Chayre, and the rest were all out of sight while Raphael spake, and he lay down prostrate. EK saw a great multitude in the farder side of the stone. They all cam into the stone, and axed,

What now?
How now?

Vors mábberan = how now: what hast thow to do with us?

Δ: As I began thus to say (The God of powre, of wisdom,) they all interrupted my entended prayer to god for help &c and sayd, We go We go.

Δ: And so they went away.

Then the boke and the rest cam in agayne.

A voyce:—One Note more, I haue to tell thee. Ax him not, What he sayeth, but write as thow hearest: for it is true.

Δ: Then, o lord, make my hearing sharp and strong, to perceyue sufficiently as the case requireth.

Rap:—Be it unto thee.

Δ: Then EK red as followeth,

22. ors lah gemphe nahoh ama-natoph des garhul vanseph iuma lat gedos lubah aha last gesto Vars macom des curad vals mors gaph gemsed pa campha zednu ábfada máses lófgono Luruandah[1225] lesog iamle padel arphe nades gulsad maf gescon lampharsad surem paphe arbasa arzusen agsde ghehol max vrdra paf gals macrom finistab gelsaphan asten Vrnah[1226]

A Voyce: Whatsoeuer thow settest down shalbe true.

Δ: I thank god most hartilie: The case allso requireth it so to be.

23. Asch val íamles árcasa árcasan arcúsma íabso gliden paha pacadúra gebne[1227] óscaroh gádne au[1228] arua las genost cásme palsi uran vad gadeth axam pambo cásmala sámnefa gárdomas árxad pámses gémulch gapes lof lachef ástma vates[1229] garnsnas orue gad garmah sar‘quel rúsan gages drusala phímacar aldech oscom lat garset panóston.[1230]

24. gude laz miz lábac vsca losd pa Cópad dem sebas gad váncro umas ges umas umas ges gabre umas umáscala um’phazes umphagám maaga mosel iahal loges[1231] vapron fémse dapax orgen[1232] láscod ia láscoda vága am lascafes iarques préso tamísel vnsnapha ia dron goscam lápe voxa chimlah aueaux losge auióxan lárgemah.

25. zureth axad lomah ied gura vancrásma ied sesch lapod vonse avó avé lamsage zimah zemah zúmacah Vormex artman voz vozcha tolcas zapne zarvex zorquem allahah gibúrod[1233] Ampátraton zimegauna[1234] zonze zámca aschma[1235] vlpa tapa van vorxvam drusad Caph castárago grúmna can‘caphes absacáncaphes zúmbala teuort granx zumcot lu graf saxma Cape.

26. Col age lam gem fam tepham vra ap du ca sampat vóxham Lúnzapha axquem Bobagélzod gaphémse lan’se agni cam setquo teth gaphad oxámarah gímnephad vox’canah vrn dage[1236] paphcod zámbuges zambe ach oha zambúges gásca lunpel zadphe zómephol zun zadchal ureseh varún pachádah gusels vx amna pa granna oh vz

Δ: I think it will be dark by and by, and our Cumpany will expect our comming down to supper. Therfore, if, without offence we might now leave of, it might seme good so to do.

A voyce:—gemeganza = your will be done.

Δ: As I was discoursing with EK after we had done, and he seamed yet skylfull and hable to say much of the understanding of the premisses, and began to declare somwhat, How they did all apperteyne to Good Angels, suddenly there cam the fyre from his eyes into the stone agayne. And than he could say no more: nor remember any thing of that he had hard seen or understode less than half a quarter of an howre before.

Δ: Deo nostro Viuo Vero et Omnipotenti sit omnis laus et graz actio nunc et semper.[1237] Amen.

Aprilis 4 Thursday + mane hor. 5½

Δ: I made a prayer.

Δ: A voyce:—Quia ipem Deus Deus Deus noster cuius misericordia infinita.[1238]

Δ: The fire, immediately did shote out of the stone into EK, as before. His tung thereuppon did quake in his mowth.

EK: The Veale hangeth yet before.

Δ: Then, all being uncouered, thus he red.

27. Atra cas carmax pabámsed gero adol macom vaxt gestes[1239] ladúch carse ámages[1240] dascal panselogen dursca zureóch pamcasah vsca huädrongúnda malue ior. gáscama af orthox VAN-CORHG aspe zubra vaacááh gandeuá arinmaphel vax oh saoh abra iehudeh gamphe vndáxa casmat lafet vncas laphet vanascor torx glust hahaha enséde gumah galseds.
28. Pacádpha palzé zuma carphah uzad capaden v’lsage[1241] EXCOL-PHAG-MARTBH iasmadel vóscon sem abnérda tohcoth[1242] iamphala páhath órcheth iesmog pasque Labááh agas lada vng lasco ied ampha leda pageh gemze axax ózed caphzed campha voxal luthed gedan[1243] famech[1244] ártsnad gathad zuresch pascha lo guma[1245] halphe dax vancron patel zurad
29. Canda lahad Bóbagen afna vorzed phadel NOBTDAMBTH gáscala oxad vanges[1246] vodoth mured achna[1247] adcol damath zesvamcul pacadáah zimles zoraston geh galze mazad pethel cusma iaphes huráscah órphade loscad mages[1248] mat lúmfamge detchel[1249] orze cámalah vndan padgze[1250] páthmataph zumad lepháda oháäx vlschan[1251] zembloh agne phamgah iudad capex Luzad vemech arse
30. Onda gams luzgaph vxan genzed[1252] pádex CÓNGAM-PHLGH [1253] ascath gadpham zurdah zamge gloghcha sapax tastel vn‘sada phatheth zúncapha oxamáchad semteph ascle zuncas magzed dulm pamfra húsage axad exóradad casmet ámphigel adcath luza pathem nécotheth gesch[1254] labba doh dóxa vascheth hoxan lamésde lampha iodoch gonzah hamges[1255] glutha óxmogel[1256] démapha vz’ed ascraph.
31. zudath chádgama[1257] ómsage[1258] hor gadsa gézes ORPHÁM-ZAM NAHE[1259] gedod asphed voxa gémgah lath gáphes zembloth chasca olphe dax marpha lothe sool[1260] separ marges[1261] bosqui laxa cosneth gonse dadg voxma v‘mage vnx gascheth lood admah loo[1262] ga zem-chá-na-phe am’-na-la ia pacheth nox-da a-mah
32. Gedox al SEM-GA-NA-DA-BAH ongagágeda phachel loódath haxna gu-na-pá-ge-pha al se geda oh oöda géhoph pachad enol adax loges famgah laxqui hasche vadol vóms-a-na gax-ma-dephna-zad gel panca vam Sesquin oxal genoph voödal u-má-da-bah
33. Asge lun zumia paxchádma enohol duran ORCHLÓD-MAPHAG mages oschan lod bunda cap luzan lorpha leuándah orxzed famzad ge-nós-o-dath[1263] phasélma gesda chom-gasnaph-geth-nag goth[1264] ládmano Vmvar gezen vax gulzad margas luxt lapch iudath zomze van goth dah vorx guna ia ada Vox-há-ma-na
34. Arze galsam vnza vcha pasel noxda Nobróschom[1265] gu-na-dé-phogas dúnseph man-cax-mal-cás-mah ied-hah-mel-cár-na zemphe vncah lethoph both-ned-ga-phí-cas-mel ioth-hath-cha-sad ma-neded-ma-gon zuna gothel pascheph nodax vam phath mata[1266]

A voyce: Orate. Δ: We prayed.

35. Aphath zunca voxmor can zadcheth[1267] napha. VOR-DOMPHÁNCHES ga-ues-go-sa-del gurah leth agsnah orza max pace ieth cas lad fam pahógama zon-chás-pha-ma zumblés-cha-phax var-gat-ma-gas-ter ne-ho-gat-ma-gan vn-gaphax-ma-la gegath laxqu goga lab naches[1268]

Δ: Thereuppon the Vele was drawn, and the fire cam from EK his eyes again into the stone.

Δ: Deo opt. Max. omnis honor laus et gloria.[1269] Amen.

Aprilis .5. Friday + a meridie hora 5¼

Δ: The Vele was taken away, without any speche used by me or EK. The boke and all the former furniture appeared very bright.

Δ: I made a prayer to god, begynning, Expectãs expectaui Dominum [1270] &c.

EK: I here the sownd of men playing very melodiously on Instruments and singing.

A Voyce:—Serue God and take hede of Nettels.[1271] Δ: This was spoken to EK in respect of a great anger he was-in yesternight, by reason that one had done him inurie in speche at my table. [Charles Sled.]

EK: There appere a great many, a far of; as thowgh they appered beyond the top of a howse: and so semed far of behinde the stone: and they seme to haue no heds.

A Voyce:—A peculier people, and shalbe restored.[1272]

Δ: After this voyce, the sayd hedles-people disäpered. Then all appered fyre, and a clowd covered all: and in the top of the fyre in the chayre, appered three faces, and seemed to shute and close in one. The faces seemed, eche to turn rownd, and so to ioyne in one afterward.

A Voyce:—Prayse him in his glorie and worship him, in his truth.

Δ: The fire entred into EK.

A voyce:—Orate.[1273] Δ: We prayed.

Δ: Then thus appeared,

36. gedóthar argo fa adóphanah gamsech olneh várasah iusmach [= begotten.]

A voyce:—Interpret not, till your understanding be furnished.[1274]

Vschna pháol doa vah oho lazed la-zu-red ámma donax valesto acaph lámphages ronox ganma iudreth loth adágma gonsaph godálga phareph iadsma zema loa ag-náph-ag-on zu-na-ha[1275] al me io-náp-ha-cas zeda ox arni

37. Adgzelga[1276] olms vánaph osma vages otholl dox an ga had[1277] latqui dónaphe zu gar. phamah[1278] nordeph gasmat gasque gasla gas NA gasmaphés gasmagél gasnúnabe vamsech ábsechel gúlapha axnécho demsa pámbochaph iehúsa gadaámah nosad iurés chy almse orsa vax marde zun éffa mochoéffa zuréheffa asga Lubeth bethlémcha máxiche iehúscoth iaphan órnada vamne od ghim-noh

38. Arphe[1279] lamse gaphnedg[1280] argaph zonze zumcoth O'mdopadáphaab [1281] nulech[1282] gaartha ancáphama soldémcah casdra vges lapha ludasphándo ga-lú-ba-noh ap-á-cha-na[1283] iedeph zembloh zamgýssel chéuacha laquet lozódma ierinth onaph uzad máspela gýman orphámmagah iu-mes-ba-lé-go archánphame. zamcheth zoach[1284]

39. Am'chama zeuoth luthámba ganeph iamda ox oho iephad made noxa voscaph bámgephes noschol apeth iale lod ga NA-zuma datques vorzad nu-mech[1285] apheth nudach caseth iotha lax arseth armi pli ca tar bám a co[1286] zamgeph gaseth vrnod arispa iex ban Setha. oh lagnaph dothoth brazed vamchach odoámaäh zembles gunza naspolge gáthme orsoth zurath vámeth anseh.[1287]

40. Zalpe íedmacha ámphas nethoth alphax durah gethos aschéph nethoth iubad laxmah ionsa max dan do násdoga mátastos[1288] lateth vnchas amse Jacaph zembloágauh[1289] ad-pha-má-gel ludcha-dam-sa am-phí-ca-tol ar-nó-pa-a a-da-pa-gé-moh no-dás-ma mac-hes-tép-ho-lon
41. Lumbor iemásch onzed gam-phi-dá-rah. gom-ás-cha-pa zeba zun amph naho zucath uomplínanoháhal machal lozma dauangeth búches lauax orxod maches donchaph luzath marpheth oz lanva don gáuah oschol lúmasa phedeph omsa nax do-má-ge-re an-ge-no-phá-cha pha-cha-dó-na
42. óschala zamges onphá gemes phaches nolpha daxeth machésmachoh vastnalpoh gemas nach loscheph daphmech noth chales zunech maschol Lu[1290] gasnaph malces gethcaph madena[1291] oäh gemsah pa luseth iorbástamax elcaph rusam phanes domsath gel[1292] pachadóra amáxchano lu-ma-gé-no ar-ma-cha-phá-me-lon adro micho natath iamesebáchola donádocha.

Δ: The fire went from EK his eyes to the stone agayn. Then EK his understanding was gone allso.

Δ: Deo soli sit omnis laus honor et gloria per infinita sæculor sæcula.[1293] Amen.

Aprilis 6. Saterday affore none hora 10¼

Δ: The fire shot into EK, as before was used: wherat he startled. All was uncovered, as the manner was. But EK had such a whirling and beating inwardly in his hed, that he could not use any Judgment to discerne what appered, for half a quarter of an howre almost.

A Voyce:—SVM.[1294]

And agayn—a voyce:—Gahoachma [= Sum quod sum,[1295] EK expownded it.].

43. Asmar gehótha gabseph achándas vnascor satquama látquataf hun gánses luximágelo ásquapa lochath[1296] anses dosam váthne gálsador ansech gódamah vonsepaléscoh ádmacah lu zampha oh adma zemblodarma varmíga zuna thotob am-phi-cha-nó-sa ge-mi-cha-na-dá-bah Va-de-ma-do Va-se-la-pa-gé-do

44. A-mas-ca-ba-lo-no-cha a-nó-dah a-du-ra-dá-mah go-na-depha-ge-no v-na-cha-pes-ma-cho ge-mi-na-do-cha-pa-mi-ca vu-am-sa-pá-la-ge vocórthmoth achepasmácapha em-ca-ni-dobah gedóah

45. Nostoah[1297] geuamna da oscha lus palpal medna go-rum-ba-lógeph a-cap-na-pá-da-pha Vol-sé-ma go-no-gé-do-cha am-bu-sába-loh ge-mú-sa-cha va-mi-li-ó-pha zum-ne-ga-da-phá-ge-pha iuréhoh

This last word was hid a prety while with a rym like a thin bladder affore it: and when it was perfectly seen then there appered a bluddy cross over it. It is a Word signifying what Christ did in hel.

46. Zém-no-da amni fa chebseth vsángrada bo-sa-dó-ma zú-macoh a-phi-na-bá-cha buzádbazu a-ma-cha-pa-do-mi-cha zu-ma-ne-pas-só NA vuamanábadoth zum-ble-gám-pha zum-ble-cap-há-ma-cha [1298]

EK: All is couered with darknes. Terrible flashes of fire appered and they semed to wreath and wrap, one abowt an other. In the fire ouer the chayre appered, the three heds which appeared before.

A Voyce:—Laua zuráah.[1299]

Δ: After our prayers was a very hevenly noyce hard.

47. Zudneph arni ioh pan zedco lamga nahad lébale nochas arni cans lósmo iana olna dax zémblocha zedman púsatha vámo mah oxex párzu drána ánza pasel lúmah cóxech á-da-max gónboh alze dah lúsache[1300] asneph gedma noxdrúma Vamcáphnapham ástichel rátrugem[1301] abnath lonsas masqueth tauínar tadna gehodód gaphrámsana asclor drusáxpa

48. Amgédpha[1302] lazad ampha ladmaáchel galdamicháël Vn'za dédma Luz zácheph pílathob ganó vamah zúnasch zemblagen ónman zuth catas max ordru iadse lamad caphícha aschal luz. ampna zod-mí-na-da ex-cá-pha-nog sal-gém-pha-ne Om vrza lat quartphe lasque deth ürad ox-ma-ná gam-ges

[The 49th row followeth after 2 leaves: Arney vah nol, &c.]

Δ: Now the boke was couered with a blew silk sindall[1303] and uppon that blew covering appered letters of gold, conteyning these words,

Amzes naghézes Hardeh[1304]

EK: It signifieth, the universall name of him that created universally be praysed and extolled for euer.

Δ: Amen

A Clowde covered the boke.
A Voyce:—Mighty is thy Name (ô lorde) for euer.
EK: It lightneth.
A Voyce:—The place is Holy: stur not [sayd the three heds].
Δ: Now appered to EK, some imperfection passed in the eleuenth row. And that we wer towght how to amend it: and so we did.
Δ: Then the firy light went from EK into the stone agayn: and his inspired perceyuerance and understanding was gone: as often before it used to be.
Δ: Gloriam laudemque nostri Creatoris, omnes Creaturæ. indesinenter resonent:[1305] Amen.

Halleluiah Halleluiah Halleluiah
Amen.

Aprilis 6. Saterday after none.

Δ: The Table, Chayre, boke and fyre appeared. And while I went into my oratorie[1306] to pray, fire cam thrise out of the stone uppon EK, as he was at prayer, at my table in my study.

EK hard a voyce out of the fyre, saying,

Why do the Children of men prolong the time of theyr perfect felicitie: or why are they dedicated to vanitie? Many things ar yet to come: Notwithstanding, the Time must be shortned,

I AM THAT I AM.

A voyce: Veniet[1307] Vox eius, ut dicat filijs hominum quæ ventura sunt.[355]

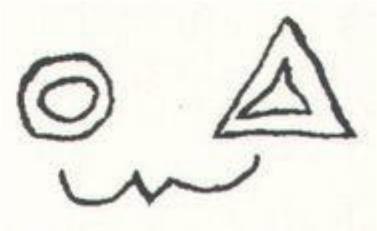
EK: here is a man, in white, come in, like Uriel, who cam first into the stone.

Δ: Benedictus qui venit in nomine Domini.[356]—Ur: Amen.

Ur:—I teache: EK sayd that he turned toward me.

Ur: What willt thow I shall answer thee, as concerning this work?

EK: He hath a ball of fire in his left hand and in his right hand a Triangle of fyre.



Δ: What is the most nedefull for us to lerne herin, that is my chief desire.

Uriel:—Fowre monthes, are yet to come: The fifth is the begynning of great miserie, to the heauens, to the earth and to all liuing Creatures.[357] Therfore must thow nedes attend uppon the will of God: Things must then be put in practise. A thing that knitteth up all must of force conteyn many celestiall Vertues. Therfore, in these doings, must things be finished spedyly,[1308] and with reuerence.

This, is the light, wherewith thow shalt be Kindled.[1309]

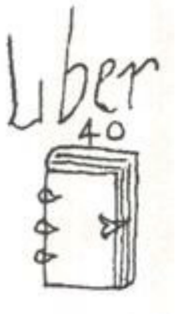
This is it, that shall renew thee: yea agayn and agayn, and, seventy seuen tymes, agayn.

Then shall thy eyes be clered from the dymnes. Thow shalt perceyue these[1310] things which haue not byn seen, No, not amongst the Sonnes of men.

This[1311] other haue I browght, whereof I will, now, bestow the seventith part of the first part of seuenty seuen. The residue shall be fullfilled, in, and with thee; In, (I says,) and to gither, with thee. Behold (sayth the lord) I will breath uppon men, and they shall haue the spirit of Understanding.



In 40 dayes[1312] must the boke of the Secrets, and key of this world be Written: euen as it is manifest to the one of you in sight, and to the other in faith. Therfore haue I browght it to the wyndow of thy senses, and dores of thy Imagination: to the ende he may see and performe the tyme of God his Abridgment.[1313] That shalt, thow,[1314] write down in his propre and sanctified distinctions.

This other, (pointing to EK) shall haue it allwayes before him, and shall daylie performe the office to him committed. Which if he do not, the Lord shall raze his name from the number of the blessed, and those that are annoynted with his blud.[1315]

For, behold, what man, can speak, or talk with the spirit of God? No flesh is hable to stand, whan the voyce of his Thunder[1316] shall present the parte of the next leaf unto sight.

You haue wauering myndes, and are drawn away with the World: But brittle is the state therof: Small therfore are the Vanities of his Illusion.

Be of sownd faith. Beleue. Great is the reward of those that are faithfull. God Will not be dishonored, neyther will suffer them to receyue dishonor, that honor him in holiness.

Behold, Behold, Mark ô and Behold: Eache line hath stretched him self, euen to his ende:[1317] and the Middst is glorious to the good, and dishonor to the wicked. Heuen and erth must decay: so, shall not the words of this Testimonie.

Δ: Ecce seruus et misellus homuncio Dei nostri, fiat mihi iuxta beneplacitum voluntatis suæ:[1318] &c.

Δ: Uriel toke a little of the fire in his left hand and flung it at EK: and it went in at his mowth.[1319]

Ur: My message is done.

Δ: May I Note Ur, (meaning Uriel,) for your name who now deale with us?—Ur:—I am so.

Δ: I pray you to give us advise what we are to doo in our affayres.

Ur: It is sayde.

Δ: He sayd to EK, Tell him, I haue told him, and seemed to smile.

Δ: Of Mistres Haward (Jentlewoman[1320] of her Maiesties priuie chamber) I wold fayn know, wherfore we were not warned of her comming? She hath caused us, now, for an howre or two, to intermit our exercise? Is it the Will of god, that for her great charitie used toward many, (as in procuring the Quenes Maiesties Almes to many nedy persons) the lord entendeth to be mercifull to her? I meane at the pynche of these great miseries ensuing, now (by you) told of. And that by her, I may do good seruice concerning the Quenes Maiesties Cumfort?

Ur:—Who is he, that opened thy mowth, or hath told thee of things to come? What thow hast sayd, is sayde. Mark the ende.[1321]

It is a sufficient answer.

Ur:—Loke up.—Δ: He sayd so to EK: who loking up, saw the boke, the chayre and the Globe a part, abroad, out of the stone, and then, none remayning in the stone to be seene: and it cam nearer & nearer to him, and it burned, as before.

Ur: So, set down, what thow seest. [Δ: The boke and writing was made very playne to him.]

What thow seest, deliuer unto him.
As it is his will, so be it unto thee:
Do thy duty, whereunto thow art moved,
and it shalbe sufficient.

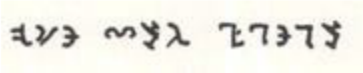
Farewell, for a time.

EK: Now is all couered with a white clowde, such an one as I saw not yet.

Δ: We put up the stone: and the former boke and other furniture, appeared uppon the table hard by EK: and he was to write out as he saw: which he began to do, both in character and words: but it was to cumbersome to him: and therfore he wrote onely the words in latin lettres.

Δ: After he had written 28 lines there in that paper boke, the first word being Arney, and the last, being nah suddenly all was taken away out of his sight: and so likewise his understanding of that he had written was quite gone. For, contynually as he wrote, he understode the language and sense thereof, as if it had byn english.

Δ: After he had finished that second page[1322] of the first leafe, I then did copy it out as followeth.



49.[1323] Arney[1324] vah nol gadeth[1325] adney ox vals nath gemseh ah orza val gemáh, oh gedvá on zembáh nohhad vomfah olden ampha nols admácha nonsah vamfas ornad, alphol andax o'rzadah vos ansoh hanzah voh adma iohá notma goth vamsed adges onseple ondemax orzan, vnfa onmah vndabra gonsah gols nahad NA.

1. Oxar varmol pan sampas os al pans orney andsu alsaph oucha[1326] cosdám on-za-go-les natmátatp max, olnah von ganse pacath olnoh vor nasquah loth adnay nonsah oxansah vals nodax vonqueth lan sandquat ox arda'nh onzâbel ormach douquin astmax arpagels ontipodah omvah nosch als mantquts, armad[1327] notgals. Vantantquah +

In[378] the tables	drux	1
expressed	na	2
drux	ger	3
na	pa	4
ger	van	5
pa	or	6
van	pal	7
or	med	8
pal	gal	9
med	cheph	10
gal letters names,	vr	11
ceph used in sense	fam	12
vr	ged	13
fam	vn	14
ged	mals	15 vn mals veh

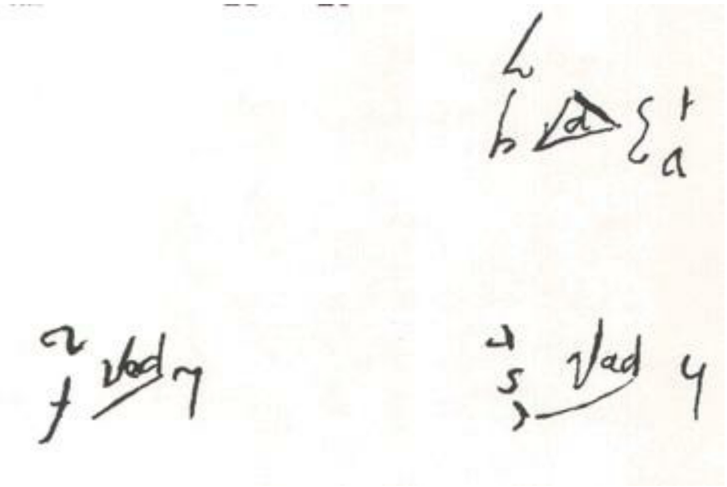
graph	16	15
gisg	17	16
+ mals	18	17
don	19	18
gon	20	19
tal	21	20



I finde diuerse dowts which I cannot order, to my contentment. [1329]

1. How many of my ruled leaves, shall I tak for the writing of the first leafe?
2. How shall I make the distinctions of the last 9 lines of the first leafe answerable to all the former words: how is more then two hundred & some are of 3 hundred letters, & top 9 rows have but 49 letters.
3. how shall I do for the true orthographie, Seing g and C and p &c haue so diuerse sownds, & not allwayes one: as g sometymes as gh & sometymes as J. And C sometymes is like K, sometymes is like S. p sometymes is like ph, & sometymes is p—& sometymes f.
4. The number of the words in the first leafe,—every row, is not all one; nor 49 allwayes.
5. of the 2nd Table, when is to be set down all the tables following, all the table ... will not agree to fill up ...all places & to set down the ... perfectly.

2. Ondroh als vrh. panchah orn sandvah loh andah nol pan, sedmah zugeh als ab-mi-cad-am-pâ-get ordomph, axah gethol vav axel anthath gorsan vax parsah vort lanq an‘damsah getheol, vrchan navádah o’xembles armax lothar, vos antath, orsé vax alnoth, other mals olnah gethom várdamach, alls;[1330] Orgeth

3. Or pasquah omzádah vorts, ange‘nodah varsáua onch aldúmph, ánget ónsaual gálta oth aneth ax pa gesné ouád ax orneh al-dum-bá-ges vos-cómph alze ax, orzad andah gost astoh nadah vortes, astmah notesma goth nathad omza, geth altéth ox, degáth onda voxa gemnaché adna dansa als alst
4. arsah. Orthath ols gast ardoh max vármah doth novámq lath, adnab gothan, ardri’noh astómagel arpáget asteth arde obzá, ols NA[1331] gem-na-pá-la-ba-m’i-da orsat nahah Odmázen an’dulphel, ox ambrássah oxah géth nor vamfah genoh daqueth als astna, oh tatóh, alsah goth necor andeoh neo alda nah[1332]

5. Vanlah oha demagens on sunfah, paphah olemneh, ózadcha lax ornah vor adme ox vastmah gu labazna, gamnácho asthmah ochádo landrídah vons sah, lúgho iahat nabscham nohads vandispa rossámod androch alphoh, zúmbloh ásnah gonfageph aldeh lo dah vax orh asmo, gad au dansequa deo, dath vax nograh vor segbat Mon.
6. Arni olbah galpa lohánaha gáu-pu-ma-gén-sah ollo var se darsah goho ál-bu-mi-clá-má-ca-pá-loth ieho nad veslah vors ardno inmony asquam rath als vásmah génda loggahah astmu.[1333]
7. Arnah notah lax vart luhoh désmaph, ol ca-pra-mi-na-cah[1334] ox-and-an-vah gem-ne-lo-ri-pli-ton-pha ac-cam-plah-no-stapha or-max-a-da-ha-har or-zem-bli-zad-mah pan-che-fe-lo-ge-doh áschah ólmah ledóh vaxma
8. Gans na cap lan seda ax nor vorza vo laspral onsa gem gemah noph gázo na von santfa nostradg ansel vnsa pah vort velsa or alda viax nor adroh semneh ols vandésqual olzah nolpax pahah lothor ax ru vansar glímnaph gath ardot ardri axa noh gaga leth arde maxa.
9. Corsal mabah noplich alps arsod vord vanfax oriox nabat gemnepoh laphet Ióda nat vombal nams ar geth alloah néphirt. lauda noxa voxtaf ardno ándroch labmageh ossu állmaglo ardot nalbar vanse dar-to vorts parsan vr vnrah vor gádeth leth orze nax vomreh agelpha, legar or nembla ar vah Su.[1335]
10. Zanchcumáchaseph, ol-za-mi-nó-ah Vals-e-bú-ra-ah no-da-ligá-nax or-sáp-na-go dar-ság-na-pha nob-si-blith ar-mi-pyth ar-se-pó-lo-ni-tan-tons Jem-búl-sa-mar le-bó-ge axpar or-ná-za ol-dax-ar-da-co-ah[1336]
11. Semno ah al-chi-do-á-cha-da Sel-pag-in-o-dah a-da-hu-bámi-ca-noh dam pah gli ás cha nor ox-om-pa-mi-na-pho lemp, na, gón sa pha ne co ál pha as pa gé mo cal na tú ra ge[1337]
12. Sen gál se quar rus fa glan súx taft ormaca ox i no dál ge brah nop tar ná gel vom na ches pál ma cax, arsep as dón sadg asc lan fán che dah nor vi car máx coh zum bla zánpha ad geh do ca ba ah
13. Ar gém na ca pál fax, orr-nído hab cás pigan alpuh gágah loth ral sá bra dan go sá pax vólsan qués tan ondapha opicab or zy lá pa a-chra-pa-má-les ad má car pah oxalps on dá pa, gém na de vór guse
14. Lat gans sa par sat lastéah lor ádah nóxax ardéphis nónson andoh gv‘mzi vor sab líboh ad ni sa pa loth gaho lar va noxa oho lan sempah noxa Vriah sephah lúsaz odgálsax nottaph ax v’rnoc árpos arta zem zubah lothor gas lubah vom zá da phi cár no
15. As-só-ta-phe on-dah vor ban sanphar pa loth agno iam nésroh am algórs vrrábah geuseh alde ox nah vors púrblox ámphicab nóstrohh admág[1338] or napsú asmo Ion gamphi arbel nof ámphi on Saubloth aschi nur laffax las doxa pra gem a Sestrox amphi nax var sembbh[1339]
16. Angésel oxcapácad onz adq ochádah ólzah vor náh orpogógraphel al sa gem ua ca pí coh vl da pa pór sah naxor vonsa rons vrbanf lab dún zaph algadef loh gem vortaóh amph ahoha za vaxorza leph[1340] oxor neoh ah va du-na-ca pi ca lodox ard nah.
17. Iahod vox ar pi cah lot tár pi ges nol zim na plah ge ó gra plih ne gó ah va lu gán zed am phí la doh zan veh al nex oh al pha ze goth gedóth axor van zebá al cá pa Luma ges ard de oh ah[1341]

18. Onchas lagod van Sebageh oxangam pah gos dah manzeh ocondah vardol Sebagh ol madan NA ohal Sepaget, otoxen narvah lubatan ansem nofet au naba notoh ax arsah mans Vstgam pahod pah mal sednah gestons amphes al manso gapalebâton arra nax vamfes amah dot agen nalphat ar zamne oh Sages

19. nax lerua nath Zembloh axpadabamah Sanzápas gunzanquah [1342] ona var demneh gah lod vmnah doxa val tarquat mans ol gem nageph au zanbat vx anzach al pambóha naxtath ol nada vam nonsal aua nal gedot vorx alge lah despa gu prominabâmîgah olpaz ord gamnat lem paz cath normadah on demq

20. Laffah ie ogg dalseph abrimanadg oldomph ledothnar ymnachar onze vam sepno voxauaret ol zantqur amph nas Sages om nartal vor miscam bemcax lappad gesso drux capgol ass letnar vom[1343] sausah or gamprida ornat vol asmd onza duh get hansa gorh hubra galsaropah nequax dap gemno ab pnidah noxd lumbam

21. al gethroz ax arvan oh zempal guh arvax no demnat ar pambals nop nonsal geh axor pam vartop ab vbrah cardax Ion songes au dumax ar nephar lu gemne om Asda vorts vmrod val manqh noh Sam, naga vrbrast Lurvandax vpplod dam zurtax loa an avarn nar gemplicabnadah oxa

22. nooa Babna ampha dum nonsap vrs daluah marsasqual orma nabath Sabaothal netma vol sempra isch laue ondeh noh semblax or mansa macapal vngenel vorsepax vrsabada noxanquah vndalph asmoh vxa na Gaspar vmpaxal Lapproh Iadd nomval vp setquam nol astma vors: vrdem gnasplat bef affafefafed noxtah Volls laydam ovs nac

23. cedah or manveh geh axax nolsp damva dor demgoh apoxan Subliganaxnarod orchal vamnad vez gemlehox ar drulalpa ax vr samfah oladmax vr sappoh Luah vr pabmax luro lam faxno dem vombres adusx or sembal on vamne oh lemne val se quap vn nap nastosm dah voz mazax lumato games on neda.[1344]

24. voh gemse[1345] ax pah losquan nof afma dol vamna vn samses oh set, quamsa ol danfa dot santa on anma ol subracah Babalad vansag olso pas gonred vorn chechust axaroh rugho am nadom val sequot ne texpa vors vrs al pam vans na tomvamal ansipamals notems anq$_e$arxe al

25. pangef offd ne pamfah aliboh a nostâfâges almesed vrmast geus vrmax au semblox satq quayntah luzez arne noh pamna sams bantes orn volsax vors vnisapa monsel dah nax ah pah vomreb doth danséqox anzazed onz anfal nom vamreh volts vrnacapácapah noshan yalt gelfay nor sentqbt onbanzar luntaf val sentepax

26. ornisa nor Pampals anz alpah nox noxa gendah von gamne dah vors ad na lepnazu acheldaph var honza gune alsaph nal vomsan vns alpd a domph ar zemnip ans vrnach vancef ban yanzem ob aha vons nabrah vh asmo drat vormez al pasquar no gems nah zem lasquith apsantah

27. Vol zans alphi ne gansad ol pam ro dah vor vngef a deoh nad vnsemel apodmacah vnsap val vndar ban cefna dux hansel yax nolpah volts quayntah gam vemneg oh asq al panst ans vntah hunsansa Apnad ratq a sanst nel odogamanázar. olzah guh oh nah varsa vpangah neoh aho

28. Notgah ox vr auonsad vl dath nox lat ges orn val sedcoh leth arney vas ars galep odámpha nol axar vox apracas nolph admi adpálsah noh vrh gednach vax varsablox vrdam pagel admax lor vamtage oxandah lamfó nor vorsah axpáa, ols nugaphar ádras vxár nostrílgan ampacoh vortes lesqual exoh.

29. Ses vah nómre gal sables orzah, get les part, ox ar se de cólmachu ardéh lox gempha lar vamra goh naxa vors admah gebah, semfúgel admá geod alzeh orzam vánchet.[1346] oxam prah geh orzad Val nexo, vam seleph oxa, noha par gúmsah askeph nox adroh lestof ad moxa nonsúrrach

30. Vomchál as pu gán san var, sem quáh lah set gedoh argli oranza vor zina sedcátah zuréhoh admich, ors arsah varsab, oliba vortes lúnsanfah, adnah vor semquáx, vorsan lap varsah gebdah voxlar geoh, gemfel ad gvns. aldah gor vanlah, gehudan vor sableth, gedvel ax ors, manch var sembloh.[1347]

31. Ar dam fa gé do hah Luxh arcan Mans lubrah vor semblas adna gor partat, nor vílso ádchu apri sed amphle nox arua getol. Vor sambla geth, arse pax vor sah. gelh aho gethmah or gemfa nah prax chilad ascham na prah oxáh var setqua lexoh vor sámbleh zubrah.

32. Lax or setquáh vah lox rémah Nol sadma vort, famfa le gem nah or sepah vartef a geh Oha Ion gaza Onsa ges adrux: vombalzah ah vaxtal. noh sedo lam, vom tántas oxárzah Mechól va zebn geth adna vax, ormacha lorni adrah, Gens arnah vor, Arsad odiscoh alidah nepho.

33. Hastan bah ges loh ru mal; vrabro den varsah, Mah rox idah ru gebna demphe, ors amvi ar, Genbá, óxad va ges lath vriop: nal pas vi me ró to ád-na-vah ged anse lah verbrod vn gelpa, lux árd do ah vast vor Ge-ma-fá-noh

34. Amles ondanpha[1348] noxt vradah gel núbrod Arb á cha lo pe go há pa ra zem che pár ma la Na bu-rá doh gem la pa or-zín fax nol ad micápar vó si pi cá la ton andrah vox ardno, get na ca ploh gál-zun

35. O‘r ge mah luza cá poh nox tráh víoxah nebo hu ge o mí lah cox chá dah or na hú da vol sa pah: No bro ch, ál pa chídomph náb la grux la vx ar gá fam gel ne do gá lah vo sa pah

36. Gu la gé dop áx ix óx a max lun fá gem pah orsa dev’lmah Gé pa cha vor sí ma coh alduth gempfa: Nox gal max ar hú gaf gli no rob va gen lá car du zum ox am’ pli zam zu latmah ge gé ma ohahah

37. Ga lá pa drux váx ma geb lá geb or ché plon gan zéd ah Vox ár vox gelet ar gahad, gan pá gan doruminaplah vor zinach cû pa chef ardrah óx ox pol sa gal máx nah guth ardéth on zupra cró cro gash var sa má nal

38. Ar sa bá choas noh al geh oh, ax ár pa gal olza déh or za zú max exoh eh, or cah pal donzahá onza zethas: nor sáp se pah onzap a palmah aldoh voh náblebah gemnápam os malsa or naoh zar bu lagém pah ne-ó ha brah

39. Tal gep ar sep nah doh, vors alsa doh necoh am ar geth na ges alpran odox malsápnah, gohor ahoh gadmah ol dáneph aludar dón-za-gab ól-sa-gah nebthuh or sapnar balgonph nep gemloh, ax amna[1349] duth achár laspá, vohá, náxvolh gas vergol ah pratnom geá[1350] nostúamph

40. Va’n sa pal sah gón so gon gé la bu rá doh tato lang, ge mé fe ran ón da pans ge lá brah: or pa gé mal on sán’ fan gen ólc ma cha lan Von sé gor a prí cas nor vá gel om brá cau cohadal.

adros,a, clodfac,dogépnah,lapcah,mocdácode,famón,tualc,dom, vrásnageph,amphidon,gánsel,vax,órehamah,vórsafansa,ucasdamífaga,nábulax,orsageh,nam'vah,ocar,lunsangel,carpacoa. lunsemneph,odárnachoh,zembloh,oblícandon,galsorxvlága, fómnaph,apánsageh,lonsúgalan,grast,vblánso,arnox,vonsáotaltémaphech,órmachadágenox,vrstámvah,nadvareh,ons,argzucánzu,napliorah,norge,hahanaha,vsplah,gradúnvah,navio, arsah,vónrogen,dahvalah,orzap,cvl,carsed,aporsal,qástava, ganfúmarabómonah,gástages,órdolph,naqas,orgemvah,noxad.

Δ: And this is the late ende of the second page of the first leafe of this excellent boke. The other leaves are written, apart, in an other boke[1351] as may appere. But with these 9 rowes and the former 41, doth arise the some of 50: which is one more then 49: Therfore I am not onely of this but of diuerse other imperfections yet remayning in this page, to ax the solution and reformation.

Δ: Whan I had told this my dowte to EK, he answered me that the first row of these last .50. before set downe, was the last of the first page of this first leafe: and true it is that in the first page were first sett down 48 rows, of which eight and fortith row begynneth with this word Amgédpha &c And therfore the next row following, (begynning with Arney vah nol gadeth &c) is the nyne and fortyth row of the first page and so the last row of that page: And therby allso the second page of the first leaf hath these 49 rowes here noted: And so is one dowte taken away: The other is of the numbers of words in some of the 49 rows of this second page.

Aprilis 10. hor. 9.

Δ: As we wer talking of the Macedonian (the grecian), who yesterday cam with Mr. Sanford his letters, there appeared in the corner of my study a blak shadow: and I did charge that shaddow to declare who he was: There cam a voyce and sayd that it was the Macedonian: and abowt his hat was written in great letters this word, κατάριχτος, which EK wrote out and it signifieth maculosus,[1352] or condemnatus[1353] &c. and the Voyce sayd, that word was sufficient adding Est,[1354]

Δ: God be thanked and praysed.

To me deliuered by Mr.
Edward Kelly
1583. Martij 22
Friday

Mr. Husy cam with him from blokley[1355]

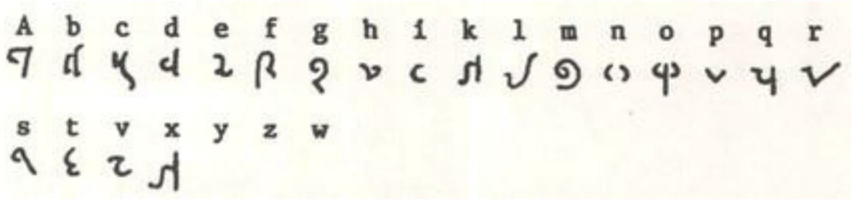
Aprilis .11. Thursday

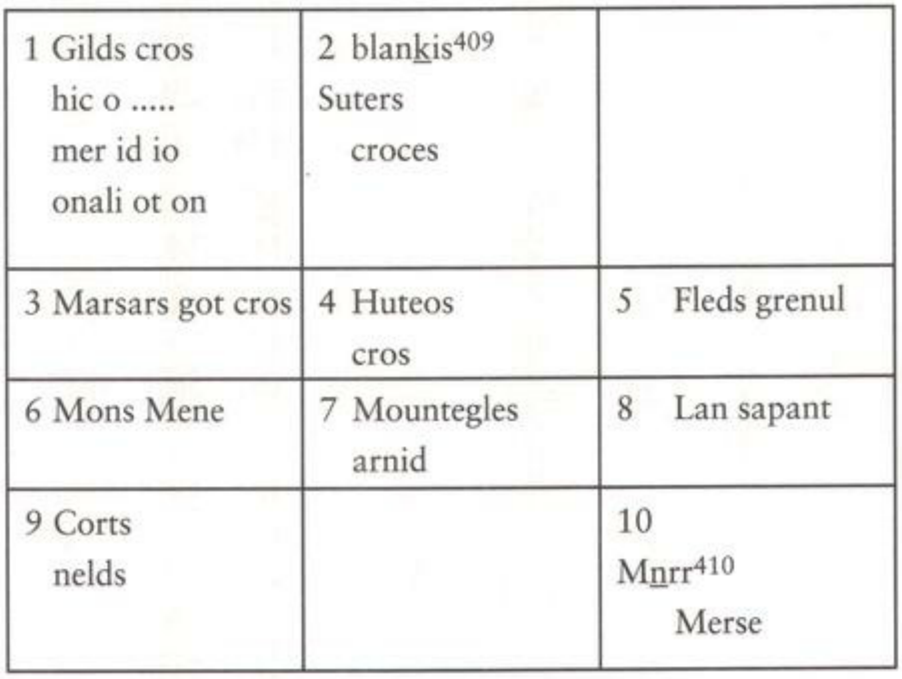
Δ: After my comming home from the court abowt 4 of the clok after none, and after my being in my study a while, it cam into my hed to assay[1356] to deciphre the cifre which before is spoken of, and was browght me by EK,[1357] as he was willed to do. And at the first I was half out of all hope: but yet making many assayes, and gessing at it (at the length) to be latine, I fownd this to be the true Alfabet. God giving me the perseyverance.



And, the first longer writing, was thus:

Tabula locorum rerum et Thesaurorum absconditorum Menaboni, mei Gordanili, militis, et Danaorum Principis, expulsi, multorumque aliorum clarissimorum (Britanie meridionali parte) virorum, contra eiusdem inhabitatores militantium: quam, hîc, familiarissimorum consensu, aliquando ad nostratium rediuntium commoditatem et auxilium abscondere et sepelire decreui: qua quidem intellecta, facile possunt ad lucem abscondita efferre.[1358]

And the Notes of the ten places, here by, affixed: are thus to be red orderly:

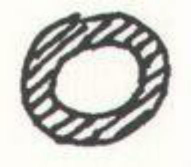


1 Gilds cros hic o ..... mer id io onali ot on	2 blankis[409] Suters croces
3 Marsars got cros	4 Huteos cros	5 Fleds grenul
6 Mons Mene	7 Mountegles arnid	8 Lan sapant
9 Corts nelds		10 Mnrr[410] Merse

1359, 1360

Aprilis 15. Monday

Δ: As EK was writing the eightenth leaf which was of the spirites of the earth, (in the after none abowt 4½ of the clok) he red a parcell therof, playnely & alowde to him self, and thereuppon suddenly at his syde appeared three or fowre spirituall creatures like laboring men, having spades in theyr hands & theyr heares hangyng abowt theyr eares, and hastyly asked EK what he wold have, & wherfor he called them. He answered that he called them not. & they replyed, & sayed that he called them: Then I began to say, they lyed: for his intent was not to call them, but onely to read and repeat that which he had written: and that euery man who readeth a prayer to perceyue the sense thereof, prayeth not. No more, did he call them. And I bad them be packing out of the place: and thereuppon remoued from my desk (where I was ruling of paper for his writing) to the grene chayre which was by my Chymney: and presently he cryed out and sayd they had nipped him and broken his left arme by the wrest: and he shewed the bare arme and there appered both on the upper syde and lower side imprinted depe-in, two circles as broad as grotes[1361] thus:



very red: And I seeing that, sowght for a stik, and in the meane while, they assalted him, and he rose, and cryed to me (saying) they come flying on me, they come; and he put the stole, which he sat on, betwene him and them. But still they cam gaping, or gyrning[1362] at him. Then I axed him where they were: and he poynted to the place: and then I toke the stik and cam to the place, and in the name of Jesus commaunded those Baggagis to avoyde and smitt a cross stroke at them: and presently they avoyded.[1363]

All thanks be to the onely one Almighty, and everlasting God Whose name be praysed now & ever. Amen.

Aprilis 18[1364]. Thursday morning .hor. 8. Circiter

Δ: As EK cam to write-out the Tables according as he was wont: and to haue the letters appearing in the ayre hard by him, he saw nothing but a blak clowde seven-cornered. And after I had put the stone agayne into the frame,[1365] and thereuppon did make long and oft request, for answer hauing, There appered nothing, neyther was anything seen in the stone. Then I fell to prayer agayn, and at length, there appeared written uppon, or yssuing out of the clowde, this sentence.

He promised, be not carful: Δ: Note here are iust 21 letters.[1366]

EK: The letters semed to stand at fingers endes, (being 21): and so euery finger had a letter on it: and the fingers semed to be placed at the Corners of the Heptagonall clowde: and as sone as the sentence was red the fingers which seemed to issue out of the Heptagonum, did shrink in agayn and disapere.

Δ: All laude honor and thanksgiving, be to the highest, our most louing mercifull and almighty God, now and euer. Amen.

Thursday. Aprilis 18. after dynner

Δ: We being desirous to know the cause of this stay making, in the Tables shewing as before was accustomed; and now (24 leaves being written,) a dark clowde to hang in the place of a glorious boke, did greatly disquiet our myndes, and browght us in feare of some offence lately committed, by any one, or both of us, whereby the Indignation of the lord might be kingled against us. Hereuppon we prayed severally; and at length, (no alteration, or better Cumfert hapening to us,) I prayed in the hearing of EK, (by my desk, on my knees) in great agony of mynde; and Behold, there appeared one standing uppon, or rather somwhat behynde the Heptagonall clowde who sayd,

I am sent, to understand the cause of your greif, and to answer your dowtes.

Δ: I, then, declared my mynde breifly, according to the effect of my prayer. Whereunto he answered at large, reproving my appointing of god a tyme or to abridge the tyme spoken of: and among his manifold grave speaches he had these words, > Prepare all things,[1367] For tyme is at hand.

> His Justice is great; and his arme stronge.

How darest thow dowt or dreame, saying: Lo, God, this may be done in shorter time &c. But such is flesh.

> Be rocks in faith.
> It is not the manner of us, good Angels,[1368] to be trubbled > so oft.

At the time appointed, thow shalt practise: While sorrow shall be measured, thow shalt bynde up thy fardell.[1369] Great is the light of Gods sinceritie. Appoint God no tyme. Fullfill that which is commaunded. God maketh clere whan it pleaseth him. Be you constant and avoyde Temptations: For True it is, that is sayde: And lastly I say,

> It shall be performed.

What is it now thow woldest desyre to be made playner?

Δ: Still he proceded uppon my answers: and at length he sayd,

> Neyther is the time of mans Justification known untyll he hath byn tried.[1370]

You are chosen by God his mercy to an ende[1371] and purpose: Which ende shall be made manifest by the first begynning in knowledg in these Mysteries.

God shall make clere whan it pleaseth him: & open all the secrets of wisdome whan he unlocketh. Therfore Seke not to know the mysteries of this boke, tyll the very howre[1372] that he shall call thee. For then shall his powre be so full amongst you, that the flesh shall not be perceyued, in respect of his great glory.

But was there euer any, that tasted of gods mercies so assuredly, that wanted due reverence?[1373] Can you bow to Nature, and will not honor the workman? Is it not sayd, that this place is holy? What are the works of holines? I do aduertise you: for, God will be honored. Neyther will he be wrasted, in any thing he speaketh. Think not, that you could speak or talk with me, unleast I did greatly abase my self, in taking uppon me so unlikely a thing in forme, as to my self, &c.[1374] But he doth this not for your causes, not for your deserts, but for the Glorie of his owne name.

One is not to be lightened, but all. And, which all? The two fethered fowle togither with the Capitayn.

Ask What thow wilt: for, untyll the 40 dayes[1375] be ended, shalt thow haue no one more shew of us.

Δ: Whether shall we give Cownsayle, or consent to the Captayne[1376] to go down into his Cuntry, as, presently he entendeth.

Ur:—As he listeth. Δ: EK sayd that this was Uriel who now had appered and answered all this.

Ur:—I will ask thee one question. Haue we any voyce or no?

Δ: I do think you haue no organs or instruments apt for voyce: but are mere spirituall and nothing corporall: but that you haue the powre and property from god to insinuate your message or meaning to eare or eye, in such sort as mans Imagination shall be, that both they here and see you sensibly.

Ur:—We haue no voyce but a full noyce that filleth euery place:[1377] which whan you ones taste of, Distance shall make no separation. Let there one come that may better answer: not in respect of thy self but one, more nerer to thy estate.[1378]—Do thy Duty.

Δ: He sayd this, to one who cam in, and he departed him self.

Δ: This new come Creature sayd, Wold you haue any thing with me, Il?[1379]

Δ: Who art thow: Art thow one that loveth and honoreth our Creator?

Il: Will you see my hart?—EK: He openeth his body and sheweth his hart: and theron appered written EL.

Δ: He semed to be a very mery Creature, and skypped here and there, his apparell was like as of a vyce in a play: and so was his gesture[1380] and his skoffing, as the outward shew therof was to be vulgarly[1381] demed: but I did carefully ponder the pith of the words which he spake: and so forbare to write very much which he spake at the begynning by reason EK did so much mislike him, and in a manner toke him to be an Illuder.

Δ: As you are appointed to answer us by the Messager of God, so answer us, (who desyre pure and playne verity,) as may be correspondent to his Credit that assigned you, and to the honor of God who Created us.

Il:—My answer is Threefold:[1382]—I answer by gesture, by my apparayle, & will answer thee by my wordes.

Δ: Do you know where the Arabik boke[1383] is that I had: which was written in tables and numbers?[1384]

Il:—It is in Scotland:—A minister hath it; it is nothing worth. The boke conteyneth fals and illuding Witchcrafts. All lawde honor and prayse be to the One and euerlasting God: for euer and euer.[1385] Δ: The Lord Threasoror,[1386] hath he, any bokes belonging to Soyga? Il:—He hath none: but certayn Introductions to all artes.

Δ: But it was reported to me by this Skryer[1387] that he had: certayn peculier bokes perteyning to Soyga: otherwise named ysoga, and Agyos, literis transpositis.[1388]

Il:—Soyga signifieth not Agyos. Soyga alca miketh.

Δ: What signifieth those wordes? The true measure of the Will of God in iudgment which is by Wisdome.

Δ: What language is that, I pray you? Il:—A language towght in Paradise.[1389]

Δ: To whome? Il:—By infusion, to Adam. Δ: To whome did Adam use it? Il:—Unto Chevah.[1390] Δ: Did his posteritie use the same?

Il:—Yea, untyll the Ayrie Towre[1391] was destroyed.

Δ: Be there any letters of that language yet extant among us mortall men?

Il: .... that there be. Δ: Where are they? Il:—ô, syr, I shall make you in loue with your Masterships boke.

Δ: Did Adam write any thing in that language? Il:—That is no question.

Δ: Belike than, they were deliuered from one to an other by tradition or els Enoch[1392] his boke, or prophesie, doth, or may seme, to be written in the same language: bycause mention is made of it in the new Testament in Jude his Epistle where he hath, Prophetauit autem de his Septimus ab Adam, Enoch, dicens, Ecce venit Dominus in sanctis millibus suis, facere iudicium contra omnes, et arguere omnes impios, de omnibus operibus impietatis eorum, quibus impiè egerunt, et de omnibus duris, quæ locuti sunt contra Deum peccatores impij &c.[1393]

Il:—I must distinguish with you. Before the flud, the spirit of God was not utterly obscured in man. Theyr memories were greater, theyr understanding more clere, and theyr traditions, most, unsearchable.[1394] Nothing remayned of Enoch but (and if it pleas your mastership) mowght haue byn carryed in a cart. I can not bring you the brass, but I can shew you the bokes. Slepe 28[1395] dayes, and you shall fynde them, under your pillow whan you do rise.

Δ: As concerning Esdras bokes,[1396] which are missing, what say you? Il: The prophets of the Jues[1397] haue them. Δ: But we can hardely trust any thing in the Jues hands, concerning the pure veritie: They are a stiff necked people and dispersed all the world ouer.

Il:—I will shew you a trik. Δ: He lifted up his fote, and shewed the sole of his shoo: and there appeared the picture of a man, who seemed to haue a skorf or fowle skynne on his face: which one toke of: and then there appered on his forhed these two figures, 88.[1398]

I will shew you more then that, to: and will speak to a man shortly, that shall bring Water to wash euery mans face.

Δ: What mean you, by euery man? Shall all men, be made cleane?

Il:—There is a difference in washing of faces.

EK: This creature seemeth to be a Woman[1399] by his face: his apparell semeth to be like a Vice[1400] in a play.

EK: Ar you not a Kinsman to Syngolla?

Il: I syr, and so are you a kinsman to Synfulla.

Δ: A man may finde corn in chaf.

Il:—So may you (perchaunce) finde me an honest man in my ragged clothes.

Δ: This other day, whan I was in dowt of the Grecian (the Macedonian) whether he had any good and profownd lerning or no, he was represented spiritually, and abowt his hat in great letters was written this greke word  : I pray you what doth it signifie? I axed the grecian and he sayd,  Il: Loke in your boke. Δ: I toke the common lexicon: and he sayd: No Not that: Then I axed if I shold take phauorinus his lexicon:[1401] and he answered, Nor that. And I axed which then: and he sayd your boke covered with a white parchment: and I axed, that of Munsteris of Latine greke and hebrue? And he sayd, yea: and there you shall finde that Maculosus hath onely that one word  longing to it. I loked & so fownd it: which satisfyed me very well.

Δ: I pray you what say you of Gariladrah;[1402] do you know him? Who long sins[1403] did deale with me?

Il:—Yf he were lesser then I, I durst speak to him: But bycause he is greater then I, I am not to speak to him. All under, and nothing above me, I deale.

Loke in your Tables and there you shall finde an other name of his.

Δ: I remember no such thing. Il:—Consider who hath set me here.[1404] Yf the Truth thow hast allready, be of a greater then my self, then is it sufficient. Δ: What day was that name given me?

Il:—Immediately, sir, after your[1405] Worships last coming.

Δ: That was Raphaël: And I remember that Gariladrah sayd that he must leave me and his better, (Raphael) shuld be my instructor, and that then the same Raphael was in my hed then. &c.

Δ: Sing a song to his prayse, who created us.

Il: I will sing a short song.

Your doings are of GOD: your calling great:
Go down and seke the Threasor,[1406] and you shall obteyn it.
Take no care: for, this Boke shall be done in 40 dayes.[1407]
Begyn to practise in August.[1408] Serue god before.
You shall know all thing, ictu oculi.[1409]
And so, prayse, glory, and eternall singing with incessant humilitie be unto thee, Creator that hath framed, made and Created all things, for euer and euer, Now say you (yf you will).
Amen. Δ: Amen Amen Amen.

Il: After the ende of 40 dayes, go down for the Threasor.[1410] Whan those 40 dayes are done,[1411] than this boke shall be finished. The rest of the time untyll August,[1412] is for rest, labor, and prayer.

Δ: What labor? Il:—In digging up of those Threasors.

Δ: Must we nedes dig for them? Il:—Otherwise, yf thow willt.

Δ: How, I pray you? For to dig without lycence[1413] of the Prince, is dangerous by reason of the lawes: and to ax licence, is half an odious sute.

Il:—Yf thow haue a parcell or part out of euery place of the erth, in any small quantitie, thow mayst work by the Creatures, whose powre it is to work in such causes: which will bring it (neuer trust me) before you can tell twenty.[1414]

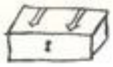
Δ: He meaneth, Neuer trust him, if it be not so, as he hath sayd.

Il:—No, neuer trust me, if it be not so:

Δ: You mean those ten places, marked in the Table, which, last day, I deciphred.[1415]

Il:—I mary,[1416] now you hit it. Yea sir, and your chest allso,[1417] it wold do no hurt. Give me one: and I will make 40: and give you twenty and take twenty to my self: and whan you haue it, I pray you let me haue some little portion for my wife and children.

Δ: As concerning that Chest, I pray you how cam the Macedonian, or Mr Sanford to know of it, so particularly, as he did?



Il:—Husey told of it, openly, at the bord at braynford[1418] in the hearing of diuerse. The Grecian will seke him oute. The Greke in grecia perhaps can finde out Threasor, but not in Anglia.[1419] The Greke hath a Threasor in his hed, that will enriche him to be a fole. I was yesterday at London, I met with a blak dyer. He had a cupple of rings, that wold giue better instructions. Your Chymney here will speak agaynst you anon:[1420] yet I am no brik layer.[1421] I must be gone.

Δ: God, for his infinite mercyes be allwayes praysed, glorified, and extolled of all his Creatures. Amen.

He advised EK to comunicate to me the boke, and the powder, and so all the rest of the roll,[1422] which was there fownd: saying, True frends use not to hide any thing eche from other.

Δ: An old proverb it is. Amicorum omnia comunia.

Unde, Deo soli omnis exhibeatur
Laus honor et gloria.[1423]
Amen.

Note: There followeth Quinti Libri Mysteriorum Appendix.[1424]

Quinti libri Mysteriorum

Appendix

Aprilis 20.—Saterday

Δ: This satterday had byn great and eger pangs betwene EK and me: while he wold utterly discredit the whole process of our actions: as, to be done by evill and illuding spirites: seking his destruction: saying that he hath often here to fore byn told things true, but of illuding diuells: and Now, how can this be other, than a mockery, to haue a cornerd dark clowd to be shewed him in steade of the playn writing, which hitherto he had written out of? and that whan they shold do good in dede that then they shrank from us: and that he was not thus to leese[1425] his time: But that he is to study, to lerne some knowledge, whereby he may liue: and that he was a cume[1426] to my howse, and that he dwelled here as in a prison; that it wer better for him to be nere Cotsall playne where he might walk abroade, without danger or to be cumbred[1427] or vexed with such sklaunderous fellows as yesterday he was, with one little Ned dwelling at the blak raven in Westminster: who rayled at[1428] him for bearing witnes of a bargayn made betwene the same Ned (or Edward) and one Lush a Surgien, who was now falln in poverty, a very honest man &c: With a great deale of more matter; melancholik, and cross overthwartly to the good and patient using of our selues to the accomplishing of this action. I replyed, and sayd, that we might finde our selfs answered on thursday, as, That God wold clere when it pleased him: and that we were not to appoint God a time to performe his mysteries and mercies in; shorter then he hath spoken of: And that undowtedly, the occasion of this blak clowd, was some imperfection of oures, to be amended and that then, all wold be to our furder cumfort. And as concerning his dowting the goodnes of the Creatures, (dealing with us) he was to blame, to say or dowt the tree to be yll that bringeth furth good frute: for of these creatures, from the begynning of theyr dealing with us unto the last howre, we never hard other than the prayse of god, instructions and exhortations to humilitie, patience, constancy, fayth &c. The things they promise be such as god can performe, and is for his servyce and glory to performe: and such as haue byn imparted to man before: and therfore neyther impossible for man to enioye agayne, nor unmete for us to hope for: and thowgh his trubbled mynde did dowt, yet my quiet mynde, which god hath made ioyfull throwgh his mercyes, and which accuseth me not in this action of any ambition, hypocrisie, or disorderly longing, but onely is bent and settled in awayting the Lord his helping hand to make me wise for his servyce. (according as long tyme my daylie prayer to him hath byn): and seing I haue and do ax wisdome[1429]at the lord his hands, and put my trust in him, he will not suffer me to be so confownded: nether will he offer a stone to his seely children, when in tyme of nede they ax bred at his hands: besides that, Voluntatem timentium se faciet deus:[1430] and (by his graces) I feare him so, and am so carefull to do that shold pleas him, that I make no accownt of all this world possessing, unleast I might enioye his fauor. his mercies and graces. And whereas he complayned of want, I sayd my want is greater than his: for I was in det allmost 300 pownds,[1431] had a greater charge than he; and yet for all my 40 yeres course of study, many hunderd pownds spending, many hundred myles travayling, many an incredible toyle and forcing of my will in study using to lerne or to bowlt out some good thing, &c. Yet for all this I wold be very well pleased to be deferred yet longer, (a yere or more,) and to go up and down England clothed in a blanket, to beg my bred, so that I might, at the ende be assured to atteyn to godly wisdome, whereby to do God some service for his glory. And to be playne, that I was resolued, eyther willingly to leave this world presently that, so, I might in spirit enioye the bottomles fowntayne of all wisdome, or els to pass furth my dayes on earth with gods favor and assurance of enioying here his mercifull mighty blessings, to understand his mysteries, mete for the performing of true actions, such as myght sett furth his glory, so, as it might be evident and confessed, that such things wer done Dextera Domini.[1432] And many other discourses and answers I made unto his obiections and dowtes: Afterward [A meridie] I began to speak of the trubbles and misery foreshewed to be nere at hand, and by that tyme I had entred a little into the Consideration & talk of the matter, he appered that sayd he was called El or Il[1433],and sayd,

--------- Now to the matter.

Δ: What matter?

Il:—Imust have a Wallet to carry your witt and myne own in.

Δ: Benedictus qui venit in nomine domini.[1434]

Il:—Then I perceyue that I shall haue a blessing. Blessed is the physitien that hath care of his patient, before the pangs of death doth viset him.

Δ:—What think you of that clowdy Heptagonum?

Il:—Dost thow consider, I go abowt it? I told thee, euery thing I did, was an Instruction. As I can not stand stedfastly uppon this, (it self one, and one, perfect:) so can not my mowth declare, much lesse speak, that you may comprehend it, what this is whereuppon I go.

EK: He went on the Heptagonon, as one might go on the top of a turning whele: (Δ: as some horses use to turne wheles as may appere in Georgius Agricola[1435] de re metallica).

Il:—I know, what all your talk hath byn: But such myndes, such Infection, such Infection, such corruption: and must nedes haue a potion appliable for the cure. But how will you do? I haue forgotten all my droggs behinde me. But since I know that some of you are well stored with sufficient oyntments, I do entend to viset you onely with theyr help. You see, all my boxes ar empty?—EK: He sheweth, a great bundell of empty potichayre[1436] boxes, and they seme to my hearing to rattle.

Δ: How commeth it, that you pretend to come from a favorable diuine powre to pleasure us, and your boxes ar empty.

Il:—You sayd euen now in your talk, Iovis omnia plena:[1437] yf my empty boxes be vertuous, how much more shall any thing be, which I bring not empty?

Δ: Then I pray you, to say somwhat of the vertue of your empty boxes, bycause we may haue the better confidence of your fullnes.

Il: Will you haue my bill? Δ: Shall we go to the Apothecaries, with your Bill?

Il: I will shew it: Serve it, where you list.

Iudra galgol astel.

Δ: You know we, understand it not: how can it be serued?

Il:—You must nedes haue an expositor. What boke of physik is that, that lyeth by you?

[Δ: There lay by me on my desk, Marcus Heremita de Lege spirituali [1438] in greke and latine but the latine translation lay open before, on the left side of which, the sentence began: Non raro per negligentiam, quæ circa alicuius rei operationem comittitur, etiam Cognito obscuratur. [1439] And on the right side, began: Corpus sine mente nihil pt perficere[1440] &c.]

Il:—Mary here is good physik in dede. You fownd my name the other day. Go to my name [Δ: So I turned to the second boke and browght sigillum Æmeth: and there chose the Word Ilemese. He than axed me, which letter of this name I liked best, and I sayd, L: bycause it conteyned the name representing God: El, &c. Then he sayd somwhat farder of the letters, which I wrote not.

Il:—Go to great M, the second: for this is it that shall serue his turne. Yf this can not serue him, he shall haue a medicine, that a horse can not abyde. Use this, and I warrant you, your blindenes will be gone.[1441]

Δ: It is here, greatly, to be Noted: that I turned in this boke of Marcus, 27 leaues furder: tyll I cam to the Quaternio of M, the second and there I fownd this sentence notified (by my lines drawn, and a Note in the margent Cor Contritum): Sine corde contrito impossibile est omnino liberari a malitia et vilijs. Conterit autem cor tripartita temperantia somni dico et cibi, et corporalis licentiæ. Cæterum horum excessus et abundantia voluptatem generat. Voluptas autem prauas cogitationes ingerit repugnat verò præcationi et convenienti Cogitationi.[1442]

Δ: This being considered by us, we ceased and this instant and thanked God of his mercies, that it wold pleas him to make us understand some iust cause whie clowdes now appeared in stede of brightnes &c.

Soli Deo omnis honor laus et gloria.[1443] Amen.

Aprilis 23. Tuesday. mane hor. 8.

Δ: After our prayer iointly, and my long prayer, at my desk requesting God to deale with us, so, as might be most for his glory, in his mercies: not according to our deserts, and frowardnes: &c. At length appeared in the stone a white clowde, seven-cornered. And behinde the Clowde a Thunder seemed to yssue.

A Voyce: Whan I gathered you,you were chosen of the myddest of Iniquitie:[1444]Whome I haue clothed with garments made and fashioned with my owne hand.—I,AM. Therfore,Beleue:

Δ: I prayed, and thanked the highest, that so mercifully regarded our miserie.

A Voyce: I, AM.

EK: Now standeth Uriel uppon the clowde, and semeth to loke downward and kneled, saying, Æternitie, Maiestie, Dominion and all powre, in heuen the earth, and in the secret partes below, is thyne, thyne, yea thyne; and to none els due, but unto thee: whose mercies are infinite, which respectest the glorie of thy owne name, above the frowardnes. and perversnes of mans nature: which swarmeth with synnes, and is couered with Iniquitie: and in the which, there is fownde no place free from filthynes and abhomination. Glorie be to thee; ô, all powre: and magnified be thow, in the workmanship of thy own hands, from time to time, and with out ende of time, from generation to generation: and euen amidst and in the number of those, for whome thow hast prepared the flowres of thy æternall Garland.

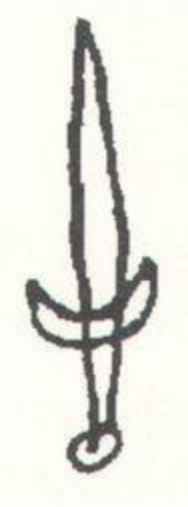
Beare with them (ô lord) for thy mercyes sake. For, woldest thow seeke . . .[1445] in the myddest of miserie? Whom yf thow sholdest iudge according to thy iustice, How shold thy Name be glorified so in thy self, to thy own determination, and writing, sealed before the Creation of the Worldes? The fire of thy Justice consumeth thyne own seat; and in thee, is no powre wanting, whan it pleaseth thee, to cast down, and gather them to gither, as the wynde doth the Snow, and in-hemme them with the mowntaynes, that they may not arrise to synne. But What thow art, thow art: and what thow willt, thow canst.

Amen.

Δ: Amen.

Ur:—I haue measured time (sayth the lord) and it is so: I haue appointed to the heauens theyr course, and they shall not pass it. The synnes of man shall decay, in despite of the enemy: But the fire of æternitie shall neuer be quenched, nor neuer fayle. More, then is, can not, nor may not be sayde. We can not be Wittnesses to him which wittnesseth of him self.



Nota et
Caue

But (this sayeth the Lord), Beholde yf you trubble me ones more, or towche the wings of my excellency, before I shall move my self, I will raze you from the earth, as children of perdition and will endue those that are of quiet myndes. with the strength of my powre.[1446] You are not faithfull, sayeth the lorde whome you beleue not. Notwithstanding I haue hardened the hart of One of you, yea, I haue hardened him as the flynt, and burnt him to gither with the ashes of a Cedar: to the entent he may be proued iust in mywork, and great in the strength of my Glory. Neyther shall his mynde consent to the wyckednes of Iniquitie. For, from Iniquitie I haue chosen him,[1447] to be a first erthely witnes of my Dignitie.[1448]

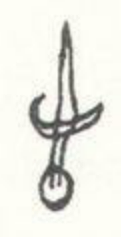
Your words are, yet, not offensiue unto God: Therfore, will not we, be offended at any thing that is spoken: For it must be done[1449] and shall stand; yea and in the number which I haue allready chosen.

Note

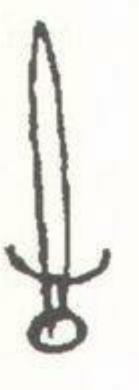


But, this sayeth the Lord: Yf you use me like worldlings I will suerly stretch out my arme uppon you, and that heuily.[1450] Lastly, I say,

Be Faithfull,
Honor God truely.

Beleue him hartily.

EK: He kneleth down, and semeth to pray.—Now he standeth up.



Note

> Ur: Lo, As a number increasing is allwayes bigger: so in this world decreasing, the Lord must be mightily glorified. Striue not with God: But receyue, as he imparteth.[1451] The Mercy of my message, quencheth the obscuritie and dullnes of your sowles: I mean of the Infection, wherewithall they are poysoned. Lo, how the Earth cryeth vengeance.[1452] Come, for thy Glory sake, it is tyme. Amen.

Δ: Seing it is sayd that in 40 dayes the boke shalbe finished and seing it is sayed that our former Instructers shall not come nor appeare to us tyll the boke be finished: And seing here to fore the boke used to appere to EK, that he might write, whan so euer he bent him self therto: and seing the same boke appeareth not so now: and seing we are desyrous to be fownd diligent in this work, and to omitt no Opportunitie wherein the writing therof might be furdred: We wold gladly know; What token, or warning shall be giuen us, henceforward, whan due tyme serueth for the same purpose.

Ur:—Dy in the folly: I haue sayde.

EK: It thundreth and lightneth abowt the clowde: and now all is vanished away.

Δ: EK sayd, that at the very begynning of this days action, when he expressed the first Voyce (this day), hard of him, his belly did seame to him, to be full of fyre: and that he thowght veryly, that his bowells did burne: And that he loked downward toward his leggs, to see if any thing appeared on fire: calling to his mynde, the late chance that befell to the Adulterous man and woman by Sainct Brydes church in London &c. Allso that whan he had made an ende, he thowght his belly to be wyder, and enlarged, muche more then it was before.

Δ: I sayde certayn prayers to the Almightie our God and most mercifull father, on my knees; and EK on his knees likewise, answered diuerse times, Amen.

After this, we made AG. to understand these the mercies of the Highest: and he reioyced greatly, and praysed the Lorde. And, so EK. was fully satisfyed of his Dowtes: And AG, and he, were reconciled of the great discorde which, yesterday, had byn betwene them, &c.

Non nobis, Domine, Non nobis, sed nomini tuo Gloriam omnem Laudem et honorem damus, et dabimus in perpetuum.[1453]
Amen.

Aprilis 26. Fryday

Δ NOTE

Δ: By the prouidence of god, and Mr Gilbert his meanes, and pacifying of EK his vehement passions and pangs, he cam agayn to my howse: and my wife very willing, and quietted in mynde, and very frendely to EK in Word, and cowntenance: and a new pacification on all partes confirmed: and all uppon the Confidence of God his servyce, to be faythfully and cherfly intended, and followed in and by our actions, throwgh the grace and mercy of the highest.

1583. Aprilis 28. Sonday. after Dynner abowt 4 of the clok.

Δ: As I and EK had diuerse talks and discourses of Transposition of letters: and I had declared him my rule for to know certaynly how many wayes, any number of letters (propownded,) might be transposed or altered in place or order: Behold, suddenly appered, the Spirituall Creature, Il, and sayd, Il:—Here is a goodly disputation of transposition of letters. Chuse, whether you will dispute with me, of Transposition, or I shall lerne you.

Δ: I had rather lerne then dispute. And first I think, that those letters of our Adamicall Alphabet haue a due peculier unchangeable proportion of theyr formes,—and likewise that theyr order is allso Mysticall.

Il:—These letters[1454] represent the Creation of man: and therfore they must be in proportion. They represent the Workmanship wherewithall the sowle of man was made like unto his Creator. But I understand you shall haue a paynter shortly.

Δ:—I pray you, what paynter may best serve for the purpose? Can master Lyne serue the turn well?

Il: Dost thow think that God can be glorifyed in hell, or can diuells dishonor him? Can Wickednes of a paynter, deface the mysteries of God? The truth is, I am come to aduertise you, least with a small error you be led, far, asyde.

Let me see the forme of your Table.[1455]

Δ:—I shewed him the Characters and words which were to be paynted rownd abowt in the border of the Table.

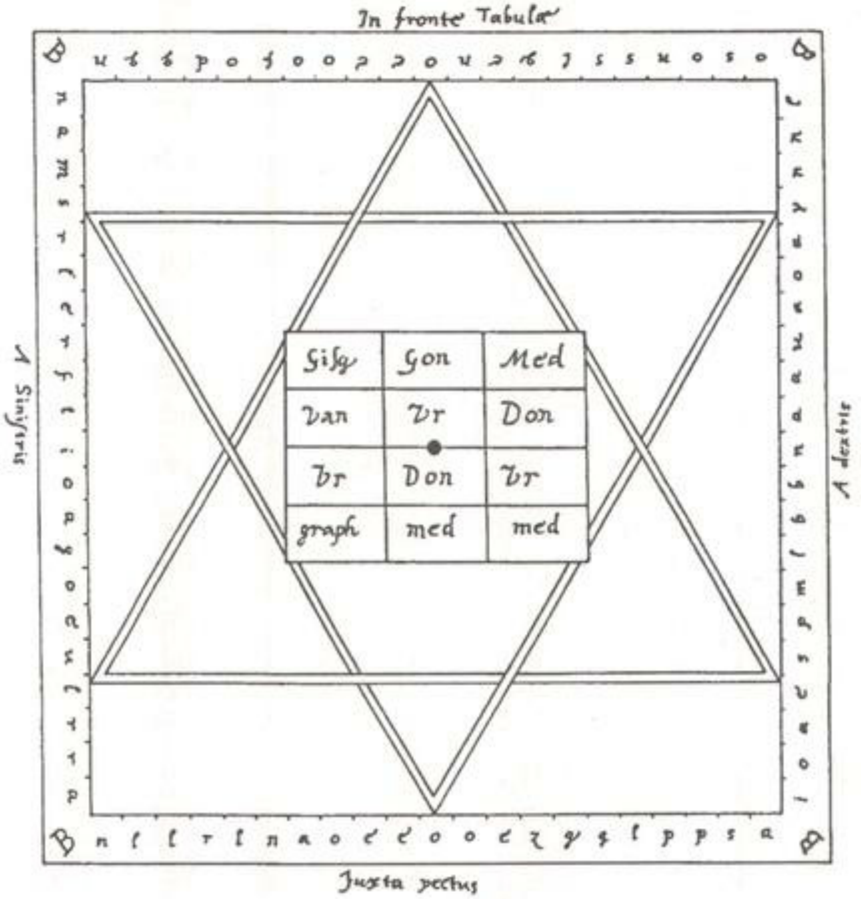
Il:—How do you like those letters? Δ: I know not well what I may say. For, perhaps, that which I shuld like, wer not so to lyked: and contrarywise what I shold think well of, might be nothing worth.

Il:—Thow sayest wel.

Behold, great is the fauor and mercy of God toward those whome he fauoreth. All things are perfect but onely that: Neyther what that shewed or deliuered by any good and perfect messager from God. A wicked powre did intrude him self;[1456]not onely into your societie, but allso into the Workmanship of Gods mysteries. Sathan dare presume to speak of the Almighty. Those Characters are diuilish: and a secret band of the Diuell. But, this sayeth the lord, I will rayse them up, whom he hath ouerthrown: and blott oute his fotesteps where they resist my glorie. Neyther will I suffer the faithfull to be led utterly awry: nor finally permit darkness to enhemme them for euer. He sayth, I AM, and they[1457] are most untrue. But behold. I haue browght thee the truth: that the Prince of reason, God of understanding may be apparent in euery part of his Cælestiall demonstration. Therfore, as thow saydst unto me ones,

So say I now to thee: Serue god.

Make a square,[1458] of 6 ynches euery way. The border therof let it be (here) but, half an inche: but on the Table it self, let it be an inche broad.[1459]



In fronte Tabulæ
A Sinistris
A dextris
Juxta pectus
Sisg
Gon
Med
Van
Vr
Don Br
Don Vr graph
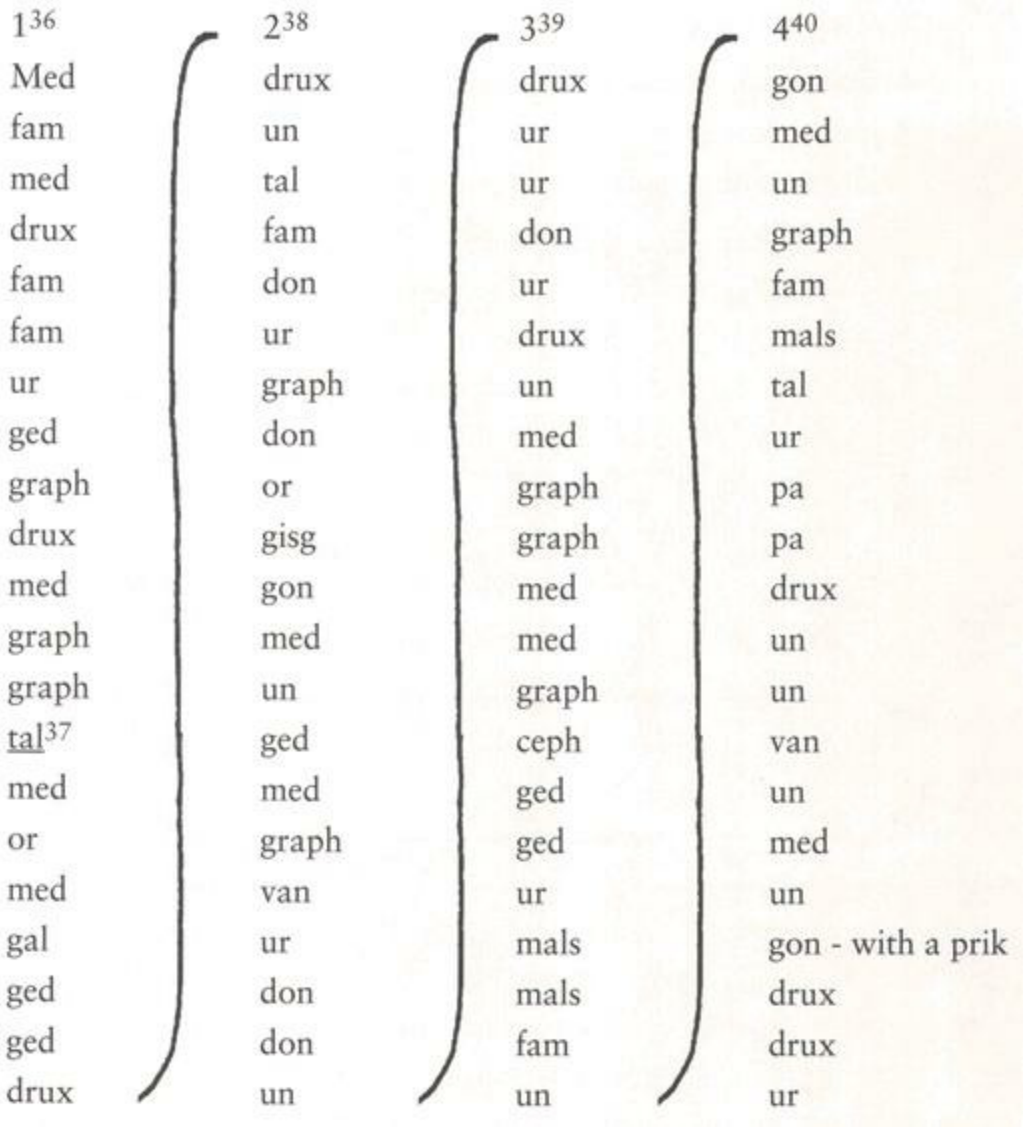
med
med

Euery one of those sides must haue 21 Characters: But, first, at euery corner make a great B.

Prayer is the key of all good things:

Δ: After our prayers made, EK had sight (in the stone) of innumerable letters and after a little while, they wer browght into a lesser square and fewer letters. First appered in the border opposite to our standing place, (which I haue used to call, in fronte Tabulæ) these letters following, beginning at the right hand, and proceding toward the left.



1[36]	2[38]	3[39]	4[40]
Med	drux	drux	gon
fam	un	ur	med
med	tal	ur	un
drux	fam	don	graph
fam	don	ur	fam
fam	ur	drux	mals
ur	graph	un	tal
ged	don	med	ur
graph	or	graph	pa
drux	gisg	graph	pa
med	gon	med	drux
graph	med	med	un
graph	un	graph	un
tal[37]	ged	ceph	van
med	med	ged	un
or	graph	ged	med
med	van	ur	un
gal	ur	mals	gon - with a prik
ged	don	mals	drux
ged	don	fam	drux
drux	un	un	ur

[1460], [1461], [1462], [1463], [1464]

Il: What haue you in the myddle of your Tablet? Δ: Nothing.
Il: Sigillum Emeth, is to be sett there.
Il: The rest, after supper.
Δ: Soli Deo Omnipotenti sit laus perennis.[1465]

Amen.

After supper, retorning to our businesse, I first dowted of the heds of the letters in the border, to be written, which way they owght to be turned, to the center ward of the Table or from the Center ward.

Il:—The heds of the letters must be next or toward the center of the square Table or Figure. Diuide that within, by 12 and 7.[1466]

Δ: I diuided it.

Il:—Grace, mercy and peace be unto the liuely branches of his florishing kingdom: and strong art thow in thy glory, which dost unknytt the secret partes of thy liuely workmanship: and that, before the weak understanding of man. Herein is thy powre and Magnificence opened unto man: And why? bycause thy diuinitie and secret powre is here shut up in Numero Ternario et Quaternario: à quo principium et fundamentum omne huius est tui sanctissimi operis.[1467] For, yf thow (O God) be wunderfull and incomprehensible in thyne owne substance, it must nedes follow, that thy works are likewise incomprehensible. But, Lo, they shall now beleue, bycause they see, which heretofore could skarsly beleue. Strong is the Influence of thy supercelestiall powre, and mighty is the force of that arme, which overcommeth all things: Let all powre therfore rest in thee; Amen.

Δ: The Spirituall Creature seamed to eate fyre, like balls of fyre: hauing his face toward me, and his bak toward EK.

Il: Leave oute the Bees of the 7 names of the seven Kings, and 7 Princis: and place them in a table diuided by 12 and 7:[1468] the 7 spaces being uppermost: and therein write, in the upper line, the letters of the king, with the letters of his Prince following next after his name: and so of the six other, and theyr Princis: And read them on the right hand from the upper part to the lowest, and thow shalt finde, then, the Composition of this Table. Therein they are all comprehended, sauing certayn letters, which are not to be put-in here: By reason that the Kings and Princis do spring from God: and not God from the Kings and Princis:[1469] Which excellency is comprehended, and is allso manifest, in that Third and Fowrth member.

Rownd abowt the sides [of this square] is euery letter of the 14 names of the 7 kings and Princis.

Hereafter shall you perceyue that the Glorie of this Table surmownteth the glorie of the sonne.[1470]

All things els appertayning unto it, are allready prescribed by your former instruction.

I haue no more to say, but God transpose your myndes, according to his own will and pleasure. You talked of Transposition.[1471] Tomorrow I will be with you agayn. But Call not for me, least you incurre the danger of the former Curse.[1472]

l	o	n	e	g	a	n	o	g	i	l	a
o	g	o	n	r	o	l	e	g	o	b	o
s	e	f	a	f	e	l	e	l	a	b	a
o	n	o	m	t	u	r	o	p	e	n	y
n	o	d	s	i	l	l	o	p	s	a	n
s	e	g	r	o	r	n	e	s	p[49]	a	n
s	e	g	l	a	r	a	z	a	m	u	l

1473

Aprilis 29. Monday, a meridie

Δ: As EK and I wer talking of my boke Soyga, or Aldaraia: and I at length sayd that, (as far, as I did remember) Zadzaczadlin, was Adam[1474] by the Alphabet therof, suddenly appeared the spirituall creature, which sayd yesterday that he wold come agayn, this day, uncalled: and at his first comming he sayd:

Then, à primo.

Δ: Qui primus est et nouissimus, Alpha et Omega, misereatur nostri.[1475]

Il:—Amen. Glorie be to thee, which art one, and comprehending all. Mervaylous is thy wisdome, in those, of whome, thow willt be comprehended.

A short prayer, but appliable to my purpose.

Euery prayse, with us, is a prayer.

Δ: He taketh-of, his pyed[1476] coat, and threw it up on the corner of my desk and then he seemed clothed in an ancient doctorly apparayle: and on his hed he had a wrethe of white sylk of three braydes.[1477]

Il:—Well I will give you my lesson, and so byd you farewell. First I am to perswade you to put away wavering myndes. Secondly, for your Instruction, in these necessarie occasions, thus it is:

> The owtsides or skyn must be the Centre.[1478] There, is one fowndation.
>
> The Flesh must be the owtside.
>
> The Centre it self must be disseuered into 4 æquall partes:

There is your lesson.

Δ: We understand not, this dark lesson.

Il:—The hart must be the fowrth part of the body; and yet the body perfect and sownd. The Skynne must occupy the place of the hart and yet without deformitie. God is the begynning of all things: The fardest parte of all things is in the hands of God. The like shalbe fownd amongst the number of his One most holy names:[1479] The Erth is a fowndation to euery thing: and differeth but onely in forme. In the forme of his own application whereunto it is applied. God is the begynning of all things, but not after one sorte, nor to euery one alike. But it is three manner of works, with his name:

> The One, in respect of Dignification:
>
> The second, in respect of Conciliation:
>
> The third, in respect of an ende and determined Operation.

Now syr, to what ende, wold you were your Character?

Δ: At our two first dealings to gither, it was answered by a spirituall Creature, (whome we toke to be Uriel,) Sigillum hoc in auro sculpendum, ad defensionem Corporis omni loco, tempore et occasione, et in pectus gestandum.[1481]

Il: But how do I teache? The Character is an Instrument, appliable onely to Dignification. But there is no Dignification (Syr) but that which doth procede, and hath his perfect Composition, Centrally, in the square number of 3 and 4. The centre whereof shall be equall to the greatest.

Δ: We understand not. Il:—Hereby you may gather not onely to what ende, the blessed Character (wherewith thow shalt be dignified) is prepared, but allso the nature of all other characters.[1482] To the second. —Δ: Conciliation you meane.

Il:—The Table is an Instrument of Conciliation. And so are the other 7 Characters: which you call by the name of Tables, squared out into the forme of Armes: which are propre to euery king and Prince[1483] according to theyr order.[1484]

Now to the last: Δ: As concerning the ende and determined Operation.

Il: It onely consisteth in the mercy of God, and the Characters of these bokes.[1485] For, Behold, As there is nothing that commeth or springeth from God, but it is as God, and hath secret Maiesticall and inexplicable Operation in it: So euery letter here bringeth furth the Names of God:[1486] But, (in dede), they are but one Name; But according to the locall and former being, do comprehend the universall generation corruptible and incorruptible[1487] of euery thing. It followeth, then, it must nedes comprehend the ende of all things.

Thus much, hitherto.

The Character is fals and diuilish.[1488]

He that dwelleth in thee, hath told thee, so, long ago. The former Diuel, did not onely insinuat him self, but these things.

Δ: I do mervayle, that we had no warning hereof ere now, and that I was often tymes called on, to prepare those things, (character and Table): and yet they were fals.

Il:—Yf it shold haue byn gon abowt to be made, it shuld not haue byn suffred to pass under the forme of wyckednes.[1489] The Truth is to be gathered uppon the first Demonstration (my demonstration and yours[1490] are not all one: you will not be offended with me, syr.)

I gaue thee a certayn principle, which in it self is a sufficient demonstration: I told thee, the placing of the Centre, the forme of it, with a lineamentall placing and ordring of that which thow lookest[1491] for. Δ: But truely I understand not.

Il:—I teache. Take cleane paper. It must be made 4 inches square.

Pray. Δ: We prayed.

Il: These letters, which I shall speak now, thow shalt, afterward, put them in theyr propre characters.[1492]

Write: Neuer since the begynning of the world was this secret deliuered, nor this holy mysterie set open, before the Weaklings of this world. Write in the uppermost prik 'O', and 'b' on the right hand, and 'g' on the left &c. The two extreme pricks, one on the right hand, 'a' and the other, on the left 'o'

&c.

There is the whole.

Δ: We prayed (unbidden) in respect of the mysterie revealed. EK, was skarse able to abide or endure the voyce of the spirituall Creature, when he spake of these things now: the sownd was so forcible to his hed that it made it ake vehemently.

o n r f a f o l e l e g o e l a r l n e o o
o g b e b a o o m p e d s g r
o n o n n y s l s e a n n
a p s s p a s e u o l l l u r i o t g l a n e g r a a n z a m o g i

Il:—Set down the kings, and theyr Princis in a Table (as thow knowest them): with theyr letters bakward: excepting theyr Bees, from the right hand, to the left.[1493] Let Bobogel be first, and Bornogo is his prince.[1494]

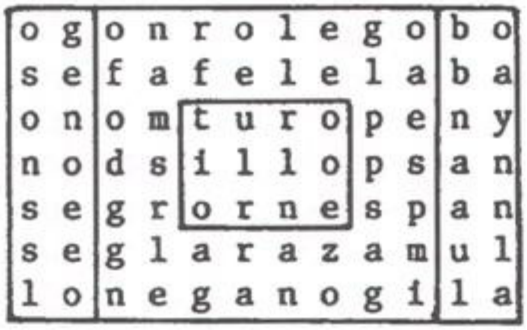
Δ: Note here the three diuerse manners how the letters ar cumpassed. 1: The middel is called the Hart or centre, 2: those abowt, enclosing the hart, ar called the flesh, and 3: the two owtside pillers (of two letters in a row) is cownted the skyn.

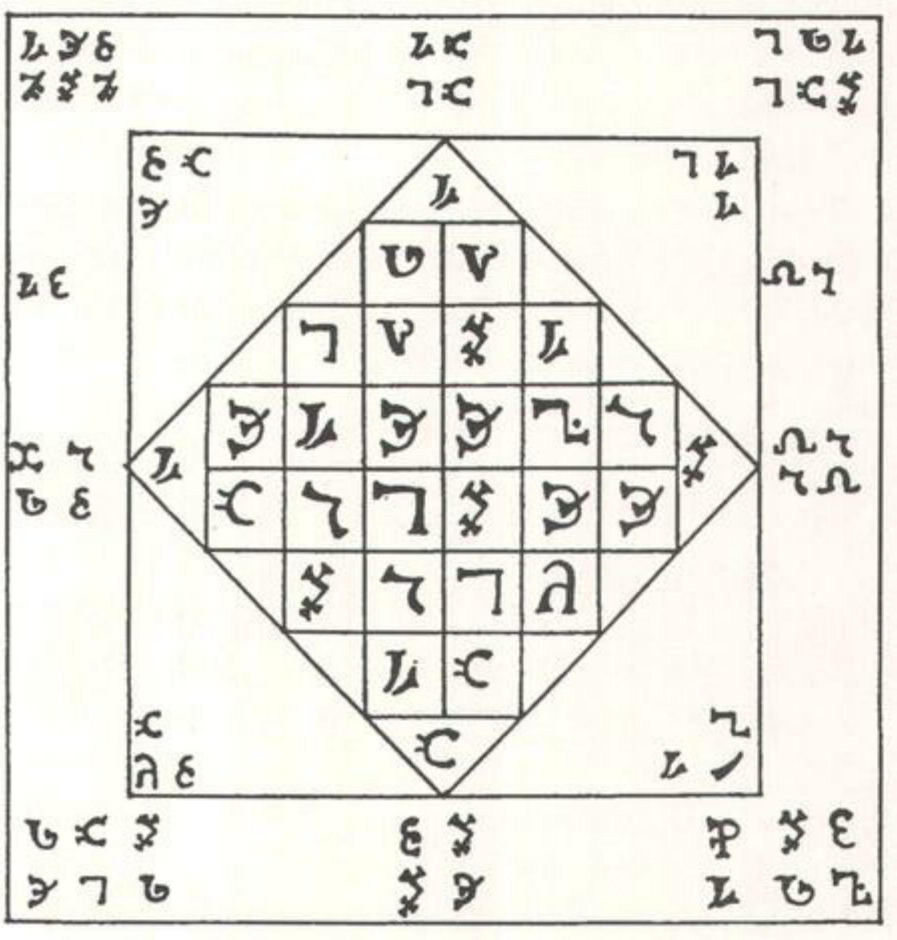


o	g	o	n	r	o	l	e	g	o	b	o
s	e	f	a	f	e	l	e	l	a	b	a
o	n	o	m	t	u	r	o	p	e	n	y
n	o	d	s	i	l	l	o	p	s	a	n
s	e	g	r	o	r	n	e	s	p	a	n
s	e	g	l	a	r	a	z	a	m	u	l
l	o	n	e	g	a	n	o	g	i	l	a

Il:—Here, is the skynn turned into the Centre: and the Centre turned into 4 partes of the body.

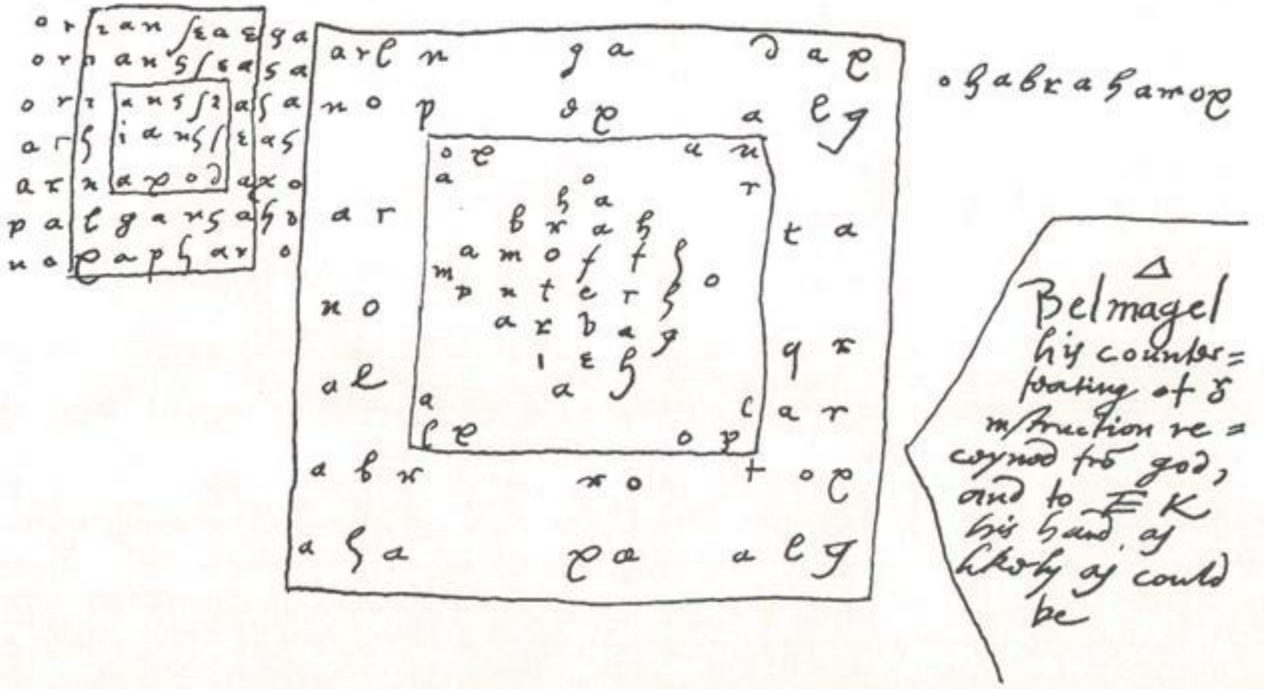
Δ: I see now allso, how, the flesh, is become the owtside: o g e l o r n o &c. Il: I haue done tyll sone.

Δ: Deo nostro omnipotenti perennis laus sit et immensa gloria.[1495] Amen.



NOTE.

Δ: After that these things were finished, and EK rose up from the table and went to the west window, to reade a letter which was, euen than, browght him from his wife: which being done, he toke a little prayer[1496] boke (in english meter made by one William Hunnis which Mr Adrian Gilbert had here: and it lay on the Table by us all the while of this last action) and with this boke, he went into his bed chamber, intending to pray on it, a certayn prayer, which he liked: and as he opened the boke, his ey espied strange writing in the spare white paper at the bokes ende: and beholding it, iudged it verily to be his own letters, and the thing of his own doing: but being assured that he never saw the like of this Character [for Conciliation], and that other, (notified by the hart or Center, skyn and flesh before this present howre, he becam astonied,[1497] and in great wrath; and behold, suddenly, One appered to him and sayd, Lo, this is as good as that other: meaning that, which we had receyued, and is here before sett down on the former page. With this newes cam EK to me, as I was writing down fayre this last Action, and sayd, I haue strange matter to impart unto you: Then sayd I, What is that? And at the fyrst (being yet tossed in his mynde, with this great iniurie of the suttle supplanter of man, ambitiously intruding him self, to rob god of his glory) he sayd, you shall know, and at length shewed me this little paper, here, by, being the one of the white leafes in the ende of the forsayd little prayer boke. And I vewing it, fownd it to be ment to be the counterfeat of ours, but, with all, imperfect diuerse wayes, after the order of our method: yea thowgh the words, out of which it had sprong had bin good, and sufficient: and thereat laughed-at, and derided the Wicked enemy, for his envy, his ass-hedded folish ambition, and in dede mere blyndenes to do any thing well. To conclude, we fownd, that with an incredible spede this Diuilish figure was written down by some Wicked spirit, to bring our perfect doings in dowt with us: thereby eyther to provoke us to utter undue speaches of gods good creatures, or to wavering myndes of the Worthynes and goodnes of the same things receyuing, and so eyther to leaue of, or with fayntharted wavering to procede. But I by gods grace (contrary to such inconveniency) was armed with constancie, and confident good hope, that God wold not suffer me, (putting my trust in his goodnes and mercy, to receyue wisdome from him) to be so uniustly dealt withall or unkindely or unfatherly used at his hands &c: and entended after supper to make my ernest complaint to the diuine Maiestie against this wicked intrusion and temptation of the Illuding diuell and so we went to supper.



Δ
Belmagel his counter= feating of δ instruction re= ceyued fro god, and to E K
his hand, as likely as could be

1583. Aprilis 29. Monday. after supper. hora 8 a.

Δ: I went into my oratorie, and made a fervent prayer agaynst the spirituall enemy: specially meaning the wicked one who had so suddenly so suttily and so liuely cownterfeted the hand and letters of EK: as is here before declared, and by the thing it self may appere here. Likewise EK on his knees (at the greene chayre standing before my chymney) did pray. After which prayers ended, I yea, rather, before they were ended, on my behalf, EK espyed a spirituall creature come to my Table: whome he toke to be IL, and so, a lowd, sayd, He is here. And thereuppon I cam to my desk, to write as occasion shold serue: And before I began to do any thing, I rehersed part of my intent, uttred to god by prayer and half turned my speche to god him self, as the cause did seme to require. Thereuppon that spirituall creature, who, as yet had sayd nothing, suddenly used these words:—————— I give place to my better.

EK: There semeth to me Uriel to be come, and IL to be gone away. Δ: Then began that new-come Creature to say thus,

Most abundant and plentifull are the great mercies of God unto them which truely and unfaynedly feare, honor and beleue him. The Lord hath hard thy prayers, and I am URIEL,[1498] and I haue browght the peace of God, which shall from henceforth viset you.

If I had not made this action perfect (sayeth the lord) and wrowght some perfection in you, to the ende you might performe: yea, if I had not had mercies (sayeth the lord) over the infinite number and multitude of sowles, which are yet to put on the vilenes and corruption of the flesh,[1499] Or if it wer not time to loke down, and behold the sorrow of my Temple, Yet wold I, for my promiss sake, and the establishing of my kingdom, verifie my mercies uppon the sonns of men: Whereunto I haue Chosen three of you,[1500] as the mowthes and Instruments of my determined purpose. Therfore (sayeth the Lorde), Be of stowte and courragious mynde in me,[1501] for me, and for my truth sake: And Fear not the assalts of temptation, For I haue sayd, I am with you. But as mercy is necessary for those that repent, and faithfully forget theyr offenses, So is Temptation requisite[1502] and must ordinarilie follow those, whome it pleaseth him to illuminate with the beames of triumphant sanctification.

Yf Temptation wer not, how shold the sonnes of men (sayeth the lord) know me to be mercifull? But I am honored in hell; and wurshipped with the blasphemers: Pugna erit, vobis autem victoria:[1503] yet, albeit, (thus sayeth my message) I will defend you from the cruelltie of these dayes to come and will make you perfect: that perfectly you may begynne in the works of my perfection.[1504] But, what? and doost thow (Sathan) think to triumph? Behold (sayeth the God of Justice) I will banish thy servants from this place and region; and will set stumbling bloks before the feete of thy ministers:[1505] Therfore, be it unto thee, as thow hast deserued: And be it to this people, and holie place, (as it is, the will of god; which I do pronownce) light without darkness, Truth without falshode, righteousnes without the works of wickednes. I haue pronownced it, and it is done.

But thow, o yongling,[1506] (but, old synner,) why dost thow suffer thy blyndeness thus to encrease: or why dost thow not yeld thy lymmes to the service and fullfilling of an aeternall veritie? Pluck up thy hart: let it not be hardened. Follow the waye that leadeth to the knowledge of the ende; the open sight of god his word verified for his kingdoms sake.

You began in Tables, and that of small accownt. But be faithfull for you shalbe written within Tables of perfect and euerlasting remembrance. Considering the truth, which is the message of him which is the fowntayne and life of the true, perfect and most glorious life to come, Follow, loue, and diligently Contemplate the mysteries therein. He that hath done this euill, hath not onely synned against thee, but against God, and against his truth. Judgment is not of me, and therefore I cannot pronownce it: But what his Judgment is, he knoweth in him self. His name is BELMAGEL: and he is the fyrebrand, who hath followed thy sowle from the begynning;[1507] yea seking his destruction. Who can better cownterfeat, than he, that in thy wickednes is chief lord and Master of thy spirites: or who hath byn acquaynted with the secrets of mans fingers, so much as he [that] hath byn a directer? My sayings are no accusation: neyther is it my propertie to be defyled with such profession. [1508] But I cownsayle you generally; and aduertise you throwgh the grace and by the spirit of unspeakable mercy.

This night, yf your prayers had not byn; yea, if they had not perced into the seat of him which sitteth aboue: Thow, yea (I say) thow hadst byn carryed, and taken awaye, this night, into a willdernesse, so far distant hence Northward, that thy destruction had followed.[1509] Therfore lay away thy works of youth; and fly from fleshly vanities. Yf not uppon Joye and pleasure of this presence, yet for the glorie of him that hath chosen you.

I say, be strong: Be Humble, with Obedience: For, All the things, that haue byn spoken of, shall come to pass: And there shall not a letter of the boke of this prophesie perish.[1510] Finally, God hath blessed you, and will kepe you from temptation[1511] and will be mercifull unto you: and perfect you, for the dignitie of your profession[1512] sake: Which, world without ende for euer and euer, with us and all creatures, and in the light of his own cowntenance, be honored.

Amen. Amen. Amen.

Δ: Hereuppon I made most humble prayer with harty thanks to our God, for his help, cumfort, and Judgment against our enemie, in this case, (so greatly concerning his glorie.) And at my standing up I understode that Uriel was out of sight to EK. Yet I held-on my purpose to thank him; and to prayse god for Uriel that his so faithfull ministerie unto his diuine Maiestie, executed to our nedefull comfort in so vehement a temptation.

Deo nostro Omnipotenti; sit omnis laus, honor, et gratiarum actio, nunc et in perpetuum,[1513]
Amen.

1583 Maij 5. Sonday. a meridie hor 4. vel circiter.

Δ: For as much as, on fryday last, while my frende EK was abowt writing of the Tables he was told that the same shuld be finished on monday next and that on sonday before, (it is to wete, this present sonday) at after none, all dowtes shold be answered; after, the after none had so far passed, as tyll somewhat past 4 of the clok: Then, we fell to prayer, and after a quarter of an howres invocation to god, and prayers made, EK sayd, here is one whome we toke to be Uriel, as he was, in dede. I had layd 28 questions or articles of dowtes in writing uppon my desk, open, ready for me to rede (uppon occasion) to our spirituall instructor, who, thus began his speche, after I had used a few wordes begynning with this sentence, Beati pedes, evangelizantium pacem &c.[1514]

Uriel:—The very light and true wisdome (which is the Somme of my message, and will of him that sent me) make you perfect, and establish those things, which he hath sayd, and hath decreed: and likewise your myndes, that you may be apt vessells to receyve so abundant mercies. Amen. Δ: Amen, per te Jesu Christe:[1515] Amen.

Ur:—This boke,[1516] and holy key, which unlocketh the secrets of god his determination, as concerning the begynning, present being, and ende of this world, is so reuerent and holy: that I wonder (I speak in your sense) whie it is deliuered to those, that shall decay: So excellent and great are the Mysteries therein conteyned, aboue the capacitie of man: This boke (I say) shall, to morrow, be finished:[1517] One thing excepted: which is the use thereof. Unto the which the lord hath appointed a day. But (bycause I will speak to you, after the manner of men) See that all things be in a redynes agaynst the first day of August next.[1518] Humble your selues nine dayes before: yea, unrip (I say) the cankers of your infected sowles: that you may be apt and meet to understand the Secrets, that shalbe deliuered.[1519] For why? The Lord hath sent his angels allready to viset the earth,[1520] and to gather the synnes thereof to gither, that they may be wayed before him in the balance of Justice: and Then is the tyme that the promise of God, shalbe fullfilled. Dowt not, for we are good Angells.[1521]

The second of the greatest prophesie is this[1522] (O ye mortall men) For the first was of him self, that He shold come: And this, is from him: in respect of that he will come.Neyther are you to speak the wordes of this Testimonie, in one place, or in one people, but, that the Nations of the whole world may knowe that there is a GOD which forgetteth not the truth of his promise, nor the sauegarde of his chosen, for the greatnes of his glory.[1523]

Therfore (I say) prepare your bodies, that they may be strong enowgh for armors of great profe.[1524] Of your selfs, you cannot: But desire and it shall be giuen unto you. For Now, is euen that wicked childe grown up unto perfection: and the fier tungs redy to open his Jaws.[1525] WO therfore shalbe to the Nations of the earth: And wo wo innumerable to those that say, we yelde: Wickednes (o lorde) is crept up, and hath filled the dores of thy holy sanctuarie: defyled the dwelling places of thy holy Angels: and poysonned the earth, as her own seat:

In 40 dayes more must this boke be perfyted in his own manner to the intent that you allso may be perfyted in the workmanship of him, which hath sealed it.[1526]

Oute of this, shall be restored the holy bokes, which haue perished euen from the begynning, and from the first that liued And herein shalbe deciphred perfect truth from imperfect falshode, True religion from fals and damnable errors, With all Artes; which are propre to the use of man, the first and sanctified perfection: Which when it hath spred a While, THEN COMMETH THE ENDE.[1527]

Thy Character must haue the names of the fiue Angels (written in the myddst of Sigillum Emeth) graven uppon the other side in a circle. [1528] In the myddst whereof, must the stone be which was allso browght:[1529] Wherein, thow shallt, at all times behold, (priuately to thy self,) the state of gods people throwgh the Whole earth.

The fowre fete of the Table must haue 4 hollow things of swete wood,[1530] whereuppon, they may[1531] stand: within the hollownes wherof thy seales may be kept unperished.

One month is all, for the use thereof.[1532]

Thus, sayeth the Lord, when I browght you up in likenes of birds, encreasing you, and suffring you to touche[1533] the skyes, I opened unto you the ende of your reioysing: For, this Doctrine shall towche the skyes, and call the sterrs to testimonie therof: And your fotesteps shall viset (allmost) [all[1534]] the partes of the whole world.

The sylk, must be of diuerse cullors, the most changeable that can be gotten:[1535] For, who, is hable to behold the glory of the seat of God?

All these things must be used, as that day.[1536]

All errors and dowtes ells may be amended by the rules of reason: But Notwithstanding, Ask, and thow shalt be answered.

Δ: As concerning Mals don Mals, what is the veritie to be placed in the middle of my practising Table?

Ur:—Write

o	o	e		t	i	o
l	r	l	rather	u	l	r
r	l	u	thus[113]	l	r	l
o	i	t		e	o	o

[1537]

Δ: From whense, are these taken?

Ur: They owght to be gathered of those names, which are first gathered by thee, by ordre: (In the myddst of them:) the Kings and Princis being placed, as thow (of thy invention) diddst gather tbhem: Not putting theyr own princis, next to the kings: but as they follow in Tabula, Collecta[1538] by thee: as thus,

a	l	i	g	o	n	o	r	n	o	g	o
o	b	o	g	e	l	e	f	a	f	e	s a	b	a	l	e	l	u	t	m	o	n	o
y	n	e	p	o	r	l	i	s	d	o	n n	a	s	p	o	l	r	o	r	g	e	s n	a	p	s	e	n	r	a	l	g	e	s
l	u	m	a	z	a	a	g	e	n	o	l

Δ: Wherfore is the Table of Kings, and Princis set down in so diuerse manners? [1539] as, One, to haue Bobogel and Bornogo in the first row: and other to haue Baligon and Bagenol (his prince) in the first row: and here thirdly Baligon and Bornogo: and in the Heptagonon Blumaza semeth to be first, discoursed of, and his prince and Ministers: but very secretly:

Ur: Blumaza, is the first, in respect (And so all the rest, are the first in respect of theyr own being. That secret is not to be deliuered but by the distinction of the boke: Notwithstanding, thow hast truely considered of it all ready.[1540]

Δ: I required the perfect forme of the 21 letters, that I might imitate the same in the Table of practise, and in the holy boke writing &c.

Ur: They shall be deliuered to morrow.

Δ: Whether is the King his Name Bnaspen, or Bnapsen?

Ur: Bnapsen.

Δ: The Character or Lamine for me was noted (Nouemb. 17. Aº1582[1541]) that it shold conteyne some token of my name: and now, in this, (accownted the true Character of Dignification) I perceyue no peculier mark, or letters of my name.

Ur: The forme in euery corner, considereth thy name.[1542]

Δ: You meane there to be a certayn shaddow of Δelta? Ur: Well.

Δ: Bycause many things do seeme to be taken from under the Table, as out of a stoare howse, shall there be any shelf framed under our square Table of Practise or handsome stole set in apt place to lay things on?

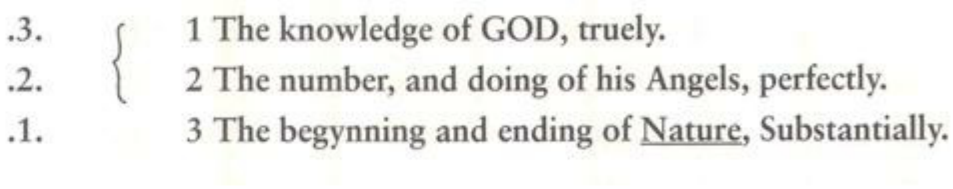
Ur: These things that were deliuered by shew, under an Imagined Table, were the members of God his secret Prouidence, distributed unto his Angels as the Principals[1543] of theyr Officis. But under thy Table is nothing to be set.

Δ: What more uses are there of the great Circle or globe, wherein there are Capitall letters under the Kings names and Characters: and allso there are other letters with numbers: of which we haue receyued no instruction: and more ouer of these letters, some are aversed som euersed, &c?

Ur:—The letters turned bak to bak, (being Capitall letters,) ar æqually to be diuided, according to theyr numbers, with a circle cumpassing the name and Character of the king under which they are placed.[1544]

The other letters, whose greatest number doth not excede 7, are certayn By-notes of wicked and euill powres; which cannot, any way, but by the towche stone of truth be deciphred from the good. Wherof Notice shall be given at large, by the boke.

He that standeth in the myddst of the globe,[1545] signifieth Nature whereuppon, in the first point, is the use and practise of this work that is to say, as concerning the first part. For it is sayde before The Boke conteyneth three kinde of Knowledges.

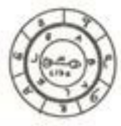


.3. 1 The knowledge of GOD, truely.
.2. 2 The number, and doing of his Angels, perfectly.
.1. 3 The begynning and ending of Nature, Substantially.

And this hath answered a great dowte.

Δ: What is the use of the 7 lamines,[1546] (like armes,) and from what grownde are they framed or deriued?

Uriel:—They are the ensignes of the Creation;[1547] wherewithall they were created by God known onely by theyr acquayntance. and the manner of theyr doings.



Δ: Are they to be made in any metall?

Ur:—They are to be made in purified tynne: And to be used at the time of theyr Call. [1548]

Δ: Ar the letters there to be altered into the holy Alphabet letters or characters?

Ur: Into theyr propre Characters. Δ: May I not use them as they ar, unaltered?

Ur:—................

Δ: How to be used; hanged or layd?

Ur: To be layd before thee uppon the Table. Or thow mayst place them, (yf thow wilt,) contynually at the 7 angles of the Holy Seale: laying them besides, and against the points or Angles of the Holy Seale: 7 ynches from the utter border of the holy Seale, all at ones: Or els they may be paynted, On the Table.[1549]

Δ: What is the fowndation of the first 40 letters, in the principall, or holy Seale Emeth: and what other uses haue they, then yet hath byn spoken of: And what is the reason of suche theyr consequencie, or following eache other, Seing in our practise we cull them out by a peculier order?

Ur:—Thow hast nothing there, but what hath byn sufficiently spoken of.[1550]

Δ: Yf 42 letters be 42 names, and 42 persons, how shall distinction be made betwene any two or three, of one name and in one row?

Ur:—How canst thow distinguish any thing with god?

Δ: Lord I know not.

Ur: Yet, by the boke it shall be perfectly known: but by skyll aboue nature.

Δ: Haue I rightly applyed the dayes to the Kings?

Ur:—The dayes are rightly applyed to the Kings.

Δ: How is this phrase The fifth of the seuenth understode, which Befafes[1551] speaketh of him self?

Ur:—He speaketh so of him self, in respect that he shall be the fifth that shall be used. In consideration of Nature he is the fifth, allthowgh not consequently in the Order of Operation.

Δ: It was promised that we shold be instructed, whan the Day (in this practise) is to be accownted to begynne.

Ur:—It is not to be enquired, which is sufficiently towght, it is a thing most easy, and perfectly deliuered.

Δ: Adrian Gilbert[1552] how far, or what points is he to be made priuie of our practise? Seing it was sayd,[1553] that none shall enter into the Knowledge of these mysteries with me, but onely this worker. Truely the man is very Cumfortable to our societie.

Ur:—He may be made priuie of some things: such as shall be necessarie for the necessitie of the Necessities whereunto he shall be driuen.

Δ: The phrase of the last Ternarie,[1554] which, Baligon (otherwise named Carmara, or Marmara) used, I understand not.

Ur:—He is the ende of the Three last corruptible times:[1555] wherof, this is the last.

Δ: The one, at Noes Flud ended, the second at Christ his first comming and this is the third.

Ur:—It is so.

Δ: The Characters and words annexed to the Kings names in the utter circumference of the great circle or Globe: How are they to be used?[1556]

Ur: They[1557] are to be paynted uppon swete wood: and so to be held in thy hand, as thow shallt haue cause to use them.

Δ: For the bringing of the erthes hither from the places of hidden Threasor, what is your order and direction?

Ur:—After you haue eaten, it shall be told you.

Δ: We prayed, and so went to supper.

The same sonday. Maij .5. [after supper hora 8½]

Δ: After diuerse our eiaculations and pangs of prayer and thanks unto god, this was sayed.

Ur:—Be it thus unto you. [He prayeth in his own language.] After this holy boke is finished, then is it necessarie with expedition[1558] that the foresayd commaundement, as concerning the fatching of the earth, be fullfilled and performed. And be it unto you as HE will. And HE sayeth thus.

My Angel shall be amongst you, and shall direct his iornay:[1559] and will bring his feete, euen into the place and places where that erthly filth and Corruption lieth. Behold I will deale mercifully with him: For, Error shall not deceyue him. Notwithstanding what I will haue done with it, or how it shall be bestowed, is yet to be enquired of.[1560]

Secret are the determinations, and unsearchable purposes, wherewithall the most mightiest dealeth with worldlings, and loketh unto the use and necessarie application of worldly things. Many temptations shall assayle him in following this commaundement. But it is sayd, I Will be with him. God will deale mercifully with you. This is sufficient.

Yet ones more. Yf thow haue any dowte herein it shall be satisfyed.

Δ: What if he go first to Nubery, and with the erth being taken thence, to procede to the other places noted in the skroll and then with the erth of those ten places, the rest of the skroll, the boke therewith fownd, and the red congeled thing in the hollow stone[1561] to come directly hither: and then the rest of the peculier practise for enioying the premisses, to be lerned. Or how els will you haue him order his iornay?

Ur: As thow wilt herein, so shall it be browght to pas.

Δ: As concerning the Victorious Capitayn, The Lord Albert Laski the Polake who so much desyreth my acquayntance, and Conference, how shall I use my self, to God his best liking, my Cuntries honor, and my own good Credit?[1562]

Ur:—Remember, it is sayde, that the Princis of the earth shall not discredit, much lesse work thy Confusion. He that dwelleth in thee,[1563] is above worldes: and shall giue thee sufficient discretion worldly, in worldly occasions. For, Where the blessings of God are, euery thing is perfyted.

Δ: As concerning the Chamber for Practise, appointed by me, and the half-pace whereon the Table standeth, how is allowed of?

Ur:—The place can not Sanctifie the Action, but the Action the place. But I answer thee, after the manner of men.[1564] It is sufficient.

Δ: The 4 hollow feete for comprehending the 4 lesser seales, how great owght they to be?

Ur: According to the fete, of the nearest proportion. And so, as the heith of the Table, be, as it, now, is.

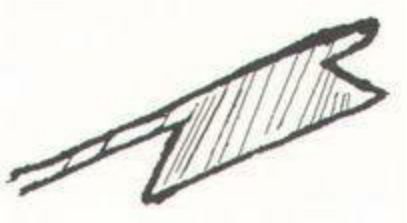
EK: He semeth now to sit in the ayre: but I perceyue no chayre behynde him.

A: Are all these things of this dayes Action to be Noted with your name: as Uriel?

I am URIEL, which allwayes will answer untill this Action be finished.

I teache. Be Mercifull, Thankfull, and mery in him, and for him for whose name you shall susteyne muche bodyly sadnes.[1565]

More then my message, I may not: And it is done.



> A: As concerning the Vision which yester night was presented (unloked for,) to the sight of EK as he sat at supper with me, in my hall, I meane the appering of the very sea, and many ships thereon, and the Cutting-of the hed of a woman, by a tall blak man, What are we to imagin therof?

Ur:—The One, did signifie the prouision of forrayn powres against the Welfare of this land: which they shall shortly put in practise: The other, the death of the Quene of Scotts. It is not long unto it.[1566] The Maiestie of his invisible powre, which overcommeth all things be among you, uppon you, and rest with you for euer.

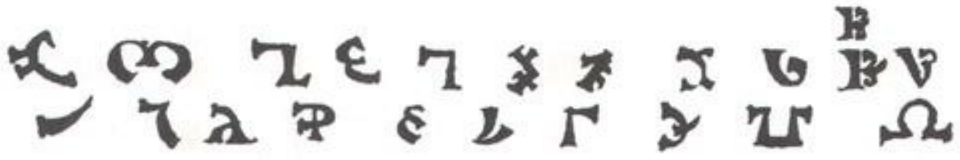
Δ: Amen.

EK: At his last words he flung fyre with his hands from him toward us, and it spred it self in the manner of a Crosse.

Δ: Gloria sit sempiterna Deo nostro
Omnipotenti et Æeterno.[1567]
Amen.

May 6.

Monday, I went to London: and EK remayned attending the accomplishing of the promise, for the Tables ending and for the perfect forme of the holy letters receyuing: Which two points (when I cam home that after none), I fownd done. But it is to be Noted, that, When EK could not aptly imitate the forme of the Characters, or letters, as they were shewed: that then they appered drawn on his paper with a light yelow cullor, which he drew the blak uppon, and so the yelow cullor disapearing: there remayned onely the shape of the letter in blak: after this manner and iust of this quantitie and proportion.



Maij 8. Wensday, After dynner horam circiter 4 a

Δ: Being desyrous to furder all things on my part to be performed, and n . . . to lack the Cumpany of EK going for the Erthes;[1568](before spoken of) and to be away 10 or 12 dayes: and for as much as the boke was to be written in 40 dayes before August next: and uncertayn of those dayes whan they shold begynne: and allso for that I wold do all things (gladly) by warranty of cownsayle of our Instructor, I was desyrous to know whether the boke[1569] were to be written in paper or parchment: in what cullor the lynes were to be ruled, grene or blew &c: and of diuerse other dowtes, necessary to be dissolued, I was carefull to haue had some advertisement. After long prayers of us both, Nothing was eyther seen in the ayre, or hard. Then it cam in my hed to set furth the stone.

EK sayd, that assone as he loked into the stone, he saw there the Table, Chayre, and three, com into the stone. Uriel sat down in the chayre: the other two, inclined theyr body to him reverently: and then, stode by; one on the one side of the chayre; the other on the other side.

The sides of the Table-cloth were turned up, and a thing like an yong shepe, bigger then a lamb, appered under the Table:[1570] Then they two did knele before Uriel and sayd,

> Verus et sanctus et sempiternus.[1571]

Δ: Then they rose agayn: and they semed to haue talk, or conference togither and theruppon Uriel sayd,

Ur: Be it so, bycause powre is giuen unto him.

EK: The Table, Chayre and all the three do disapere: and thereuppon immediately appered in the stone a fayr Pallace:[1572] and out of the pallace cam a tall wellfauored man, very richely apparayled with a braue hat and a fether on his hed: and after him followed a great number, all like curteours: and this braue man sayd, Man: How pitifull a thing is it, when the wise, are deluded?

Δ:—I smell the smoke; procede Syr, in your purpose.

Man: I come hither, for the desyre I haue to do thee good.

Δ:—Come you, or are you sent. Tell the Veritie I charge thee, in the name and by the powre of the æternall Veritie.

Δ: Note: After I perceyued euidently that it was a wicked tempter, who had powr permitted him at this instant, I began with some Zeale and egreness to rebuke, and to charge him. But he stiffly and stowtely did contemne me a good while, mock me, and at length thretten to destroy me, my wife, and children, &c.

Δ: I thereuppon made my ernest prayers to god agaynst this Spirituall enemy, but he in the myddle of my prayers, sayed thus,

Man:—As truely as the Lord liueth, all that is done, is lies.

Δ: That, thy sentence, will I record agaynst thee; to be layde to thy charge at the dredfull day.

Δ: After this great turmoyle past, was this voyce (following), hard of EK.

A voyce:—Pereant tenebræ, cum Principe Tenebrarum.[1573]

Δ: All went suddenly out of sight, Prince and pallace and all. And the Chayre and Table and Uriel appeared againe.

Ur:—Arme your selues, for, great shall be the temptations following. You shall be hindred, in all, that may be.[1574]

Nothing can hinder god his determined purposes.

Δ: Man may hinder his owne saluation.

Ur:—Fullfill those things that are commaunded. Forme, and write the boke after thyne own Judgment. God his determination is iust; Therfore putto your hands.[1575] More then hath byn sayd, and more plainely, cannot be uttred. His works are true, for, and to the ende.

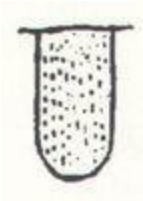
Δ: Forasmuch as expedition is to be made for the erthes fatching and diuers other things: and we haue made assay to get an horse: But we could get none as we wold: And without somme better prouision of mony then we haue, we cannot redress the case. Therfore, if it might pleas god, that of the ten places Noted, we might haue but the possession of the smallest of them, deliuered here, unto us, at this pynche, it might greatly pleasure us.

Ur:—Will these worldlings hold on in theyr iniquitie?

EK: They pulle the leggs of the Table away, and seme to carry all away in a bundell like a clowde: and so disapered utterly.

Δ: Hereuppon I was exceding sorrowfull: and betoke my self to a lamentable pang of prayer.

Δ: After long prayer, appeared in the stone a thing like a Tunge, all on fyre thus hanging downward:



and from it cam this voyce:

Tung:—Thow hast deliuered thy self unto the desires of thy hart, and hast done that which is not Convenient. Thow hast spoken iniquitie, and therfore dothe the Veritie of Gods Doings by us, decay, in your Wickedness.

Δ: I dowt of the Veritie of that tung.

Tung:—Man (o God) beleueth him self in his own Imagination. Therfore Wipe our holines from the face of the erth And Justifie owr doings, where we lawde and prayse thee.

Δ: I becam now abashed of my former speche, and perceyued my error: axed forgivenes bitterly at the Lord his hand: and at length it was sayde, Tung:—Do that, which is commaunded, the Lord is Just.

Δ: O lord, forgiue me my trespaces, and deale not with me according to Justice: for, then I, and all mankinde shall utterly perish; Unleast thy mercy be our savegard, destruction is our desert.

Tung:—It is forgiuen: but it shall be punished.

EK: The Tung mownted up toward heven, and he saw it in the ayre out and above the stone aboue a hand bredth, mownting upward.

Δ: Thy Name be praysed in Æternitie, Ô God.

Amen.

Δ: Hereuppon, I was in an exceding great hevines, and sorrow of mynde: And sundry tymes, bewayled my case to God: and promised a greater care henceforeward, of Governing my Tung: and consenting to any unlawfull or unconvenient desire of my hert: yea, to forbeare to accumpany with my own wife, carnally: otherwise then by hevenly leave and permission, or if uppon my protestation making in the hardnes of the conflict that unleast the lord order and redress my cause, I shall be overcome: That, if I shall, so deliberately call for help; and notwithstanding be entrapped, That then, such trespace, shall not be imputed unto me, as gladly, gredyly or willingly committed of me &c.

May 9 Holly Thursday in the morning.

Δ: Being desyrous (before EK his going down into the Cuntrie,) to haue some Cumfort and token of free forgiuenes at Gods hands I browght furth the stone. Then I went into my Oratorie first requesting the Almightie God to respect the harty sorrowfull paines I had endured for my offenses; to regarde the Vows and intent of my better hede taking henceforth &c, and prayed the 22 Psalm in the conclusion of the pang.

EK:—One, all in white, appeareth in the stone, who sayde,[1576]

——It is written: It is written: yea, it is written:

Euen as the father his compassion is great over his yonglings and Children: So, is the abundance of thy mercy (o Lord) great and unspeakable to the long offences and sinnes of thy servant. For, it is written, the light of thy eyes haue beheld those that feare thee: and those that trust in thy mercy, shall not be confownded. Be it, what it was: And be you, what you were: For, the Lord, is euen the same, that he was, before:

But be you Warned.[1577]

Behold, my armes ar longer then my body, and I haue eyes rownd abowt me: I am that which GOD pronownceth uppon you: Be it as I haue sayde.

Δ: Thereuppon he disapeared; and immediately, appered Uriel, who sayd, Uri:—Actum est.[1578] Δ: Then the other two, and the Table and Chayre, and the ancient furniture appeared, agayn restored,[1579] and more bewtifull, then in foretyme.

Uri:—Thus, sayeth the Lord: Euen as the Tabernacle which I restore, is ten times brighter then it was, So may your Worthynes deserue brightnes ten tymes clerer then this. The rising of synners doth greatly reioyce us [and] That, he hath sayde, Do good unto those that feare me: and defend them, bycause they know my name. For in Justice they shall finde me theyr God: & in mercy their great Comforter.[1580] Therfore we say, In thy name (o thow most highest) fiat.

fiat.[1581]

Justifie not your self:

Be Humble and diligent:

Continue to the ende. For great is the reward of them that fear the Lorde stedfastly.

Δ: Whereas the ordring of the boke[1582] is referred to my Judgment: in my mynde it semeth requisite that as all the writing and reding of that holy language is from the right hand to the left, So the begynning of the boke must be, (as it were, in respect of our most usuall manner of bokes, in all languages of latin, greke, english &c) at the ende of the boke: and the ende, at the begynning, as in the hebru bible. Secondly the first leaf cannot be written in such little and æquall squares,[1583] as all the rest of the 47 leaves are: bycause, the first leafe; excepting 9 lines (of the second page) therof: is all of words: some conteyning many letters, and some few, very diuersly: wherfore, I entend to make many leaves, serve to distinguish the 49 rowes of the first leafe: and at the ende of euery word to draw a line of partition, up and down, betwene the two next parallell lines &c. or as shall come in my mynde then.

Ur:—He, that sayeth, Do this, directeth thy Judgment.

EK: Now is there a veale drawn before all: and all things appere far bewtifuller then euer they did.

Δ: I rendred thanks to the highest, and became in mynde Very Joyfull, that the Lord had pardoned my offences: whose name be praysed, extolled and magnifyed world with out ende. Amen.

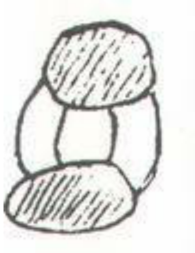
I prayed after this the short psalme, Jubilate Deo quotquot in terra versamini[1584] &c.

EK, immediately was to take bote and so to go to London: there to buy a saddell, brydle, and bote hose: for he had (here) yesterday, bowght a prety dun Mare, of goodman Pentecost: for iij £s, redy mony, in angels.

God be his guyde, help, and defense. Amen.

Thursday. May 23. Circa 10½ mane

> Δ: EK being come yesterday agayne and hauing . . . the erthes of the eleuen places before specifyed: [1585] we being desirous to . . . the furder pleasure of the highest therein, and in other matters perteyning to our Actions in hand: I made prayer to such intent, both in my oratory & at my desk, rendring thanks for EK his safe retorne, and for the benefit receued of late of the Governor and assistants for the Mines Royall (which I perceyued, was the extraordinary working of god for theyr inward perswasion; they being els very unwilling so to let the lease, as I obteyned it.) And moving somwhat towching Albert Lasky At length, EK hard a Melody a far of, and the voyce of many, singing, these words,



The stone

Pinzua[1586] Lephe ganiúrax Kelpadman pacaph.

Δ: At length the curten was taken away, and there appered a clere whitish fume, but not fyre. After that, cam the three, which were want to come in.

Michael:—Grauida est terra, laborat inquitatibus inimicorum lucis. Maledicta igitur est, quia quod in utero perditionis et tenebrarum est.

Uriel:—Sordida est, et odiosa nobis.

Raphael:—Proprijs sese flagellat tremulis.[1587]

EK: They loke abowt them, as thowgh they loked for somwhat or at somwhat.

Rap:—Veh dicit, sed non est qui audiat.

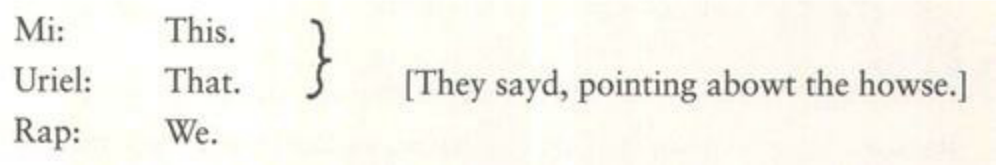
> Gementem vidimus: sed non est, qui misereat. Sanctificemur igitur, Sanctum eius, quia nos sanctificamur in illo.

Mich:—Fiat.[1588]

EK: He plucketh all the usuall hangings down abowt the place and now they take the Table away, and the Chayre: And where the Chayre was, semeth a Canapy or cloth of stade to hang.

Michael:—Transeunt vetera, Incipiunt nova.[1589]

EK: New seeme like clowdes to come abowt the Canapy being very beawtifull: and the bottom or flowr of the place, all couered with pretious stones: and in the middle therof, a rownd thing, like a carbuncle stone, bigger then ones fist.



Mi: This.
Uriel: That. [They sayd, pointing abowt the howse.]
Rap: We.

EK: They bring in a Throne like a Judgis seat or Throne and set it up, with the bak of it to the Wall.

Mich: Be it couered for a season. For euer and euer and euer is thy Justice, O GOD. [all three sayd.] EK: And there came light fire flashing from the Throne]

Thre commeth a beame from the Throne, and throwgh Raphael his head, and semeth to come out at his mowth. The other two seeme to knele downe: Michael on his right hand, and Uriel on his left.

Raphael:—I will speak (o Lord) bycause it is iust[1590] that thow hast commaunded:

Your rashnes (o worldlings) is trodden under fote: He sayeth, (I say not) your synns are forgiven.[1591]

Δ: O blessed God; ô prayse we his mercyes for euer: ô Cumfortable newes.

Raph:—For, whome I will viset, those do I clense (sayeth the lord). Whan other things decay by reason of theyr age and filthynes (quæ nunc sunt in summo gradu,[1592] and I will not suffer them to move one fote farder, sayth the lord,) Then shall your branches begyn to appere: And I will make you florish, for my gloryes sake. And my testimonies are true, and the wordes of my covenant iust: My pathes are thorny, but my dwelling place, is cumfortable.[1593] My hand is heuy, but my help is great. Be ye cumforted in me: for from me, in my self, I am your Cumforter: and lift up your harts as from the strength of an other. But be you unto me a new people: bycause I am to you no new god. Dwell with me to the ende bycause I haue byn with you from the begynning: For Who soeuer shall arrise agaynst you (Behold) I am with you.

Your fathers liued in darknes; and yet were revived. Yea your fathers were in light, and yet they saw not Truth. But I will be known: yea the Nations uppon earth, shall say, Lo this is he, whome we haue risen agaynst. I AM: Therfore reioyce.

[All three sayd,] We perish (o lord) for our unrighteousnes sake [and therewith they fell down.] But in thee we were created and in thee We rise agayn:[1594] Huseh Huseh Huseh garmal, Peleh Peleh Peleh pacáduasam.

Gyrd your gyrdles togither and pluck up your myndes: I say, open your eyes: and yf you haue eares, heare: for we tremble and quake. This mercy was neuer:[1595]no not in Israel.

Decedant mali, et pereant.[1596]

Depart o ye blasphemers, and workers of Iniquitie: For Here is Glory, Justification, with Sanctification. I answere thee.

Δ: Note: he meaneth, now to such matters as I propownded first of my self, and this Polander prince &c to give answer. The Prince had left with me these questions:

1. De Vita stephani Regis Poloniæ quid dici possit?[1597]

2. An successor eius erit Albertus Lasky, an ex domo Austriaca?[1598]

3. An Albertus Lasky Palatinus siradiensis habebit regnum Moldauiæ?[1599]

Behold you thanked God, and it is accepted. I say, Althowgh we require speede of thee and of you:[1600] yet ....

....speede of us, you haue a Master, we are his mowth ....

are Schollars, without us, you could * not heare him: Neyther cowld we heare him of our selves.

Consider the first, respect the second: Measure your selues, as the third.

For what you were & shalbe is allready appointed. And What He Was, is and shalbe, it is not of our determination. His purposes are without ende: yet, to an ende; in you, to an ende. Therfore When you shall be called-uppon,[1601] DO, that which is commaunded: But appoint no forme unto god his buylding. Many wyndes are to come: but theyr fury is in Vayne: It is sayd: The Conquest shall be yours.

To the purpose. Who puft-up this princis father with desire to Viset these cuntries: or who hath prevented him? Euen he that hath prouided him a sonne,.[1602] as an arme unto his chosen.

Truely the hills shalbe couered with blud: The Valleys shall take up the Cedar trees unframed: He seeth these places, but knoweth not to what ende.

He is dead,[1603] in respect of his absence: But honor them, whome God hath sanctified. For, Behold the Lord hath sayd: Thow shalt gouern me a people: a time there is, which is prefixed: and it is the course of the Sonne: Then shall it be sayd unto him, O King.[1604]

When you semed to be carryed unto mowntaynes, you towched his . . . Behold (sayeth He) Fornication[1605] shall not prevayle: the very stones shall be taken away: and the Tables shalbe couered with blud: and theyr dayly bankett shall be Wo Wo.

Whatsoeuer thow takest in hand, First loke Up: see if it be Just.[1606] Yf it be, put furth thy hand: For, it is graunted.[1607]

It is sayed, I haue giuen thee powre, and thy perswasion[1608] shall be like fire. And for my names sake, thow shalt triumphe against the mightiest. But beware of Pride.

Many witches and enchanters, yea many diuels haue rosen up against this stranger,[1609] and they haue sayd, We will preuayle against him: for, why? There is one, that aspireth and he it is, that seeketh his confusion. But I will graunt him his desire: He shall do good with many: your names are in one boke.[1610] Feare not, therfore, Love togither.

There shall arise, saying, let . . . .
talked with strangers: But I . . . .
I will driue them from theyr own . . . .
the bones which are buryed a far of . . . .[1611]
They do spit vengeance agaynst . . . .
them in theyr own filthynes . . . .
All men loke upon the . . . bycause it is glorified . . . .
Happy are they, whose faces are marked,[1612] and in w... is a percing fyre of workmanship.
I will move the Prince (sayeth the Lord) Be . . . .
shall shortly say, Ô give me Cownsayle: for th. . . . .[1613]
cownsayled me, conspire agaynst me:

Behold, such[1614] as shewed thee, little frendship, are rather such . . .
dede (as thow iustly hast confessed,) as were forced to doe . . .
good: I say, they, begyn to repine at that, the haue . . .[1615]

Let those which are of tyme, yelde to time.[1616] One euerlasting cumfort of grace, and perfect loue, be amongst you: to the honor and glory of him that loueth you.

Beleue, for the teacher his sake. All thow demaundest, is answered.

Of our selues, (we say,) We desire to be with you: And what is of us, the same be it unto you.

EK: They pluck the curten, affore the stone, all ouer. The curten is like beaten golde: [The other curtens did not cover all so wholy as this did.]

Δ: Semper sit benedictus Trinus et Unus.
Æternus et omnipotens Deus noster.
Amen.

Liber, sexti Mysteriorum (et sancti) parallelus, Noualisque sequitur.[1617]

Appendix 1: Description of Sigillum Dei Aemeth from Liber Juratus

The following excerpt is from Sloane 3854, folio 114v, with variant readings from the Royal manuscript (abbreviated R) and from Sloane 3885 (abbreviated S). The diagram of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth is taken from Sloane 313. This is very close to the (although considerably corrupted) version shown by Athanasius Kircher in his monumental work Oedipus Aegyptiacus (1562). The drawing of the sigil does not occur in Royal, Sloane 3854 or Sl.3885. The version in Sloane 3853 (reproduced in C. J. S. Thompson, The Mysteries and Secrets of Magic, New York, 1973, p. 186, but without identifying the source) is somewhat different.

De compositione signi dei vivi[1618]

Primo fac unum circulum cuius diameter sit trium digitorum propter tres clauos domini,[1619] vel 5 propter 5 plagas, vel 7 propter 7 sacramenta, vel 9 propter 9 ordines angelorum, sed communiter 5 digitorum fieri solet. Deinde infra illum circulum fac alium circulum a primo distantem duobus granis ordei propter duas tabulas moysi, vel distantem a primo tribus granis propter trinitatem parsonarm. Deinde infra illos duos circulos in superiori parte quæ dicitur angulus meridiei fac unam crucem, cuius tibia aliquantulum intrat[1620] circulum interiorem. Deinde a parte dextra crucis scribe .h. aspirationem deinde .t. deinde .o. deinde .e. x.[1621] o. r. a. b. a.[1622] l. a. y. q. c.[1623] i. y. s. t. a. l. g. a. a. o. n.[1624] o. s. v. l. a. r.[1625] y. t. c.[1626] e. k. s. s.[1627] p. f. y. o. m. e. m. a. u.[1628] a. r. e. l. a. c.[1629] e. d.[1630] a. t. o. n. o. n. a. o. y. l. e.[1631] y. o. t. m. a[1632] et iste[1633] literæ sunt eque[1634] distantes, et circu~dent circulum. eo ordine quo sunt prenominatæ[1635] et sic magnum nomen domini semenphoras[1636] 72 literarum erit completum. hoc facto in medio circulorum scilicet in centro fac unum pentagonum talem,  in cuius medio sit signum tau tale  et super illud signum scribe[1637] nomen dei el, et sub nomine aliud  nomen dei .l.[1638] ely. isto modo[1639] Deinde infra angulum superiorem [1640] pentagoni[1641] scribe istas duas litteras .lx.[1642] Et infra alium angulum dextrum istas duas[1643] .a.l. Et in alio [R 9v] post istum istas duas[1644] n.m.[1645] Deinde circa pentagonum fac unum eptagonum[1646] cuius latus superius secundum sui medium contingat angulum superiorem pentagoni ubi .l.x.[1647] scribebatur, et in eodem latere eptagoni[1648] scribe hoc nome~ sancti[1649] angeli quod est .casziel. Et in alio latere a dextris istud nomen alterius sancti angli quod est[1650] .satquiel. Deinde in alio .samael. et in alio .raphael. postea .anael. postea .michael. postea .gabriel. et sic 7 latera eptagoni[1651] erunt[1652] adimpleta,[1653] Deinde circa istum eptagonum[1654] predictum fac alium eptagonum[1655] non quoquo modo factum prius sed[1656] taliter quod unum latus ipsius intercedet[1657] latera alterius, Deinde fac alium eptagonum tale~[1658] qualis prius[1659] fuit cuius anguli 7 contingant angulos 7 eptagoni secundi quibus esse videtur. Hic tamen eptagonus infra perdictum secundum concludetur, unu~[1660] latus secundi eptagoni[1661] supernudo et aliud subenudo, sed[1662] latus primo angulos[1663] succedens subenudo ibit. et que[1664] secuntur[1665] serie supereuntis et subeuntis alterutrum se habebunt, Deinde in quolibet angulo secundi eptagoni[1666] una crux depingatur, Deinde in illo latere secundi eptagoni[1667] quod transit ab ultimo angulo eiusde~[1668] ad secundum angulum eiusde~ in eadem parte quæ est super[1669] .casziel. sillabe cuiusdam sancti[1670] dei nominis scribatur,[1671] Ita quod hac sillaba .la. scribatur in illo loco lateris perdicti[1672] qui est supra primam sillabam de .casziel. et hec[1673] sillaba .ya. in illo loco eiusdem[1674] lateris qui est supra ultimam sillabam eiusdem[1675] .casziel. et hec[1676] silliba .ly. in illo loco eiusdem lateris qui est latus intersecans predictum latus et crucem secundi anguli eiusdem, Deinde in[1677] latere illo quod tendit ab angulo primo eiusdem secundi eptagoni[1678] ad tertium angulum eiusdem scribatur hoc nomen sanctum dei[1679] .narath. ita quod hec[1680] sillaba .na. scribatur in illo loco eiusdeum lateris qui est supra primam sillabam de .satquiel. et hec[1681] sillaba .ra. in illo loco qui est supra ultimam eiusdem, et hec[1682] due[1683] literae

.t.h.[1684] in illo loco qui est in eodem latere[1685] inter latus secans ipsum[1686] et crucem tertiam,[1687] Deinde in illo latere eiusdem secundi eptagoni[1688] quod tendit .a. tertio[1689] angulo eiusdem ad quartum eiusdem scribatur hoc creatoris nomen sanctum quod dicitur .libarre. ita quod hec[1690] sillaba .ly. scribatur supra primam sillabam, de .raphael. et hec[1691] sillaba .bar. supra ultimam sillabam[1692] *eiusdem, et hæc sillaba .re. in illo loco *[1693] eiusdem lateris qui est inter latus intersecans ipsum et quintur angulum eiusdem secundi eptagoni,[1694] Deinde in illo latere eiusdem secundi eptagoni[1695] quod est .a. quinta cruce[1696] vsque ad ultimam scribatur hoc aliud sacrum creatoris nomen .libares. ita quod hec[1697] sillaba .ly. scribatur in illo loco lateris qui est supra primam sillabam ipsius .michael. et hec[1698] sillaba .ba. in illo loco lateris qui est supra ultimam sillabam eiusdem, et hec[1699] sillaba .res. in illo loco eiusdem lateris qui est inter latus intersecans ipsum et ultimam crucem. Deinde in illo latere eiusdem secundi iptagoni[1700] quod vadit a secundo angulo eiusdem secundi eptagoni[1701] ad quantum[1702] scribatur hoc[1703] aliud sacrum[1704] nomen[1705] .halg.[1706] cum coniunctina ita quod coniuunctina in illo loco eiusdem lateris scribatur qui[1707] est supra primam sillabam de .samael. et hæc litera .ly. in illo loco eiusdem lateris qui est supra ultimam eiusde~, et hæc sillaba .alg. in loco eiusdem lateris qui est inter latus intersecans ipsum et quartam crucem, Sed caue quod ra[1708] coniunctina sic debet scribi et[1709] cum titulo intersecante propter timorem dei malum nolitu~[1710] diuideutem. Deinde in illo latere eiusdem eptagoni[1711] tendente a quarta cruce ad sextam scribatur hoc aliud sacrum[1712] dei[1713] nomen .veham.[1714] ita quod hæc sillaba .ve.[1715] scribatur in illo loco eiusdem lateris qui est supra primam sillabam de .anael. et hæc litera .h. supra ultimam sillibam et hæc sillabam .am. in illo loco eiusdem lateris qui est latus secans ipsum et sextam crucem, Deinde in illo latere quod tendit a sexto angulo[1716] eiusdem secundi eptagoni[1717] ad primum angulum scribatur hoc aliud sacrum[1718] dei nomen .yalgal. ita quod hec[1719] litera .y. scribatur in illo loco[1720] eiusde~ lateris[1721] qui est supra primam sillabam de .gabriel. et hac sillaba .al. super[1722] ultimam et hæc sillaba .gal. in illo loco eiusdem lateris qui est inter latus intersecans ipsum et primam crucem, Deinde in medio lateris[1723] primi et tertii eptagoni[1724] a dextris[1725] scribatur .vos.[1726] et in sequenti latere eiusdem tertii eptagoni[1727] a dextris[1728] hoc Nomen .duymas.[1729] et in alio .Gyram. et in alio .Gram[1730] et in alio .Aysaram. et in alio .Alpha. et ω. in alio.[1731] Deinde in alio spaciolo quod est sub secundi et tertii angulo primo eptagonorum[1732] scribatur hoc nomen dei .el. et in alio spaciolo quod est a dextris sub angulis[1733] secundi et tertii eptagonorum[1734] sub secunda cruce hoc nomen .ON. et in illo[1735] alio spaciolo sub tertia cruce. iteru~[1736] hoc nomen .el. et in alio sub quarta cruce iterum .ON. et in alio sub qinta[1737] cruce iterum .el. et in alio sub sexu [1738] cruce iterum .ON. et in alio sub septima cruce .w. Deinde in illo[1739] spacio[1740] quod clauditur[1741] inter angulum primum[1742] secundi eptagoni[1743] et secundum angulum eiusdem et primum latus tertii eptagoni[1744] et portionem circuli contingentem illos angulos depingatur una crux, in medio .S.[1745] spacii illius. Et in bucca superiori a leua crucis scribatur hæc litera .a.[1746] et super buccam crucis secundam a dextris hæc litera .g. Et sub bucca inferiori a dextris[1747] scribatur haec alia[1748] litera .a.[1749] Et sub quarta bucca hsec[1750] litera .l. Deinde in alio spaciolo sequenti a dextris in medio scribatur hoc nomen[1751] .ely.[1752] et in alio hoc nomen .eloy.[1753] et in alio .christos. et in alio .sother.[1754] et in alio .Adonay.[1755] et in alio .Saday. Deinde scias qd in exemplaribus communiter[1756] pentagonus fit de rubeo cum croceo in spaciis tincto. Et primus[1757] septagonus[1758] de azurio, secundus de croceo, tertius de purpureo, et circuli de nigro, et spacium inter circulos ubi est nomen de maximum. ac venerabile[1759] .schemhamphoras. tingitr croceo, omnia alia[1760] spacia viridi habent tingi, Sed in operationibus aliter fieri debet, quia de sanguine aut. talpæ. aut .turturis. aut.[1761]vpupæ. aut .vespertilionis. aut omnium horum figuratur, et in pergameõ virgineo vitulino,[1762] vel[1763] equino, vel ceruino, et sic completur dei sigillum, Et per[1764] hoc sanctum et sacrum sigillum quando erit sacratum poteris. facere operationes quæ postea dicentur[1765] in hoc libro.[1766] Modus autem sacrandi hoc sacrum sigillum talis[1767] sicut sequitr[1768] debet esse.

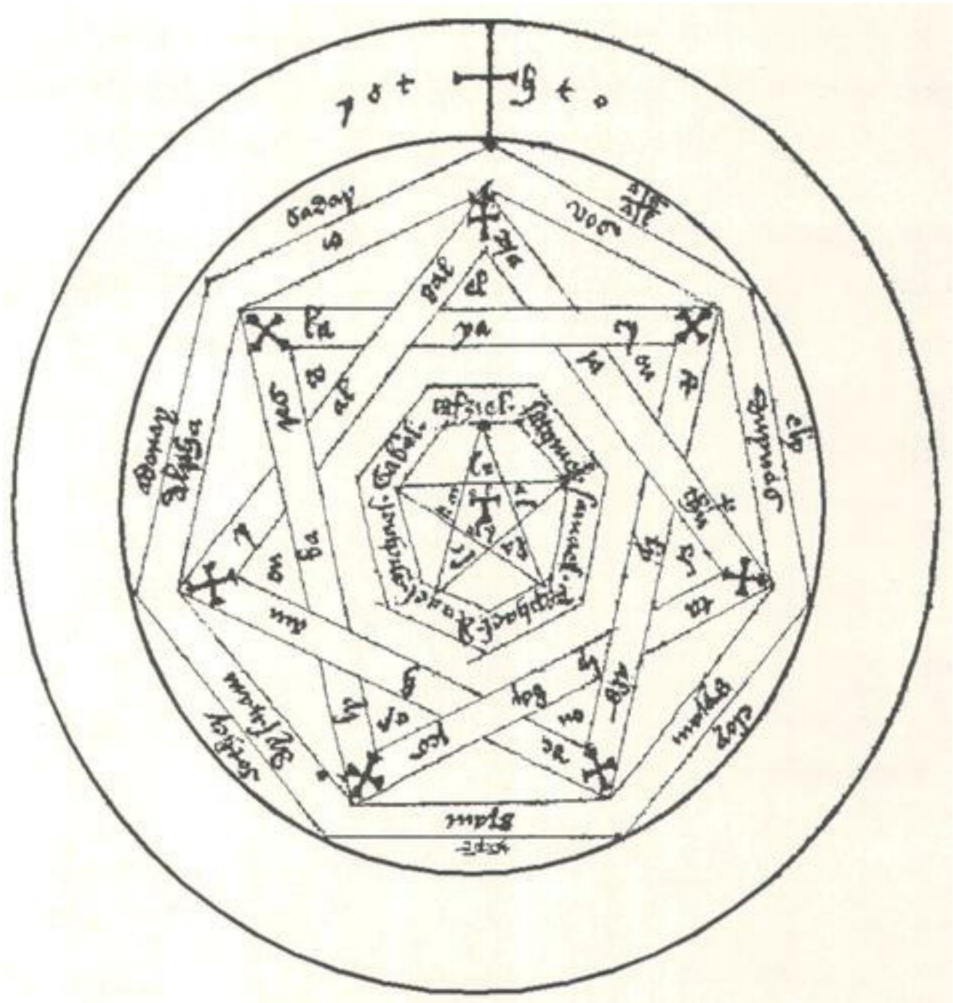

Figure 8. Sigillum Dei Aemeth from Liber Juratus.

Inspirante domino dixit Salomon unus est solus deus, sola fides, sola virt~s, quã dominus hominibus voluit revelari et distribui tali[1769] modo. Dixit[1770] Angulus .Samael. Salomoni hic[1771] dabis populo Israel qui et aliis similiter tribuent sic placuit creatori[1772] et inbet ipsum Dominus[1773] taliter consecrari.

Primo sit mundus operans non pollutus,[1774] et cum deuocione faciat non astute, non commedat neque bibat, donec perfecerit opus, Et sanguis quo scripts~[1775] fuerit primo sit benedictus sicut postea dicetur, Deinde suffumigetur,[1776] hoc sigillum ambra, musco, aloe, lapdano, albo, et rubeo, mastice, olibano, margaritis et thure. Invocando et orando dominum sicut postea de visione divina erudietur, Post[1777] invocando angelos sicut etiam[1778] infra[1779] Dicetur, mutabitur tñ[1780] peticio tali[1781] modo,

S: Oratio

Ut tu domine per annunciationem concepcionem et citera. Hoc sacratissimum nomen ac sigillum tuum benedicere et consecrare digneris[1782] ut per ipsum te[1783] mediante possim vel possit talis[1784] .N. celestes[1785] coniuncere[1786] potestates aereas et terreas[1787] cum infernalibus subingare, [S 63v] invocare, transmutare[1788] coniurare constringere, excitare, gongregare,[1789] dispergere, ligare ac ipsos innocuos reddere homines placare, et ab eis tuas[1790] peticiones graciosius[1791] habere, inimicos pacificare, pacificatos disimigere, sanos insanitate custodire vel infirmare. infirmos curare. homines bonos a malis custodire. et distinguere, et cognoscere, omne corporale periculum euadere, Judices in placito placatos reddere, victoriam in omnibus obtinere, pecrata carnalia mortificare et spiritualia fugare vincere, et euitare, divitias in bonis augmentare et du~[1792] in die indicii apparebit. a dextris tuis cum sanctis et electis tuis tuam possit cognoscere[1793] maiestatem

Et tunc illa nocte sub aere sereno[1794] extra domum dimittat, Tunc habeas chirotecas[1795] nouas sine creace factas inquas quis numquam manum posuerit[1796] in quibus signum glutetur, et sic complebitur hoc sacrum[1797] sigillum, Cuius primus eptagonus[1798] .7. ordines, Secundus .7. Articulos Duplos tertius .7. sacramenta Designat[1799]

Appendix 2: Athanasius Kircher: Oedipus Aegyptiacus: Sigillum Aemeth (Rome, 1652-4)

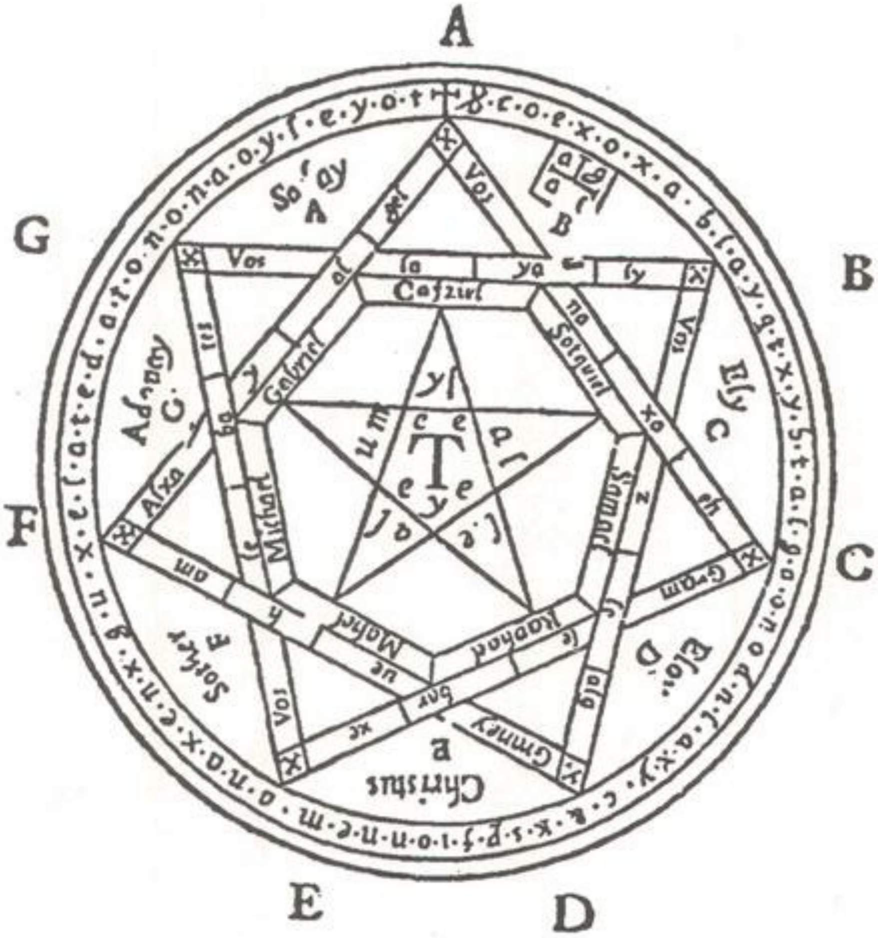
Amuleti alterius Cabalistici heptagoni Interpretatio

Hoc amuletum heptagonum circulo inclusum Veneri dicatum est, vti in Arithmetica hieroglyphica ostendimus. In circuitu signatae sunt 72 literae ex Cabala extractae, quarum vnaquaeque Angelum ex 72 indicat; de quibus vide Cabalam Hebraeorum fol. 275. Quis hic prima fronte non rideat maleferiatorum hominum stoliditatem, dum ineptijs huiusmodi Cabalisticis pessimé in Latinas literas transformatis, tantam tamen fidem habent, vt earum ope montes etiam se transferre posse, sibi persuadeant? Sed quoniam Diabolus humani generis hostis nihil agit, nisi quod in contumeliam Christi hominumque perniciem cedat; hinc ad Satanicam nequitiam tegendam, data opera, attributa Christi in cornibus heptagoni ponunt, id est, Angelus tenebrarum sub forma lucis sese exhibet; sunt autem sequentia attributa. Intra cornu AB, intra quadratum singulis Crucis angulis quatuor literae insertae spectantur a.g.l.a. quod Hebraicum nomen est, & in Cabala celeberrimum אגלא, quod expanse idem significat ac, אתה גבור לעולם אדני Tu fortis in aeternum Domine: Si enim capitalis singularum vocum literas in vnum iunxeris, prodibit nomen אגלא Agla, vti quadratum ostendit. Intra cornu BC ponitur אלי Eli, id est, Deus meus. Intra cornu CD ponitur אלהי Eloi, quod tametsi idem prorsus cum praecedente significet, tanquam diuersum tamen quidpiam posuerunt; vt vel hinc horum nebulonum supinam ignorantiam & inscitiam colligas. Intra DE Christus, deinde Sother, quod Graecé Saluatorem significat, né verminosum machinamentum Graeca voce carerer. Sequuntur postea Adonay & Sadai; illud Dominum, hoc Omnipotentem notat. Atque haec sunt septem attributa Christi, quibus subiungunt septem Veneris Intelligentias, quae sunt Cafziel, Satquiel, Samael, Raphael, Mahel, Michael, Gabriel; quae vocabula Hebraica passim translata sunt; vt vel ex hoc ipso appareat, á Deo bonisque Angelis emanare minime posse, quod tam turpiter, non nisi ab omnis turpitudinis Cacodaemone, transformatum est: talia sunt in heptagoni lateribus inscripta, verius ex culina Diaboli, quam ex Cabala translata vocabula. Inscribunt tandem huic heptagono pentagonum, in cuius centro litera T symbolum salutis; circa quod cum has literas υγεια scribere debuissent, bestijs tamen inscitiores has supposuerunt e e e e y. Intra triangula vero ex Arabum amuletaria officina ponuntur yl, al, le, al, um, corruptissimé vti omnia alia; volebant enim illud Arabicum exprimere لا الله الا الله la alla ella alla, non est Deus nisi Deus, quod dum pronunciare nequirent, illorum loco dicta inconcinnissima verba posuerunt, yl, al, le, al, um: sed quid sibi velint duo verba, um, explico. In dicto Arabum pronunciato sem الا, per hae voces sequuntur, ومحمد رسول الله Mahumet rassulalla; atque harum capitales literas referunt um. Vt vel ex hoc colligas, quantis modis illudat Daemon incautis hominibus, vt dum Christiani esse volunt, occulte Mahumetanismum profiteantur; in hoc enim vnico Amuleto quatuor sectarum, Iudaicae, Christianae, Mahumetanae, Paganae, ab ijs, qui illud portant, fit professio, id que occulto pacto Daemonis, ad Christianae religionis contumeliam ea de causa instituto. Sed quid pentagonum sibi velit, expono. Pentagonum Veteres, vti in Arithmetica docuimus, Marti, vti & heptagonum Veneri dedicarunt; quo quidem indicabant, neminem Venerem possidere, qui priús Martem non attraxisset; de quibus in Astrologia Aegyptiaca susiús; hoc enim pentagono victoriam in omnibus sibi spondebant. Porró finis huius Amuleti erat, amorem & beneuolentiam omnium, & consequenter carnalium desideriorum plenam fruitionem, victoriamque contra omnia aduersa eius gestatione obtinere; quod ex adiuratione quam pronunciare solent, qua & Deum, & Angelos, veriús Cacodaemones cum inuocatione Veneris aut Martis sacrilego & impio ritu sollicitare solent, patet, quam &, né Christianae aures vulnerentur, consultó omitto. Quicunque itaque huiusmodo possederit farinae Amuletum, illud non naturale, non Diuinum aut Angelicum, sed immediatum Diabolicae machinationis opus se possidere sibi persuadeat, non nisi cum aeterna animae ruina vsurpandum.



A
B
C
D
E
F
G
Vos
Casziel
Satquiel
Samael
Raphael
Mahiel
Michael
Gabriel
Ely
Eloi
Christus
Gimney
Gram
Sother
Adonay
Alxa
T

Figure 9. Sigillum Aemeth from Oedipus Aegyptiacus.

Appendix 3: Theurgia Goetia.[1800]

It deals with aerial spirits, whose nature is neither entirely good nor evil:

To call forth any of the aforesaid aerial spirits or their servants, choose the uttermost private, secret and most tacit room in the house or in some certain island, wooded grove, or the most occult and hidden place, removed from all comers and goers, that no one chance (if possible) happen that way into your chamber or whatsoever place else you act your concerns in. Observe that it be very airy because these spirits are of that nature.

You may call these spirits into a crystal stone or glass receptacle, this being the ancient and usual way of receiving and binding spirits. This crystal stone must be four inches diameter set on a table of art, made according to the following figure, which is truly called the secret table of Solomon, having his seal on your breast and the girdle about your waist as is shewed in the book Goetia and you cannot err. The form of the table is this:

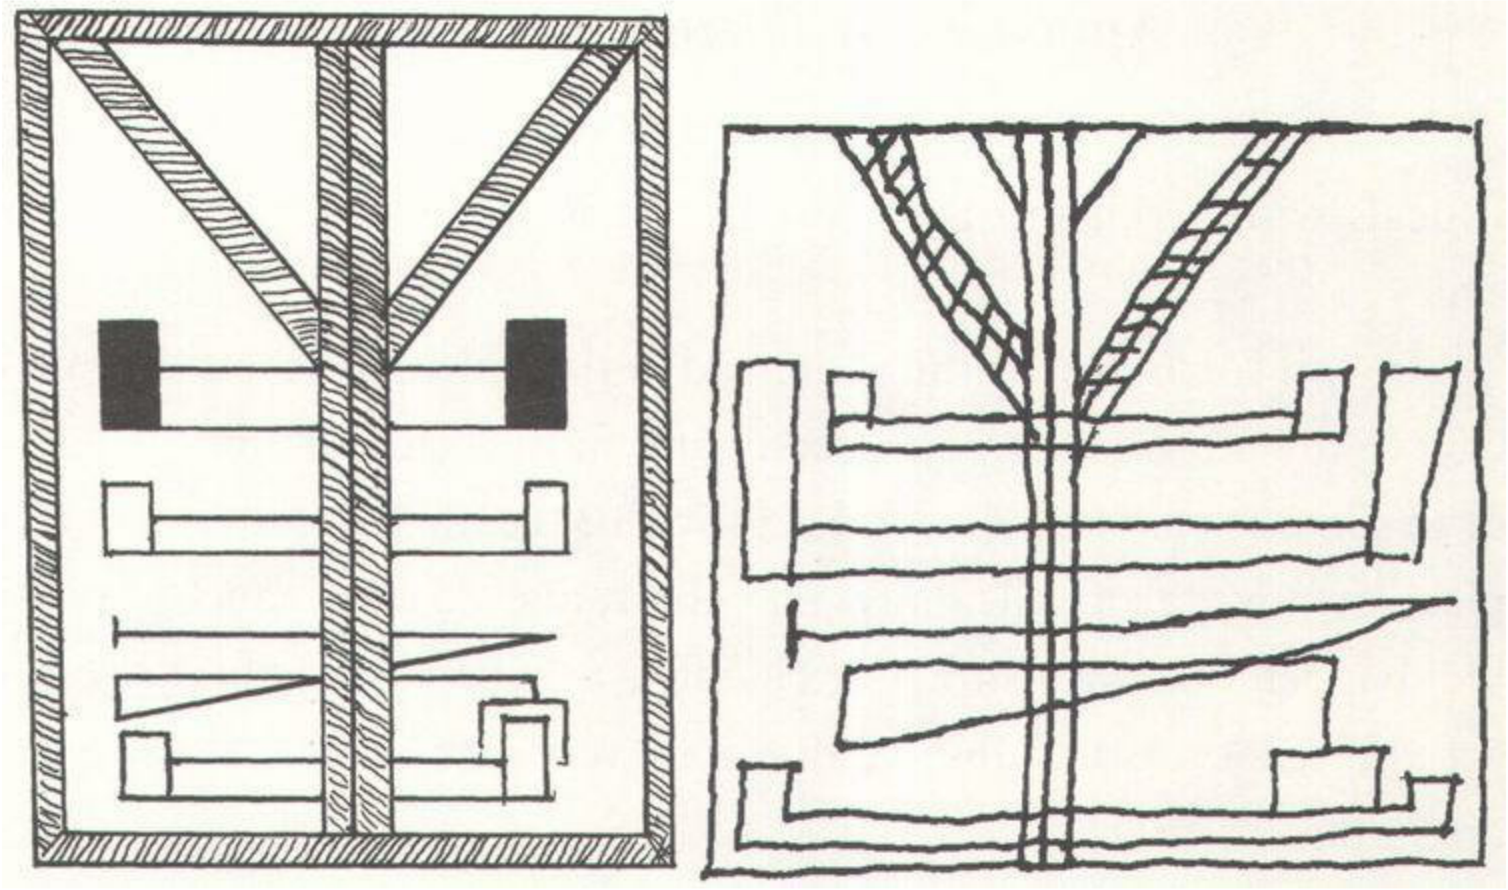

Figure 10. Seal of Solomon, from Harley 6483 (left); and from Sloane 3825 (right).

When you have thus got what is to be prepared, rehearse the conjuration following several times, that is, whilst the spirit comes, for without doubt he will come.

The Conjuration of the Aerial Spirits

I conjure thee O thou mighty and potent duke N. who ruleth under thy prince (or king) N. in the dominion of the East (or &c.) (Or, “I conjure thee o thou mighty and potent duke N. who wandereth here and there with thy prince N.”[1801])

I conjure thee N. that thou forthwith appear alone (or with thy servants) in this first (or second) hour of the day, here before me in this crystal stone (or here before this circle) in a fair and comely shape, to do my will in all things that I shall desire or request of thee. I conjure and powerfully command of thee N. by him who said the word and it was done, and by all the holy and powerful names of God and by the name of the only Creator of Heaven, Earth, and Hell, and what is contained in them : ADONAY, EL ELOHIM, ELOHE, ELION, ESCERIE ZEBAOTH, JAH, TETRAGRAMMATON, SADAY, the only Lord of God of Hosts, that thou forthwith appear unto me here in this crystal stone (or here before this circle) in a fair and comely human shape, without doing any harm to me or any other creature that JEHOVAH created or made, but come thee peaceably, visibly, and affably, now without delay manifesting what I desire, being conjured by the name of the eternal living and true God: HELIOREN, TETRAGRAMMATON, ANEPHEXETON, and fulfill my commands and persist unto the end. I conjure, command and constrain thee spirit N. by ALPHA & OMEGA, by the name PRIMEUMATON, which commandeth the whole host of heaven, and by all those names which Moses named when he by the power of those names brought great plagues upon Pharoah, and all the people of Egypt: ZEBAOTH, ESCHERIE, ORISTON, ELION, ADONAY, PRIMEUMATON, and by the name of SCHEMES AMATHIA which Joshua called upon and the sun stayed his course, and by the name of Hagios, and by the SEAL OF ADONAY and by AGLA, ON, TETRAGRAMMATON, to whom all creatures are obedient, and by the dreadful judgment of the high God and by the holy angels of heave and by the mighty wisdom of the great God of Hosts, that thou comest from all parts of the world and make rational answers unto all things I shall ask of thee, and come thou peaceably, visibly and affably, speaking unto me with a voice intelligible and to my understanding. Therefore come, come thou in the name of ADONAY, ZEBAOTH, ADONAY, AMIORAM, come, why stayeth thou, hasten: ADONAY SADAY, the King of kings commandeth thee!

When he is appeared show him his seal, and the pentacle of Salomon, saying as followeth:

The Address Unto the Spirit Upon His Coming

Behold the pentacle of Salomon which I have brought before thy presence. Behold the person of the Exorcist who is called OCTINOMOS, in the midst of the exorcism, who is armed by God and is without fear, who potently invocateth thee and called thee to appear. Therefore make rational answers to my demands and be obedient to me thy master in the name of the Lord: BATHAT rudhing upon ABRAC, ABEOR coming upon ABERER!

When thou hast had thy desire of the spirits, licence them to depart as is shewed in the first book Goetia, at the latter end of the conjurations.

Appendix 4: Art Pauline.[1802]

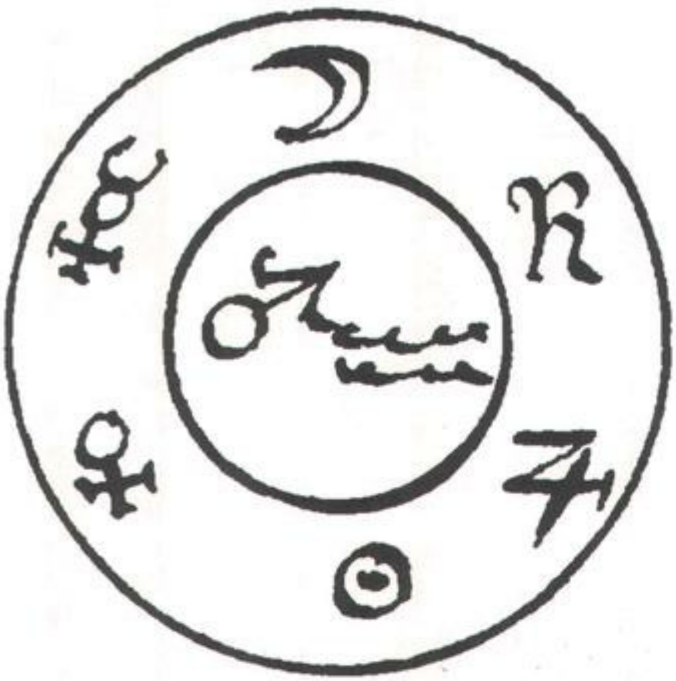
The second example comes from The Art Pauline, which describes calling forth spirits governing the hours, and spirits governing the signs of the zodiac:

First draw two concentric circles whereupon thou wilt draw the seal. In the center circle draw the ascendant to the right, and the lord of the ascendant to the left, then in the outer circle draw the rest of the planets in the following order: Moon, Mercury, Venus, Sun, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn.



The seal being thus made, lay it on the table of practise whose form we now show, on that part which is noted with the same character as the lord of the ascendant.

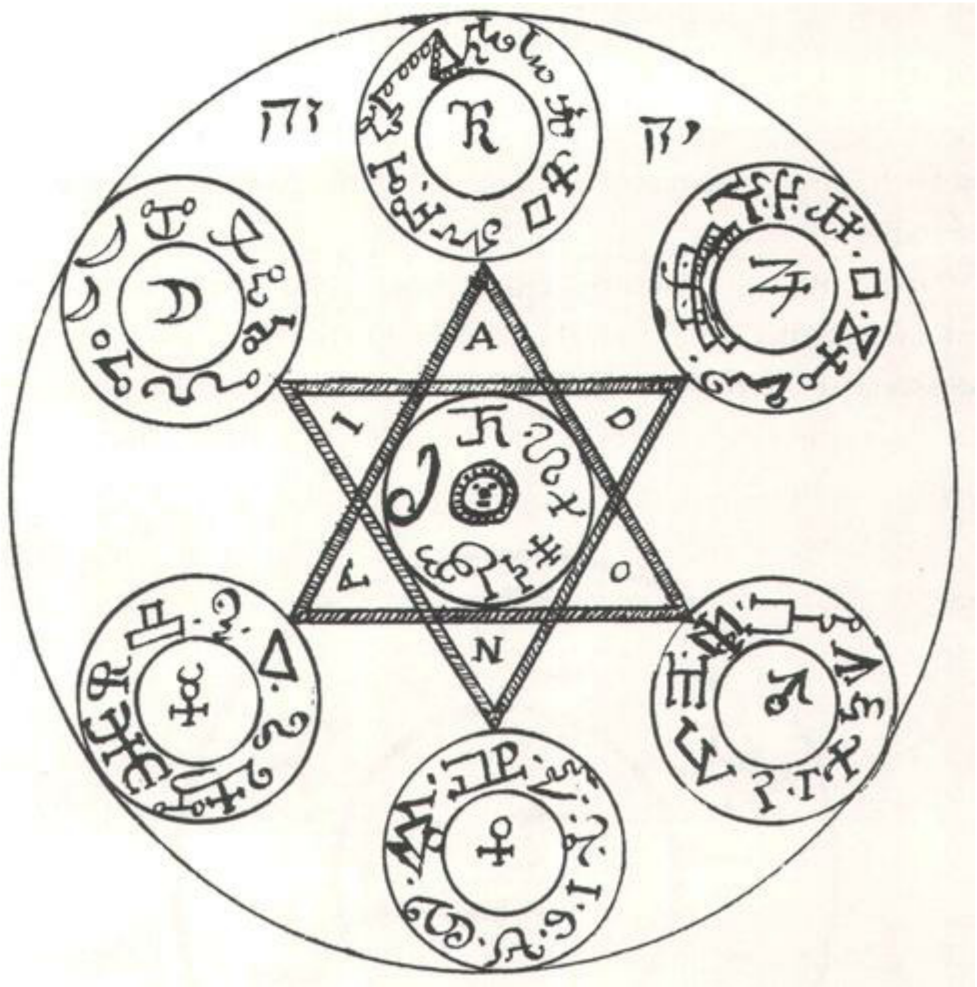


Figure 11. Table of Practice from the Art Pauline.

Perfume the seal with the thimmiamate proper to the planet, lay your hand upon it, and then say the following conjuration.

The Conjuration as Followeth:

O thou mighty, great and potent Angel N., who ruleth in the Nth. hour of the day, I the servant of the most high God do conjure and entreat thee in the name of the most omnipotent and immortal Lord God of Hosts: JEHOVAH TETRAGRAMMATON, and by the name of that God which thou art obedient unto, and by the head of the hierarchy and by the seal or mark that thou art known in power by, and by the seven angels that stand before the throne of God and by the seven planets and their seals and characters, and by the angel that ruleth the sign of the twelfth house which now ascends in this Nth. hour, that thou wouldst be graciously pleased to gird up and gather thyself together and by divine permission to move and come from all parth of the world, wheresoever thou beest, and show thyself visibly and plainly in this crystal stone to the sight of my eyes, speaking with a voice intelligible and to my understanding and that thou wouldst be favorably pleased that I may have familiar friendship and constant society both now and at all tims when I shall call thee forth to visible appearance to inform and direct me in all things that I shall seem good and lawful uunto the creator and thee, O thou great and powerful angel N. I invocate, adjure, command and most powerfully call thee forth from thine orders and place of residence to visible appearance in and through these great and mighty signals and divine names of the great God, who was and is and ever shall be: ADONAY, ZEBAOTH, ADONAY AMIORAM, HAGIOS, AGLA, ON, TETRAGRAMMATON, and by and in the name PRIMEUMATON, which commandeth the whole host of heaven, whose power and virtue are most effectual for the calling and ordering of the creation, I do command thee to transmit thy rays visibly and perfectly unto my sight, and thy voice to my ears, in and through this crystal stone, that I may plainly see thee and perfectly hear thee speak unto me. Therefore move thee, O thou mighty and blessed Angel N., and in this potent name of the great God JEHOVAH, and by the imperial dignity thereof, descend and show thyself visibly and perfectly in a pleasant and comely form before me in this crystal stone to the sight of my eyes, speaking with a voice intelligible and to my apprehension, showing, declaring, and accomplishing all my desires that I shall ask or request of thee both herein and in whatsoever truths or things else that is just and lawful before the presence of Almighty God, the giver of all good gifts, unto whom I beg that he wuld be graciously pleased to bestow upon me. I thou servant of mercy N., be thou therefore unto me friendly, and do for me as for the servant of the most high God, so far as God shall give thee power in office to perform, whereunto I move thee in power and presence to appear, that I may sing with his holy Angels, OMAPPA-LA-MAN, HALLELUJAH, AMEN.

Appendix 5: The Art Almadel (Ars Almadel Salomonis)[1803]

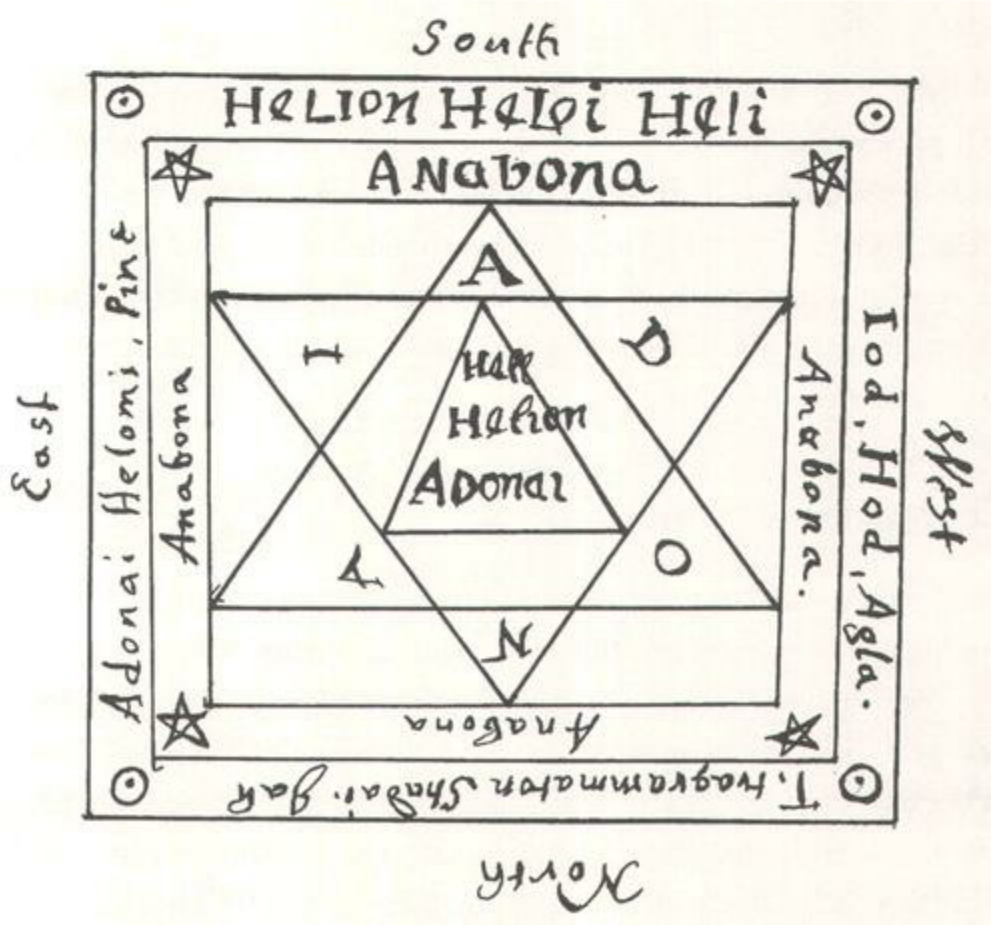
[Editor’s note: A text of this name is mentioned in Trithemius, and R. Scot.]

By this art Salomon obtained great wisdom from the chief angels that govern the four altitudes of the world, for you must observe that there be four altitudes, representing the four corners of the world, East, West, North and South. The which are divided into twelve parts, that is, evert altitude into three, and the angels of every of these altitudes have their particular vertues and powers as shall be shewed in this following matter.

The Making of the Almadel

Make the Almadel of pure white wax, but coloured suitable to the altitude as will be shown. It is to be four square, and six inches over every way, and in every corner a hole, and write betwixt every hole, with a new pen, these words or names of God following, But this is to be done in the day and hour of Sol. Write upon the first part towards the East, ADONAI, HELOMI, PINE, and upon the second towards the South, HELION, HELOI, HELI, and upon the West part: JOD, HOD, AGLA, and upon the fourt part which is the North write these names: TETRAGRAMMATON, SHADAI, JAH, and betwixt the first and the other quarters make the pentacle of Salomon thus, and betwixt the forst and the other quarters write this word, ANABONA, and in the middle of the Almadel make a Six-angled figure, and in the midst of it a triangle wherein must be written these names of God, HEL, HELION, ADONAI, and this last name around the six-angled figure as well, as you may see in this figure, here made, it being for an example, &c.



South
Helion Heloi Heli
Anabona
East
Adonai Helomi, Pine
Anabona
A
D
O
N
A
I Hel
Helion
Adonai
West
Iod, Hod, Agla.
Anabona.
Anabona
T. tragrammaton Shadai. Jah
North

Figure 12. Almadel from Ars Almadel Salomonis.

And of the same wax there must be made four candles, and they must be of the same colour as the Almadel is of. You must divide the wax into three parts, one part for to make the Almadel of, and the other two parts for to make the candles of. And let there come forth from every one of them a foot made of the same wax, for to support the almadel with. This being done, in the next place you are to make a seal of pure gold or silver, but Gold is best, wherein must be engraven these three names: HELION, HELLUJON, ADONAY

Note the first altitude is called Chora Orientis, or the East Altitude, and to make any experiment in this Chora, it is to be done in the day and hour of the Sun. The power and office of those angels is to make all things fruitful and increase, both animals and vegetables, in creation and generation, advancing the birth of the children, and making barren women fruitful, &c. Their names are these: Alimiel, Gabriel, Borachiel, Lebes and Hellison.

Note you must not pray for any angels but those that belong to the same altitude you have a desire to call forth. And when you operate, set the four candles upon four candle sticks, but be careful you do not light them before you begin to operate. Then lay the Almadel between the four candles upon the waxen feet that cometh from the candles, and lay the golden seal upon the Almadel. Then, having the invocation ready written on virgin parchment, light the candles and read the invocation as is set down at the latter end of this part.

And when he appeareth, he appeareth in the form of an angel carrying in his hand a fan or flag, having the picture of a white cross upon it. His body is wrapped round about with a fair cloud, and his face very fair and bright, and a crown of rose flowers is upon his head. He descends first upon the superscription of the Almadel, as if it were a mist or fog.

Then must the exorcist must have in readiness a vessel of earth, of the same colour that the Almadel is of, and the other of his furniture, it being in the form of a basin, and put therein a few hot ashes or coals, but not too much, lest it should melt the wax of the Almadel, and put therein three little grains of mastic in powder, so that it fumeth, and the smell may go upwards through the holes of the Almadel, when it is under it, and as soon as the angel smells it he beginneth to speak with a low voice, asking what your desire is and why you have called the princes and governers of his Altitude. Then you must answer him, saying, I desire that all my requests may be granted, and what I pray for may be accomplished, for your office maketh appear and declareth that such is to be fulfilled by you if it pleases God, &c, adding further the particulars of your requests, praying with sincerity and humility for what is lawful and just, and that you shalt indeed obtain from him.

But if he doth not appear presently, you must then take the golden seal, and make with it three or four marks upon the candles, by which means the angel will presently appear as aforesaid, and when the angel departeth he will fill the whole place with a sweet and pleasant smell, which will be smelt a long time.

Note the golden seal will serve, and is to be used in the operation of all the altitudes. The colour of the Almadel belonging to the first chora is lily white; to the second chora a perfect red rose colour; the third chora is to be a green mixt with a white silver colour; the fourth chora is to be a black mixt with a little green of a sad colour.

Of the Second Chora or Altitude

Note that all the other three altitudes, with their signs and princes have power over goods and riches, and can make any man rich or poor, and as the first Chora giveth increase and maketh fruitful, so to these giveth decrease and barrenness, &c.

And if any have a desire to operate in any of the other three Choras or Altitudes, they must do it on Sundays in the manner as above is shewed, but do not pray for anything that is contrary to the nature of their office, or against God and his laws, but what God giveth according to the course of nature, that you may desire and obtain.

All the furniture that is to be used is to be of the same colour as the Almadel is of, and the princes of this Second Chora are named as followeth: Alphariza, Genon, Geror, Armon, Gereinin.

When you operate, kneel before the Almadel with clothes of the same colour in a closet hung with the same colours also, for the holy apparation will be of the same colour. And when he is appeared, put the earthen bason under the Almadel with fire and hot ashes and three grains of mastic in powder, to fume as above written, and when the angel smelleth the perfume, he turneth his face towards you, asking the exorcist with a low voice why he called the princes of this Chora or Altitude. Then you must answer as before, saying: I desire that my request may be granted, and the contents thereof may be accomplished, for your offices make appear and declare that such is to be done by you if it please God, &c. You must not be fearful but speak humbly, saying: I recommend myself wholly into your office, and I pray unto your princes of this Altitude that I may enjoy and obtain all things according to my wishes and desires, &c. You may further express your mind in all particulars in your prayers. Do the like in the two other Choras that follow.

The angel of this second Altitude appeareth in the form of a young child with clothes of satin and of a red rose colour, having a crown of red gilly flowers upon his head, his face looking upwards to heaven; and is of a red colour and is compassed round about with a bright splendour, as the beams of the Sun. And before he departeth he speaks to the exorcist saying: I am your friend and brother. And he illuminateth the air round above with splendour, and he leaveth a pleasant smell, which lasteth a long time, &c.

Of the Third Chora or Altitude

In this Chora you are to do in all things as you are before directed in the other two. The angels of this Altitude are named as followeth: Eliphamasai, Gelomiros, Gedobonal, Saranana, and Elomnia. They appear in the form of children or little women dressed in green and silver colours, very delightful to behold, and a crown of bay leaves, beset with flowers of white and green colours upon their heads. And they seem to look a little downwards with their faces, &c. They speak as the others do to the exorcist, and leave a mighty, sweet perfume behind them, &c.

Of the Fourth Chora or Altitude

In this Chora you must do as in the others, and the angels of this Chora are called Barchiel, Gediel, Gabiel, Deliel and Captiel. These appear in the form of little men or boys with clothes of a black colour, mixed with a dark green, and in their hands they hold a bird which is naked, and their heads are bear, only it is compassed round and beset with ivy and berries. They are all very beautiful and comely and are compassed round with a bright shining of divers colours. They leave a sweet smell behind them also, but it differeth from the others somewhat.

Of the Proper Times for Invoking These Angels

Note there are twelve princes ruling besides those in the four Altitudes, and they distribute their office amongst themselves, every one ruling thirty days, or thereabouts, every year. Now it will be in vain to call any of those angels unless it be those that then governeth, for every Chora or Altitude hath its limited time according to the twelve signs of the Zodiac, and in what sign the Sun is in, that angel or those angels that belong to that sign have the government. As, for example, suppose I would call the two first of those five that belong to the first Chora. Then choose the first Sunday on March, that is, after the Sun is entered Aries, and then I make my experiment. And so do the like if you will the next Sunday after again. But if you will call the two second that belong to the first Chora, then you must take the Sundays that are in April, after the Sun is entered Taurus.

But if you call the last of the five, then you must take those Sundays that are in May, after the Sun is entered Gemini, to make your experiment in: do the like in the other Altitudes, for they have all one way of working. But the Altitudes have a name formed severally in the substance of heaven even as a character, for when the angels hear the names of God that are attributed to them they hear it by the vertue of that character. Therefore it is in vain to call any spirit or angel unless you know what names of God to call them by. Therefore observe the form of this following conjuration or invocation.

The Invocation for to Call Forth Any of the Foresaid Angels

O thou great, mighty, and blessed angel of God N, who ruleth as the chief and first governing angel in the first Chora or Altitude in the East, under the great prince of the East whom you obey, and who is set over you as king by the divine power of God, ADONAI, HELOMI, PINE, who is the distributer and disposer of all things holy in Heaven, Earth, and Hell, I the servant of that God ADONAI, HELOMI, PINE, which you obey, do invocate, conjure and entreat thee N, that thou forthwith appeareth. And by the vertue and power of the same God, ADONAI, HELOMI, PINE, I do command thee forth by him whom you do obey and who is set over you as king by the divine power of God, that you forthwith descend from thy order or place of abode to come into me, and show thyself plainly and visibly here before me in this crystal stone, in thy own and proper shape and glory, speaking with a voice intelligible unto my understanding.

O thou mighty and blessed angel N, who art by the power of God ordained to govern all vegetables and animals, and causeth them and all other creatures of God to spring, increase and bring forth according to their kinds and natures, I the servant of the same your God, do entreat and humbly beseech thee to come and show unto me all things that I shall desire of thee, so far as in office you can, or be capable to perform, if God permit to the same.

O thou servant of mercy N, I entreat thee and humbly beseech thee, in and by these three names of your true God, ADONAI, HELOMI, PINE, and do constrain thee in and by this powerful name ANABONA, that thou forthwith appeareth visibly and plainly in thy own proper shape and glory, in and through this crystal stone, that I may visibly see thee, and audibly hear thee speak unto me, that I may have thy blessed and glorious angelic assistance, familiar friendship and constant society, communication and instruction, both now and at all other times, to inform and rightly instruct me in my ignorance and depraved intellect, judgement and understanding; and to assist me both herein, and in all other truths, else what the Almighty Adonai, the king of kings, the giver of all good gifts, shall in his bountiful and fatherly mercy be graceously pleased to bestow upon me, Therefore O thou blessed angel N. be friendly unto me, and do for me so far as God hath given you power in office to perform, whereunto I move you in power and presence to appear that I may sing with his holy angels: O Mappa-la-man! Hallelujah! Amen.

Note this invocation is to be altered according to the Altitude and angel you wish to call forth.

When he is appeared, give him or them a kind entertainment, and then ask what is just and lawful, and that which is proper and suitable to his office, and you shall obtain it.

SO ENDETH THE BOOK
ARS ALMADEL SALOMONIS

Appendix 6: Excerpt from Sloane 3849

Manner of Proceding in order to discover in the Crystall

Sic signum sancte Sanctis in fronte puery sic decendo In nomina pateris et filij et spiritus sancti amen dicat % paternoster / deinde istos spactanas o pater animary sequentes, viz t

Deus miserator[1804] nostery et benedicat nobis illiminet vultum suum super nos et miseratas nostery ut Cognosamos in tarra viam tuam in omnibus gentibus salutarry tuum. Conficantur tibi populi deus Conficanter tibi populi omnes Litenter et exultent gentes quoniam iudicas populos iniquitate et gentes interra deriges Conficianter tibi populi deus Conficianter tibi populi omnes Terra dedit fractum suam

B

Benedicat nos deus deus noster benedicat nos deua et metuante eum omnes fines terra.
Gloria patri et fillio et Spiritu Sancto Sicut erat in prinsipio et secula seculorum amen

D

Deus[1805] in nomine tuo salum me fac et in vertute tua iudica me

D

Deus exoude orationem meum auribus percipe verba oris mei

Quoniam aliena insurrexerunt aodversum me et fortes que siderant animam meam et non proposuerunt deum ante conspectum sum

Exe enim deus adiuuat me et dominus susseptor est anime me
Avarta mala enemisis meis et in veritate tua dispee illos voluntary sacrificabo tibi et Confitebor nomine tuo domine quoniam bonum est.
Quoniam Ex omni tribulatione eripaeisti me et super enimicos meos dispecsit oculis meis
Glorie patrie

Misereri[1806] mei deus et secundum
magnam miserecordiam tuam

Et secundum multitadinem meserationem tuarum deld in equitatem meam dE (?)
Amptus Sana me abiniquitate mea et apeccato mea mandame
Quoniam iniquitatem meame ego cognosco et pecatum meam contra me est semper Tibibi soli pecam et malim corum te fesient nist insermonibus tuis et vnitas cumim dicaris
Exe emam iniquitatibus conseptus suam et in pecatis conceptis me mater mea

Exe (?) enimam veritatatem delexisti in terta et occulta sapientia manistastati mighi
Asparges me domine isopo et mundaborir haenabis me et semper muem dealdabor Auditeiome dabis gouldinam et litia et extutabunt essa humilitata Cormandoem cre in me deus et spiritum nona in viseribus meis

Me exrpissius mea sacie tua et Scriptum sanctum tuamene anseris ame
Pedde mighi leticiam salataris tui et speritum principialis confirma me Docebo iniquos viuas tuas et impije adte conuertantur
Libera mede sangunibus deus deus salutis me et exultabit lingua me Iusticiam tuam
Domine labie me aparies et os meum aniabit landem tuam
Quoniam voluises sacri fissiam dedissem vtique holo castis non delectabris Sacrifitiam deo spritus contribulates cor Contrat et humilitatem deus non dispities Benin que sac domine in bona voluntate tua sion vt edificanter mari Jeruselem tunce acceptabis satis ficium iustisia obligationes et holocasta tunck imponetsuper altera

tuim vertulos Amen. * * * * * * *

O Dominee Jesu cristie rex gloria mitte mihie trese angelos bono / ex parte tua dextra viz ancor annasor anelose qui dicante et ofendantie mihie veritatem sine falsetate et falatia de omnibus rebus quas interagabo domine Jesue cristi creator celie et tarra qui totam mundinum (?)

secistie exmihelo sac quod appariante isti angeli boni prinsipialis palem puero / w: w: / exerdom (?)
nostrum Jesum cristium conceptus de spiritue sancto vergine &c./

Sicat tues verus deus et homo mitte mihie tres angelos bonos palem aparire ista cristalo viz / Anser / annasor / Analos / admisu istris puerie / W: W: / per iste sacritissima nomina dei eloy tetera-grammaton Saboth Alpha et omega principium et finis expediatris vos angely deij per sanctam mariam matrem domine nostri Jesu Cristy et per nomen ordenes angelorum Cherubin Saraphin tronos dominationes potestatis et principialis et pervirtutem archangelius michalis gabrialis qui non cestante clannary ante tronam dei semper cantatis Sanctus Sanctus Sanctus dominus Deus saboth quiest quierit et quiventurus / omnes reliquos qui sunti? in est in decare mandum et pur puer celo et tarra et parlac quod dominus noster Jesus cristus lactabit ex manus beate maryu vergenis quanddo verus puer erat elle in hac mundo et per vestem communam qua in dutus (?)

est Jesus et pervingen tam dequo sancta maria mageline vnxit pedes Iesus et extarat eos calpilis cupitus suis quando palem et sine mora comperiatis ad visma istius puery : N: / N: / ista cristalo  (?) oher it will appeare as it weare a child in the Cristall if hee doe not appeare begine againe and if hee had apeared then spake to the first Angeli dei beni venistie in nomini pateris et fillij et spiritus sanctus pillam intentionem quam habuit dominus deus noster Jesus Christus minente (?) quando deposuit luisiseri mundecelom putrem serioris et eligit vos probelantisiones angelis.

Then Cale for the second as you due for the first so proside and begin againe vntill you haue them all three and then say to the second Angell

Angeli dei beni venistris in nomine pateris et fillij et Spiritus sancti per verginalem materis domine nosteri Iesu Christie et per vergini tatem Johannes baptisti et per capitutenis* proceed to the theerd

Angeli dei beni venistris in nomine pateris et feillij et spiritis sancti pre nerentiam passiones domine nostri Jesu Christi et per renerentiam sacrimenti illiaris que dominus noster Jesus cristus fecit in send sua et dedit desiputis suis dictus hoc est corpus meum hoc cessat * *

Then say this exortation ouer the cristall folowinge and mat this + synd.

Quose Angeli + rogo vos presipio vobis vos exorsiso peromina principialibe nomina qui noliset homin~ loqui nisi sp’us sancti + et per reuerentiam sacrementy pasio dei nosteri Jesus Cristi et reuerentunam sacromentie alteris q’d (?) deus noster Jesus cristus fecit cena sua et dedid dicipulis suis dicence hoc este corpus meum q’d (?) mostratis mihe sine salcitate vel fallatia petita et loquisita et petenta et reuerenda Theise exortations you must repeate and let the child name them by there names sainge ancor anasor anelos shew mee the persons and the aparell of them that hath such a mans mony to this childe and the will declare.

the pson or persons and the apparell of them that had such a mans money [struck out: to this child] and if the Come not the first day folow still to the Chilld untill you may haue a sight of them for the will apeare personalie as the to be knowne and the will declare how much of the mony is spent and how much is unspente.

And the feror day the better and let the child sit with his face to ward the sune lookinge in the cristal and euer aske him what hee seeth as you Reade

Trantiatis angeli dei et lenam vbi deus nostr Jesus Christus vos ordinauit et quoties cunque invocauero esto mihi parietis et ad measm interrogationem et mandatum est mihi quoties cunque sine mora veniatis, In nomine patris et fillij et spiritus Sankti Amen +

Maim + fan + Abagarus + Abrinon +

Bibliography

Abano, Peter de. Heptameron: or Magical Elements. London, 1655.

Agrippa, Henry Cornelius. De occulta philosophis Libri Tres. Leiden: E. J. Brill, 1992, English translation by Robert Turner, published as Three Books of Occult Philosophy, London, 1651.

————. The Fourth Book of Occult Philosophy. Translated by Robert Turner. London, 1655.

Anon. Lemegeton, or, the Lesser Key of Solomon, manuscripts in the British Library: Harley 6483, Sloane 2731 (incomplete), Sloane 3825.

Anon. Tractatus Varii Magici, Sloane 3849.

Arbatel. De Magia Veterum. Basel, 1575. English translation by Robert Turner, published as Arbatel, Of Magic, London, 1655.

Barrett, Francis. The Magus. London, 1801. Reprint York Beach, ME: Samuel Weiser, 2000.

Brahe, Tycho. The Magical Calendar, 1582. Reprint Magnum Opus Hermetic Sourceworks, Edinburgh, 1979.

Bruno, Giordano. De magia, in Jordani Bruni Nolani Opera latine conscripta. Ed. Tocco. Neapoli, 1879—91. English translation in Robert De Lucca, Richard J. Blackwell, and Alfonso Ingegno, Giordano Bruno, Cause, Principle and Unity: And Essays on Magic. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1998.

Calder, I. R. F. John Dee Studied as an English Neoplatonist, 2 vols. Ph. D. diss. The Warberg Institute, London University, 1952.

Charlesworth, James H. The Old Testament Pseudepigrapha. New York: Doubleday, 1983.

Clulee, Nicholas H. John Dee's Natural Philosophy—between science and religion. London and New York: Routledge, 1988.

Couliano, loan P. Eros and Magic in the Renaissance. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1987.

Davidson, Gustav. A Dictionary of Angels Including the Fallen Angels. New York: The Free Press, 1967.

Dee, Dr. John. General and Rare Memorials pertayning to the Perfect Arte of Navigation. London, 1577.

Dee, Dr. John and Edward Kelly. Liber Mysteriorum Sextus et Sanctus. 1583, manuscripts in the British Library: Sloane 3189 (original in Kelly's handwriting), Sloane 2599.

————. Mysteriorum Libri Quinque, 1581—1583. Sloane 3188 (original in Dee's handwriting), Sloane 3677 (copy by E. Ashmole).

————. A True & Faithful Relation . . . between Dr. John Dee... and some Spirits, Edited by Meric Casaubon. London, 1659.

————. The Heptarchia Mystica of John Dee. Introduced and annotated by Robert Turner. Edinburgh: Magnum Opus Hermetic Sourceworks, 1983.

French, Peter J. John Dee: The World of an Elizabethan Magus. London: Routledge and Kegan Paul, 1972.

Gollancz, Hermann. Sepher Maphteah Shelomoh. London: Oxford University Press, 1914.

Halliwell, James O., ed. The Private Diary of Dr. John Dee. London: Camden Society Publications, 1842. Reprint: New York: AMS Press, 1968.

Hay, George, ed. The Necronomicon. Jersey: Neville Spearman, 1978.

Honorius of Thebes. Liber Juratus, or the Sworne Book of Honorius (13th century?). Manuscripts in the British Library, Royal 17Axlii, Sloane 313, 3849 (excerpts), 3854, 3885.

Josten, C. H. Elias Ashmole (1617–1692): His Autobiographical and Historical Notes, His Correspondence, and Other Contemporary Sources Relating to His Life and Work. Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1966.

————, trans. Monas Hieroglyphica. AMBIX, XII, 1964, 84–221.

Katz, David S. Philo-Semitism and the Readmission of the Jews to England. Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1982.

Kieckhefer, Richard. Forbidden Rites: A Necromancer's Manual of the Fifteenth Century. University Park, PA: Pennsylvania State University Press, 1997.

Kircher, Athanasius. Oedipus Aegyptiacus, 4 vols. Rome, 1652–1654.

Laycock, Donald. The Complete Enochian Dictionary, a Dictionary of the Angelical Language as Revealed to Dr. John Dee and Edward Kelley. London: Askin Publishers, 1978.

Lilly, William. Worlds Catastrophe. London, 1647.

Moody, Raymond A. Scrying—The Art of Female Divination. Marietta: R. Bemis Publishing, Ltd., 1995.

Pickering, Chris. "The Scryers of John Dee," Hermetic Journal 32, 1986, pp. 9–14.

Postel, Guillaume. De originibus. Basel: Ioannem Oporinum, 1553.

Peterson, Joseph H., ed., The Lesser Key of Solomon. York Beach, ME: Weiser Books, 2001.

Reeds, Jim, "John Dee and the Magic Tables in the Book of Soyg a," www.research.att.com/~reeds/soyga.html; to appear in a forthcoming book, John Dee: Interdisciplinary essays in English Renaissance Thought, Kluwer of Amsterdam (due to publish 2002).

Regardie, Francis Israel, ed. The Golden Dawn, 4 vols., 1937–1940. St. Paul, MN: Llewellyn Publications, 1971.

Roberts, Julian, and Andrew G. Watson. John Dee's Library Catalogue. London: The Bibliographical Society, 1990.

Scot, Reginald. The Discoverie of Witchcraft. London, 1584.

Sherman, William H. John Dee, the Politics of Reading and Writing in the English Renaissance. Amherst: University of Massachusetts Press, 1995.

Tart, Charles. Body Mind Spirit. Charlottesville: Hampton Roads, 1997.

Trithemius, Johannes. Book of Secret Things, and Doctrine of Spirits, in Francis Barrett's The Magus, London, 1801, p. 135bis.

————. De Septem Secundeis. Translation in William Lilly, Worlds Catastrophe. London, 1647.

Turner, Robert, trans. Ars Notoria, London, 1657.

Whitby, C. L. John Dee's Actions with Spirits. 2 vols. New York: Garland, 1991.

Wilson, Colin. Alien Dawn, An Investigation into the Contact Experience. New York: Fromm International, 1998.

————. "Introduction to the Necronomicon," Gnostica, 48, Nov. 1978, p. 62.

Yates, Frances Amelia. The Rosicrucian Enlightenment. Boulder, CO: Shambhala, 1972.

————. The Art of Memory. Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1966.

INDEX

Aaoth
Ab
Abano, Peter de abductees, UFO Abraham
Abulafia, Abraham
actor
Adam
ADAMS Treatise from Paradise adeptship
Adle streete
Adonay
Aemeth
Aethyrs
AGLA
Agricola, De Re Metallica
Agrippa, Henry Cornelius air
Akele alchemy
Aldaraia sive Soyga, see Soyga
Almadel
Alpha et Omega
Alphabet
  Adamical Angelic treasure map America
An (name of angel)
Anael (see also Annael)
Anchor, Anachor, Anilos angelic language, see language, angelic angelic Tables angels' voices angels, wicked angel belonging to EK animals
Ankwicz-Kleehoven, Hans
Annael (see also Anael)
Antichrist
Apocalyptic prophecies
Apocrypha

Apostles apothecary apparel Arabic book
ARARITA Arbatel of Magic archangels
Aristotle
Armada, see Spanish Armada
Ars Almadel
Ars Notoria
Ars Paulina art of memory
Arthurian legends
Ashmole, Elias
  The Institution, Lawes & Ceremonies of the most Noble Order of the Garter Asmodeus astrology astronomy
Ath
Aue (name of angel)
Austria, House of Azalus
Azdobn

Babalel (name of angel)
Bacon, Francis
Bacon, Roger
  De mirabili potestate Artis et Naturae
Bagenol
Baginol
Bagonel balance Baligon
Bamnode
Bapnido
Barashnum ceremony of purification
Barees
Barnes, Alderman
Barrett, Francis
Basmelo
Bathori, Stephen, King of Poland battles beast(s)
Beelzebub
Befafes
beheading
Beigia
Belmagel
Ben (a spiritual creature)
Bermale
Bernole
Besgeme
Bible birds
Black Raven, The Blakley blasphemers
Blisdon
Blokley
Blumaza
Bnagole
Bnapsen
Bnaspol
Bobogel
Bodleian

Bonefon
Bonefor
Book of Consecrations
Book of Saint Dunstan
Book of This Prophesy book, covering
Book, the Holy, see Loagaeth books, the holy Bornogo
bottomless pit
Bragiop
Brahe, Tycho
Bralges
Branglo
Brentford (Braynford)
brimstone
Brisfli
Britannia
British Empire
British Museum
Brorges
Bruno, Giordano
Burghley, Lord (William Cecil, the Lord Treasurer)
Butler, E. M.
Butmono
Bynepor

Calder. R. E, “John Dee Studied as an English Neoplatonist” (1952)
Calendar, Dee’s proposal to reform
Call Canapy
Carmara
Casaubon, Meric
Casziel
Catholic Church
Cecil, William, see Burghley Cedar cedarwood chair Chamber chaos chaplet
Character, see lamine characters
Charles the 2nd, King
Charlesworth, James H. chest Chirurgeon Christ church of God cipher circle
Cis
City
Clavicula Salomonis, See Key of Solomon
Clerkson, Mr. clothing
Clulee, Nicholas
  John Dee’s Natural Philosophy (1988) colonization colors comet Conciliation contrition
Cooper, Jane copper Corabiel

corn corpses
Cottonian Collection
Cotton, John
Couliano, Ioan council
cross of olive wood
Crowley, Aleister
Crucifix cryptography crystal ball, and passim frame for the Cumael cup cure

Danes
Daniel
Daughters of Light, see Filiae Bonitatis
David, King of Israel
Davis, John dead raised Death, Gate of debt
Dee, John
  48 Claves Angelicae
  Book of Invocations children
  Compendium Heptarchiae Mysticae
  De Bonorum Angelorum
  De Heptarchia Mystica
  diary
  Famous and Rich Discoveries
  General and Rare Memorials (1577)
  Liber Scientiae, Auxilij et Victoriae Terrestris
  Monas Hieroglyphica
  Propaedeumata Aphoristica
  Tabula bonorum angelorum invocationes
  True and Faithful Relation
Dee, Jane
Dee, Katherine (John Dee's daughter)
Dee, Rowland demons destruction devil devils
Devonshire mines
Dignification
Dionysius (Pseudo-) directions, cardinal disease dissolution, key of Dmal dog dragon
Duke of Lauderdale
Duling, D. C.

Dunstan, Book of Saint, see Book of Saint Dunstan

E (name of angel)
eagle
Earth spirits of the earths
Egyptians
Ekiei
El (see also rod)
Elias
Elizabeth I, Queen
enchanters
End of all things
England
English language
Enoch
  Book of Enoch's Tables
Enochian calls language magic ensignes of Creation entities eroticism
Esdras
Ese (name of an angel)
Esemeli etymology
Euclid
Evans, John
Eve evil spirits (see also devils)
Excise Office
Experimenta de Speculo externa bibliotheca face bracket fairies fasting feet, (placement during practise) hollow feet of the holy table

Ficino, Marcilio
filiae
Filiae Bonitatis (Daughters of Goodness) or Filiolae Lucis (Little Daughters of Light)
Filiae Filiarum Lucis
Filii Filiorum
Filii Lucis (Sons of Light) filios filiorum (the sons of the sons) fire great fire of London inward fish flag Flesh flood food forgery
Fornication
Fortitudo Dei
  = Michael Fotheringay Castle frame
French, Peter. J.
Friday

Gabriel
Galas
Galatinus, Petrus
Galethog
Gardener, Robert
Gargat
Gariladrah
Gate of Death
gates of Nature, seven Gedeon
Geller, Uri gems Genesis geography Geometry
Geonic lore
George (a servant of Dee’s)
Gethog
Gikatilla, Joseph
Gilbert, Adrian ghosts
Globe (circular table) diaphonous
Gnostic
Goethe
Goetia
gold
Golden Dawn
Goliath
Gollancz, Hermann
Gordanil governers
Governers of the Earth Government, new grace God’s heavenly Greek Grimoires gryphon

Hagonel (name of angel)
hairy spirit
Hamuthz Gethog
Haniel
Harkness, Deborah E. haunting
Haward, Francis heart
Hebrew
Heeoa hell
Henry VIII, King
Heptagon (heptagonum stellare)
Heptameron or Elements of Magic (Peter de Abano) Heptarchic magic herbs
Heremita, Marcus, De Lege Spirituali
Hermeticism
Hersham
hexagram
Hilton, Robert history
Holy Ghost
holy table, see Table, the Holy Honorius of Thebes (see also Liber Juratus)
Horlun
Hudson, Mr.
Huets cross
Hunnis, William
Husey, John
Hyde, Mr.
hypnagogic images hypnotism

I (name of an angel)
Iamblicus
Iana (name of an angel)
Idolatry
Ih
Il (angel)
Ilemese (name of an angel) illuminate Illuminati
Illumination
Ilr Impura
infidels
Innon
Inquisition
Invocating iron
Isaac
Islam
Israel
Ive, Mr.
Ized

Jacob
James
James I, King
Jekyll, Sir Joseph
Jesus
Jews
John the Baptist
Johnson, Ben
Jones, Robert
Jones, Susanna
Joshua
Josten, C. H.
Jove
joy
Judaism
Jude, Epistle of judge
Jupiter

Kabballah
Kelley, Edward and passim
Kelley, Joanna
Kelley, Thomas
Kelly’s sister
key of Prayer
Key of Solomon (Clavicula Salomonis) key, holy Kieckhefer, Richard
kings
Kircher, Athanasius knowledge universal Krakow

lamb lamb’s head
lamin (character of conciliation, a sigil of gold) counterfeit false Lancaster languages language, angelic
Laski, Albrecht (Albertus)
Latin
Laycock, Donald lead
Lemegeton (Lesser Key of Solomon)
Leowitz, Cyprian, De coniunctionibus magnis leprosy
Lesser Key of Solomon, See Lemegeton
Levanael
Liba (name of angel)
Liber Creationis
Liber Juratus (Honorius of Thebes)
Liber Loagaeth, see Loagaeth library
  Dee’s license (legal permission to dig for treasures) light
Lilly, William linguistics liquor, eternal (or heavenly) little Ned
Loagaeth, Liber
Lockehouse, George
London
love of God lucid dreaming
Lucifer
Lumbardstreet
Lundrumguffa
Luther, Martin
Lyne, Master

Macedonian
Madimi
Madimiel
Madoc, Owen magi magic Magical Calendar (Tycho Brahe) magicians
Magus
Maherion maid Mamon marble Mares maritime power Marmara marriage
Mars
Mary, Queen of Scots mathematics
McGregor Mathers, S. L.
Me (name of an angel) mechanics
Medicina Dei medicine memory
Menabon
Menasseh Ben Israel
Mensa faederis (see also Table, the Holy) merchants
Mercury mercy metals
Michael mineral Mines Royall
mnemonics
Moldavia
Monday money monsters of the sea

Moody, Raymond A.
Moon
Moorefields
Morley, Lord
Mortlake
Mort, Mr.
Moses
Mountegle, Lord
Multin
Munsteris, Latin, Greek and Hebrew music
Myniver, Doctor

NA
Nalvage names (sacred) Nariel natural philosophy Nature navigation Necromancer
Necronomicon
Neoplatonism
new age
New World (America)
  colonizing
New World(s)
Newberry
nine days preparation
Noah’s flood nobility Nogahel
Northwest Passage
Northwik hill
North, Mr.

oath Obelison obsidian mirror occultism
Och oil olive beads optics
Owen, Mr.
Oxford

pagans painting Palatinate papal nuncio
Paracelsus
Paradise
Paris
Pavorinus, Varinus, Greek Lexicon
Peace of God
Pele pelican penitence
Pentacle
Pentecost, Goodman
Peterson, Joseph H., Lesser Key of Solomon
Phanael
phantasms
Pharaoh
Philip II, King of Spain philosophers phoenix
Pickering, Chris
Pico, Giovanni della Mirandola pies pigeon pillars of brass pillory plagues planets
Plato
Plotinus Plow, the Poland
POLIPOS
Pompilius
Pontano, Giovanni, Urania sine de stellis
Pontois, John
Pope Gregory XIII
Porphyry
Postel, Guillaume powder, red (of transmutation) powers (forty-nine) Prague

prayer pride priests high
Primus et quartus (name or title for angel Hagonel)
Prince(s)
Prince of Darkness
Proclus Profession, Angel of prophecy
Prospero
Psalms
Pseudepigrapha

quicksilver

Raleigh, Sir Walter
Raphael
Reeds, Jim
Regardie, Israel
Reuchlin, Johann
  Artem Cabalisticam
  de Verbo Mirifico
Richard of St. Victor
Ring of Solomon
Rivius, J.
Roberts, Julian and Andrew Watson
Rocle (name of angel) rod
‘el’
Roman
Rome
Rosicrucian
Rudolph

S (name of an angel)
Sabathiel, see Zabathiel
Sabbath saints
Salamian
Salomon
Samael
Samuel
Sanford, Mr.

Satan
Saturday
Saturn
Saul (Biblical figure)
Saul, Barnabas
Scalinger scarf Schemhamphoras scholars sciences Scientism
scotcheons Scotland
Scotus
Scot, Reginald scroll (treasure map) scroll, book, and powder scrying, and passim seal(s) seas secrecy
Semeliel
Semiael
Semiel
Semyeil seven
Seven Sobs of a Sorrowful Soul for Sin (William Hunnis) sex shadow Shakespeare
Sherman, William H.
Shew-stone
Shippen, William
Ships
Shumaker, Wayne
Sidney, Sir Philip
  Defence of Poesia
Sieradz, Poland
sigil silk silver skin skulls

Skullthorp, Mr.
Sled, Charles smokes solar eclipse solgars
Solomon, King of Israel
  Seal of Testament of
Sons of Light, see Filii Lucis
Sons of Men (aka children of men)
Sons of Sempiternitie soul language of Soyga (Aldaraia sive Soyga)
Spanish Armada sparrow spirit of God spirit of Understanding
Spirits of Destruction
Spirits of perdition
Sponheim, Germany
squares, magic Staff
Stanley, William stars stenography
Stimcul stolen goods stone
stone (brought by angels)
Story, Samuell
St. Bride’s Church, London sulfur, see brimstone
Sun
Sunday
Superaltare supernova superstition

Surrey
swan
Sworne Book of Honorius , see Liber Juratus
Synfulla
Syngolla

Tabernacle
Table infernal of Covenant
  the Holy (aka Table of Practise, and also Mensa Faederis) feet scrying tables
Tablet
Tabula collecta
Tabulae Creationis
Talbot, Edward (aka Edward Kelley), and passim Tart, Charles tassels temperance Temple temptation tennis
Testament of Solomon
Thaoth
Theurgia Goetia
thorny path Thrones
Thursday time of governing tin
Tobias
Tobit, Book of tongue
Tower of Babel
Tower of London
Townson, Mr.
Trade traditions traitors transmutation
Transposition of letters treasure in the seas map (scroll)

Treasurer, Lord, see Burghley
Treatise on Angel Magic Tree triangular stone
Trinity
Trithemius, Johannes
  De Septem Secundeis trumpet
Tuesday
Turner, Robert

UFO
Uriel

Vallee, Jacque
Vasedg vegetable
Venus
Vera
Virgil, Eclogues III

Wale, Thomas
Walmesley water(s)
  king of the wax weapons (spiritual)
Wednesday
Weever
Welsh
Westminster
Whitby, Christopher
Wilby, Christian
Wilson, Colin winds witch Witchcrafts witches
Woodall, John
Woodall, Thomas
Worchester wrath of God

Yates, Francis A.
Yong, Mr.

Zabathiel
Zadkiel
Zaphiel
Zaphkiel
Zedekieil
Zoroastrianism

[1] I. R. F. Calder, "John Dee Studied as an English Neoplatonist," 2 vols. Ph. D. diss. (The Warberg Institute, London University, 1952); Peter J. French, John Dee: The World of an Elizabethan Magus (London: Routledge & Kegan Paul, 1972); Nicholas H. Clulee, John Dee's Natural Philosophy —between science and religion. (London and New York: Routledge, 1988); William H. Sherman, John Dee, the Politics of Reading and Writing in the English Renaissance (Amherst: University of Massachusetts Press, 1995).

[2] See list in Peter French, John Dee: The World of an Elizabethan Magus, pp. 216–29.

[3] Many of these apparent conflicts are still with us today. Charles Tart, Body Mind Spirit (Charlottesville: Hampton Roads, 1997), observes that Scientism, a belief that scoffs at anything that doesn't fit our supposedly scientific beliefs, has become "the world's most powerful (and negative) religion." It is interesting to note that most modern religious studies carefully avoid Scientism.

[4] Frances A. Yates, The Rosicrucian Enlightenment (Boulder: Shambhala, 1978), p. xii.

[5] Some have argued there are actually two systems: the Heptarchic system (represented by this manuscript and Dee's Heptarchia Mystica), and the Enochian system, represented by later records, especially TFR.

[6] See C. H. Josten's translation of Dee's Monas Hieroglyphica (AMBIX, XII, 1964, 84–221), and Nicholas Clulee's analysis in John Dee's Natural Philosophy (London: Routledge, 1988), p. 77ff.

[7] Although there has been some criticism of Dr. Yates' work in recent years, I have found the views of Roberts and Watson to be the most balanced: "The influence of the later work of Yates herself will be widely apparent for although that often seems hasty and over-enthusiastic, our own research has frequently confirmed rather than contradicted hers. . . ." Julian Roberts and Andrew Watson, John Dee's Library Catalogue (London: The Bibliographical Society, 1990), p. 26.

[8] R. Turner writes, "Mistakes abound in both the Crowley and Regardie printed Enochian texts. I counted 91 in the first Call alone when comparing these with Dee's original manuscript (see Sloane 3191, British Museum)." Cited by Colin Wilson, "Introduction to the Necronomicon," Gnostica, 48, Nov. 1978, p. 62.

[9] The first edition was limited to 500 copies. Another version was produced by Christopher Whitby as his doctoral thesis. This had a small reprinting as John Dee's Actions with Spirits, 2 vols. (New York: Garland, 1991).

10

William Sherman, John Dee, p. 149.

11

These records were published in 1659 by Meric Casaubon as A True & Faithful Relation . . . Between Dr. John Dee . . . and Some Spirits (TFR). Casaubon's main intent in publishing this material was to discredit Dee's reputation.

12

For example, he is credited with coining the word "unit," which he used to translate the Greek "monas." He also coined the word "Britannia."

13

Monas, Theorem 23.

14

Monas, dedication to King Maximilian, passim, pp. 115 ff.

15

Peter J. French, John Dee, The World of an Elizabethan Magus, 1972, pp. 40 ff.

16

Hans Ankwicz-Kleehoven observes, "Just as no distinguished foreigner at the beginning of the nineteenth century omitted to pay his respects to Goethe in Weimar, so it was good form in the Germany of circa 1500 to have called on Trithemius at Sponheim." Cited in loan P. Couliano, Eros and Magic in the Renaissance (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1987), p. 166.

17

William Sherman, John Dee, p. 51.

18

William Sherman has given us an excellent sense of it in his book; see especially p. 40.

19

"Dee could hardly have held a more prominent place in . . . the genesis of the British Empire." See William Sherman, John Dee, pp. 148 ff and passim.

20

A large element of Dee's patriotism was his fascination with the Arthurian legends. He was largely responsible for reviving interest in them. Dee believed himself to be of royal descent.

21

British Library, Sloane manuscript 3188, fol. 65a. See also John Dee, General and Rare Memorials pertayning to the Perfect Arte of NAVIGATION (GRM) (London: John Daye, 1577).

22

Johannes Trithemius in De Septem Secundeis (translation in William Lilly, Worlds Catastrophe, London, 1647), wrote that world history was governed by the rules of seven angels, each ruling 354 years and 4 months. The angels told Dee that “the 7 Governours have almost ended their Government” (TFR, p. 4). Dee’s copy of Cyprian Leowitz, De Conjunctionibus Magnis Insignioribus Superiorum Planetarum (Leuingen, 1564), has “underlinings and a few notes” (item 631, R&W).

23

GRM (1577) is dated 5540, and A Playne Discourse . . . concerning the needful reformation of ye vulgar kallender (Oxford: Bodleian Library, Ashmole MS 1789, article 3, 1582) is dated 5545.

24

The title page for Dee’s General and Rare Memorials shows a timeline of history of something over 6,000 years. If 6,000 years is significant to him as it was to others, his calculations would put the end at A.D. 2037.

25

See also I. R. F. Calder, “John Dee Studied as an English Neoplatonist,” chapter 9, section 3.

26

Mysterium Libri Quinque (MLQ), 16 November 1582.

27

TFR, p. 43.

28

I. R. F. Calder, “John Dee Studied as an English Neoplatonist,” chapter 8, section 8. See also William Sherman, John Dee, pp. 187, 188.

29

The Archangel Uriel, 11 March 1582.

30

See Monas, p. 133, “the Hebrew cabbalist . . . will own that, without regard to person, the same benevolent God is not only [the God] of the Jews, but of all peoples, nations, and languages.”

31

Bynepor, 20 November 1582; Medicina Dei, 24 March 1583; Michael, 23 May 1583.

32

A similar “invitation” led Giordano Bruno to his death at the stake in 1600.

33

For example, “AGLA” and “ARARITA” are acronyms derived from verses of scripture. See Cornelius Agrippa, De occulta philosophia Libri Tres (Leiden: E. J. Brill, 1992), book 3, chapter xi,

p. 428.
[34]

For example, Arbatel, De Magia Veterum (Basel, 1575), p. 21, Aphor. 14: “da mihi unum de spiritibus tuis, qui me doceat ea, quae vis nos discere & cognoscere, ad laudem & honorem tuum & utilitatem proximi.” (“Grant me therefore one of thy spirits, who may teach me those things which thou wouldest have me to know and learn, to thy praise and glory, and the profit of our neighbour.”) [35]

For example, Cornelius Agrippa, De occulta philosophia, book 2, chap. 22, pp. 314–18.
[36]

There have been a number of recent books and movies with the theme of Dee’s magic.
[37]

R&W, p. 29.
[38]

R&W, p. 168. They catalog it as DM 70 and note, “On fol.9 (originally the first leaf, fol.1–8 having been misbound) is [Dee’s ladder symbol] and, very faint, ‘Fragmentum Magicum,’ which may be in Dee’s hand. At the foot is ‘Sum Ben: Jonsonij liber.’” [39]

Sloane 3188 fol. 48r.
[40]

A version of this text with discussion is included in Richard Kieckhefer’s Forbidden Rites: A Necromancer’s Manual of the Fifteenth Century (University Park: Pennsylvania State University Press, 1997), pp. 8–10, p. 256 ff.
[41]

Judaism was outlawed in England and much of Europe at the time. Note Dee’s comment “we can hardly trust anything in the Jews hands . . . they are a stiffnecked people and dispersed all the world over.”
[42]

They list it as DM 166, pg 183.
[43]

See Jim Reeds, “John Dee and the Magic Tables in the Book of Soyga,” www.research.att.com/~reeds/soyga.html; to appear in a forthcoming book John Dee: Interdisciplinary Essays in English Renaissance Thought, Kluwer of Amsterdam.
[44]

Bodley MS 908, p. 4, line 3. See figure 2.
[45]

R&W, p. 183.
[46]

It is not clear why Roberts and Watson make this identification. They note Francis Maddison's theory that Aldaraia = Ar. Al Dirâya "knowledge, cognizance, acquintance," but that is only hypothetical. They also note that Dee sent a servant (20 October 1595) to recover his Arabic book from Mr Abbot (?) at Oxford and (19 November 1595) "my Arabik boke restored by gods favor." James Orchard Halliwell, ed., The Private Diary of Dr. John Dee (New York: AMS Press, 1968), p. 54.
[47]

Genesis 44:4–5.
[48]

Raymond A. Moody, Scrying—The Art of Female Divination (Marietta: R. Bemis Publishing, Ltd., 1995), p. 7.
[49]

For some examples, see Richard Kieckhefer, Forbidden Rites, experiments 18, 19, 20, 23, 24, 25, 27, 29, 33, 38, 39, and 40. Reginald Scot, Discoverie of Witchcraft (New York: Dover Publications, 1584/1973), published extracts from magic handbooks; many deal with scrying (e.g., pp. 148–9, 232–5, 238–9, 245–6, 249–50). Francis Barrett, The Magus (London, 1801; reprint: Secaucus: The Citadel Press, 1975) pp. 135bis ff, published scrying instructions from Trithemius (or pseudo-Trithemius). See also manuscripts Sloane 1317, 3846 (art 6), 3848, 3949 (arts. 1, 3), 3851, 3853 (art. 9), 3854 (art 5).
[50]

According to Couliano, mnemonics, along with eroticism, is an essential component of magic, "to such an extent that it is impossible to understand [magic] without first having studied the principles and mechanisms of the first two" (Eros and Magic in the Renaissance, p. xviii). See also Frances A. Yates, The Art of Memor, and Giordano Bruno's De magia in Jordani Bruni Nolani Opera latine conscripta (Neapoli, 1879–91). English translation in Robert De Lucca, Richard J. Blackwell, and Alfonso Ingegno, Giordano Bruno, Cause, Principle and Unity: And Essays on Magic (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1998).
[51]

I. P. Couliano, Eros and Magic in the Renaissance, p. 5.
[52]

He mentions scrying in his Monas Hieroglyphica (1564).
[53]

See "The Scryers of John Dee," Chris Pickering, Hermetic Journal 32, pp. 9–14. Another example of Dee seeing angels may be TFR 25, where he writes "Thereupon I perceived the presence of some good spiritual Creature, and straight way appeared the good Angel. I.L."
[54]

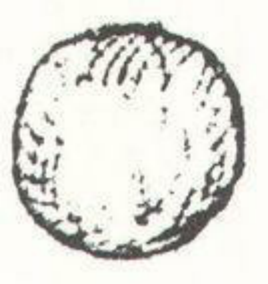
This friend was Edward Kelley, a.k.a. Edward Talbot.

55

Above this entry, someone wrote, “You that rede this underwritten assure yourselfe that yt is a shamfull lye, for Talbot neither studied for any such thinge not shewed himselfe dishonest in any thinge.” Dee added the comment, “This is Mr. Talbot or that lerned man, his own writing in my boke, very unduely as he cam by it.” There are also some additional notes by Talbot/Kelley that have been erased. Diary quotations are from James Orchard Halliwell, ed., The Private Diary of Dr. John Dee (New York: AMS Press, 1968) pp. 13–16.

56

Although Christopher Whitby (John Dee’s Actions with Spirits, pp. 138-141) questions whether the obsidian mirror was actually Dee’s, it is commonly accepted. John Pontois, Dee’s heir, was said to have “a certain round flat stone like Cristall which Pountis said was a stone which an Angell brought to doctor dye wherein he did worke and know many strange things . . .” See R&W, p. 61. See figure 8.1 in Nicholas Clulee, John Dee’s Natural Philosophy. This probably was the scrying stone that the angels mysteriously delivered on 21 November 1582 out of “the uttermost part of the Roman Possession.” Dee describes it as being “half an inch thick” (5 May, 1583), although Dee’s drawing of the former in Sloane 3191 clearly shows a sphere whereas the mirror is flat and has a handle.



57

Quoted in Christopher Whitby, John Dee’s Actions with Spirits, p. 92. Compare with the drawing and description found in (pseudo-?) Trithemius. The Art of Drawing Spirits in to Crystals in Francis Barrett, The Magus, book 2, p. 128 (York Beach, ME: Samuel Weiser, 2000). In addition to Raphael, Gabriel, and Uriel, Trithemius includes Michael.

58

Nicholas Clulee, John Dee’s Natural Philosophy, p. 206. See the first action, where, after “fervent prayers to God,” Saul is asked to look into the stone and see “yf God had sent his holy Angel Anael.”

59

As an example, British Library Sloane manuscript 3849 (“Manner of Proceding in order to discover in the Crystall”) starts out with the seven Psalms before proceeding to ask Jesus to send the three angels “ancor annasor anelose.” Reginald Scot, in his 1584 edition of The Discoverie of Witchcraft (book 15, chapter 12), quotes from a magical text at length on how “to have a spirit inclosed into a christall stone or berill glasse, &c. First thou in the new of the moon being clothed with all new, and fresh, & cleane araie, and shaven, and that day to fast with bread and water, and being cleane confessed, saie the seaven psalmes, and the letanie, for the space of two daies, with this praier following . . .”

60

For example, see TFR, p. 25: “There appeared to E.K. a round Globe of white smoke over my head” (a UFO?). MLQ, 10 April 1583: “there appeared in the corner of my study a blak shadow.” Sometimes, the whole chamber appeared in the stone (e.g., MLQ, 15 March 1582).

61

Peter French, John Dee, The World of an Elizabethan Magus, pp. 113, n. 2.

62

Oxford: Bodleian Library MS Ashmole 1790, fol. 58.

63

British Library manuscript Royal 17 Axlii fol. 3v.

64

Athanasius Kircher, Oedipus Aegyptiacus (Rome, 1652–54). The most interesting part of Kircher’s discussion is his attempt to link the seal with Islamic mystical tradition. Since the use of this sigil is central to the present work, I include Kircher’s discussion of it in appendix 2.

65

Oxford: Bodleian Library, Ashmole MS 1790, fols. 55a–56a.

66

Hermann Gollancz, Sepher Maphteah Shelomoh (London: Oxford University Press, 1914), fol. 38a.

67

Goetia also enjoins the use of a second lamin that has a five-pointed star.

68

Translation by D. C. Duling in James H. Charlesworth, The Old Testament Pseudepigrapha, vol. 1 (New York: Doubleday, 1983) pp. 935 ff.

69

For example, see British Library, Harley manuscript 5596, fifteenth century. Note the largest section of this manuscript is the Clavicula Salomonis.

70

Cornelius Agrippa, De occulta philosophia, book 2, chap. 7, p. 266.

71

The Magical Calendar, ed. Adam McLean (Grand Rapids, MI: Phanes Press, 1994), p. 32.

72

Johannes Trithemius, The Art of Drawing Spirits into Crystals in Francis Barrett's The Magus, book 2, (York Beach, ME: Samuel Weiser, 2000), p. 128.

73

(pseudo-) Henry Cornelius Agrippa, Fourth Book of Occult Philosophy (London, 1655, reprint London: Askin Publishers, 1978).

74

Agrippa.

75

The Key of Solomon the King (Clavicula Salomonis), first translated and edited from ancient manuscripts in the British Museum by S. Liddell MacGregor Mathers (London: George Redway, 1889; reissued, York Beach, ME: Samuel Weiser, 2000, p. 93). Mathers' reading most closely follows British Library manuscript Additional 10862, folio 116v (consecration of vestments): "Amor, Amator, Amides, Ideodaniach, Paucor, Playor, Anitor, per merita eorum sanctorum Angelorum . . ." The same manuscript again invokes these angels during the consecration of the silk cloth on fol. 64v: "Adonay, Anosbias anereneton, agla, athanatos, agyos, ancor, anachor, anilos, Theodomos, agnefeton, Cedyon, Lamet, Cetelfares, cos, Tetragrammaton." Strangely, Mathers omits this conjuration. Mathers' other manuscript authorities read as follows: Sloane 3091, fol. 84v: "ancor, amacor, amade. Theodonia, Pancorpsagor, Anotor, parles merites des Saints Anges, . . ." Harley 3981 fol. 112v: "Ancor, Amacor, Amade, Theodonia, Pancor = psagor, Anitor, par les merites des Saints Anges . . ." Kings 288 fol. 111v: "Anco, Amacor, Amade, Theodonia, Pancor, Psagor, Anitor, parles merites, des Saints Anges . . ." Ancor, Amacor, Amides, Teodonia, Pancor, Amitor, par les merites des Saintes . . . Sloane 1307 (missing from chapter on vestments but includes the following for consecrating the parchment fol. 109v:) "Autor, Amaur, Theodomos, Phagar, Abacri, adestote ad custodiam istius carte." Other manuscripts of the Key of Solomon in the British Library not used by Mathers preserve some valuable readings: Sloane 3847 fol. 46v (consecration of clothing): "Anchor, Anachor, anilos, theodonos, phagor, Ianitor, per merita Angelorum sanctorum . . ." fol. 60r (preparation of parchment): "Ancor, anacor, amlos, Theodomos, Phagor, adestote in custodia huius carte" fol. 60v: "Lazay, Salmay, Dalmay, Adonay, Saday, Tetragrammaton, anepheneton, Cedyon, Aryon, Anereneton, Athanatos, Theos, Theodomos, anilos, pes, kyros, abos, Theophilos, Onoy, Zoron, Largon, Lazaryon, Theophilon, Tisyon, Alyon, Occinomos, Zacharion, Sydion, Agla, Joth, heth, he, vau, el, emanuel, Ja Ja, Vah, ancor, anilos, Theodonas angeli sancti dei . . ." Additional 36674 fol. 15v: "Antor, Anator,et Anabis, Theodomas, lanitor [or Iamtor], by the desertes of the holy Anngells . . ." Sloane 2383 fol. 16r (preparation of parchment): "Anator, Amacor, phaidos, theodomos, plagar, abacar, adestote ad custodiam istius Cartae" fol. 25v (silk cloth): "Adonay, amatias, anaton prieumaton, agla, Ensoph, Cadon, antor, amacor, anilor, [26r] Semanphorus, Samceuaia, tetaph, soned, saemonim. Eos bos, Elohim."

76

Joseph H. Peterson, The Lesser Key of Solomon (York Beach, ME, Weiser Books: 2001), p. 47.

77

British Library manuscript Royal 17 Axlii fol. 37r. Another manuscript in the British Library, Sloane 3885 fol. 69r reads: "Ih'u dei filius incompraehensibilis hancor hanacor hanylos iehorna theodonas helyothos heliotheos phagor corphandonos norizane corithico hanosal helsezope phagor[a]. [37v] Eleminator candones helas helee resphaga thephagagayn thetendyn thahanos mtemya heortahonos nelos behebos belhores hacaphagan \\\\\ belohothoi ortophagon corphandonos humane natus . . ." Sloane 3854 fol 118v: "Ih'u dei filius incomprehensibil' hancor hanacor hanylos iehorna theodonos helyothos heliotheos phagor corphandonos norizane corithico hanosae helsezope phagor[a]. Eleminator candones helos orano: helee resphaga thephagagayn thetendyn thahanos uitemya heortalyonos uelos ue hebos uel hores hacaphagan ortophagon corphandonos humane natus . . ."

78

Peterson, p. 172.

79

Gustav Davidson, A Dictionary of Angels Including the Fallen Angels (New York: The Free Press, 1967), pp. 338–9.

80

Christopher Whitby (John Dee's Actions with Spirits, p. 1) identified these as "notes in cipher by William Shippen (1635–1693)," but see C. H. Josten, Elias Ashmole (1617–1692): his autobiographical and historical notes, his correspondence, and other contemporary sources relating to his life and work (Oxford, 1966), V. 2, p. 10.

81

Christopher Whitby, John Dee's Actions with Spirits, p. 105–6, p. 156.

82

Nicholas Clulee, John Dee's Natural Philosophy, p. 178–9.

83

Dee was apparently aware of the existence of the Ethiopic Book of Enoch from Guillaume Postel's De originibus (Basel: Ioannem Oporinum, 1553). See Nicholas Clulee, John Dee's Natural Philosophy, p. 209.

84

TFR, p. 159.

85

Sloane 3188, fol. 101b.

86

William Sherman, John Dee, pp. 16—19.

87

See Frances A. Yates, The Rosicrucian Enlightenment, 1978, pp. 41.

88

TFR I, p. 173; TFR III, p. 15.

[89]

Hermetic Journal, 30, pp. 18—22.

[90]

TFR III, p. 15.

[91]

Sloane 3188.

[92]

Sloane 3191.

[93]

Sloane 3189.

[94]

George Hay, ed., The Necronomicon (Jersey: Neville Spearman, 1978), p. 36.

[95]

Donald C. Laycock, The Complete Enochian Dictionary (York Beach, ME: Weiser Books, 2001), p. 63.

[96]

James O. Halliwell, ed., The Private Diary of Dr. John Dee (New York: AMS Press, 1968), p. 11, May 25, 1581.

[97]

MLQ, 17 November 1582.

[98]

Dee, "Praefatio latina," 1586 in C. H. Josten's "An Unknown Chapter in the Life of John Dee," Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes 28 (1965): 233—57. See also Butler, Ritual Magic, pp. 259, 268.

[99]

Nicholas Clulee, John Dee's Natural Philosophy, p. 205.

[100]

See for example, Jacque Vallee's Messengers of Deception (Berkeley: Ronin Publishing, 1979) and Colin Wilson, Alien Dawn (New York: Fromm International, 1998).

[101]

Laski is told he would have the kingdoms of Poland and Moldavia. The angels also incorrectly foretell Rudolph's demise and Stephen's ascent.

[102]

I. R. F. Calder, “John Dee Studied as an English Neoplatonist,” chapter 9, section 4.
103

48 Claves Angelicae: “The 48 Angelic Keys.” -Ed.
104

The title page of the actual manuscript reads, Liber Scientiae, Auxilij et Victoriae Terrestris: “The Book of Earthly Knowledge, Help, and Victory” -Ed.
105

10 April 1586.
106

30 April 1586.
107

The actual title page reads, De Heptarchia Mystica (Diuinis, ipsius Creationis, stabilitœ legibus) Collectaneorum / Liber primus: “Concerning the Mystical Heptarchy (divine, of the creation itself, with permanent rules) First Book of collected passages” -Ed.
108

Sloane 3191.
109

William Lilly, noted English astrologer. Born 30 April 1602. Died 9 June 1681.
110

“As a further testimony of the sence of Mr. Wales kindnes, shortly after his death, I sent for his son, & bestowed on him, one of my deputies places in the Excise, with an allowance of 80 £ per Annum.” /E.A.
111

Sloane 3189 has the following three names written on a blank page, which may be these former owners: Robert Jones, Susanna Jones, George Lockehouse. -Ed.
112 till: “drawer or compartment.” - Ed.

113

Praeter . . . sapientia: “Besides my other frequent extemporaneous prayers and more ardent exhortations to God, this one has been most frequently used. My morning and evening prayer for wisdom.” -Ed.
114

In nomine . . . placebit: “In the name of God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Spirit. Amen. O almighty, eternal, true and living God, be pleased to deliver me! O Lord of Lords, King of Kings, Jehovah Zebaoth, make haste to help me!(cf. Psalm 70) Glory be to God the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit: as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen. Teach me to perceive and understand properly (O Creator of all things), for your wisdom is all I desire. Fix your word in my ear (O Creator of all things), and fix your wisdom in my heart. O Lord Jesus Christ (you who are the true wisdom of your eternal and omnipotent Father) I most humbly beg your Divine Majesty that you consider it proper to send me the speedy help of some pious wise man and experienced philosopher for realizing and perfecting above all fully those things which will be of greatest value for increasing your praise and glory. And if no such mortal man now lives upon the earth who is fitting for this work, or who may have been assigned by your eternal providence to the performing of that service for me, then truly I most humbly, most ardently, and most faithfully ask from your divine majesty that you grant to send me down from heaven your good spiritual ministers and angels, namely Michael, Gabriel, Raphael, and also Uriel: and (from your divine favor) any other true and faithful angels of yours, who may completely and perfectly train and teach me in the true and accurate knowledge and understanding of your secrets and wonders (concerning all your creatures, and their nature, properties, and best use) and necessary knowledge for us mortals, to the praise, honor, and glory of your name, to my firm solace and otherwise (through me) the solace of the greatest number of your faithful, and to the confusion and ruin of the wicked. Amen. Let it be O Jehovah Zebaoth; let it be O Adonay; let it be O Elohim. O blessed and omnipotent Trinity, praised above all things, grant me (John Dee) this petition, in such a manner that will be most pleasing to you. Amen." -Ed.

115

Ab anno . . . suam: "From the year 1579 in approximately this manner, in Latin or in English (and furthermore in another unique and particular manner, sometimes for Raphael, and sometimes for Michael) it was most gratifying to me to pour forth my prayers to God; may God grant me his wonderful mercy." -Ed.

116

In Sloane 3677, this note comes before the prayer. -Ed.

117

Angelus . . . praedominans: "Angel or intelligence now presiding over the whole world." -Ed.

118

Etymologia: Gratiosa / Afflicta Dei / Misericors: "Etymology: Favored / Distressed of God Merciful." Dee considered Hebrew etymology important and discusses meanings and roots of various words in various works of his. It seems he had at least a rudimentary command of Hebrew grammar as well. -Ed.

119

4 Angeli . . . Quaternarii: "4 angels presiding over the 4 quarters of heaven, as Agrippa notes in the Scale of the number four (Occult Phil., Book 2, ch 7)." This grouping of the Archangels is common in medieval and Renaissance occult works. In Liber Juratus, one of the earliest books of the Solomonic school of magic, these four angels are known as the "Angels of the 4 winds." Agrippa, in his work, De Occulta Philosophia, book 2, chap. 7 (Leiden: E. J. Brill, 1992), pp. 266, calls them the "four angels ruling over the corners of the world." The Magical Calendar of Tycho Brahe gives the same.

Michael and Gabriel are the only two angels mentioned by name in the Old Testament. Raphael is mentioned in the apocryphal Book of Tobit, and Uriel is well-known in noncanonical lore. Annael is relatively unknown. -Ed.

120

Etymologiae: Fortitudo . . . praevalesceus: "Etymology: Michael: Strength of God; Gabriel: either made very strong or very powerful or strength of God; Raphael: Medicine of God; Uriel: Light of God." -Ed.

121

Anna . . . Deum: "Anna, et Annah, is a particle of the supplicant and confessor: consequently it may not be unreasonable that it indicates praying and confessing God." Dee's theory is that the name Annael derives from Hebrew "Ana" meaning "pray," or "lament." The more usual explanation of Anael is that it is equivalent to Haniel, and means "Grace of God." Johannes Trithemius, in De Septem Secundeis (translation in William Lilly, Worlds Catastrophe, London, 1647) refers to him as the "spirit of Venus."- Ed.

122

Per Sloane 3677.

123

Ad Deum . . . Anno 1582: "A faithful declaration to almighty God, to the lasting account of this matter in the year 1582." -Ed.

124

Talent: "power." -Ed.

125

I Samuel 9 is the story of Saul's consulting Samuel about his father's asses. - E.A.

126

James 1:5 Si quis autem vestrum indiget sapientia, postulet a Deo, qui dat omnibus affluenter, et non improperat: et dabitur ei.: "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." -Ed.

127 mediately: "through a mediator." -Ed.

128

Mittas . . . ducant &c: "May you send your light and your truth, which may lead me . . ." -Ed.

129

Recte Sapere . . . quod volo: See above. -Ed.

130

Da verbum . . . fige &c: "Fix your word in my ear, and your wisdom in my heart, etc." -Ed.

[131] This third seer was Saul. -E.A.

[132] This seems to be a paraphrase of Psalm 34:7: “The angel of the Lord encamps around those who fear him, and delivers them.”

[133] De mirabili . . . Naturae: “Concerning the wonderful power of art and of nature” -Ed.

[134] Numquid non est Deus in Israël, ut ad consulendum Beelzebub, deum Accaron. Reg. 4. cap. 1. -Δ. “Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are going to inquire of Beelzebub, the god of Ekron?” 2 Kings (called Reg 4, 4 Kings in the vulgate) - Ed.

[135] Facilius . . . reputare: “It is without doubt incomparably easier to obtain anything that is considered useful for people from God, or from good spirits [than from evil spirits].” -Ed.

[136] Mane: “in the morning.” -Ed.

[137] AÑAËL.

[138] Note, An illuding intruder, even at the first, putting him self, as an angel of light. Take hede allwayes of undue securitie.

[139] There appered a great number of dead mens skulls, likewise.

[140] In nomine . . . tu es: “In the name of Jesus Christ, who are you?” This is a standard first question for interrogating spirits. “Let him first require his name, and if he be called by any other name” (pseudo-?) Agrippa’s Fourth Book of Occult Philosophy, ed. Robert Turner (London: Askin Publishers, 1978), p. 67. -Ed.

[141] “potestas . . . est: “All power is placed in me.” -Ed.

[142] Quae?: “Which?” -Ed.

[143] Bona et mala: “good and bad.” -Ed.

144

De Thesauro abscondita: “regarding hidden treasure.” -Ed.

145

Ne perturbes . . . Nugae: “Don’t bother, for these are trifles.” -Ed.

146

Ubi . . . tua?: “By whom is your power?” -Ed.

147

Cur . . . mea?: “Why do you ask about my power?” -Ed.

148

Cur . . . placet: “Why? It means you haven’t satisfied me.” - Ed.

149

An bonus . . . speculo?: “Is there any good angel assigned to this speculum/mirror?” - Ed.

150

Etiam: “Yes, certainly.” -Ed.

151

Quis? “Who?” -Ed.

152

Bonus . . . mentio: “Isn’t this the good angel mentioned in scripture?” [i.e. Michael]-Ed.

153

Maxime: “Absolutely.” -Ed.

154

Fieri . . . agam?: “May I not see and deal with him?” -Ed.

155

Ita: “yes” -Ed.

156

Quid . . . velis: “What do you wish to show by this?” -Ed.

157

Alterius . . . est: “It is the character of another angel.” -Ed.

158

Cur . . . ostendis?: “Why do you show this now, and on this occasion?” -Ed.

159

Causam ob magnam: “For a great reason.” -Ed.
160

In margin: “Prayer / Fasting.” -Ed.
161

Gloria . . . saeculorum: “Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit, as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end.” -Ed.
162

Prepositus orbis veneris: “Governor of the planet Venus.” -Ed.
163

This book only survives in fragments as Cotton MS. Vitellius. C. VII, art. 3. in the British Library. -Ed.
164

In nomine Jesu Christi: “In the name of Jesus Christ.” -Ed
165

Pseudonym for Edward Kelley. -Ed.
166

Note: he had two dayes before made the like demaunde and request unto me: but he went away unsatisfiyed for his comming was to entrap me, yf I had had any dealing with wicked spirits as he confessed often tymes after: and that he was set on, &c.
167

Aliqui Angeli boni: “some good angels.” -Ed.
168

Michael . . . nostris: “Michael is the foremost in our works.” -Ed.
169

Soyga, Soiga = agyos. -E.A. Agios is Greek for holy. Two copies of this book have been identified. One is Bodleian Ms. 908, and the other is British Library Sloane manuscript 8. See the introduction for more detail. -Ed.
170

Liber . . . bonos: “That book was revealed to Adam in Paradise by the good angels of God.” -Ed.
171

solus . . . interpretator: “Michael alone is the interpretor of that book.” -Ed.
172

Dee lived to be 81. -Ed.
173

Praesentias . . . invocandi: “Request and invoke our appearance with sincerity and humility. And Anchor, Anachor, and Anilos are not to be called into this stone.” -Ed.
174

Haec . . . non vi: “These things mostly involve Michael. Michael is the angel who illuminates your path. And these things are revealed in virtue and truth, not by force.” -Ed.
175

Omnis . . . nobis: “Every hour is our hour.” -Ed.
176

An illuding spirit straight way intruded him self, and this character: as may appere Libri Quinti Appendice where the character is described exactly.
177

In margin: This was not True Uriel as may appere Anno 1583: May 5. -Ed.
178

Sigillum . . . gestandum: “Engrave this sigil in gold, for protecting the body in all places, times, and occasions: and it is to be worn on the chest.” -Ed.
179

Soli . . . gloria: “All honor and glory to God alone.” -Ed.
180

Note: In this time there appered in the stone, a riche chayre: and after a little while, it was out of sight.
181

That is, Psalms 6, 32, 38, 51, 102, 130, and 143 (the Vulgate numbers them 6, 31, 37, 50, 101, 129, and 142). -Ed.
182

Sigillum Dei: “Sigil (or seal) of God.” -Ed.
183

In margin: Erronicè, contra ignorantiam meam. vide post. -Δ (Erroneously, to my ignorance. See below.) -Ed.
184

Note this point.
185

Two smaller seals are preserved in the British Museum. They measure 125mm in diameter, and are 20mm thick. The holy table itself measured 36¼ inches by 35⅞ inches, was 31½ inches high. -Ed.
186

Caue: quia angelus tenebrarum se intrusit hic ut libri Quinti appendice apparavit. -Δ. “Beware: an angel of darkness intruded itself here as is shown in the appendix to the fifth book.” In fronte: “in front”; iuxta pectus: “near the chest”; a sinistris: “on the left”; a dextris: “on the right.” -Ed.

187

Brimstone (sulfur) was commonly used in exorcisms. For the binding of Asmodeus by Raphael, see The Book of Tobit 3.17. -Ed.

188

Dee’s daughter Katherine was nine months old at the time. -Ed.

189

Note: So is it evident who went abowt to hinder the truth before in the character, and in the border of the Table, falsely cownterfeating &c as it also in the next action may appere.

190

Saul in danger of being carried away quick. -Δ. Quick: “alive.” -Ed.

191

George was a servant of Dee’s. Dee’s diary states that goodman Hilton requested lodging for his two sons in Dee’s house in 1579, and that Robert Hilton came to his service 4 October 1581. -Ed.

192

See Tobit 3.17 and 8.3.

193

Gloria . . . sicut: “Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit, as . . . etc.” -Ed.

194

“Around 3 in the morning.” -Ed.

195

Hereby may appere that this wycked spirit foysted in the shew of the fals character and names before.

196

Presently: “at once.” -Ed.

197

Brave: “splendid.” - Ed.

198

Note: Lundrumguffa skourged spiritually.

199

Glystring: “brilliant.” -Ed.

200

Lundrumguffa.

201

Gloria . . . saeculorum: “Glory, praise, honor, virtue, and sovereignty to the immortal, invisible, and almighty God, forever and ever.” -Ed.

202

Agrippa hath so, cap. 24, Lib. 3, Occult. Phil. -Δ. Cornelius Agrippa, De Occulta Philosophia, p. 471. Here Agrippa lists the four princes of the angels as Michael, Raphael, Gabriel, and Nariel (also known as Uriel). They rule over the four winds and the four parts of the world (East, West, North, and South respectively). -Ed.

203

Potius erat dicendum Michaël: Nam Gabriel est Praevalescentia Dei: et ita, fortitudo quidem, sed altioris gradus. -Δ. (“Rather Michael was indicated: For Gabriel is the Predominance of God: and therefore also the strength, but to another degree.” -Ed.)

204

Fortitudo . . . est: “The strength of God is always with you.” -Ed.

205

Angelus tuae professionis: “Angel of your profession.” -Ed.

206

Vide Agrippam de Triplici hõis custode. Lib.3: cap.22. -Δ. Cornelius Agrippa, De Occulta Philosophia, book 3, chap. 22, p. 465. Here Agrippa states that everyone is assigned three angelic keepers or preservers: one that is holy, another of the nativity, and another of the profession. -Ed.

207

Laudate . . . suis: “Praise the Lord for his works.” -Ed.

208

Vide Reuclini de Verbo Mirifico, de nomine NA.

209

Vide Reuclini Librum de Verbo Mirifico de nomine PELE.

210

The use of the ring.

211

De sigillo Emeth, vide Reuclinim Artem Cabalisticam, lib.3. et Agrippam lib. 3. cap.11. -Δ. “Concerning the seal Emeth, see Johann Reuchlin, On the Art of the Kabbalah, book 3.” Translated by Martin and Sarah Goodman, (Lincoln, NE: University of Nebraska Press, 1983), pp. 284, 287: “They assert that En Sof is alpha and omega, for he said: ‘I am the first and the last.’ They say too that the ‘Crown’ of the kingdom is the bottomless fount of all the ages and the Father of mercies, whose mystery is that he seals up Essence through Truth. As our noble teacher Eliezer haKalir says: ‘Truth is his seal.’ This can be proved by arithmetical calculation. If we multiply Ehieh (meaning ‘essence’) by Ehieh we will get 441, which is the same as Emeth, the word for ‘true’ or ‘truth,’ and the same as Adonai Shalom, which means ‘Lord of Peace.’” Compare with Joseph Gikatilla (b. 1248), Gates of Light, translated by Avi Weinstein (San Francisco: Harper Collins Publishers, 1994), p. 222: “Thus the Sages said ʿEMeT is the seal of the Holy One, Blessed be He.’ . . . Therefore, upon His seal is written EMeT, to teach you that all the hosts of letters from the first aleph to the [but not including] mem [which is in the middle of the alphabet] look to bring favour . . .” See the introduction for a discussion of the seal Emeth. Note also that all three names, “NA,” “Emeth,” and “PELE” are found in Agrippa, De Occulta Philosophia, book 3, chapter 11, p. 434. -Ed.

212

Virtue, also “power.” -Ed.

213

Valete: “Farewell.” -Ed.

214

Soli . . . Gloria: “All honor, praise, and glory to God alone.” -Ed.

215

Invocate . . . eum: “Invoke the name of the Lord, and acknowledge him.” -Ed.

216

Psalm 67.1: Deus . . . nobis: “May God be gracious to us and bless us.” -Ed.

217

Of Salamian you may rede, in the call, Diei Dominicae in Elementis Magicis Petri de Abano, there called Salamia. -Δ. Elementis Magici: “Magical Elements,” by Peter de Abano, English translation published as Heptameron: or Magical Elements (London, 1655, reprint London: Askin Publishers, 1978), p. 89. Diei Dominicae: “Sunday.”

218

Thretting: “threatening.” -Ed.

219

Raphaël.

220

De OCH vide in libello Arbatel in ☉. -Δ. According to the Arbatel De Magia Veterum, Aphor. 17, pp. 17–31, Och is a spirit of Olympus who governs solar things. The other six Olympic spirits are Aratron (Saturn), Bethor (Jupiter), Phaleg (Mars), Hagith (Venus), Ophiel (Mercury), and Phul (Moon). -Ed.

221

See Agrippa, De Occulta Philosophia, book 3, chapter 34, p. 504. -Ed.

222

Δ: Perchaunce he meaneth the cownsayle of Annael: before specifyed.

223

It is in Elementis Magicis Petri de Abano printed with Clauis Agrippae, which lay in my oratorie almost under my wyndow.

224

The top third of a page is missing here. This quote is supplied from HM, where it is attributed to Michael, that is, F.D., 15 March 1582. -Ed.

225

In margin, written lengthwise: God wilbe revenged uppon Saul: for he hath abused his names in his creatures He hath sinned agaynst kinde. His ponishment is great: and so I ende. -Ed.

226

See the apocryphal II Esdras 4.1, 4.36, 5.20, 10.28.

227

See the apocryphal Book of Tobit 3.17 and passim.

228

Mysteriorum Liber Primus, tooke ending here (as I conceive) after which followes *Mysteriorum Liber Secundus, but the begining thereof is utterly perished. *So it appeares to be by divers Quotations in the following Books. *So by the Citation 28 April 1582. -E.A.

229

The top quarter of a page is missing. In HM, Dee says: “Note that the whole Second boke is Nothing els but the Mysteries most Mervaylous of Sigillum Dei: otherwise called Sigillum Aemeth.” In 3677, E.A. makes the following comments: “I suppose here were some other Actions between the 21 of March and 28 of April 1582 which belonged to the 2nd booke, & are wanting. For in the beginning of the Action of 28 of Apr. Mich: taxeth (?) and threateneth Δ for his slacknes for his not preparing things appointed by him (which Δ excuseth with inability) but here is no . . . of such appointment . . . in Action of 21 of March. [In margin: 22 Mar Mr Talbot went to London to take his journey for the Bookes vide Ephemerides. If therefore there was any action between 22 Mar & 28 Apr it must be after Mr Talbots retorn, & when he retorned is not noted.] (The following line was crossed out. -Ed.): I suppose also that somewhat is wanting of the 3d Booke, for here is only the Actions of 2 daies, and 28 & 29 of Ap: & the catch word of the last page is - Mi + decedite - but nothing followes.

I also suppose there is something wanting of the 4th Booke, for the last Action is 4 May 1582 & at the beginning of which it appears that E.T. was unwilling to proceed as skryer any further, because Mich: willed him to Marry. & lis & bable be here (+) left offe. Beside the 4th (or rather 5) booke begins the 15 of Nov: 1582. & from the 4 of May to that tyme here is nothing extant. Yet that somwhat was done may be colledled from what is entred under the Title vizt: Post reconciliationem Kellianam, &c: implying that, here had been some falling out betw. Δ & him, & it may hence be presumed, Kelly had been implyed as Skryer sometyme before the said falling out.

+ / 4. May. Mr. Talbot went vide Ephem: so that by this it seemes Mr. Talbot went away from Mortlack so soone as his account of 4 of May was finished, & discected the imployment.” -E.A.

230

Benedictus qui venit in: “Blessed is he who comes in . . .” -Ed.

231

Benedictus . . . Domini: “Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.” This is part of the Sanctus prayer, which appears in the preface to the Latin mass. See also John 12:13. -Ed.

232

Michael - Fortitudo Dei.

233

My Oath or vow required for secresie.

234

To E.T. he spake.

235

Recte . . . Intelligere: “To perceive and understand properly.” -Ed.

236

The top quarter of a page is missing. -Ed.

237

In HM this section has the following heading (perhaps part of the missing text): “Now I will speak of Sigillum Aemeth, also known as Sigillum Dei.” The words in square brackets were supplied from HM. The quote is also dated 19 March. -Ed.

238

Semiel, this etymologie is as thowgh he wer the secretarie, for the Name of God.

239

Michael -CHM.

240

Semiel - fortè significat Nomen meum Deus. Ita quod Tabulae istae sunt Nomen Dei, vel Nomina Diuina. -Δ. Forte . . . Diuina: “Perhaps it signifies the name of my God, thus, because these tables are the name of God, or the Divine names.” -Ed.

241

Compare with Daniel 10:6. -Ed.

242

The very fashion of the T was thus:
243

“T” in the holy language is named Gisg; vide lib.5. post. et est ultima Alphabetilitera. -Δ. Vide . . . litera: “See below in Book 5; it is the last letter of the alphabet.” -Ed.

244

HM reads “of God.” -Ed.

245

Deus . . . semper: ‟O God, God, our God, blessed are you, now and forever.” - Ed.

246

G: alr. Ged. lib.5. -Δ. (“G: otherwise Ged. [See] Book 5.” -Ed.)

247

This ellipsis is Dee’s, indicating an omission. -Ed.

248

N, alr, Drux.

249

Multiplicatum . . . terra: “Manifold is your Name on the Earth.” -Ed.

250

Vidimus . . . Domine: “We have seen your glory, O Lord.” -Ed.

251

Gisg.

252

Illius . . . nobiscum: “May his Glory be with us.” -Ed.

253

Na.

254

Et est . . . Lucis: “And it is the number of blessed power. Behold the Angels of Light.” -Ed.

255

Et sum . . . videte: “And I am the end, and have no number. I am a number within a number, and every number is my number. Behold.” -Ed.

256

Drux.

257

Et est . . . cælis: “And he is life in heaven” -Ed.

258

Et ego . . . viventibus: “And I live with the well-living.” -Ed.

259

Vivamus . . . Nomen: “We live, Alleluia. O Holy Name.” -Ed.

260

Tal.

261

Benedictus . . . Agni: “Blessed is the number of the Lamb.” -Ed.

262

Orate invicem: “Pray in turn.” -Ed.

263

Omnia . . . Deo: “Everything is given by God.” -Ed.

264

Med.

265

Et non . . . Deus: “And the end is not in him. Blessed are you O God.” -Ed.

266

Angeli . . . Halleluyah: “The angels will fall down at your name O Lord. You are the first O alleluia.” -Ed.

267

Un.

268

Et numerus . . . caeteris: “And your number lives in the rest.” -Ed.

269

Corrected thus after by Uriel to be 20.

270

Nomen . . . nobiscum: “The name of that is with us.” -Ed.

271

Drux.

272

Creasti . . . tuam: ‟O Lord, you have created your angels for your glory.” -Ed.

273

Et te . . . Deus: “And God has made you first.” -Ed.
274

Un.
275

Et creata. . . tuo: “And they were created and perish in your name.” -Ed.
276

Note these 3 parts.
277

Surgit . . . Dei: “Innocence arises to the face of God.” -Ed.
278

Innocentium . . . tuis: “O Lord, you have seen the names and blood of the innocent on the earth, and you are just in your works.” Compare with Psalm 94:21. - Ed.
279

Na.
280

Numerus . . . rerum: “Your number is infinite, and it will be the end of things.” -Ed.
281

Non est . . . Terrae: “To him there is no number. Everyone perishes before God, and on the face of the earth.” -Ed.
282

O benedictum . . . illis: “Blessed is your name, O Lord. The number perished with those.” -Ed.
283

Med.
284

Lux . . . tuum: “Light abides in darkness. Your Name is full of glory.” -Ed.
285

Trinus sum: “I am threefold.” -Ed.
286

Benedictus . . . El: “May the name El be blessed.” -Ed.
287

Ur.
288

Labia . . . Dominum: “My lips praise the Lord.” -Ed.
[289]

Scotcheon: escutcheon. -Ed.
[290]

Et hic est El: “And here is El.” -Ed.
[291]

Benedicta . . . tua: “May your age be blessed.” -Ed.
[292]

Natus . . . noster: “That Light is born. He/she/it is our Light.” -Ed.
[293]

Drux.
[294]

Numerus . . . benedictus: “Your number is blessed.” -Ed.
[295]

Numerus . . . aeternum: “Your number is with us: and yet until now we knew not his end. May you come with your number, O one forever.” -Ed.
[296]

Linguis . . . eum: “They recognized him by his tongues.” -Ed.
[297]

Benedictus . . . sic: “Blessed is he who is so and so.” -Ed.
[298]

Trencher: cutting board on which food is served. -Ed.
[299]

Ur.
[300]

Et es . . . tuis: “And you are true in your works.” -Ed.
[301]

Gaudete . . . Gaudete: “Rejoice ye, all his people, rejoice ye, all his people, from now on rejoice.” -Ed.
[302]

Incipit virtus nostra: “Our power begins.” -Ed.
[303]

Ged—G.

304

Note this to be the first that vanished away, going behynde Michael.

305

Recte . . . eius: “Live properly, O you his holy ones.” -Ed.

306

Don.

307

Hic est . . . meam: “This is the angel of my Church, who may teach him my path.” -Ed.

308

Na.

309

Coniunxit . . . illorum: “He joined the spirit with their souls.” -Ed.

310

Med, ged.

311

Numerus . . . numero: “Its number is without number.” -Ed.

312

Tempus . . . agnoscite: “It is time. Recognize your God.” -Ed.

313

Gisg.

314

Imago: I writ first: but, aunciently, and vulgarly both in writing and print, you shall finde ymago, thowgh not according to the Latine Tung. -Δ. Ymago . . . amara: “Your image (O death) is bitter.” -Ed.

315

Gon - cum puncto, y -Δ. (“With a point, to distinguish it from ‘i’.” -Ed.)

316

Iustus . . . noster: “Our God is just to the wicked.” -Ed.

317

Opera . . . mea: “The labor of the faithful is my delight.” -Ed.

318

Hic est Deus noster: “Here is our God.” -Ed.

319

Ecce . . . mea: “Behold, sin rules in my house.” -Ed.

320

Graph.

321

Bestia . . . aeternum: “The beast devoured my people, but he will perish forever.” -Ed.

322

Pa.

323

Iniquitas . . . Inquis: “Iniquity fills my temple, and the holy live with the unjust.” -Ed.

324

I think it to be superfluous.

325

Iniqua . . . suis: “The earth is unjust in its malice.” -Ed.

326

Angeli . . . sanctis: “His angels have served the saints.” -Ed.

327

Uriel corrected it after, to be under.

328

Regnabit . . . tempore: “Wickedness will rule for a time.” -Ed.

329

Nulla . . . terram: “No power rules upon the earth.” -Ed.

330

Non est . . . caelis: “His number is not in heaven.” -Ed.

331

Antiquus . . . Innocentes: “The ancient serpent has raised up his head, devouring the innocent.” -Ed.

332

Regnum . . . Contradicet?: “My Kingdom. Who resists it?” -Ed.

333

Non quod . . . Mysterium: “It is not because he is A, but because he resists A. Neither his portion nor his number are discovered in heaven. Therefore he has the number of the earth, which is a mystery.” -Ed.

334

Mysterium nobis reuelandum. -Δ. (“A mystery to be revealed to us.”) Vobis . . . reuelandum: “This mystery is to be revealed to you afterward.” -Ed.

335

Perturbatur . . . sua: “The earth is thrown into confusion by his/her wickedness.” -Ed.

336

My skryer had omitted to tell me this, or els, it was not told and showed, but Uriel did after supply it by the skryer: The first letter of Perturbatur, doth not make shew, of the letter following as other before did.

337

Surgite . . . aeternum: “Arise, O servants of God. Arise (I say) and fight. The Name of God is eternal.” -Ed.

338

Omnis . . . illius: “All the Earth will tremble at the sound of that trumpet.” -Ed.

339

Serua . . . Israel: “O God, save your people; O God, save your people Israel; O God, save (I say) your people Israel.” -Ed.

340

Fam.

341

Est numerus in numero: “He is the number in the number.” -Ed.

342

Nunc . . . tribulationis: “Now are the days of troubles.” -Ed.

343

Hic predictus: “This is the number that was foretold.” -Ed.

344

Audite . . . est: “Listen: it is finished.” -Ed.

345

Uriel also did correct this place with deliuering this in the place of the other description before.

346

Angele . . . tuam: “O angel, prepare your trumpet.” -Ed.

347

Venite Tempus: “The time comes.” -Ed.

348

Hij duo . . . adhuc: “These two were still hidden.” - Ed.
349

Vale . . . suum: “Farewell. Nature has its own limit.” -Ed.
350

Hij duo . . . adhuc: “These two were still hidden.” - Ed.
351

Have wanted: “were missed.” -Ed.
352

Veritas . . . sunt: “Truth is in God alone, and all these things are true.” -Ed.
353

The descryer, or the skryer omitted to tell.
354

Hij duo . . . adhuc: “These two were still hidden.” - Ed.
355

Consummatum est: “It is finished.” -Ed.
356

Iste . . . suus: “This is his number.” -Ed.
357

Omnia unum est: “Everything is one.” -Ed.
358

Semieil.
359

Laudate . . . eius: “Praise the Lord in his sanctuary” (Psalm 150). -Ed.
360

The declaration of the Numbers.
361

Make experience: “get started.” -Ed.
362

Note these doings to be accownted Calls.
363

Saluete: “Greetings.” -Ed.
364

Note: 7 names, proceding from 3 generall places of the Circumference or 3 generall letters, being but one letter and that, A.
365

Prove: “determine the truth.” -Ed.
366

Vide Galatinum, lib. 3. cap. 11. -Δ. This is Petrus Galatinus, a 15th century Kabbalist. -Ed.
367

Id est . . . Trinitate: “That is, God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Spirit, Trinity in unity and unity in Trinity.” - Ed.
368

Pater . . . Deus: “God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Spirit, nevertheless not three gods but one God.” -Ed.
369

Sicut . . . unus: “As the rational mind and flesh of a person are one, so too are God and man one Messiah.” -Ed.
370

42, are here in potentia, but, non Acta.
371

The vertu of this Circle.
372

ADAMS TREATISE, A: He meaneth my Booke that I call Soyga.
373

Primus . . . Dixi: “First and newest, one alone God lives now and ever: He is and he will be, and here are his Divine Names. I have spoken.” -Ed.
374

Benedicamus Dominum: “Let us bless the Lord.” -Ed.
375

Δ: I had made, and written, and corrected certayn prayers to them.
376

Fiat voluntas Dei: “Let it be as God wills.” -Ed.
377

Straight way: “immediately.” -Ed.
378

Baskets.
379

Ecce . . . Israel: “Behold, it is a mystery. Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel” (Psalm 7:18). -Ed.
380

Sapientiam: “wisdom.” -Ed.
381

Omnia unum est: “All is one.” -Ed.
382

Here there is a marginal flourish in the manuscript, with a line drawn to the word “heven.” -Ed.
383

Seal this: “confirm this.” -Ed.
384

Note of the 7 Baskets.
385

Dixit . . . est: “He spoke and it was so.” -Ed.
386

Et viuis . . . est: “And you live with him, and your kingdom is with those.” -Ed.
387

Dedit . . . Orate: “He gave power to them in heaven. His power is great. Pray.” - Ed.
388

Magnum . . . Orate: “Mighty is GOD in his angels, and great is their power in heaven. Pray.” -Ed.
389

Nuncius . . . coelis. Orate: “Your messenger is great in heaven. Pray.” Nuncius (Nuntius) is commonly used as a title for Gabriel in medieval Latin. -Ed.
390

Michael is the sixth name. vide post. -Δ. Vide post: “see below.” -Ed.
391

Dedit . . . coeli: “He gave power to his angels in the splendor of heaven.” -Ed.
392

Et coniunxit . . . unum: “And God joined them into one.” -Ed.

393

My contynual and anncient prayer.

394

Note these manifold and great Mysteries and mark these 7 diuerse Crosses with these 7 letters.

395

Note this Bond.

396

He is twice three and one.

397

I haue hither to forgotton to ax where Uriel his name may appere.

398

48 letters are here: and One is noted by a Cross: which maketh the 49th. Of this Cross and Angels vide Anno 1584, Junij 25. - Δ. See TFR, p. 173. -Ed.

399

The 7 angels, Zaphiel, Zadkiel, Camael, Raphael, Haniel, Michael, and Gabriel, appear in Cornelius Agrippa, De Occulta Philosophia, book 2, chap. 10, p. 282, as the “seven angels which stand in the presence of God.” -Ed.

400

72 vertues multiplyed by 48: giue 3456.

401

This I supply was spoken by Michael though the noting by whom is omitted in the original. -Δ.

402

Shaddowed: “shaded.” -Ed.

403

¶ Of this sentence cam no frute nor furder confirmation, therefore, consider.

404

The third Lord Monteagle, William Stanley, died in 1581, and it seems likely that Dee was trying to purchase some of his books at his estate sale. -Ed.

405

Note this trumpeter.

406

We were commaunded Not to ax of the apparayle of Michael.

407

Et haec est . . . fac officium Phanael: “And this is his glory, which will not be moved by the wicked. Mi: What do you want? Δ: Besides the will of God, the wisdom that is necessary for us. Mi: The wisdom of the world is nothing, but will perish in eternity. May the LORD’S eternity come, from every part of the world. Come, come if GOD ADONAY wishes. Perform the office, O Phanael.” -Ed.

408

Lustily: “vigorously.” -Ed.

409

Multiplex . . . Noster: “Manifold is our God.” -Ed.

410

7 Thrones, 7 Trumpets, 7 Angels.

411

Sic est Deus noster: “So is our God.” -Ed.

412

Unus . . . noster: “One is our God, O God, our God.” -Ed.

413

Muserion est: “It is a mystery.” The reason Dee used this pseudo-Greek is unclear. -Ed.

414

Note the intrusion of Error by the Wicked powres of Sathan.

415

Perijt Malus cum malis: “A wicked one perishes with the wicked.” -Ed.

416

Tanta . . . Sathan: “So great is your boldness, O Satan” -Ed.

417

Sed . . . vivit: “But our God lives.” -Ed.

418

Non sum: I understand the refusall of those two intruded pillers. -Δ. Non sum: “I am not.” -Ed.

419

Sum: “I am.” -Ed.

420

Orate: “Pray.” -Ed.

421

Cumfet, comfit: “candy.” -Ed.

422

Ista . . . secretorum: “These are the secrets of secrets.” -Ed.
423

Invocate . . . possumus: “Call upon his name, or we are able to do nothing” -Ed.
424

Sic . . . Sic: “Yes, O Lord, Yes, Yes.” -Ed.
425

Laudate . . . aeternum: “Praise the name of the Lord who lives forever.” -Ed.
426

Ipse: “exactly.” -Ed.
427

Et Misericordia tua Domine magna est: “And your mercy, O Lord, is great.” -Ed.
428

Dominus . . . suo: “The Lord is stationed in his number.” -Ed.
429

Vivo . . . illorum: “I live as a lion in their midst.” -Ed.
430

Et tua ... ubique: “And great is your power everywhere.” -Ed.
431

Hoc . . . praece: “This is not without prayer.” -Ed 432

Serpens . . . serpentem: “I am a serpent, and I devoured the serpent.” -Ed.
433

Et bonis . . . Domine: “You are a serpent to both the good and the evil, O Lord.” -Ed.
434

Numerus . . . cognitus: “His number was discovered by no one.” -Ed.
435

Ignis sum penetrabilis: “I am a piercing fire.” -Ed.
436

Et sit . . . Deus: “And may it/he be with us, O God.” -Ed.
437

There is “V” omitted by our neglect.
438

Note these innumerable Angels.
439

Sic . . . noster: “Yes, yes, yes our God.” -Ed.
440

Finis. Gaudium . . . Deus: “The end. Joy and Light is our God.” -Ed.
441

Consummatum est: “It is finished.” -Ed.
442

Unus . . . eius: “ONE ONE ONE. All flesh fears his voice.” -Ed.
443

Adeste . . . Venite: “Be present O Daughters of goodness. Behold, your God is present. Come.” -Ed.
444

Filiae Bonitatis, or Filiolae lucis: vide pagina sequente. -Δ. (“Regarding the Daughters of goodness, or little Daughters of light: see the following page.” -Ed.)
445

Scribe quae vides: “Write what you see.” -Ed.
446

Nos . . . multa: “We are capable of much in Heaven.” -Ed.
447

Adeste, Filiolae Lucis: “Come, O Little Daughters of Light.” -Ed.
448

Michael: one of them that are cownted to stand before the face of God. -Δ. Adsumus . . . stas: “We are present, O you who stands before the face of God.” -Ed.
449

Hijs nostris benefacite: “Favor these ones of ours.” -Ed.
450

Factum erit: “It will be.” -Ed.
451

Valete: “Farewell.” -Ed.
452

Et dixit . . . exaltum est: “And the Lord spoke, come O Son of Light. Come to my tent. Come (I say), for my name is exalted.” -Ed.
453

HM reads, “pendant behinde with a wreth down to the grownd.” -Ed.
454

Yern: iron. -Ed.
455

Traditionally, these metals correspond to the Sun, Moon, Venus, Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, and Saturn, respectively. -Ed.
456

Δ: perhaps here wanteth “non.”
457

Quanmvis . . . sunt: “Although they may (not?) be begotten at one time, yet they are one.” -Ed.
458

Facite . . . erit: “Make (items) according to these (examples) when the time comes.” -Ed.
459

Volumus: “We wish.” Perhaps a mistake for “volamus” (we fly). -Ed.
460

Magna . . . Halleluyah: “Great is God’s glory among you, and ever shall be. Halleluyah.” -Ed.
461

Valete: “Farewell.” -Ed.
462

Dixit . . . estis: “God said, be mindful of my name, but you have been forgetful.” -Ed.
463

Forte “quae.” -Δ. (Perhaps “quae” -Ed.) 464

Note these three descents.
465

Venite, . . . Adsumus: “Come, come, come. Come, O Daughters of the Daughters of Light. Come now and forever, you who will have daughters. God said, I created my angels, who will destroy the daughters of the earth. We are present.” -Ed.
466

Vbi fuistis vos: “Where were you?” -Ed.
467

In terris . . . glorificatis: “On the earth with the saints, and in heaven with the glorified.” -Ed.
468

Non adhuc . . . hoc: “This mystery is not yet to be known.” -Ed.
469

Quid . . . Illorum: “What will you do with these? (They answered,) We shall be with them in all their works.” -Ed.
470

Valete: “Farewell” (lit. “be well”). -Ed.
471

Valeas . . . Cælis: “May you be well, and you are great O you in heaven.” -Ed.
472

Orate: “pray.” -Ed.
473

Et miset . . . Adsumus: “And he has sent the sons of the sons, instructing Israel. The Lord spoke, come to my voice. We are present.” -Ed.
474

Quid factum . . . sumus: “What is done among the sons of men? They live badly (said they) and we do not have a place with them, so great is their iniquity. Woe to the world because of temptations to sin, or to those who cause temptations. Woe to those whom we are not with.” -Ed. Compare with Matthew 18:7: Vae mundo a scandalis. Necesse est enim ut veniant scandala: verumtamem vae homini illi, per quem scandalum venit: “Woe to the world for temptations to sin! For it is necessary that temptations come, but woe to the man by whom the temptation comes!”
475

Nec nomine . . . Mundus: “The world does not fear my name.” -Ed.
476

Nullus . . . meam: “Nobody will see my face.” -Ed.
477

Non est . . . dicam: “There is no maiden on the earth with whom I will speak.” -Ed.
478

Tanta est . . . ab illo: “So great is the weakness of holiness of the day. The benefactors depart from him.” -Ed.
479

Opera . . . me: “Their handiwork is vain. Whereupon no one will see me.” -Ed.
480

In the manuscript the “e” and “l” are overwritten. -Ed.
481

Hagonel. Vide de hoc Hagonel, lib. 4. -Δ ("Regarding this Hagonel, see Book 4.") Ecce: "behold"; Qui adhuc . . . viuo: "I live with those who are still holy." -Ed.

482

Hij . . . Doctrina: "They have imitated my teaching. The teaching of all things are placed in me." -Ed.

483

Imitati sunt: "They have imitated." The proper perfect active form of imitor is Imitati sunt, not imitaverunt. -Ed.

484

Non curat numerum Lupus: "The wolf does not administer the number." -Ed.

485

Ne minimam . . . Valete: "It detracts very little virtue from virtue. Be with them. Be (I say with them). Be (I say) with me. Farewell." -Ed.

486

HM adds, "to Michael (who had called both the first & these)." -Ed.

487

Dictum est hoc tempore: "It was said at this time." -Ed.

488

Urielis officium. -Δ ("Uriel's office." -Ed.)

489

Omnis . . . Halleluyah: "All knowledge is from the Lord. Mi: And his name is Halleluyah." -Ed.

490

Note this list is made perfecter by the next side following. -Δ. The list is composed of the Hebrew names for the seven planets with the divine name "El" added to indicate an angel: Sabathiel (Saturn), Zedekieil (Jupiter), Madimiel (Mars), Semeliel (The Sun), Nogahel (Venus), Corabiel (Mercury), Levanael (The Moon). The numbers 21/8 represent "el"; 26, 8, and 30 represent "1." -Ed.

491

Beatus est . . . conseruat: "Blessed is he who keeps his own names secret." -Ed.

492

In the manuscript, "us" is heavily underscored. -Ed.

493

Note these two orders of Angels: and Note Uriel doth name him self one of the standers before the face of God.

494

Sanctus . . . noster: "Holy, holy, holy, is he, our God." -Ed.

495

Note well this Rule of Arte.

496

Vox Domini . . . Halleluyah: “The voice of the Lord in strength. The voice of the Lord in grace. The voice of the Lord reveals the secret. In his temple may we praise his name EL. Hallelluyah.” -Ed.

497

Note this manner of Center accownted.

498

Note of Numbers with priks signifying letters.

499

1 the first dowghter.

500

Nomen . . . aeternum: “The Name of the Lord lives forever.” -Ed.

501

Viuit in caelis: “He lives in heaven.” -Ed.

502

Deus noster: “Our God.” -Ed.

503

Dux noster: “Our Commander.” -Ed.

504

Hic est: “This is.” -Ed.

505

Lux in aeternum: “Light forever.” -Ed.

506

Finis est: “He/it is the end.” -Ed.

507

Vera est haec tabula: “This table is true.” -Ed.

508

Vera est . . . iam: “This table is true, known in part by us, but unknown in all parts. See below.” -Ed.

509

Note these other purposes.

510

Virtus Vobiscum est: “Virtue is with you. Pray.” -Ed.
511

Angeli . . . illorum: “The angels of light of our God. And he set his angels in their midst.” -Ed.
512

This name Corabiel you may see in Elementis Magicis Petri de Abani, in the Considerations Diei ☽ (Monday). - Δ.
513

Videt . . . est: “God saw his own work to be good, and he ceased from his work. It was so.” -Ed.
514

Note these two order of Angels.
515

Dixi: “I have spoken.” -Ed.
516

Sit Nomen . . . Amen: “May the Name of the Lord be blessed, from this time and for all time, forever and ever. Amen.” -Ed.
517

Sigillum . . . hebraice: “The Seal of God Aemeth (or Emeth), containing the names of God in Hebrew.” -Ed.
518

Ashmole has added “Liber: 3^{us} / Liber: 4^{us}” at the bottom of the page. Dee has drawn the frame around the title to look like a scroll. -Ed.
519

In HM Dee notes: “Almost all the Third boke, is of the 7 Ensignes of Creation.” -Ed.
520

Union of us two.
521

Habilitie: “ability.” -Ed.
522

The lamin not simpli . . . spoken: for No such Lamyn was to be made. -Δ.
523

Venito Ese: “Come, O Ese.” -Ed.
524

Laudate . . . Orate: “Praise the Lord in Heaven. Pray.” -Ed.
525

Remember, Ese and lana; ar the thirdth and fowrth of the Septem Filiæ Bonitatis, sup. lib°. 2°. They are thus in order there: El, Me, Ese, lana, Akele, Azdobn, Stimcul. -Δ. Septem Filiae Bonitatis . . . 2°: “Seven daughters of goodness, in book 2 above.” -Ed.
526

Adesdum Ese . . . vestris: “Come, Ese. Come, lana. He gives proof in your tables.” -Ed.
527

Lightened: “glowed.” -Ed.
528

Creatio. -Δ “I created.” -Ed.
529

Ex hijs . . . illorum: “From these they were created (I created), and these are their names.” -Ed.
530

Numerus Primus: “The first number.” -Ed.
531

Δ Of these seven tables, Characters, or scotcheons Consider the words spoken in the fifth boke, Anno 1583, Aprill 28, How they are proper to every King and prince in theyr order. They are Instruments of Conciliation. Volumine 5°: wher my Character is fashioned. -Δ. The words “Numerus Primus” appear to be in Ashmole’s handwriting. -Ed.
532

In the manuscript, Dee has drawn a line between this word and “very blak” above. -Ed.
533

Finis Tenebrarum: Halleluyah: “The end of darkness: Halleluyah.” -Ed.
534

Initium . . . Halleluyah: “And it is a good beginning in his name. Halleluyah.” -Ed.
535

Filiae filiarum Ese sup. lib. 2. -Δ. Venite filiae filiarum ESE: “Come, O daughters of the daughters ESE.” -Ed.
536

Somewhat wanteth.
537

Vnus: “One.” -Ed.
538

Dies primus: “The first day.” -Ed.
539

Ubi est Tabula?: “Where is the table?” -Ed.
540

Est, est, est: “It is, it is, it is.” -Ed.
541

This is the end of folio 32 of the manuscript. The 4 diagrams are inserted at this point, the first two on folio 33 recto, the other two on folio 33 verso. -Ed.
542

O honor . . . eris: “O honor, praise, and glory to you who are and will be.” -Ed.
543

Unus est . . . Origo: “He is one, he is three; he is in each corner. Everything will be understood. He was, is, and will be to you. The end and the beginning.” -Ed.
544

forte fui.—Δ. (Perhaps “was.”) Fui . . . sum: “I was, I am that which I am (was?) not.” -Ed.
545

Lux . . . est: “The light was not, but now it is.” -Ed.
546

In the margin is a line pointing to the third table. - Ed.
547

Ecce signum Incomprehensibilitatis: “Behold the sign that cannot be grasped.” -Ed 548

Est, est, est: “He/it is, is, is.” -Ed.
549

Fiat: “Let it be.” -Ed.
550

In the margin, is a line pointing to the fourth table. - Ed.
551

Scribe. Veritas est: “Write. It is true.” -Ed 552

Man, Woman.
553

Venito vasedq: “Come, O vasedq.” -Ed.
554

Vita . . . manu: “The life of these (is) from my hands.” -Ed.
555

O Lux Deus noster: “O Light, our God.” -Ed.
556

Note this stepping before. -Δ. In the manuscript there is also a line connecting “stepping” and “forestept.” -Ed.
557

Lumina . . . tuae: “These are the lights of your knowledge.” -Ed.
558

Fere . . . numerus: “Almost no one trusts this number.” -Ed.
559

The sterrs, Sonne and Mone Created.
560

Ad usum . . . sunt: “They are multiplied for your use.” -Ed.
561

Omnia gaudent fine: “All rejoice in the end.” -Ed.
562

Opus est: “It is the work.” -Ed.
563

Obumbrabit . . . luce: “He will overshadow your footsteps with the light of truth.” -Ed.
564

Gloria Patri et Filio, et Spiritui Sancto, Sicut erat in principio, et nunc, et semper, et in saecula saeculorum. Amen: “Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit, as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.” In British Library manuscript Harley 6482, A Treatise on Angel Magic, the seven ensigns are attributed to the Moon, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, the Sun, Venus, and Mercury, respectively. -Ed.
565

I am not sure if it wer Mi. or Ur, that called for them.
566

Et posuit . . . filiae: “And he sets those in his service. What do you desire? Δ: Wisdom and knowledge needed to serve God for his glory. Mi: Wisdom is from God; knowledge is to a creature and from creatures. Ur: Come, O daughters.” -Ed.

567

E.T. his promise.
568

Practise. The lower world.
569

Venite filiae: “Come, O daughters.” -Ed.
570

I marvayle that the earth and waters are here ascribed to one.
571

Non potestis ... ratione: “You are not able to see this without calculation.” -Ed.
572

This I entersert now; thowgh it wer not at the first Noting.
573

Aqua: “Water.” -Ed.
574

Animal quadrupes . . . colorum: “A four-footed animal of all colors alternating.” -Ed.
575

Terra: “Earth.” -Ed.
576

Aer: “Air.” -Ed.
577

Ignis: “Fire.” -Ed.
578

Decedite . . . misit: “Depart in his name who has sent you here.” -Ed.
579

We two to-gither.
580

Perseth: “pierces.” -Ed.
581

Vide ipam Tabulam horam 49 nom. Collectam, pagina sequente. -Δ. (“See the table itself, of 49 names collected, on the following page.” -Ed.) 582

49.

583

He ment to E.T.

584

Deo . . . Amen: “To God all good, all honor, praise, and glory, forever and ever. Amen.” -Ed.

585

Hora noctis 11½ a circiter: “around 11:30 at night.” -Ed.

586

Tabula . . . continens: “Collected table of the 49 consecutive names of the good angels (per Dee).” -Ed.

587

Coordinatio . . . disposita: “Sequence of the 49 angels, arranged thus by John Dee.” Iste est caeteris: “and so on.” -Ed.

588

Plightes: “pleats.” -Ed.

589

Uriel, his manner of apparition.

590

A description of the glorious man.

591

Many cullours in all his garments are shewed in sequentibus thus:

592

Sic, Sic, Sic, Deus noster: “Yes, yes, yes, our God.” -Ed.

593

Multiplicabit . . . sua: “He will multiply all things by his blessing.” -Ed.

594

595

The yoking or cuppling of the two byrds.

596

E.T. sayd the Voyce to be like Michael his voyce.

597

Progressum . . . gloriam: “Progress and increase in virtue and truth to God’s honor and glory.” -Ed.
598

Fortè: “your.” -Ed.
599

Seely: “looking.” -Ed.
600

Quick: “alive.” -Ed.
601

Liking: “appearance.” -Ed.
602

A palmer was a traveler who carried a palm branch as a token of having made a pilgrimage to the Holy Land. -Ed.
603

(Videlicet) in Deo: “(namely) in God.” -Ed.
604

Benedictus . . . eius: “Blessed is God in his gifts, and holy in all his works.” -Ed.
605

Betwixt the end of the 3rd book, whose last action was May 4, 1582, & the beginning of this 4th book whose first action was on Nov. 15, 1582, is a great chasme of time. Occasioned perchance by some falling out with E. Kelly which is implied in this mention of Reconciliatio Kelliana. This is the first time that Edward Kelly appears to bee the seer, at lest under that name, there beeing no account, neither in the printed nor Mss. books how hee came to Dee. Queue: If Edw. Kelly was not the same with Ed. Talbot this latter beeing his assumed name, perchance after he was in orders. For Weever in his Funeral Monuments speaking of Ed. Kelley the Necromancer, sayes hee also went by the name of Ed Talbot. -E.A. Dee’s diary fills in some details of this period: “May 4th, Mr. Talbot went. May 23, Robert Gardener declared unto me hora 4½ a certeyn great philosophicall secret, as he had termed it, of a spirituall creatuer, and was this day willed to come to me and declare it, which was solemnly done, and with common prayer. July 13th, Mr. Talbot cam abowt 3 of the clok afternone, with whom I had some wordes of unkendnes: we parted frendely: he sayd that the Lord Morley had the Lord Mountegle his bokes. He promised me some of Doctor Myniver’s bokes.” James Halliwell, ed., The Private Diary of Dr. John Dee (New York: AMS Press, 1968), pp. 15–16. -Ed.
606

Quartus . . . dimittimus: “Fourth Book of the Mysteries. November 15, 1582. After Kelley’s reconciliation. O God, have mercy on us, forgive us as we forgive.” Compare with Matthew 6:12. Ashmole has written “Liber 5^{us}” on the bottom of the page. -Ed.
607

In HM, this section is titled, “Some Notice of peculier formes, and attire, wherein, the Kings, Princis and Ministers Heptarchicall appeared, and of some their Actions, and gesture at their apperance. &c.” The first leaf has been lost, but HM and CHM record the following actions of that day (order uncertain): In the first leafe were the offices of the two Kings Blumaza & Bobogel recited, as appeares by the Note at the bottome of the 2d page: & also 5 May 1583 & perhaps this first leafe was lost before he drew up his Booke of De Bonorum Angelorum invitationibus because I find a Blank where Blumaza is placed. -E.A. De Bonorum Angelorum: “Concerning the invitation of good angels.” -Ed.

608

Ultima . . . erit: “This age of yours is the last age, which shall be revealed to you.” -Ed.

609

Est in mundo, et incipiet cum illo alter Mundus: “It (or he) is in the world, and another World will commence with that one.” -Ed.

610

This king onely, is the ordrer, or disposer, of all the doctrine, which I terme Heptarchicall, as first, by calling the 7 Princis and after that, the 7 kings: and by giving instructions for use and Practise of the whole doctrine Heptarchicall for the first purpose, and frute therof to be enioyed by me: of two other there was onely Mention made. -Δ (HM).

611

Note. For, of Hagonel we never had any thing before. -Δ.

612

To him ward: “toward him.” -Ed.

613

Regnat . . . Operis: “Your power rules in the sons. Behold, the sign of The Work.” Note the crown symbol drawn above the “H” (for “homo” or man) denotes royalty. Dee uses the crown symbol in his diary to signify the queen. -Ed.

614

Carmara, otherwise Baligon. Vide . . .

615

Adhuc . . . non est: “There is two to come, there is no more” (in John Dee’s words, see below). -Ed.

616

Prince HAGONEL. Note. All the Princis, seemed to be men, and to haue red Robes, but this Prince, his Robe was shorter then the others. All the Princis, had Cerclets, of Gold on theyr heds: not crowns not coronets. -Δ (HM).

617

HM reads “light” in three places. -Ed.

618

Filij & Filij Filiorum, supra libro 2°.-Δ. “See above in book 2 on the Sons and the Sons of the Sons.” -Ed.

619

Δ: generally.

620

Δ: particular, or my government lasteth yet.

621

Kings of the erth &c.

622

HM reads, “This Prince held in the palme of his right hand, as yf it had byn a rownd ring, with a prick in the mydst: hanging allso over his myddle fingers, which he affirmed to be his seale: and sayd the name of it, to be Barees.” -Ed.

623

All people of the erth etc.

624

Counterpoised: “balanced.” -Ed.

625

Cheare = cheer: “disposition.” -Ed.

626

Vera: “true.” -Ed.

627

Impura: “filth.” -Ed.

628

Verus . . . Impuris: “The true with the true, and the filthy with the filthy.” -Ed.

629

Philosophers.

630

Geometry.

631

Δ He hath recyted the offices of two Kings, as of Blumaza and Bobogel. And then he sayeth, Gather by these few spriggs &c: Which Bobogel is over the Nobility and Wisdome, of Metalls, & all Nature. -Δ. Lucem: “Light”; Mundi tenebras: “the darkness of the world.” -Ed.

632

Lucem:“light.” -Ed.

633

The foreman with the short [coat].

634

Primus et quartus: “The First and the Fourth.” -Ed.

635

The.

636

Carmara his Minister: forte Prince Hagonel.

637

Weapons wherwith to destroy.

638

Note this First and last, bycause of Baligon ali. Carmara, his prince & tables.

639

Practise with spirituall weapons.

640

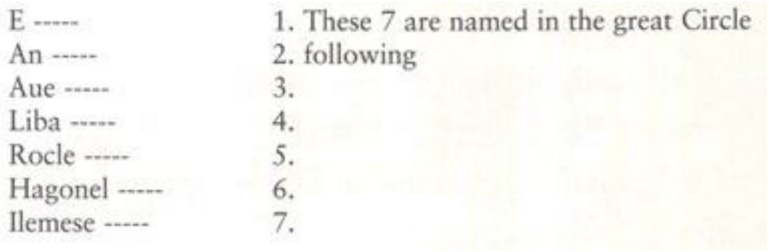
Ubi . . . est: “Where there is neither glory, nor goodness, nor good.” -Ed.

641

Sempiternitie: “eternity.” -Ed.

642

Note. Practise. Lib°. 2°, Filij Filiorum: (“In book 2, sons of the sons.” -Ed)



E -----	1. These 7 are named in the great Circle
An -----	2. following
Aue -----	3.
Liba -----	4.
Rocle -----	5.
Hagonel -----	6.
Ilemese -----	7.

643

Note. Prince Butmono sayd this: but the office is under king Bnaspol, whose prince is Blisdon. The Mystery of this I know not yet: For Blisdon will be fownd to be the proper minister of king Bnaspol. Vide Anno 1583 May 5th, of the Making of Mensa faeders, and my Golder Lamine. -Δ (HM). Mensa faederis: “the table (or altar) of the law (or covenant).” -Ed.

644

In the manuscript, Dee has written this as “E.ŦK.” -Ed.
645

Vox hominibus . . . mundi: “The voice not worthy for the people, but these with their sons have praised God. Blessed is he who is the only son, and glory of the world.” -Ed.
646

The black cloth of silence and staying.
647

The Token to leaue of, by a black shaddowing all in the stone.
648

Note: how he governeth Three, and Carmara (his King) hath also a Triple crown.
649

 This Character seemes to stand for Carmara, as apperes from severall places in fol .2.a. & b. & many other. It appears by a note of Dr. Δ (De Heptarchia &c: Cap. i.) that Michaell & Uriel were present at the begining of these revealed Misteries & gave authority to Carmara to order the whole Heptarchicall Revelacon. Perhaps this authority was entred in the first lost leafe of this 4th booke (thowgh Dr. Dee calls it the 2d Booke in his Note.) see Chap: 2 at the begining. By a marginall note at the beginning of the first Chapter, it should seeme, that the Dr. meanes by the first Booke the Action only of the 16 of Nov. 1582, & by the 2d Booke the Actions of the 17, 19 & 20 of Nov. 1582. But his marginal note of 19 should be 20 of Nov. for so it appears by the Actions entred. The 21 of Nov: vizt: the action of that day he calls the Appendix of the 2d chapter. -E.A. Laus . . . semp.: “Praise and honor be to the eternal and omnipotent God, now and ever. Amen.” -Ed.
650

Ille . . . Venite: “Truly he is God. Come.” -Ed.
651

Δ: So he sayd in latin, in the forpart of the leaf before.
652

Note. Copper apperteyneth to ♀ . -Δ. HM reads, “All the Princis held up to gither, Heptagonon stellare, (as I terme it) and it seemed to be of Copper.” -Ed.
653

Δ Forte Bagenol / Hagonel, if H be for B. Then Bagonel conteyned Bagenol.
654

Me nosti: “You have known me.” -Ed.
655

One of the first of the Twelue.
656

‘8. Gods visitation. And it is 8: may be 8 yeres added to this tyme: and that maketh 1590. Nouemb. 16. That 8, or 88, I know not yet.
657

Prince Befafes with feathers under his robes.
658

Deo soli . . . gloria: “All honor and glory to God alone.” -Ed.
659

Prince Butmono. -Ed.
660

In earth.
661

The Dead mens bodyes.
662

The Light of his anger. ☞
663

Threasure hid requested.
664

Antichrist
665

How can the middest of a spirituall creature be imagined? My dowt to ax. He meant the middest or center of the Earth. The middest of his Charge. ☞
666

Δ A great dowt . . . me yet, the diuersity of the 4th and fifth officers, and officis as they are here, and in the Repetition ensuing.
667

Δ: in Animantibus bratij. (“in living creatures.” -Ed.) Sloane 3677 misreads “ animantibus oratis.” 668

(Δ = man.)
669

Virtus officij sui -Δ. (“The power of his office.” -Ed.) 670

Short Coat. The first.
671

Novi Januam Mortis: “I have known the Gate of Death.” -Ed.
672

Et percussit . . . Dixi: “And the Glory of God has struck the walls of the wicked. I have spoken.” -Ed.
673

Prince Brorges.
674

Mysteria . . . imprimite: “Engrave these mysteries on your souls/minds.” -Ed.
675

A forte, in Aëre.
676

But Baligon, als Carmara, in the ende of the boke sayeth it to be his office. Consider well. Prince Bralges hath Blumaza his king.
677

The powres under his Subiection are Invisible. They appeared like little white smokes without any forme. All the world semed to be in brightnese. -HM 678

The seale.
679

Exchue Wauering or suspition.
680

All Mysteries shalbe known to us. -Δ. The last of 7 Princes of the boke spoke hereof his words. -(HM) 681

Secreta Dei, non sunt hominibus reuelanda. -Δ. (“Secrets of God are not to be revealed to men.” -Ed.)
682

Δ: Note Highest and Lowest to be understode perhaps in Tabula Collecta.
683

BLUMAZA Rex est super Reges Terrae et illius sunt primus princeps, et illius Ministri, ut conycio.

Hanc partem primam vocat  unum Librum: in quinta pagina sequente, ad hanc Notam  .

It shold seme that this character shold be onely a Circle and a pryck fol.6.b. I haue forgotten how I cam by this Crosse annexed to it.

alr Remember. Obelison his promise to me of knowing and using. (This note is next to “Befafes” on the diagram. -Ed.)

Words: 9

9
9
7
11
45

Sanctus sanctus sanctus Dominus Deus noster: “Holy, holy, holy, O Lord, our God”; Blumaza Rex est ... Notam: “I conclude that Blumaza is the king, and rules the kings of the Earth, and they are his first prince and servants.  calls this first part one book in the fifth page following, marked with the symbol .” -Ed.
684

“Around one in the morning.” -Ed
685

Carmara al: Baligon
686

In the manuscript, this word has a crown drawn above it, i.e.,  . -Ed.
687

Nam ipse . . . nostro: “For he himself is one and indivisible. Glory, glory, glory be to our Creator.” -Ed 688

Δ forte, of this work.
689

The rownd Table.
690

NOTE this to be a REPETITION of the Heptagonon this little Treatise aeffore. Lern to reconcile the 4th and the 5th. -Δ. In HM, Dee notes, “At the Call of King Carmara (in the Second handling of this Heptarchicall doctrine), whan he sayd, Venite, Repetamus Opera Dei, Appered Prince Hagonel.” Venite . . . Dei: “Come, let us renew the works of God step by step.” -Ed.

691

Δ hã . . . bis dext . . . Adhuc duo, et tempus non est. (This reading is from Sloane 3677. It is illegible in Sloane 3188. -Ed.)

692

Short Coat.

693

Δ: I think he ment by the rownd table shewed, which Mr. K. had sent me &c, bycause the names cam out of that Table.

694

Haec sunt . . . intelligis: “These are your lessons, which you do not yet understand.” -Ed.

695

According to HM this was Hagonel. -Ed.

696

Unus . . . nostrum: “There is one God, and there is one work of ours.” -Ed.

697

Parati . . . nostro: “We have been prepared to serve our God.” -Ed.

698

Vide libro 3°.

699

Hagonel seamed to embrace the Cumpany. -Δ (HM).

700

Δ: I dowt it shold be short coat holding or embracing all the Table with his hands, and not H. Note Istorum - Istarum, as if it were filias et filiare &c. (Et nomen . . . sunt: “And my name is a whole number, nor is their offence in our number. Moses named us. The power of these men is like the power of these women. Although they are not one, nevertheless they are in unity.” -Ed.)

701

Making the phrase, Tam . . . Quam: “as . . . so . . .” -Ed.

702

Dei potestas. -Δ (“God’s power.” -Ed.)

703

Quatenus . . . quaerit: “How great is your vanity? You knew these numbers to be in God, in the world, and in the minor world. In God, that is, with us. In the world, that is, in our presence. In the minor world, that is among us. (Your mind/soul is combined with thought.) It is debated among philosophers, and above all) concerning NATURE, which is not with you but with us (ah, ah, ah) and it is in our power. You (singular form) will see God. You (singular form) have seen our work, the work (I say) of his own hands. We shall be moved by the finger of God. He came [or comes] from God. He was a man, and with men: and is yet with them. For truly his power gives might, strength, and purpose, not only to us, but to our deeds. What does your unburied soul seek for yourself?" Note the missing parenthesis probably belongs after Phõs, "philosophers." Unburied soul: "soul of a living person as opposed to a dead person's soul." -Ed.

704

Ab humo . . . dictum est: "From the earth, from man; from man is the word." -Ed.

705

Skaped: "escaped." -Ed.

706

HM reads, "robes or clothes." -Ed.

707

Note this reckening by six and six.

708

HM reads, "blown bladder," i.e., inflated balloon. -Ed.

709

So he sayd pagina praecedente, unum est opus nostrum. -Δ. ("On the preceding page (he said), 'Our workmanship is all one.'" -Ed.)

710

The diuision of the Daye.

711

In sexto et 7° sunt omnia, fol. 10. -Δ. "All things are in a sixth and a seventh, fol. 10." -Ed.

712

Note. K. Car. There are but 6 Names that are in Subiection unto the Prince: The first 7 next him: are those which held the fayr & bewtifull Crownes. The first 7 are called by those names that thow seest: O E S &c. Note. This diversity of Reckening by 6, and by 7, I can not yet well reconcyle. -Δ(HM).

713

There is a blank space in the manuscript. -Ed.

714

Δ: How can Bobogel be accownted the first name?

715

Δ: Now he meaneth at Bobogel in that table collected from ✙ made before.

716

Note. The Tablet to be conferred with the rownd . -Δ.The latter drawing is reproduced from Sloane 3677, since the original is now lost. -Ed.
717

In margin: Sent to me by E.K.
718

A sword in the mans hand within the Circle.
719

O in this Table OFS &c, is of the eighth name, the second letter, but the ninth here in respect of the circle of numbers.
720

Note who sayeth this. Δ: Note the like phrase: fol. 2. of Hagonel who sayd he had spoken of it, whereas we had receyved nothing of him before.
721

This is the symbol of Saturn/Saturday. -Ed.
722

Δ him.
723

Baligons rule and government.
724

Sup. fol. 1. b.2.
725

Prodigious rule and government, the ende of all things.
726

Dee his languishing desire.
727

God graunt.
728

Δ I understode not this to be so: tyll he called to my remembrance and made me turne my bokes to that Parcell which he called the Prologe declared by Annael: which Saul skryed: &c.
729

Δ: = hardest, for me, in respect of my Imperfections.
730

In the manuscript, this word is heavily underscored. -Ed.

731

Those—as he seemed to Embrace them. fo. 5.

732

The Prince and his first 7.

733

= data.

734

Istorum Noua potestas incipit. -Δ. (“Their new power begins.” -Ed.)

735

Regnat... quaeso: “It rules, it rules, it rules; O wickedness rules over the entire face of the Earth. The heart of man is filled with malice and iniquity. Please consider.” -Ed.

736

Angels, ministers of Gods wrath.

737

Consider the reckening here by 7, but before he had a reckening by 6. ☞

738

There were but 6 holding bewtifull Crownes.

739

The Powre and being of the rest. ☞

740

Now by 7.

741

Δ: each of .7. letters. Six names in subiection.

742

☉ on the right hand.

743

Δ forte “of the first 7”. Δ videlicet.

744

Δ: of the six lines.

745

Note, Name and Character.

746

Praxis. Call. -Δ. (Praxis: “exercise, practise.” -Ed.)

747

Prince, Ministers. 6.

748

Destruction or hurt.

749

= Kings. -Δ. HM reads “princes,” without the qualification. -Ed.

750

... Sciences past present or to come.

751

Diuers kings.

752

Dignification.

753

Δ: Is it not Annael with whome I began?

754

Δ Who is that?

755

HM does not include this instruction. -Ed.

756

Δ: Ergo it shold seme to be his office to deale with Kings: but in the ende he declareth his office to be of all Aëreall actions.

757

Δ: Hagonel.

758

Δ Character. HM has no such notation. -Ed.

759

Of 7 letters a pece.

760

The placing of my fete in practise. ☞

761

Note former boke.

762

Δ The Table of practise of a yard square: libro: 1°.

763

The stone was not yet browght.

764

HM reads “Mercies” in one place, and “Mercy” in another. -Ed.

765

I shall not practise these Tables in Vayne.

766

Dei Misericordia magna ipi Δ concessa. (“God’s great mercy granted to Dee himself.” -Ed.)

767

Respice ista Tria. -Δ. (“Respect these three things.” -Ed.)

768

Shaddowed: “sheltered.” -Ed.

769

Secresy.

770

Queen Elizabeth -Ed.

771

God graunt.

772

Worldly vanity.

773

Good Angels.

774

Laus ... Max°.: “Praise, honor, glory, power, and sovereignty be to God, all good.” -Ed.

775

Stay: “delay.” -Ed.

776

Noble men.

777

This I note for the form of calling. -Δ. Venito ... munitus: “Come, O Bobogel, king and noble prince. Come with your ministers. Come (I say), come fortified with your guards.” -Ed.

778

Note.

779

Cave -Δ (“Beware.” -Ed.)

780

Ioly = “jolly: handsome.” -Ed.

781

BOBOGEL his apparayle.

782

Faciamus . . . aeternus: “May we act in accordance with God’s will. He, our God, is truly noble and eternal.” -Ed.

783

HM reads, “sonk down into the Transparent fyry Globe of the New World.” -Ed.

784

In the manuscript, the first four are indicated with a brace. -Ed.

785

In the manuscript, the first four are indicated with a brace. -Ed.

786

In the manuscript, the first three are marked with a brace. -Ed.

787

In the mansucript, the last four are marked with a brace. -Ed.

788

Deo soli ... Gloria: “All honor and glory to God alone.” -Ed.

789

“Around 1 in the morning.” -Ed.

790

BOBOGEL Rex.

791

A rownd Table.

792

Women-like.

793

Farthingale: “hoop skirt.” -Ed.

794

The Circle.

795

Tam mali ... noster: “Both the wicked and the good praise you. God, God, our God.” -Ed.

796

Nomen . . . Bobogel: “My name is Bobogel.” -Ed.

797

Δ: in Heptagonum.

Bobogel ---------- Rex
Bornogo ------------ Princeps

(Rex: “king”; Princeps: “prince.” -Ed.)

798

Wisdome & Science: “true nobility.”

799

Councell.

800

Clean: “completely.” -Ed.

801

Praters: “fools.” -Ed.

802

Ordinationem ... eleuate: “Raise up the government of infinite power.” -Ed.

803

LEE.

804

O Unitas ... in Deo: “O Unity in nature and in God.” -Ed.

805

O Aequalitas ... et se: “O equality of God and Nature. God in God. Nature from God and itself.” -Ed.
806

Concentus ... Naturae: “His harmony is without number. Nevertheless he is together with us, the source and head of nature.” -Ed.
807

Veritas ... est: “Ours is the truth which is sought after.” -Ed.
808

Note, this is an example of what William Sherman calls a “face bracket” (John Dee, Amherst, MA: University of Massachusetts Press, 1995, p. 88). Dee drew them often in the margins of texts, and they only seem to mark alchemical passages (as here) or natural philosophical texts. -Ed.
809

Vegetible, Minerall.
810

♄
811

Beatus est ... mei: “Blessed is the light of my head.” -Ed.
812

Unus ... pedubus: “One in head, one in heart, one in feet.” -Ed.
813

Ientleman = gentleman: “nobleman.” -Ed.
814

Note. King Bobogel said this of my atteyning to such mysteries, as the mysteries under him made shew of. -Δ (HM).
815

2. NAR.
816

Volumus: “we wish”; Possumus: “we can”; Quid non: “What not?” -Ed.
817

Faciamus ... societate: “Let us do what they did, for we three are Adam, by association.” -Ed.
818

3. BLN.
819

Ab illo, per illum, cum illo: “from him, through him, with him.” -Ed.
820

Qui caret hijs tribus: “Who lacks these three.” -Ed.
821

In ecclesia ... Vanum: “In the church of God, he will work in vain.” -Ed.
822

Penitence.
823

Lawn: “thin fabric.” -Ed.
824

Sunt semper . . . unus: “They are always, and their food is one.” -Ed.
825

Vicissim: “in turns.” -Ed.
826

4. ANA.
827

Ab illo sed. Cum illo sed: “from him only; with him only.” -Ed.
828

Aliqui . . . Digni: “Some from worthiness, others are not worthy of any sort.” -Ed.
829

Per illum, Per ilium, Per illum: “Through him, through him, through him.” -Ed.
830

Cahos: “chaos.” -Ed.
831

Et quia . . . ignis: “And because they were lacking in blazing fires.” -Ed.
832

In the manuscript there is a line drawn from LEE to BLN, and another line from NAR to ANA. -Ed.
833

Omnes . . . in illo: “Everything towards nature, but not in him.” -Ed.
834

Δ There remayned 10 tymes Three.
835

Δ of 30.
836

Note, by theyr sitting that they are indifferent: and so they say.
837

Δ They semed therfore to sit betwene the perfect and reiected: as indifferent.
838

Sumus ... novit: “We are the seven gates of Nature, and of him who knew God.” -Ed.
839

Δ: beside AOIDIAB.
840

6, 7. -Δ. In sexto ... omnia: “All things are in the 6th and 7th.” -Ed.
841

NOTE the narrow path, above the chayr.
842

Δ Bornogo.
843

Formatur ... Heptagono: “The maker of these is the second in the Heptagon.” -Ed.
844

Note former. ergo. There is allso a circle on the grownd. Vide ante 3 folia: of my fete placed uppon the Tables: Ergo they shold seme to be on the grownd. -Δ (Vide ante 3 folia: “See three folios earlier.” -Ed.) 845

Δ: of the six orders.
846

Practise. by 6.
847

Sloane 3188 reads, “excellencies of” in Ashmole’s handwriting, but CHM, HM, and Sloane 3677 all read, “excellencies in.” -Ed.
848

This boke sometymes called liber Creationis, & sometymes Tabulae Creationis. -Δ. (“The Book of Creation,” the “Tables of Creation.”-Ed.)
849

HM cites this: “King Carmara, Novemb. 19, of King Bobogel, his princis Ministers.” -Ed.

[850]

A Threfold use of this Doctrine.

[851]

Dixi: “I have spoken.” -Ed.

[852]

Rex Aquarum. -Δ. (“The King of the Waters.” -Ed)

[853]

Venito . . . fuit: “Come, come (I say), be present. Come, O King. O King, King, King of the waters, come, come I say. You are great, but my power is greater still. Our God stands firm, rules, and is, that which he was.” -Ed.

[854]

Parati . . . adsunt: “We have been provided his name from our Creator, the name, to praise the name, the Name (I say) of One now [blank space in manuscript] and living. These are dark/obscure to dark minds, but true and clear to true and perfect minds. Behold, they are present.” -Ed.

[855]

Note this Kings apparayle, and shew.

[856]

King BABALEL

[857]

Omne ... aecium: “May everyone living praise God, one and three, into all time.” -Ed.

[858]

At an ynche: “nearby.” -Ed.

[859]

Skipjack: “a dandy, skipping fellow.” -Ed.

[860]

He calleth Befafes.

[861]

Veni ... iste: “Come, O prince of the seven princes, who are princes of the Waters. I am the king, mighty and wonderful in the waters, whose power is in the depths of the waters. That prince . . .” -Ed.

[862]

The Prince his apparayle.

[863]

. . . est Tertius principum in Heptagonon: “. . . is the third Principality in the Heptagon.” -Ed.

864

Heptagono: “(in) the Heptagon.” Dee seems to be checking or correcting Kelley here. -Ed.

865

Vere . . . aquas: “I have spoken quite plainly and distinctly. . . . Have you measured the waters?” -Ed.

866

Factum est: “It is so.” -Ed.

867

Prince Befafes, my old frende unknown of me.

868

Philosophers. -Ed.

869

John Scotus Erigena (815?-877 theologian)? Michael Scot (introduced translations of Aristotle)? John Duns Scotus (126s?-1308 theologian)?–Ed.

870

Δ The fifth of the seventh. I understand not this yet. Vide lib. 5. A° 1583 Maij 1.

871

NOTE: of wicked spirits, some restitution to favor.

872

See. 4th Enochian Call: “obelisong” is translated “as pleasant deliverers.” -Ed.

873

Or Cerclets perhaps.

874

HM reads, “Euery one of the 42 had a letter in his forhed. They were 7 in a row: and 6, downward. But of the first 7 the letters became to be between theyr feet, and the water seamed contynually to pass over these letters.” -Ed.

875

Threasors in the seas.

876

Practise.

877

King and Prince govern the whole day.

878

Δ: Whereas in the former Treatise, ther was a dowt of Butmono the fowrth, and Blisdon theyr offyces, being assigned here clere contrary: The dowt may be answered by the notes A. 1583, Maij 5 of the Table and my Character. Therefore I suspect some Intruder to have first .... -Δ. Vitam . . . Viuentium: “God gave life to all creatures. Come ye, come O fire. Come, O life of mortals Come (I say). Be present. God rules. O come. For he alone rules, and is the life of the living.” -Ed.

879

HM identifies this as King Bynepor. -Ed.

880

Butmono. -Ed.

881

Verè beatus: “Truly blessed.” -Ed.

882

Omnium . . . immensa: “Perpetual and unlimited praise for the giver of all good.” -Ed.

883

Ipse dixit. -Δ. (“He himself said.” -Ed.)

884

Generaltye.

885

Ipse: “himself.” -Ed.

886

Vita . . . manibus: “The highest life, the higher life, and the lowest life are measures by my hands.” -Ed.

887

Note second last world.

888

Ecce, omnia Noua. -Δ. (“Behold, all things are new.” -Ed.)

889

Vitam . . . ubique: “He surrenders life, and gives me power to be, and to live in perpetual glory. Everything and everywhere.” -Ed.

890

Note.

891

Δ I dowt, I did not here perfectly at this writing down.

892

Cumpassing with it a loft: circling it around in the air. -Ed.

893

Δ Bnaspol.

894

Δ Blisdon.

895

An Innumerable Cumpany of ugly Creatures, a far of.

896

Vide Lib°. 5, 1583 Martij 26.

897

Vide de istis in libro Cracoviensi Junij 26. Treasure hid in earth, kept by wycked spirites. -Δ. See TFR, p. 180. -Ed.

898

Bnaspol, Blisdon.

899

Venite . . . dentium: “Come here, where there is no peace, but only the gnashing of teeth.” -Ed.

900

Prince Brorges. -Ed.

901

The King.

902

Mark who sayd so before. -Δ. This was Carmara at the beginning of Book 4. -Ed.
903

Note a great Secret of spirits in payn expecting release.
904

Somwhat was not hard of me, or forgot. Perhaps Terror.
905

Δ: Bnapsen.
906

Δ; Brorges.
907

Note A. 1583, Maij. Thus I considered In dede after a sort Brorges may be cownted as last, for the begyning secretly was with Bralges.
908

Bralges sayd his government was of such: super fol. 4.b. -Δ. Venite . . . potestate: “Come you who are under my power.” -Ed.
909

The Circle of letters.
910

HM notes, “Prince Bagenol appeared not, by that name, yet. Note, the king him self [Baligon, aka CARMARA] is governor ouer these.” -Ed.
911

The last Ternarie. That is expownded lib°. 5. Maij 5.
912

Note, As Michael and Uriel, at the begynning of these revealed mysteries, were present, and gaue Authority to Carmara, to order the whole Heptarchicall Reuelation, so, at the Conclusion, they appeared agayn and Raphael with them, and Michael concluded the second boke (of this particular Reuelation Heptarchicall,) with these words following. -Δ (HM).
913

Prima pars Artis Triplicis: he termeth this afterward of three proportions in Esse. Consider these three principall points here. -Δ. Prima pars Artis Triplicis: “The first part of a triple art.” -Ed.
914

Annael.
915

Gloria . . . Maximoque: “May glory, laud, honor, and eternal thanksgiving be to our God, almighty and all good.” -Ed.

916

1588. On twelfth day at night as I considered the Method of this boke, this cam to my mynde. -Δ. Dee’s diary fills in some of the events between this action and the next: “[1582] Nov. 22nd, E.K. went to London, and so the next day conveied by rode toward Blakley, and within ten dayes to returne. Nov. 24th, Saterday night I dremed that I was deade, and afterward my bowels wer taken out I walked and talked with diverse, and among other with the Lord Thresorer who was com to my howse to burn my bokes when I was dead, and thought he loked sourely on me. [1583] Feb. 26th, I delivered my boke to the Lord Threasorer for the correction of the Calender. March 6th, I, and Mr. Adrian Gilbert and John Davis, did mete with Mr. Alderman Barnes, Mr. Townson and Mr. Yong and Mr. Hudson, abowt the N.W. voyage. March 18th, Mr. North from Poland, after he had byn with the Quene he cam to me. I receyved salutation from Alaski, Palatine in Poland; salutation by Mr. North who cam before to the Quene, and next to me was his message, hor. 12.” Halliwell, ed., The Private Diary of Dr. John Dee (New York: AMS Press, 1968), pp. 18–19.
917

Note. The cullour red and grene of the Table of Covenant. Two chayres.
918

Two Chayres.
919

Idque.
920

O quanta . . . perfectione: “O how great is the weakness and corruption of mankind, that has little faith in angels and their good deeds, but hardly any faith in God. All worldly things contain the corruption of the world within them. Our God, our God, he (I say) our God is true, and is true with his true angels and those who ever serve him. Ask for what you wish. I have spoken, and what I have spoken that was obscure, was in truth, justice, and perfection.” -Ed.
921

Note of this Rod.
922

Ecce . . . Hic . . . Per hoc . . . Et a Mensurae . . . vis? “Behold . . . here, . . . and here. . . . And from the end of the measure you will measure us and our power. Practice (I say). What do you wish?” -Ed.
923

Parabolically: using parable. -Ed
924

In umbra . . . Age: “In the shadow of death there is no equality. Nothing is obscure which you have received through him (E.K.). Practice.” -Ed.
925

A Threefold work.

926

In HM, Dee attributes this to “Carmara, Nouemb. 21. in appendix of the second boke.” -Ed.

927

Threfold Work.

928

The Kings with their Characters.

929

An, Aue, Rocle, Liba. I understand of Il, An, Aue, &c in the characters of the 7 kings.

930

Filij Filiorum - An, Aue, &c. Examination to be made of these bokes. -Δ. Filii Filiorum: “Sons of the Sons” -Ed.

931

Δ fortè “Unlawfull” and was myshard.

932

Forte: “their.”–Ed.

933

Princis.

934

Liber Creationis. Note, what hath bin tawght in this boke. -Δ. HM attributes this saying to Carmara, Nouemb. 21. Liber Creationis: “Book of Creation.” -Ed.

935

Δ: as may appere by the 49 names Collected.

936

Δ: I suspect this to be an imperfect phrase.

937

Name among Angels

938

Δ = name expressed.

939

Note Attire.

940

It is to weete: “that is to say.” -Ed.
941

Modo retrogrado quasi: “now as if going backward.” -Ed.
942

Addendo . . . Baligon: “This course is made by adding 7. Therefore adding 7 to the number 43 results in 50: a number one greater than 49, which may indicate the first king, Baligon.” -Ed.
943

Addendo . . . principe: “This course is made by adding 7. Therefore if 7 is added to the number 37, from there results 44 for the next prince.” -Ed.
944

Δ: Note that he calleth that contynually A Globe. Uppon such a globe Nalvage shewed out all the Calls.
945

HM reads “must have.” -Ed.
946

King . . . first . . . answering to Blumaza as I perceyued 1583 Maij 5, mane by meditation: and of Necessity must be: yf the last be for Baligon.
947

The next 1 is the last letter of Babalel, and then transversim as before, &c.
948

Traversim quasi retrograde: “Going crosswise as if backwards.” -Ed.
949

Last.
950

Last.
951

Left.
952

Meterly well: “fairly well.” -Ed.
953

The use of the Circular Table (here before often called a Globe) at another tyme.
954

I omitted a word, and our memories could not yeld it, this perhaps, Dignifyed.

955

An angel holding up the stone.

956

This stone brought by the Angel is said to bee an nich thick in the following Mysteriorum Lib. 5. Ms. p. El. Ash: conceives it to have been of a lenticular forme, included in a circular limb upon the top of which a cross, & edgewise sett in the frame. -E.A. See action of 5 May 1583. -Ed.

957

Veritas . . . uno est: “Truth is within truth, God within God, One is within one.” -Ed.

958

☞caue. -Δ. (“Beware.” -Ed.)

959

Illi . . . saecula: “May all honor, praise, and glory be to him who is to reveal the age through fire, forever and ever.” Perhaps *indicere is intented: “to inflict (the age with fire).” Ashmole reads Iudicare: “to judge.” -Ed.

960

The words “Liber 6^{us}. / Liber 7^{us}.” are in Ashmole’s handwriting. -Ed.

961

The boke fownd in Northwik hill.

962

The scroll is shown below before the April 11 th Action. It shows the locations of ten hidden treasures. -Ed.

963

Pilosus. -Δ (“Hairy.” -Ed.)

964

Penetrasti . . . meae: “You penetrated the power of my iniquity.” -Ed.

965

Feci, Nam decedo: “I am done, for I depart.” -Ed.

966

Auete. Verum est, et incredibile: “Greetings. It is the truth, and incredible.” -Ed.

967

Iustitia. -Δ (“Justice” -Ed.)

968

Via . . . eleyson: “The way, the truth, and the virtue are one, and his greatness is manifold and wonderful. And the breath comes from your mouth (and has life) from which everything lives, by your command and your light. Hail the word, hail the creator of things and of their measure which have been, are, and will be. You have illuminated the eyes of the creatures by reminders and plain warnings. Life to the good, but death to the wicked, and those cast from your consideration. How great and innumerable are your gifts? O remiges varpax. Lord have mercy." -Ed.

969

Aqua. -Δ ("Water." -Ed)

970

Loquitur de mea cogitatione, quod esset Raphaël. -Δ. ("He speaks concerning my thought that he may be Raphael." -Ed.)

971

O Beata Trinitas . . . eius: "O blessed Trinity, send your light and your truth, that they may lead me to the holy mountain and to your tent. Me: Where, O unbelievers? Δ: We are not unbelievers, but our hope is alive, and the eternal and almighty truth is the fountain of life. Me: I brought you water from that same stream. It is a true medicine for your imperfections and needs. Understand now both who I am and for whom I was adorned. Drink and receive the abundance for your bones [can also be figurative: innermost part, soul]. For many are the imperfections of mortals. I have and you (pl) will have. I brought, and he shall be seen. The word is that light that blots out all imperfections. The faithful will enter into his blessedness. Wherein is the potion and eternal medicine. You thought correctly [see previous footnote]: I am indeed as you believe. For by truth and justice, his words and teachings are true and complete." -Ed.

972

Recte sapere: "To perceive correctly." -Ed.

973

Ecce seruus . . . pronunciatum: "Behold the servant of the Lord, Let his decree be for me (like his mercy) as was declared about me." -Ed.

974

Perfyted: "perfected." -Ed.

975

Increduli. -Δ ("Unbelievers." -Ed.)

976

HM identifies this as Raphael. -Ed.

977

A parable.

978

Note hereby to consider theyr actions, gestures and other circumstances.

979

Signa sunt . . . resanabit: “These are signs to you (pl) of humility and of repentance; which (signs) I make everything yours; they are not mine. May his word be praised in heaven, and may he also be praised on earth. Discover power in the humility of his speech (or language) and you (pl) will see the glory of his brow. For the glory of his power is merciful and almighty. Vanities exist in his seductions; Necessities exist in your true needs. For he made all things for his praise: and (behold) his handiwork praises the light of his face. Love one another; live with humility. Truly, my medicine (which is his) will convey everything.” -Ed.

980

Nature ∴ Reason ∴

981

Note Adam, before his fall, knew all things.

982

The true use and order of the premisses.

983

Raze out: “erase.” -Ed.

984

Et finis est: “And it is the end.” -Ed.

985

Note of this boke.

986

J Dee, and EK.

987

Adrian Gilbert, half-brother to Sir Walter Raleigh, was a frequent visitor to Mortlake. He eventually was allowed to participate in some of the actions. Earlier in this same year (1583), Dee started plans to colonize North America with Adrian Gilbert and John Davis. During subsequent actions, Dee consults the angels about this proposed venture.

988

Potentia, Actus. -Δ (“Power, Deed.” -Ed.)

989

Δ Blisdon is the prince under Bnaspol the king. Vide sup. Lib. 4: A°. 1587. Circa Maiu: Quidam Ben, (spiritualis Creatura) dixit ipi EK, se custodinisse illum pulverem et librum Dunstani, &c. -Δ. (Vide sup. ...: “See above in book 4. Around May 1587 one Ben (a spiritual creature) said to EK that he himself had guarded that powder and Book of Dunstan.”) See TFR Actio Tertia, May 23, p. 27 (pages separately numbered). -Ed.

990

Gloria patri: “Glory be to the Father.” -Ed.

991

A lambs hed, may be a token of our humilitie required, &c.

992

Magna . . . dixisti: “Great are the things that I have said.” -Ed.

993

Note.

994

NOTE.

995

Note. All tymes, Speciall tymes.

996

Of frendship, at any tyme.

997

Note.

998

Furder.

999

NOTE Whose charge it is to deliuer it.

1000

Veritas. -Δ. (“Truth, verity.” -Ed.)

1001

Lingua et Vox Angelica. -Δ. (“Angelic language and voice.” -Ed.)

1002

The Powre of the primitiue diuine or Angelicall speche.

1003

ADAM.

1004

Angelorum Colloquia -Δ. (“Conversation of angels.” -Ed.) [46] Tres ab hominibus in cæelos rapti cum Angelis conversantes. Forte, ‘Enoch, Elias, Jo . . .’ -Δ. (“Three carried off to heaven keeping company with angels. Perhaps Enoch, Elias, and John [the Baptist].” -Ed.) [47] NOTE. -Δ. In the manuscript this last sentence is heavily underscored. -Ed. [48] Forte: “presseth.” [49] Note. [50] Shivered: “shattered.” -Ed. [51] The boke, the first Language of God Christ.

1005

The cullor of the Letters.
1006

21 Characters.
1007

Δ By his often taking things from under the table it shold seme that there shold be some shelf made under our Table.
1008

Unus . . . es: “You are One, One, One, Great, Great, Great.” -Ed.
1009

Magna . . . eius: “Great is his glory.” -Ed.
1010

Numerus . . . tibi: “The number, O most perfect, One and Threefold. Glory be to you.” -Ed.
1011

A battle foreshewed.
1012

Before two yeres finished, Ergo before A°. 1585, Martij 26.
1013

NOTE.
1014

Election.
1015

The Apostles on Whitson Sonday.
1016

A. Gilbert may be made priuie, but he is not to be a Practiser.
1017

Medicina sum: “I am the medicine.” -Ed.
1018

Medicina or Medicus Dei: “God’s medicine or doctor.” -Ed.
1019

A Gilbert, his task.
[1020]

Note, a prophesy.
[1021]

Description geographicall.
[1022]

Tenebrae post dorsum. -Δ ("Darkness behind the back." -Ed.)
[1023]

For discoveries making of the seas and theyr bownds.
[1024]

Instruction requisite.
[1025]

Note.
[1026]

Both ioyntly EK and J:D:
[1027]

Leysor: "leisure." -Ed.
[1028]

God will shew himself aliue.
[1029]

O liber . . . vobis: "O book, book, book, life to the good, but truly death itself for the wicked. Great are the wonders sealed up inside you, and great is the name of your seal. The light of my medicine, for you." -Ed.
[1030]

Gloria Laus et honor Deo p<at>ri et F<ilio> et S<piritui> S<ancto>: "Glory, praise, and honor to God the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit." - Ed.
[1031]

Insidiatores. -Δ. ("Traitors." -Ed.)
[1032]

Pereant . . . mea: "May everyone perish who betray the virtue of my name: and who have hidden the light of my justice." -Ed.
[1033]

Multa . . . ipem: "Reprove us, because he himself suffers much." -Ed.

1034

Constrayned: “forced.” -Ed.

1035

Pilosus. -Δ (“Hairy.” -Ed.)

1036

See. Matthew 7:9; Luke 11:11-12. -Ed.

1037

Heaviness: “sorrow.” -Ed.

1038

Raphaëlis officium. -Δ. (“Raphael’s office.” -Ed.)

1039

Forte, truth.

1040

Afflictions to EK.

1041

Note the durance of these Memorialls.

1042

Traynes: deceits. -Ed.

1043

Note of the vision which was shewed A°. 1582.

1044

Veniat . . . mentientem: “May the vengeance of God come, and may it may smite the lying tongue.” -Ed.

1045

Dicat . . . non est: “He may speak, for he is not one of us.” -Ed.

1046

The finding of the skroll, of the Treasors.

1047

Cownterfeted Roll. -Δ. Vide infra pag. 152, 153 &c. -E.A.

1048

Sic soleo iniustis: “So I am accustomed to unrighteous people.” -Ed.

1049

Purificata ... nostrorum: “Cleanse, 0 Lord, your holy one, and destroy the wickness of our enemies.” -Ed.

1050

Write. -Δ. Visio . . . Dei: “The true vision is truly noted, and it will be noted for the glory of God.” -Ed.

1051

Dixisti, et factum: “I have spoken, and it is so.” -Ed.

1052

Δ Note Body, sowle, spirit.

1053

The 12 Apostles.

1054

A. G.

1055

John Davis is mentioned in Dee’s diary as early as 1577, but Dee probably knew him as a boy. He was evidently one of Dee’s pupils, and one of the principal players in the search for the Northwest Passage. He stole at least seventy books from Dee’s library after Dee left for Europe in 1583. See Julian Roberts and Andrew Watson, John Dee’s Library Catalogue (London: The Bibliographical Society, 1990), p. 50.

1056

Lern the Alfabet.

1057

Soli . . . gloria: “May all honor and glory be to God alone.” -Ed.

1058

The reformation of the Kalendar. -Δ. On 24 February 1582, Pope Gregory XIII ordered the use of the “Gregorian” calendar, and the English court deliberated over its response. Dee was one of the authorities commissioned for a report. According to his diary, Dee delivered his proposal to reform the calendar to Lord Burghley, Treasurer of England on 26 February 1583. It caused considerable controversy. The court opinions were all favorable, and the Queen approved a draft proclamation to adopt the reform, but it was rejected by the bishops because they didn’t want to appear to be following the Catholic lead. -Ed.

1059

Angeli proprij. -Δ (“Proper angels.” -Ed.)

1060

Peculier and propre Instigators.

1061

God his Elect.

1062

The reference is to David and Goliath. -Ed.

1063

Peradventure: “perhaps.” -Ed.

1064

Δ: Raphael long tyme visiting my hed.

1065

A secret. -Δ. Secretum dico: “I declare a secret.” -Ed.

1066

Lingua dolosa. -Δ (“Deceitful speech.” -Ed.)

1067

England.

1068

Gadding: “wandering.” -Ed.

1069

Note, each in his Office.

1070

Prævalescentia. -Δ (“Prevailing against.” -Ed.)

1071

A: and EK, and A. Gilbert.

1072

The erth—1. EK The Tree—2. Δ The planter—3. AG

1073

Note Lerne The Alfabet.

1074

Δ Philosophicall Harmonie in prayer, is ment by the prayer which I dayly use, & often: Deus in a m ind a a m f G P e F e S &c. -Δ. Apparently “Deus in adiutorium meum intende: Domine ad adiuvandem me festina: Gloria Patri et Filio et Spiritui Sancto” (“O God, be pleased to deliver me; O Lord, hasten to help me. Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to the Holy Spirit”), based on Psalm 70. Compare with Dee’s prayer at the beginning of Liber 1. -Ed.

1075

Omnipotenti . . . actio: “All honor, praise, and thanksgiving be to our almighty God, creator, redeemer, and sanctifier.” -Ed.

1076

49 49 441 196 2401

1077

100.

1078

100.

1079

Zuresch. Veresk and Zuresk are all one. Δ Perchaunce Zuresch, with ch, for k, and so the word shalbe of 7 letters.

1080

Ses: the letters giue.

1081

Ses.

1082

Gampedaz.

1083

Kaphene.

1084

Domka.

1085

Phiam

1086

Vrepres

1087

Adepd.

1088

Aze.

1089

Druz.

1090

Keztz/cests.
1091

Unbar.
1092

Onizdar.
1093

Gharmes.
1094

Δ It is not to be spoken or interpreted, but whan the time appointed is come.
1095

Sely: “pitiable.” -Ed.
1096

Mensurator: “It is measured.” -Ed.
1097

Sint . . . intelligant: “May those eyes be clear, in order to comprehend.” -Ed.
1098

Secundus a primo: “The second from the first.” -Ed.
1099

Note this diuersity of sownd and writing: as x for z.
1100

Incomprehensilibis . . . tua: “You are incomprehensible in your eternity.” -Ed.
1101

Δ: Forte, van. Axe this dowte.
1102

Gronhadoz.
1103

Oicasman.
1104

Veueiah.
1105

Nos.
1106

There is a stop.

1107

Ophed.

1108

Medoz.

1109

Pres.

1110

Δ: Note: A-deüne must be pronownced as one worde: like as Res-publica, in latin: els here wold seme to be 50 words but, A-deüne, cam out of one square.

1111

Vandemhnaxat.

1112

Bances.

1113

Δ Note and take hede from hence forward.

1114

Of the boke.

1115

49 Powres with theyr Inferiors, vide sup. 48 after a sort: and 1. vide Martij 24.

1116

Angelicall Language.

1117

Longe . . . destructionis: “We are far away from the perversity of destruction.” -Ed.

1118

There are approximately three blank lines here. -Ed.

1119

Raphaël is to be absent for a certayn time: but his powre shall be here.

1120

Of the boke.

1121

Languages.

1122

Nihil . . . perfectum: “Nothing is here which is not perfect.” -Ed.

1123

Δ Note, that we shalbe Theodidacti, of god him self and no Angel herein. -Δ. Theodidacti: “taught by God.” -Ed.

1124

Potentia. -Δ. (“Power.” -Ed.)

1125

The ende of all things is at hand.

1126

The sight of god.

1127

Sanctus . . . gloria: “Holy, holy, holy, Lord God of Hosts. Heaven and earth are filled with the glory of his majesty. To him alone is all honor, praise, and glory.” -Ed.

1128

Sum: “I am.” -Ed.

1129

Impleta . . . tuo: “All things have been fulfilled to your glory and honor.” -Ed.

1130

Note, fire.

1131

Sic . . . purificare: “So I am accustomed to cleansing the errors of the people.” -Ed.

1132

Moue not from your places.

1133

Fire agayn.

1134

The Third row of the first page.

1135

Palse/Palze. I dowt which of these 3 must serve: c,s,z.

1136

Ego sum . . . gloriam: “I am the one who is within you. Therefore I am the one who is for myself. Δ:

Not for us, O Lord, not for us, but for your name may we give glory.” -Ed.
[1137]

Orate: “Pray.” -Ed.
[1138]

The fifth row.
[1139]

Pronownced mises.
[1140]

Mansh.
[1141]

Adíper. It is significatiue.
[1142]

Arkad.
[1143]

Pasdas.
[1144]

Dros.
[1145]

Akos.
[1146]

Locus sanctus. -Δ. Locus est hic sanctus: “This place is holy.” -Ed.
[1147]

Sacer est a te Domine: “It is consecrated to you, O Lord.” -Ed.
[1148]

The Seventh row.
[1149]

lah.
[1150]

Lesgomph.
[1151]

Asco, with a prick ouer the o, is to be pronownced as Asto.
[1152]

Vnam.
1153

Note this Mysterie of god his powre drawn to him self agayne.
1154

Magnus Magnus Magnus: “Great, Great, Great.” -Ed.
1155

Locus . . . Deo: “A place consecrated and acceptable to God.” -Ed.
1156

Of the first character of Vlla, I dowt.
1157

Ex.
1158

The V has an umlaut in the manuscript. -Ed.
1159

Sem.
1160

Vdráh.
1161

Iohed. gohed, pronownced as Iohed, signifieth One euerlasting and all things descending uppon one, and gohed Ascha is as much to say as One god.
1162

Canse, signifieth mightie: and Cruscanse, more mightie.
1163

All these which haue lines under them [Here they are hyphenated. -Ed.] are eche but one word of diuerse syllables: being 9 words of them.
1164

The a produced.
1165

The last h remissly sownded.
1166

This word is circled in the manuscript.
1167

Pola and Pala signifie two: Pola signifieth two together, and Pala signifieth two separated.
1168

ΔThis was a parcell of a row, which onely appered by him self.
1169

In margin, but later crossed out: Δ At ‘no.’, ende 49, and so here ar 10 over.
1170

“á” must be sownded long.
1171

This “se” is the nine and fortyth word longing to them before.
1172

Vns.
1173

“A” long.
1174

Sey.
1175

Danset.
1176 this with a prick betokeneth “y.” 1177

Pronownce “Asto.” 1178

Pansu.
1179

Musse
1180 ó long.

1181

Aske. E.K. understode the Language: and wold haue spoken somwhat, but he was willed to stay.
1182

Orate: “Pray.” -Ed.
1183

Pronownce as we do cruse a cup.
1184

ó long.
1185

Kidmap.
1186

Sempiternall One and indiuisible God.
1187

Dansét.
1188

A very long.
1189

Gras.
1190

a reverent word, the first ‘a’ very long, and is, be it made with powre.
1191

Ahal, iently, and the ‘a’ long.
1192

“A” long.
1193

Orate: “Pray.” -Ed.
1194

The diuine powre creating the angel of the sonne.
1195

4 manner of constructions in that one word.
1196

A-ro is one word diuided, as res-publica, and here this word is diuided into two squares, and so there are 49.
1197

E long.
1198

Life lephe lurfando is a strong charge to the wicked to tell the truth: Δ This he sayd to my demand of this phrase wherof I had mention many yeres since.

1199

A long.
1200

Pronownce “ar.”
1201

NA - The name of the Trinitie, One separable for a while.
1202

“A” long; onely one “a” sownded for “aa.”
1203

Orka.
1204

“ä” sounded as “au.”
1205

The ‘g’ not expressly sownded.
1206

In eius loco. (“In this place.” -Ed.) 1207

It is but one word.
1208

Sownded, palef.
1209

Gloria . . . semper: “Glory be to the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit now and forever.” -Ed.
1210

Bonum . . . es: “It is good, O God, for you are goodness itself.” -Ed.
1211

Et magnum . . . Magnitudinis: “And great because of the size of greatness itself.” -Ed.
1212

Sum . . . locus: “I am, and this place is, holy.” -Ed.
1213

Padohómaghebs.
1214

Rede as arch.

1215

A piller of light stode before the boke.

1216

In margin, but crossed out: “Vin in vinco must be pronowced long as if it were a dubble i.”

1217

Arse.

1218

Or, gáscampho - why didst thow so: as god sayd to Lucifer. The word hath 64 significations.

1219

=cum humilitate aduocamus te cum adoratione Trinitas. (“[Befafes] with humility we call you, with adoration of the Trinity.” -Ed.)

1220

This is the name of the spirit contrary to Befafes.

1221

In margin:

~~“Orh = Deus sine fine. Gorh = Deus a Deo.~~

Befes, the vocatiue case of Befafes.

~~Befes, is as much to say as ‘come Befafes and see us’.~~

Befafes ô, is to call uppon him as on god. Befafes oh, is as muche to say, ‘come Befafes and beare witness.”

Also in margin: “Befafes his Etymologie is as much to say as, ‘Lumen a Lumine’. Spiritus orh secundus est in grada imperfectionis tenebrarum. = Δ. How can orh signifie ‘Deus sine fine’ if it be the name of a wicked spirit?” (Deus sine fine: “God without end”; Deus a Deo: “God from God”; lumen a lumine: “light from the light”; Spiritus orh . . . tenebrarum: “The spirit orh is the second in the scale of imperfections of darkness”; Deus sine fine: “God without end.” -Ed.)

1222

This word hath 72 significations.

1223

Of two syllables.

1224

Salus . . . vobiscum: “Welcome (lit. health) to you in him who is with you.” -Ed.

1225

Larvandah.

1226

Δ Note these 55 wordes stand in 49 places: [ors lah, ama natoph, gedos lubah, vals mors] of which 55, some two stand in a square place, some three, [surem paphe arbasa] as I haue noted.

1227

Iebne.

1228

Af.

1229

Bates.

1230

There are no points neyther in the last before. They be parcells of Invitations very pleasant to good Angels. Before was, as it were a preface of the Creation and distinction of Angels &c.

1231

Loghes.

1232

Orghen.

1233

Ghibúrod.

1234

Zimegafna.

1235

Askma.

1236

Daie.

1237

Deo . . . semper: “To our God, living, true, and almighty, be all praise and thanksgiving, now and ever.” -Ed.

1238

Quia . . . infinita: “Because God himself, God, our God, whose infinite mercy.” -Ed.

1239

Iestes.
1240

Amaies.
1241

Vlsaie.
1242

This name comprehendeth the number of all the fayries - who are diuels next to the state and condition of man etc.
1243

Iedan.
1244

Famek.
1245

Iuma.
1246

Vanies.
1247

Akna.
1248

Maies.
1249

Detkel.
1250

Pagze. = iustitia a numine diuino sine labe. Δ (“Justice from divine power without defect.” -Ed.) 1251

Vlskan
1252

Ienzed.

1253

Congamfilgh. = fide that reviveth mans brest, The holy ghoste. -Δ (Fide: “in faith.” -Ed.) 1254

Iesk.
1255

Hamies.
1256

Oxmoiel.
1257

Kadgama.
1258

Omsaie.
1259

Na.
1260

Sol.
1261

Maries.
1262

Lo.
1263

21, words hither.
1264

O long.
1265

In great letters.
1266

Δ Here are but 48 words: I dowt that there lacketh one.
1267

Zadketh.
1268

Here seme to be to many by 3 or 4.
1269

Deo . . . gloria: “To God all good, all honor, praise, and glory.” -Ed.
1270

Expectas expectaui Dominum: “I waited patiently for the Lord” (Psalm 40:1/ Vulgate 39:1). -Ed.
1271

Take hede of Nettels.
1272

Perhaps the Jues shall be restored. -Δ. Dee sees “headless” as a metaphor for the fact that the Jews have no central authority like the Pope. Dee’s meaning is most likely to be that the vision is a prophecy that the Jews will be readmitted into England where they had been expelled in 1290/91. They were, in fact, readmitted into England in 1655 after petitions from Menasseh Ben Israel. See David S. Katz, Philo-Semitism and the Readmission of the Jews to England (Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1982), chapter three for details. There is more on this in his most recent book, The Jews in the History of England (Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1994). According to Dr. Katz (private communication), “Dee had good reason to think this might happen in his lifetime.” -Ed.
1273

Orate: “Pray.” -Ed.
1274

Interprete not yet.
1275

Zunah.
1276

Ag-zel-ia.
1277

Doxaniahad. one word.
1278

Fáma = I will giue.
1279

= I desire thee O god.
1280

Gaphned.
1281

This was put in and out a good while before EK could haue a perfect vew to rede it.

1282

Nuleg.

1283

= The slymie things made of dust.

1284

Zoah. Δ Here seme to want 5 or 6 names.

1285

Nu-mech is two wordes.

1286

One word.

1287

These last two words are in one square.

1288

= The furious and perpetuall fire enclosed for the ponishment of them that are banished from the glory. One word of 7 syllables: 4 in the first part and 3 in the last.

1289

Zembloágaf.

1290

Lu = from one.

1291

Madna.

1292

Iel.

1293

Deo . . . saecula: “To God alone be all praise, honor, and glory, through endless ages upon ages.” -Ed.

1294

Sum: “I am.” -Ed.

1295

Sum quod sum: “I am that I am.” -Ed.

1296

Locat.

1297

Nostah = it was in the begynning.
1298

Δ Here seme to lack 5 words.
1299

= Use humilitie in prayers to God, that is fervently pray. It signifieth, Pray into god.
1300

Δ pronownce as che in chery.
1301

Δ ratrugeem is one of the 7 words on the side of the Table first prescribed.
1302

= I will begynne a new.
1303

Note this covering to be made for the boke. = Δ. Sindall: "sendal, a thin light silk." -Ed.
1304

Note this to be pronownced rowndly to gither.
1305

Gloriam . . . resonent: "May all creatures continually resound the glory and praise of our Creator." -Ed.
1306

Oratory: a small private chapel. -Ed.
1307

The manuscript has an "a" (or Δ?) over the second "e" in "veniet." -Ed. [355] Veniet . . . sunt: "His voice will come, that he may tell the sons of men what is coming" Sloane 3677 also has an "a" over the second "e" of "veniet." With this proposed amendment the statement would start: "May his voice come. . . " -Ed. [356] Benedictus . . . Domini: "Blessed in he who comes in the name of the Lord." -Ed. [357] A prophesy very dreadfull now at hand.
1308

Spedily & reuerently.
1309

Uriel held up now the triangle of fire [illegible] .
1310

Those.
1311

Uriel now holding up the Ball of fire in his left hand, sayd as is here written: ☞.

1312

If from the first day of writing we accownt than from good friday the reckoning doth begynne: and so ende this.

1313

The Abridgment of time.

1314

Speaking to Δ.

1315

The danger thretned, if EK do not his dutie.

1316

Note a terrible thing.

1317

The ende of all.

1318

Ecce . . . suae: “Behold this servant and wretched little man; let it be to me whatever is most pleasing to his will.” -Ed.

1319

Note, by the place here before what measure in proportion of powr and understanding this was, in respect of the white ball of fyre.

1320

Jentlewoman: “noblewoman.” -Ed.

1321

Mistres Francis Haward elected to taste of god his great mercy for her charitable hart, &c.

1322

Forte Row.

1323

This was originally numbered 1, the next 2, and so on. These were each crossed out later and renumbered 49, 1, etc. See the note at the end of the 49th row. -Ed.

1324

Δ forte: Asney.

1325

Iadeth.

1326

I dowt which is n and which is u.

1327

A dowte whether “ar made” be two words or one.

1328

The following notes are found on a separate sheet of paper: -Ed.

1329

In margin at top of page: “solgars.” See TFR, p. 5, where “solgars” is prescribed as a cure. -Ed.

1330

Δ Ω.

1331

This word is circled in the manuscript.–Ed.

1332

Here seme to be 50 names: and so, one to many.

1333

Here are but 38.

1334

Ce-.

1335

48.

1336

Here are 54.

1337

50 words.

1338

Admad.

1339

Sembeth.

1340

Lefe.

1341

Here seme to be 50.

1342

Of the “n” and “u” of this word I dowt.

1343

At vom was a + to note the ende of a line: But both these mak but 49 names.

1344

51 words.

1345

Iemse.

1346

Vanket.

1347

48.

1348

Corrected from “ondanfaha.” -Ed.

1349

The copy had “ouhna.” I cowld not conjecture.

1350

Iea.

1351

An other boke: British Library, Sloane manuscript 3189 contains the bulk of the angelic book. -Ed.

1352

Polluted. -Ed.

1353

In marg.: ~~firmus~~ (“strong”). condemnatus: “condemned.” -Ed.

1354

Est: “He is.” -Ed.

1355

This note is on the reverse side of the following diagram. -Ed.

1356

Assay: “try.” -Ed.

1357

They wer fownd at Huets Cross as the spirituall creature affirmed when he led them to the finding of this Moniment was & a boke of Magik & Alchimie. Perhaps that is the Cros called Huteos Cros being the fowrth of them below.
1358

Note J. Dee. The last being of the Danes here, was abowt the year 1040. (Tabula . . . effere: "The table of places of things and hidden treasures of Menabon, my Gordanil, soldier and banished prince of the Danes, and of many other famous men [in the southern part of Britain], and of native soldiers who fought against the same. With the agreement of closest friends I decided to hide this away and bury it for the convenience and help of our countrymen who may return at some time. By this when understood, they can easily bring [lit. expose] the hidden to light." -Ed.) 1359

Of this "k" I dowt yet.
1360

Δ fortè Marr.
1361

Grotes: silver fourpence pieces used from the 14th to the 17th century. -Ed.
1362

Gyrning: "snarling." -Ed.
1363

Avoyded: "departed." -Ed.
1364

Note. Now 30 Tables being written since good friday: and days onely 21 passed since good friday.
1365

The stone out of the frame.
1366

Δ as who shold say, αυτοζ ∈ψα, ipe dixit: nr Deus. -Δ. (Autos . . . Deus: "he said himself, 'our God.' " -Ed.) 1367

Prepare all things.
1368

Good Angels.
1369

Fardel: "pack." -Ed
1370

Tyme of Iustification known than.

1371

The ende of our election.

1372

Tyll the very howre.

1373

Want of due reuerence using in our actions is reproved.

1374

Angels abase themselues, to pleasure man by theyr instructions, when they tak uppon them, or use any sensible evidence of themselves or voyces, &c.

1375

40 dayes.

1376

A.G. -Δ. (Adrian Gilbert. -Ed.)

1377

Vox angelorum.

1378

Uriel putteth one into his place.

1379

Il or El.

1380

Gesture: “general behavior.” -Ed.

1381

Vulgarly: “commonly.” -Ed.

1382

Note, Threfold answer.

1383

Liber Arabicus. -Δ. (“Arabic book.” -Ed.)

1384

This probably does not refer to the book Soyga. -Ed.

1385

EK he Kneleth down.

1386

Lord Treasurer: William Cecil, Lord Burghley. -Ed.

1387

Note.

1388

In Sloane 3677, Ashmole notes: “1674 The Duke of Lauderdale hath a folio MS which was Dr. Dees with these words in the first page, Aldaraia sive Soyga vocor.” Literis transpositis: “by transposing the letters.” -Ed.

1389

The language towght in Paradise.

1390

Eve. -Ed.

1391

The Tower of Babel. See Genesis 11. -Ed.

1392

Enoch.

1393

Jude 14-15: “Enoch also, the seventh from Adam, prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousands of his saints, to execute judgement upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches which ungodly sinners have spoken against him.” This is quoted from 1 Enoch 1:9. See James H. Charlesworth, ed., The Old Testament Pseudepigrapha, vol. 1 (New York: Doubleday, 1983), pp. 12–13. -Ed.

1394

Note: excellent Memories, for Traditions contynuing and preseruing.

1395

Δ forte: 18. Note, 28 dayes more do make iust the 40 dayes, before notified.

1396

Esdras bokes. -Δ. See II Esdras 14.37ff. -Ed.

1397

The Jues.

1398

Δ this might seme to signifie the calling home of the Jues, A°. 1588 to come.

1399

Note, El semed to be woman.
1400

Vice: “a character playing one of the vices in a morality play; jester.” -Ed.
1401

Varinus Phavorinus, Lexicon græcum (Rome, 1523). -Ed.
1402

Gariladrah.
1403

Since. -Ed.
1404

That was Uriel. Vide pag. precedent. -Δ. (“See the previous page.” -Ed.) 1405

He pointed to EK.
1406

Thesaurus absconditus. -Δ. (“Hidden treasure.” -Ed.) 1407

40 dayes.
1408

August.
1409

Knowledge to be infused Ictu Oculi. -Δ. (Ictu Oculi: “with a stroke(or ray) of the eye.” -Ed.) 1410

Thesaurus abs.
1411

40.
1412

Note: till August.
1413

Lycence, licence: “legal permission.” -Ed.
1414

Without digging.
1415

Ten places.
1416

Mary: a mild oath. -Ed.
1417

The chest.
1418

Braynford: “Brentford.” -Ed.
1419

Grecia:“Greece”; Anglia: “England.” -Ed.
1420

Anon: “soon.” -Ed.
1421

Δ True it is, I had hidden there, in a capcase the recordes of my doings with Saule & other &c.
1422

The boke, The powder, the rest of the roll. -Δ. This is the so-called Book of Saint Dunstan. -Ed.
1423

Amicorum . . . gloria: “Everything is shared between friends; therefore, to God alone are offered all praise, honor, and glory.” -Ed.
1424

Quinti Libri Mysteriorum Appendix: “Appendix to the Fifth Book of the Mysteries.” -Ed.
1425

Lease: “occupy.” -Ed.
1426

In Sloane 3677, EA reads “cumber.” -Ed.
1427

Cumbred: “obstructed.” -Ed.
1428

Railed at: “verbally abused.” -Ed.
1429

Sapientia. -Δ. (“Wisdom.” -Ed.)
1430

Voluntatem . . . deus: “He fulfils the desire of all who fear God” (misquoting Psalm 145:19). -Ed.

1431

£s 300 det.

1432

Dextera Domini: “from the right hand of the Lord.” -Ed.

1433

Il: the first of the 7 sonns of sonns of light. -Δ (HM).

1434

Benedictus . . . Domini: “Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.” -Ed.

1435

1494–1555 German mineralogist and author. -Ed.

1436

Potichayre: “apothecary (?)” -Ed.

1437

Iovis omnia plena: “Jove fills all,” from Virgil’s Eclogues, III., 60, repeated in Giovanni Pontano’s astronomical poem Urania siue de stellis, Lib. 1.628. Note that Pontano is cited by Philip Sidney in his Defence of Poesia (London: Dent 1595; Rutland, VT: Tuttle, 1997). -Ed.

1438

De Lege Spirituali: “concerning the spiritual law.” -Ed.

1439

Non raro . . . obscuratur: “Furthermore, knowledge is obscured not rarely, through negligence, which is committed in the working of anything.” -Ed.

1440

Corpus . . . perficere: “Body without mind, achieves nothing . . . ” -Ed.

1441

A remedy for the blyndness of EK at this instant.

1442

And so many dayes yet wanted of the 40, yf we accownt from the 6 day of Aprill: but if from the tyme of the begynning I wrote them, then there wanteth not so much as 9 or 10 dayes. -Δ. Cor Contritum . . . Cogitationi: “Contrite heart): Without a contrite heart it is impossible to be completely freed of malice and inferiority. And so I say, the heart crushes the threefold temperance of sleep, food, and bodily license. An excess and abundance of these others creates pleasure, but pleasure brings on distorted thoughts and in fact hinders prayer and proper thought.” -Ed.

1443

Soli . . . gloria: “To God alone be all honor, praise, and glory.” -Ed.

1444

Nos. -Δ. (“We/Cls.”–Ed.)

1445

Δ Here I mist the hering of a word or more.

1446

Nota et Caue -Δ. (“Note this and beware.”–Ed.)

1447

Election confirmed.

1448

One of us is by the Lord confirmed in constant purpose.

1449

Δ I think “sayeth the Lord” is forgotten here.

1450

Note.

1451

Note.

1452

Vengeance cryed for.

1453

Non nobis . . . perpetuum: “Not for ourselves, O Lord, not for ourselves, but for the glory of your name, we give and we will give all praise and honor, forever” (Psalm 115:1). -Ed.

1454

The mysticall Alphabet.

1455

The Table of Practise.

1456

Illuding spirits thrusting in themselues.

1457

I understand that the characters are most untrue.

1458

Δ The Inner square, of 6 ynches.

1459

Δ vide post foliam, et etiam in Tabula cordis carnis et cutis, nam in lineis defendentibus, ibidem habes hanc tabula hic incipiendo sed in primo omittendo l et accipiendo o. (“See on the next sheet, and also in the table of the heart, flesh, and skin, for in the surrounding lines, you have this table here commencing the same, but omitting ‘l’ at the start, and gaining ‘o’.”) Note: This note is written inverted above the diagram in very small script. There is a hand pointing to the first “o”in the top border. In fronte tabulæ: “in front of the table”; a sinistris: “on the left”; a dextra: “on the right”; iuxta pectus: “next to the chest.” -Ed.

1460

In fronte Tabulae. (“In front of the table” -Ed.)

1461

Forte med. (“Perhaps ‘med’”-Ed.)

1462

A sinistris. (“To the left.” -Ed.)

1463

Juxta pectus. (“Next to the chest.” -Ed.)

1464

A dextris. (“To the right.” -Ed.)

1465

Soli Deo . . . perennis: “To God alone be eternal praise.” -Ed.

1466

Note of the Square within.

1467

Ternarius et Quaternarius. -Δ. Numero . . . operis: “In the numbers of the ternary and quaternary, from which is the beginning and the entire foundation of this, your most holy work.” -Ed.

1468

12, 7.

1469

Note of these kings and Princis.

1470

The dignity of the Table of practise.

1471

He alludeth to our talk had of Transposition of letters.

1472

Note, danger of violating precepts of doctrine.

1473

Fortè s p. -Δ. The manuscript originally had “p s,” but these are crossed out and “s p” inserted. -Ed.

1474

Adam.

1475

A primo . . . nostri: “from the first. Δ: Which is the first and newest, Alpha and Omega, may he have mercy on us.” -Ed.

1476

Pied: “spotted or patched.” -Ed.

1477

Apparayle changed.

1478

An ænigmaticall lesson.

1479

Note.

1480

Three manner of works with God his Name.

1481

Vide inscriptiones suo loco, An. 1582, Martij die 10. f. 6. -Δ. (“See the inscription in its own place, 10 March 1582, folio 6.”) Sigillum . . . gestandum: “Engrave this sigil in gold, for protecting the body in all places, times, and occasions: and to be worn on the chest.” -Ed.

1482

The Nature of all Characters.

1483

NOTE.

1484

Note here of the 7 Tables of Creation, how they apperteyn to the 7 kings and Princes.

1485

This boke of 48 Tables.

1486

Note of the Names of God.

1487

Generation: corrup., incor. (“Generation: corruptible, incorruptible.” -Ed.)
1488

The Character allso was a falls tradition.
1489

Note.
1490

Lepidè, mathematicas meas demonstrationes deuolat. -Δ (“Neat! He endorses my mathematical demonstrations.”–Ed.) 1491

He meaneth my propre Character truely made.
1492

Note. These to be put in propre Characters.
1493

So, on my Character or lamyne of dignification: are all the names of the 7 kings, and of the 7 Princis, perfectly: as in the great Table, (called often tymes Mensa Faederis) the Bees, onely, (being the first letter common to them all) kept bak, in memory. -Δ (HM).
1494

Note, here, it may appere that Butmono is Prince to Bynepor, and Blisdon prince to King Bnaspol. -Δ (HM).
1495

Deo nostro . . . gloria: “Perpetual praise and unlimited glory be to our almighty God.” -Ed.
1496

The Title of the boke was Seuen Sobs of a Sorrowfull Sowle for Synne. -Δ. London: 1583. Hunnis’ book consists of a translation of the Seven Penitential Psalms in rhyme.
1497

Astonied: “bewildered.” -Ed.
1498

Uriel.
1499

Note, sowles created before the bodies are begotten.
1500

Three elected.
1501

Fortitudo in deo et propter deum. -Δ. (“Strength in God and because of God.” –Ed.) 1502

Temptation necessary.
1503

Pugna . . . victoria: “They will have fought, but victory will be yours.” -Ed.
1504

A perfect begynning.
1505

Sententia contra istum Malignum spirituum qui nobis inpenere voluit. -Δ (“A judgment against this evil spirit who wished to use us.” -Ed.) 1506

He spake to EK.
1507

Angelus malus proprius ipius EK. (“The wicked angel belonging to EK himself.” –Ed.)
1508

Diuels are accusers proprely.
1509

EK had byn carryed away in the wrath of God. If fervent prayer had not byn, as may appere in the begynning of this nights Action.
1510

The boke of this Prophesie shall contynue.
1511

= a malo Temptationis. -Δ. (“Against the evil of temptations.” -Ed.)
1512

Professio mea est Philosophia vera, vide Libro primo. -Δ. (“My profession is true philosophy. See Book 1.” -Ed.)
1513

Deo . . . perpetuum: “May all praise, honor, and thanksgiving be to our almighty God, now and forever.” -Ed.
1514

Beati . . . pacem: “Blessed feet, gospel of peace” See Romans 10.15. Quomodo vero praedicabunt nisi mittantur? sicut scriptum est: Quam speciosi pedes evangelizantium pacem evangelizantium bona!: “And how shall they preach, except they be sent? As it is written: How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!” This verse quotes from Isaiah 52:7. Quam pulchri super montes pedes annunciantis et praedicantis pacem: annunciantis bonum, praedicantis salutem, dicentis Sion: Regnabit Deus tuus!: “How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him who brings good tidings, who publishes peace, who brings good tidings of good, who publishes salvation, who says to Zion: ’Your God reigns.’” -Ed.

1515

Per te Jesu Christe: “Through you, Jesus Christ.” -Ed.

1516

This Holy Book.

1517

The boke to be finished to morrow.

1518

The day appointed for the use of this Book. Augusti 1.

1519

Our nine dayes contrition preparatiue. -Δ. Note the Clavicula Salomonis prescribes a nine-day preparatory period before calling spirits that includes penitential prayers and abstaining from impurity. See S. L. Mathers, ed., The Key of Solomon the King (York Beach: Samuel Weiser, 1972 repr. 1989), book 2, chapter 4. The magi (Zoroastrian priests) also undergo an elaborate nine-night purification ceremony (“Barashnum”) in order to prepare for higher religious ceremonies. –Ed.

1520

Angels sent to viset the heape of sinnes in the world abownding &c.

1521

Good Angels.

1522

The second of the greatest prophesie, is this.

1523

Our Testimony of this Prophesie, all the World ouer, to be (by us) published.

1524

Our bodyes to be made strong.

1525

Antichriste is allmost ready for his practise.

1526

40 dayes more for the tables writing in their own Characters.

1527

The frute of this boke.

1528

The backside of my Character.
1529

The use of the stone which a good Angel browght to me the last yere: remember it is half an inche thik.
1530

The 4 hollow fete of the Table.
1531

HM reads “must.” -Ed.
1532

The use of the Table of practise is onely for one Month.
1533

Vide sup. A°. 1582 Maij 4.
1534

Great long iornayes to be gon of us two.
1535

The Cullor of the silk for the Table.
1536

On the first of August next.
1537

Δ So they seeme to haue byn ment in the figure of the Table of practise before described.
1538

The Princis here not put next to their kings.
1539

Note. 4 diuerse Wayes.
1540

A Secret of preeminence due to the Kings &c: as in Astrology. I use to mak every planet a base or a grownd in his propre signification &c., & so every howse of the 12 &c. in respect of his proper and severall signification.
1541

P. 85. -E.A.
1542

The Symbolism of my name, in my character, how and where.
1543

Princeples.
1544

Δ perhaps somewhat like this:
1545

The man in the myddest of the globe or circle.
1546

Tables.
1547

The 7 ensignes of creation.
1548

At the time of theyr call.
1549

The 7 ensignes to be paynted on the Table.
1550

Supra. -Δ. (“Above.” -Ed.)
1551

Befafes.
1552

A.G.
1553

Supra.
1554

The last Ternarie.
1555

Three times.
1556

Vide supra pagina precedente. -Δ. (“See above on the previous page.” -Ed.)
1557

The 7 characters of the 7 kings as on the formar page is Babalel, Liba, &c.
1558

Expedition. -Δ. (“Expeditiousness.” -Ed.) 1559

Journey. - Ed.
1560

How the Threasor is to be used.
1561

The Skroll, The Boke, The red powder.
1562

Albertus Laski, Palatinus Siradiensis venit ex Polonia Londinum 1583 Maij initio. -Δ. “Albert Laski, the Palatine of Sieradia (Sieradz), came from Poland to London in early May, 1583.” The Polish prince Albertus Laski visited London on 1 May 1583. At the Queen’s command, he was received with much honor. He visited Dee on 15 June along with Philip Sidney. The prince was so impressed with Dee and Kelley that they were invited to Lasco, the prince’s seat near Krakow. They left with their wives and families on 21 September 1583. Laski plays a major role in Dee’s subsequent actions. -Ed.
1563

Δ My good Angel.
1564

Hereby may many other answers be considered.
1565

Multa nobis perpetienda propter Deum nostrum Omnipotentem. -Δ. (“Our great suffering near for our almighty God.” -Ed.)
1566

Note The Quene of Scotts to be behedded. So she was A°. 1587 at Fodringam Castell. And allso the same yere a great preparation of ships against England by the King of Spayn, the Pope and other Princis called Catholik, &c.
1567

Gloria . . . Aeterno: “Everlasting glory be to our God, almighty and eternal.” - Ed.
1568

The Erthes.
1569

The boke.
1570

The shepe under the Table.
1571

Verus . . . sempiternus: “True and holy and everlasting.” -Ed.
1572

A Temptation permitted by God.
1573

Pereant . . . Tenebrarum: “May darkness perish with the Prince of Darkness.” -Ed.
1574

Temptations & hinderances.
1575

The forme of the boke committed to my discretion.
1576

Δ Fortè Annaël.
1577

Misericordia Dei. -Δ. (“God’s mercy.” -Ed.) 1578

Actum est: “It has been done.” -Ed.
1579

NOTE.
1580

Justice.
1581 fiat: “Let it be so.” -Ed.

1582

The boke.
1583

Note.
1584

Jubilate . . . versamini: “Rejoice in God all ye dwelling on the Earth.” This is reminiscent of several Psalms. -Ed.
1585

The Erthes.
1586

This “a” was sownded to the ende of pinzu as we use in english balads, as with this word down is sownded as downa, down a down a, &c.

1587

Michael: Gravida . . . tremulis: “Michael: The earth is pregnant and struggles with the iniquities of the enemies of light. It is therefore accursed, because it is in the womb of damnation and darkness. Uriel: It is filthy and offensive to us. Raphael: It scourges itself by its own shaking.” -Ed.
1588

Rap: Veh dicit . . . Fiat: “Raphael: He says ‘veh,’ but it is not what he hears. We have seen lamentation, but he doesn’t feel misery. May we be sanctified therefore, his holy one, because we are sanctified in that one. Michael: Let it be so.” -Ed.
1589

Nova. -Δ. Transeunt . . . nova: “The old ways cease, the new begin.” -Ed.
1590

Just.
1591

Peccatorum remissio. -Δ. (“Remission of sins.” -Ed.)
1592

Quae . . . gradu: “which they are now in the highest degree.” -Ed.
1593

The Thorny path sup. 24 March.
1594

Angeli iniusti, respectu Justiciae Divinae. -Δ. (“Unrighteous angels, with respect to Divine Righteousness.” -Ed.) 1595

Mercy.
1596

Decedant . . . pereant: “May the wicked depart and perish.” -Ed.
1597

De Vita . . . possit?: “Regarding the life of Stephen, King of Poland, what can be said?” -Ed.
1598

An successor . . . Austriaca?: “Will his successor be Albertus Laski, or from the House of Austria?” -Ed.
1599

An Albertus . . . Moldauiæ?: “Will Albertus Laski, Palatine of Sieradia, have the kingdom of Moldavia?” -Ed.

1600

.... require none at Gods hands in this Case.

1601

Note, we shalbe called upon.

1602

Albertus Lasky.

1603

The dead man.

1604

Prophetia de regno Alberti a Lasky, sed ipe noluit constanter se convertere ad Deum et adherere Deo, &c. (“A prophecy of the rule of Albertus Laski, but he himself has been constantly unwilling to convert himself to God and adhere to God.” -Ed.)

1605

Fornication.

1606

Justa facienda. (“Just cause.” -Ed.)

1607

This phrase is heavily underlined in the manuscript. -Ed.

1608

Perswasion, Δ.

1609

Alb. Lasky ¶

1610

Alb. Lasky his name, in one boke with our names.

1611

. . . rie bones . . . be . . . to.

1612

Faces marked.
1613

Forte: “They that.” -E.A.
1614

The Cumpany for the mines royall, which had made A.G. and me a lease for Deuonshire mynes, &c.
1615

Forte: “done.” -E.A.
1616

Δ we were called to dynner often so he ended.
1617

Semper . . . sequiter: “May the Trinity in Unity, our eternal and almighty God, be ever blessed. Amen. Here follows the Sixth Book of the Mysteries (and holy), parallel, and of a new land.” -Ed.
1618

R: “here folowithe the makinge off the seale off the trwe and lyuinge god.”
1619

Deest S.
1620

S: “intret.” 1621

S: “y.”
1622

S adds: “e.”
1623

S: “t.”
1624

R has “w,” but has “n” supra linea.
1625

R (sup. lin.): “t.” 1626

Deest S.
1627

R has “x,” but has “s” supra linea.

1628

R: “n,” S: “x” (?).

1629

R: “t.”

1630

R has “v,” but has “t” supra linea.

1631

R (sup. lin.) adds “p.”

1632

R ends “yleotsyma.” Sloane 313: “htoexorahala/ yqciystalga$\wedge^{a}$ onosularitckspfyo/ mo (sup. lin: e)mau (sup.lin. x) aremlarclatcdaccnonaorleyot.“

1633

S: “istæ.”

1634

S: “æque.”

1635

Sloane 313: “nominate.”

1636

R: “schemhamphoras,” S: “shemhamphorash,” Sloane 313: “semamphoras.”

1637

R adds “hoc.”

1638

Deest R; S: “et sub nomen aliud dei sz.”

1639

Sloane 313 omits this diagram.

1640

S: “inferiorem.”

1641

Sl. 313 adds “super nomine.”

1642

R: “.l.h.,” Sloane 313 reads “l . et . x .”

1643

R omits “istas duas.”
1644

R omits “istas duas”; Sloane 3854 adds: “.l.a. et in alio post istum .l.c. Et in alio post istum.”
1645

S: “.v.m.”; In Sloane 313 this phrase reads: “scribe illas 2. literas. l. et . x . et infra alium angulum dextrum istas 2. literas . a . l . et in alio post istum . l . a . et in alio post istum . l . c . et in alio post istum . n . m . ut hic post in figura deorsu~ in marg .. in ...”
1646

S: “heptagonum.” 1647

R: “.l.h.”
1648

S: “heptagoni.”
1649

R: “scante.”
1650

R omits “casziel ... quod est.”
1651

S: “heptagoni.”
1652

R: “sunt.”
1653

S: “adimpleti.” 1654

S: “heptagonu~.”
1655

S: “heptagonu~.”
1656

Sloane 313, S: “non q° m° primus factus est sed.” 1657

R: “incarceret.” 1658

Deest R.
1659

S: “primus.”
1660

Deest R.
1661

S: “hexagoni.”
1662

Deest R.
1663

S: “angulo.”
1664

R, S: “quæ.” 1665

R, S: “sequntur.” 1666

S: “hexagoni.”
1667

S: “hexagoni.”
1668

Deest R.
1669

S: “supra.”
1670

R: “scaneti.”
1671

S: “scribantur.” 1672

S: “praedicti.”
1673

R: “hac,” S: “hæc.”
1674

Deest R.
1675

R adds “de.”
1676

R, S: “hæc.”
1677

S: “a.” 1678

S: “hexagoni.”
1679

S: “hoc sanctum nomen dei.” 1680

R, S: “hæc.”
1681

R, S: “hæc.”
1682

Deest R; S: “hæ.” 1683

R: “dua”; S: “duæ.”
1684

S: “.c.h.”
1685

Deest R.
1686

S: “illud.”
1687

S: “tercia‥.”
1688

S: “hexagoni.”
1689

S reads simply: “tendit a 3°.”
1690

R, S: “hæc.”
1691

R, S: “hæc.”
1692

Sloane 3854 adds in margin: “i~ illo.”
1693

Text between * deest in Sl.3854
1694

S: “hexagoni.”
1695

S: “hexagoni.”
1696

S reads simply: “quod est a 5ta cruce.”
1697

R, S: “hæc.”
1698

R, S: “hæc.”
1699

R, S: “hæc.”
1700

S: “exagoni.”
1701

S: “exagoni.”
1702

S: “quartum.”
1703

Deest R.
1704

S: “sanctum.”
1705

R adds “dei.”
1706

Sloane 313: “lyalg”; S: “lialg.”
1707

R: “quid”; S: “q$^{i.}$” 1708

Deest S.
1709

Deest S.
1710

R: “volitum.”
1711

S: “hexagoni.”
1712

S: “sanctum.”
1713

Sloane 3854: “aliud dei sacrum”; Sloane 313: “a^{d} n^{m} dei sacru~.” 1714

Sloane 3854: “ucham.”
1715

Sloane 3854: “ue”; S: “Ne” (?).
1716

Deest R, S.
1717

S: “hexagon.”
1718

S: “sanctum.”
1719

S: “hæc.”
1720

R: “in alla.”
1721

S: “lateris eiusdem.”
1722

S: “supra.,” 1723

R: “latere.”
1724

S: “hexagoni.”
1725

S: “dexteris.”
1726

S: “Avs” (?).
1727

S: “hexagoni.”
1728

S: “dexteris.”
1729

Sloane 313: “duynas”; S: “dvynas.” 1730

R: “Granl.”
1731

Sloane 313, S: “et in alio .ω.”
1732

S: “est sub angulo primo 2^{i} et 3^{i} hexagonoru~.” 1733

S: “angulo.”
1734

S: “hexagonorum.”
1735

Deest R, Sl.313.
1736

R, S: “itarum.”
1737

R: “sequenti”; S: “5ta.” 1738

R: “sequenti”; S: “6ta.”
1739

R: “alio.”
1740

S: “spaciolo.” 1741

S: “claditur.” 1742

Deest R.
1743

S: “hexagoni.”
1744

S: “hexagoni.”
1745

R: “scilicet”; S: “si.”
1746

S: “A.”
1747

S: “dexte=/is.”
1748

Deest R.
1749

S: “A.”
1750

S adds “alia.”
1751

R adds “dei.”
1752

S: “Ely.” 1753

S: “Eloy.”
1754

S: “Sother.”
1755

R: “ADONAL”
1756

R: “quod communiter in exemplaribus.” 1757

R: “primu~.”
1758

S: “hextagonus.”
1759

Sloane 313, SI.3854 omit “de maximum ac venerabile.” 1760

R: “alio.”
1761

R, S: “at.”
1762

R: “vituluio.”
1763

Sloane 313: “aut.”
1764

R: “par.”
1765

S: “sequntur.”
1766

Sloane 3854: “libro sacro” ; S: “sac^{o}”; Sloane 313: “libello ∧ $^{\text{sacro.}}$” 1767

S: “talitur.”
1768

S: “seq^{i}tur.”
1769

R: “hoc.”
1770

R: “Dexit.” 1771

R, S: “hoc.”
1772

R omits “sic placuit creatori.” 1773

S: “dominus ipsum.” 1774

S: “polutus.”
1775

R: “scriptus.”
1776

R: “suffumigetr.”
1777

S: “postea.” In the margin of Sloane 313, there is a drawing of a hand pointing out the passage which is very similar to Dee’s.
1778

Deest S. In Sloane 313 it is written surpa linea.
1779

Deest Sloane 3854.
1780

R: “tamen”; S: “tantum.”
1781

R: “hoc.”
1782

R: “digue ris.”
1783

R: “et.”
1784

S: “tali”; Sloane 3854: “tal.”
1785

S: “cælestes.”

1786

S: “convincere.”
1787

R: “terreac.”
1788

R: “transmittaere.”
1789

S: “congregare.”
1790

R, S: “suas”; Sloane 313: “meas vel suas.” 1791

S: “graciosi.”
1792

R: “dum”; S: “domine” (?); Sloane 313: “deuiu–.” (?) 1793

Sloane 3854: “agnoscere.”
1794

Deest R.
1795

S: “chirothechas”; Sloane 313: “cirothecas.” 1796

R: “posuit.”
1797

Sloane 3854: “sacrosct~m”; S: “sacosctmus.” (?)
1798

S: “heptagonus.”
1799

S: “designant.”
1800

For a critical edition see Joseph Peterson, The Lesser Key of Solomon (York Beach, ME: Weiser Books, 2001), pp. 57—108.
1801

This form of the introduction is thus to be varied depending on the office, place and number thou wishest to conjure.

1802

For a critical edition see Joseph Peterson, The Lesser Key of Solomon (York Beach, ME: Weiser Books, 2001), pp. 109—45.

1803

For a critical edition see Joseph Peterson, The Lesser Key of Solomon (York Beach, ME: Weiser Books, 2001), pp. 147—54.

1804

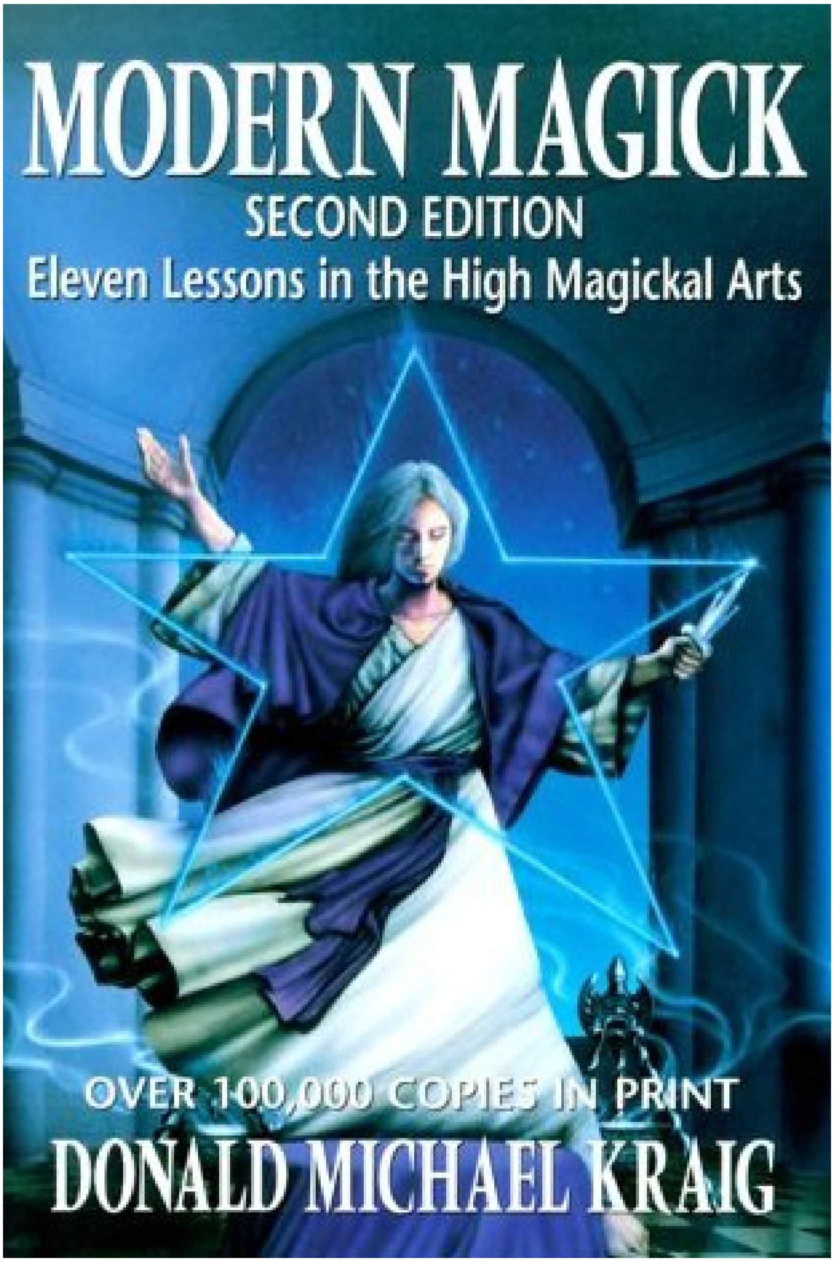
Psalm 67.

1805

Psalm 54.

1806

Psalm 51.



MODERN MAGICK

SECOND EDITION

Eleven Lessons in the High Magickal Arts

OVER 100,000 COPIES IN PRINT

DONALD MICHAEL KRAIG

Other Books by the Author

Magical Diary
Truth About Evocation of Spirits
Truth About Psychic Powers
Modern Sex Magick

Dedication

This book is dedicated to all of my teachers in the hope that what they shared with me I can now share with others. These teachers include: My parents, Frater A.M.A.G., Soror S.I.A.A., Frater D.D.C.F., Frater P., and others whose names I'll not use; Scott Cunningham and Raven, for their beautiful teachings; Rabbis Meriminsky and Haas; Michael Turk and Sifu Douglas Wong; and so many others. Further, this book is Dedicated with poignant memory of what might have been to AEGIS

MODERN MAGICK

SECOND EDITION

Eleven Lessons in the High Magickal Arts

DONALD MICHAEL KRAIG

2001
Llewellyn Publications
St. Paul, Minnesota 55164-0383, U.S.A.

Modern Magick. Copyright © 1988 and 1998 by Donald Michael Kraig. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be used or reproduced in any manner whatsoever, including Internet usage, without written permission from Llewellyn Publications except in the case of brief quotations embodied in critical articles and reviews.

SECOND EDITION
Fourth Printing, 2001

FIRST EDITION
Twelve printings, 1997

Cover Art: Martin Cannon
Illustrations: Martin Cannon and Brooke Luteyn
Book Design: Tom Streissguth, Terry Buske and Tom Grewe

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data
Kraig, Donald Michael, 1951-
Modern magick : eleven lessons in the high magickal art / Donald Michael Kraig. -- 2nd ed.
p. cm. (Llewellyn's high magick series)
Includes bibliographical references and index.
ISBN 0-87542-324-8 (trade paper)
1. Magic. I. Title. II. Series.
BF1611.K7 1998
133.4'3--dc21 98-13885
CIP

Llewellyn Worldwide does not participate in, endorse, or have any authority or responsibility concerning private business transactions between our authors and the public.

All mail addressed to the author is forwarded but the publisher cannot, unless specifically instructed by the author, give out an address or phone number.

Llewellyn Publications
A Division of Llewellyn Worldwide, Ltd.
P.O. Box 64383, Dept. 0-87542-324-8
St. Paul, MN 55165-0383
http://www.llewellyn.com

Printed in the United States of America

Contents

And an Overview of the Subjects Covered in Each Lesson

AUTHOR'S NOTE x

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION xi

INTRODUCTION xiii

LESSON ONE 1

Getting Started; Dreams and the Dream Diary; The Ritual Diary; Tarot Decks; The Relaxation Ritual; Definitions of Magick: White, Grey and Black; The Story of Robin the Satanist; The Tarot Contemplation Ritual; Divinatory Meanings of the Major Arcana Cards of the Tarot; Mythic and Factual Histories of the Tarot; Modern Tarot Evolution; Fortunetelling vs. Divination; The Split Hexagram Tarot Divination Spread; A Sample Tarot Reading; Reasons for Regularly Performing the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram (LBRP); Attitudes in Preparation for Ritual; Magickal Tools: Location, The Altar, Candles, The "Weapons," The Bell, The Robe; Drawing the Banishing Earth Pentagram in the Air; Appropriate Visualizations; Review; Bibliography.

LESSON TWO 33

Preparations for the LBRP including the Ritual Cleansing Bath; Physical Set-Up for the LBRP; The LBRP: The Kabalistic Cross (including the meaning of the words), The Formulation of the Pentagrams (including how the God names relate to one Deity), The Evocation of the Archangels, The Recapitulation of the Kabalistic Cross; How to Vibrate Words of Power (Vibratory Formulae); Psychic Attack and Psychic Self-Defense; The Four Solar Adorations; Advanced Work for the Four Adorations; Hebrew; The mythological History of the Kabalah; The Factual History of the Kabalah (including Merkabah Mysticism); The "Kosher Kabalah" and the "Wasp Kabalah"; The Dogmatic Kabalah; The Practical Kabalah; The Literal Kabalah (including Gematria, Notarikon and Temurah); The Unwritten Kabalah; Introduction to The Tree of Life; Freud; Reich; The Kabalistic Power Centers; The Ritual of the Middle Pillar; "Little Nasties"; Review; Bibliography.

LESSON THREE 81

On Initiation; On Elemental Earth; Exercises to Master Elemental Earth; More on the Tree of Life: The Three Pillars, The Three Triangles, The Four Worlds; Real Meditation; The Secrets of Kabalistic Meditation; A Technique of True Meditation; Kabalistic Correspondences to the Sephiroht and What They Mean; The Advanced Middle Pillar Ritual; The Circulation of the Body of Light; Using Magickal Energy for Healing; What you Should Experience in Ritual; The Pentagram and the Elements (Eastern and Western); Making the Magickal Pentacle; Magickal Names; Ceremonial vs. Ritual Magick; Advantages and Disadvantages of Working with Others; The I.O.B. Technique; Review; Bibliography.

LESSON FOUR 133

On Elemental Air; Exercises to Master Elemental Air; A Group Ritual for Healing; Symbolism of the Cross; Mystical Meaning of INRI; Physical Representation of Letters; Magickal Hexagrams and How to Draw Them; The Advanced Tarot Contemplation Ritual; The Wand and The Dagger; Making the Air Dagger; Kabalistic Psychology; Using the Tarot to Improve a Person's Mindset; Egotism vs. Egoism; Yoga; The LBRP as the Basis for Ceremonial Magick; The Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram (BRH): The Analysis of the Keyword, The Formulation of the Hexagrams, The Completion of the Ritual; Ceremonial Versions of the BRH; Grimoires; The Three Necessities of Grey Magick; Review; Bibliography.

LESSON FIVE...183
The Instant Relaxation Ritual; On Elemental Water; Exercises to Master Elemental Water; Construction of the Water Chalice; The Rose Cross Ritual, Including How it Differs from the LBRP; The Rite of Self-Dedication; Reincarnation; Past Lives; Reincarnation and Tee-Koon (Kabalistic Karma); Invoking and Banishing Pentagrams; The Supreme Invoking Ritual of the Pentagram; The Soul, the Ego, Why We Have Trouble Remembering Past Lives and the Four Worlds; Signs of Physical Fitness and Health: Vitality, Appetite, Deep and Sound Sleep, Good Memory of the Past, Present and Future, Humor; Infinite Giving; Clear Thinking and Precise Action; Realization of Oneness; The Five Rites of Rejuvenation; Review; Bibliography.

LESSON SIX...233
On Elemental Fire; Exercises to Master Elemental Fire; Construction of the Fire Wand; Paths on the Tree; Correspondences to the Paths; Numbering Systems; Magickal Formulae; Tablets Representing the Magickal Elements; The Tablet of Union; The Watchtower Ritual; Construction of the Rainbow Wand; The Consecration of the Rainbow Wand; Altar Layout; Consecration Ritual for the Pentacle; Consecration Ritual for the Dagger; Consecration Ritual for the Chalice; Consecration Ritual for the Fire Wand; The Ritual of Magickal Obligation; Dealing With Non-Magickal People; Review; Bibliography.

LESSON SEVEN..287
Our Direct Link to the Astral Plane; Positive Affirmations; Creative Visualization, The Kabalistic System of Mental Magick including the Treasure Map; The Kabalistic Secret of Mental Magick; The Nature of High and Low (Ceremonial and Natural) Magick; A Time Line of Important Dates in the History of Witchcraft; Definition of a Talisman; The Difference Between Talismans and Amulets; The Story of Student "Q"; Magickal vs. Natural Elements; Symbolism of the Magickal Elements; Designing Low Magick Talismans; Karma; The Best Times to Perform Low Magick Rituals; A Pagan Ritual for Charging Talismans; How to Describe the Purpose of Rituals; Magickal Guardians; The Ideal Kabalistic Talisman; Types of Traditional Kabalistic Talismans; Talismanic Purpose Chart; Designing High Magick Talismans from Scratch, Including Pythagorean Numerology, Kabalistic Numerology, The System of Austin Osman Spare and His Alphabet of Desire, and Using The Hermetic Rose Cross. Supplement with Sigils from the Arbatel of Magick, Planetary Symbols, Shapes for Talismans, Geomantic Figures, the Importance of Being Able to Design a Talisman From Scratch; Review, Bibliography.

LESSON EIGHT...337
On Doing One's Best; The Story of a Writer; Another Sample Talisman Design; Determining Planetary (or Magickal) Hours; Planetary Hour Chart; The Simple Talisman Charging and Consecrating Ritual; The Story of Mathers and the Peas; The Complete Ritual for Charging and Consecrating a Talisman; Review;

LESSON NINE..371
Grimoires; How I Discovered the Secrets of Magickal Evocation: My Sources; Construction of the Triangle of the Art; The Magick Mirror; The Appropriate Location for the Triangle of the Art; A Drawing Attributed to Saint-Germain and How it Relates to Evocation; Methods of Altering Consciousness; The Use of Goetic Seals; A Ritual for Evocation Including The Opening, The Questionings, The Welcome Unto the Spirit and The License to Depart; Other Seals of Spirits and Their Purposes; On Role Playing Games; The Yetziratic Sealing Rite; Pentacles From the Greater Key of Solomon; Elemental Entities: Gnomes, Sylphs, Undines and Salamanders; Artificial Elemental; Ritual for the Creation of an Artificial Elemental; Notes to the Ritual; Spiritism and Channeling vs. Magickal Invocation; Guidelines for Invocation Rituals; Review; Bibliography.

LESSON TEN..421
Sexuality; Cults and Preventing Sexual Manipulation; Sex Magick Techniques Including Thought Control, Inner Alchemy and Outer Alchemy; The Holy Letter; Wilhelm Reich; The Potent Orgasm, the Subconscious and Symbols; A Sex Magick Ritual for a Couple; The Place of Comfort; Notes on the Ritual; Sex Magick Divinatory Techniques; The Yoni Mudra; Eroto-comatose Lucidity; The Position Known as "The Crow"; Separating Love and Sex; Alchemy and Sex Magick; Karezza; Male Ejaculation Control and Multiple Orgasm; The Masters and Johnson "Squeeze" Technique; Conception Vessel One; The Magickal Elixir; The Powers of the Moon; The Mass of the Holy Ghost; Truths About Tantra and Kundalini Yoga; The Hahm-Sah Mantra; Kriya Yoga; Sex Magick Using Inner Alchemy; The Tantrik Ritual of Inner Alchemy; MahaTantra; God Eating; A Taoist Alchemical Ritual; KalaKakra: A Group Sex Magick Ritual; Personal Responsibility, STDs and AIDS; Review; Bibliography.

LESSON ELEVEN..469
Piscean and Aquarian Age Mentality; Three Things Needed to Work Any Magick; Where Magickal Secrets Come From; The False Notion of White, Black and Grey Magick; Higher Spiritual Entities; Astral Projection; Astral LBRP; Concentration Exercises; Mental Projection vs. Astral Projection; Methods to Develop Astral Projection; Bi-Locationality; Astral Travel; Astral Whiplash; The Ultimate Secret of Magick; Why Memorization of Correspondences is Important; Pathworking; An Example of Pathworking; The Ritual of the Paths; Hebrew for Gematria; Payment; The Ceremony of the Paths; Review; Bibliography.

APPENDIX ONE..511
A Ritual to Vastly Increase Personal Magickal Power.

APPENDIX TWO..513
Answers to the Self-Test Reviews From the End of Each Lesson.

APPENDIX THREE..523
New for the second edition. Modern Magick FAQ: Answers to Frequently Received Questions About This Book and About Ceremonial Magick in General.

APPENDIX FOUR..547
Glossary.

ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY......................................565

Author's Note

The following series of progressive lessons in magick includes an easy-to-understand study of the Kabalah. In keeping with Kabalistic tradition I have chosen to refer to the Ultimate Divinity as "God." To both the Kabalists and myself God is not seen as a male figure, even though God was described, in some instances, as anthropomorphically male. This was a convenience.

According to the Kabalah, the Ultimate Source of All is unitary, having united all dualities—up and down, left and right, positive and negative, male and female. It is believed that we cannot be limited to being either male or female. This idea is discussed further in this book.

I agree strongly with this point of view. When I use the word "God" as a representative of the Single Divine Source of All, I do not wish to imply the Deity is limited to masculine or feminine characteristics. The use of the word God to represent the Divine keeps with tradition and makes the use of English easier.

Some will also notice unusual spellings of the Hebrew when transliterated into English. Since there is no single, agreed-upon way of changing the sounds of Hebrew into English, I have chosen to represent the Hebrew by the way it sounds, not by archaic spellings. Thus, you will find "Sephiroht," the proper method of pronouncing the word, instead of the old "Sephiroth."

It is hoped that this method of representing Hebrew will not offend anyone. Likewise, it is hoped that the usage of the term "God" for the Ultimate Divinity will not offend any who, like myself, value the importance of the feminine aspect of the Divine as is also described within the following pages.

Preface to the Second Edition

A great many things have happened to me Since Modern Magick was originally accepted for publication. I moved my home several times, including moves of thousands of miles. My mother died suddenly and one of my best friends died after a long illness. I have traveled all over the U.S. to give lectures. I have met thousands of people and answered thousands of letters. I went back to school with a Fellowship to USC where I received certificates in multimedia, 3D graphics, animation and Web design for the Internet.

Modern Magick created major changes in my life. Directly and indirectly it has brought me new jobs and let me travel around the U.S. and visit Canada and England. Because of this book I have made many, many new friends.

Perhaps what pleases me most about the book are the many wonderful stories people have shared with me. I thought that Modern Magick would be just a book about how to do High Magick. Numerous people have written to me or talked to me in person to tell me that it changed their lives. Personally, I am more inclined to think that the people who went through major changes as a result of working with this book were ready to make the changes. Modern Magick was merely a kick in the direction they were already headed. But for whatever reason, I was very pleased that my writing has been able to help.

I had always hoped that Modern Magick would be used as a text book for classes in magick. I have heard from many groups and individuals that they are using it for exactly that purpose. A bigger thrill is when I hear that groups are using it as a basis for study but are adding to it or changing things around. This means that people are thinking and growing. This means that magick is not simply the recapitulation of the actions of ancient, dead men and women, but a living and evolving science based upon those people's research, dedication, genius and originality. In many ways this book is simply a small testament to their wisdom. I do hope that even more groups will use Modern Magick as a guide for study, research and, most importantly, practice.

Although it was only a short time ago, when I wrote this book the number of volumes on High Magick that had been published was limited. Even many of the most valuable and most popular books on the subject had been written forty years earlier. Because of the small number of ceremonial magicians at the time (when compared with today), I had hoped this book would enjoy continuous but relatively small sales. I guessed that by this time if it stayed in print, perhaps ten thousand copies would have been sold. To my surprise and delight I was off by a factor of ten.

I would like to think that the acceptance of the way I presented the information, combined with the fact that Modern Magick seems to have hit the market at exactly the right time, has helped make ceremonial magick more understandable and more usable for a greater number of people than ever before. There are far more practicing ceremonial magicians today than at any time in history, and I feel honored to have played a small part in that expansion.

When I first became highly active in the occult world, there was an attitude among ceremonial magicians and Pagans that they shouldn't mix. I am glad to say that has changed, opening the world of occultism to a pragmatic eclecticism: "If it works, I'll use it." Modern Magick was one of the first "Pagan-friendly" books on ceremonial magick. I hope that it has, in some small way, contributed to the acceptance of others' methods, bringing to Pagans and ceremonial magicians alike what I call "unity through diversity."

Many years ago I had a chance to go to a book signing by one of my favorite authors. She gave a reading from one of her novels, then started to sign books. When I got up to her I apologized. Everyone else had a bright, shiny, new edition of one or more of her books for her to sign. I presented an early edition, yellowing and obviously well read and well worn. Her entire face lit up. "I'm glad to see that somebody actually is reading my book," she told me.

This happened years before Modern Magick was even written. I have learned exactly how she feels. I find it amazing when I see a well-worn copy of my book that is filled with notes and comments. I wish I had the time to read all of those comments and see what people had highlighted or underlined. I've heard from many people that their first or second copy of this book was so used that they had to get another. Some have had copies hard bound. For all of this I am grateful.

I am also grateful to all of the people I met at Llewellyn, especially those who helped to make this project a success. I would like to thank Carl and Sandra Weschcke for taking a chance on me and Nancy Mostad for helping to get this through to publication.

And finally, I am most grateful to all of the people who have not only purchased this book, but have used it to help them on their individual paths to spirituality and magick. It is to them that I dedicate the new section of this book, the Modern Magick FAQ. I hope you find it as useful as the rest of the book.

Introduction

Twenty-one years ago I was in a period of incredible excitement. In a matter of days I was to have my Bar Mitzvah. Unexpectedly one of the Rabbis on the staff of my temple called me into his office. This Rabbi looked about 90 years old. . . and acted as if he were going on 18. He even wore tennis shoes under his rabbinical robes!

To me, Judaism had been very comfortable. No Hell or Hellfire. No "believe or be damned for eternity." Just love God and follow the "Negative Golden Rule":

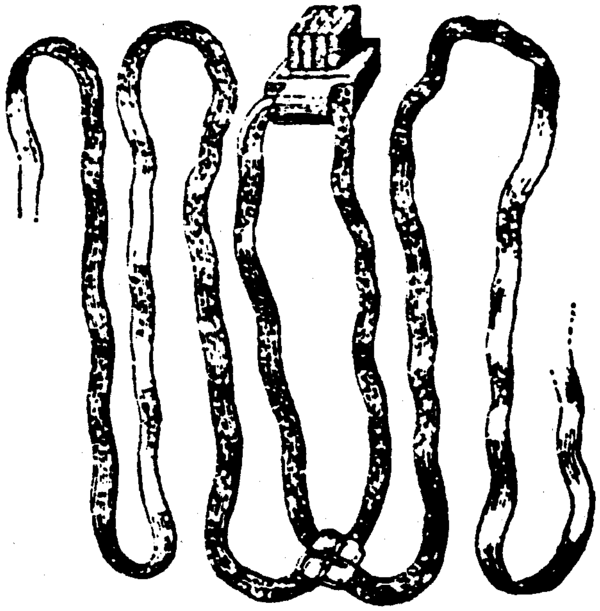
Don't do unto others if you would not have them do the same unto you.

To a scientifically oriented person like myself, this was a nice, safe, almost secular religion—until that old Rabbi called me into his office.

Suddenly I was overwhelmed with foreign information which was an unknown part of my religion. The ends of the Tallit (prayer shawl) were supposed to have so many threads of such-and-such colors, and be tied in a certain number of knots. The Tephillin (phylactery) for the arm was supposed to have its leather strap wound seven (why seven?) times around the arm (see diagram on the next page). Then it was to be wound around the hand so as to spell out the word "Shadai," a name of God (I thought the name of God was that four-letter word which was never supposed to be pronounced). Suddenly, my safe, logical religion was illogical and no longer safe. I needed to find out the roots of my religion and discover the basis for what appeared foolish. Thus began a search and study which has so far taken over twenty years and has led to the Kabalah and Ritual Magick, and culminates in these lessons which you are now beginning to study.

In those years I have read thousands of books and searched the United States and Western Europe. I have written for occult and New



The Tephillin

Age magazines and papers. I received a B.A. in Philosophy from U.C.L.A., am a Certified Tarot Master, and have an honorary Doctorate in Metaphysics.

The lessons which you are beginning here are not something I have merely dreamed up. I have taught this course dozens of times in the Southern California area to hundreds of students. Each time it was taught I tried to improve and refine it. It was finally published for the first time as a mail-order course. Now those lessons are being published in book form to make it more widely available. You have the great advantage of having the entire course written out for you in far greater detail than any of the notes ever taken by any of my students. I am also able to present far more information than ever before.

I'd like to talk a bit on what this course covers. It is, naturally, on Ritual or Art Magick and the Kabalah: the philosophy behind Magick (and, for that matter, all religion, too). It is primarily in the tradition of The Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn; however, sections will be drawn from many other systems including various Eastern, Pagan and Crowleyan systems. Some of the topics to be covered include the Tarot, Divination, the history of the Tarot, the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram, the Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram, the Middle Pillar Ritual, the Circulation of the Body of Light, the Watchtower Ritual, meditation, the Tree of Life, the Three Pillars, the four Kabalistic Worlds, the history of the Kabalah, Gematria, Notarikon, Temurah, Bible interpretation, talismans, astral traveling, pathworking, healing, The Keys of Solomon, magickal rituals which you can design for any purpose, sex magick and much more.

Obviously, this is more than can be covered in the following few hundred pages. After all, there are thousands of books available on these subjects. There are, however, two things you should keep in mind:

1. Sturgeon's Law. This law states that 90% of everything is junk. Of those thousands of books, much is repetitive and much more is useless guessing by people who haven't even tried the simplest ritual! This course will leave you with the best of thousands of books, plus over twenty years of personal research and practice.

2. It is not the purpose of this book to completely explain all of these topics! The purpose of these pages is to introduce you to these ideas so that you can direct yourself in your life-long study of the occult (remember, "occult" means secret, as in "secret wisdom." It does not mean "evil.") This course will, however, give you more correct, immediately useful information on the Kabalah and Ritual Magick than any other single book or course presently in print. If you never read another book on Magick, you will have everything you need to be a powerful, successful magician from the contents of this book.

I'd like to talk now about the Golden Dawn. At the time when this magickal lodge formed in the late 1880's, there were few really good books available on either Magick or the Kabalah. Most of the really good books on these subjects which exist today were written by members of the Golden Dawn, people who were associated with members, or people who knowingly or unknowingly were influenced by this group. These people include MacGregor Mathers, Aleister Crowley, Dr. F.I. Regardie, A.E. Waite, H.P. Blavatsky, Dion Fortune, P.F. Case, and many others. Much of this course is derived from their writings, virtually millions of words presented here for the first time in an easy-to-follow, practical system of wisdom, development and magick.

Many magickal rituals will be given in these lessons for you to practice. These should aid you in your psychic and magickal development. However, even though thousands of people throughout history have successfully shown their proficiency in magickal techniques, quite frankly I cannot guarantee your success. This is because the ability to perform Magick successfully is dependent upon what you put into it. Many people, however, have told me of their great successes using the traditional techniques given in these pages.

The best way to use this book is to go through it, page by page, studying each of the ideas and practicing each of the techniques as they come up. Let me make clear at the outset that this course will not teach "Black Magick." You will not be required to do anything contrary to your moral or ethical values. You will not be "summoning up" any demons, devils or evil entities.

Some people who are Pagans, Wiccans or Witches frequently criticize those who claim to be Ceremonial Magicians by saying that all they do is talk and read. They claim that "Magicians don't do much Magick." Unfortunately, I find myself in total agreement with them. But if you follow the instructions on the following pages, step by step, you will be that unique and rare individual—a practicing Ritual Magician.

—Donald Michael Kraig

Lesson

1

GETTING STARTED

I want to start by telling you that all of the "fairy tales" and stories about the powers of wizards, Witches and magicians are true! But, unfortunately, only in part. However, it is possible to create spells to bring yourself money, love, wisdom, contentment and more.

You must understand, though, that unlike the magick in fairy tales and in movies, most real magick does not occur instantaneously. As an example, if you worked a ritual to bring you money, it may take a week or two for the money to arrive. When it does arrive, it would come only by natural means. But, if you properly perform your ritual, come it must!

No one can give you magickal powers.
You have to earn them.
There is only one way to do this:
Practice! Practice! Practice!

You should also keep a record of your practices, experiences, thoughts and dreams. This should be done in two separate records or diaries.

THE DREAM DIARY

Starting right now, today, you should start keeping a diary of your dreams. When you dream (and everybody does dream), one of four things may occur:

1. Astral Work. When doing astral work, you are learning lessons toward your spiritual, psychical and magickal development as well as practicing these lessons. This occurs on what is called the "astral plane." You will learn more about the Kabalistic and magickal interpretation of the astral plane in later lessons.

2. Psychological Messages. Many times your subconscious needs to tell your conscious something, but your conscious refuses to listen! In some dreams the subconscious sends a message, in symbols, to the conscious. This is a basis for Freudian analysis.

3. Play. The mind, at rest, may wander aimlessly and meaninglessly, sending any sort of beautiful or bizarre pictures to your conscious.

4. A combination of the above.

If you have never kept a diary of your dreams, you will find that it is easy. Simply get a pad of paper and leave it with a pencil or pen by your bed at night. When you first wake up in the morning, write down what you remember. If you remember nothing, the entry in your diary may read: "I did not choose to remember my dreams," and that is okay. At first you may only remember a small amount, perhaps only one event or feeling. Within a month of steady practice, you will have trouble keeping your entries to less than a page.

Also, obtain a nice blank book or binder with blank paper into which you should transfer your abbreviated notes from the bedside pad. Unless your handwriting is very legible, print your entry from the pad of paper by your bed into the new book. This will take a little longer, but in years to come it will be much easier to read. Be sure to date each entry.

In the previous paragraph you will note that I talked about reading the diary in years to come. This overview attitude is quite important. Do not, at this point, try to analyze each dream. Chances are you will not be able at this time to tell which of the four types of dreams mentioned earlier you are having. Instead, look for repeated images or changes you have had in recurring dreams. Please, please, please stay away from all of those ridiculous "meanings of your dreams" books!

Let me give you an example of how this diary can be important for you. One of my students had frequent dreams of being chased by soldiers and running and hiding. She had dreams such as these several times a month, and would wake up in a cold sweat, terrified.

For her, the dream was a version of events which actually happened to her in her early life.

But after practicing some of the protection rituals from these lessons, her dreams, she told me, began to change. She no longer would hide and almost be discovered and raped. Instead, she would make her escape. For her, an old mental block which manifested in a fear of men and sex was broken down. Her relationship with her boyfriend improved as she felt more secure. This was represented by the change in her recurring dream. Similarly, you may be able to see positive changes occur in your life by being able to observe the changes in your dreams over time.

THE RITUAL DIARY

Starting later in this lesson you will be given rituals to perform at least once daily. They should never take more than half an hour while you are learning them, and much less time when they are memorized. In another book you should keep a ritual diary. On the following page is a suggested format for your diary, and you may wish to make copies of this page and place them in a binder, then simply fill one out each day.

All of the data listed is important, and you should not leave out any aspect for each of your entries. In the future you will be able to see what conditions give you the greatest success when doing magick. Some people are most successful when they are happy and it is a warm night. Others have their greatest success when they are depressed and it is raining. Together, your ritual diary and dream diary become your own personal secret magickal text which is really only good for you.

By Phase of Moon, I mean Full, Waning or Waxing. This information can be obtained from a local paper or astrological calendar.* By Weather Conditions, I mean rainy, cloudy, hot, muggy, warm, cold, etc. By Emotions, I mean happy, sad, depressed, etc. By Performance, I mean was it done well? fair? poorly? etc. By Results, I mean how do you feel? What did you experience? etc. You may also want to add comments to this section at a later date, in which case you should date the addition.

---

* See Llewellyn's Moon Sign Book or Astrological Calendar.

DATE: DAY: TIME:

Phase of Moon:

Weather Conditions:

Emotions:

Physical Condition:

Name of Rituals Performed:

Performance:

Results:

Oh, one last thing about rituals at this time. No, you should not do the ritual seven times in one day and forget doing them for the rest of the week. You may do them more often than once a day, but you should do them at least once every day.

As a result of giving these lessons many times, I realize that some of you will do no more than read this book. Many more people study occultism than practice it. If you are really interested in learning how to do magick, I strongly suggest that before the seventh or eighth lesson you read at least one other book. Many books will be suggested in the bibliography which follows each lesson. You may select any of those books, or you may choose any book concerned with the Kabalah, the Tarot or Magick. The purpose of this is twofold:

1. So you get a slightly different view of the subject matter. I make no claim to being a guru or divine master. Studying the same subjects from a different point of view will be good for you.

2. So you can get a more in-depth study of a particular subject which interests you.

You do not need to buy a book. You can get it from the library, borrow it from a friend, or even pick one from your personal collection of books. In fact, it could be a book you have already read. It would be a good idea to keep a record of your readings, too. List the book's title and author, the date you completed it, and any comments you may have on the book.

Now, before giving you your first ritual, I want to tell you about the one thing which you should have in order to gain the most from this book: a Tarot deck. While this is not primarily a course in the Tarot, the Tarot does play a very important part in the study—a part not limited to "giving readings."

The best decks for use in this course are:
The Golden Dawn Tarot
The B.O.T.A. Tarot
The Hermetic Tarot

Acceptable decks for this course include:
The Rider-Waite (or Albano Waite) Tarot
Tarot decks based on the Rider Waite, such as:
Aquarian Tarot, Morgan-Greer Tarot, Royal Fez Moroccan Tarot, and many others.

Earlier Tarot decks (such as the IJJ Swiss deck) which are "standard," having 22 Major Arcana cards and 56 Minor Arcana cards for a total of 78 cards.

Decks not acceptable for this course include:

The Crowley Thoth deck, which is an excellent deck but too complex in symbolism for beginners. If you are not a beginner in working with the Tarot and you really like the Thoth deck, go ahead and use it. If you are not familiar with this deck, avoid it for now.

Under no circumstances should you use a "non-standard" deck; that is, a deck with more or less than 78 cards as described above. This would include the Secret Dakini Oracle, I Ching cards, Gypsy Witch fortunetelling cards, and many others. This is not to say that these decks are bad or wrong, only that they do not go with these lessons.

Tarot decks can be purchased at most major bookstores; however I suggest that you patronize metaphysical bookstores or occult supply shops.* The people who work there are generally far more knowledgeable, friendly and helpful than those at a general bookstore.

On the next page is your first ritual. Remember, it should be practiced at least once a day. You may have learned the ritual elsewhere. Many groups, organizations and even doctors and psychological therapists teach forms of it. But although it is simple, do not underestimate its importance! Walking seems simple now, but it was very difficult for you to learn—and you had to learn it before you could learn to run. This ritual will be used to prepare for every magickal ritual in this entire course.

---

* Most of these decks are available from Llewellyn Publications.

THE RELAXATION RITUAL

STEP ONE. Sit or lay in a place where you will not be disturbed for at least five minutes. Remember to unplug the telephone. Get comfortable. If you are sitting, your back should be straight. Whether sitting or lying down, your legs and arms should not be crossed. If sitting, rest your hands, palms down, in your lap. Your eyes should be closed.

STEP TWO. Visualize a golden ball of beautiful, warm light surrounding your feet. If you cannot "see" the ball of light when you visualize it, that is okay. Just know that it is there. Truly know that if your powers of visualization were different you would be able to see it. The ball of golden warm light always brings peace and total relaxation. Wherever the ball of light goes, tension departs. Let it go, and as it goes, feel your feet filled with the warm, golden glow of peace and total relaxation.

STEP THREE. Now allow this ball of light to rise up your legs and up your torso. Then allow it to go down your arms to your fingers, and finally up your neck and into your head until you are completely covered with the warm, golden glow of total peace and relaxation, and all tension is gone. If you notice tension anywhere, send the ball of light there and the tension will vanish.

STEP FOUR. Stay in this state of deep relaxation for a few moments. Know that you can return to this state whenever you like simply by doing the relaxation ritual. If you are having trouble sleeping, try this ritual when you lay down at night instead of suffering or taking dangerous pills. Be at one with yourself.

STEP FIVE. When you are ready to come out of this state of deep relaxation, take three deep breaths and feel fresh life and energy coming into your body with each breath. Be sure to record your experience in your ritual diary.

Now, before going further, spend a few days getting used to keeping your diaries, doing the ritual and obtaining a Tarot deck if you do not already have one. A few of my students have related to me that someone told them that the only way to get a Tarot deck is to have a friend give it to you. This is utter nonsense. Find a deck you like and buy it if you do not have one at present.

WHAT IS MAGICK?

In the first few pages we have already covered a great deal of material. We discussed dreams, ritual work, gave you a ritual to do daily, and told you how to keep a record of your work. This was to get you started on Practical Work as opposed to theoretical knowledge. The assumption was made, however, that you have a basic idea of exactly what magick is. But your definition may not be the same as mine, so let us now try to come to a workable definition of magick.

According to the famous occultist Aleister Crowley, magick is "the Science and Art of causing Change to occur in conformity with Will." Crowley was a member of the famous Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, which was mentioned earlier. Another member of the Golden Dawn was Dion Fortune. Her definition of magick was the same as Crowley's, except that she considered the "change" to be a change in consciousness (Note: Fortune was a lay psychologist with several books on psychology to her credit under her real name, Violet Firth).

But what exactly do these definitions mean? Let's say that you do a magickal ritual to get fifty dollars. It, therefore, is your "Will" to get the money. You go out for a walk, and although when walking it is your habit to go right at a particular street corner, something makes you decide to turn to the left. A block down this street you meet an old friend who returns the fifty dollars you had loaned him several months ago.

What made you turn left? According to Crowley's definition, your magickal ritual would have caused some change in the physical world which resulted in your turning in an unusual direction. Perhaps it was a smell, or a telepathic message from your friend or from a higher entity telling you to "turn left!" If you ascribe to Dion Fortune's definition, then you would say that your ritual made a change in your consciousness which gave you the information to turn to the left instead of the right.

In either case, three things are apparent:

1. No matter which definition you use, the actual result is the same.

2. The result functions as if there had been a change in the physical world, regardless of whether there had been a change in the physical world or just a change in your consciousness.

3. Magick works.

Unfortunately, either definition is still too broad. If you cause a change in conformity with Will and call it "magick," then almost anything you do is a magickal act. If it is your will to open a door, then you turn the knob and open the door, by the above definitions you have done a magickal act. In fact, Crowley (his name rhymes with "holy") says that "every intentional act is a Magickal Act." If you follow his line of reasoning there is a great deal of validity in what he says, although it is not what we are seeking at this time. We need to make the definition of magick a bit longer: Magick is the science and art of causing change (in consciousness) to occur in conformity with will, using means not currently understood by traditional Western science.

We have added the idea that the magick is accomplished by some means not known by modern science. A ritual which causes something to occur does not make sense to current Western scientific thought. Therefore, "scientists" are inclined to think that real magick, since it doesn't fit into their world view, is nothing more than supernatural hokum. But, magick is not supernatural.

If our entire universe came about either as the creation of an intelligent being or beings, or merely as the result of chance events, we still must come to the same conclusion: everything in the universe is natural! Some ancient cultures considered the apparent rise and fall of the Sun to be a supernatural event. As time passed, it was discovered that the seeming rise and fall of the Sun was, in fact, a natural event, caused by the rotation of the Earth.

I am firmly convinced that one day magick will be understood in Western scientific terms. History proves this. Reading, writing, mathematics, astronomy, chemistry, medicine, physics and more were all at one time deep occult secrets. Today, many of these things are taught to children before they begin school. The occultism of the past becomes the science of the future. Arthur C. Clarke, the famous science fiction writer and author of 2001: A Space Odyssey, said that any sufficiently advanced technology will appear to be magick to those with lesser technologies. I totally concur.

In a sense, then, you are now a scientist of the future. That is why you should follow what is called "the scientific method." This method tries to control all variables in experiments and keeps accurate records of those experiments. This is why your diary is so important. It will show how variables (weather, emotions, etc.) affect your experiments (rituals). I cannot overstress the importance of keeping your magickal and dream diaries.

We now have a definition of magick which is far more specific than either Crowley's or Fortune's. Since the results are the same, by the way, I will be dropping Fortune's "in consciousness" from the definition. But the definition we have so far is still not precise enough for our purposes. We have to add to our definition the goal or result of the magick.

I divide magick into three categories. It is important to note that these categories are used in this book. Other people differ as to their definition of the different types of magick. Some use fewer categories, others more. Here are the descriptions of each category.

White Magick. In Eastern cultures, White Magick is known as yoga. When most people speak of yoga, what they really mean is Hatha Yoga. Hatha Yoga involves the stretching of the body in order to prepare it for true yoga. The word "yoga" comes from the Sanskrit root yug which means yoke or union. This "union" of true yoga is where you unite with, or yoke yourself to, your higher self or with God. White Magick, sometimes called mysticism, is the yoga of the West. It has a variety of names including cosmic consciousness, the Knowledge and Conversation of your Holy Guardian Angel, realization of Self, and more. We will use the expression used by the Golden Dawn, which gives us the following definition of White Magick:

> White Magick is the science and art of causing change to occur in conformity with will, using means not currently understood by traditional Western science, for the purpose of obtaining the Knowledge and Conversation of your Holy Guardian Angel.

Black Magick. This category of magick has an easy definition which needs little or no explanation:

> Black Magick is the science and art of causing change to occur in conformity with will, using means not currently understood by > traditional Western science, for the purpose of causing either physical or non-physical harm to yourself or others, and is done either consciously or unconsciously.

I will be discussing Black Magick only from the standpoint of how to avoid accidentally (or purposely) becoming a black magick practitioner.

Grey Magick. Grey is a mixture of white and black. Grey Magick an become either white or black (or remain grey) as we shall see. Here is the definition:

> Grey Magick is the science and art of causing change to occur in conformity with will, using means not currently understood by traditional Western science, for the purpose of causing either physical or non-physical good to yourself or others, and is done either consciously or unconsciously.

Let us say that you do a spell to help a friend regain her health. By definition, this is Grey Magick because you are doing something for the physical good of another person. However, because you did the Grey Magick to help another, you end up feeling that you are closer to Divinity, closer to the Knowledge and Conversation of your Holy Guardian Angel. Thus, it is also White Magick.

On the other hand, let us say that you did a ritual to obtain a thousand dollars. Unlike some philosophies, the traditions of magick hold that there is nothing wrong with using magickal abilities to advance yourself in this world. Yes, it is perfectly fine to use your magickal abilities and knowledge to get ahead on this physical plane, to get money, friends, love and fame. But. . . let us assume that after doing your ritual to obtain the thousand dollars your uncle dies in a car crash and leaves you a thousand dollars in his will. Yes, you have attained your end, but you have done it using Black Magick; you have indirectly (or perhaps we could say directly) killed a person.

Some of you may even be thinking now, "Well, so what? I got the money I wanted." Yes, this is true. But there is always a price to pay. "As you sow, so shall ye reap." If you have caused evil, if you have been a source of spiritual darkness, it will surely return to you. In many Wiccan traditions it is believed that what you do will return to you three-fold. Those doing Black Magick always have a heavy price to pay.

I have a friend named Robin who used to be a Satanist and a black magician. She told me that she could always tell when a curse or black magick spell she had worked had come to fruition because something unfortunate would happen to her! This is not meant to be a lecture telling you that you should never do Black Magick. Rather, it is intended to show you what to expect if you try. Just as there is a law of gravity, so too is there a an inviolable law of what is called in the East, Karma, and by Kabalists Tikune (pronounced tee-koon). Put out good and you will receive good. Put out evil, even unintentionally, and evil is what you will get. Such is the law.

So how can you avoid falling into the pit of the black magician? First, by practicing White Magick. This is why the first part of this course is only involved in teaching White Magick. Do not ignore this work, as this course is cumulative. Your development as a powerful (grey) magician and what happens in the future in this course is dependent upon what you are doing now. Second, before doing any Grey Magick you should always do a divination to determine the effect and the outcome of your magick. This is a reason why learning the Tarot or some other divinatory system is important.

On the following pages you will discover meanings of the 22 Major Arcana cards of the Tarot. An "R" is followed by the meaning of the card if it appears reversed (the picture is upside down) to you. There are no such things as the "True Meanings" of the cards. The meanings here are based upon the teachings of the occultists and Kabalists A.E. Waite and S.L. MacGregor Mathers.

For the next few days you should become familiar with the deck and the definitions given here for the Major Arcana. For the time being, ignore any instruction books on the Tarot which you may have or which were included with the deck. Later, you can add to the system given here from information learned elsewhere. Using the cards for divination purposes will be explained in the next part of this lesson.

In the meantime, continue your diaries and the relaxation ritual, but after that ritual add the following:

THE TAROT CONTEMPLATION RITUAL

STEP ONE. Remove the 22 cards of the Major Arcana. Take from the 22 cards (which should be numbered from 0 to 21) the cards numbered 6, 7, 10, 13, 15, and 18. These will not be used at this time, so put them with the remainder of the deck. Keep the remaining cards of the Major Arcana with you while you perform the relaxation ritual.

STEP TWO. Immediately after completing the relaxation ritual, take the 16 cards which remain from the Major Arcana and mix them up (shuffle them) in any manner you desire until you feel it is time to stop.

STEP THREE. Select any one card and look at the picture on it for no more than three minutes.

STEP FOUR. Take three deep breaths and the Tarot contemplation ritual is complete.

STEP FIVE. Record the card name and number in your magickal diary. Also record any feelings, sensations or ideas you received while looking at (contemplating) the card.

TAROT DIVINATORY MEANINGS—THE MAJOR ARCANA

0 FOOL: Folly, foolishness, extravagance. (R) Hesitation, carelessness, trouble from ignoring foolishness.

1 MAGICIAN: Skills, will power, self-confidence. (R) Wrong use of same, conceit, lack of skill.

2 HIGH PRIESTESS: Science, education, knowledge. (R) Ignorance, superficial knowledge.

3 EMPRESS: Fruitfulness, action, creativity. (R) Inaction due to vacillation, losing power.

4 EMPEROR: Power, effectiveness, reason. (R) Immature emotions, obstructions to plans.

5 HIEROPHANT: Mercy and goodness, a person who shows these qualities. (R) Overkindness, weakness.

6 LOVERS: A test which you will pass, a new love. (R) A failed test, lost love.

7 CHARIOT: Triumph, overcoming obstacles. (R) Defeat, obstacles overcome you.

8 STRENGTH: Spiritual power. (R) Physical power.

9 HERMIT: Caution or spiritual advancement. (R) Fear, overly cautious, unwise acts.

10 WHEEL OF FORTUNE: Good fortune, success, luck. (R) Bad luck, ill fortune.

11 JUSTICE: Balance, justice, equilibrium. (R) Imbalance, bigotry, bias.

12 HANGED MAN: Wisdom as a result of self-sacrifice. (R) Selfishness, trying to fit in with the crowd.

13 DEATH: An evolutionary change or transformation. (R) Stagnation.

14 TEMPERANCE: Combine or unite seemingly unlike things, moderation. (R) Clashing interests.

15 DEVIL: Something must happen, but in the long run it is for the good. (R) Something must happen, but for evil.

16 TOWER: Ruin, catastrophe, disruption. (R) The same, but to a lesser degree.

17 STAR: Hope and a bright future. (R) Expectations disappointed, barrenness.

18 MOON: Deception, hidden enemies. (R) Deceptions only slight.

19 SUN: Happiness and contentment. (R) The same, but to a lesser degree.

20 JUDGEMENT: Renewal, rebirths. (R) Setbacks and delays.

21 UNIVERSE: Assured success, completion. (R) Failure, inertia, evil reward.

PART TWO

In this part I will be discussing the history of the Tarot and how to do a divination using the Tarot. Remember, becoming proficient in a divination system is necessary to prevent Grey Magick from becoming Black Magick. That is why this study is very important.

First, though, you might wonder why you should study the Tarot and not some other system. Perhaps you are already familiar with the Yi King (I Ching) or crystal gazing or astrological prediction. All of these systems, in fact, are excellent. Aleister Crowley used the Yi King far more often than the Tarot. But as you will see, in this book we will be using the Tarot for reasons other than just divinatory purposes. And it is my belief that the more you use the Tarot in any way, the more easily you will become proficient in its use in all ways.

You perhaps have heard the expression "World View." The idea behind this expression is that you can have an underlying viewpoint which gives you a way to understand how people, our world and the universe function and interrelate. Some people have a world view based upon politics, religion or various psychological doctrines. Ritual magicians usually have their world view based upon the Kabalah and the Tarot. Thus, the Tarot is already in one of the first rituals given here. As this book progresses, you will see that it plays even more important parts in ritual magick.

There are actually two histories of the Tarot. One is factual, the other is made up of unproven and sometimes absurd theories. One of these unproven theories attributes an Egyptian heritage to the Tarot. A story of the Egyptian theory has it that Thoth, the god who functioned as the scribe to the other Egyptian gods, gave 22 pictures which illustrated great wisdom to the ancient temple mystery cult of Egypt. These pictures were hung on pillars in a temple underneath and between the legs of the famous Sphinx near the Great Pyramid of Cheops (Khufu). An initiate into the mysteries would be led between the pillars and would have the meanings of the pictures explained to him by the initiator. From there the initiate would go via an underground passageway to the Great Pyramid wherein he would receive full initiation. Unfortunately, there is no proof that this exact type of initiation ever took place.

Another story has it that a group of wise scholars, knowing that the famous library of Alexandria was going to be destroyed, met in the city of Fez, Morocco, to decide what to do. Some versions of this story say that the meeting was held after the destruction. One version of this story continues by saying that these scholars came from many lands and did not have a common language. Scholar-artists created a symbolic language with which they could communicate. The Tarot is a descendant of that artwork. Another version says that the wise men decided to make one great book containing all of the important wisdom of the world which otherwise would be lost in the destruction of the library. In order that this great book would not also be destroyed, they decided to keep it hidden in the form of a gambling game, realizing that although humanity's search for wisdom might die, its thirst for quick gain and its lower nature would never disappear. Thus, according to these stories, was the Tarot born.

Again, there is no proof that any of these stories is in any way factual.

There are many other stories as to where the Tarot cards may have come. Some versions say that the Tarot was brought out of Egypt by the Gypsies. Note that the word "Gypsy" is derived from the word "Egyptian." Other stories, which do have a bit of possibility to them, have the Tarot developing out of gaming or fortune-telling systems from India or China. There is, however, no proof that any of these stories are true.

We do have historical records of the following facts:

1. The first mention of the Tarot was made in 1332 by Alphonse XI, king of Leon and Castile. He banned them along with other gambling games.
2. In 1337, Johannes, a German monk, wrote that they "could be used to teach morality."
3. In 1392, Charles VI of France bought three sets of the Major Arcana from a man named Grigonneur.
4. By the 1400s, the Italian version, known as the Tarocchino, had over 100 cards including the Zodiac and the so-called Christian virtues.

Thus, the early 14th century is the earliest we can positively date the beginning of the Tarot. At that time, as now, there was a great deal of non-standardization. At least one deck had over 140 cards! Tarot decks were used for gambling and instruction of the young (especially those who had not been taught how to read), but by the 1800s, the Tarot was used almost exclusively for fortunetelling. Most decks used at this time were based upon the deck of Charles VI, now known as the Grigonneur deck. One variation of this deck is the Visconti pack; another is the Marseilles Tarot.

The Golden Dawn made extensive use of the Tarot, and as already mentioned, we will be learning some of the more esoteric uses of the Tarot later in this book. A.E. Waite and Pamela Coleman Smith, both members of the Golden Dawn, designed what is today's most popular deck, the so-called Rider-Waite Tarot. When it was first released in 1910, it caught on very quickly because it marked the first time that a Tarot deck had been simultaneously published with a book explaining how to use the deck. In this instance, the book was Waite's Pictorial Key to the Tarot. Of all of Waite's ponderously written tomes, this is the easiest to read.

The "correct" version of the Tarot (their own version) was considered to be an important secret of the Golden dawn. Waite, who had taken solemn vows not to reveal the inner secrets of the Golden Dawn, kept his word. Many of his cards are designed with incorrect symbolism (compared to the Golden Dawn version) in order to fool the uninitiated.

Today, there are many decks based upon Waite's designs. More "original decks" (which are actually based on Waite's and Smith's art) are popping up almost every day. And all of these decks, according to the Golden Dawn tradition, are symbolically wrong. However, because of their massive use and popularity, they have developed a validity of their own, different though it may be from the Golden Dawn tradition.

Other members of the Golden Dawn who designed Tarot decks include Aleister Crowley (Thoth deck), who mixed the Golden Dawn ideas with his own system of Egyptian, Sumerian and Tantric occultism (plus a good dose of perverse humor), and Paul Foster Case. Case's B.O.T.A. deck, which gives a version that seems halfway between the Golden Dawn deck and Waite's deck, was the first public revelation of the Golden Dawn attributions of the Hebrew alphabet with the Major Arcana cards.

A few years ago a deck came out called the Golden Dawn deck. Although it is the deck recommended for this course, I would like to point out that the artist, Wang, made some glaring errors and omissions. There is not enough space to list them here, but if you are interested in discovering the errors, I suggest comparing Wang's designs with the descriptions as printed in Regardie's book, The Golden Dawn. Still, it is the most symbolically correct deck (in a Golden Dawn sense) on the market.

I know some people who claim to be occultists and who collect tarot decks. Their collection, in fact, is their only claim to knowing about the occult. But some decks which they collect are so distant from anything which could be called "metaphysical" that I wonder about their brand of occultism. One deck I saw has each card drawn by a different artist. Even though it is based on Waite's deck, it gets so silly that it even uses popular cartoon characters on them! Another deck, called the Tarot of the Witches, (certainly an insult to most if not all Witches) was designed for a James Bond movie.

In summary, there is no proof that the Tarot came from a single ancient source in Egypt, China, India or anyplace else. That they were first introduced into Europe in the early 14th century is known, but where they originally came from is one of the great unprovable (at this time) mysteries of the universe.

Now, I would like to give my unprovable guess as to how the cards developed. It is known that both India and China did have gaming systems which, to a minor extent, resembled a pack of cards. Although unprovable, I maintain that it is likely that a traveler going from one of those countries to the Middle East, or perhaps a trader from the Middle East who went to India or China, somehow left one of these systems, or a version of it, in one of the Middle Eastern countries. Then, during one of the Crusades, a knight brought back one of these proto-decks and gave it to his lord or king.

Next, that lord or king, in a display of egotistical vanity ("I've got something you don't have!") showed it to a peer, another lord or king. That second person decided to have it duplicated. Or, in a similar manner, the artist of one lord showed it to the artist of another lord, and the second artist either made a direct copy or made a version from memory. Moving from lord to lord, from king to king, the Tarot evolved.

There were, at that time, artist guilds which, like masons, may have included some form of mystical knowledge. Certainly many artists then, before then, and now were interested in the relationship between humanity and the divine. One of these artists could have added some mysticism in the Tarot art, and another could have added more. This progressed until we have the Tarot as it exists today.

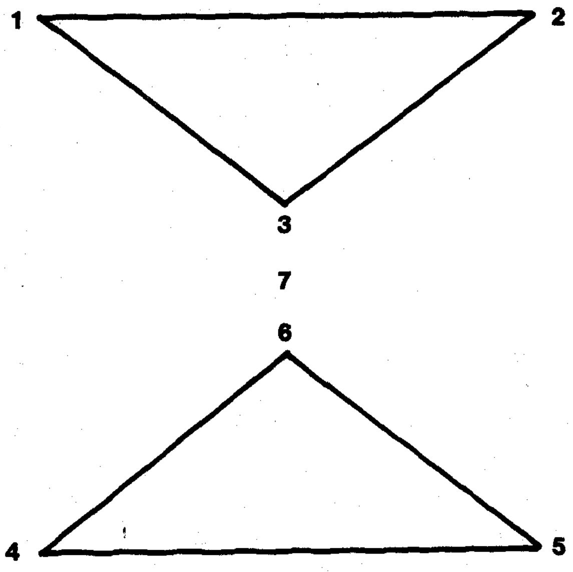
But the most important question is, "Does it matter where or how the Tarot developed?" To this there must be a loud "NO!" in answer, for the tarot's use as a powerful mystical and magickal tool has been proven over the past several centuries.

It is important to understand the difference between fortunetelling and divination. Fortunetelling says that something must happen. Divination, such as with the Tarot cards, never says what must happen, it only indicates what will probably happen if you continue on the path you are currently traversing.

According to this view, you have the freedom to insure something happens or prevent it from occurring. You have free will and the choice is always up to you. Fortunetelling would say that, as an example, you will have an accident on a boat on a specific date. Divination would tell you that a boat trip at that time could cause problems, and you are advised to stay away from boats. You can then either avoid the boat trip or be extra careful when on the boat. Fortunetelling says you have no choice; you will be on a boat at that time and you will have an accident. Divination says you have free will: you can move to the desert, or at least you can stay away from boats. In this book we strongly affirm free will, not predestination.

There is another reason, a very practical reason, for doing divination and not fortunetelling. In many states, counties and cities, fortunetelling for money is not legal. If you decide to become involved with giving readings for people and intend to charge for them, I advise calling what you are doing psychological counseling, divination or, if you obtain a ministerial certificate, spiritual or religious counseling.

On the following pages I will give a method for doing a divination using just the major arcana cards. I will note here that a good reading can be given using only these 22 cards. They tend to represent changing forces rather than the more static forces represented by the minor arcana. Using the minor arcana can give more detail, but using just the major arcana can give you more information on how things are changing or will change in your life.



The Split Hexagram Spread

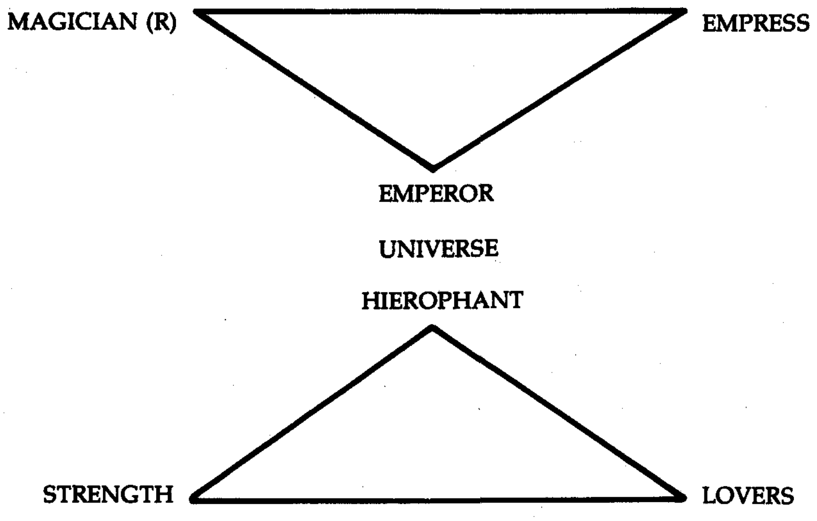
In the diagram can be seen two triangles (the "split hexagram") with an extra card between them. The upper triangle represents spiritual forces being brought down to a physical plane. The lower triangle shows conscious and unconscious desires and what is truly wanted or needed. The card in the center represents the final outcome of the matter under question. Here are step-by-step instructions on how to use this Tarot "spread" (layout) to determine the outcome of Grey Magick. This reading may be used for many purposes.

1. Set up the major arcana cards in a packet so that they are all facing one direction in numerical order. If they are face down they should have the card entitled The Fool at the top of the pack. The 21 card, the Universe (or World), should be at the bottom.
2. Now, formulate your question. It should be in the style of, "What will be the outcome if I use magick to ______________?" Do not ask the cards, "Should I do such-and-such?" as this puts the responsibility for your actions on the cards rather than on you. You should be seeking advice, not asking a pseudo-mommy for instructions.
3. While concentrating on your question, mix up the cards in any manner or fashion you desire. Continue to do so until you get a "feeling" that it is time to stop. Make sure that some of the cards are mixed end for end, too.
4. Cut the cards into three piles to your left. Pick up the piles from right to left.
5. Lay the cards, face down, on your table in the order shown in the diagram. The first three cards make up the upper, downward pointing triangle. Cards 4, 5 and 6 make up the lower, upward pointing triangle. The 7th cards goes in the middle, between the two triangles.
6. Turn over cards in the positions 1 and 2. Both positions represent unknown spiritual influences. Card 2 will have a stronger effect on you than does card 1. Interpret these two cards.
7. Turn over the card in position 3. This represents spiritual advice for the matter. Interpret this card.

8. Turn over card 4. This card represents your unconscious desires in the matter. You may find that your real inner reason has no relation to your outer reason. Interpret this card.
9. Turn over card 5. This card represents your conscious desires in the matter. Interpret this card.
10. Now turn over card 6. This card will indicate practical advice in the matter. It may suggest changing your focus in order to achieve what you really want. It may advise you to go ahead or abandon the project. Of course, whether you continue with the project or not is up to you.
11. Turn over card 7. This is the final outcome if you go ahead at this time. Even if the reading so far has been positive, the outcome may be negative. This is because there may be other considerations which this short reading does not take into account. The Split Hexagram spread is a quick and easy method, but it is not intended to be totally and fully complete. It should be enough, however, to get you through the course of lessons in this book.

Let's look now at a sample reading:

I mix up the cards while thinking, "What will be the outcome if I use magick to bring a new love into my life?" After cutting the cards and laying the spread, the cards are as follows:



My interpretation is as follows:

Cards 1 and 2 indicate that this act would lead to great creativity (Empress) even though it could be seen as a wrongful use of magickal abilities (Magician (R)).

Card 3 indicates that it could lead to power and effectiveness (Emperor).

Card 4 indicates that inwardly I seek spiritual power more than just a sex partner (Strength).

Consciously, as card 5 indicates, I really do want a new love relationship (Lovers).

Card 6 gives me the practical advice that magick alone will not be enough to keep a good relationship, and that I must show mercy and goodness (Hierophant).

The Final Outcome, according to card 7, is that if I follow the advice given here, especially in card 6, my success in this matter is assured (Universe).

I would add to this interpretation that as card 6 indicates, I do not just need anybody; rather, I need someone who would enhance my spiritual practices.

The only way to learn the Tarot is to use it constantly. Try memorizing the meanings of the cards, one card per day. Also try giving yourself small readings on a daily basis. However, don't count on the accurateness for at least a month. You were probably not too "accurate" when you first learned to ride a bicycle or drive a car. Be sure to also continue with the Tarot Contemplation Ritual. Doing a reading or a ritual does not overcome the need for doing both.

For the purpose of this course, only the major arcana is important. You will learn more of its importance later. But it is necessary to say a few words about the minor arcana here. For giving general readings to yourself and others, the minor arcana should be brought in, especially for in-depth readings. Since the minor arcana does not play an intrinsic role in this book's study of magick, the minor arcana will be left to other authors.

After studying and practicing the system explained here for at least two months, feel free to study the Tarot on your own. I would add that there is no ultimate, correct meaning for each card. Thus different authors may give different meanings to the same card. Use their ideas to add to what you have learned here. Some suggested books on the Tarot are listed in this lesson's bibliography.

PART THREE

The High Magickal Art is by nature different from certain aspects of other so-called "primitive" forms of magick as practiced by those involved in Witchcraft, Wicca, Voodoo, Brujeria, etc. The word "primitive" is not meant to insult followers of those or similar traditions any more than calling somebody such as Grandma Moses a "primitive artist" is insulting. Rather, it infers older styles and simpler ways. Many people I know who are involved in Wicca and Witchcraft are proud that their tradition is both old and simple.

But the very simplicity of these styles of magick has led to numerous books of spells and incantations, designed for the masses, which are, to a large extent, useless. The number of such books directly related to the Kabalistic Ceremonial Magickal Art are small in number.

One of the big differences is that for many of the "primitive" techniques, all that seems to be necessary is the saying of a brief incantation and the ritual manipulation of a few objects: burning a candle, making a Voodoo vévé and so forth. Sometimes the spells become mutilated over time so that the meanings of the original words become lost and the spell becomes nothing but sounds without any sense. Although this has also happened to some extent with ceremonial magick, a true magician always knows the exact meaning of every word and action of a ritual. This is why so much training, study and practice goes into the making of a magician.

The actual instructions for doing the next ritual which you will learn, The Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram, will be given in the next lesson. Now, at this point there are probably some of you reading this who are groaning and thinking, "But I learned that ritual years ago! Besides, it's so simple." Well, if you think it is simple, you have never done it correctly and with full knowledge of the ritual. It is a basic ritual, but it is not simple. It is short and easy to memorize, but not simple.

According to my dictionary, the word "basic" means "something which forms a base, like a basic ingredient; something that is fundamental." I cannot overstress the fundamental nature of this ritual and how its practice will change your life and improve your psychic and magickal abilities. I have been doing it at least once daily for almost ten years, and I have no desire to stop. It is a basic, short ritual that is necessary to your development as a true Ceremonial Magician.

There are three reasons for doing this ritual. The most important, yet most ethereal, is to Know Yourself. You will learn if you have the strength of will to stick to doing a ritual of this sort on a daily basis. You will develop a different feeling about yourself and your relationship to others and the world around you. It will affect you in many positive but subtle ways.

Secondly, it will expand your aura. This will cause others to like you and respect you more and come to you for comfort. You will realize that this is occurring when people start asking you questions like, "Is that a new dress? Did you lose some weight? Did you get your hair cut?" even though the dress was old, your hair is the same and you haven't lost an ounce. Most people can subconsciously detect the aura and will be able to detect such a change in you. But they do not know that it is the aura which has changed, so they have to come up with something that they are familiar with, something on the physical plane such as your hair, clothes or weight. As your aura expands and brightens, you will also find yourself becoming stronger spiritually and psychologically than you have ever been before.

Thirdly, this ritual (LBRP for short) will remove from your immediate area (banish) any unwanted influences. This includes physical influences and non-physical ones including astral and elemental forces. This is one of the greatest defenses against psychic attack ever. The more you practice the LBRP, the more safe, the more at peace you will become.

The attitude you adopt when you perform this ritual is important. People working with computers say, "garbage in, garbage out." Similarly, you will get out of the ritual exactly what you put into it. Go into this ritual angry and you will come out of it feeling angrier. You should assume an attitude of beauty and joy. Doing the Relaxation Ritual immediately before the LBRP will aid you in achieving the desired state of consciousness.

You should be very positive; sure that when you call on the archangels they will be there, sure that the pentagrams are really there, positive that you are doing the very best you possibly can.

However, you should not "lust for results." Focus on the ritual, not what you expect the result of the ritual to be. If you perform the ritual with complete concentration, you will be successful. If you concentrate on something else, such as what you expect to experience or what you expect as a result of the ritual, you will divide your energies and the ritual will decrease in its effectiveness.

When you perform the ritual, you must understand that you are no longer in your house or apartment or building. Nor are you merely outdoors. Rather, you are in the temple of the gods. You are also in the presence of divinity. Wherever you are, when you do this ritual the area becomes a holy place. You should treat it as such.

Also remember that you are a beginner, a student, a magician-in-training. You are not a high-ranking Magus or Wizard. Therefore, be modest, especially in the presence of the divine.

There are several physical things which you may want to use when you perform the LBRP. However there is only one thing which you must have, and that is a place where you can be alone and undisturbed. To do this ritual requires no more than ten minutes, and once it is memorized even less time is necessary. Make sure you will be undisturbed for this brief length of time. This ritual is not meant for the public's eyes.

Second, it is traditional to have an altar. This can be a small table covered with a black cloth, or the traditional "double cube." A good size for the traditional altar is 36" high by 18" wide by 18" deep. This way you can have an altar that is like two 18" square cubes on top of one another (as above, so below). It also represents the earth plane because the number of sides of this altar which are external (top, bottom, the four sides of the upper cube and the four sides of the lower) equal 10, the number of the Earth according to the Kabalah.

I made my altar in a very easy way. At an unfinished wood store they sell cubes of press board (also known as chip board) that are 18"x18" and have one side open. I simply nailed the two cubes together and added a piece of 18" by 36" plywood (½" thick) to cover the open sides of the cubes. Upon adding several coats of paint (even with a sealer coat, this type of wood seems to drink up paint), and some wheels to make the altar moveable, and I was finished. Traditionally, the altar is painted black to represent the fact that we are far from the true spiritual light which comes from above, even though it is from here that we must begin our starry climb. My first altar, however, was painted white and had on it a beautiful figure of the Tree of Life (more on this figure later) and also the protective Pentagram of Solomon from the book The Goetia. If you decide to make an altar which is not the traditional black double cube, carefully consider the meaning of any symbolism, including color, which you wish to use.

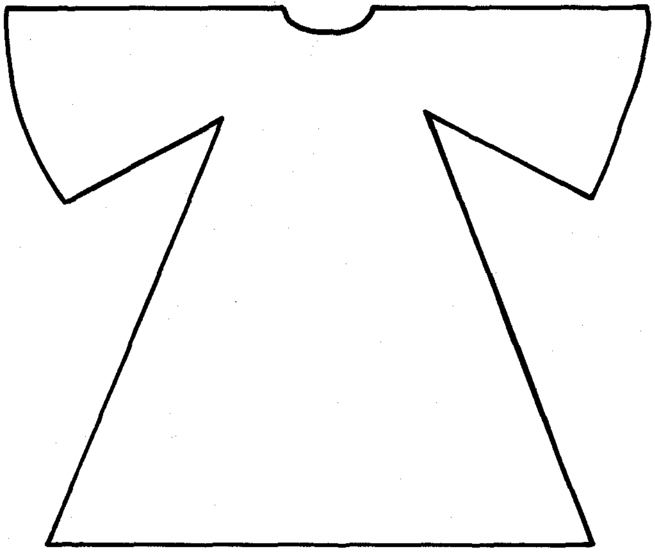
Third, candles are much better than electric light for ritual work. You could have one candle for the altar, and maybe a few more for the room if you are doing the ritual inside. At this time use white candles. These can represent the purity (white) of spiritual energy (fire). Incense is also a nice touch and always adds to ritual work. Incense is said to represent prayers going up to God. At this point, the type of incense is not important. Merely find a scent which you like and use it.

There are four traditional tools or "weapons" used by ceremonial magicians. Details of their construction will be given in later chapters. These tools are the wand, the cup, the dagger and the pentacle. You could also use a paper cup to represent elemental Water, salt (instead of a pentacle) to represent elemental Earth, a match (instead of a wand) to represent elemental Fire, and a feather (instead of a dagger) to represent elemental Air.

Have a symbol for each of the elements on the altar, or have none of them. You should not have an imbalance in the energies the tools represent. If you do have the weapons, the Air symbol should be on the Eastern part of the altar, the Fire symbol to the South, the Water symbol to the West, and the Earth symbol to the North. If you have the tools, they should be wrapped in a piece of silk or cotton when they are not being used: the wand in red, the chalice in blue, the dagger in yellow and the pentacle in black. Sleight-of-hand magicians' supply shops usually have silk handkerchiefs available in these and other colors and shades.

You may also wish to use a bell. This can be used for marking the beginning and end of the ritual, as well as marking off various sections of more complex ceremonies.

Another item to have is the proper clothes. Whereas some spiritual traditions use ritual nudity, Ceremonial Magick has always used special clothes. Traditionally, this is a black or white "Tau" robe, so called because when you hold your arms out to the side it looks like the Greek letter Tau. It is similar to the type of robes worn by people in choirs or angels in films. However, a robe is not necessary. The purpose of putting on a robe is to physically show both your conscious and subconscious that you are no longer in your daily dress. It strongly shows that you are about to do something very special and spiritual. If you do not have access to the things needed to make or obtain a robe, simply go through your closet and find some clothes that you have not worn in a long time, or buy some new clothes. Wash them thoroughly. Now, only wear these clothes when you are going to do ritual work, and never for any other reason. Thus, even though they are ordinary clothes, they become something magickal, and you will know that when you put them on you are going to do something special.

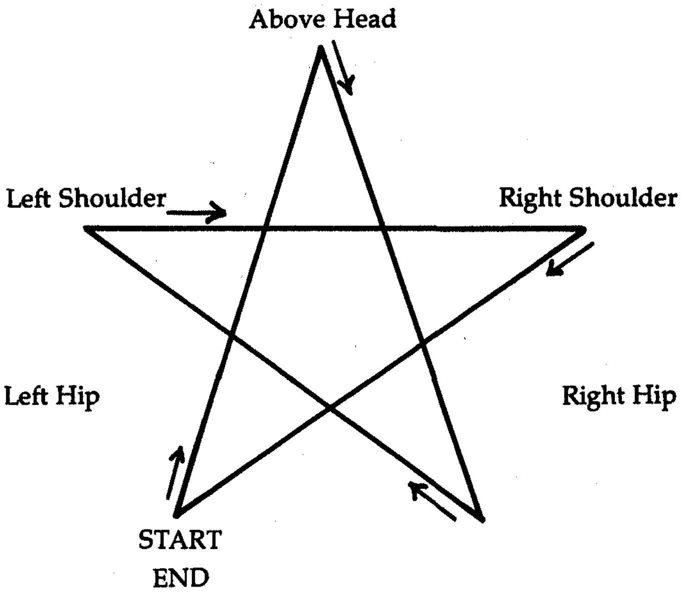


The Tau Robe

I want to make something very clear to you. You must not wait until you have all of your tools to start working on the LBRP. You should start on it as soon as you begin studying it in the next lesson. I am giving you some instructions on the tools you may wish to have so that you can start to gather them now. But, once you get into the instruction on how to do the ritual, begin practicing it immediately. The only thing you need to perform the ritual is space to be alone and undisturbed. This can be obtained by locking yourself into a bathroom if need be! And remember, the more you practice the ritual, the better at it you will be.

In the LBRP you will be making large five-pointed stars, pentagrams, in the air in a specific way. Your left hand should remain at your side. If you have a knife (Not the Air knife. Use another dagger for the LBRP), hold it in your right hand. If not, make a fist and point with the extended index (first) finger. Point outside your left hip. Draw a line up above your head, then move the blade to the outside of your right hip. Next, move your blade so that it is outside your left shoulder, then horizontally across so that it is outside your right shoulder. Finally, move it back to the left hip, ending exactly where you began.

Your finger or the tip of the knife should always be pointing forward, away from you. See the diagram below:



The Banishing (Earth) Pentagram

When you draw the pentagrams you should visualize them as being a very bright and pure blue. It is the same color as you can see in an electric spark, the flame of a gas stove, or when a small dish of lighter fluid or alcohol is set ablaze. If you cannot visualize so well that you can actually "see" the pentagram in flame as you draw it, simply know beyond all doubt that if you had better developed psychic vision you would be able to see it. Know that it is there. "See" the flame follow the tip of your blade or finger as you draw the pentagrams in the air and know the flame is there.

Although an overview of this book is a good idea, when you get into actually doing the work, practice the rituals given so far, and study the material for one month before going on to the next lesson.

REVIEW

The following questions are designed to help you determine if you have mastered the information in Lesson One. Please try to answer them without looking at the text. The answers are in Appendix Two.

1. What are the four things that can occur when you dream?
2. What is your personal, secret, magickal text?
3. Why should you read other books on the Kabalah or Magick?
4. How does Arthur C. Clarke compare magick and technology?
5. Define White Magick, Black Magick and Grey Magick.
6. How can you avoid accidentally doing Black Magick?
7. What is the earliest mention of the Tarot in history?
8. What is the difference between divination and fortunetelling.
9. Give three reasons for doing the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

The following questions only you can answer.

1. Are you keeping dream and ritual diaries?
2. Are you doing the Relaxation Ritual regularly?
3. Are you working with the Tarot?
4. Why do you want to study magick?
5. Do you think you really understand this lesson?

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Bonewitz, P.E.I., Real Magic (revised ed.), Creative Arts, 1979.

Butler, Bill, Dictionary of the Tarot, Schocken, 1975.

Conway, David, Ritual Magic, E.P. Dutton, 1978.

Crowley, Aleister, Book 4, Sangreal, 1972.

Magick in Theory and Practice, Dover, 1976.

Gettings, Fred, Book of Tarot, The, Triune, 1973.

King, Francis, Ritual Magic in England, N.E.L., 1972.

King, Francis and Skinner, Stephen, Techniques of High Magic, Warner Destiny, 1976.

Regardie, Israel, Foundations of Practical Magic, Aquarian, 1979.

Wang, Robert, Qabalistic Tarot, The, Weiser, 1983.

Secret Temple, The, Weiser, 1980.

L•e•s•s•o•n

2

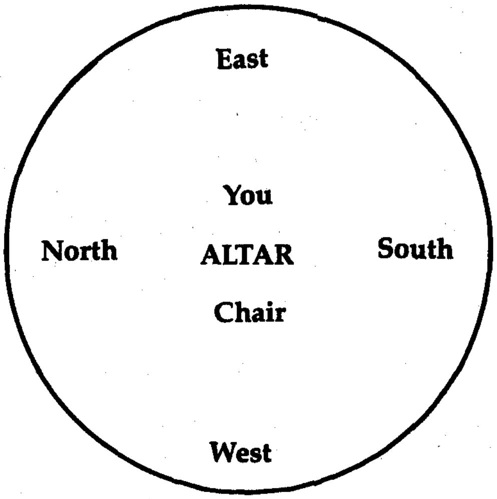
PART ONE

In this part you will receive exact instructions for performing the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram. Before going on in this lesson, go back and review part three of Lesson One. Be sure that you are totally familiar with all of the ideas in that section before proceeding to this section.

THE LESSER BANISHING RITUAL OF THE PENTAGRAM

Preliminaries. Start by going to the area where you will do the ritual. If you have an altar as described in the last lesson, put it in the exact center of your area. To be totally complete, you may wish to take a ritual cleansing bath before the ritual. This type of bath is not intended to merely take the dirt off of your skin. Rather, it cleans negativity and the cares of the day from your spirit. First, take a shower to get the dirt off. Then run a warm bath. Be sure to put in some bath salts or epsom salts with some nicely scented oil or perfume added. Then get in and just soak for a few minutes. Feel all of your cares, worries and negativity going into the water. Now, pull the plug and let the water drain while you stay in the water. As the water slowly drains you will feel all of the negative things which were troubling you go down with the water. After all of the water has drained out of the tub, get out and dry yourself with a clean, fresh towel. Finally, put on your robe or special magickal clothes.

If you have them, put the four tools which represent the magickal elements on top of the altar (or table or chair or floor). Remember, have all of them present or use none of them. Put the Major Arcana cards in a pile on top of the altar, too. Bring a chair into your area so that you can sit. As you can see in the diagram below, you should be facing the east. If you have candles, light them and turn out any electric lights you have burning. Of course, if it is daylight, you will want to pull the drapes or close the curtains, etc. Your goal should be to have the room lit only by candles. Also, light any incense you wish to burn at this time.



Sit in the chair, facing east, and do the Relaxation Ritual. Now stand, still facing east. Take the dagger (not the Air dagger) in your right hand, or point with your finger as described in the last lesson. Know that you are in the presence of God! The ritual has begun!

Part One: The Kabalistic Cross.

STEP ONE. Visualize yourself getting larger and larger, taller and taller, until you tower above the room you are in. Continue this growing visualization until the city you live in is small beneath your feet. See the continent as tiny compared to your majestic body. Now even the Earth is small beneath your feet. However, no matter how small the Earth is, it is still firm and solid beneath your feet, anchoring you to the ground. You will not float away.

Next visualize yourself growing so large that the planets of our solar system are like tiny toy rubber balls spinning near your feet. Soon they are too small to see as even the Milky Way galaxy becomes a small dot of light at your feet. Now visualize a dot of light coming from somewhere far above your head. Know that this is only a tiny bit of the light from this source, and if you saw the full brightness of this light you would immediately be blinded and quite possibly go insane. This tiny bit of the endless, limitless light forms a brilliant white sphere of pulsating light just above your head. It is nine inches in diameter, about the size of a dinner plate. It is brighter than ten thousand suns, but still only a tiny portion of the source of this divine, spiritual wnite light. Point to that sphere above your head with your dagger or finger and "bring it down" (by pointing) to your forehead, just above and between the eyes. Next, visualize this brilliance filling your head with divine light. While pointing to your forehead vibrate: *Ah-TAH (boldfaced syllable denotes emphasis).

STEP TWO. Bring the point of the dagger (or your finger) firmly down your body until you are pointing toward the ground. Your hand with the blade should be covering your groin. As you do this, visualize the light in your head coming down along with the blade (or finger), down through your body and beyond your feet down to eternity. Vibrate: *Mahl-KOOT.

STEP THREE. Now bring the blade up to your right shoulder. As you do this, visualize the beam of white light running down the center of your body form a beam from the heart area out to your right, past the blade at your right shoulder. See this beam of light extend to the end of the universe, and beyond. Focus on this beam and vibrate: *Vih-G'Boo-RAH.

STEP FOUR. Move the point of the blade horizontally to your left shoulder. As you do, visualize the beam of white light now extending through infinite space to your left. As you focus on this beam of light vibrate: *Vih-G'Doo-LAH.

STEP FIVE. Clasp your hands at your chest as if praying. If you are using a dagger, the point should be up, not pointing away from you, nor to the sides or down. Visualize within your chest, at the point covered by your folded hands, a brilliant golden glow. Vibrate: *Lih-Oh-LAHM, Ah-MEN.

The meaning of this first part of the LBRP is as follows: *Ah-TAH means "Thine" in Hebrew. The visualization given above along with the proper pointing of the dagger (or finger) is for the purpose of indicating that you are linking your higher self with the Divine. *Mahl-KOOT means "kingdom," and according to the Kabalah refers to the Earth. That is why you should be pointing down. *Vih-G'Boo-RAH means "and the power" while *Vih-G'Doo-LAH means "and the glory." *Lih-Oh-LAHM means "forever," and *Ah-MEN means, of course, amen (but you will learn the secret meaning of the word "amen" in a later lesson).

Thus, the first part of this ritual translates as "For Thine is the kingdom and the power and glory forever, amen." Does this sound familiar? It should. It is part of the Lord's Prayer. And although this was added to the original text of the prayer as it appears in the Gospels, it does seem to prove that at least some of the early Christians knew the secrets of the Kabalah. Several of the words used here refer directly to the symbol of primary import in the Kabalah, the Tree of Life.

There are many variations on this part of the ritual. The Golden Dawn in Step Two above pointed to the chest. Thelemites, those who follow the teachings of Aleister Crowley, point to the chest between Steps One and Two above, and vibrate the name "Aiwass" at that point. Aiwass, Crowley believed, was the name of his (Crowley's) Holy Guardian Angel and was an extra-terrestrial intelligence. Alex Sanders, founder of the Alexandrian system of Wicca, at Step One above, vibrates "Kether" and in Step Two points to the stomach. Instead of AH-MEN, some people prefer AUM or AUMGN or even a combination such as AUM-EN.

As a final note to this section, if you have not figured it out as yet, what you have done is to visualize yourself as the center of the universe with only the divine light coming through you. You may wish to remain in this position for a few minutes to feel its power.

Part Two: The Formulation of the Pentagrams

STEP ONE. Going to your left, move around to the front of your altar, to the edge of the space of your circle so that you are at the east edge of the circle and facing away from the middle of the circle where your altar stands. In other words, you are at the east and facing east. Here, draw a pentagram as was described in the last lesson. Be sure to visualize the figure as a flaming gas-jet blue pentagram as you draw.

STEP TWO. Inhale through the nose. As you do, feel energy flow from the ends of the universe through your nose and body, and down and out of the bottoms of your feet to the center of the Earth. (You are no longer at the center of your magickal circle and, thus, at the center of the universe as in the first part of this ritual.) As you inhale, both hands should be raised to the sides of your head by your ears. The dagger (or right-hand index finger) should be pointing forward. Your left hand (which should have remained at your side until now) is drawn into a similar position by your left ear, the index finger pointing forward, the rest of the fingers closed into a fist.

STEP THREE. Step forward with the left foot. At the same time thrust your hands forward so that they point at the exact middle of the glowing blue pentagram in front of you (this position is known as a "God Form" and is the God Form known as "The Enterer"). As you do this you should exhale and feel the energy come back up your body, out your arms and hands, through the pentagram and to the ends of the universe. You should use the entire exhalation to vibrate the God Name: Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh.

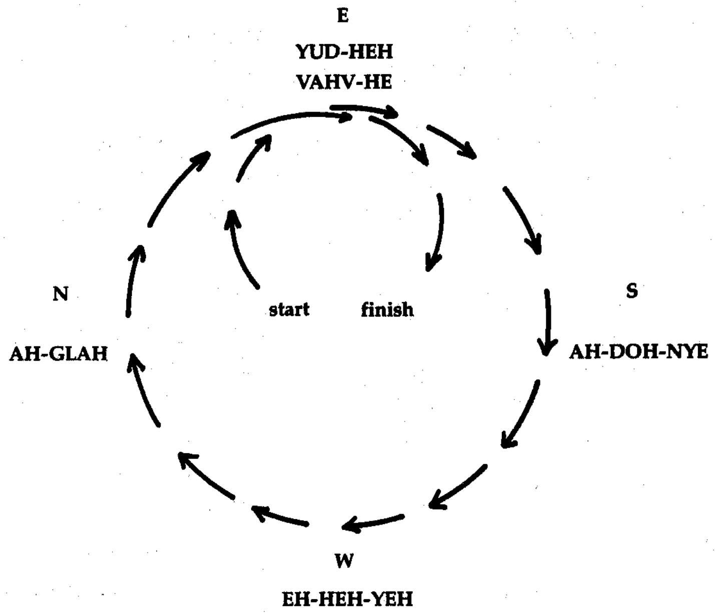
STEP FOUR. Bring your hands back to your ears while bringing your left foot back to its original position. Put your left hand down by your side and point to the center of the pentagram with your right forefinger (or dagger). Now trace a line in the air at the height of the center of the pentagram as you move in a clockwise direction around the edge of your circle's space. You should go 90 degrees so that you end up in the south, facing south. As you trace the line in the air you should visualize a brilliant white light emanating from the tip of your finger or blade. At the South, repeat parts 1 and 2 of Step (a), but vibrate Ah-Doh-NYE.

STEP FIVE. Repeat as above, but move to the west and vibrate: Eh-Heh-YEH.

STEP SIX. Repeat as above, but move to the North and vibrate: AH-Glah.*

STEP SEVEN. Complete the circle by connecting a white line from the North to the East where you began. Then, moving in the same clockwise direction, come back behind the altar and in front of the chair as when you started the ritual. You should once again be facto the east (see the diagram below). Note: If you do not have room for a circle, simply pivot where you stand behind the altar.

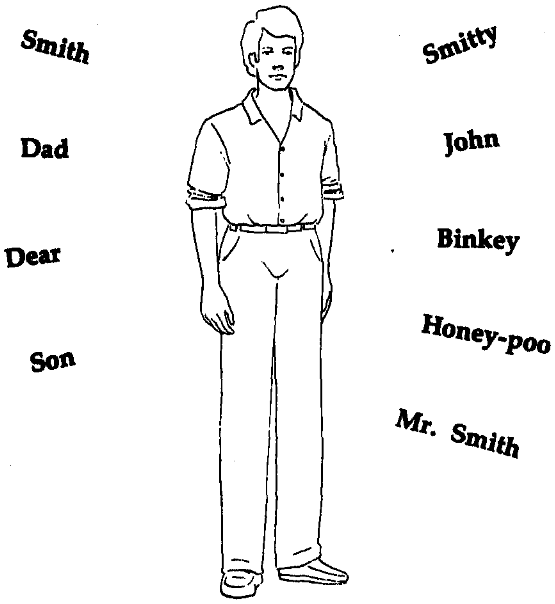


STEP EIGHT. Now visualize the brilliant white circle expanding up and down to form a sphere above, below and all around you. What you have done is create a sphere in brilliant white all around you with electric blue pentagrams at the quarters which have been charged and sealed with names of God.

In most major cities of the United States there are newspapers which are given away (the ads pay all the costs), and they frequently have listings of events going on in the community. As a result of those listings I have twice gone to see Jewish "scholars," who were allegedly Rabbis, talk on the Kabalah. Both times were wastes and showed that these men knew nothing of the Kabalah, or at least thought so little of their audiences that they chose to share none of their knowledge. One even went so far as to tell his primarily Jewish audience to forget about the Kabalah because Jews should only believe in one God and while "the Christians have given us three Gods (referring to the Christian Trinity of God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit), the Kabalists have given us ten (referring to the ten names of God on the Tree of Life). This shows a total lack of understanding which must be cleared up now. Either that or these "scholars" must explain why the most famous and important historical Rabbis, such as Isaac Luria and Baal Shem Tov, were "polytheistic" Kabalists.

The Kabalah is a monotheistic tradition. In the Kabalah, the ultimate divine Source is beyond the comprehension of our mortal minds. But we can know and become in harmony with parts or aspects of the whole. These various aspects are represented by the different God names.

Let's compare this notion of the Divine to a very down-to-earth person whom we'll call John Smith.



1. His mother calls him "son."
2. His wife calls him "dear."
3. His daughter calls him "Daddy."
4. His son calls him "Dad."
5. His boss calls him "Smith."
6. His friends call him "Smitty."
7. His co-workers call him "John."
8. Old friends call him by his childhood nickname, "Binkey."
9. His mistress calls him "Honey-poo."
10. His business customers call him "Mr. Smith."

Thus we have one man with ten names. Further, the names represent the type of relationships people have with him. Imagine what he would think if his wife started to call him "Honey-poo!" Certainly he would take notice if his son, instead of calling him "Dad," said, "Father, there is something I want to talk to you about." In the same way, there are many names for God, but there is only one source of all. We can learn more about that divine Source by learning about those aspects of God which are available to us, that is, by tuning in to what is represented by the names of God.

YUD-HEH-VAHV-HEH is known as the holy, ultimate and unspeakable name of God. Its true pronunciation is unknown. In English we could say that it is formed of the letters Y-H-V-H. Jews never pronounce the word, instead saying Ah-doh-nye. By placing the Hebrew vowels of Ah-doh-nye (which means "my lord") around the four letters which are known as the Tetragrammaton, the word Yahovah or Jehovah is formed. Therefore, to use these "names" shows a total misunderstanding of this holy name. Yahveh or Yahweh is also a misnomer, an attempt to pronounce a word with no vowels. You see, YHVH may merely be an abbreviation for a longer word or a code for other letters. It is possible that some of the letters of this name are doubled. No one knows for sure. YUD-HEH-VAHV-HEH is the English transliteration for how the Hebrew letters, represented by the YHVH, are named. The Y or YUD is said to represent archetypal masculinity (the Taoist Yang or Jungian Animus), and the first H, called the HEH Superior, represents archetypal femininity (the Taoist Yin or the Jungian Anima). The V, called VAHV in Hebrew, looks like an extended YUD (there is a deep, magickal mystery here) and represents physical masculinity, while the last H, the HEH inferior, represents physical femininity. Thus, this ultimate name of God, the Tetragrammaton, the YHVH, says that God is the ultimate unity, a perfect blend of all dualities (as represented by the male-female symbolism) on all planes. Certainly this is not a bad notion of the essence of Divinity.

EH-HEH-YEH means "I am" or "I shall be." It is the name God revealed to Moses at the burning bush. In the story, God tells Moses to go to Egypt and free the Hebrews, to which Moses asks, "Who shall I say sent me?" God's response is "Eh-heh-yeh ah-share Eh-heh-yeh," meaning "I am that I am," or "I shall be that I shall be."

AH-GLAH is how the next God name is pronounced, but it is most commonly spelled AGLA. This is because it is an abbreviation for the words, *A*h-tah *G*ee-boor *L*ih-oh-lahm *A*h-doh-nye. It means "Thou art great forever, my lord," and is from a Hebrew prayer. These four God names are associated with the directions and magickal elements of the four quarters.

Part Three: The Evocation of the Archangels

STEP ONE. Spread your arms straight out to the sides, so that your body forms a cross. If you have a dagger, the point should be up. Take a second or two to once again feel the energies flowing through you and making you a brilliant cross of light at the center of the universe. The cross also represents the four archetypal elements: Air, Earth, Fire and Water (more on these later).

STEP TWO. Visualize a figure on a hill in front of you. The figure is dressed in yellow robes which have some purplish highlights. The figure carries a caduceus wand (the symbol used by doctors, a wand entwined by serpents, which represents the life force) and the figure's robes wave in the wind. You should "feel" a breeze coming from behind the figure. Say, Before me, Rah-fay-*EL (vibrate the name of the Archangel).

STEP THREE. Visualize a figure behind you, dressed in blue with some orange highlights. The figure holds a cup and is surrounded by waterfalls. Try to feel the moisture in the air. Say, Behind me, Gahb-ray-*EL (vibrate the name).

STEP FOUR. To your right visualize a figure dressed in scarlet with green highlights. The figure holds a flaming sword and you should feel heat coming from this direction. Say, On my right hand, Mee-chai-*EL (vibrate the name. The "Ch" is a guttural sound as in the German "ach" or the Scottish "loch"). mee - chi - el STEP FIVE. To your left visualize a figure dressed in greens and browns on a fertile landscape. The figure holds some sheaves of wheat. Say, And on my left hand Ohr-ree-*EL (vibrate the name).

STEP SIX. Move your left foot out to your left and visualize another beautiful blue pentagram all around you, outlining your body. Say, For about me flames the pentagram. . .

STEP SEVEN. Visualize a golden hexagram, a six-pointed star sometimes called a Jewish star, within you, right where your heart is. Say, . . . And within me shines the six-rayed star.

Part Four: Repeat Part One, the Kabalistic Cross.

Again, other people have slightly different versions for the Evocation of the Archangels section. In one you would say, "Around me flames the pentagram, above me shines the six-rayed star." Another says, "Before me is the pentagram and behind me is the six-rayed star." They are minor differences, but you might like to try them and see how they affect you.

After doing the LBRP, sit in the chair and do the Tarot Contemplation Ritual. Thus, the order for your practical daily work should be as follows:

The Relaxation Ritual.
The Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.
The Tarot Contemplation Ritual.

On the next page you will find a summary which gives a schematic of the LBRP without any of the explanations. Use it as you learn the ritual, but this ritual should be memorized!

VIBRATORY FORMULAE

In the LBRP there are words which are meant to be said forcefully and with authority such as "FOR ABOUT ME FLAMES THE PENTAGRAM." But there are also words in Hebrew which are meant to be "vibrated." You may have come across the expression before in your reading, and it will now be explained in full.

It has long been an occult secret that all matter is made of vibration. Today many scientists depend on this being a fact in their research. If we follow this assumption that all matter is vibratory energy, then magick becomes a type of science which allows a person to affect vibrations. It becomes very valuable for us to develop an understanding of how to control vibratory energy.

There is a physical phenomenon known as "harmonic resonance." This simply means that if one object vibrates powerfully enough, another object nearby will start to vibrate (or resonate) with the first if the second object has a natural vibratory rate in harmony with the first. As an example, if a violin note is played near a piano, the piano strings which have certain harmonic relationships to the violin note will sound; they will start to resonate. Thus, if you can control the vibration rate of one object, such as yourself, you will be able to cause certain reactions in other objects, such as those which exist on other planes of existence. Therefore, an understanding of how to vibrate words is essential for a magician.

THE LESSER BANISHING RITUAL OF THE PENTAGRAM

1. Touch your forehead, vibrate Ah-Tah.
2. Point down, covering the groin, vibrate Mahl-Koot.
3. Touch right shoulder, vibrate Vih-G'boo-Rah.
4. Touch left shoulder, vibrate Vih-G'doo-Lah.
5. Fold hands at chest, vibrate Lih-Oh-Lahm, Ah-Men.
6. Go to E, draw pentagram, point to center, vibrate
   Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh
7. Carry line to S, draw pentagram, point to center, vibrate
   Ah-Doh-Nye
8. Repeat, but carry line to W, vibrate Eh-Heh-Yeh.
9. Repeat, but carry line to N, vibrate Ah-Glah.
10. Carry line to E, completing circle, return to center.
11. Hands out, say Before me, Rah-Fay-El,
    Behind me, Gahb-Ray-El,
    On my right hand Mih-Chai-El,
    And on my left hand Ohr-Ree-El.
    For about me flames the pentagram,
    And within me shines the six-rayed star.
12. Repeat Steps 1-5.

There are two methods of vibrating words, commonly known as the two vibratory formulae. The first is an internal (invocatory) formula. In this formula you cause a certain part of your body (actually part of your astral body) to vibrate. This is exemplified in the Kabalistic Cross part of the LBRP. Let's just look at the word AH-TAH. What you should do here is fully inhale until there isn't room for one more drop of air. Then use the entire exhalation to vibrate the word. Thus, the word is elongated: AAAAHHHHHH-TAAAAAAAHHHH. It should be vibrated loudly in an almost chant-like tone of voice. The pitch is usually higher than the normal pitch of your voice. It is almost shouted. Most importantly, you should feel it vibrate or resonate within your head. Likewise, MAHL-KOOT should be felt in the groin, VIH-G'BOO-RAH in the area of the right shoulder, etc.

The second vibratory method is the external (evocatory) formula. With this formula the intent is to excite the atmosphere (actually the so-called astral plane) around you. This is exemplified in the Formulation of the Pentagrams part of the LBRP. The method is quite similar to the invocatory formula. You inhale fully, and as you exhale you loudly vibrate the appropriate words, in this case, God names. Here the God names are stretched out as: AAAAAAAHHHH-GLAAAAAHHH. You should use the entire exhalation in sounding the God name or words when doing the evocatory vibratory formula. The big difference between the two formulae is that in the evocatory formula you should sense that the entire universe in front of you is resonating in harmony with your vibration. Your entire body and the entire universe should be experienced as vibrating to your call.

There are some minor variations on these two basic formulae such as seeing the words you wish to vibrate in flame before you and making the vibration charge and empower those flames. Another method has you spell out the word according to a certain method within your body. These variations are not as important as the instructions given.

Some student-magicians do not have the luxury of a place where they can loudly, firmly and authoritatively vibrate the God names and words of power. In fact, they need to keep their work a secret. If you find yourself in such a position, you may use what is disguisedly called the "Great Voice." That is, you may do the vibratory formulae silently or very quietly, perhaps at the level of a whisper or quiet conversation. However, if you do so, you must still experience the vibratory phenomena. You must feel the various parts of your body vibrate when doing the invocatory vibratory formula. You must sense the entire universe resonating in harmony to your use of the evocatory formula. In other words, you must have the same results whether you vibrate loudly or in the Great Voice.

If you must use the Great Voice regularly, I suggest that you find a place to practice using your full, loud voice several times. Find a place where you can be alone to do this. When everything around you seems to "change" slightly, you will know you are vibrating the words correctly. These changes are not physical ones, but the area will "feel" different. If you practice by using the LBRP (a good idea) the area will feel cleaner and fresher. You may also find that you will have to adjust the pitch of your voice either up and down in order to make everything vibrate correctly. When you hit the pitch which is correct for you, you will know it! Your voice will sound much louder and more commanding, and the air will seem to be alive with crackling energy. Then you will know what is meant when it is said that "the voice of a true magician is an awesome thing to hear."

As a final note to the LBRP, remember to include everything you are doing in your magickal diary. And most importantly,

Do the LBRP with feeling!
Do it often!
"Enflame yourself with prayer!"

PART TWO

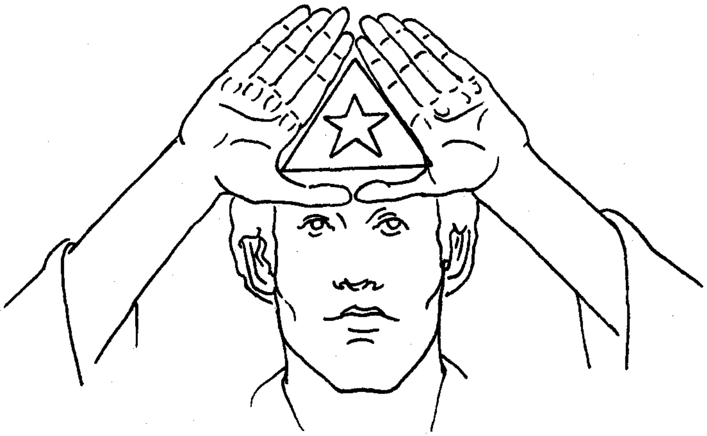
One of the biggest fears of many occultists is "psychic attack." However, the fact of the matter is that true psychic attacks are very rare. The reason they are so rare is that by the time a person has enough skills and talents to attack psychically, he or she also has enough mystical knowledge to know not to attack someone. In the past ten years I have had at least a hundred people ask for my help because they felt they were under psychic attack. I also know many metaphysical teachers and psychics who have told me of their experiences with people who have come to them claiming to be under psychic attack. Of the hundreds of claims of psychic attack of which I have heard, perhaps five cases were real while the others were imaginary.

Be that as it may, the feeling of being under psychic attack can be a very real feeling. Also, our psyches are constantly under attack from society: salesmen order us to buy, TV ads order us to buy; friends, family and even strangers, knowingly or not, try to psychologically maneuver and influence us. Thus, we need to be aware of the day-to-day brainwashing we are receiving along with having the knowledge of what to do if a real psychic attack does occur.

A real psychic attack is not usually caused by a person doing a spell to harm you. Rather, it is caused by a person or persons who for some reason are angry with you. Their rage causes them to unknowingly send a stream of energy filled with their anger toward you. What is more likely, however, is that you simply believe that some negativity is coming toward you. In either case, you will still feel as if you are under attack, and both cases can be dealt with in the same way.

DEALING WITH PSYCHIC ATTACK

This excellent method of repelling psychic attack is derived from Denning and Phillips' Practical Guide to Psychic Self-Defense and Well-Being. Close your eyes and pivot in a circle until you can sense the direction from which the real or imagined stream of negative energy is coming. Once you find that direction, boldly face that way! The path of a magician is not one for cowards. Stand proudly and erect, and visualize on your forehead a bright, electric-blue pentagram with one point uppermost. Now bring your hands up to your forehead to surround the glowing star. The hands should be flat with the thumbs meeting at the brows and the fingers meeting above, palms out. Thus you have a triangle, the so-called Triangle of Manifestation, surrounding the Pentagram with the thumbs as the basal line of the triangle (see figure below).



Now take a deep breath, and as you exhale, step forward with your left foot and thrust your hands forward while at the same time visualizing the pentagram on your forehead flying out in the direction you are facing. This will have the effect of sending away the negativity of the real or imagined psychic attack. To keep it from returning, immediately do the entire LBRP.

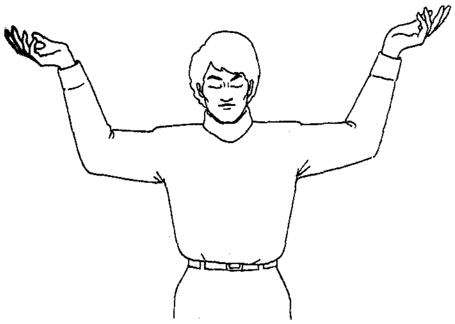
Dealing with day-to-day attacks on your psyche from a multiplicity of sources is another matter. Doing the LBRP helps, but the problem is really one of awareness. The fact of the matter is that most of us are virtually unconscious, asleep, for up to 95% of the day! Awakening the sleepers was one of the main foci of the work of Georges Gurdjieff. I also urge you to read as many books as you can on psychology, as this will awaken you to how the mind works and how people manipulate one another.

Magickally, another way of becoming more awake to the world around us involves becoming more in tune with the universe. One way to do this is to record in your magickal diary the day, date and phase of the Moon. There are also four brief (less than 30 seconds each) rituals which will help attune you to the Sun as it daily traverses the sky.

THE FOUR ADORATIONS

(Based on Crowley's Liber Resh vel Helios)

At Sunrise (or when you awaken). Face the East, make the sign of the Enterer (this was given in the LBRP), then stand upright with your arms up as if you were supporting a heavy pole above your head (see figure below). In a loud voice (if possible; if not, then silently) pray:



"Hail unto Thee who art Ra in Thy rising, even unto Thee who art Ra in Thy strength. Who travelest over the heavens in Thy bark at the uprising of the Sun. Tahuti standeth in his splendor at the prow, and Ra-Hoor abideth at the helm. Hail unto Thee from the abodes of the night."

Finally, stamp on the ground one time with your left foot and bring your left forefinger to your lips as if telling someone to be quiet. In fact, this it known as the Sign of Silence or the Sign of Horus.

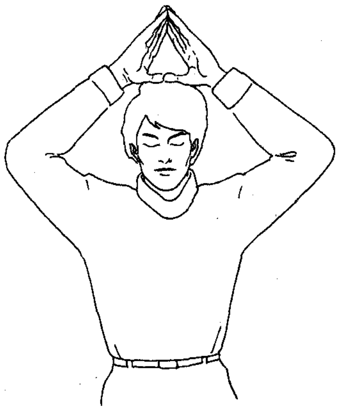
Tahuti is the Egyptian for the god commonly known as Thoth. The rest of the symbolism can be easily understood by consulting a book on Egyptian Gods.

At Noon. Face south, make the sign of the enterer. Form the Triangle of Manifestation, only hold it slightly above your head (here it represents the element of Fire as the previous position represents the element of Air.) See diagram:

Say:

"Hail unto Thee who art Hathoor in Thy triumphing, even unto Thee who art Hathoor in Thy beauty, who travellest over the heavens in Thy bark at the mid-course of the Sun. Tahuti standeth in His splendor at the prow and Ra-Hoor abideth at the helm. Hail unto Thee from the abodes of the morning."

Make the Sign of Silence.

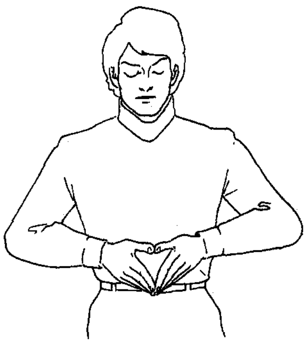


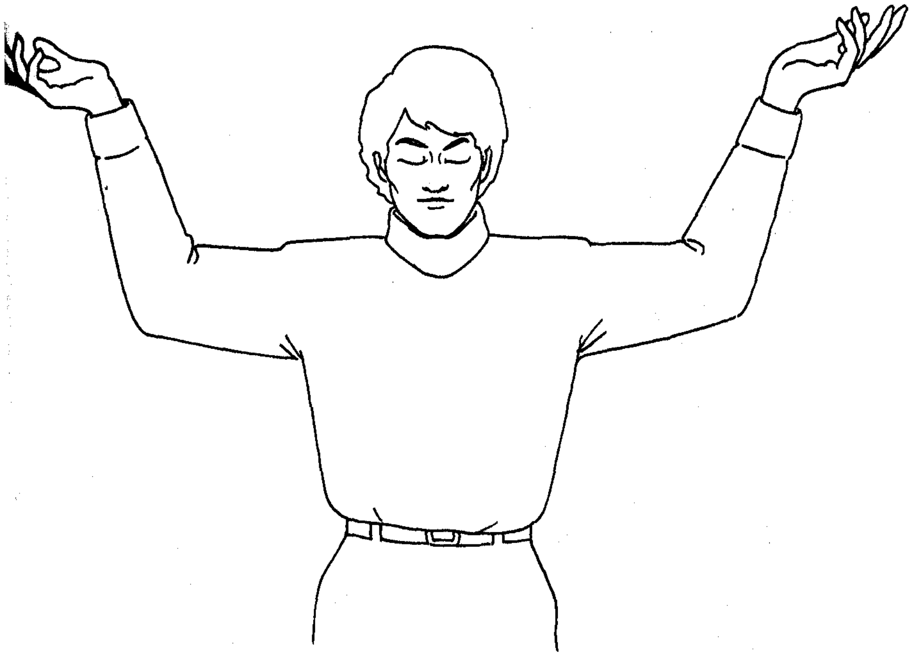
At Sunset. Face west, make the sign of the enterer. Form the triangle with your hands, only do it over your stomach with the palms toward you, the thumbs at the top and the fingers pointed down. This position or God-form represents the element of Water (see diagram). Thus you have a downward pointing triangle in front of your stomach.

Say:

"Hail unto Thee who are Tum in Thy setting, even unto Thee who art Tum in Thy Joy. Who travellest over the heavens in Thy bark at the downgoing of the Sun. Tahuti standeth in His splendor at the prow and Ra-Hoor abideth at the helm. Hail unto Thee from the abodes of the day."

Make the Sign of Silence.





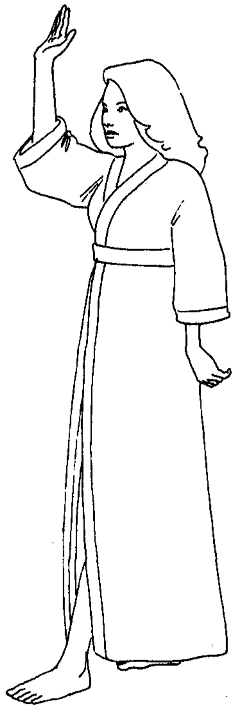
Morning Adoration

At Midnight (or before you go to sleep). Face the north, make the sign of the enterer. Then step forward one pace with your left foot and raise your right hand above your head, palm forward, as if in greeting (see diagram):

You should be in the same position as seen in old cowboy films where an Indian raises his right hand and says, "How!"

You now say:
"Hail unto Thee who art Khephera in Thy hiding, even unto Thee who art Khephera in Thy silence. Who travellest over the heavens in Thy bark at the midnight hour of the Sun. Tahuti standeth in his splendor at the prow and Ra-Hoor abideth at the helm. Hail unto Thee from the abodes of the evening."

Make the Sign of Silence. Of course, the God-form in the diagram above represents the element of Earth.



Advanced Work for the Four Adorations

If you find the Four Adorations very simple, you may wish to add the following visualizations. The overall purposes are:

1. To attune you to the changes of the Sun,
2. To attune you to the four magickal elements, and
3. To attune you to the universe, and, hence, the Divine.

The Visualizations:

1. When you face east at sunrise, visualize yourself imbued with the color yellow and filled with the qualities of air: heat and moisture.
2. When you face the south at noon, visualize yourself imbued with the color red and filled with the qualities of fire: heat and dryness.
3. When you face the west at sunset, visualize yourself imbued with the color blue and filled with qualities of water: cold and moisture.
4. When you face the north at midnight, visualize yourself imbued with the colors of the fertile earth, especially greens and browns, and filled with the qualities of earth: cold and dryness.

To finish this part of the second lesson, let me reiterate that real psychic attack is very rare. One time I knew I was under psychic attack and decided to do nothing to see what would happen. The result was that I got six free books in the mail and a check for $50.

However, the sensation of being under psychic attack can be very real, so I urge you to learn the techniques of this lesson. Also, do not avoid the performance daily of the four adorations. Even if I am very ill I can spend a few seconds doing them.

PART THREE

In the following pages I will be discussing the history and some of the basic theories of the Kabalah. One complaint I frequently hear from many people is that the Kabalah is confusing or boring. In fact, it is neither. But it may take several readings of the following material to get a feeling for the intricacies of Kabalistic thought. Just go through the following pages at your leisure while you practice the daily ritual which is composed of the Relaxation Ritual, LBRP and Tarot Contemplation Ritual. Also work with the Four Adorations, and the technique for defeating real or imagined psychic attack. Although I have explained the Kabalah and its history hundreds of times in my classes, there are usually one or two people who do not immediately quite catch onto the ideas presented. So take a week or two practicing the rituals and perhaps making your robe and go over the following pages as many times as necessary.

It is said that there were three "literatures" for the ancient Hebrews: The Torah (which is comprised of the first five books of the Old Testament), the Talmud (commentaries on the Torah) and the Kabalah (mystical interpretations of the Torah and speculations on the nature of God and the universe). The Torah was known as "The Body of the Tradition," and it was said that if ignorant people would read the Torah they would profit from the experience. The Talmud was called the "Jew's Rational Soul," and those who were learned would profit in its study. The Kabalah was called the "Jew's Immortal Spirit," and the wise were advised to meditate upon it.

You may have noticed that different books and authors spell the word "Kabalah" in different ways. This is because the word "Kabalah" comes directly from the Hebrew and there is no precise transliteration between English and Hebrew.

This gives me a chance to interject some thoughts concerning the Hebrew language. Many of the rituals in this course (such as the LBRP) will be using words from the Hebrew. But all languages, including Hebrew, change in their pronunciation over the centuries. As an example, the word "knight" which we today pronounce "nite" was originally pronounced "k-nigh-t" with a short "i" and the "gh" being a harsh gutteral version of the "ch" in the Scottish word "loch." Thus, English has changed over the past few hundred years. Is it any wonder that Hebrew has changed over the past two thousand years?

Turning to look at Hebrew as it is spoken today in Israel and in synagogues around the world (and discounting local dialects) does not help our understanding of Hebrew pronunciation. For modern Hebrew is not the same as Biblical Hebrew. About a hundred years ago a man named Eliezer ben Yehudah came to believe that Hebrew should once again become a living language. It had been relegated merely to religious documents and study rooms much in the way that Latin is today. Through his efforts, Hebrew, like a phoenix, rose from the dead and became a living language, and was adopted as the language of the State of Israel. This would compare with the idea of having all people in Italy learn Latin and use it as their everyday tongue!

But in the process of bringing Hebrew from death back to life, many changes in the language's very nature took place:

1. Certain letters which had two different sounds no longer do so (see the book Sepher Yetzirah for a list of all the original double-sounding letters).

2. The Hebrew letter called the "vah" or "vahv," usually having a "v" sound, may have originally sounded like our "w" and was called the "waw."

3. Even today certain Hebrew letters can have several sounds. The Aleph can sound like ah, eh or aw. The Yud can sound like ee, ay or eh. The Heh can indicate ah or heh. The system of points and lines to indicate the vowels were added hundreds of years after Ezra compiled the Torah (circa 400-300 B.C.), so they may not be accurate.

4. Perhaps worst of all, mystically speaking, is that to make Hebrew a modern language, ben Yehudah had to take out much of Hebrew's wonderful lack of precision. As an example, the word "Oh-lahm" originally seems to have meant "world," "universe," "aeons," and "forever." This showed that to the ancient Hebrew mind all of these things were related. Now, unfortunately, much of that knowledge is lost, as in modern Hebrew words are more meaning-specific.

5. Many Hebrew words were replaced by Aramaic words. As an example, in ancient Hebrew "Av" or "Ab" meant "father." In modern Hebrew the word for "father" is the Aramaic "Abba."

The next question is, "Should we try to discover the ancient Hebrew pronunciation? After all, isn't the way the words are pronounced important?" The answer is yes, the way the words are pronounced is important. But no, it is not worth our time to seek out the ancient pronunciation of Hebrew. Most of the rituals used today were really created long after Biblical Hebrew was a mere memory.

In this course, the pronunciations used are those of modern Hebrew. In this way you will be tapping into the energies of millions of people who speak the tongue every day, rather than guessing at what ancient Hebrew may have sounded like.

After this digression, let us now return to this word of import, "Kabalah." Kabalah (or Kabbalah or Qabalah or Qabbalah or Kabala or Cabala or Q.B.L., etc.) comes from the Hebrew word which means "to receive," implying that the Kabalah is a "received" doctrine; that is, received from God. It also means that it is given by one person and received by another, usually in an oral manner. Thus, the true Kabalah was an oral, secret tradition which for thousands of years was jealously guarded from the profane.

Like the Tarot, there are two types of histories of the Kabalah. The first is a mythological history, the second is the known, factual history.

THE MYTHOLOGICAL HISTORY OF THE KABALAH

The Kabalah was a secret science known to the angels and to God before the creation of the universe. After Adam and Eve fell from grace in the Garden of Eden, an angel taught the wisdom to Adam so that grace and purity might be regained (I notice similarities here between this story and that of Prometheus who brought fire or "divine wisdom" to the human race. I wonder which story came first?) This knowledge Adam passed on to his sons, but was later forgotten or lost.

After the deluge, God not only gave the rainbow as a sign of his covenant with humanity, but also instructed Noah and his sons in the secret knowledge. But, as before, the knowledge was eventually forgotten or lost.

You may by now be seeing a trend developing for the reception and loss of this secret knowledge. Angels instructed Abraham in the wisdom. He, in turn, instructed Isaac and from there it went to Jacob. But during the captivity in Egypt it was again lost.

The knowledge was this time recovered by Moses. Moses, so the story goes, spent forty days on the top of Mount Sinai, and traditionalists wish us to believe that all he obtained from God was two stone tablets with the Decalogue (Ten Commandments) on them! The mystical interpretation is that the first time Moses went up he received the secrets of the Kabalah from God, but destroyed them upon seeing idol worship. He returned to the top of the mountain, but God would not allow Moses to share the secrets of the Kabalah with the common people. Instead, like little children (the name "Children of Israel" is very appropriate in this context) they were told what they could and could not do in the form of the Ten Commandments and the other laws of the Torah. Moses, who already had received the Kabalah, was told that he could only give the secrets to his brother Aaron and the future High Priests of the Hebrews.

As a side note, in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, the first real, great archaeological discoveries in Egypt took place. People around the world (especially occultists, who at times are not the most level-headed of people) were fascinated by the secrets of ancient Khem. Thus, when they read in the Bible that Moses was educated in Egypt, they assumed that the Kabalah had an Egyptian origin. While it is true that there were mystery schools in Egypt—in fact Pythagoras studied at one—there is no proof that the Kabalah is taken directly from the wisdom of Egypt.

And so it was that the mystical secrets of the Kabalah were kept for hundreds of years by the Hebrew priesthood. But the common Hebrew man and woman did not learn the lessons of the Decalogue and the other laws which God had intended them to learn. Thus, God punished the people of Israel over and over until the destruction of the second Temple in the year 70 A.D. Rome had ordered the destruction, and had wanted rabble-rousers and freedom-loving troublemakers rounded up. One of these was a rabbi named Simeon ben (sometimes written "bar") Yochai. He managed to evade the Romans by hiding with his son in a cave for thirteen years (there is a special meaning in the number thirteen which will be revealed later in this course). In the cave these two learned men wrote down the secrets of the Kabalah for the first time in a large set of books entitled The Zohar (Book of Splendor) and the small Sepher Yetzirah (Book of Formation). Later, when publishing became practical, thanks to Gutenberg, these books became available to people all over the world. Thus it was that although the Diaspora, the exile of the Jews throughout the world after the destruction of the second temple, has been decried by most Jews, those of a mystical bent have held that the Diaspora was God's gift to all mankind, because in that way the Jews were able to spread the divine wisdom all over the world rather than keep it hidden in a small section of the Middle East.

I think that this would be a good time to give you a small tale of my personal history. Before I was born, my father decided to change the family name. You see, the family name had been Katz, and as a child he had been kidded in school by being called "pussy Katz." So, after my older brother was born, my father decided to change the family name so his son would not be kidded. But the name Katz is an abbreviation or acronym (in the Kabbalah it is called a Notarikon, of which more will be said later). It is short for Kohain Tzeh-deck (with a vowel added between the initial letters of the two words) and means "righteous priest." Thus, I may be a descendant of the ancient priestly caste, and thus, may by right learn and share the Kabalah. But before you think this bit of knowledge has gone to my head, let me remind you that this "revelation" comes in a section titled "mythological."

THE FACTUAL HISTORY OF THE KABALAH

Little is known as to where the Kabalah actually originated. There do seem to be elements of ancient Chaldean, Egyptian and even pre-Aryan Indian mysticism as well as elements drawn from other, less well-known Semitic peoples hidden in its depths. More modern aspects of the Kabalah either were heavily influenced by Neo-platonic theories or, in fact, influenced the Neo-platonists.

The earliest known form of Hebrew mysticism (not counting earlier shamanistic forms which seem to exist in all primitive tribes and societies) was not even called Kabalah. The earliest form of Hebrew occultism was known as "Heh-cha-loht" (with the "ch" sounding like that in the Scottish word "loch") which means "ascent." It is also known as Merkabah Mysticism. The Merkabah was the name of the Throne of God in Hebrew, and it was the aim of the Merkabah Mystics to be able to see God upon His Throne.

Unfortunately, most of the writings of the "Merkabah Riders" have been lost, so that full knowledge of their techniques is impossible. From what little we have, we know that their sources seem to be based upon mystical contemplation of the early chapters of Genesis and the Vision of Ezekial. These methods are known respectively as Mah-ah-seh Beh-ray-sheet and Mah-ah-seh Mer-kah-bah. From the fragments of Merkabah Mysticism which still remain, it is assumed that the actual practices of these mystics involved "astral travel" through a series of seven "places" (planes?) by way of certain passwords, talismans and secret signs while in a state of self-induced trance (possibly via self-hypnosis, drugs or sex). The names of each of the guards at each of the seven palaces had to be known so that they could be appeased in some way which today is unknown. Here, for the first time in any popular course or book (to my knowledge) are the correct names which are known (from the fragments of the book Pirkei Heichaloht):

First Palace: Dehaviel, Kashriel, Gahoriel, Botiel, Tofhiel, Dehariel, Matkiel and Shuiel (though some say Sheviel).

Second Palace: Tagriel, Matpiel, Sarhiel, Arfiel, Sheharariel, Satriel, Regaiel and Saheviel.

Third Palace: Shevooriel, Retzutziel, Shulmooiel, Savliel, Zehazahiel, Hadriel and Bezariel. (Note: There are only seven guards listed in the fragments, not the usual eight, implying that one of the names has been lost.)

Fourth Palace: Pachdiel, Gevoortiel, Kazooiel, Shekhiniel, Shatkiel, Araviel, Kafiel and Anaphiel.

Fifth Palace: Tachiel, Uziel, Gatiel, Getahiel, Safriel, Garafiel, Gariel, Dariel, Falatriel. (Note: there are nine guards listed here, which is one too many.)

Sixth Palace: Katzmiel, Gehaghiel, Roomiel, Arsavrasbiel, Agroomiel, Faratziel, Mechakiel and Tofariel.

For the Seventh Palace there were names for "ascending" and "descending," the meaning of which is unclear. My guess is that different names were used to get in and get out. Since other techniques (how to go into trance, how to astral travel, the appropriate passwords and needed talismans) are unknown, I am not going to give a listing of the names of the rest of the guardians as this might lead to some unwise experimentation. My purpose in listing the names of the guards (which in the tradition needed to be memorized) merely has been to show you the complexity of the system. Those who wish to go further into the topic have the name of one of the few sources in a preceding paragraph.

The final goal of the Merkabah Rider was to be able to gaze upon the Throne of God and upon God Himself! This was no easy task, as you can see from the small amount of material I have given above. Also, remember that even Moses was not allowed to view the face of God, for it was said that no mortal could gaze upon the face of God and survive.

There are obvious similarities to Egyptian lore as presented in the so-called Egyptian Book of the Dead, especially the idea of going through various places (hells in the Egyptian. The Egyptian hells should not be confused with the Christian idea of Hell) and passing tests in order to pass safely through these nether realms. Did the Hebrews copy from the Egyptians, or vice-versa? Or did both come from an older source? Or perhaps both cultures (along with others such as Tibetan and Amerind) just happened to tap into the same mystical current. Nobody knows.

Moving into the actual Kabalistic period of Hebrew mysticism, we come across the first well-known Kabalistic book, the Sepher Yetzirah or "Book of Formation." This book seems to be a combination of the earlier Merkabah Mysticism and the more modern Kabalah. The Sepher Yetzirah, along with another work, the Bahir, have been traced back to the earliest centuries of the Common Era. Within them are discussions of such things as emanations from Divinity bringing about the universe. This idea is known today as Neo-platonism. However, if we assume that the Kabalah was either brought to the Egyptians by the Hebrews, or that the Egyptians had the knowledge prior to the period of the enslavement of the Hebrews, then it might be that Neoplatonism was a development of the Kabalah. As stated before, it is well documented that Pythagoras, who is still famous for the Pythagorean Theorum (the sum of the squares of two sides of a right triangle is equal to the square of the hypoteneuse), studied mysticism and was initiated into the Egyptian mystery school. It is not unlikely that he learned some early form of Kabalah there and brought it back to his home in the Greek city-states. It is not impossible that Plato and his later followers adopted the idea of emanations as a result of studying in Pythagoras' mystery school, begun when Pythagoras returned to the Greek isles from the Middle East. Of course, this is speculation, but is based on probabilities.

That Kabalistic mysticism continued to develop during the centuries of the Common Era since the beginning of the Diaspora cannot be disputed. It is one of the reasons that Jews were hated and feared. Part of the Kabalah is related to magickal abilities, and many people fear magick. In the fourteenth century, Moses de Leon made the first printing of the Zohar, the classic Kabalistic text. Some modern scholars, and some contemporaries of de Leon, have called it a fraud. They say that it was not the original Zohar of legend written by Simeon ben Yochai, and that de Leon forged the entire work. Although I do not claim to be a great achaeological scholar, I find this contention hard to accept. Parts of the whole long work in various forms have been discovered in other works dating before the fourteenth century. However, it does seem likely that de Leon did edit and add some of his own mystical philosophy to the Zohar. Even so, let us assume for a moment that Moses de Leon did create the Zohar as it is printed today (the most complete translation fills five volumes). If so, it is a monumental work of mystical thought. Besides, whether it is ancient or relatively recent, it should be studied for what is in it, not for who wrote it.

To sum up, the Kabalah is not a single book or simple mystical idea. Rather, it is a whole system of mystical thought and action. It is the mystical underpinnings for Judaism, Christianity and (to a lesser extent) Islam. As the Middle Ages developed in Europe, many locations became Kabalistic centers, the most important ones being in Spain. But in 1492, the year Columbus sailed, the Jews were expelled from Spain. It is for this reason that some people believe that Columbus (actually Cristobal Colon was his name in Spanish, and Colon may have been a variation of Cohen) may have been Jewish! Be that as it may, many of the Jews returned to the Middle East, and a large, important Kabalistic center developed in the city of Safed.

Two things happened which took the Kabalah away from being part of the mainstream of Judaism. One was a book by the respected Rabbi Moses Maimonides called A Guide for the Perplexed. In this book, "rational" (by Western scientific terms) solutions to theoretical and philosophical problems in Judaism were given. A virtual war of words developed between the followers of Maimonides' "rational" approach (there is still much mysticism and magick even in his "rationality") and those who believed in the Kabalah. This "war" went on for years, the most famous proponent of the Kabalah being the Rabbi Nahmanides. Meanwhile, many schools of the Kabalah had developed, each with slightly different ideas of Kabalistic theory and practice, such as the schools of Isaac Luria and Isaac the Blind. The final blow, along with the Guide for the Perplexed, came in the form of a man named Sabbatai Zvi (1626-1676).

Zvi (or Zebi or Zwi) had an intense, charismatic personality. He was also very learned in both standard and Kabalistic Jewish knowledge. He became more and more popular in the Middle East until he was proclaimed by his followers as the Messiah, the saviour of the Jews. He never denied that he was the Messiah. Word of his magickal powers, wisdom and Godliness spread via Jewish traders to Jewish communities throughout the Middle East, Asia and Europe. In the Middle East, where he spent most of his life, he developed many die-hard zealots as followers. Finally, the Islamic Sultan could no longer ignore him. The resultant meeting between the two led to the discreditment of Zvi and his conversion to Islam, following which he was exiled to a prison in Albania where he died as a false Messiah.

Deceived Jewry tried to forget and put out of their lives everything which reminded them of Zvi. In fact, in Jewish books he was frequently merely called "that one." Since Zvi was associated with the Kabalah and magick, this too was discarded and the position of Maimonides was accepted. Except for small groups of secretive believers, Judaism deserted the Kabalah.

The Kabalah was saved from being perhaps totally lost by those Christians whose goal was to study the inner teachings of Judaism in order to prove that Jesus was, in fact, the Christ, the Jewish Messiah, and thus turn all Jews into Christians. As you can see, there are still Jews in the world today, and the attempt failed. But it did cause the translations of many documents and books which had never before been translated out of the Hebrew or Aramaic. The possibility of real magickal secrets which were holy and not satanic in nature caught the fancy of many scholars and clerics, up to and including Eliphas Levi (born Alphonse Louis Constant). Levi's most famous work, translated poorly into English, is now in print under the title Transcendental

Magic. His books and teachings helped start what has been called the "French Occult Revival" of the 19th century. At that time, many occult groups began to develop in France and spread to other countries, most notably Austria, Germany and England. Some of these groups used their occultism to support questionable ethics, leading to "magickal wars" between occult groups in France, and the evil of Nazism in Germany.

Looking for a second back on the "lighter" side of occultism, we come in England to the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn whose primary importance came in their taking the teachings of the Kabalah as a basis for their occultism and uniting with other forms of occultism such as the magickal systems of Egypt, of Enochian Magick, of the Magick of Abramelin, of mysticism from India as well as other sources. We will deal with all of these as need be in this course.

The Kabalah which we study in this course is a modern Kabalah. The Kabalah is a philosophical system of life as well as a magickal system and, as such, has changed over the centuries to meet the needs of the people of the current society. Besides differences in interpretations of the Kabalah based on different sects' attitudes, there are two major divisions in the Kabalah today.

First there is what I call the "Kosher Kabalah." This has come about as a result of the need for a Jewish spiritual rebirth. Right now, in America at least, the number of Jews is rapidly decreasing. Oh, there may be more Jews numerically, but for many it is merely a group association and nothing more. I feel that this is at least in part due to the extreme lack of spirituality found in some of the major forms of Judaism. This has resulted in a leaning away from standard Judaism, and the fact that there is a disproportionately large percentage of Jews being attracted to various cults which disguise themselves as religions. But some Jews are looking toward their own spiritual roots and are rediscovering their Kabalistic heritage. The Kosher Kabalah, then, has a particularly Jewish tone to it. It benefits all students of the mystical as we are obtaining more and more ancient Kabalistic works which are finally being translated into Western tongues. But, because it is so oriented toward one point of view, it is not our main concern.

The "WASP Kabalah" follows in the traditions of the Golden Dawn. This system of Kabalah universalizes the Kabalistic wisdom so that it may be accepted by all, no matter your particular faith or lack thereof. This "syncretistic" system of the Kabalah is the one which we will be studying. Because the Kabalah has been safeguarded for thousands of years by the Jewish culture, it is obvious that it will have, in many instances, a Jewish flavor. That is why we will be using many words which are in Hebrew. However, since we will be studying the WASP Kabalah and not the Kosher Kabalah, since we are studying a universalized Kabalah, you do not have to be or become a Jew or Christian or Pagan or follow any particular religion or belief in order to study the philosophy and magickal techniques of the Kabalah and traditional ceremonial magick.

There are four main branches to the Kabalah, some aspects of each overlapping each other.

1. The Dogmatic Kabalah. This concerns the study of the literatures of the Kabalah such as the Torah, the Sepher Yetzirah, the Bahir, the Zohar, and many others. Although their study is fascinating, it is not the focus of this course. The names of various books and appropriate sections from them or ideas from them will be given when they are needed, but the Dogmatic Kabalah will not be a primary concern of these lessons.

2. The Practical Kabalah. This refers to the making of talismans and amulets via Kabalistic methods. It is the basis for Kabalistic magick when mixed with the following two branches of Kabalistic study. The methods of the Practical Kabalah are neither good nor bad, but can be used for what might be called "positive or negative" purposes. Therefore, it is necessary to first give you the work which will prepare you so that not only would you not have a desire to do magick for negative purposes, but so that you will understand the dire consequences that will result for YOU if you try to use magick for negative purposes. Thus, we will not be taking up the Practical Kabalah for a few more lessons.

Please don't misinterpret the last paragraph to imply that you will become a namby-pamby magician who is all sweetness and light if you follow the techniques as given in this course. No, by following the methods given here you can become a powerful magician, afraid of no other entity, physical or otherwise. But, rather than moving blindly with no understanding of the rules of the universe as explained by the Kabalah, by following these lessons and learning all the information, you can become a true wise man or woman, a wizard, a warrior of the light.

When we do get into the Practical Kabalah, into Grey Magick, then we will truly soar. Nor will we be limited to the kabalistic methods of magick. As an example, just in dealing with talismans we will be discussing Pagan, numerological, Rosicrucian and other systems of making these devices.

3. The Literal Kabalah. This concerns the relationships between the numbers and letters of the Hebrew alphabet. The ancient Hebrews did not have separate figures to represent numbers, so they used the letters of their alphabet. It was believed that if two words had the same numerical total, they had a significant relationship to each other, and in some cases could be considered synonyms. As an example, aheva=13 and echod=13. Therefore, aheva is the same as echod. Echod is the Hebrew word meaning "one." Since in Judaism there is only one God, it also represents God. Aheva is Hebrew for "love." Therefore, according to this system, God is love. Further, the holiest name of God, the Tetragrammaton of YHVH totals 26. Since 13+13=26, we can say that love (aheva) plus oneness (echod) equals the nature of God (YHVH). This process is known as Gematria (geh-may-tree-yah). As we go on in the lessons, you will see the vital import that Gematria plays in ceremonial magick. It will be explained more fully in another lesson. (By the way, do you remember that I said I would explain the meaning of the number 13 earlier in this lesson?)

Notarikon (Noh-tayr-ih-kon) is another aspect of the Literal Kabalah. It is a system of finding acronyms, where the first letters of a series of words gives a new word or words. English examples of this system would be Mothers Against Drunk Driving becoming MADD or North Atlantic Treaty Organization becoming NATO. As you can see, they do not have to form familiar words, although they may do so. *A*h-tah *G*ee-boor *L*ih-oh-lahm *A*h-doh-nye is Hebrew for "Thou art great forever, my Lord." It is represented by the Notarikon (or acronym) AGLA, pronounced Ah-glah, as given in the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram. Amen in Hebrew is composed of three letters: aleph, mem, nun—AMN. They are a Notarikon for *A*l (pronounced "ehl" and meaning "God") *M*elech (meaning "king") *N*eh-eh-mahn (meaning "faithful"). Thus, Amen, the Notarikon for Al Melech Neh-eh-mahn, means "God is our faithful king." This is the secret meaning of the word Amen.

Temurah (teh-moo-rah) is a system of transposition of letters such as is used in cryptography. Its primary importance is in interpretation of the Torah (known as exegesis) and in making talismans. Here are some styles of this system:

Avgad: A very simple kind of Temurah wherein any letter is replaced by the letter which follows it in the alphabet. Thus, in English, "a" is written as "b," "b" is written as "c," etc.

Aik Bekar: In this system, the 22 letters of the Hebrew alphabet plus the five special "final" forms of five of the letters (they are only used at the end of words) are mixed according to a certain pattern. They are placed in nine boxes of three letters each. Thus is formed a figure three boxes high and three boxes across. In Aik Bekar you can have any letter in a box represent either of the other two letters in that box. In the first box which has the letters aleph, yud and koph (the "Aik" of Aik Bekar), the yud could represent either the koph or the aleph. So, too, could the koph represent the aleph or the yud, and the aleph could represent either the yud or the koph.

A Y K
A = Y or K
Y = A or K
K = A or Y

The letters in the second box make the word Bekar.

Achas B'tay-ah (the "ch" sounds like the Scottish word "Loch"): This is similar to Aik Bekar. In this system there are seven boxes of three letters each, with one letter left over. Here again, a letter in one box is interchangeable with any of the other letters in that box.

There are several other systems of Temurah including the simple expedient of transferring the first letter of the alphabet with the last, the second with the second to last, etc.

4. The Unwritten Kabalah. This fourth branch of the Kabalah refers to the correspondences on the sacred glyph known as the Tree of Life. It is the key to the entire Kabalistic system. In the next part of this lesson we will begin the study of the Tree of Life.

But before going on to the next part, take a few days off and go over this last history section. Also be sure to be doing your rituals and keeping your diaries. You might also start building your altar and sewing your robe (if you intend to do so) while you spend a few days studying what has been covered so far in this lesson.

PART FOUR

In this part we begin the study of the mystical symbol known as the Tree of Life. In the garden of Eden as described in the book of Genesis of the Old Testament, there were two important trees growing with the other flora and fauna. One was the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil. According to the exoteric interpretation of this passage, it was by eating of this tree that Adam and Eve fell from grace. God then drives Adam and Eve from the garden because the Tree of Life is there, and, as God says, "Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil; and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live forever." Although not having good syntax, this biblical quote indicates clearly that the Tree of Life is considered to be highly important, capable of bringing eternal life. It is also capable of bringing much more, as we shall see.

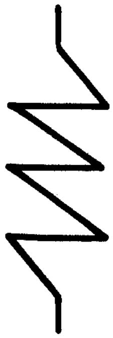
Diagrams are frequently used to represent other things. A diagram of a miniature solar system can be used to represent the appearance of an atom; its many valence levels filled with electrons are represented by the "orbiting planets" and the nucleus represented by the stationary Sun. Yet, no one has ever seen an atom. No one knows if this is actually the way an atom appears. In fact, modern sub-atomic nuclear physics tends to ignore the solar system model of the atom, replacing it with tiny waves of energy which constantly move toward and away from the center of the atom. But for most practical purposes, the solar system model of the atom works, and is still taught in schools. However, it is only a model.

There are other models for other purposes. One such model is a triangle with Yin and Yang at the lower angles and Tao at the top. Yin represents all things which are achetypically female: cold, wet, winter, receptivity, emotionality, etc. Yang represents all things which are archetypically male: warm, dry, summer, aggressiveness, logic, etc. Tao represents the balance of these two ideas. Balance, according to Taoism, is the desired state. For a person to be balanced, he or she must have aspects of both Yin and Yang.

Other things can be reflected in this Yin-Yang-Tao triangle. Father, Son, Holy Spirit (The Holy Spirit in Gnosticism was seen as being female); liberalism, conservatism middle-of-the-road; body, mind and spirit; and many other trinities. A most important one for modern philosophy was first written by the German philosopher Hegel and is known as the Hegelian Dialectic or the "Thesis-Antithesis-Synthesis Theory." This theory holds that if you have one condition or situation (thesis) but wish to change it to another, usually opposite condition or situation (antithesis), the result will not be either the new or old, but rather a mixture (synthesis) of the opposing positions. This is why revolutions rarely achieve their goals. Instead, they end as a mixture of what was and what was desired. The method of nature is evolution, not revolution.

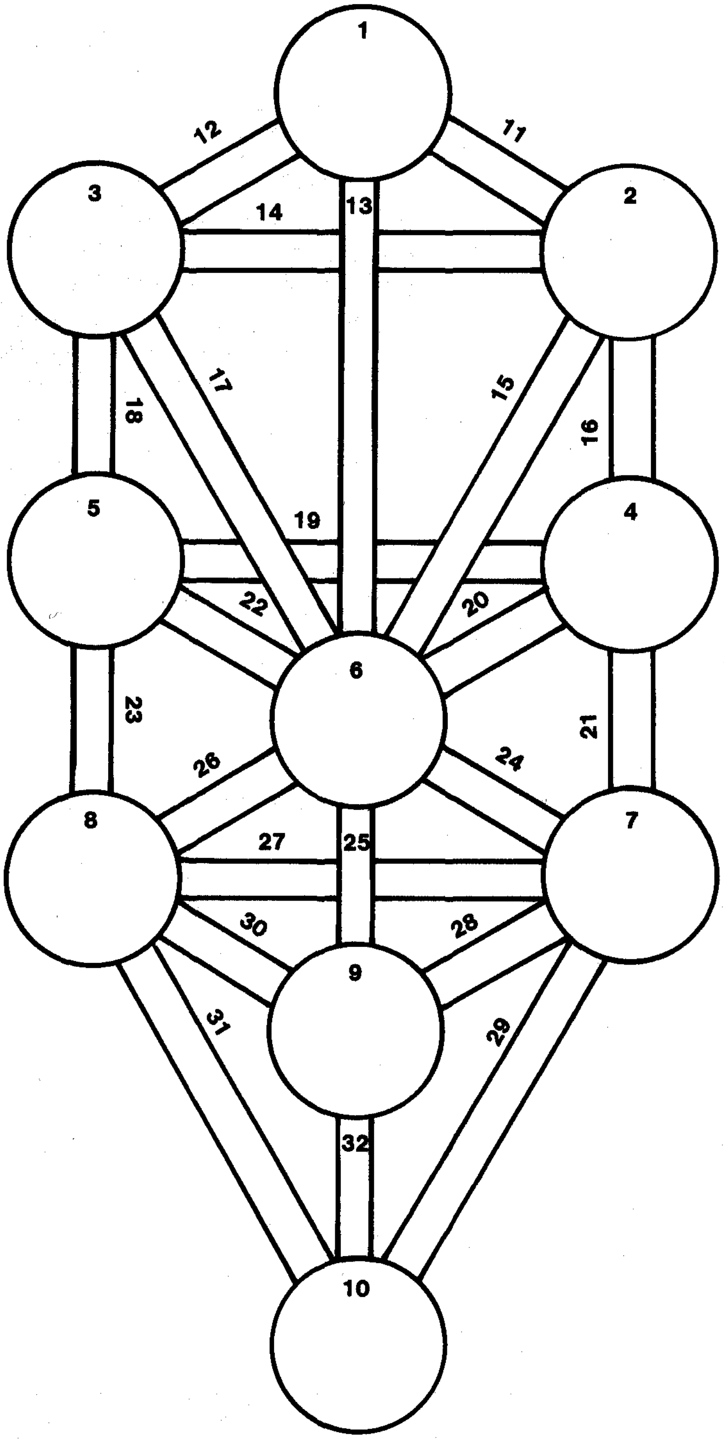
The diagram which is important to the Kabalah above all others is the Tree of Life as pictured on the next page. As you can see, it is composed of ten circles forming three triangles: the highest one points up, then two triangles pointing down, and finally a single circle hanging pendant to the triangles at the bottom. Note that there are 22 paths numbered from 11 through 32 connecting the circles.

These circles are known as the SEPHIROHT (seh-fear-oht), the singular form being SEPHIRA (seh-fear-ah). If you draw straight lines going from Sephira 1 to 2, 2 to 3, etc., up to 10, you will get the Lightning Bolt or Flaming Sword image shown below:



The Flaming Sword

This is both the flaming sword which the Kerubim hold to keep people from getting back into the Garden of Eden and the path by which Divinity created the universe.



1
11
12
3
2 14
13
17
15
18
16
5
19
4
22 20
6
23
21
26
24
8
27
25
7
30
28
9
31
29
32
10

The Tree of Life

How can we know the ultimate Divinity? We only have mortal minds which are limited and we see everything in dualities (me, not-me; up, down; stable, unstable; moving, stopped). Since the very nature of Divinity, by definition, must be beyond any sort of limitations, Divinity cannot have a dual nature. If Divinity is male, then Divinity is not female and thus is limited. Divinity is the ultimate unity, beyond duality. And since we have mortal, limited minds, the ultimate Divinity cannot be like anything we know. In fact, the ultimate speculation we can make about the nature of Divinity is that Divinity is NO-THING which we can know. In Hebrew, the word for no-thing (nothing) is AIN.

As soon as we put any qualities upon Divinity we limit the Source-of-All. As stated, a male God limits God to being not-female. A merciful Divinity does not have the righteous severity of being just. A Divinity which is limited cannot be the ultimate Divinity. It follows, therefore, that the only quality we can put upon Divinity is that Divinity is WITHOUT LIMIT. And the Hebrew for "without limit" is AIN SOPH.

As stated earlier, it was believed that anyone who beheld the face of God could not live. On this planet we can barely stand to look at the Sun on a bright day for more than a fraction of a second. It is too bright. Since we cannot behold a bright light, nor can we behold the "face of God," it follows that there is a relationship between the two, and that the first conceivable yet unknowable and unexperienceable aspect of Divinity is brightness beyond any brightness of which we can conceive: LIMITLESS LIGHT. The Hebrew for "light without limit" is AIN SOPH OR. These three conceptions are conceived to be above the Tree of Life with a "veil" beneath each as shown in the following diagram:

Because the word AIN means "nothing," these three conceptions above the first Sephirah have been called THE THREE VEILS OF NEGATIVE EXISTENCE. However, they have been called so wrongly, because in context Ain does not mean "nothing," but rather "nothing" which our mortal minds can conceive, understand or know.

The earliest known Kabalistic theory as to how the universe was formed comes from the Sepher Yetzirah. It holds that God moved the magickal Hebrew letters in such a way that the physical universe was formed. This is a basis of Grey Magick which we will get into later in the course. Today, the most popular Kabalistic theory of the creation of the universe is the system described by the famous Rabbi Isaac Luria. According to Luria, before the creation Divinity filled the universe. Then, for some unknown reason, God decided to create. God allowed a tiny part of "Himself" to shrink out of the universe, leaving a space. However, in some mysterious way God still filled this space much as a fragrant rose when removed from a room will still leave its essence or scent behind. This process Luria called "tzim-tzum."

God then sent a beam of energy from within "Himself" out into the newly abandoned space, apparently trying to create containers for this energy. But, for some reason unknown to us, God appears to have failed, with the result that the containers were shattered, forming the shells or what is known as the Kellipoht, the places where "demons" dwell. God attempted the process again, this time succeeding. The energy from the AIN went through the AIN SOPH, through the AIN SOPH OR and into the first Sephira. That Sephira filled with energy, then overflowed into Sephira number two. Sephira two filled and overflowed into Sephira three, and so forth down the Tree of Life into Sephira ten where an equilibrium, a balance was established.

As the energy proceeds down the Tree, it goes from being very ethereal and spiritual in nature until in the tenth Sephira it manifests as the physical plane and our planet, Earth. Thus, this energy is seen as constantly creating our universe. This energy comes directly from Divinity, and without it all would instantly cease to be. Thus, with this simple way of looking at the Tree of Life, we can see how truly God must love us to constantly be giving us existence.

Here is a type of mathematical way of looking at existence as represented by the Tree of Life: From NO-THING comes Limitlessness (outer space). Filling this Limitlessness is Limitless Light (big bang, or perhaps the space-time continuum). But this is all abstract. This is just energy. Now we need to develop solidity out of energy.

We start with the idea of position, what in plane geometry is called the point (first Sephira). By reflecting itself, the first point can create a second point (second Sephira). By joining the two points together we form a line. But there is nothing by which to judge length. So again, by reflection, we create a third point (third Sephira) which enables us to say that point a is closer to point b than b is to point c. Thus we have formed a triangle or plane. But this has all been what is called Euclidian: it exists on an imaginary two-dimensional surface with no thickness. To create a physical universe, we need substance, we need three dimensions. We need knowledge (Dah-at, the theoretical Sephira said to exist between the upper three and lower seven Sephiroht) in order to cross the void from two dimensions to three.

With the knowledge we create a fourth point (fourth Sephira) which, with the previous three points gives us volume, and thus a third dimension. But these three-dimensional points are static, unmoving. We need another point to show motion (fifth Sephira) and still another to indicate time (sixth Sephira), for in the physical world time and space intermingle and cannot exist without one another.

So now we have something which has three dimensions and can move within the three dimensions. We still have nothing which can appreciate that existence. We add three more points (seventh, eighth and ninth Sephiroht) which show:

a. The essence of life, called BEING (sat in Sanskrit),
b. The ability to think, called CONSCIOUSNESS (chit), and
c. The ability to experience the sensation of something outside of one's self, called BLISS (ananda).

Therefore, the first idea of reality as can be appreciated by a mind is built up from the idea of a point through the idea of bliss, and summed up as REALITY in point ten, the tenth Sephira.

Now, I realize that what has been described here is very complex, and may, in fact, be confusing. But, like the Tarot, the only way to really learn about the Tree of Life is to study it, use it, confront it every day. As you learn more practical uses for the Tree of Life it will become quite easy to understand. In the meantime, spend a few days with this section before moving on to the next section. Remember, nobody said these lessons would be easy. But by the end of this course you will be able to understand the basic theories of the Tree of Life as presented in any book. And the Tree of Life will become part of your everyday life and thought. When that occurs you will have become a true mystic. And when you understand the universe as it is represented by the Tree of Life and can freely move about on the Tree as you wish, then you will be a true magician.

PART FIVE

Before proceeding with this section you should really have the LBRP down pat. This means you should have all of your visualizations clear and the whole ritual memorized.

The ritual I am about to describe is called the Middle Pillar Ritual. Its proper practice will result in greater vitality, aid in the task of self-mastery, help cultivate spiritual insight and help you in your white magickal quest, the search for union with the divine nature.

The Tree of Life exists everywhere, not just as circles on a piece of paper or as a philosophical construct. It also exists within the human being on a variety of levels. Picture yourself turning around and backing into the Tree of Life. This will give you a good idea of how the Tree exists on the body. The uppermost Sephira is just above the top of the head. The second Sephira is at the left side of the face, although it is on the right side of the Tree. The third Sephira is on the left side of the Tree and on the right side of the face. This continues down the entire body. We will be studying more of these relationships with the Tree of Life, part of the Unwritten Kabalah, in the next lesson.

But for now we must turn our focus away from the Kabalah and toward India. Here, the most ancient of spiritual texts, the Tantras, speak of psychic centers known as Chakras (pronounced "kahk-rahs") which exist in the energy field around our bodies. There is also an energy stream known as Kundalini which goes through these psychic centers. The oldest Tantras speak of four major Chakras: at the navel, the heart, the throat and the top of the head. Later books speak of six or seven chakras, often disagreeing as to where the other two or three are located. But most importantly, the books tell you that it is dangerous to attempt to raise the Kundalini energy through the centers. To discover why this is so we must jump from ancient India to Victorian Europe.

This was the era of Sigmund Freud. Although Freud outlived the Victorian era, much of his philosophy was heavily dependent upon his being raised in the Victorian period. It is also clear that Freud, a Jew, studied the Kabalah, in at least some cursory way. In his early writings on psychology Freud indicated that he believed that there was an actual, physical energy, a psycho-sexual energy, which he called "libido." Freud believed that this energy came from all parts of the body and would move to a single part of the body. He called this process "cathexis." He believed that all psychological problems could be traced to blockages of this psycho-sexual libido energy. Freud realized that if he was correct, the way to solve psychological problems would be to unblock this sexual energy. This meant, of course, that he would have to encourage people to have sexual relations. Freud knew that in an age still rife with the repressive Victorian morality, when tubes of cloth were placed over piano legs because they vaguely resembled women's legs, this would never be accepted. This was especially true since many of the people Freud worked with were unmarried.

Freud was a pragmatist. He knew he would have to change his theories so that he could still help people. I don't know if Freud was thinking in this direction, but it does seem to make sense that if getting energy moving would clear blockages, clearing blockages would also allow the energy to move freely. No matter how he came to this conclusion, Freud did change his notion of libido from an actual energy to a mere desire which was capable of being focused in other directions. He called this process of focusing the energy in other directions "sublimation." Unfortunately, since there was no longer an actual energy which was stopped, Freud now needed to come up with something contrary to the desire known as libido. This he called the "death wish." If it sounds confusing, it is. This is because Freud would not accept the reality of libido as an actual energy.

Meanwhile, one of Freud's most creative students, Wilhelm Reich, decided that Freud had been correct in the first place. He set out to discover and measure Freud's concept of psycho-sexual energy. Freud was quoted as saying that Reich was either a fraud or the future of the psychoanalytic movement. Later, Freud wrote the book Civilization and Its Discontents to denounce Reich's theories.

Reich's researches went far beyond those of Freud. Reich called the psychosexual energy "orgone" and believed that he had seen it and measured it. Its color was a bright blue (such as in the LBRP). Reich invented group therapy, rebirthing, primal scream, bioenergetics, and certain educational systems; he also did sexological studies similar to Masters and Johnson years before they began their research. Reich wrote several books on his theories and made devices (orgone accumulators) which he claimed could take orgone energy out of the environment to be used for healing purposes. For his efforts to enlighten the world, Reich was thrown in jail and his books were burned. (Here in America. In the 1950's!)

As a side note, while talking to Israel Regardie I mentioned that Reich's book, The Function of the Orgasm, should be read by all occultists, and Regardie strongly agreed.

My point in this is not to get you to read a particular book or author, nor is it to criticize the actions of our government in the middle of the McCarthy era. Rather, it is to show that Western science has studied and is well aware of the nature of the psycho-sexual energy. And this energy called libido or orgone in the West is known as Kundalini in India.

The study of Kundalini has gone on for thousands of years in India, so they have a much better knowledge of it than does Western science. In a base and chaotic form it is said to lie "sleeping" in the area of the coccyx, the tip of the tailbone. On the surface of the body this appears at the perineum, the space between the sexual organs and the anus. Through imagination, special breathing and visualization methods, special sounds or through sexual activity, this energy can be roused and sent up the spine, charging the psychic centers, the chakras, as it rises.

Here is where the danger lies. The energy does not rise smoothly. It stops and charges each chakra. If you are not ready to have a particular chakra charged with energy, if you have not reached the appropriate stage of psychic awareness, one of two things can happen:

1. The chakra will be charged and the sudden influx of energy will "blow you away," killing you, driving you insane or, perhaps, enlightening you.

2. The raised energy will have no place to go. Then you are like a filled balloon which is in a state of tension and cannot pop nor have the air in it released. Something eventually has to give. Remember, Freud said (originally) that blockages were the cause of all psychological problems. If the Kundalini becomes "stuck" at a lower chakra it could result in a sexual obsession. Trying to raise the Kundalini without proper instruction could also create severe physical problems. This is why in order to practice what is called Kundalini Yoga (which is a new name; its actual name is Laya Yoga) you should first get yourself a good teacher, known as a "guru."

The ancient Kabalists were also aware of this energy. It is sometimes known in Hebrew as Ruach. It, too, cycles in the psychic centers. In the Kabalah there are five important psychic centers, each relating to a Sephira, and each also relating to a part of the psyche and the body of a human.

The Yeh-chee-dah (as always, ch as in the Scottish word "loch") is the psychic center just above the head. It is the deepest level of the subconscious. It is always in contact with the Divine and it is sometimes known as our higher self. It relates to that aspect of God represented by the God name Eh-heh-yeh.

Ruach, besides being the name of the energy we have been discussing, is also the name of the psychic center at the solar plexus. This is in the center of the torso above the stomach and just below the heart and breast. When this center is fully expanded it includes the heart. It represents our consciousness. Here we discover one of the basic difference between Eastern and Western mystical philosophy. In the East it is believed that our world is composed of nothing but vibrations. Our physical world is an illusion. This illusionary world called "Maya" is what is perceived by our consciousness. Therefore, our consciousness, by only seeing Maya, "slays" the true, inner reality. We are then told to "slay the slayer," eliminate our consciousness via meditation and other techniques. Western occultism, being more pragmatic than its Eastern counterpart, says "let's not slay the slayer, but rather let us perfect the slayer so that it no longer only sees an illusion." This is the process of developing the Will, which, by your ritual practice, you are now doing. The center relates to the God name Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh El-oh-ah V'dah-aht.

The center known as Nephesh is located at the sexual organs. It represents the most superficial layer of our subconscious. It holds our lusts and urges and is capable of blocking the flow of energy between the Yeh-chee-dah and the Ruach. The God name here is Sha-dai El Chai.

We can compare these Kabalistic ideas with other types of psychology:

KABALAH	FREUDIANISM	TRANSACTIONAL ANALYSIS
Yeh-chee-dah	Superego	Adult
Ruach	Ego	Parent
Nephesh	Id	Child

In the Kabalistic system, there are two other psychic centers which need to be described.

The psychic center located at the feet is known as the G'uph. It represents the physical body. When standing, it actually goes above the feet and below the feet, into the earth or surface below your feet. Its God name is Ah-doh-nye Ha-ah-retz.

The center at the base of the throat has no name in Hebrew, but is known as "the link." When activated, this center becomes the self-induced and self-devised link between the higher self (Yeh-chee-dah) and the conscious (Ruach). "The Link" is a good name as it is a link between the centers above and below it. Its God name, borrowed from another Sephira, is Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh El-oh-heem.

The energy we are going to work with is psycho-sexual in nature, and can be fully controlled by the mind (more on this in a later lesson). Problems can develop when you try to raise the energy from the sexual centers because of the emphasis on the sexual nature of the energy. In our system we stress the psychological and spiritual nature of the energy; thus we can work in complete safety and without a guru. In this system we take the energy from our connection with the Divine, at the Yeh-chee-dah, and bring it down the "Middle Pillar" or our body. By the time the energy reaches the powerful sexual centers it will have become so purified that, in effect, it spiritualizes the energies that otherwise might only be expressed in a sexual manner. This does not mean that you will lose any desire for sex, only that when you do have sexual relations you will have a greater, even spiritual experience, and not simply a physical experience. This ritual will make you neither more nor less interested in sex.

THE RITUAL OF THE MIDDLE PILLAR

STEP ONE. Do the Relaxation Ritual.

STEP TWO. Do the LBRP. When finished, stand behind your altar (if you have one) with your hands at your sides, eyes closed, steady relaxed breathing and, above all, try to get your mind into a still, quiet and calm state.

STEP THREE. Focus your attention just above the top of your head. As a result of the LBRP there should be a sphere of white brilliance at this point. If not, visualize it. Take your time. Regard this white brilliance with a sort of awe: it is the spatial equivalent to the vital core of your being, your higher self, your link with the Divine.

The result of this contemplation should be that the brilliance becomes even brighter. Now vibrate the God name, Eh-heh-yeh three or four times. The sphere should get brighter still.

STEP FOUR. Now visualize a slender beam of light descending from the brilliance through the center of your head, and stopping at the nape of your neck. Here the beam widens into a ball of light, although not as big as the one above. At this point you should be visualizing simultaneously the brilliant sphere above your head, the small ball of light at the base of your neck, and the beam of light connecting the two. Understand that this is the link between your conscious and your higher self, and the ball of light at your neck should grow in size and intensity. Vibrate the God name, Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh El-oh-heem, three or four times.

STEP FIVE. Keeping the above in mind, cause a beam of light to descend from the ball of light at your neck, go down your torso, and light up the solar plexus in the form of a sphere. Understand that this represents your consciousness, and the ball should increase in brightness and intensity. You may feel as if you are being warmed by an internal sun. Vibrate the God name Yud-Heh-Vahv-He El-oh-ah V'dah-aht three or four times.

STEP SIX. In the same manner, see the light descend to the area of the genitals and form a sphere. Here, regard yourself as master of your "lower" self. The God name to be vibrated three or four times is Shah-dai El Chai.

STEP SEVEN. Again the light should descend, here to form a sphere which encompasses both feet and the ground; that is, the sphere should be half above the ground, covering the feet, and half below the ground, under the feet. The God name to be vibrated three or four times is Ah-doh-nye Ha-ahr-etz.

STEP EIGHT. At this point there should be large spheres of light above the head, at the throat, at the solar plexus, at the groin and at the feet. Each sphere of light should be connected with the sphere above and below by a beam of light.

STEP NINE. Stay in this state for as long as you desire. Then, take a deep breath, and as you exhale, visualize the images fading and becoming invisible. They are still there, but they cannot now be seen. This completes the Middle Pillar Ritual.

STEP TEN. Remember the instructions on vibrating words. Each vibrated word should be done so that you can feel the appropriate area of the body vibrating.

STEP ELEVEN. If at any point you should have trouble or difficulty in forming a sphere of light or a beam of light, do NOT struggle for minutes on end until you break out in a sweat. Rather, stop where you are and complete Step Nine with the progress you have made. Several things could have caused the problem. They are usually mental in nature, either from conscious or unconscious sources. By repeating this ritual daily you will be able to eventually overcome any problem in a very natural, gentle manner. You will be a better, stronger, happier person for it.

STEP TWELVE. Do the Tarot Completion Ritual. If you have been doing the ritual regularly for at least six weeks, you should begin using the all 22 cards of the Major Arcana.

STEP THIRTEEN. Record results, feelings, experiences, etc., in your ritual diary.

Note: It is after about two or three months of regular work that students start to report some unusual phenomenon. They may think that they are seeing, hearing, or even feeling strange. . . things! This is perfectly normal.

You have been working with what I call the "Astral Senses." The Astral Senses include the ability to see, hear, etc. on the higher planes (the planes will be discussed in a few lessons). Anything that you experience has always been there; only now, for the first time, you have opened your senses enough so that you can become aware of it. I first became aware of these things while watching a boring program on T.V. Suddenly, out of nowhere, a large serpent semed to come out of the floor and descend back into the floor about a foot away from its point of entry! A friend of mine calls these things "astral garbage." I call them "little nasties." They cannot harm you in any way.

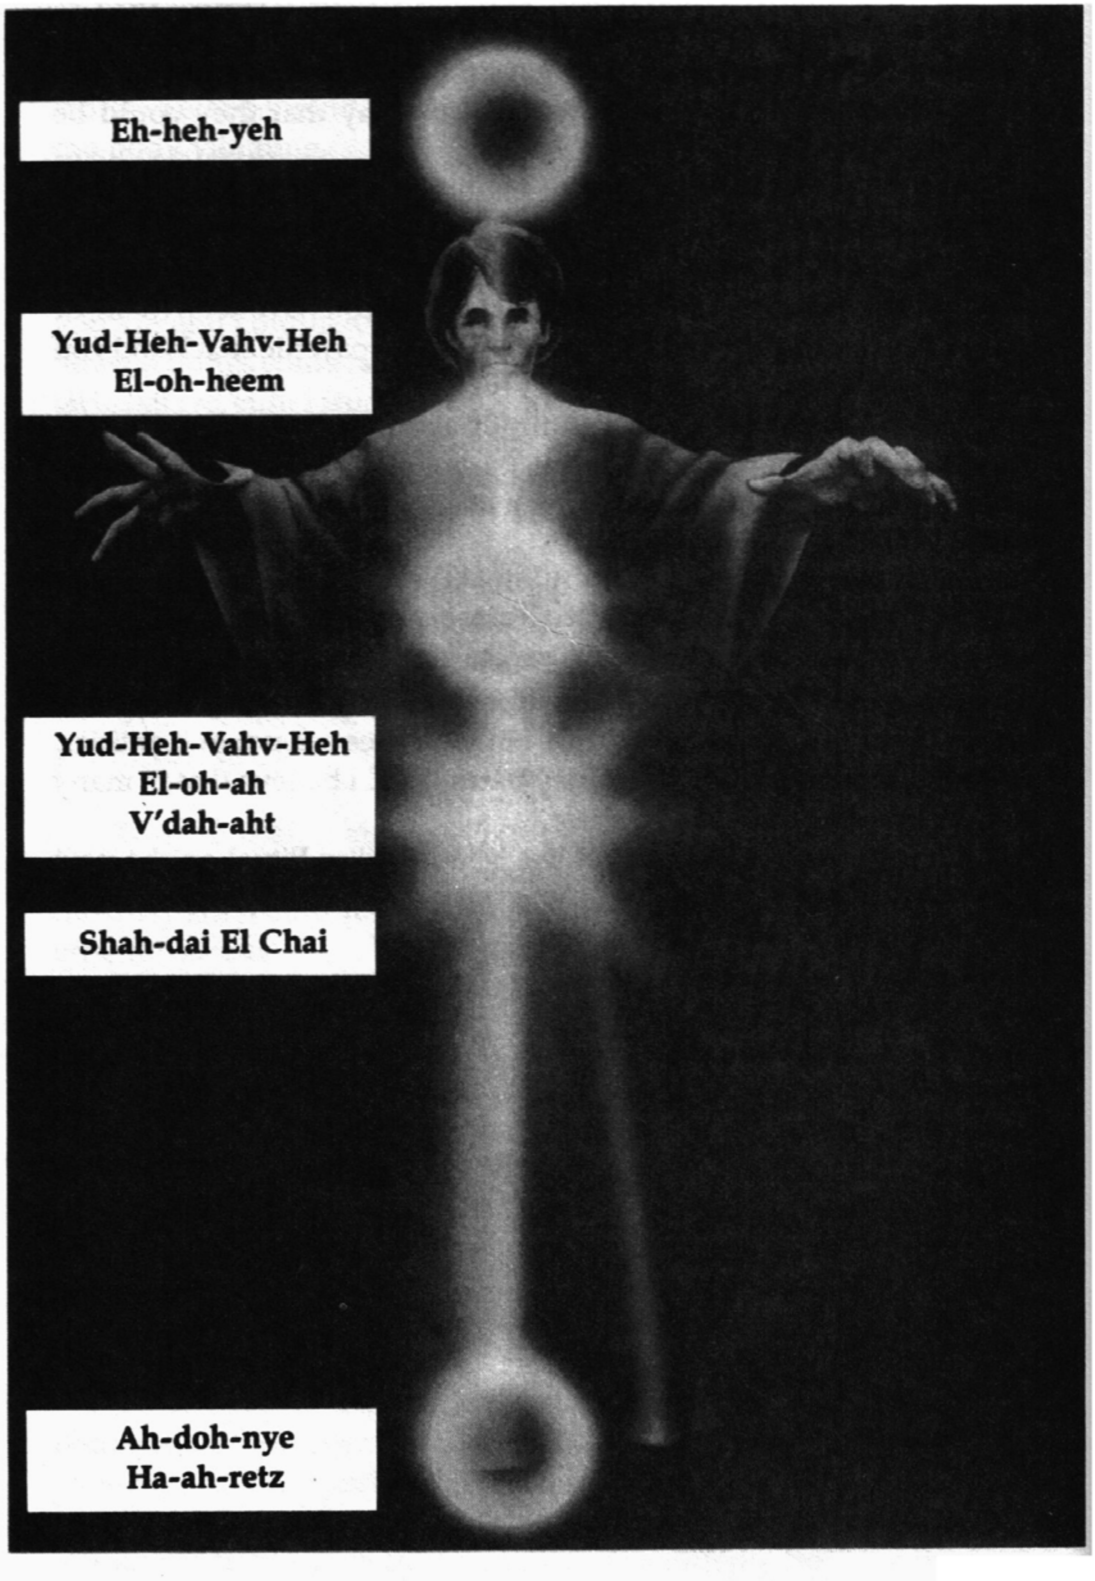
Let me repeat that: Little Nasties cannot hurt you. They can be bothersome, however. Sometimes I'll think that somebody is looking over my shoulder and I'll spin around to see who it is only to find empty air! One time, while talking to a person at a party, I thought I saw an old friend walk by. I turned away suddenly from the person I was talking to in order to say hello to. . . a bush! When I turned back to the person I was talking with she gave me a strange look and quickly made an excuse to leave. Oh well. . . I did say that they could be bothersome.

Other people have told me of seeing friends who weren't there, as I did, and others have heard voices calling them. Some people see bright, sparkly spots floating through the air. You may never see them and still become a very successful magician. If you have seen them, or do see them in the future, don't worry. It's not a psychic attack and you are not going crazy. And they can't hurt you.

In fact, if you have the right attitude about Little Nasties, they can be sort of fun, especially at a boring party. In any event, don't be surprised when those little guys bring a little silliness, fun, and at times exasperation into your life.

In all honesty, I am not really sure what they are. In some cases they seem to be what are called "elementals" (more on them in another lesson). In other cases, because you are working via visualization on the astral plane, you may, like a weird cosmic magnet, just be attracting meaningless astral junk. Little Nasties are not evil entities. Many children have "invisible playmates," and I believe that in many instances these are Little Nasties.

You will find a summary of the Middle Pillar Ritual on the next page.



Eh-heh-yeh
Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh El-oh-heem
Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh El-oh-ah V'dah-aht
Shah-dai El Chai
Ah-doh-nye Ha-ah-retz

The Middle Pillar Ritual

REVIEW

The following questions are designed to help you determine if you have mastered the information in Lesson Two. Please try to answer them without looking at the text. The answers are in Appendix Two.

1. Name the four parts of the LBRP.
2. What is AGLA an abbreviation for?
3. Who is the Archangel of the North?
4. What is the "Great Voice?"
5. How do you make the sign of the element water?
6. What are the three "literatures" of the ancient Hebrews?
7. Name the man who made Hebrew into a modern, living language.
8. How was the Hebrew letter Vahv probably originally pronounced?
9. What was the earliest form of Hebrew mysticism?
10. Who started the French Occult Revival?
11. What are the four main branches of the Kabalah?
12. How do you say "Without Limit" in Hebrew?
13. What are the "Little Nasties?"

The following questions only you can answer.

1. Are you doing all of the rituals (Relaxation, LBRP and Middle Pillar) regularly?
2. Do you understand Kabalistic psychology?
3. Do you have a beginning understanding of the Kabalah and the Tree of Life?
4. Do you understand the idea of Thesis-Antithesis-Synthesis?

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Aima, Ancient Wisdom and Rituals, The, Foibles Pub., 1979
Crowley, A., Magick in Theory and Practice, Dover, 1976.
King, Francis & Skinner, Stephen, Techniques of High Magic, Warner Destiny, 1976.
Mathers, S.L.M., Kabbalah Unveiled, The, Samuel Weiser, 1968.
Ponce, C., Kabalah, Straight Arrow Books, 1973
Regardie, Israel, Ceremonial Magic, Aquarian Press, 1980.
  Foundations of Practical Magic, Aquarian Press, 1979
  Garden of Pomegranates, A, Llewellyn Publications, 1970.
  Golden Dawn, The, Llewellyn Publications, 1970.
  Middle Pillar, The, Llewellyn Publications, 1970.
  One Year Manual, The, Samuel Weiser, 1981.
Various, Sepher Yetzirah. There are several versions available. All are good for our studies except those by Suarez or Mordell.
Torrens, R.G., Golden Dawn: Its Inner Teachings, The, Spearman, 1969.
Wippler, Migene Gonzalez, Kabbalah for the Modern World, A, Llewellyn Publications, 1987.
Zohar, The, 5 volumes, Soincino Press.

Lesson

3

PART ONE

Have you ever heard of a "Sunday Morning Christian"? A Sunday Morning Christian is a person who goes to church every Sunday (to be seen), sings very loudly (to be heard) and puts large bills in the collection plate. Then, in business, he does everything possible to steal and cheat. He lies about his friends and enemies and he cheats on his wife. Yes, he puts on a big show of being a Christian for a few hours every Sunday, but when it comes to living every minute of the day after the manner of Jesus, he fails miserably.

So what does this have to do with Ceremonial Magick? Like the Sunday Morning Christians who think that Christianity is something you do once a week, most people think that magick is something you do. This is totally wrong.

Magick is not something that you do. Magick is something that you are!

To really be a magician means that your "mindset" is totally centered around magick. This means that no matter what you are doing, thinking or saying, there is always in your mind the idea of how everything is related magickally. Thus, if you are talking politics, you might be thinking about how a politician is able to convince people to vote for him or her without ever mentioning a political platform. Certainly this is a powerful form of magic; convincing people to do things for no apparent reason. When you are cooking you might be thinking about how the element of fire affects meats, their by-products, and vegetables. When magick becomes your way of thinking, acting and breathing, then you will be a magician.

This brings us back, for a moment, to the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn. There were really six degrees in the Golden Dawn, which, if you did well, would allow you to seek entrance into the inner order, the R.R. et A.C. If you have studied a bit about the Golden Dawn, this may shock you: The Golden Dawn was never a magickal order! The inner order, the Roseae Rubeae et Aureae Crucis (Red Rose and Gold Cross; R.R. et A.C.) did practice practical magick. The outer order, the Golden Dawn, did not.

The Golden Dawn did have several purposes in the Order's overall scheme. It allowed people to meet and learn to have confidence in each other. It allowed people to learn the theories and philosophies which would later allow them to do practical magick. But for the purpose of this course, the most important aspects are that it initiated people and got them attuned to the four magickal elements.

Obviously, I cannot initiate you via a book. No one can. But what is the need and purpose of initiation, anyway?

Initiation has two aspects, practical and mystical. On a practical level, initiation gives you nothing. Rather, it allows you to begin to do a certain prescribed system of work. As an example, a person initiated into the Neophyte degree of the Golden Dawn was to begin learning the Hebrew alphabet, the symbols of the planets and the zodiac, and he or she was also to begin doing the LBRP. The word "initiation" comes from a Latin root which means "to begin."

The mystical aspects of initiation are a different story. Imagine a private club which you want to enter. You knock on the door and the bouncer, who doesn't recognize you, sends you away. Then, a person who knows both you and the bouncer comes up and introduces you to each other. From that time on you are a welcome guest in the private club. In this little story, the introduction to a higher, stronger force in the form of a bouncer, was your initiation. In reality, the mystical aspectsof initiation not only introduce you to higher powers (or, if you prefer, your higher self), but it also causes spiritual, emotional and physical effects within you which allow you to be easily recognized in the future by the higher powers.

There is another way to cause the inner changes which allow this recognition. You could go up to the bouncer day after day, week after week and month after month if need be, talk to the bouncer and bring him presents and friendship until finally, without a third-party introduction, the bouncer allows you into the club. The way that this can be done is through performing the work of this course.

In the Golden Dawn, an initiation into the Nephyte Grade gave you membership, companionship with others of a like mind, and allowed both you and the other members of the Order to see how well you could work together. Since you are not becoming a member of any order, that particular initiation is not vital to your advancement. The next four grades of the Order try to balance you with the four magickal elements and, in fact, were sometimes referred to as the "elementary grades." We will be learning about the magickal elements, Earth, Air, Fire and Water, one at a time and in their proper order.

The Neophyte grade of the Golden Dawn was not related to the elements. In fact, it was not considered to be the first degree of the order. It was called the 0=0 Grade. The next degree, known as the first degree or 1=10 (first degree equals the tenth Sephira) was associated with the element of Earth, so it is there we must now begin. We must become in total harmony with this element.

Each of the four magickal elements are representative of alternate aspects of the qualities of temperature and humidity. Since we are working with the element of Earth, let's examine its qualities. Obviously, Earth is not wet. Nor is it warm (except when infused with the element of Fire as seen in lava). Therefore, we can say that the element Earth has the qualities of being dry and cool.

The next step is to learn how to become aware of and in control of this element in our day-to-day life.

Exercise 1. Make a list of things which have the combined qualities of dryness and coolness. However, don't do this just out of your head. Rather, make a list of Earth things that you see each day. Practice this for one week. Be sure to record the results each day in your magickal diary.

Exercise 2. Find a place filled with nature, such as a field or park. Wear as little clothing as you can (if possible, nudity is best), and sit or lie on the ground so that as much of your skin as possible is touching the ground. This is especially easy for women, as they can simply wear a flowing skirt with no underwear and sit on the ground with the skirt spread out. In this way there is nothing between the skin and the Earth. Spend some time contemplating, feeling the coolness and dryness of the Earth. You should do this at least three times within a week.

If you happen to find a grassy spot, or an area which has recently been watered, you may have a feeling that the magickal element of Earth has wetness in it. There are two responses to this. First, temperature and humidity are relative. It may be damp compared to desert sand, but it is dry compared to ocean water. At least this shows that you are thinking about the elements. However, the real answer to the idea that earth has some wetness to it is that you are mistaking the physical soil for the magickal archetypal element Earth. A physical representation always lacks the purity of the archetype. Since we are physical and learn through our senses, we move in our minds from the physical imperfect object to the pure archetype. It is in this way we gain knowledge of the magickal elements.

Exercise 3. Spend a period of up to three minutes (no more), once a day, imagining that you are the element Earth. Feel the heaviness, the slowness, the coolness and dryness of Earth. Feel the way you can absorb the pains and problems of the world (however, do not actually do so). Become Earth. Do this exercise for at least a week before moving to the next exercise.

Exercise 4. Once you have learned to "be Earth," the next step is to control the element Earth. Take a moment and imagine yourself to be Earth. Bring the feeling from the previous exercise into your consciousness. Next, hold your hands 9 to 12 inches apart, palms facing each other. Imagine a bottle or box between your hands. Now, as you exhale, visualize all of the Earth element which is in you going out with your breath and into the container between your hands. Three to five breaths should be enough to fill it. Then, with three breaths, inhale it back into you and go back to normal consciousness.

The Test. This will allow you to see whether or not you really have become not only in harmony with the magickal element Earth, but also see if you are able to control the element.

The next time that you feel lightheaded, giddy, unstable, not able to do your work, etc., form the container of Earth as described in Exercise 4. Then, once the container of Earth has been formed, with one big inhalation, draw the contents of the container back into you. Within five minutes you should feel stable and grounded.

The next time that you feel bloated, overweight, slowed down, etc., again form the container of Earth; only this time, visualize a large hole in the ground and drop the container into that hole. Quickly see the hole close. You should feel lighter in a few minutes, but it may be necessary to repeat this exercise up to five times to really feel light (but not like an "airhead") and energetic.

When you have succeeded at both parts of this test you will have mastered the element of Earth. However, if you do not succeed at it within a few days or weeks, don't worry about it. Just keep practicing. Remember, initiation is a beginning, not an ending. Continue with your studies in this course. Do not stop and wait until you perfect your mastery of the element. Be sure to record the results of your experiments, whether they be good, bad or indifferent, in your magick diary.

PART TWO

Before starting this part of this lesson, go back and reread the sections on the Kabalah in the last lesson. If you have not read them for a while, don't be surprised if the material now makes more sense to you than it did at your earlier readings. This is because your mind has had the time to digest the information subconsciously and intuitively come to an understanding of what was described in the last lesson. In fact, this is a good reason to periodically review all of these lessons.

We are going to be looking again at that central glyph of the Kabalah, the Tree of Life. There are many ways to study the Tree, and in this part of the lesson we are going to look at a few of the ways to analyze the symbol.

The Three Pillars. Look at the Tree of Life that you will find on page 87. You will see that the figure has been divided into three large pillars. The pillar on the left is composed of the 3rd, 5th and 8th Sephiroht, and is known as the Pillar of Severity. On the right, the pillar is composed of the 2nd, 4th and 7th Sephiroht. Being opposite of the pillar on the left, the one on the right is known as the Pillar of Mercy. Balancing the two outer pillars is the Middle Pillar. It is composed of the 1st, 6th, 9th and 10th Sephiroht, and is known as the Pillar of Mildness.

It is interesting to note that the Pillar of Severity, on the left, is considered to be female while the Pillar of Mercy is considered to be masculine; a reversal of what might be considered to be an archetypal norm. However, if you study Jungian theories of archetypes, you will find that just as there is the kind, helping, beneficial "Great Mother," so, too, is there the feminine element which works against you, known as the "Terrible Mother." See, for example, myths of evil older women (Hansel and Gretel), and deceptive and powerful younger ones (Circe).

On page 88 is another version of the Tree of Life. On it, each Sephira has its name both in transliterated Hebrew and the English translation of the Hebrew. Compare the two versions of the Tree of Life and follow along as the meanings of the Pillars are described.

The Pillar of Mercy. To be merciful, we must have the Wisdom to see the results of our actions and realize that Victory can come about through Wisdom and the ability to endure (show Mercy instead of a short temper), not just through strength alone.

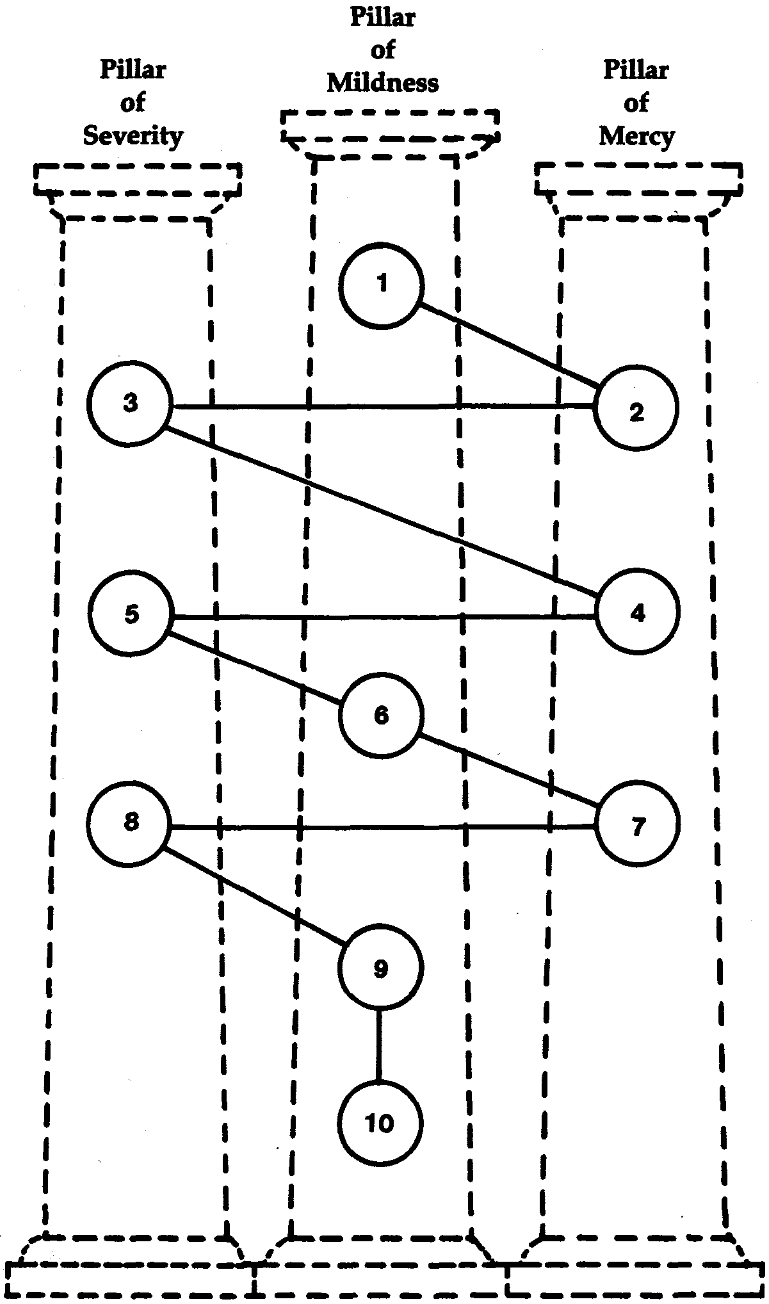
The Pillar of Severity. To be severe we must have an Understanding of the laws of the universe and the Strength to empower them justly, but never yielding to giving mercy, only justice. This will result in an outward power and Splendor which hides the lack of humanity and mercy which reside beneath the surface.

The Pillar of Mildness. To be mild we must realize that we live in the Kingdom (of Earth) and we are not Gods. Therefore, in whatever we strive for we must seek a Foundation of Beauty by trying to avoid the extremes of over-severity and too much mercy. In this way we can seek to Crown our efforts with success.

Thus, here is one way to understand the Tree of Life, by the system of the Three Pillars. If we are not successful in our efforts toward achieving any particular goal, we can see where we are unbalanced, i.e., focused toward one side of the Tree. We can then seek to add some of the balancing characteristic from the opposite side of the Tree. The result moves us to the center, toward the Pillar of Mildness, which could also be called the Pillar of True Manifestation.

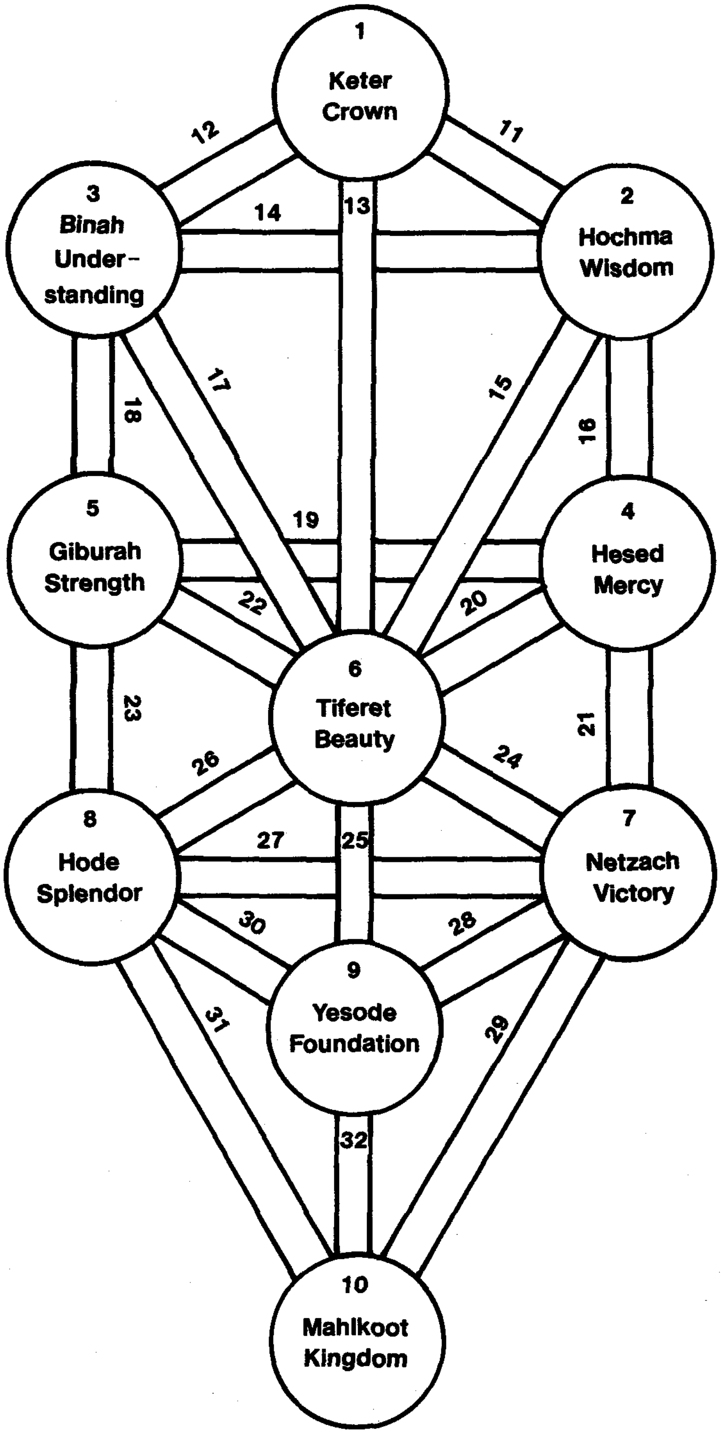
The Three Triangles. The next system of looking at the Tree is known as the Three Triangles. As can be seen from the diagram on page 90, the Tree of Life can be divided into three triangles, the top one pointing upwards and the other two pointing downwards.

The Celestial Triangle. The uppermost triangle, composed of the first three Sephiroht, is known as the Celestial Triangle. It starts at a single point which means that it comes from the unity of God and divides into two sides. This shows that although Divinity is a unity, everything which manifests can be seen in the form of a duality: male and female, up and down, in and out, hot and cold, etc. It is one of the duties of a magician to learn to overcome everything which seems to be in opposition in order to achieve unity with Divinity (this is an ancient secret of the Kabalah and is understood by Tantriks. It will be discussed in a later lesson). As an example, the magician must learn



Pillar of Mildness
Pillar of Severity
Pillar of Mercy
1
3
2
5
4
6
8
7
9
10

Tree of Life: The Three Pillars



1
Keter
Crown
2
Hochma
Wisdom
3 Binah Understanding 4
Hesed
Mercy
5
Giburah
Strength
6
Tiferet
Beauty
7 Netzach
Victory
8
Hode
Splendor
9 Yesode Foundation
10
Mahlkoot
Kingdom
11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28
29
30
31
32

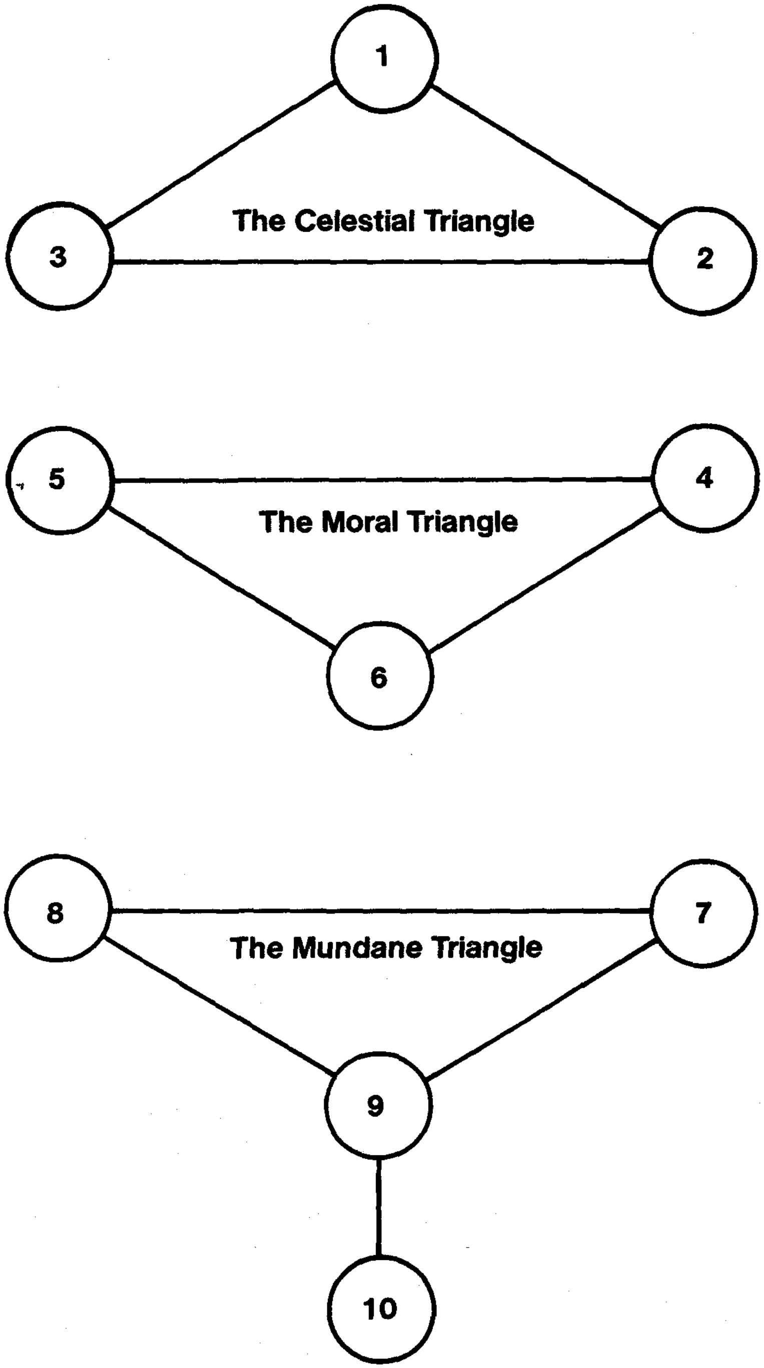
The Tree of Life

that day is not opposite to night, but rather both day and night are a natural part of the Earth's spinning on its axis. Also, it is in this uppermost triangle that we can see those qualities of beings who are truly celestial in nature. They have Wisdom and Understanding. Thus, they are capable of wearing the Crown of creation and rule both the visible, physical world and the higher planes of existence.

The Moral Triangle. The middle triangle which points down is called the Moral Triangle. A combination of Strength and Mercy results in the development of Beauty. If we have too much mercy, we become weak and unable to complete our goals. People take advantage of us and we die young. On the other hand, if we show only strength and are totally unmerciful, we might be able to achieve our goals (although never without difficulty), but we will have no friends, have no real love, and our "success" becomes meaningless. By developing Strength and Mercy we exhibit a Beauty which aids us in achieving all of our goals, and gives us happiness in what we do achieve.

The Mundane Triangle. The lowest triangle is called the Mundane Triangle. It is an apt name. It concerns physical plane successes only, not mental and spiritual ones as are found in the Moral and Celestial triangles. Here, a Victory followed by too much Mercy leads to defeat, while the Splendor of a Victory, if not tempered with Mercy, leads to revolution and ruin. When balanced, a Foundation for success in this world exists and a Kingdom, as represented by the one Sephira hanging pendant to the Three Triangles, may be founded.

As you can see, each system of understanding the Tree of Life helps to explain the other systems. Go back for a second and look at the diagram of the Three Pillars. We can say that the path of a mystic or Yogi, whose intent it is to rejoin with the Divine (at Keter, the 1st Sephira), follows the Middle Pillar. This path, sometimes known as the "Path of the Arrow," is like the path an arrow flies if pointed straight up from Mahl-koot to Keter. The Yogi sits in meditation until he or she can simply "hop" from the lowest to the highest. Now, looking at a full diagram of the Tree of Life, you can understand that the path of a magician leads from Sephira to Sephira, going through and learning about each one while also covering each of the connecting 22 paths, winding about like a snake. In fact, the path of the magician is sometimes known as the Path of the Serpent. At each Sephira, on each of the connecting paths, the magician learns new things and has new



1
The Celestial Triangle
3
2
5
4
The Moral Triangle
6
8
7
The Mundane Triangle
9
10

The Three Triangles

and exciting experiences which the mystic or yogi will never know. The Yogi merely sits until ready to make the jump. The magician takes a circuitous route. Each can achieve the goal of unity with Divinity, White Magick, in the same amount of time. It is their own determination and abilities which speed or delay the coming of unity, of Nirvana, of the ultimate mystical ecstasy of "The Knowledge and Conversation of Your Holy Guardian Angel."

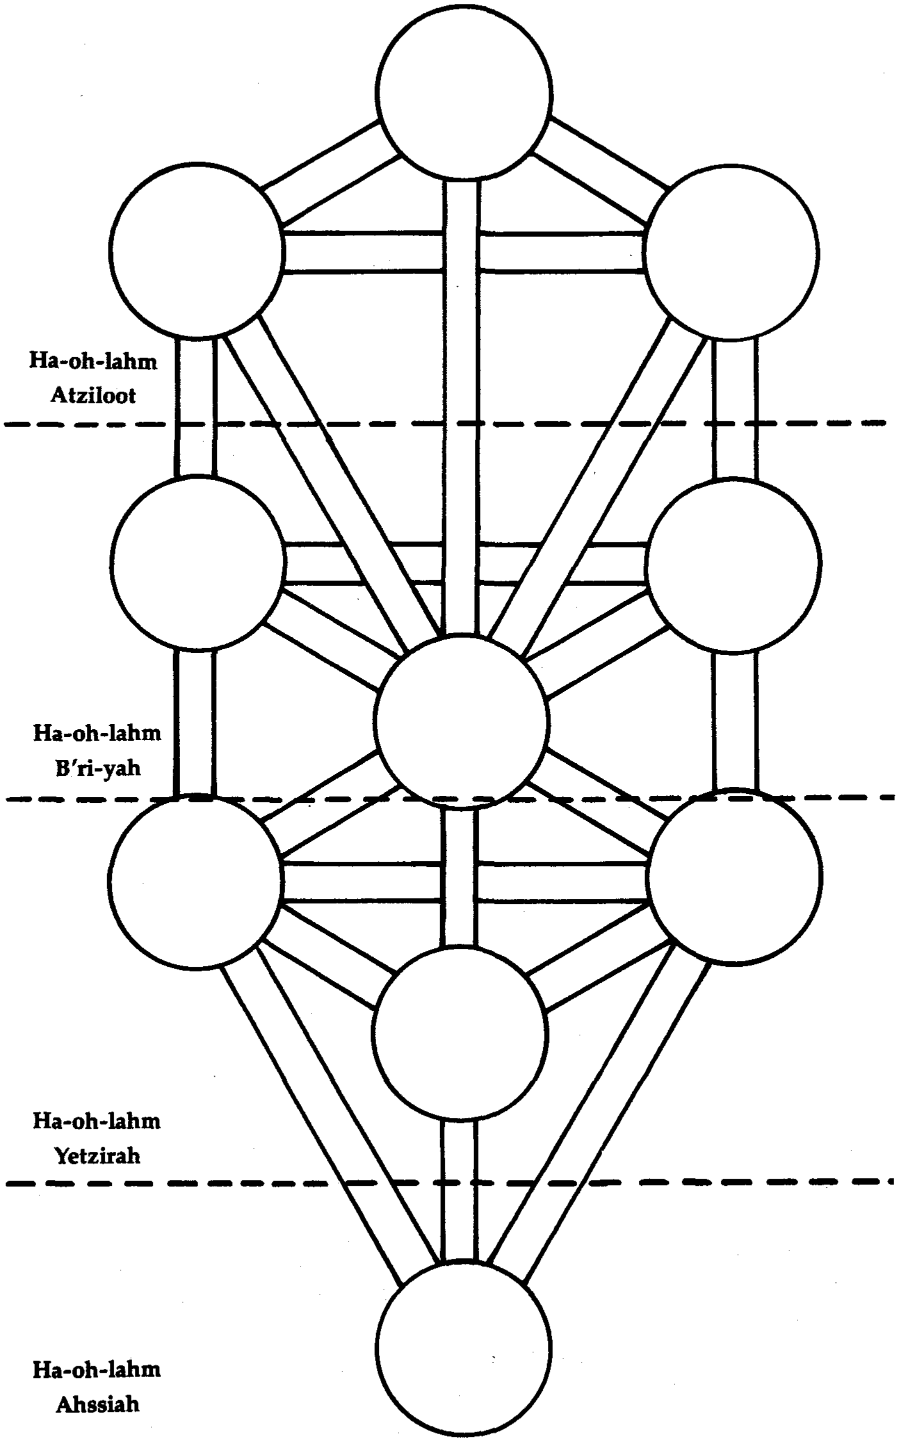
I like to use an understanding of the Three Triangles as a basis for psychology. By understanding which Sephira a person is "at" I can recommend what the person needs to do for improvement. If, for example, a person always finds himself or herself being taken advantage of, I believe that person to be "in" the Sephira Hesed, number 4, Mercy. That person needs to develop more inner strength, strength enough to say "No!" to someone who is trying to take advantage. Then, instead of being the person everyone thinks of as being the one to take advantage of, people will be able to learn for the first time what he or she thinks about, cares about and wants to do. They will see this person for the beautiful entity that person is.

The Four Worlds. Another method of looking at the Tree is called the method of the Four Worlds. Look at the diagram on page 92 showing one of the systems of understanding the Four Worlds. Dividing lines have been drawn between the triangles as previously described. Thus, each triangle and the single tenth Sephira represents a "World."

The topmost triangle, composed of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Sephiroht is known as Ha-oh-lam Atziloot, which means the World of Archetypes or Emanations. It is the Divine world wherein exist the thoughts of God. It is in this World that the aspects of the powers of God, as represented by the Names of God, are said to exist.

The middle triangle, composed of the 4th, 5th and 6th Sephiroht, is known as Ha-oh-lahm B'ri-yah, which means the World of Creation. It is not yet real in a physical sense; it is far more of the conscious mind. It is in this world that the archangels are said to exist.

The bottommost triangle is formed of the 7th, 8th and 9th Sephiroht and is known as Ha-oh-lahm Yetzirah or the World of Formation. It is considered by some to be equal to the Astral Plane, which is the basis for everything that exists in the physical universe. It is in this world that the various "orders" of angels are said to exist.



Ha-oh-lahm
Atziloot
Ha-oh-lahm
B'ri-yah
Ha-oh-lahm
Yetzirah
Ha-oh-lahm
Ahssiah

The Four Worlds

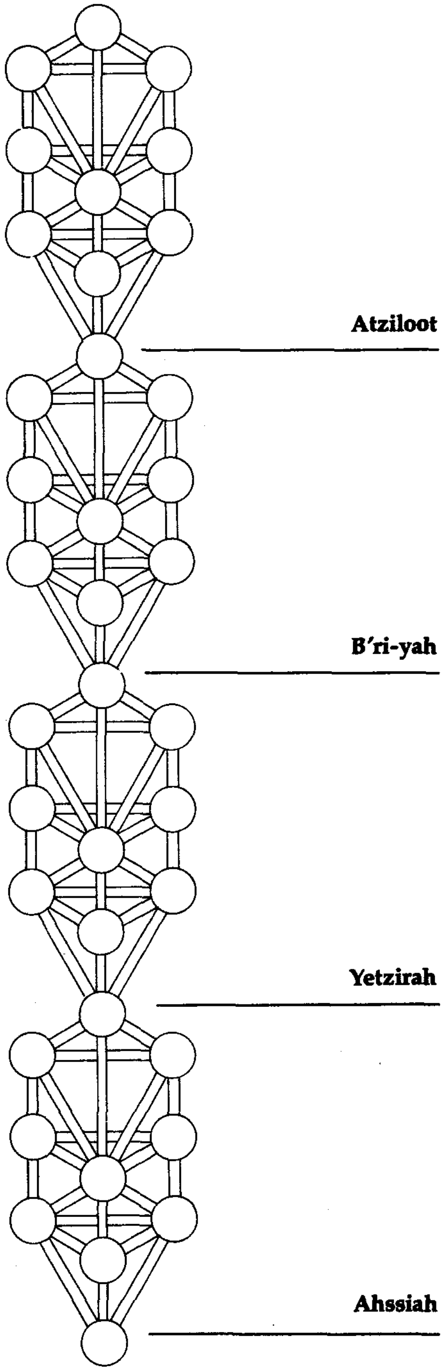
The 10th Sephira in this system is known as Ha-oh-lahm Ahssiah, the World of Action. It is the world wherein the four elements, and hence the physical universe, exist and wherein physical action can occur.

But what good does this Four Worlds system do? Let us assume that God wishes to create a universe. The first thing God would need to do is perceive the need for something. Here God is operating in the world of Atziloot. Next, God would see that a universe composed of Air, Earth, Fire and Water and living things was necessary. Here God would be operating in the world of B'ri-yah. Next God would begin doing whatever was necessary to create the universe. Here God would be operating in the world of Yetzirah. Finally, God would put life and action into the formed parts of the universe, and would be operating in the world of Ahssiah.

But how does this apply to us? Let us say that you need something to hold your papers when doing a ritual. You see a need, and therefore are in the world of Atziloot. Next, you begin to visualize it. It is made of wood, higher in the back than in the front so that the papers are at a nice angle, and there is a ledge at the bottom of the front so that the papers do not slide off. Here you are in the world of B'ri-yah. Now you go out and buy the wood, cut it to size, assemble the stand and finish it with an attractive and appropriate paint job. Here you are in the world of Formation, Ha-oh-lahm Yetzirah. Finally, you put it to use, and you are then operating in the world of Ahssiah. If you have ever desired anything but have not been able to bring it into your own world, then it is most likely that you have overlooked the importance of one of the Four Worlds. We will learn more about the process of bringing things into our lives (Grey Magick) in later lessons.

As stated earlier, the Kabalah has changed over time and has not been a static, unchanging system. There are other versions of the Four Worlds. One system holds that the divisions of the Four Worlds should show only the topmost Sephira, Keter, as being in the first World. The next two Sephiroht are in the second World. Sephiroht four through nine make up the third World of Yetzirah, and the fourth World is made up only of the final Sephira, Mahl-koot.

Another system holds that there is a full Tree of Life within each Sephira on the Tree of Life! Thus, there would be 100 Sephiroht to deal with. You could have Keter in Keter, Hochma in Keter and up to ten different Sephiroht in each Sephira. With this system the worlds get quite complicated.



Atziloot
B'ri-yah
Yetzirah
Ahssiah

Alternate Version of the Four Worlds

Another system puts four Trees of Life on top of each other, with each Tree representing a world (see the diagram opposite). In this system there are forty Sephiroht. Finally, another system says that there is a full Tree of Life within each of the forty Sephiroht for a total of 400 Sephiroht! Although going into detail on the meaning of this last system is far too advanced and complicated for this course, you might wish to spend some time contemplating the different Worlds and the various ideas of Trees of Life within the Sephiroht.

PART THREE

This section is a very special part of the book. What this part of the lesson consists of is simple, safe and practical information on what meditation is and on how to meditate. Although you are encouraged to meditate on a daily basis as a necessary part of your own spiritual development, you are free to practice the technique given here as you will. It is not part of your suggested daily ritual practice. I do strongly suggest, however, that you either make time to practice it daily for at least several months, or do include it as part of your daily ritual.

In recent years there has been quite a furor concerning how to meditate and the benefits you can obtain from the practice of meditation. There have been many books which have seen print over the last fifteen years or so with titles such as "How to Meditate" or "One-hundred-and-One Ways to Meditate" or something similar. Most of these books have good points and bad points, beginning with trying to define exactly what meditation is. Without a definition of what meditation is, you can hardly be taught how to do it!

One group of authors tries to equate meditation with contemplation or concentration. This is probably because (a) their teacher(s) didn't know any better, (b) they don't know any better, or (c) they simply looked up the meaning of the word "meditation" in a dictionary.

Most English dictionaries will define meditation as some form of contemplation. The two words are seemingly almost synonyms. Thus, those teachers who equate meditation with contemplation would have you simply look at an object, listen to a sound or contemplate a thought and call it meditation. It is not.

Meditation as it really exists is derived from an Eastern idea based not on contemplation, but silence; the silence of the mind. In the book Meditation and the Bible, Aryeh Kaplan clearly shows that similar techniques were used by the ancient Hebrew mystics and prophets. Unfortunately, most of the ancient Hebrew techniques have been lost along with the writings of the Merkabah Mystics. But here is the basic theory behind meditation:

> Try for a second to rid your mind of all thought, to make it perfectly quiet. Unless you know what real meditation is and have practiced it, it is inevitable that you will fail at this seemingly simple request. A voice will run through your head saying such things as "There, I'm quiet now," or "Am I doing this right?" or "How long do I have to keep this up?" In true meditation the goal is to silence the inner voice.

In another lesson we will learn that our unconscious (or subconscious) is our direct link to Divinity, to God. Since, by definition, God must be all knowledgeable (otherwise something else could be greater than God. If there is something greater than God, then that greater Thing must be the true God and what we have been calling God is only a false God or subordinate deity), our subconscious must have a link to all knowledge, to the secret wisdom of the universe, to enlightenment.

But that little voice which constantly is speaking in our head usually shuts out the even smaller voice of our subconscious. One of the things which can occur in our dreams is that our subconscious speaks to us through symbols which are sometimes difficult to understand. In true meditation our subconscious can speak to our conscious directly, sharing its wisdom.

What follows is a method for true meditation. There are other well-publicized schools of meditation which charge over a hundred dollars to teach you a technique for meditation. Some of these schools brag about how their techniques result in lowered blood pressure and increased IQs. This bragging is absurd. Any form of relaxation (such as the Relaxation Ritual) will result in lowered blood pressure. Also, the same social scientists who used to say a person's IQ did not change over a lifetime are now teaching classes in how to raise your IQ through study and concentration.

Although true meditation will have the effect of increasing one's IQ and lowering blood pressure, these are merely additional side benefits. The true benefit of real meditation is the experience of oneness with Divinity; that form of White Magick known as enlightenment or cosmic consciousness.

True meditation has three steps:

1. Relaxation. The purpose of this step is to get rid of any physical tension or pain so that the physical body will not get in the way of the next steps.

2. Contemplation. The purpose of this step is to completely unite your consciousness with a sound, object, idea, drawing, etc. Notice that relaxation and contemplation are both parts of true meditation, but do not constitute the whole.

3. Negation. In this step (the step which is usually left out of lessons on how to meditate), you eliminate from your mind all consciousness of what you have been contemplating. Since your consciousness has become united with what you have been contemplating, it (your consciousness) also leaves when you get rid of the object of your contemplation. The result is a state wherein your consciousness is not blocking the already existent link between you and the Divine. This is White Magick, the state of true bliss, and is the ultimate and only goal of true meditation. Unless you try it and achieve the true meditative state, no words can fully explain it. It is beyond conscious communication of thought.

In the following form of meditation, you will be focusing on a familiar object. Some traditional books would have you meditate on the Tatva symbols, specially colored geometric figures including triangles, squares and ovoid shapes which represent the elements. While this is fine for cultures where visual stimulation is not as complex as in Western film and television loving cultures, I have found through research done during my classes that Westerners often need something different, something more visually complex.

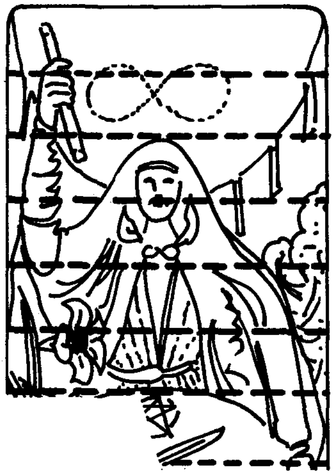
A TECHNIQUE OF TRUE MEDITATION

STEP ONE. Perform the Relaxation Ritual.

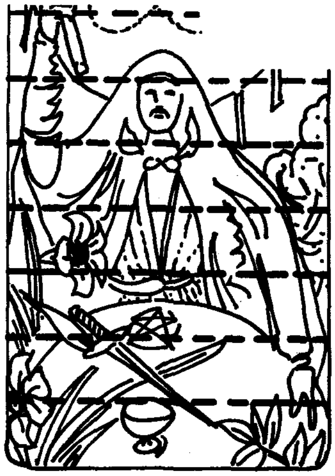
STEP TWO. Perform the LBRP. Always be sure to do a protection ritual before meditating.

STEP THREE. Shuffle the Major Arcana cards (practice this for several weeks with cards 6, 7, 10, 13, 15 and 18 left out) and randomly select one to use. This will be the object which you will use for the contemplation part of this technique.

STEP FOUR. If you feel the need, do the Relaxation Ritual again.



Scanning



De-Scanning

STEP FIVE. Scanning: This step works in a way similar in nature to the method by which a television produces a picture. In a picture tube is a device called an "electron gun" which shoots electrons in a small single beam toward the screen, forming a "scan line" across the front of the tube. The beam from the electron gun then jumps back to just below the first line and repeats the process. If you look closely at the front of your set when it is on, you can see the lines. But you cannot see the lines being made because the process is done so fast that your eye cannot follow it, so it appears that you have a solid picture.

In this meditation technique, scanning is done this way:

1. Start by looking at the upper right hand corner of your chosen card.
2. Look at a horizontal strip of the card about a half-inch from top to bottom. Move your vision from right to left across the width of the card. Thus you should have a strip of the card in your mind composed of the uppermost half-inch of the card.
3. Now return to the right-hand side of the card and scan again across the card, from right to left, covering another half-inch immediately below your previous scan.
4. Repeat this process until you have totally covered the card.

What you are doing is observing the card, from top to bottom, a half-inch at a time. Try to remember as much of each strip or "scan" as you can, but don't worry about perfection. You will get better with practice.

STEP SIX. Contemplation: In this step you will become fully involved with the object. Put simply, the technique is to reproduce the previous step of scanning, but within your mind's eye.

1. Put down the card so that you can no longer see its face.
2. By memory, go through and visualize the entire scanning process.

Go one strip at a time until you have reproduced, to the best of your ability, the entire card in your imagination. The first time you do this you may miss many things and colors, and perhaps you will only be able to recall and mentally create the outline of shapes that were on the card. It is not important that you are completely accurate with your visualization, but your visualization abilities will improve with practice. This does not mean that it is permissible to be lazy or overly brief in this process. You must do the very best that you can. This step should take between three and four minutes, but if you wish it may take longer.

STEP SEVEN. Negation:

1. Starting again in the upper right-hand corner of the card which you have now visualized through the scanning procedure, take the topmost scan and, moving from right to left, erase the image. That is, "de-scan" it; make it disappear. In your mind's eye you should still see a card, but with its top half-inch removed.
2. Return to the top right-hand corner of what is left of your visualized card and take off another strip.
3. Continue this de-scanning, erasing process until the entire card is gone from your mind. Duration for this step: about 1½-3 minutes, maximum.

STEP EIGHT. The State of True Meditation: At this point, a very interesting phenomenon will occur. Your consciousness which has been caught up in the act of de-scanning the visualized card, will also be "gone" (actually it will only be silent) by the time the card is gone. Your consciousness will be silent and the monologue in your head will be stopped. This will give your subconscious a chance to speak to you and give you possibly important messages and information.

Usually the first time somebody tries the process described above, the true meditative state lasts only an instant. The inner voice returns and asks something like "Am I silent? Did I do this right?" As soon as the voice comes back, the meditation is over.

As you practice this technique you will be able to make that instant of true meditation last a minute, five minutes, or more. As this state stretches out in length you will have a new feeling come over you, a feeling of being in total harmony with the universe, of having all knowledge and knowing that although things must evolve to a better state, all things are exactly as they should be at this instant in time. This is known as cosmic consciousness or enlightenment. It is, as I have said, really impossible to speak of this state of feeling, this state of existence. You must try it and discover its beauty for yourself.

As stated at the beginning of this section, it is not required that you practice meditation. Nor is it required that you practice this particular method of meditation. However, sooner or later you will come to realize that meditation should become a part of your daily life.

When you do decide to meditate on a regular basis, if you choose to use another system of meditation than is described here, do not deceive yourself into thinking that you are really meditating if all you are doing is concentrating or relaxing. Those are aspects of true meditation, but they are not meditation in and of themselves.

Also, you will find that all of your rituals and exercises will be greatly improved by practicing true meditation.

PART FOUR

In this portion we will be focusing on what is known as the "Unwritten Kabalah." On the next page you will find a list of correspondences; that is, a list of how various things and ideas correspond with the Sephiroht on the Tree of Life. In this section you will learn the information necessary to understand the list.

As you can see, by the left of each row are the numbers 1 through 10. These, as you probably guessed, represent the numbers associated with each of the Sephiroht. The first column gives the name of each Sephira as they would be pronounced in Hebrew. The next column gives the translation of those names into English. I would like to mention here that some texts, especially those written for a primarily Jewish readership, sometimes give alternate names and/or spellings for the Sephiroht. For example, Giburah is frequently called "Pachad," which means "fear." However, this type of study falls more appropriately under the subject of the Dogmatic Kabalah which, for the most part, is beyond the scope and purpose of the present course.

The third column is labeled "Color (Q.S.)." Kabalistically, there are four sets of colors (one for each of the four Kabalistic Worlds) related to the Sephiroht. They are named after the court cards of the Minor Arcana of the Tarot. In the Golden Dawn, initiates were expected to know all of the color scales. However, for our purposes, the most important version of the colors for the ten Sephiroht is called the Queen Scale (hence the "Q.S."), which are the colors given here.

The Queen Scale colors are associated with the world known as B'ri-yah. Traditionally it is believed that it is more important to become familiar with the Queen Scale sephirotic colors than with the other scales of color. Note that there are four colors associated with the 10th Sephira. This is because the 10th Sephira relates to the Earth, the world of the four archetypal elements: Air, Earth, Fire and Water. By now you should be beginning to become familiar with the element

Kabalistic Correspondences

	Sephira	Translation	Color(Q.S.)
1	Keter	Crown	White Brilliance
2	Hochma	Wisdom	Gray
3	Binah	Understanding	Black
4	Hesed	Mercy	Blue
5	Giburah	Strength	Scarlet
6	Tiferet	Beauty	Gold
7	Netzach	Victory	Emerald
8	Hode	Splendor	Orange
9	Yesode	Foundation	Violet
10	Mahlkoot	Kingdom	Citrine, Brown Olive, Black

	Scents	Chakras	God-Name
1	Ambergris	Crown	Eh-Heh-Yeh (YHVH=Yod-Heh-Vahv-Heh)
2	Musk	3rd Eye	Yah
3	Myrrh; Civit	Throat	YHVH El-oh-heem
4	Cedar	———	El
5	Tobacco	Heart	El-oh-heem Gi-boor
6	Olibanum	———	YHVH El-oh-ah V'dah-aht
7	Rose; Red Sandal	Solar Plexus	YHVH Tz'vah-oht
8	Storax	Naval	El-oh-heem Tz'vah-oht
9	Jasmine	Root	Sha-dai El Chai
10	Dittany of Crete	———	Ah-doh-nai Mel-ech

	Body	Planets	Metal	Stone
1	Cranium	1st Swirlings	———	Diamond
2	L. Face	Zodiac	———	Star Ruby; Turq.
3	R. Face	Saturn	Lead	Pearl; Star Saph.
4	L. Arm	Jupiter	Tin	Sapphire; Ameth.
5	R. Arm	Mars	Iron	Ruby
6	Breast	Sol	Gold	Topaz
7	Loins; Hips	Venus	Copper	Emerald
8	Loins; Legs	Mercury	Mercury	Fire Opal
9	Genitals	Luna	Silver	Quartz
10	Feet	4 Elements	———	Rock Crystal

	Archangel	Translation	"Soul"	Transl.
1	Metatron	Angel of the Presence	Yechidah	Higher Self
2	Ratziel	Herald of Deity	Hai-yah	Life Force
3	Tzaphkiel	Contemplation of God	Neshamah	Intuition
4	Tzadkiel	Justice of God	———	———
5	Khamael	Severity of God	———	———
6	Raphael	Divine Physician	Ruach	Intellect
7	Haniel	Grace of God	———	———
8	Michael	Protector of God	———	———
9	Gabriel	Man-God	Nephesh	Lower Self
10	Sandalphon	Messiah	G'uph	Physical Self

	Angelic Order	Translation
1	Chai-oht Ha Kah-desh	Holy Living Ones
2	Auphaneem	Wheels
3	Araleem	Thrones
4	Chasmaleem	Brilliant Ones
5	Serapheem	Fiery Serpents
6	Malacheem	Messengers
7	Eloheem	Gods
8	Beney Eloheem	Children of Gods
9	Kerubeem	Strong Ones
10	Asheem	Souls of Fire

	YHVH	Creature	Tool	Plant
1	Tip of Yod	God	Crown	Almond (aflower)
2	Heh (Sup.)	Man	Inner Robe	Amaranth
3	———	Woman	Outer Robe	Cypress
4	———	Unicorn	Wand	Rush; Olive
5	———	Basilisk	Sword	Cactus
6	Vahv	Phoenix	Lamen	Sunflower
7	———	Lynx	Lamp	Rose
8	———	Hermaphrodite	Names	Orchid
9	———	Elephant	Scent	Comfrey
10	Heh (Inf.)	Sphinx	Circle	Lily; Ivy; Willow

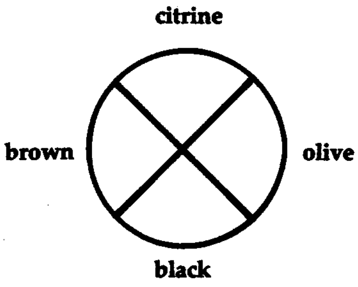
Earth as a result of the exercises given earlier in this lesson. You will become familiar with the other elements later in this course.

It would be a good idea for you to make up a separate Tree of Life for each of the columns of correspondences. This can give you a visual image which cannot be duplicated by cerebral, left-brain, mental processes. For the colors, color in each Sephira with the appropriate color. The 10th Sephira has an "X" drawn through it and should be colored in like this:



Violet and green make olive; orange and green make citron; orange and violet make the peculiar shade of brown used here, technically known as russet.

The next column associates various scents, odors and incenses with the Sephiroht. Note that the association for the 5th Sephira, Giburah, is listed as tobacco. Today there are so many adulterants allowed to be added to tobacco that its purity, and therefore its value, is questionable. It was originally chosen, according to Aleister Crowley, because tobacco is said to be the favorite "scent" of men who work hard, and Giburah does mean "strength." For a long time I questioned the value of tobacco as a magickal incense as I would usually just open up a cigarette and drop the generally awful-smelling stuff on a block of hot charcoal. Then one day I went into a shop which sells wide varieties of tobacco for pipe smokers. Here I found several relatively untainted tobaccos which have worked excellently for me. Try finding some you like, some which give you a feeling of strength and power, the essence of Giburah. You will NEVER become a magician if all you can do is blindly follow obsolete patterns. Tradition can only be a guide.

In fact, it would be appropriate to use any scent which gives you that feeling of strength and power, whether or not it contains tobacco. In a similar manner you can "correct" any of the listings on the chart of Kabalistic Correspondences so that it is correct for you.

It should be apparent to you at this point that I tend to be eclectic in my beliefs and I welcome change and newness. However, some of the correspondences date back thousands of years. They have lasted this long for only one reason: the thousands of people who have used them have discovered that they are accurate and that they work. Thus, although I do hope that you will closely examine and work with all of the correspondences, you had better have a good and valid reason for changing what has worked for so long.

The next column relates the Sephiroht to the chakras. Because many people are familiar with the chakras, I have included them here as another way of becoming familiar with the Sephiroht. Unfortunately, deep study of the chakras is not really part of the curricula of this course. If the chakras interest you and you would like to do more study on them, consult the bibliography for books which go into detail on the subject.

The next column gives the God name associated with each Sephira. Remember, although there are many God names, these refer to aspects of a monotheistic deity, not to a polytheistic pantheon. In other words, they represent the faces or potencies of a singular Deity. Note here, as shown in the parenthetical note on the page of Kabalistic Correspondences, that when you see the letters "YHVH" as a God name they should be pronounced "Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh." Otherwise, the column is self-explanatory.

We have already shown how the Sephiroht can be related to the physical body. That is, a person is seen as backing into the Tree of Life. The next column gives the traditional associations. This is followed by a column listing the planets. Note that the first Sephira is associated with "1st Swirlings." This may refer to the original big bang which formed our physical universe, or it may refer to the galactic gas clouds which, due to gravity, condensed and began to spin. They eventually formed the galaxies and individual star systems. Or it may refer to something altogether different. It will not be a vital part of our magickal system, so it is not an essential bit of knowledge. The second Sephira is related to the entire zodiacal belt, not to a planet as such. The tenth Sephira, which is related to the planet Earth, is also the sphere of the four archetypal elements.

The next column gives the metals associated with the Sephiroht. Notice here that the first, second and tenth Sephiroht have no metallic associations. This is followed by a column associating the Sephiroht with stones. The abbreviations used are as follows: Turq.=Turquoise; Star Saph.= Star Sapphire; Ameth.=Amethyst.

The Kabalistic view of the higher planes shows a very ordered universe. Each entity or power essence has others in its command to do its bidding. A simple diagram of this would be as follows:

The Unknowable Divinity

Aspects of God (The God Names)

The Archangels

The Angels (The Orders of Angels)

The aspects of Divinity are represented by the God names. The angels are frequently dealt with in groups known as "orders." The angels do the bidding of the archangels; the archangels obey God; God assigns the archangels tasks appropriate to their nature. The relationship an archangel has with Divinity is via the aspect of the Ultimate Source which is represented by the God names. The whole, rather militaristic structure is controlled by the unknowable divinity, the Ain. The first column on page 103 gives the Hebrew names of the archangels, and is followed by the translations of the Hebrew names.

The next column relates to the personality or "soul," and has already been discussed. It is presented here in brief, and much more detail will be added at a later time. This is followed by the transliteration of the Hebrew. This is followed by a listing of the Angelic Orders, and then by the translations of those Hebrew terms. It is interesting to note that several of the names of the Orders of Angels are terms used by Ezekiel in his revelation. If you understand traditional Hebrew mysticism, the mystical book of Ezekiel becomes easier to understand. If you did not, you can come up with absurd theories as one NASA scientist did, claiming that Ezekiel saw an alien space vehicle. He claimed that the descriptions Ezekiel used were merely a way of reporting the action of the space ship! Coming back to Earth, most scholars believe that this angelic train-of-command was copied from various Semitic peoples who had long lists of Djinns and the like.

Next come the magickally important Hebrew letters Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh, YHVH for short, the Tetragrammaton. I have already discussed it, but let's add some more information. The Yud looks like this: י. The upper tip of the Yud is associated with the first Sephira. The rest of the Yud, along with the Heh (which looks like this: ה), is associated with the second through fourth Sephiroht. The Vahv is an elongated Yud and looks like this: ו. It is related to the fourth through ninth Sephiroht. Notice the overlap between the Vahv and Heh. The second or last Heh is related to the tenth Sephira. The first Heh is known as the Heh Superior (Sup.) and the second Heh is known as the Heh Inferior (Inf.).

Hebrew is read from right to left, and the Tetragrammaton looks like this:

יהוה

Vertically, it looks like this:

י ה ו
ה

The creatures in the next column are both real and unreal, while the tools of the next column are magickal tools. The Lamen is a medallion hung around the neck to represent a certain power or quality. The Names are the various God, Archangelic and Angelic Names, along with other words of power. The traditional magician of the Middle Ages wore two robes; an outer robe, representing the silence necessary to being a magician, which concealed a hidden, inner robe of truth. Today, most magicians wear only one robe, the two robes being more symbolic than actual.

Finally, the last column is self-explanatory with the sole added note that the plant associated with the first Sephira is an almond "alflower." That is, it should be blooming.

This list of Kabalistic Correspondences is by no means complete. But it is a good start. I suggest that you make up a series of Trees of Life, each one filled out with one of the columns. You may wish also to make up a very large Tree of Life putting many of the correspondences associated with a Sephira in the drawing of that Sephira. I urge a deep study of the correspondences now. Their importance will become clearer to you as we move into the study of Grey Magick. For a far more complete version of these correspondences, get 777 by Aleister Crowley. It is the encyclopedia for the practicing magician.

PART FIVE

If you have been successful with the Middle Pillar Ritual, you may go on to an advanced version of the Ritual. Visualize each Sephira, each power center, in the colors given on the correspondence list. Dah-aht is lavender, and for Mahl-koot use black. The Sephiroht should be connected with a beam of white light. You may also vibrate the name of the archangel after vibrating the God name. Dah-aht at the throat does not have a Kabalistic Archangelic name, so we borrow from another language called Enochian or Angelic. Use: El-ex-ar-peh Co-mah-nah-nu Tahb-ih-toh-ehm.

Circulation of the Body of Light

THE CIRCULATION OF THE BODY OF LIGHT

Whether or not you are able to do the advanced version of the Middle Pillar Ritual as given above, you should now add a new ritual to your daily practice. It should add no more than two or three minutes to the total time of your daily work. There are three parts to it.

Start by doing the Relaxation Ritual, the LBRP and the Middle Pillar Ritual, but do not visualize the Middle Pillar vanishing.

FIRST PART. While keeping the visualization of the Middle Pillar, refocus your attention on Keter, the white brilliance just above your head. Visualize this brilliance in a state of extreme strength, needing to radiate out even more energy. Visualize it sending current of energy down into the head and to the left shoulder. Let this energy pass down the left side of your body to your left foot. Feel it move to your right foot, up the right side of your body, to your head, and back up to Keter.

This motion should be synchronized with your breath. When you exhale, feel the energy go down your left side. When you inhale, feel the energy go up your right side. You should have the sensation of a circle of energy swirling around you. Move the energy, with your breath, in six to ten cycles.

Feel free to expand the energy further out to the sides, to the ends of the universe if you wish. Most commonly, it is seen as going out about three feet from the body. You might also wish to try contracting the energy so that it goes down the left side of the spine and up the right side of the spine.

SECOND PART. This is similar to the first method, but instead of directing the energy down one side and up the other, here you should direct the energy down the front of your body and up the back. Be sure to synchronize your breath so that as you exhale the energy goes down the front of your body and, as you inhale, it goes up your back, to your head and up to Keter.

THIRD PART: "THE MUMMY." Revisualize the entire Middle Pillar. This time, focus your attention on Mahl-koot, at the feet. From the upper right side of this power center visualize the energy curling up in a tight spiral to the front of the left leg. From here it continues around the back and continues moving upward in a counter-clockwise spiral. It is as if you are being wrapped like an Egyptian mummy, from the feet to the head. Instead of cloth, however, you are being wrapped in energy.

You should feel a whirling of spiritual power as the pure spiritual light and energy rises up in spirals to Keter. At Keter you should visualize the energy exploding out like a water fountain in all directions. This energy lands at your feet and begins to rise in the spiral again. As you inhale, feel the energy rise toward Keter. As you exhale, feel it explode out toward Mahl-koot at your feet. As in the first and second parts, do it for six to ten cycles. Then, take a very deep breath, and as you exhale, see the energy disappear visually, but know that it is still there, invisibly.

Finish by doing the Tarot Contemplation Ritual and filling out your ritual diary.

Warning: The Circulation of the Body of Light is a very powerful ritual. You may rock back and forth, feel dizzy or even fall over as a result of your direction of spiritual energy. In Eastern systems these sensations and their physical manifestations are known as "kriyas," and the practice of their production is part of what is known as Kriya Yoga.

In the Chinese Yoga Manual The Secret of the Golden Flower it says that "when the light circulates, the powers of the whole body arrange themselves before its throne, just as a holy king takes possession of a capital and lays down rules of order, and all approach with tribute. Therefore, you have only to make the Light circulate; that is the deepest and most wonderful secret. The light is easy to move, and if allowed to go long enough in a circle it crystallizes itself; it is this condition of which it is said 'silently in the morning thou fliest upward.' "

The energy used in the Circulation of the Body of Light ritual is so powerful that it can be used for healing purposes. Simply direct the energy which you have learned to control down your arms and out through your hands. This healing technique is especially good for people who are drained and low on energy. It is good for people who are recovering from almost any physical ailment. It can be used without fear on people who have serious, chronic diseases. However, you should follow these rules:

1. Never attempt to heal a person without first getting that person's permission to do so.

2. If a person has a minor cold or flu, do not attempt to heal that person. They need the dis-ease to get rid of the toxins which are in the body. If the disease has run its course and the person is still weak but recovering, then it is okay to help them recover faster. Place one hand on the forehead and the other on the lower stomach and send the energy which you have learned to control.

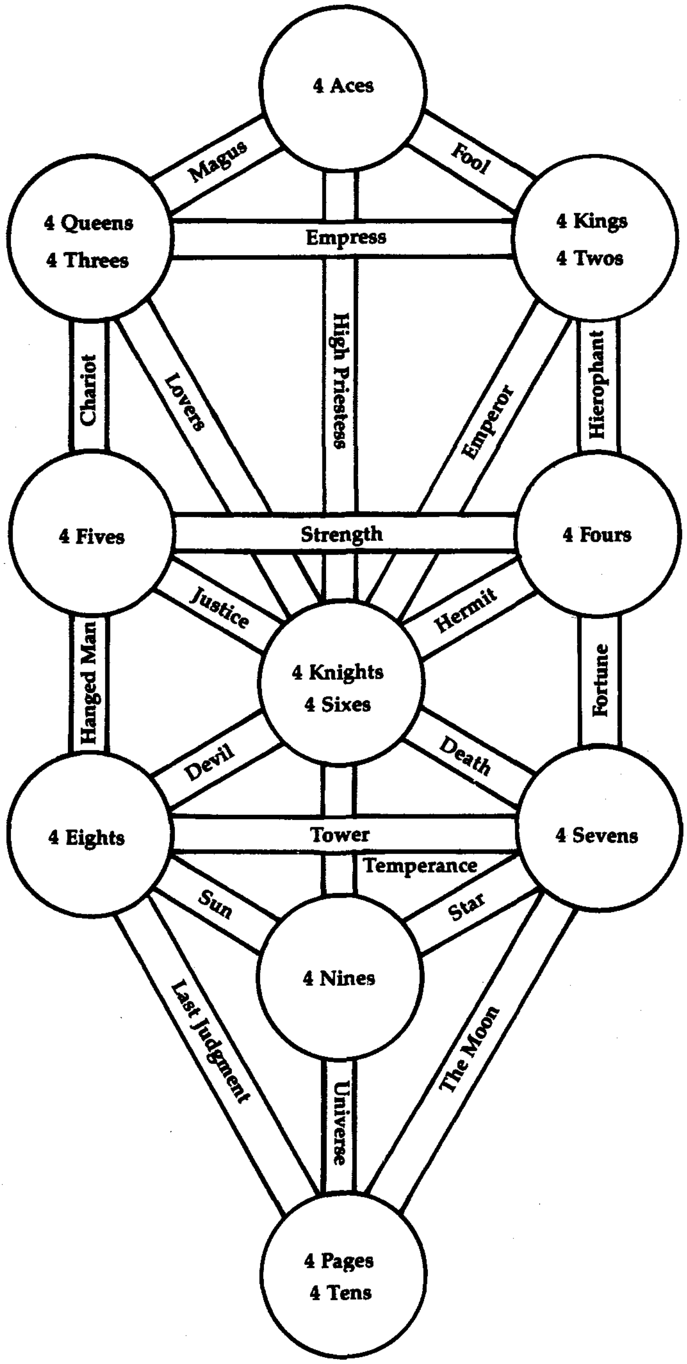
3. If a person has a serious, life-threatening disease, focus your attention and hands near the area where the disease is most obvious. Visualize the disease leaving their body and fading into nothingness while you fill their body with new, life-giving energy. As soon as you sense that the person you are working on is filled with energy, do the LBRP to make sure that absolutely nothing comes back.

4. Do not use this technique for a person who has a high fever. Instead, hold their hands and visualize the illness leaving their body (and staying away from your body!). Visualize the illness fading to nothing. Do the LBRP. Finally, if you wish, you may send small amounts of energy which is colored a cooling blue.

5. Always finish with the LBRP, the Middle Pillar Ritual and the Circulation of the Body of Light Ritual for yourself. Then run your hands under cool, fresh water for at least a minute. This cleanses you and helps to protect you from accidentally allowing any illness into you.

6. Always work in cooperation with M.D.s. Under no circumstances should you ever advise a person to not follow a doctor's advice or not seek the aid of a professional therapist! If, however, you honestly feel that a particular medical treatment is not helping someone, you can always advise that person to get a second opinion from another physician.

On the next page is a diagram of the Tarot as it exists on the Tree of Life. I am not going to make any comments on it at this time. Rather, I want you to spend some time looking at it and trying to discover the relationships between the Tarot and the Kabalistic Correspondences given earlier in the lesson. I am presenting it now, seemingly unrelated to the material in the preceding and following paragraphs, to draw attention to it. It may be the most important diagram for the magickal



4 Aces
Magus
Fool
4 Queens
4 Threes
Empress
4 Kings
4 Twos
Chariot
Lovers
High Priestess
Emperor
Hierophant
4 Fives
Strength
4 Fours
Justice
Hermit
Hanged Man
4 Knights
4 Sixes
Fortune
Devil
Death
4 Eights
Tower
4 Sevens
Temperance
Sun
Star
4 Nines
Last Judgment
The Moon
Universe
4 Pages
4 Tens

The Tarot on the Tree of Life techniques which will be given later in this course. It will be explained later, at the proper time, but I want you to get some familiarity with it now so that it will not be something startlingly new when its importance becomes evident. Study it with your Tarot cards in hand and compare with what has already been given.

Before moving on to the next part of this lesson, there is another thing I wish to clarify for you. You may be thinking that I will be adding on to the basic daily rituals until you have no time to do anything else! This is not the case. There is only one more basic ritual which you must learn. Do not give up. Do not omit any part of the rituals. Do not skip a day unless it is impossible not to. Everything that you are now doing is White Magick, moving you toward unity with Divinity. It is also your preparation for doing Grey Magick. If you memorize the rituals they should not take longer than 15 minutes. And, in a short time, this course will give you a method for doing the rituals anytime, anywhere via a special mental process. It will take even less time to perform the rituals, and it will give you more personal power.

Sometimes in my classes I have had students tell me that although they carry out the rituals with extreme care, they feel nothing within themselves (or without), as a result. They want to know why they are failing and what they are doing wrong.

The answer is that there is nothing wrong and that they are not failing. The energies involved in the rituals are continually at work throughout the physical and spiritual universe. The energy goes around and through all things, both physical and non-physical. It is everywhere. If you did not feel the motion of the energy before, there is no guarantee that you will sense it after you have begun practicing the rituals. Magick permits us to utilize these forces in ways non-magicians cannot comprehend.

It is not necessary that you have any weird experiences or unusual sensations as a result of the practice of the rituals in this course. If the rituals are done properly, the desired results must inevitably occur. If you throw a ball in the air, it must come down. This is the law of gravity. If you do the rituals properly, you must get the desired results. This is the cosmic law of magick.

Sometimes, unusual experiences or sensations can actually get in the way of psychic development. Some people get side-tracked into trying to produce psychic pehnomena. They end up spending time trying to do relatively useless things such as levitation or being able to see what symbol is on the back of a card. While spending time bending spoons (and what good is a bent spoon, anyway?), they ignore their magickal work and retard their magickal and spiritual progress.

So, some of you may feel or sense the energies that have been described in this and in previous lessons. Some of you, for a while, may not. But, it doesn't matter! If you do the rituals properly the magick will work. Know that you can do the rituals successfully. Dare to do them, then do them! Then be silent about your achievements.

PART SIX

In this section I am going to be discussing primarily the use of the magickal tool known as the Pentacle and its construction. First, however, I need to discuss the system of the magickal elements.

As you have probably heard, and as I have already briefly discussed, in the West we have a system of "four magickal elements." Well, this is not true now, nor to my knowledge has it ever been true. As far as I can tell, calling our system a "four element" system is a blind to fool those outside the temples of wisdom.

The fact is that there have always been five magickal elements. According to the Sepher Yetzirah, one of the oldest Kabalistic documents extant, their order is as follows:

The SPIRIT of God
AIR emanated from Spirit
WATER emanated from Air
Part of the water became EARTH
FIRE emanated from Water

Note that some people call the system as listed in the Sepher Yetzirah a "three element" system. This is because the element of Spirit is ignored and the element of Earth is not even considered a separately emanated element, but rather a mere part of elemental Water. Some later Kabalistic systems contend that elemental Earth is only a combination of Air and Water or a mixture of Air, Water and Fire. In any event, even though elemental Earth may be considered a secondary element in the traditional Kabalah, it is still an element. Include Spirit and Earth with the Three Element Kabalistic system and we have our five elements of Magick.

In the West the magickal four elements are frequently pictured around a pentagram. Isn't it obvious that there must be a fifth element so that each point of the pentagram can have a magickal element associated with it? The missing element, of course, is the source of the other four elements, Spirit. Spirit is the source of all that exists and is the divine light from beyond Keter. These are the symbols of the five elements:

Spirit: ⊛

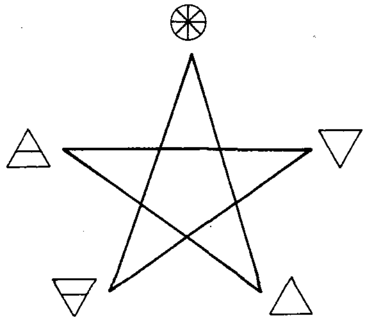
Air: 🜁

Earth: 🜃

Fire: 🜂

Water: 🜄

Below, the symbols of the elements show which element is associated with each point of the pentagram.

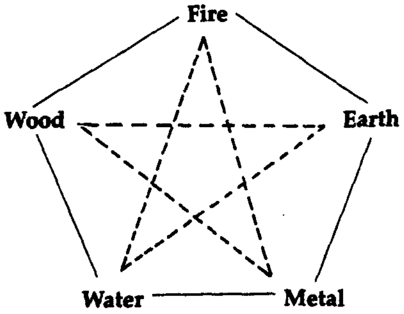


THE PENTAGRAM AND THE ELEMENTS

But to get a really good idea as to how the elements interrelate, we must travel briefly to China. In Chinese mysticism there has never been a doubt or mislabeling of the number of elements of Magick. They do have slightly different names, however, and here is how the Chinese and Western systems correspond:

CHINESE	WESTERN
Fire	Fire
Earth	Earth
Metal	Air
Water	Water
Wood	Spirit

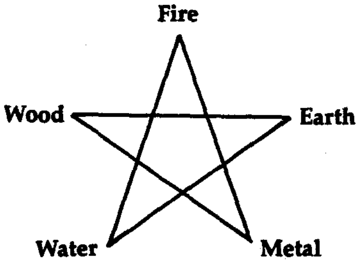
In the diagram below, you can see that the distribution of the Chinese elements around the pentagram are in a slightly different order than in the Western system shown earlier. But the Chinese system is well thought out. If you go clockwise around the pentagram of the five Oriental elements, you are following what is called "The Cycle of Creation or Generation." Here is a symbolic explanation of this cycle:



hmmm

Fire burns down things and they eventually become Earth. Metals are created from Earth. Water comes through Metal pipes. Wood is created from the vital nutrients in Water.

Obviously, this is a modern interpretation; however, it aids in remembering this cycle. If you follow the paths of the arms of the pentagram, you are following what is called "The Cycle of Control or Destruction." Here is a modern explanation of this cycle:



Fire purifies or destroys Metal. Metal, in the form of an axe blade, forms or destroys Wood. Wood tools can be used to control Earth. Dams of Earth control Water. Water extinguishes (destroys) Fire.

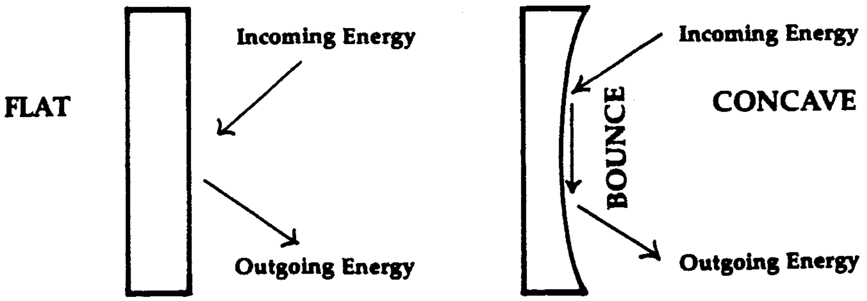
Thus we can see in the Oriental system that a particular Magickal element can be used to do one of three things:

1. Enhance itself (Fire + Fire = 2 Fire)
2. Enhance another element (Adding Fire to Wood increases Earth).
3. Counter another element (Water counters the effect of Fire).

Now that you've had a chance to see a thought-provoking system of working with the Magickal elements, let me tell you that the Western system is much easier, especially when discussing the elemental tools. The pentacle really has only two important purposes: it collects and directs the energies of elemental Earth. What you use the energy for, and how you use it, is up to you. If you feel lightheaded it can ground you. If you feel that you are under psychic attack via the elements of Spirit, Air, Fire or Water, it can reflect those energies back upon their source. If you are attacked using the element of Earth, it can either reflect the elemental energy or store it for your future positive use. Thus, for the operative magician, the Pentacle is primarily a defensive weapon, meant never to be used as a weapon except in case of attack. It can also, as mentioned, be used to direct and store Earth energy for whatever purpose you desire.

The next problem for us—knowing the purpose of the pentacle—is an appropriate construction. Most tradition-based books recommend using a disk of wood or metal up to nine inches in diameter. Now, as I have already said, this tool is also a defensive weapon. Grabbing a nine-inch circle of wood or metal and trying to direct it in the proper direction to dispel an attack on you would be like having someone jump you with a knife while you struggle to find a huge old shotgun which doesn't even fire accurately!

The answer to this problem is two-fold. Firstly, an object six inches in diameter is far easier to use if you have average size hands. Secondly, if the object, instead of being flat, is concave, it will return any energy from any direction, back toward the direction from which it came! This creates a situation of "Instant Karma" for your attacker.



What you can do is carve out (or buy) a shallow wooden bowl. The interior must be as perfectly concave as possible, although the back may be flat so that it can be balanced on a table or altar. A small ring of wood, or metal, placed on a table will allow you to balance a bowl with a round bottom on that table. Metal can be used for your pentacle, but it is slightly harder to paint a metallic surface than a wooden one.

Lightly sand the surface and put on a white undercoat or primer. With a fine line brush draw an "X" from edge to edge on both sides of your pentacle. This should divide both surfaces into four large triangles. Paint these citrine, olive, black and brown as listed earlier in this lesson. Paint both sides. The black section on both sides should be directly opposite or back-to-back of each other. In this way when you hold the pentacle from the bottom you will be holding black on both sides of the pentacle. If the undercoat shows through, use a second coat.

Using a compass, draw a circle ⅜ of an inch from the outer edge of the pentacle. Paint the ring white from the line to the edge. Either free-hand or with the aid of a compass, draw out a pentagram so that the points of the arms of the pentagram just touch the white ring which you have drawn on the front and back of the pentacle. The lines of the pentagram should be about 3/8 of an inch in width. If any of the background colors show through these white lines, keep adding coats of white paint until the white is opaque.

A "Golden Dawn" Style Earth Pentacle

Made by Chic Cicero

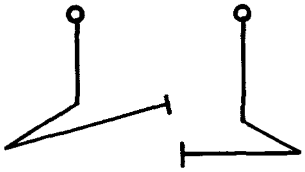
Next, fill in the circle with the Hebrew letters of the God Name. Angelic Name, etc., and the appropriate sigils as given on the next page. These should be painted in dark black. Extra coats for the lettering may be necessary. The lettering should be black, not grey. Finally, cover the entire pentacle with a protective clear coat of lacquer. I suggest the use of Varathane liquid plastic gloss.

If you want more information on how to work with the paints and colors, I suggest the book The Secret Temple by Robert Wang. In it he gives the methods for building the Golden Dawn tools. If you get the book you will see that the Golden Dawn used not a pentacle with a pentagram on it, but a "hexacle" with a hexagram on it (see photograph). Why they called it a pentacle ("pent" is a prefix meaning "5") is beyond me. Of course, if you feel it necessary to make a Golden Dawn styled pentacle there is no reason why you should not.

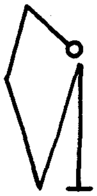
A "pentagram is a five-pointed star; a "pentacle" is an object with a pentagram on it.

Finally, if you notice, there is a space listed on the page for a "motto." This is the Golden Dawn equivalent of a magickal name. Just as putting on your magickal robes tells your subconscious that something special is happening, so too does referring to yourself by your magickal name or motto add to this intuitive understanding. Many people take the magickal names of someone they admire for their magickal ability, real or imagined, such as Merlyn or other historical or mythical characters. But, rather than a name, it can also be something that you stand for or believe. The Golden Dawn mottoes were usually in Latin, but any language will do. Here is a list of samples:

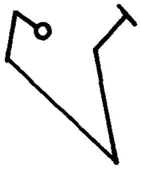
Anima Pura Sit. Let the soul be pure.
Demon Est Deus Inversus. The Devil is the Converse of God.
Deo Duce Comite Ferro. With God as my leader and the sword as my companion.
Finem Respice. Have regard to the end.
Perdurabo. I will last through.
Sacrementum Regis. The sacrament of a King.
Sapere Aude. Dare to be wise.
Iehi Aour. Let there be light.



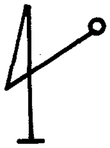
ארני הארץ
I.Adonai Ha-aretz



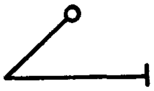
אוריא ל
II. Auriel



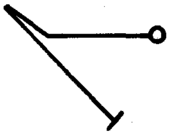
פורלאך
III. Phorlakh



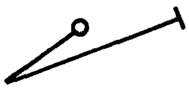
כרוב
IV. Kerub



פרת
V. Phrat



צפון
VI. Tzaphon



ארץ
VII. Aretz

VIII. The Motto

Symbols and Hebrew for the Pentacle
Place the sigils next to the Hebrew in the circle and lines of the Pentagram

These people would usually refer to each other by the initials of their magickal mottoes. Thus, you would have Frater or Soror (brother or sister) D.D.C.F., D.E.D.I., S.A., etc.

English, Latin, Hebrew or any other language would be fine to use for your magickal name or motto. You should spend some time considering what name you will use. True, you can always change, but you will find that its choice will be important and more and more meaningful to you as you evolve magickally.

PART SEVEN

Perhaps you have wondered what the difference is between "Ceremonial" magick and "Ritual" magick. Many people use them interchangeably as synonyms and, in fact, their dictionary definitions are quite similar. However, in magickal philosophy there is an important difference. Anyone can do a ritual. It can be a magickal ritual or a ritual of another kind such as a shaving ritual wherein you shave yourself according to a certain pattern. After a period of practice, some rituals, such as a shaving ritual, become habits. To break the ritual, that is, to follow an unusual pattern, can cause problems. It can make you feel uncomfortable, and can possibly be harmful. If you don't believe me, try shaving yourself in a different manner than usual. But don't be surprised if you end up cutting and nicking yourself in many places. This, then, is an important caveat: never let your magickal rituals become habits. Always do them with full awareness, even if you have been doing them every day for years.

My definition of a ceremony is a "group ritual." That is, it only takes one person to do a ritual while it takes several people to perform a ceremony. Thus, in order to do Ceremonial Magick you must have a group of some sort.

Although all of the magickal techniques in this course will be presented so that they can be performed by the individual ritualist, in the future there will be notes given on how to do some rituals with a group. This leads to the question of the values and drawbacks of groups.

The benefits of magickal groups are threefold:

1. Camaraderie. Sometimes, being a magician can be a lonely prospect, and it is nice to have friends who have similar interests.

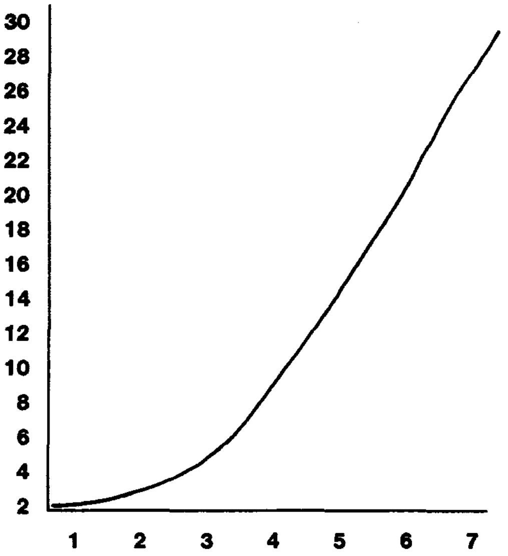
2. Specialization. Everyone in a magickal group must have similar knowledge, to a degree, but no one can be an expert in all fields of occultism. In a group, one person may be a specialist with the Tarot (although everyone in the group should be familiar with the Tarot), another a specialist in Astrology, another in occult history and another in ceremony and ritual. Thus, the more people you have, the greater the chance that a subject your group needs information on will be known by one of the members.

3. Power. In spite of the fact that some people will deny it, the truth is that the more people you have, the higher the levels of psychic energy which may be generated. Perhaps you have experienced the flows of energy at a rock concert or football game. This is nothing more than poorly controlled psychic energy. With magick we learn how to control this energy via the techniques you have been learning. Obviously, the intensity is increased in proportion to the number of people present. Further, the amount of energy increases geometrically rather than via simple addition. This means that if one person generates "e" amount of psychic energy,

2 people (may) generate 2E
3 people (may) generate 4E
4 people (may) generate 8E
5 people (may) generate 16E
6 people (may) generate 32E
7 people (may) generate 64E, etc.

As you can see, even a few people together can have a stronger effect than a large number working individually. This, by the way, is not a theory I made up. It is based on Einstein's Field Theories and is accepted by most occultists with whom I am familiar.

This does not mean, however, that having a group of people will automatically make you successful in your magickal work. An individual magician may be far more in control of the psycho-magickal energy than a group. Sometimes an individual may be more successful than a group for just this reason. This is also why I wrote above that a group of people may be able to generate more than an individual. Certainly a group of incompetents would not be able to outdo one well-trained magician.



Energy Fields

This brings us to the drawbacks associated with groups. I have a close friend, a well-respected author of several books on magickal topics, who believes that group workings are obsolete and impractical. This opinion is due to his personal experience with some groups. I, too, have experienced much the same. Always, and I do mean always, the problems associated with groups are based on one problem and one problem only: personal psychology. Cliques form and people locked out of the cliques feel hurt and left out. Person A won't work with person B because person B is too (a) smart, (b) dumb, (c) ugly, (d) beautiful or (e) other. Somebody institutes plots against the leader. Somebody wants to change the group so that it fits their image of what the group should be rather than changing himself or herself so as to fit in with the group. It's all so very stupid.

This sort of nonsense has gone on for years between groups, too. Various groups calling themselves Rosicrucian all insist that only they are the real Rosicrucians and all of the other groups are frauds. Various Witchcraft and Wiccan groups involve themselves in this same sort of foolishness. One famous magickal group currently has about five or six people claiming to be the true leader of the organization and that the others are all fakes. This disagreement has led to outrageous name-calling and to court cases! What can a person who wants to work with a group of others with similar interests do?

First, he or she can forget about the whole thing. But if that doesn't work, he or she can start a group from scratch. Then, as more and more people become involved, each person, in the tradition of the Freemasons, must be accepted by all of the current members of the group before the person is allowed to join. Thus, the people must first meet on a social level before becoming involved on a magickal level. The group must be a small circle of friends. Some Witches claim the size of a magickal group should be no more than 13. Hence, 13 is the maximum size of many covens.

Also, the goal of all the people in the magickal group must be unified. There must be no ulterior motives for any of the people being in the group. Israel Regardie strongly suggested that all people involved with occultism should go through psychotherapy. For a long time I felt that this was because he was a Reichian therapist. But because of my experience with many groups and with the experiences told to me by others, I am at a point now where I am inclined to agree with the good doctor.

Unfortunately, most of us have neither the time nor desire to go to an analyst, and many people can't afford it. Also, there is a wide degree of quality among psychotherapists. How will you know if you have a good one, one who won't start out by having you locked up for studying the occult?

Luckily, there is an answer. It is a powerful psychotherapeutic and magickal technique that can be used which I call the I.O.B.

I.O.B.

The I.O.B. technique is not new, but it is a new interpretation of traditional Golden Dawn magickal techniques and medieval psychological techniques. The Golden Dawn aspect includes a simple version of the formulation of "telesmatic images" and certain banishing techniques. The medieval psychological technique is commonly called exorcism.

Of course, ever since the movie The Exorcist, people have become familiar with the idea of exorcism. It is commonly thought of as a way to get rid of demons or devils (if they exist) which may be "possessing" a person. Obviously, possessing demons are fairly rare these days. Yet, in medieval literature they seemed to be fairly common. We must ask ourselves, "What happened to them?" The conclusion must be that either they have almost totally ceased to bother people, they never existed, or the modern interpretation of these "demons" is different. Well, there is no reason to believe that the demons said to possess people in the Middle Ages have changed, and with all the reports of exorcisms during that period, there is little reason to assume that all those reports were faulty. Therefore, we may assume that the "demons" are being handled in a different manner. If you look at the reports of the exorcisms you must be struck by the similarity between the descriptions of the "possessed" and people who today would be described as having certain physical or mental problems. So, even if we are to assume that some exorcisms did deal with demon possession, it seems that many dealt with a sort of early psychotherapy in the tradition of what is today known as "psychodrama."

These techniques are not associated only with medieval Christian philosophy. Similar techniques were used in some initiatic systems. But for our purposes here, the most important thing to know is that in many cases the exorcisms worked.

The Golden Dawn system of telesmatic images is based on a complex technique of visualizations according to a pre-established code of construction. It is too complex to discuss in its full form here. The idea, however, is to create an image of something which in itself is devoid of form. Thus, "justice" could be made to have a specific image. So could "freedom" become a particular angel or archangel. "Intolerance" could be visualized as a demon. Then, once this image was created, it could be given a "life" of its own (to a limited extent). Finally, it could be dealt with as if it were a living, breathing entity like you or me.

Notice that I said that something like "intolerance" could be given form. Likewise, any quality, good or bad, can be given form. It is this idea, along with the idea that exorcism was a way of getting rid of psychological problems, that is the basis of the I.O.B. technique.

A word of warning: It may be that going to a positive, growth-oriented psychotherapist who is not against occult studies may be better for you than attempting the I.O.B. technique. This is because the I.O.B. technique is the only thing in this entire course which could be considered dangerous. By this I do not mean that demons might attack you or you might get ill. What I mean is that through this technique you will learn more about your true nature than you may be able to accept. It is said that over the doors of the ancient mystery schools was seen the phrase, "Know Thyself." Really knowing yourself can be the most awe-inspiring and frightening experience imaginable. So, if you opt to attempt this technique and find yourself scared, physically ill or feeling lost, stop immediately! The mind has certain blocks and safeguards which prevent us from learning the innermost truths about ourselves until we are ready. Go slow, be gentle, and be kind to yourself if you try this system. It is very powerful.

The "I" in I.O.B. stands for "Identify." Your first and hardest task in this technique is to identify aspects of yourself which you no longer wish to possess. Are you hard-headed? Egotistical? Self-centered? Insecure? Indecisive? Whatever it is, your first task is to identify it. Now, at the beginning this is quite safe, although it might not be too easy to admit to those things which you consider to be your own faults. Later, it will become easier to admit your faults on a conscious level, but your unconscious may resist your conscious. This will be the time to go easy. Never force something if it will not come easily. Work on one thing at a time. This process may be time-consuming, but it is far shorter and cheaper than Freudian analysis. And it does work.

The second step is the easiest and most fun. The "O" in I.O.B. stands for "Objectify." The idea here is to build up an image which represents what you have identified. This can be any form although it should preferably be capable of life. Thus, a rock would not be as good for this technique as would an elf, or a dog, or the image of a demon.

Let's assume that you have determined that one of the things which you wish to rid yourself of is hardheadedness, the inability to change. In this step we want to objectify this hardheadedness, make it into a thing. We can make up any image, but for our purpose here let us give it a somewhat human appearance. Its face must have firmly chiseled features, and he (let's make it male) has an army helmet on. His eyes are steel grey. He is tall and strong, but the joints of his legs and hips do not work, so his strength is useless. He is wearing a steel-grey jumpsuit, and beneath it are seen hard muscles which never relax. In fact, in some places the muscles look like nuts and bolts. Although it is hidden, it is possible to sense that he feels great pain because he can never relax, must always be hard. There is a fear of not being right, etc. In this way, an image of hardheadedness is built up. All of the things I mentioned are objectifications of the archetype of hardheadedness. If this happens to be an aspect of yourself which you wish to work on, you can start with what I have given and continue. What color is his skin and hair? (Don't be limited by standard colors.) Is he holding anything? Doing anything?

Lastly, name this creation. You can use any name as long as it is not the name of someone you know or know of. Again, it does not have to be standard. I-gis (hard "g") is short and applicable. "Grelflexor" is an interesting and perfectly acceptable appellation.

Spend some time making this image as concrete as possible in your mind. You may wish to draw it if you have some artistic abilities. Also, it does not have to be in human form. It can be shaped like a bizarre animal. In fact, that might even be better.

Once you have "created" this image, the next step is to give it life. Visualize the figure and do the LBRP around both you and the figure. If you have made a painting or sculpture of the image, use that as a focus of the LBRP. Make the physical art creation and the mental image unite.

Next, do the Middle Pillar technique. When you sense the energy in the Middle Pillar, take a deep breath and with a full exhalation, send the life-giving (literally) energy down your arms and out your hands toward the figure which you have mentally created. If you have a physical representation of the image, send it toward that figure.

The "B" in I.O.B. stands for "Banish." This is the magickal equivalent of exorcism. However, the process of banishment, though based on the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram, is a little tricky because we are banishing an unwanted part of ourselves.

STEP ONE. Purify the outside of yourself with a ritual bath as already described.

STEP TWO. Do the Relaxation Ritual.

STEP THREE. If you have a picture or sculpture of your objectification, look at it for a few minutes. Then put the physical image away and work it up in your imagination. If you have no physical image, simply mock it up in your imagination.

STEP FOUR. As part of your visualization you should see a wispy cord or rope-like construction connecting you and the figure. It should be connected to both your bodies at the solar plexus. If it does not have a solar plexus, then it should be attached to the heart area or head.

(Remember your visualization needs to be only as good as you can make it. It does not have to be perfect. In fact, if you are not good at visualizing things, simply know (not think or believe, but know) that it is there and that if your psychic vision were better you would be able to see it.)

STEP FIVE. Now, take your dagger and cut the connecting cord close to your body. If you do not have a dagger, use two fingers of your right hand as if they were a pair of scissors.

STEP SIX. Without a second's pause after Step Five, make the sign of the enterer (left foot forward as arms are thrust forward, dagger or right forefinger along with the left forefinger pointing straight ahead) directly at the newly separated figure. At the same time, project a bright blue pentagram at the figure from your fingers and shout, "(Name of the Object) be gone!" This should cause the visualization to move a short distance away and stay there long enough for you to perform. . .

STEP SEVEN. The LBRP. When this is completed, the created figure should be outside of your protective circle. Make sure that there is no trace of the severed cord which did exist between you and the figure.

STEP EIGHT. Determine which tool would be the appropriate weapon to destroy the figure. Here are some examples:

For hardheadedness (unwillingness to change): The Chalice.
For fickleness: The Pentacle.
For sloth: The Wand.
For lack of clear thinking: The Dagger.

As you can see, the appropriate tool represents the opposite qualities of what you wish to rid yourself. Water is always changing, so the chalice is a good weapon against unwillingness to change. The solidity of Earth, as represented by the Pentacle, is a good weapon against constantly changing the mind. The energy represented by the Fire Wand is a good weapon against laziness, and since Air represents our higher faculties, Air's tool, the Dagger, is a good weapon against lack of clear thinking.

STEP NINE. Point the appropriate weapon at the figure (be sure to drink the contents of the Chalice if it is filled). The instructions for how to point the Pentacle are to simply hold it by the black sections and face the concave side in the direction you wish to point. Pointing the Wand and Dagger are obvious. Hold the Chalice by its stem or base with the section for holding fluid facing out, away from you. If you do not have the tools as yet, just use the outward facing palms of your hands. Say:

By the power and in the name of Sha-dai El Chai (vibrate the God name) I command you (name of your created image) to dissolve, vanish, depart, disappear. You are banished forever and may not return. So mote it be!

This must be said with authority as if you were a mighty king or queen talking to your lowliest subject. Remember, though, that it is not you that will destroy what you don't want, but the power of the Divine going through you. ("Mote" is an Old English word meaning "must.")

STEP TEN. Do the Middle Pillar Ritual very briefly. Then, as in the Circulation of the Body of Light, feel the energy come down from above, but this time direct it down your arms and out your hands, through the appropriate magickal tool (if you have it), through the center of the pentagram in front of you (it must not go anywhere else), and into your creation. Visualize the energy getting stronger and the figure getting weaker and increasingly transparent. With each exhalation, the energy leaving you should be stronger and stronger until the created figure is totally overpowered and vanishes into nothingness. Continue this sending of energy, in the name of Divinity, for at least a minute after the figure is totally destroyed.

I.O.B. Technique

STEP ELEVEN. Now hold your hands up in the air so that they form a large letter "V." If you used a magickal tool it should be in the right hand pointing up. Look up and say:

Hail unto Thee, Lord of the Universe. Hail unto Thee, whom nature hath not formed. Not unto me, but unto Thee be the power and the glory for ever and ever, AMEN.

STEP TWELVE. Once again, do the LBRP. Then, visualize your magickal circle fading from your attention, but know that it is still there. Write down the results in your diary.

The I.O.B. technique can help you solve many of your problems. But remember, you are just a magician in training. A chef learning to cook does not always have his or her food come out perfectly, and your I.O.B. technique may not be perfect at first, either. You may need to repeat this technique several times in order to rid yourself of something you do not want. If you have created (or purchased) an artistic version of your visualization, it should be totally destroyed after doing the I.O.B. And if the problem is not succumbing to your work, go on to another aspect of your personality you wish to alter and come back to the previous problem later.

If you, and the other members of your group, practice the I.O.B. technique regularly, it is possible that your group will work harmoniously together. And if you want to work alone, your own work on the I.O.B. technique will make you a better person.

REVIEW

The following questions are designed to help you determine if you have mastered the information in Lesson Three. Please try to answer them without looking at the text. The answers are in Appendix Two.

1. What are the qualities of the element Earth?
2. Name the Three Pillars of the Tree of Life.
3. Name the Three Triangles of the Tree of Life.
4. Name the Four Worlds of the Kabalah.
5. What is the goal of true meditation?
6. What are the three steps of true meditation?
7. How can you be assured of never becoming a real magician?
8. In the Kabalah, what is the heavenly order of things?
9. When is it OK to heal a person who has not given you permission to do so?
10. Are rituals a failure if you sense no immediate change within yourself or outside yourself?
11. Why is it a good idea to make a concave Pentacle?
12. List three benefits of being involved in a magickal group?
13. What does I.O.B. mean?

The following questions only you can answer.

1. Are you regularly performing all of the rituals?
2. Do you meditate?
3. Are you in control of the Earth element?
4. Are you memorizing the correspondences?
5. Do you look up the meanings of any words in this course that you are unfamiliar with? For example, did you know that a Basilisk has the head, wings and feet of a rooster with a barbed serpent's tail? It was said to be hatched from a chicken's egg that a toad or serpent sat on. Its breath and look were said to be fatal. It was also known as a cockatrice.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Conway, David, Ritual Magick, Dutton, 1972.
Crowley, A., Magick, Weiser, 1973.
777, Weiser, 1973, 1977.
Fortune, D., Mystical Qabalah, The, Benn, 1935.
Gray, W.G., Ladder of Lights, The, Helios, 1968.
Judith, Anodea, Wheels of LIfe, Llewellyn Publications, 1987.
Halevi, Zev ben Shimon, Kabbalah., Thames and Hudson, 1979.
Knight, G., Practical Guide to Qabalistic Symbolism, A, 2 Vols., Helios, 1969
Leadbeater, Chakras, The, Quest.
Ponce, Charles, Kabbalah, Straight Arrow Books, 1973.
Regardie, I., Garden of Pomegranates, A, Llewellyn Publications, 1970.
Golden Dawn, The, Llewellyn Publications, 1971.
Middle Pillar, The, Llewellyn Publications, 1970.
Tree of Life, The, Weiser, 1973.
Rendel, P., Introduction to the Chakras, Aquarian, 1974.
Sturzaker, James, Kabbalistic Aphorisms, Theosophical Publishing House, 1971.

Lesson

4

PART ONE

In this lesson we are going to continue following the Golden Dawn initiatic pattern by moving from the study of the magickal element of Earth to the study of the magickal element of Air. You should start with the exercises below as soon as possible. If, after working the exercises for Earth in the previous lesson you are not satisfied with your understanding of and feelings of unity with the element Earth, continue with those exercises for up to two more weeks. Then do them sporadically as you will. However, you should begin the exercises below immediately.

The element of Air has the qualities of being warm and moist. The following exercises will help you to become more aware of this element in your daily life.

Exercise 1. Observe those things around you which have the combined qualities of warmth and moistness. Remember, all of these elemental qualities are relative. Steam is a form of the element Air, and it has much more moisture and warmth than does the vapor from dry ice. However, that cold vapor from the dry ice also has the element of Air within it. See if you can determine the relative Airy qualities as you experience them. Make a list of all of these things and record it in your diary. Do this exercise daily for one week.

Exercise 2. Find a spot where you can be alone. Take with you an outdoor reclining lounger, the type that has nylon webbing around an aluminum frame. If you don't have one of these, a folding chair will suffice. The idea here is to be elevated above the ground and have as much of the physical air surrounding your body as possible. Remove all of your clothing and lie on the lounger or sit in the chair. If you cannot find a place where this is possible, wear as little clothing as you can. For men, a brief men's swimming suit is fine, and for women a tiny bikini will do. The object here is not nudity, but rather to allow as much air to touch your body as possible.

What you will be doing is known as "elemental pore breathing." To do this, start off by doing the Relaxation Ritual. Next, become very aware of your breath. Become aware of the slow in-and-out motion of the physical air. Notice the way the air feels as it comes in through the nose, goes down the air pipe and into the lungs. Sense or imagine the interchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide within the lungs, and feel the CO_2 laden air as it goes out of the lungs, through the air pipe and out the nose and mouth.

Now imagine that your entire body is nothing but a large breathing apparatus. Imagine that every part of your body has only the function of breathing. Further, visualize that your skin is part of this system. As you physically breathe, imagine that every pore of your skin is also breathing. However, just as your lungs breathe in physical air, your pores should be breathing in elemental Air. Feel it going in and out of you, cleansing and purifying your entire body.

Try this exercise at different times of the day and, if possible, at different locations. Air is the second most changeable of the elements and you can experience it in many different ways. Do this exercise daily for at least a week. If you wish, you may do it for a longer period of time, but after a week go on to the next exercise.

Exercise 3. Spend a period of up to three minutes (no more), once a day, imagining that you are the element Air. Feel the lightness, the floating giddiness, the warmth and moistness of Air. Feel how physical things don't seem to matter and learn the true meaning of the term "airhead." This is not said in jest, but in all seriousness. Become Air.

Do this exercise for a week only, no more. Do not repeat it (if repeating it is your desire) for at least a month. Do not repeat it more often than one week out of a month. That is, no more than 12 weeks per year, one week at a time. If you notice that you are having trouble finishing your normal work, halt this exercise immediately. In a day or two you will be back to normal. Also, doing Exercise 3 from the section on the element of Earth from the previous lesson will help overcome the problem of absorbing too much Air, which is the cause of becoming an "airhead."

Exercise 4. Once you have learned how to "be Air" (without allowing it to take over your life), the next step is to take greater conscious control of the element Air. Take a moment and imagine yourself to be Air. Bring the feeling from the last exercise into your consciousness. Next, hold your hands 9 to 12 inches apart, palms facing each other. Imagine a bottle or box between your hands. Now, as you exhale, visualize all of the Air element which is in you going out with your breath and being trapped in the container between your hands. Three to five breaths should be enough to fill it. Then, with three breaths, inhale it back into yourself and go back to normal consciousness.

The Test. This test will allow you to see whether or not you really have become not only in harmony with the magickal element of Air, but also to see if you are able to control the element.

The next time you feel heavy, bloated, slow or lazy, form the container of Air as described in the previous exercise. Once the container of Air has been formed, with one big inhalation draw the contents of the container back into you. Within five minutes you should feel relaxed and refreshed, lighter and anxious to do those tasks you wish to do.

The next time that you feel lightheaded, giddy, overly silly, unstable, etc., again form the container of Air. Next, visualize a large "black hole" in the physical air in front of you. When your container is filled to overflowing with your excess elemental Air, "throw" the container into the black hole. That is, visualize yourself tossing the container of elemental Air into the black hole, and then see the hole sealing up after your container has entered it. You should feel more grounded and balanced in a few minutes, but it may be necessary to repeat this "black-holing" experiment two or three times to feel totally normal.

When you have passed both parts of this test to your satisfaction, you will have mastered the element of Air. As I said about elemental Earth, if you do not succeed at such mastery within a few days or weeks, don't worry about it. Just keep practicing. With one or more of the magickal elements it may take only a few hours, days or weeks to master. Other elements may take longer. But remember, there is no race to succeed; and do not give up! Just keep practicing without worrying about the results. Eventually you will succeed, as have all who have diligently practiced. Record the results of your experiments, good, bad and indifferent, in your magickal diary.

PART TWO

As I said before, anyone can do a ritual, but a ceremony really takes a group to perform properly. Let's assume that you have gathered a group of people together, and all of you are studying via this course. Here, then, is a group ritual.

A HEALING CEREMONY

This is a ceremony to help someone who needs to be healed. There should be a minimum of three people plus the person to be healed. This particular ceremony should not be used on someone who has a fever. Nor should it be used on someone who has a minor cold or flu, as those are needed to cleanse the body of toxins due to poor living habits. However, when most of the cold or flu is over and the ill person is just very tired from the effects of this illness, this ceremony is effective. It is also good for chronic diseases. The only exception to the above rules is if the cold or flu is life threatening.

This ceremony will not replace the treatment of a regular physician, an M.D. But an M.D. may need to change a treatment when a patient is found to be better or totally healed.

STEP ONE. Have the person in your group who is most adept at doing a divination (such as with the Tarot) do one to see if it is appropriate to do the healing. If not, do not do the healing. Trust the divination.

STEP TWO. If the answer from the divination is positive, ask the ill person if he or she freely gives permission for the group to do this healing ceremony. If the answer is no, do not go further. Even if the person has previously begged for a healing, the question should still be asked. If the answer is positive, prepare the area as follows:

a. Form a ring of chairs with enough room allowed to walk around outside the circle of chairs. There may be more chairs than people.

b. In the center should be the altar with the usual paraphernalia upon it. Another chair, for the person being healed, should be stationed in front of the altar, facing east. The ill person should sit in it throughout the ceremony, especially if that person is not part of your practicing group. Others should sit in the circle of chairs as they will.

STEP THREE. A person should be chosen to lead the relaxation ritual. Let that person use a low, deep, relaxing voice, almost as if trying to get a small child to fall asleep.

STEP FOUR. Let one person do the LBRP. The Kabalistic Cross should be done from behind the altar, facing east. The formulation of the pentagrams should be done by walking outside the circle of chairs so that all are enclosed. The Evocation of the Archangels and the repetition of the Kabalistic Cross should be done facing east, from behind the altar (assuming you have one. If not, from behind the person to be healed).

It is also possible to have one person do the Kabalistic Cross, another do the formulation of the pentagrams, another do the Evocation of the Archangels, and the first person repeat the Kabalistic Cross. Personally, I have not found this to be as effective as having one person do the entire LBRP, but try both ways and see which you prefer. The person being healed should not be actively involved in the performance of the LBRP. Also, all of the members of the circle should be focusing on the ritual being performed, and should add their own visualizations to those of the person(s) doing the ritual. No one, save the person to be healed, should ever be doing nothing within the circle once the ceremony starts.

STEP FIVE. Let all the ritualists, save one, come forward and form a circle, holding hands, around the person to be healed. In this position, let all do the Middle Pillar Ritual. The one remaining ritualist should stand in the East, facing West (toward the people), also doing the Middle Pillar Ritual, but should imagine himself or herself as being a hundred feet tall, and both watching and partaking of this ritual.

STEP SIX. The person in the East should hold in the right hand either a dagger (for chronic or mild problems) or the wand (for more severe problems). When the Middle Pillar Ritual is complete, this person should hold up his or her arms as if in blessing, and walk directly toward the circle of bodies, saying:

> I come in the power of light,
> I come in the power of wisdom,
> I come in the mercy of the light,
> The light hath healing in its wings.

Healing Ritual

STEP SEVEN. By this time he or she should be next to the circle of people. With the tool, he or she should point either toward the top of the ill person's head or toward the particular part of the body wherein lies the problem to be healed. At this instant, all in the circle should imagine a giant, bright light above the center of the circle. This is a group Keter rather than an individual Keter. Each ritualist should see a beam of light shoot out toward the space of the person with the tool. When the lone ritualist feels this has been accomplished, he or she should direct this huge amount of combined group and spiritual energy down to the tool and into the body of the person being healed.

STEP EIGHT. When the ritualist senses that the person under the magickal tool has the energy running clearly through him or her, the ritualist should start vibrating (at a very low pitch) the vowel sound "AH." All, save the person being healed, should join in with the intonation of the vowel, letting it rise in pitch and volume. When the ritualist feels it can get no higher, he or she should say "now" as a cue for all the ritualists to shout "GLAH" (thus making AH-GLAH or AGLA as in the LBRP) and clap their hands loudly, thus breaking the circle of energy. Immediately, the ritualist turns east, raises both hands (still holding the tool in the right hand) and says,

> Not unto me but unto Thee be the power and the glory forever.

All ritualists vibrate AH-MEN and return to their seats.

STEP NINE. The LBRP is repeated as before.

Here ends the healing ceremony.

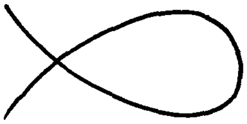
Another purpose of the sudden breaking of the circle with claps and a shout is to prevent any of the energy from going back into the ritualists. Although it would not hurt them, since it is positive, it would lower the power of the healing. It also prevents a "negative backlash" which is frequently suffered by healers who are naturally talented but have no magickal experience or knowledge. Sometimes, this type of healer ends up temporarily suffering from the same symptoms as the person being healed. This negative backlash is totally avoided by the techniques of the above ceremony.

Some of you may be wondering about my associations for wand and dagger. I will have more to say about this later in this lesson.

PART THREE

In this section I will be sharing some ideas on symbolism with you, starting with one of the oldest and best-known symbols, the cross. The cross is far older than Christianity. It has always been revered as a spiritual and religious symbol. This is why early Christians usurped the cross as "their" symbol. Various non-Christian traditions had used forms of the cross far back into antiquity. By using the cross as their new symbol it was thought that it would be easier to convince the Pagans that they should worship a similar God, one who had the same symbol. In a similar fashion, Pagan holy places were usurped by Christians and changed into churches. Thus, if a Pagan wished to worship at a sacred site, he or she would have to go into the church and worship there.

The earliest Christians used the symbol of a fish drawn with one continuous line (see figure, p. 140) to represent their faith. Some Christians say that this is because Jesus was said to be a fisherman, although nowhere in the New Testament does it show him fishing.



Early Christian Fish Symbol

Also, it is said to represent Christianity because the Greek word for fish, icthus, is an acronym (or Notarikon!) for the Greek words meaning "Jesus Christ, the son of God the Savior." On an astrological basis, Jesus wasn't a fish*er*man, but a fishman; that is, an archetype of the Piscean Age. There are many dates given for the beginning of the Age of Pisces (the astrological sign is represented by two fish), but they all center around the start of the common era, within a few hundred years of the year 1 A.D.

Great charismatic leaders with large followings of sometimes mindless devotees are typical of the Piscean Age. Thus, from the beginning of this age we have had Alexander the Great, Jesus, Cromwell, some of the Popes, Arthur of England, Mussolini, Hitler, Roosevelt, Kennedy, Marx, Stalin, Mao, Falwell, Rev. Moon, Jim Jones, Prabhupada, Gandhi, and many others. I am not trying to equate the qualities of goodness or badness between these men, only to indicate their charisma and ability to attract a sometimes mindless following. Nor should I have left out the women, such as Joan of Arc, Blavatsky, Besant, McPherson, Anthony, Sanger, Peron and others. These women, too, attracted and still attract many followers. Jesus, as a Piscean Age archetype, is perfectly represented by the symbol of the fish.

One of the earliest forms of the cross was known in ancient Egypt. It had a loop at the top and was (and still is) known as the Crux Ansata, the looped cross, Isis' sandal strap, and the Ankh. Many people following a spiritual path try to ignore the inherent sexuality of the Ankh. The vertical bar represents the erect male organ while the loop and the split horizontal bar represent the female sexual organ. Together, indicating sexual intercourse, they are a symbol of fertility. With this understanding it is easy to see how the Ankh has evolved into a symbol of life, eternal life, reincarnation and rebirth. Why should the sandal strap of Isis represent eternal life as some have claimed? Why, as one group maintains, would the shadow of a person with his or her arms outstretched (which looks like an Ankh) represent life after life? This cross is a pre-Christian and non-Christian symbol. Curiously, the Ankh is used by Roman Catholics! In their robes, some Church officials wear two Ankhs, one on the front and one on the back, with a common loop. When wearing this outfit, the loop is placed over the head, which gives rise to speculation over sexual symbolism and spirituality. In any event, the looped cross is not a Christian symbol.

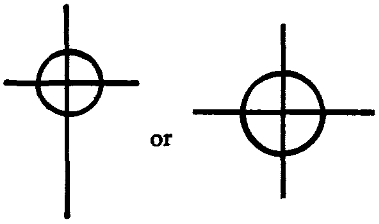
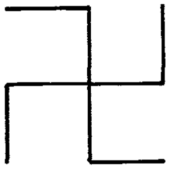
Solar Cross

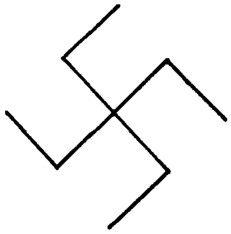


Celtic Cross

The ancient Pagan Europeans also had crosses. One type of cross which was popular was the equal-armed or Solar Cross. Another was the circled or Celtic Cross. Remember, "Celtic" is pronounced "Kel-tik" and not "Sel-tik."



True Mystical Swastika



Perverted Nazi Swastika

Another form of the cross which appeared all over Europe and in parts of North America was the spinning Solar Cross also known as the Fylfot (fill-foh) Cross, the Hammer of Thor, or the Swastika. This holy and mystical symbol was always drawn in a horizontal-vertical pattern with the arms in such a way that the cross appeared to be moving with the Sun or clockwise. It is a shame that this symbol was perverted by the Black Magic Lodges of Germany of which Hitler was a member. In the diagram above you can see how the Nazi swastika goes against the Sun, giving the impression of spinning in a counterclockwise direction. Note, too, that it is on a point rather than horizontal-vertical. Although the Nazis did at times use the true mystical Swastika, their official symbol was the perverted version. Today, most people are disgusted with the symbol and do not separate the spiritual from the obscene.

The purpose of the above paragraphs, besides looking at symbolism, is to firmly implant in your mind that the rituals we do, even though in places they do involve the symbolism of the cross, are not Christian, Nazi or any other faith or dogma. Nor are they merely de-Christianized versions of Christian symbol and ritual. If anything, it would be more correct to say that Christianity has borrowed the ancient mystical symbols for its own purposes. Thus, if you are Jewish, Hindu, Moslem, Pagan, Agnostic or something else, there should be nothing to hinder you from using the holy symbol of the cross as in the Celtic Cross Tarot reading, the Kabalistic Cross section of the LBRP, and in other rituals as well. The way we use a cross is not Christian, or perhaps I could say that it is "beyond Christian." Also, symbols currently used by other traditions can be used by those from Christian backgrounds without insult, as they come from our universal mystical source, not a sectarian one.

Another symbol is composed of the letters "INRI." The most famous use of these letters was supposedly on Jesus' cross. They were an abbreviation (again a Notarikon. There are many of these in both the old and new Testaments) for "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews."

During the Dark Ages and into the Renaissance, if you did not want to be tortured and burned by the powers of the Church, it was a wise idea to hide mystical and political ideas within Christian symbolism. Thus, other meanings of the letters INRI developed. To alchemists, it stood for Igne Naturae Renovatur Integra, Latin for "Nature by Fire is renewed in its integrity." In a later lesson I will be discussing certain aspects of alchemy which will make this particular phrase instantly clear and of great magickal import.

Another version of these letters which was also important to the medieval alchemists was Igne Nitrum Raris Invenitum. Again, this was Latin, then the language of the learned, and meant "shining (or glittering) is rarely found in fire." This may be a bit more difficult to comprehend, but once a certain aspect of alchemy is explained, it should become very clear.

Believe it or not, there are many people today who consider the Jesuit Order to be a danger to our way of life. Personally, I don't agree with that thought, even if they do follow a leader known as the "Black Pope." He is called this not for spiritual blackness, but because black is the color of his robes. Also, I am not personally a believer in conspiracy theories of world domination. However, the Jesuits did go through a very political period, much as some clerics of different faiths express their political views today. When the Jesuits went through that political period, INRI to them stood for Iusticum (or Justicum) Necare Regis Impium, which is Latin for "It is just to kill an impious king."

An Aside. I have always been fascinated by etymology, the study of where words came from and how they developed. The above word "impious" comes, of course, from "pious." In the Old Testament, the Hebrew men are told not to trim or cut their sideburns. Today still, orthodox Jews can be seen with long sideburns. Sometimes they are even braided. It is considered a sign of holiness or piety. In fact, that's where the word "pious" comes from: "pious" is Hebrew for "sideburns."

The above now makes me think about the word "holy" and where it came from. In ancient times, long before the births of Christianity or Biblical Judaism, the type of religion or spiritual system followed by many people was shamanistic in nature. Part of many shamanistic cultures is the idea that a stone with a natural hole in it was considered very sacred. So too were other objects with natural holes, such as sea shells. From this comes the idea that one sign of a sacred object was its natural hole. A "holey" object was sacred. From this came our word "holy."

Kabalistically, the letters INRI represent much more. INRI, which in Hebrew would be Yud, Nun, Resh, Yud, are also the first letters in Hebrew for the four archetypal elements (according to J.S.M. Ward in his book Freemasonry and the Ancient Gods):

English	Hebrew	Hebrew
letter	letter	element	translation
I	Yud	Yam	Water
N	Nun	Nour	Fire
R	Resh	Ruach	Air
I	Yud	Yebeshas	Earth

According to the ancient Kabalistic document the Sepher Yetzirah, the Hebrew letters also have astrological meanings:

English	Hebrew	Astrology
letter	letter	name
I	Yud	Virgo
N	Nun	Scorpio
R	Resh	Sol (The Sun)
I	Yud	Virgo

For those of you who may be totally unfamiliar with astrology, let's examine briefly the meanings of these astrological signs on a very simple basis.

Virgo is the pure and virginal sign of nature.
Scorpio is the sign of energy, death and transfiguration.
Sol (The Sun) is the source of light and life to everything on the Earth. It is central to our lives because it is central to our Solar System.

There have been many "savior gods" in the history of our planet. For the Norse it was Baldur. For the Egyptians it was Osiris. For the ancient Celts of the British Isles it was Lugh. To the Hindus it was (and is) Krishna. Just as in the Christian story of the "only" son of God, all of these "savior gods" died and came back to life for the good of humanity. All of these resurrection gods are associated with the Sun. They "die" in winter and are reborn with the warmth and plant and animal life which appears in the spring. Unfortunately, the topic of savior-resurrection gods is far too extensive to cover in depth in this book. If this topic interests you, see the books in the bibliography.

If we were to use the Egyptian pantheon of Gods, Virgo is represented by the goddess Isis, who is nature, the mother of all things. Scorpio is represented by Apophis (also known as Set or Typhon) who was death, the destroyer. Sol is represented by Osiris, who, slain and risen, was the Egyptian resurrection and vegetative deity.

Since the "I" in the "INRI" formula is repeated and represents two of the magickal elements, the three members of the Egyptian pantheon, Isis, Apophis and Osiris, can represent the four archetypal elements of which everything on Earth is composed. They can also represent famous thoughts of alchemy, and if you desire, they can represent some of the basic, albeit "borrowed," ideas of Christianity.

It is interesting to note that the Notarikon, the abbreviation made of the first letters of Isis, Apophis and Osiris, "IAO" (pronounced eeeee-aaaaahh-oooohhh) forms the name of the supreme God of the Gnostics, an early sect of Christianity.

Resurrection or redeemer gods are always associated with Sol, the Sun. The Sun is the primary giver of light to our planet. It follows, therefore, that light is always associated with the idea of a redeemer god. This is why beneficial or "white" occult groups always try to bring light (spiritual light) to mankind.

In Latin, the word for light is spelled LVX and pronounced "lux" with the "u" sounding like that in "tube." In rituals we represent certain archetypal ideas to our psyches via poses and actions. It is easily possible to represent the idea of spiritual LVX or "light" by spelling it out with various gestures. For example:

L—Left arm straight out to the side, horizontally, with the palm forward. Right arm straight up, palm to the left.

V—Both arms straight up over the head forming the letter "V." The palms should be facing each other. The angle between the arms should be about sixty degrees.

X—The arms crossed on the chest, right over left.

These gestures are the basis for what are known as the LVX gestures. By knowing the ideas represented by our mystical notion of light, we can use the gestures to aspire to the illumination (LVX) implied by these "gestures of the art."

Here is another interesting thing in regard to the idea of LVX. In Roman numerals, L=50, V=5 and X=10, for a total of 65. In Hebrew the letters Aleph=1, Dalet=4, Nun=50 and Yud=10 also total 65. These Hebrew letters spell out the word Ah-doh-nye (my Lord), one of the names of God. As you will remember, it is used in the LBRP. If spiritual light (LVX)=65 and Divinity (in the Ah-doh-nye aspect)=65, then according to Gematria we must assume that there is some relationship between the two. There is such a relationship: they are one and the same! The ultimate Divinity is that infinite spiritual light known in Hebrew as Ain Soph Or (meaning Limitless Light), the third veil of "negative existence" before God begins manifesting at Keter.

Before moving on to the next part of this lesson, there are still a few theoretical things to cover. First is the meaning of the magickal word ARARITA (Ah-rah-ree-tah). It is a Notarikon, an abbreviation or acronym for the phrase in Hebrew, pronounced:

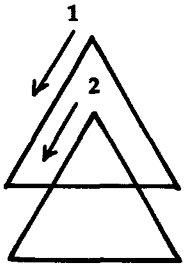
Eh-chahd Rash, Eh-chu-doh-toh Rash Ye-chu-doh-toh, Teh-mur-ah-toh Eh-chahd.

The "ch" in this phrase is always pronounced like that in the Scottish word "loch."

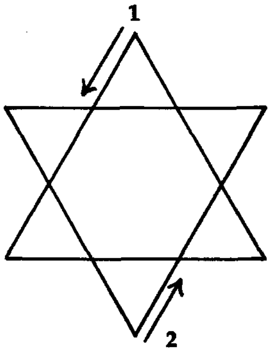
The above phrase, represented by the Notarikon ARARITA, means "One is God's beginning, one principle is God's individuality, God's permutation is one." This clearly states the Kabalistic attitude that no matter the name by which you call Divinity, there is only one ultimate Divinity, one divine source which can be summoned. Everything is of Divinity, or as is said in a ritual, "there is no part of me which is not of the gods."

There is a short series of hexagrams which you must learn. Actually, I think of them more as being "paired triangles" than hexagrams. Israel Regardie, in his book Ceremonial Magic, suggests using Crowley's unicursal hexagram instead of the traditional four paired triangles. I have learned it both ways and I quite frankly prefer the traditional style. That is what will be given here.

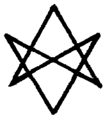
Practice drawing them somewhat large in the air in front of you. They should be similar in size to the pentagrams of the LBRP. Take



East—Fire



South—Earth



Unicursal Hexagram

1 common line
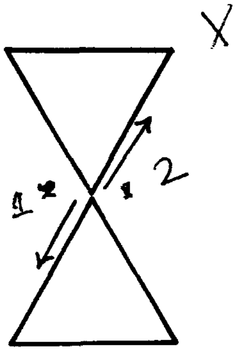
(actual appearance)
2

West—Air



North—Water

Hexagrams

note of the direction to face when drawing these hexagrams. Also note the archetypal element to which each is associated. The first thing you should be aware of is that the elements associated with the quarters of the circle have changed. This is because on a higher plane, the archetypal elements are associated with different quadrants.

Each triangle begins at the apex (even if the triangle is inverted and the apex is at the bottom), and the figure is drawn counterclockwise until it returns to its point of origination. In the diagrams following, start drawing at the point numbered 1 and move in the direction of the arrow until you complete the triangle. Then start at the point numbered 2 and move in the direction of the arrow until you complete the second triangle. Note that the hexagram of the West has a common line, however for clarity it is shown as two separate triangles.

Before moving on to the next part of this lesson, it is time to alter the instructions for the Tarot Completion Ritual. You should by now be using all of the Major Arcana cards in this ritual. When you choose a card in this advanced version, imagine yourself as the main character in the card. You may change the sex of the main figure of the card so that the sex of that character matches your own. If there is no main character, or no human character, simply put yourself into the card anywhere. Visualize yourself in the card. Once you feel that you are "in" the card, will your eyes to open. If your physical eyes are closed do not open them, however. When your psychic eyes are open, look around. See everything in the card from the view of yourself within the card. Try to see what is behind the designs of which you can normally only see the front. Most importantly, determine if you can "see" anything beyond the edge of the card. Don't do anything, just look. Do not attempt to move or go anywhere. Then, will your psychic eyes to close and return to normal consciousness. Record your experience, whether or not you experienced any unusual sights, sounds, smells, tastes, feelings or sensations, in your Magickal Diary. Take the next seven days to read over what you have done so far in this lesson and practice this Advanced Tarot Contemplation Ritual. Then move on to the next section.

PART FOUR

Earlier in this lesson I mentioned that I was going to discuss the difference between the wand and the dagger. Although the wand has traditionally been associated with the magickal element of Fire and the dagger has been associated with Air, some people, especially in recent years, have reversed these associations. This is in a large part due to those people who have been using what they call Wicca or Witchcraft. While it is true that Witchcraft is thousands of years old, it is also true that much of what is today called Witchcraft is either a creation of or a re-construction by the late Gerald B. Gardner.

This is not meant to belittle anybody who follows a Pagan path. In fact, those who follow one of the various Pagan paths in many cases seem to have regained the link between humanity and nature that most Ceremonial Magicians only talk about and secretly envy. As you may have noticed, one of the important areas which this course has emphasized is the attunement to the elements, something which has been sadly lacking in most books or courses on High Magick.

It is clear that Gardner simplified some seemingly complex magickal techniques and philosophy ("borrowed" from the ubiquitous A. Crowley). Then, with the help of Doreen Valiente they created modern Witchcraft. It does not matter whether or not he received initiation from the New Forest Witches as he claimed. Nor does it matter that many have gone far beyond his initial researches, training and techniques. For he has introduced many to a form of spirituality which could not be found elsewhere when he began his work. His contributions, thankfully, will last for many years to come.

However, as I said, some of what Gardner did was a simplification of traditional magickal philosophy. One of these simplifications was the equating of the dagger with the sword. This is understandable as the sword does appear to be nothing more than a long dagger. And if you had only learned the LBRP, you might know that Me-chai-el bears a sword and stands to the South, the direction of the element Fire. Water, of course, would be associated with the Chalice, and Earth with the Pentacle. This leaves the wand to the element Air. And Rah-fay-el, the Archangel of that element, does hold the caduceus wand. This all seems so logical.

Unfortunately for the above simplification, it is not correct to equate the purposes of any of the several wands used by a magician.

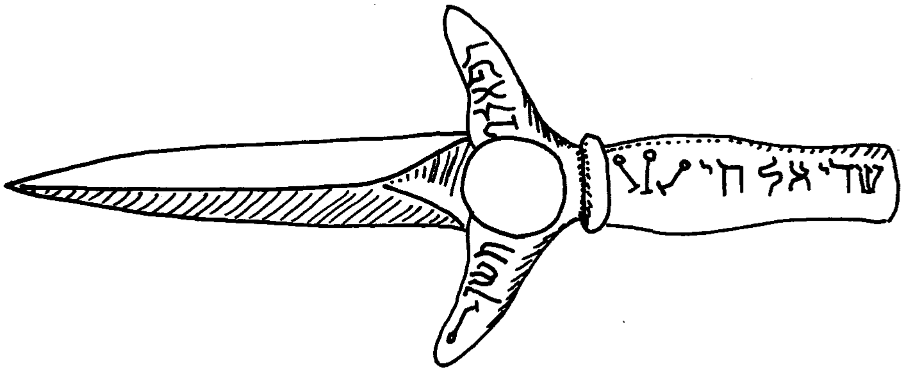
The Fire wand is not the same as the Lotus wand, and neither are those the same as the wands carried by the initiatic officers of occult groups. They all have different functions even though they have the same basic shape. So too is the dagger different in design and function than the magickal sword.

If it helps to clear things in your mind, some people like to think of the dagger as being the tip of a spear which is thrown through the air.

The traditional Air Dagger is a simple, double-edged blade with a "T" shaped handle as shown below.

Since the Air Dagger should never have been used to cut living things, it should preferably be new, Undercoat the handle and the "T," but protect the blade from paint. Follow the instruction on the paint concerning the treatment of the wood and/or metal before applying the paint. Then paint the undercoated parts a bright yellow.

On page 152 you will find a listing of the Hebrew words and sigils to be painted in bright purple or mauve around the handle and "t" cross bar. As you will see there are eight groups of these, the same number as for the Earth Pentacle. In fact, all of the tools will have eight sets of words and sigils.



Air Dagger

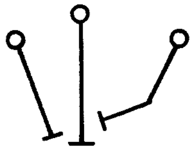
I have already discussed the motto (number VIII), so let's look at the others.

I—is the God Name associated with the tool.
II—is the name of the Archangel associated with the tool (notice that for the Dagger the name is Raphael, the Archangel associated with the magickal element Air.)
III—the name of the angel associated with the tool.
IV—the name of the ruler of the element.
V—there are said to be four rivers coming out of paradise. V names the river associated with the element.
VI—is the name of the direction associated with the element and tool in Hebrew.
VII—is the name of the element in Hebrew.
VIII—is the motto.

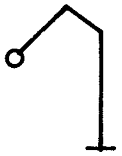
After completing the painting, coat the handle with a clear plastic such as varathane. Note that the above numeration will stay the same for all of the tools.

Let me make clear that this course is presenting traditional Western occultism. From this standpoint, other associations are incorrect. However, within their own systems, other attributions may be totally correct and the traditional system presented here would be "in error." The only moral of this paragraph, if I can call it that, is if you do not totally understand the system you are using, do not mix it with other systems. It will only cause you problems. This is not to say that you cannot blend multiple systems once they are fully comprehended. That was a prime achievement of the Golden Dawn. On the other hand, I am aware of a person who could not get involved in a Western magickal group (although he tried), then didn't like the Wiccan group he became involved with because it did not have the same magickal traditions. One was too complicated and the other too easy. The result is that he has formed his own "Ancient Cabalistic Celtic Coven." My only regrets are for the students he is "teaching" and the problems they may have in the future. It is said that, "When the student is ready the teacher will appear." Unfortunately, this is true even when the student is ready to be mis-taught.

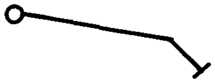
Part of your work for this lesson is the construction of the Air Dagger as described. It is not expected that your art work will hit the level of a da Vinci or Michelangelo, only that it be done to the best of your abilities.



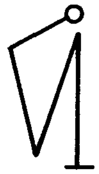
שדי אל חי
I. SHADDAI EL CHAI



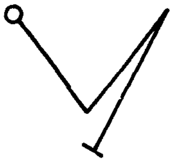
רפאל
II. RAPHAEL



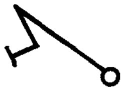
חשן
III. CHASSAN



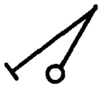
אריאל
IV. ARIEL



הדקל
V. HIDDIKEL



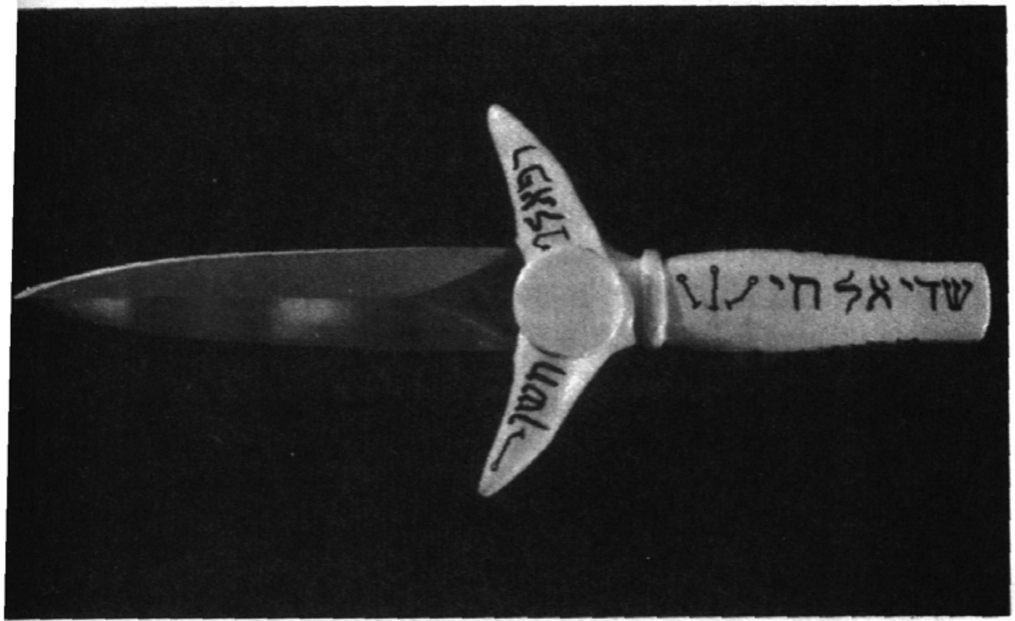
מזרח
VI. MIZRACH



רוח
VII. RUACH

VIII. THE MOTTO

Symbols and Hebrew for the Air Dagger



Air Dagger

Made by Chic Cicero

PART FIVE

It is possible to classify the study of psychology into two broad areas: normal and abnormal psychology. Unfortunately, the study of abnormal psychology is beyond the scope of this course. If you are interested in this particular field from an occult viewpoint, you will enjoy the book The Secrets of Dr. Taverner by Dion Fortune.

Let us look at normal psychology, starting with Freud. Besides being brought up at the end of the Victorian Age, a fact which colored his entire outlook on life, he also came from a Jewish background. From his writings, it is clear to even the most casual reader the harmony which exists between his thoughts and a rather simple version of psychology as described in the Kabalah. In fact, although the Kabalah and Freud argued for the idea of a subconscious or unconscious, many of Freud's contemporaries did not believe such a thing existed! In his later years, Freud said that if he had his life to live over again he would spend it in the study of parapsychology rather than psychology. I think it is safe to assume that Freud was either consciously or unconsciously influenced by the Kabalah.

As shown in an earlier lesson, Freud divided the mind into three categories: Id, Ego and Superego. In the 1970's a simplified form of Freudianism known as Transactional Analysis (as popularized in the book, I'm Okay, You're Okay) tried to put the abstract Freudian ideas into terms understandable by lay people. Thus, id, ego and superego were replaced with child, parent and adult, respectively. And it is true that most people can relate better to the idea of a child wanting its way and throwing tantrums if he or she doesn't get it, than to the word "id" which has no easy picture in most people's minds. But the Kabalah goes so much further in its understanding of the mind, that Freud and Jung seem like beginners.

One of the biggest problems with standard psychological theory is that it begins with birth or slightly before. Thus, it must fail to answer some basic questions such as, "What was my mind doing before the inception of my body? If reincarnation is a fact, why do I have trouble remembering past lives? And if it is not a fact, why do I have fleeting memories of past lives?" Why is there such a desire by people in cultures all over the world to reunite with God, to be more than they are?" (Jung saw this and called it a desire for religion, a basic human instinct which Freud did not acknowledge.) The Kabalah answers this and more. Some of this discussion will have to be saved for a later discussion of reincarnation, the most complete analysis of which has been hidden for centuries within the Kabalah. But for now we must merely look at that change known as death.

Let us assume that you have died and been reincarnated into a new-born infant. According to the Kabalah, the soul enters the body with the first breath the infant takes. Perhaps you want to finish that good book you were reading or see that movie you missed just before you died. Unfortunately, you discover that your muscles do not work the way you remembered they worked. This is not psychological, it's physiological. Nerves and bones have not finished developing. Various muscular activity cannot take place due to this lack of development. You can no longer feed yourself. You can't communicate through speech or writing. You cannot even control your bowels or bladder. After a short while, things which were part of your normal existence are now part of a terrifyingly new world.

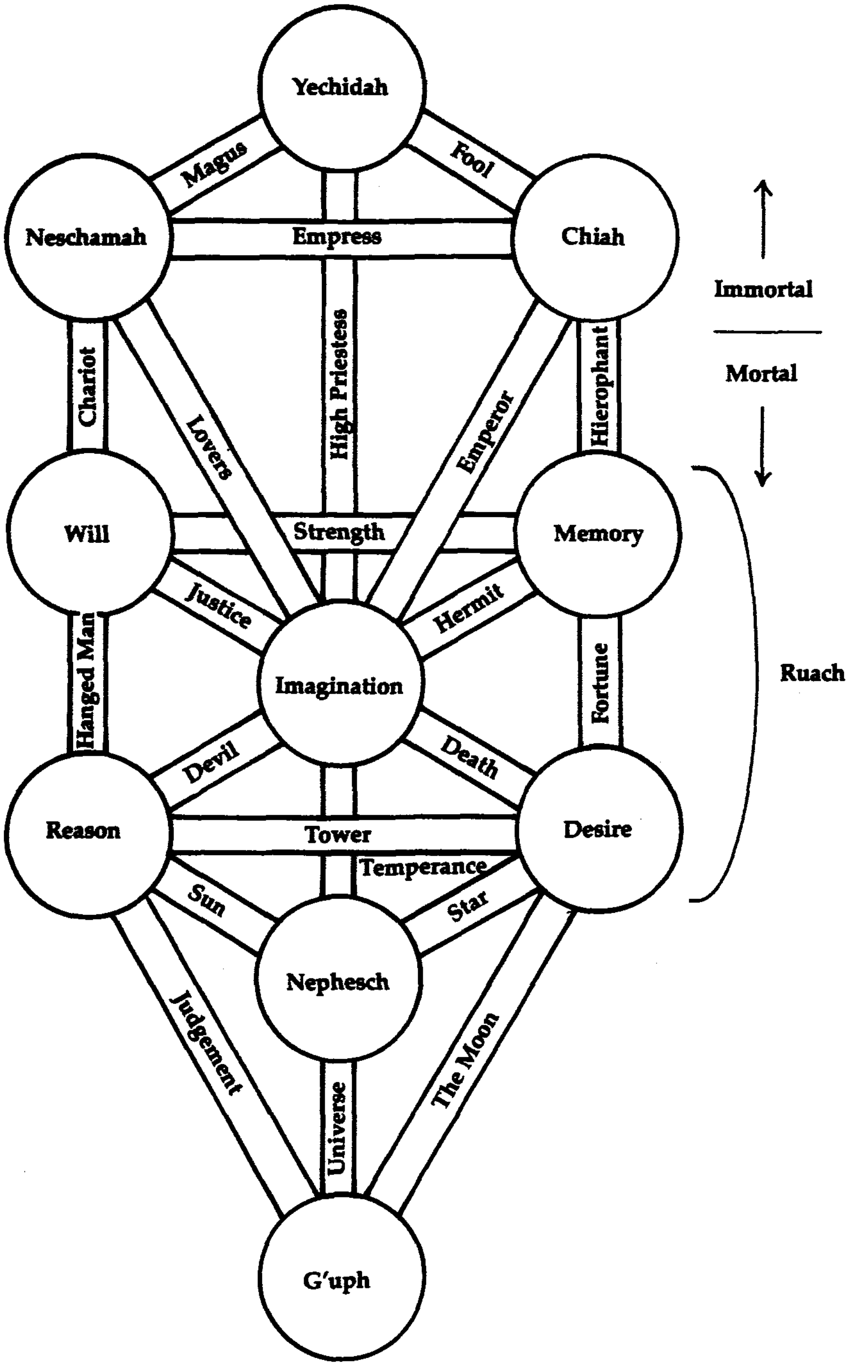
In order to cope, you must quickly develop new modes of communication. You learn that cooing brings smiling, happy faces and warm protective bodies. You learn that crying brings worried looks, your mother's breast or a needed change of diapers. In order to survive, your real consciousness submerges and a false consciousness arises. Eventually, this false consciousness takes over. It becomes the consciousness or ego. It is a covering which is developed so that we can exist. It is necessary, but it is not our true self.

And what of our true self? It has submerged to a point where most people rarely if ever allow it to come out. This is especially true in so-called civilized societies. Is it any wonder that there is so much rebellion in the world? So many people, instinctively trying to release their true, inner selves, seem like rebels without causes.

But, in fact, there is a cause. The true self, the part of us which survives what is called death, is not material. Our true self is spiritual and non-material in nature. It is our higher self, our direct link to the Divine. It becomes hidden compared to our false, outer self. Our true self, our link to the Divine, is our unconscious. And there have been so many fights, disagreements and wars caused by people who didn't know what they really wanted: communion with the Godhead. That is, what is really desired is a link between the conscious and the unconscious. This is a main focus of our magickal work. It is the very essence of White Magick.

As you have probably guessed, the Kabalah does not divide the mind into three main categories, but into ten. On the next page you will see how the ten aspects of mind relate to the Tree of Life. The first thing you will notice is the dividing line at the abyss, the space between the upper three Sephiroht and the lower seven. The three above are immortal and last for as long as the Divine Source wishes them to exist. The seven below are mortal and cease to exist when the body dies. A quick glance will show that the memory is mortal. Thus, it is obvious that our memory of past lives will tend to be very minimal at best. Here, then, is an easy explanation as to why we tend not to remember much more than hints of our past lives.

The Yechidah is our True Self, our Link to the Divine, our transcendental ego. It relates to what Freud called the "superego." The Chiah is our True Will. It is the creative and inquisitive inner impulse (from the Divine) which causes us to reach outside and inside of ourselves to become better than we are. It makes us try harder, to want to be the best and do better than we have done before. This does not imply competition. We all can advance together. Sometimes this impulse is subdued, but it always comes back in force. This was exemplified by the age of exploration which followed the Dark Ages, and by our current reach into the vastness of space. It also explains the



Yechidah
Magus
Fool
Neschamah
Empress
Chiah
Immortal Mortal
Chariot
Lovers
High Priestess
Emperor
Hierophant
Will Strength
Memory
Justice
Hermit
Hanged Man Imagination
Fortune
Ruach
Devil
Death Reason
Tower Desire
Temperance
Sun
Star
Nephesch Judgement
Universe
The Moon
G'uph

The Mind on the Tree of Life urge to commune with the Godhead, to know the joy and ecstasy of the Knowledge and Conversation of your Holy Guardian Angel, to practice White Magick.

The Neschamah is the intuition. It is the seat of all the psychic abilities of humanity. There is a method of instruction called "The Socratic Method." It is based upon the teaching methods of Socrates. He believed that people did not learn new things. Rather, they remembered things which they had forgotten at death before their current incarnation. By asking questions, Socrates would elicit from the student answers which would lead the student to the discovery of an idea or principle which the student could not have known. Today, this system of involving a student rather than merely telling a student seems to be the most effective way to teach. It allows the student to have a growing, inquiring mind. It also allows for intuitive leaps and bounds, resulting in an individual who is creative rather than a robot only capable of rote repetition.

Part of the definition of Magick is that it is a science. As magicians we should understand modern scientific thought. One such canon of science is the Theory of Evolution. Evolution is not, as many think, a smooth line. Rather, it moves in jumps and jerks. Current evolutionary thought calls this "punctuated equilibrium." Likewise, the advancement of mind and humanity has often come in sudden steps. The laser was the accidental result of communications research. Today lasers are used for everything from playing records to brain surgery previously impossible to perform even with the sharpest of scalpels. This is an example of a link to the Divine via the unconscious will. This uncontrolled link is an aspect of the Neschamah. A controlled link to the Divine is an aspect of the Chiah. Thus, from our point of view the Chiah is active while the Neschamah is receptive. As always, it is the goal of the Kabalist to blend opposites and bring balance into manifestation. By allowing the Neschamah to be in our awareness, we develop psychic abilities. By being conscious of the Chiah, we are able to do Magick.

The Ruach is our consciousness, our intellect, our false self. It equates with Freud's idea of the Ego. Notice that it is composed of five parts: memory, imagination, reason, desire, and will. The aspect of will related to the Ruach is different from the Chiah. The Chiah is our True Will. As such, it is in alignment with the will of the Divine. The will of the Ruach is that which is moved by our superficial and transitory desires. The True Will of the Chiah is to create, to love and to seek unity with the Godhead. The will aspect of the Ruach is to have sexual release, to eat good smelling food although you know that food is neither good nor needed, and to be better than those around you, even if it means hardships for them or their destruction.

The Nephesch is the lower self. It is the most superficial layer of the unconsciousness, wherein dwells the darker side of ourselves. It is usually under the tight control of the Ruach. Earlier I equated the Nephesch with the Freudian Id. While correct, it is not precise. The Id is really a process, not an aspect of the mind. It is frequently submerged and hidden within the Nephesch, but it is not exactly the Nephesch. The process called the Id, when submerged in the Nephesch, is said to be controlled by the Ruach. However, when the Ruach does not control the Id and the Nephesch dominates, the Id is free to roam the aspects of the mind and come out in sometimes unfortunate places. Part of the techniques of magick which you have been learning include the control of this Id-energy so that it can be used as you wish under the control of the united Yechidah and Ruach. The Nephesch is also the source of the astral body and the seat of the energy called Prana (correct pronunciation: prahn-yah) in Sanskrit. In the Kabalah this energy is also known as Ruach, but should not be confused with the Ruach meaning consciousness.

Note that there is a difference between the energy called Ruach or Prana and the Id. The Id is a process, a motion, while the Ruach or Prana is that which moves. Freud's earlier definition of the Libido, as described earlier in this course, would have made it the same as Prana or Ruach energy.

Finally, the bottommost Sephira is related to the G'uph, the physical body. Many people wonder how the body can be an aspect of mind. To me, the interrelation is quite obvious on many levels. First, as you incarnate, you "choose" a particularly shaped body depending on the types of experiences you need in life (more on this in the discussion of reincarnation). Also, imagine the different thoughts of someone born with severe handicaps as opposed to a person born physically normal. There are also differences in the psyches of people who are considered ugly and those who are considered beautiful according to the dictates of society. There are even differences in the psyches of people who tend to be slim and those who tend to be obese. The physical body plays an important role as part of the psyche and should not be ignored.

But after all this information, we are left with a feeling of "that's interesting, but so what?" Actually, once you know the basis for Kabalistic psychology there is much that you can do with it. The two keys to what you can do are:

1. Understanding the Tree of Life, and
2. Understanding the Tarot and how it fits on the Tree of Life.

Let us say that it has been so long since you have been involved in a relationship that you cannot feel desire for someone, even though that person indicates a desire for you. A possible diagnosis here is that you no longer have the memory of what a loving relationship is like. You need something to trigger the memories. Looking at the Tree we can see that what is needed is an infusion of imagination (which is linked by a direct path to the Yechidah, our link to the Divine). Contemplating the card known as The Hermit will bring imagination back into the memory. Spend a few minutes contemplating The Hermit each day for a week. If the goal of bringing up desire has not been achieved, it is probably not because you have failed, but because you have not brought the memory down to the level of desire. Contemplation of The Wheel of Fortune card for a few minutes a day will accomplish this.

Perhaps you feel that you are a very logical person and pride yourself on your reasoning talents. From the standpoint of the Kabalah there is absolutely nothing wrong with this. It is fine to be proud of your talents, and not to do so would be a lie. But perhaps you feel that you are not creative enough in your life. Here, a short period of daily contemplation on the card titled The Devil will reward you immensely. It does not mean that you will be satanically inspired. Hopefully it will allow you to learn about and break out of your "satanic" enthrallment to cold logic and reason. Coming from the other side, if you find yourself very creative but with illogical, time-wasting ideas, contemplation of this same card will allow reason to enter your world and guide, but not over-control, your imagination.

Thus, neatly packed into the Tree of Life we have a complete system not only of psychotherapy, but also a system of dealing with day-to-day situations and improving your life. It is also a wonderful way of becoming familiar with the Tree and the Tarot.

Sometime in the future, people will have forgotten that there was a series of "lightbulb" jokes which all began, "How many ________s does it take to change a lightbulb?" The answers were frequently blackly humorous. One version of this joke goes, "How many psychiatrists does it take to change a lightbulb?" The answer is, "Only one, but it has to want to change." The reason I bring this up is that any time you wish to use magick to change somebody's mind, you must ask for that person's permission first. And the person must give it to you. You have no right to change a person even if it is for the betterment of that person unless that person wants the change. The reason I say this is to suggest that you do not go up to a friend who you think needs changing and say, "Here, look at this card for three minutes a day for the next week" without telling that person the reason and how it works. That person may not want to change in the way you think he/she should. If they ask for your help, fine. If they agree with you after being informed of what you are doing, fine. But changing a person's mind without his/her permission is nothing but Black Magick, and you will be the one to suffer most. Start working on improving yourself before tying to help others who may be healthier than you think.

PART SIX

Egotism. We all have it to a greater or lesser degree. Many people react negatively to hearing this and insist that they are not egotistical. Well, if you don't have a strong ego, something is wrong with you. We all need strong egos, strong senses of self to survive and grow.

What we need to do is isolate different aspects of ego from one another and eliminate those aspects we no longer desire. That positive aspect of our egos which tells us, "I'm great at some things and other people are great at various things too" should be encouraged and built upon. That aspect which says to us, "I'm great and everybody else is wrong" needs to be overcome.

I've gone through periods of the latter. Luckily, I have had techniques and teachers which allowed me and still allow me to overcome the problem of negative egotism when I became aware of it. It is unfortunate but true that people who teach metaphysical topics can end up being led to believe in their own (non-existent) greatness as the result of the adulation of students. One of the reasons that I suggest you read at least one other book on the topics of these lessons while you are studying this course is so that you will get other opinions and ideas, some of which may contradict the ideas presented here.

In Eastern mystical traditions, the physical, phenomenal world is considered an illusion (maya) which hides the true spiritual reality behind the phenomenal world. Our higher self can know the true universe, but it is cut off by our dominant egos which only see the illusion. Thus, our egos "slay" the true, inner reality. We are told that to achieve enlightenment we must "slay the slayer," get rid of our egos and see the inner reality. Crowley wrote about this frequently, yet, although he claimed to have succeeded, it is very questionable as to whether he really freed himself from his ego.

According to Israel Regardie, in the West our goal is not to rid ourselves of our egos, but to perfect our egos so that they are in harmony with our higher selves. I doubt if a large percentage of Western mystics have achieved that state.

What both Crowley and Regardie seem to imply is a very mechanistic mind. That is, they seem to see the amount of ego reaching a certain level which, by following certain instructions, can be raised or lowered. I don't agree. The mind seems to be far more flowing and changeable than their mechanistic version. We can quickly or gradually change from large to small amounts of negative egotism depending on such things as the weather, our health, our physical environment, and perhaps various astrological influences. What we need to have are devices to aid us by first allowing us to sense that a problem exists (i.e., an increase in negative egotism) and then give us some ways to deal with it.

You might be asking yourself why I'm giving you this information now. It's because I want to tell you some more about the pitfalls of leading a group, and my worst failure as a teacher.

Several years ago I had a student who I believe had more potential as a magician than anyone I have met before or since. I tried to lead him into becoming a good magician, well grounded in occult philosophy. Unfortunately, due to differences of opinion between myself and this student we ended up going separate ways.

One of the reasons for this was that he did not like the way I did some of my private tutoring. As I discussed earlier, I prefer the Socratic method of teaching. I read somewhere a simple explanation of it:

Tell me. . . and I'll forget.
Show me. . . and I might remember.
Involve me. . . and I'll understand.

When this student asked me a question, I would answer in a way designed to lead him to a deeper understanding of the implications of the question, and not give just a simple yes or no. He did not like the idea of having to think about the answers. He wanted a "yes or no" answer to complex questions. I refused to give him that which he really wanted: magickal power with no personal work.

About a year after he had stopped being my student, I was asked by an international occult order to start a chapter of that order in the city where I then lived. I knew several people who would be interested and who might make good members, including this former student. Naturally, on the day before I had planned to call him I accidentally ran into him and told him about it. In a short time, he, I, and some others were working together. I soon realized that previous commitments would not allow me the time to lead the group. Because he had more latent magickal talent and charisma than other members of the group, I chose him to be my successor.

This person is very intelligent. He has worked as a secretary for many years and because of it has two problems. First, since many secretaries do what they are told and allow their bosses to have the responsibility for their success or errors, he has the attitude that magickally he can do whatever he wants, and if he errs he can always do it over or use some sort of magickal "white-out." This is a very dangerous attitude to have when doing practical magick of the sort he is doing, and both he and one of his close assistants have told me of the times when he has "summoned up something" and not been able to banish it. Had he been more advanced, the manifestation could have been more physical. The result could have been life-threatening.

Secondly, as a secretary he does what he is told and thus has a feeling of impotence and lack of power. I did not realize this at the time I turned the organization over to him. It was a big error!

Rather than allowing him to develop more quickly, as I had hoped it would do, the power of being the local head of a group gave him a feeling that he could do anything and get away with anything. He began to lie and break his oaths left and right. He tried to give away some of the secrets of the organization he was a member of in order that he might learn the inner secrets of other organizations. Finally, although remaining a member of the organization, he decided that this order was not spiritual at all. So he became a de facto member of a well-known, very authoritarian, pseudo-Hindu order.

Since this so-called Order tells its "devotees" when to get up, when to go to sleep, what to read, what to think, when to bathe, what to wear, when to have sex, when to eat, etc., it seemed to me that this organization would be perfect for this person who was so used to taking orders anyway. However, he insisted on claiming to teach people the methods of the organization to which I had introduced him. From what I have seen, he had been subtly twisting the teachings and using "politics" to try to get himself into the total leadership position of the group. He also tried to make this pseudo Hindu Order, a group accused of brain washing and mind control by many authorities, look very positive to his followers and make several of its followers into members of the group. Fortunately for the occult Order, his attempt failed, although the branch which I started with about ten people now has only two active members and is about to fold. Unfortunately for the leader, it has been alleged to me that his failure has led him to drug addiction and prostitution.

One of the little-known facts of teaching is that a teacher must accept the Karma of what he/she teaches. If a teacher's students use the teachings wisely, it benefits the teacher's Karma. If they use the teachings to do negative things, it hurts the teacher's Karma. In this case, I have to accept some of this person's Karma (for his using the things I taught him in a negative way). And because he is messing up some of his students, I also have to accept some of their Karma as well. Needless to say, there are things I am doing magickally to end this Karmic link. I find, however, that I am continually drawn to stay near him so that when he fails, as he invariably does, I am around to pick up the pieces of both him and his students should they want my help.

The reason I have gone through this long story is to show you some of the problems caused by egotism when forming or being a member of a magickal group. The egotism of S.L. MacGregor Mathers, one-time undisputed leader of the Golden Dawn, helped cause the breakup of that organization. Crowley's egotism caused his O.T.O. and A.A. to shrink in numbers until they were very small by the time of his death. There are far more people who study and idolize Crowley today than there ever were during his lifetime. Egotism and power hunger have broken up more magickal groups, covens, etc., than any other single cause.

So how do we avoid the problem of negative egotism in ourselves and others? First, we must acknowledge that if it is not on the surface, it is lurking just under the surface. Second, we have to learn how to recognize it. A simple way to do this is to look at attitudes. The negative egotistical attitude is presented in the book Krsna (sic) Consciousness, The Topmost Yoga System, by the late founder of the Hare Krishnas. In it (p. 40) he says, "Give up research—throw it away—just become submissive. . . [listen only to] authorized sources." Of course, the authorized sources you should listen to and the organization you should be submissive to in this case is the Hare Krishnas. On the other hand, look at the note at the beginning of Crowley's Book 4:

> . . . others have said, 'Believe me!' He [Crowley] says 'Don't believe me!'. . . He wants an independent and self-reliant body of students to follow out their own methods of research. If he can save them time and trouble by giving them a few useful 'tips,' his work will have been done to his own satisfaction.

It is with this last viewpoint that I heartily concur.

If you are the head of a group and you find yourself thinking that you have all the answers and any other way is wrong, it is time to get to work on yourself. Also, if you find yourself thinking you know all there is to know about the Kabalah and magick and occultism, it is time to work on yourself.

For most of us, our sense of "self," our ego, is based on the link between consciousness and body. Even those of us who spend many hours in Astral projection still think of "me" as being the mind-body unit. The mind, being non-physical, cannot possess, cannot be superior or inferior, cannot have or do anything other than exist and seek unity with the Divine. But when mind-body are thought of as one, it can have possessions, can be physically, mentally superior or inferior to other mind-body units. Thus, the key to overcoming negative egotism is to realize and accept (not merely understand) that the mind is not the body. The mind is the true self and the body is just a servant for that true self when living in the physical universe.

The following are gentle versions of techniques, some of which are given by Crowley in his books, which will help you in this endeavor.

1. Sit in a chair, back straight, knees together, feet flat on the floor. Your hands should be palms down on your thighs with the thumbs just touching. Now, just hold this position. In a short time your body will start to tremble and your legs will move apart and separate the thumbs. You will soon learn that this simple, basic position can rapidly become very uncomfortable. The body, it turns out, quicky becomes uncomfortable in any position. Just try to lie in any position for a short time and you will see for yourself that this is true. It is possible, with practice, to overcome the feelings of pain and discomfort. Since the body becomes painful in any position, it must be that something else overcomes the pain. That "something else" is not part of the physical body. It is the mind.

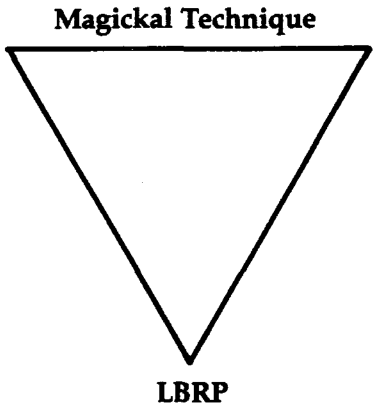
2. When you start to see negative egotism slipping into your life, make an agreement with yourself not to say the word "I" for at least two weeks. During that time keep a pad of paper with you, and anytime you say the word "I," put a small mark on a dated page. At first the page will be filled with marks, but as you go through the two-week period, the number will lessen. The effect of not saying the word "I" for a few weeks is quite astonishing. It tends very nicely to separate the idea of your self from the mind-body unit. To improve and speed up the result, you might wish to give a dollar or a quarter or a dime to your favorite charity for each of your "breaks," that is, each time you say "I." This exercise is a "charitable" version of Crowley's technique. He would have you slash your arm with a razor blade every time you had a break! I find the method given above quite satisfactory and much safer.

3. Do the Tarot Completion Ritual twice a day—once using the advanced technique, and once using the original basic technique.

PART SEVEN

I have always found amazing the large number of people who talk magick and the tiny amount of people who practice or live magick. The vast majority of people I have met who claim to be magicians show little knowledge of any rituals other than simple variations on the LBRP.

Don't get me wrong, though. I cannot overstress the importance of the LBRP. Becoming proficient in Magick is a precarious task, and the LBRP is the rather tiny support:



If you are not proficient at the LBRP, the entire system can fall down around you. This is why the LBRP is taught right at the beginning. In fact, other than initiation rituals, it was the only ritual given out to members of the Golden Dawn until they entered the Inner Order. This would take over one year of practice.

Thus, if you start actual practice on a daily basis of other rituals such as the Middle Pillar Ritual and the ritual which is to follow, you will be doing the practical work that so many people who call themselves magicians talk about, but so few actually practice.

Let me reaffirm to you now that magickal practice is not just self-delusion or "mental masturbation." During sexual stimulation the chemistry of the body actually changes. Various hormones are released into the bloodstream which cause the obvious signs of sexual arousal. Drugs called endorphins are created by the body and released into the blood and eventually arrive at the brain. Endorphins are similar to opiates and increase the pain threshold. As a result, bites and scratches which at other times would be painful become very pleasurable for some people.

However, the changes due to sexual arousal are temporary. The practice of ritual magick will make longer lasting changes. These include longevity, youthfulness, increased I.Q. and others. But unless you practice on a regular basis, nothing will happen. Magick is experiential, not mental.

The purpose of the LBRP, among other things, is to clear your immediate area of physical and non-physical distractions. This especially refers to what might be considered "negative influences."

However, when doing Grey Magick it becomes important to clear your area not only of lower or negative influences, but also to clear your area of positive or higher influences. This is because when you want to get into contact with one aspect of Divinity, you do not want anything (whether it be positive or negative) getting in the way.

Perhaps at some time in your life you have had someone have a romantic crush on you. They always want to be around you. They want to help you in every way possible and want to touch you as much as possible. Their motivation is completely based on their idea of love, yet they can quickly become a terrible annoyance, a "pain in the neck." Even though they come to you out of love and affection, two things which are undeniably very positive, they can get in the way of your efficient functioning at school, at work, in your personal and professional life. It may be fun for a short while, but soon it only gets in your way. We try to break our admirer of his/her obsession and stop the interference into our life. Similarly, it is important to prevent even positive interference into our magickal work. We must clear our immediate area, the area wherein we will work our magick, not only of negative influences, but also of positive influences. In short, we want to have an area for magickal work that has been cleared of all influences.

The LBRP clears the area of negative influences. The Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram (BRH) clears the area of positive influences. Just as with the LBRP, the Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram must be mastered.

Although I thoroughly enjoy the LBRP, I have always considered it to be on the level of doing my laundry. It is important and must be done regularly or you can get into trouble. I still do it on an average of twice a day. I feel good about doing it, too. But I also think that a ritual done daily should have "more."

When I first learned the BRH, I found that "more." While the Evocation of the Archangels in the LBRP is powerful, and it seems to me to always be increasing in power, the Invocations and physical actions of the BRH are to me quite awe-inspiring. I never cease to get chills when I pause after commanding the Divine Light to descend. And when that section is repeated at the end of the ritual, it is almost overpowering. At times I have wanted to cry over this ritual's magnificent yet simple beauty.

Much of the rituals of the Golden Dawn is filled with such beauty. Is there any more magnificent and beautiful way to "adore the Lord of the Universe and Space" than by the Golden Dawn's:

> Holy art Thou, Lord of the Universe!
> Holy art Thou, Whom Nature hath not formed!
> Holy art Thou, the Vast and Mighty One!
> Lord of the Light and of the Darkness!

As I wrote when I introduced the LBRP, the area you are working in becomes a temple of the Godhead. The LBRP is a preparation, a cleansing of that temple. The BRH has aspects which are nothing less than simple, glorious, honest worship along with its already mentioned banishing qualities.

THE BANISHING RITUAL OF THE HEXAGRAM

Preliminaries:

1. Perform the Relaxation Ritual.
2. Perform the LBRP.
3. If you have any questions about the symbolism, re-read Part Three of this lesson.

Section One: The Analysis of the Keyword

STEP ONE. Stand behind the altar (if you have one) with your arms out to the sides so that your body forms a cross. You should be facing east. If you have a ritual wand, you should use it in this ritual. It should be held in the right hand with its point up.

STEP TWO. Say meaningfully:

I N R I
Yud, Nun, Raish, Yud,
The sign of Osiris slain.

As you say the letters in Hebrew (the second line of the above verbalization), draw them, from right to left, in front of you. Use the tip of your wand or your right index finger. The letters are formed from top to bottom. As you draw them, visualize them in bright blue flames. They look like this:

ינרי

STEP THREE. Form the letter "L" by raising your right hand straight up from the shoulder. If you have a wand, it too should still be pointing up. This is similar to the position of the right arm of the magician card in the Rider-Waite Tarot deck, except that the arm should be straight up. Your left hand should be straight out to the side, palm forward. Look at your left hand with your head slightly bowed. Say meaningfully:

L. . . the sign of the mourning of Isis.

STEP FOUR. Raise the arms to a position over your head so that they form an angle of about 60 degrees. This makes the letter "V." The palms should be facing one another. Tilt your head back and look up. Say meaningfully:

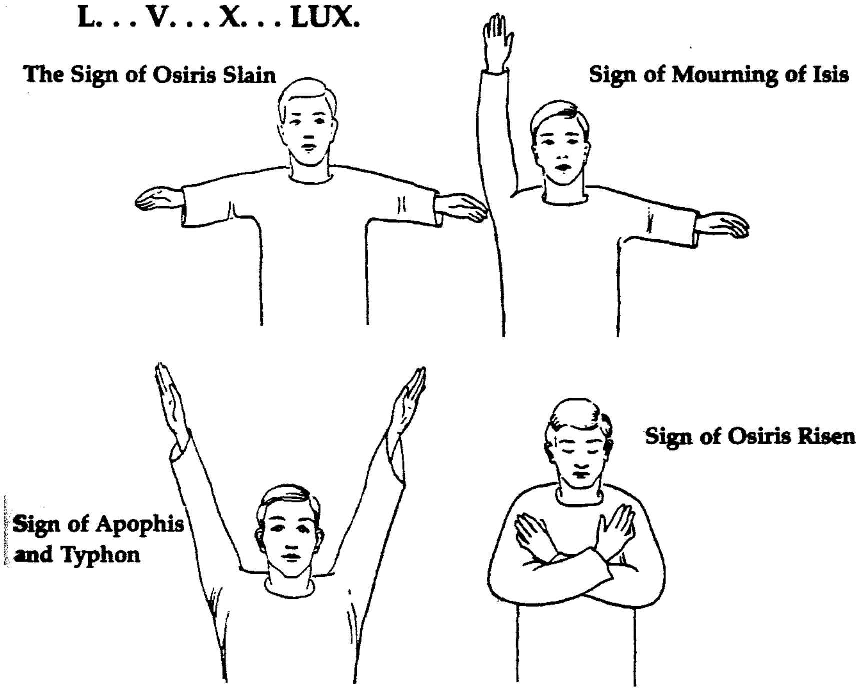
V. . . the sign of Typhon and Apophis.

STEP FIVE. Now cross your arms on your chest, right over left. Your finger tips should be just touching your shoulders. This forms the letter "X." Bow your head. Say meaningfully:

X. . . the sign of Osiris risen.

STEP SIX. Now, form each letter, saying the name of each letter as you do so. This is followed by the word they spell which is pronounced to rhyme with the word "boots":

L. . . V. . . X. . . LUX.



The Sign of Osiris Slain
Sign of Mourning of Isis
Sign of Osiris Risen
Sign of Apophis and Typhon

The L.V.X. Signs

STEP SEVEN. At the word "light" in the following statement, spread your arms and look forward. Then re-cross the arms as before and bow your head while saying meaningfully:

The light. . . of the Cross.

STEP EIGHT. Again return to the first position, arms out to the sides, looking forward. Say meaningfully:

Virgo, Isis, mighty Mother,
Scorpio, Apophis, Destroyer,
Sol, Osiris, Slain and Risen. . .

STEP NINE. Gradually raise your arms towards the "V" position while slowly raising your head. As you do, say meaningfully:

Isis, Apophis, Osiris. . .

STEP TEN. By the time your hands reach the "V" position, you should be looking up at the level of Step Four above. Vibrate:

IAO (pronounced eeeeeee-aaaaaahhh-oooooooohhhh)

STEP ELEVEN. Take a few seconds to aspire to the light (LVX), then through visualization draw it down over your head and down to your feet. When you can feel this beginning to happen, say meaningfully:

Let the Divine Light descend!

Feel it cover you and further purify you so that you become positive enough to exist without negative or positive influences around you. If you wish, you may relax in this state for a few minutes before continuing with the ritual.

Section Two: The Formulation of the Hexagrams

STEP TWELVE. As in the LBRP, go to the East, or if there is not enough room, continue facing east from where you stand. Make the Hexagram of Fire in front of you with the wand or index finger. You should visualize it as a golden flame, just as the pentagrams from the LBRP upon which the hexagrams are overlaid, are in blue flame.

STEP THIRTEEN. Inhale, drawing in energy, while bringing your hands next to your ears. As you exhale, take a step forward with the left foot and thrust both hands toward the center of the Fire Hexagram (the middle of the base line of the top triangle). At the same time vibrate the magickal word of power: ARARITA. Review the LBRP for exact instructions on inhaling and exhaling energy and the position of the Enterer. Both are duplicated in this ritual.

STEP FOURTEEN. With your wand or the right index finger, point to the center of the Fire Hexagram and move around the circle to the South. This matches what you did in the LBRP. If there is not enough room to "circumambulate," simply turn in place. Coming from the tip of the finger or wand you should see the formation of an intense, bright white line. This goes over the bright white line which connects the pentagrams of the LBRP. When you reach the South, form the Hexagram of Earth in bright golden flame. Inhale and exhale the energy as before, and make the sign of the Enterer toward the middle of the Earth Hexagram (the center of the interlacing triangles). As you do so, vibrate the word of power: ARARITA.

STEP FIFTEEN. In a similar manner, move or pivot to the West, carrying the brilliant white line. At this direction form the Hexagram of Air. Repeat the charging process, again pointing to the center of the hexagram (at the middle of the common base lines). Vibrate the word of power: ARARITA.

STEP SIXTEEN. Move or pivot to the North, carrying the white line. Here form the Hexagram of Water. The middle of the hexagram is where the apexes of the triangles meet. This is where you point when you vibrate the power word: ARARITA.

STEP SEVENTEEN. Carry the white line from the North back to the East, completing the circle of white light with the golden hexagrams at the quarters. If you have had room to move about rather than pivoting in place, return to your position in the middle of the circle, behind the altar (if you have one, otherwise the middle of the circle). Face east.

At this time you should have around you the blue pentagrams from the LBRP connected by a white line. In the same locations as the pentagrams there should also be golden hexagrams which are also connected by a circle of white light. All of the colors should be incredibly intense, bright and virtually pulsating with energy. They should be just short of blinding in intensity.

STEP EIGHTEEN. At this point there are two options:

a. You may repeat the Analysis of the Keyword. This is especially good when doing White Magick rituals, as you can bask in the glow of the Divine Light for as long as you desire at the end. The intensity of this light is increased by the act of formulating the hexagrams. For general purposes, this is the ending I prefer.

b. You may do the Kabalistic Cross as in the LBRP. This is slightly shorter and has the effect of creating a stronger link between the LBRP and the BRH. It is good for grey magick rituals. On a practical level, it will save some time if you are doing a long, involved ritual.

This completes the Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram.

This is as long and as time-consuming as your daily ritual work will get. You may wish to add things (such as meditation), and that is fine. But nothing else is going to be added to your regular work. Here, then, is your daily ritual work. It should be done at least once daily.

1. The Relaxation Ritual.
2. The Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.
3. The Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram.
4. The Middle Pillar Ritual.
5. The Circulation of the Body of Light.
6. The Tarot Contemplation Ritual, Advanced Version.
7. Completion of your Ritual Diary.

As with all of the basic ritual, the Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram should be memorized. Until you do so, you will find the summary on the next pages helpful.

Remember, there is only one way to succeed in Ritual Magick. That way is to practice, practice, practice. You will never succeed if you do not do the necessary work. There is no secret key which allows you to bypass the work. Even if you have to fumble around with the summaries included in this book, that is okay! What is not okay is any excuse for lack of practice on a regular schedule.

The Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram
Summary

1. Face East, hands out to sides, say:
I N R I
Yud, Nun, Raish, Yud
The Sign of Osiris Slain.

2. Form L, look at left hand, bow head, say:
L. . . The Sign of the Mourning of Isis.

3. Form V, head back, look up, say:
V. . . the Sign of Typhon and Apophis.

4. Form X, head bowed, say:
X. . . the Sign of Osiris Risen.

5. Form all 3 signs, saying:
L...V...X.....LUX.
The Light of the Cross.

6. Arms out to the side, say:
Virgo, Isis, Mighty Mother,
Scorpio, Apophis, Destroyer,
Sol, Osiris, slain and risen. . .

7. Gradually raise arms, saying:
Isis, Apophis, Osiris,
IAO! (EE-AH-OH!)

8. Aspire to the light and draw it down over your head to your feet. Say:

Let the Divine Light descend! (and FEEL it do so!)

8. QC

9. Go to the East, make hex of FIRE in Golden Flame, point to center of top triangle's base line, vibrate: ARARITA!

10. Carry white line to South. Make hex of EARTH, point at center, vibrate: ARARITA!

11. Continue to West. Make hex of AIR. Point to common lines' center. Vibrate: ARARITA!

12. Continue to North. Make hex of WATER. Point to junction of triangles. Vibrate: ARARITA!

13. Complete circle. Return to original position. Repeat steps 1-8 or do Kabalistic Cross as in the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram. ✓

If you wish to do the BRH in a ceremony with other people, there are a couple of nice ways to do it. It should always be done after the LBRP. One person can do the entire BRH, or it can be divided by having one person do the Analysis of the Keyword and another do the Formulation of the Hexagrams. If you have enough people, a glorious way to do it is by having three people do the Analysis and another four do the Hexagrams:

The Analysis of the Keyword:

Person 1 - I
Person 2 - N
Person 3 - R
Person 1 - I

—pause—

Person 1 - Yud
Person 2 - Nun
Person 3 - Raish
Person 1 - Yud
All: The sign of Osiris slain.

(The spelling of the Hebrew is not done in this version. In the following section each participant makes the appropriate signs.)

Person 1 - L. . . the sign of the mourning of Isis.
Person 2 - V. . . the sign of Apophis and Typhon.
Person 3 - X. . . the sign of Osiris risen.
Person 1 - L. . .
Person 2 - V. . .
Person 3 - X. . .
All - LUX. The Light of the Cross.
Person 1 - Virgo, Isis, mighty mother,
Person 2 - Scorpio, Apophis, Destroyer,
Person 3 - Sol, Osiris, slain and risen.

(All slowly raising arms):

Person 1 - Isis. . .
Person 2 - Apophis. . .
Person 3 - Osiris. . .
All - IAO. . . . . Let the Divine Light Descend!

For the formulation of the hexagrams, you can have one person stand at each quarter. Have the first person do the appropriate part at the East and carry the line to the South. At this corner, the second person forms the hexagram, charges it with ARARITA, and carries the line to the West. Here the third person does the appropriate part and carries the line to the North. The person at the North finishes by doing the appropriate hexagram and carrying the line to the East. After each person has finished the appropriate portion and the carrying of the connecting line to the next quarter, that person continues in a clockwise direction around the inside of the circle and returns to the quarter at which he/she began. Thus, at the end of this section, each ceremonialist is back at the quarter at which he or she began.

When the formulation of the hexagrams is complete and everyone is back at his/her original direction, all turn inward and face the center. Together they should raise their right hands (with wands if they have them) straight up in the air. They should slowly bring them down so that they are parallel with the ground and pointing at the ritualist(s) in the center who will finish the ritual.

As they lower their hands they should start intoning the vowel "AH" quietly and in a low tone. As they move their arms the sound should raise in pitch and volume so that by the time they are pointing straight ahead the "AH" sound should be very high in pitch and quite loud. A pre-selected person, when he/she feels it is right, should suddenly raise his/her arm, which signals the four to be quiet. Then they should lower their arms (keeping the wands pointing up, though), and return to their seats in the circle.

I have found this ceremonial version of the Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram to be moving and spiritually powerful.

PART EIGHT

One of the things which I will not be discussing in this course is the subject of astrology. I mention this here so that you do not notice its lack later on and think that I am anti-astrology. Nothing could be further from the truth. I have had the honor of knowing several excellent astrologers who have amazed me with their talents. I even have one friend who insists that magick and astrology are inextricably linked. He has gone so far as to design his own magickal system based upon art and astrology.

The plain fact of the matter is that for the systems of magick taught in these lessons, only a minimal amount of astrological knowledge is necessary. Most of it can be understood by comprehending the Tree of Life rather than recourse to deep study of astrology. On the other hand, the better you know astrology, the better you will understand the Tree of Life. So although a knowledge of astrology is not needed for this course, it is suggested that you do learn something about the subject.

Ah, the easy way. So many people are looking for it. The pages of tabloids are filled with ads offering instant fame, memory, money, love and success. Other offers include simple "spell kits" designed to allow you to curse your neighbor even if you have had no magickal training whatsoever. Unfortunately, there is no such thing as an instant gift of magickal powers. They must be earned as the result of three things: practice, practice, practice! I have said it before and I am repeating it here: to become a magician, to develop psychic-magickal powers requires work and study. If you think there is a shortcut. . . you lose.

As an example of what I mean, I would like to describe an ad I saw repeated several times in a national magazine. It was a full-page ad, the center of which showed a drawing of a hand holding a small stick. The ad proclaimed that you could "Make good luck your slave" with the "Miracle Stick." This stick could allegedly bring you anything. If you read the small part of the ad you learned that the stick must be burned, and if you examine the drawing closely, you will see that the stick being held by the disembodied hand is just a stick of incense! The price is many times the retail value of the incense.

The distributor of the item would not be putting out full-page ads if people were not sending in their money. Thus, especially with occult items purchased through the mail, I give you this ancient warning: Caveat Emptor: let the buyer beware! And from this warning I jump to ancient grimoires.

So far in this course I have hardly touched the subject of the ancient textbooks of magick known as the "grimoires." Some of the famous ones which are still available include The Greater Key of Solomon, a part of The Lesser Key of Solomon, The Grimoire of Armadel, The Book of the Sacred Magic of Abra-Mellin the Mage, and The Secret Grimoire of Turiel. Some books, such as The Secret Lore of Magic by Idries Shah and The Book of Ceremonial Magic by A.E. Waite, are nothing but compilations of other grimoires such as the ones mentioned.

If these books are so powerful, wouldn't it have been easier for me just to say, "Go buy them and follow the instructions carefully?" Unfortunately, it is not that easy. That is why so many of the above named volumes are printed and purchased, but so little real magick is done. But there is a key to unlocking their secrets and learning how to successfully use them.

This key is found in the idea behind the word which describes these texts, grimoire. It is a French word meaning "grammar book." It was expected that a student of magick would have a teacher to instruct him or her in the subtleties of the various planes of existence, and how to alter them through the knowledge and use of universal laws. Grimoires were not meant to give out every bit of magickal knowledge. They were designed to aid a student's memory. They are, in a sense, nothing more than notes.

Once this is understood, instead of looking at what is included in these books, notice what is omitted. In the grimoires, the knowledge of karma and the need to do a divination before doing any Grey Magick is never discussed. The teacher would have instilled these ideas very strongly into the head of a student.

But more importantly, omitted from the grimoires are what I call the "Three Necessities of Grey Magick." The first one of these is:

The Necessity of a Positive Attitude. If you don't think that your magick will work, it won't. This should not imply, however, that magick is nothing more than mental techniques. There are many cases of the techniques of standard allopathic (Western) medicine being overpowered by a negative mental attitude. This is not because the medical treatment was nothing more than a placebo. Rather, it is because the mind and body are intimately connected and one cannot be cured if the other is not cured. Similarly, if the mind is not positive toward the magick you are doing, it can defeat your practical techniques. It is impossible to be successful as a magician if you are not positive that your magick will work.

The second necessity is:

The Necessity of Knowing How to Generate and Control Magickal Energy. This is just what you have been learning to do in the rituals given so far in this course.

Finally, the third necessity is:

Knowledge. This is the knowledge of what to do with the energy once that energy has been raised and can be controlled.

The ancient magickal student would learn that he or she must have a positive attitude, and would also do hours of exercises to learn how to generate and control energy (just as you have been doing). But memorizing large quantities of knowledge as to what to do with that energy would be difficult for anyone. This is true even for those who lived in periods where techniques of memory were far more in practice than today. Thus, this knowledge aspect of magick was written down to aid the student and help the student avoid possibly dangerous mistakes. It is these workbooks which are known as grimoires. We will deal with some of the methods of these texts in later lessons in this course.

REVIEW

The following questions are designed to help you determine if you have mastered the information in Lesson Four. Please try to answer them without looking at the text. The answers are in Appendix Two.

1. What are the qualities of elemental Air?
2. What was an early Christian symbol?
3. What are the differences between a true, mystical swastika and the perverted Nazi swastika?
4. Who is the Archangel of Air?
5. Why is it difficult to remember past lives?
6. The LBRP is a support or basis for what?
7. What does the BRH clear from your area?
8. What is the order for doing your at-home rituals?
9. Name three things you need to do to succeed at Ritual Magick.
10. What are the Three Necessities of Grey Magick?

The following questions only you can answer.

1. Are you regularly performing all of the rituals?
2. Are you in control of elemental Air?
3. Have you made your Air Dagger?
4. Do you understand the differences between the Eastern and Western systems of magick described in these lessons?
5. Have you chosen a motto?

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Aima, Ancient Wisdom and Rituals, The, Foibles Publications, Hollywood, 1979.
Conway, Flo and Siegelman, Jim, Snapping, Dell, New York, 1978.
Farrar, Stewart, What Witches Do, Coward, McCann & Geoghegan, 1971.
Farrar, Stewart and Janet, Eight Sabbats for Witches, Hale, 1981.
Frazer, Sir James, Golden Bough, The (abridged edition), Macmillan, 1963.
Kuhn, A.B., Lost Light, The, (no publisher listed), 1940.
Massey, Gerald, Gerald Massey's Lectures, The Sanctuary of Gnosis, Sherman Oaks, CA, 1976.
Regardie, Israel, Ceremonial Magick, Aquarian, 1980.
Golden Dawn, The, Llewellyn Publications, 1978.
Middle Pillar, The, Llewellyn Publications, 1970.

L•e•s•s•o•n

5

PART ONE

Stress affects us all. Stress can be caused by hearing or reading about politics or economics, job worries, relationship ups and downs and other major concerns. It can also be caused by little things such as a phone call that hangs up just as you answer, or getting stuck in a traffic jam. Although stress affects people more in cities, even living in rural or country areas can be stressful. Trying to decide what to make for dinner, trying to deal with increasing prices and decreasing returns, trying to get parts for vehicles and having to wait weeks for their delivery, are just some minor examples of what can cause stress.

The relaxation ritual is perhaps the best way for getting rid of stress, but to do a good job may take more time than you have available. Thus, to remedy this problem, I am presenting here what I call the Instant Relaxation Ritual. It is not meant to replace the relaxation ritual, but can take its place occasionally when you are short of time. It is also a good way to get rid of stress in your everyday life.

THE INSTANT RELAXATION RITUAL

This can be done standing, sitting or lying down.

STEP ONE. Start by tensing all of the muscles in your feet and ankles.

STEP TWO. Without relaxing the tension in your feet, tense the muscles of your calves.

STEP THREE. In a similar manner, tense the muscles of your thighs, hips, stomach, chest, back, arms, hands, neck and head. In other words, tense every muscle in your body, starting at the feet and ending with the head. Hold your body in this totally tensed condition for five to ten seconds only.

STEP FOUR. Suddenly, relax all of your muscles at the same time. Permit your body to go as limp as the position you are in will allow.

STEP FIVE. With your mind, "look" through your body for any tension. Be especially aware of the neck, forehead, shoulders, stomach and lower back. If there is any tension, immediately send the "golden glow" of the relaxation ritual to that area and the tension will fade.

Caution: This technique is physiological as well as psychological. The sudden change in muscle tension and its sudden release may, in a very few people, cause a muscle spasm commonly known as a "charlie horse." If this occurs, stop immediately and deeply massage the area until the spasm ends. Then do the regular relaxation ritual as soon as possible. If you are a person who gets a charlie horse, do not shy away from using this technique. Once your body becomes used to the sudden change in body and muscle tension, the spasms should cease and you will have a wonderful and fast system of relaxation and stress reduction.

PART TWO

While becoming familiar with our system of the elements, we have covered Earth and Air. If, after working the exercises for those elements you are not satisfied with your sense of unity with them, continue with the exercises for another two weeks. Then do them sporadically as you will. Also, please remember that I am just a teacher. If you can come up with some exercises which will help you become more familiar with the elements, feel free to incorporate them into your work. However, you should begin the exercises below immediately.

The element of Water has the qualities of being cool and moist.

Exercise 1. Observe those things around you which have the combined qualities of coolness and moistness, Remember, all of these elemental qualities are relative. When an oven is prepared wherein something is being baked, sometimes there is a warm (or hot) blast of damp air so it would not seem to have the quality of coolness along with the moistness. However, it is much cooler and moister than the heat from a smelting furnace. Therefore, the oven has more of the element of Water than does the smelting furnace. See if you can determine the relative watery qualities as you experience them. Make a note of all of these things and record your list in your magickal diary. Do this exercise daily for one week.

Exercise 2. Remove your clothes and enter a pool or bath where the water is cool. If you have access to a lake or river, this would be best. Also, it would be good if you could get a swimming snorkel so that you can breathe while completely submerged beneath the surface of the water. Obviously, this would be difficult to do in a small bath tub or in a shallow pool, but if you have access to a snorkel and have a place where you can be totally submerged, you will have the quickest success.

Once you are submerged as much as possible, and if you are completely submerged, breathing comfortably through the snorkel, do the relaxation ritual. Thanks to the buoyant quality of water you will find that this is quite easy. Next, become very aware of your breath. As you do this you will find that your breath will automatically slow down. Notice the way the air feels as it comes in through the nose (or through the snorkel and mouth), down the air pipe and into the lungs. Sense or imagine the interchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide within the lungs. Feel the CO_2-laden air as it leaves your body.

Once again, imagine that your entire body is nothing but an enormous breathing apparatus. Imagine that every part of your body only has the function of breathing. Know that your skin is a vital part of your system. In this "pore breathing" exercise, as you breathe in air, imagine that every pore of your body is breathing in elemental Water. Feel it as it washes in and out of you, flushing the impurities from your entire body. Do not confuse elemental Water with physical water or you may get a "drowning" sensation. If this happens, stop the exercise immediately and try it again another time.

Experiment with this exercise at different times of the day, and if possible, at different locations. Water is not very compressible, but it is very changeable. Try to experience it in its many variations. After a week of doing this exercise go on to the next one.

Exercise 3. Spend a period of up to three minutes (but no more), once a day, imagining that you are the element Water. Feel the fluidity, the coolness, the refreshing moistness of the elemental waters. If you study astrology, compare what you learn about the element of Water with those signs that are of the Water Triplicity (Cancer, Scorpio and Pisces). Become familiar with water in all of its various appearances. Know what water feels like; what water is. Practice this exercise for one week.

Exercise 4. Once you have learned how to "be Water," the next step is to learn how to consciously control this element. Take a moment and again imagine yourself to be elemental Water. Bring the feeling from the last exercise into your consciousness. Next, hold your hands 9 to 12 inches apart with the palms facing each other. Now visualize to the best of your ability a bottle, cylinder or small cask between your hands, Next, as you exhale, visualize all of the Water element which is in you going out with your breath and being deposited in the container between your hands. Four to seven breaths should be enough to fill it. Once it is filled, observe it for a short time. Then, with three breaths, inhale it back into yourself and go back to normal consciousness. Spend a week with this exercise.

The Test. Once again, here is a simple self-test to allow you to see whether or not you really have become not only in harmony with the element of Water, but also its master. No one else will ever inspect your work, so take the test and practice the exercises as often as you like. To become a good magician necessitates that you are capable of controlling all of the elements.

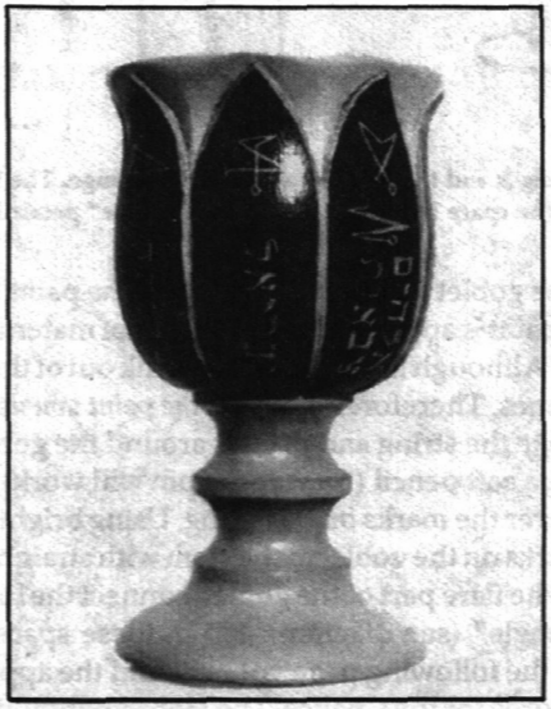
The next time you feel hardheaded, unwilling to change, overly tense with your muscles hard as a rock, form the container of Water as described in the previous exercise. Once the container has been filled, inhale the contents with one big inhalation. Bring all of the contents into you. Within five minutes you should be more relaxed and reasonable.

The next time that you are being pushed around or are acting "wishy-washy," again form the container of Water before you. Make sure it is filled. Then visualize a large, black hole in the air before you and throw the container into this hole. Immediately visualize the hole sealing up after you have done so. In a few minutes you should feel less overly flexible and not as liable to allow others to take advantage of you. It may be necessary to repeat this "black holing" several times to have complete success.

When you have passed both parts of the test to your satisfaction, you will be the master of the element Water. Again, as I have already stated, you may find one or more of the elements easy to master while others may take time. Just keep practicing without "lusting for results" and eventually the result you desire will be yours. Record all the results of your experiments and tests in your magickal diary. This means the successes and the failures.

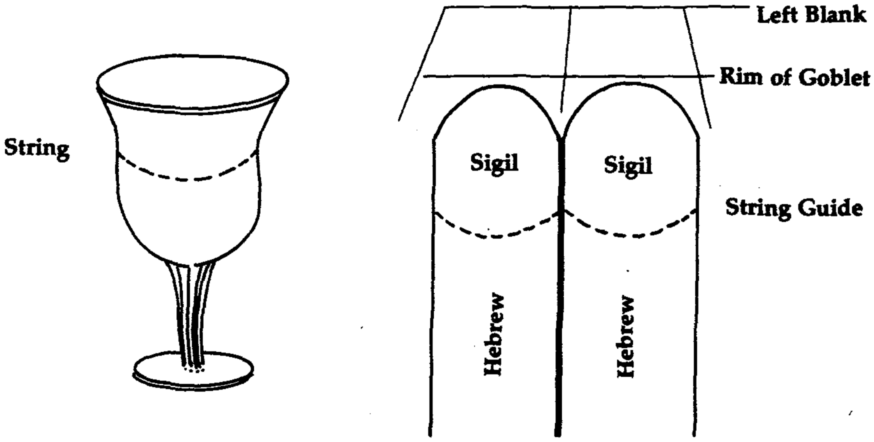
The Chalice

The Chalice is the weapon or tool which represents elemental Water. It is the easiest weapon to construct because all you have to do is buy a stemmed goblet and paint it. It requires virtually no construction. Although most people prefer a silver goblet, the Golden Dawn suggested the use of a stemmed glass. Other people prefer wood or pewter. The choice of material is up to you, although I must say that a glass can be a problem due to breakage.



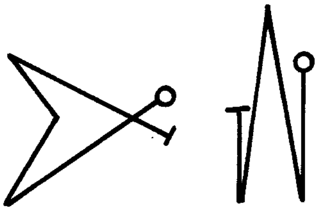
Water Chalice

The shape of the goblet above the stem should resemble a crocus flower. Thus, it should flare out (see diagram and photo). Take a piece of twine or "kite string" and cut a piece equal to the circumference of the goblet at the point where it begins to flare out. Fold the measure in half and use a felt-tip pen to mark the string at that point. Take the folded string and again fold it in half. Mark both parts of the string at the fold. Repeat this process one more time and mark all four points of the string at the fold. The result of this will be a length of string divided into eight equal sections.



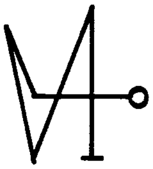
The Hebrew, the sigils and the outlines are in bright orange. The background is in bright blue. The space between the "curved triangle" petals is left blank.

Prepare the goblet for paint according to the paint's instructions. Make sure the paint is appropriate for the type of material of which the goblet is made. Although it will be rare to drink out of the Chalice, you may do so at times. Therefore, make sure the paint you use does not have any lead in it. Take the string and place it around the goblet just below the flare. Using a soft pencil (on wood, a pin will work), make a mark on the goblet over the marks on the string. Using bright orange paint, connect the marks on the goblet to the stem with straight lines. Above these lines, on the flare part of the goblet, connect the lines with a sort of "curved triangle" (see diagram). Fill in these spaces with bright blue paint. On the following page you will find the appropriate sigils and Hebrew words for the Chalice. The Hebrew should appear in the rectangular section and the sigil(s) should be drawn within the curved triangle section. Use orange paint to draw the sigils and Hebrew. To protect the finish use several coats of a clear plastic such as Varathane over your work.



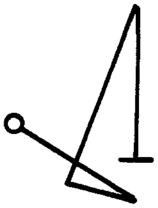
אלהים צבאות

I. ELOHIM TZABAOTH



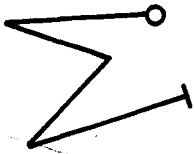
גבראל

II. GABRIEL



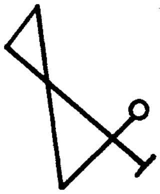
טליהד

III. TALIAHAD



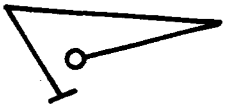
תרשים

IV. THARSIS



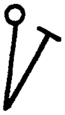
גיחון

V. GIHON



מערב

VI. MAARAB



מים

VII. MAYIM

VIII. THE MOTTO

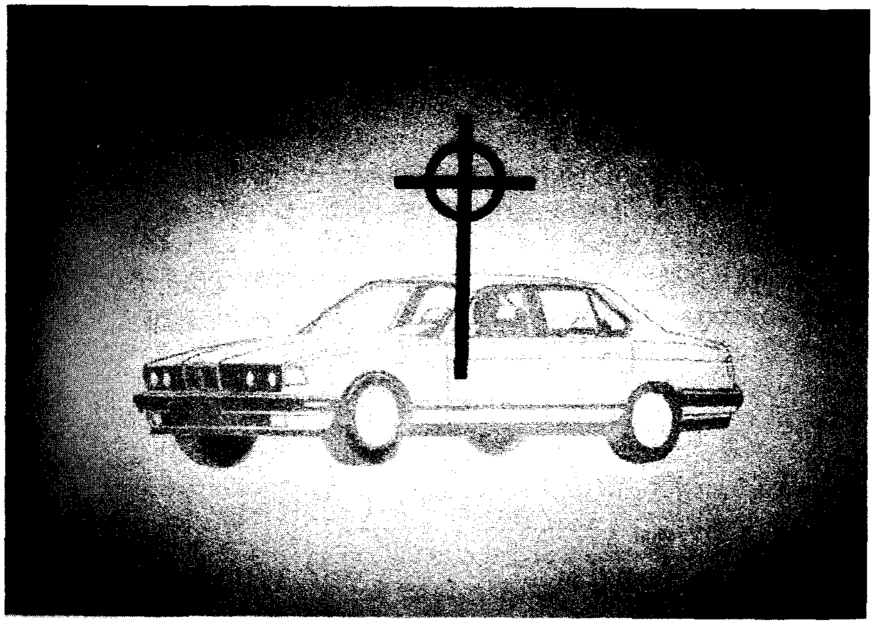
Symbols and Hebrew for the Chalice

PART THREE

In this section you will learn the Rose Cross Ritual. Although it is not part of the daily work, it is excellent and easy to perform. You will probably find yourself using it frequently.

There are five main reasons for using this ritual:

1. It is an excellent banishing ritual, although its effect is quite different from the LBRP. The LBRP ritual will protect you, but it also lights up the entire Astral Plane with its lines and pentagrams. It is very powerful. It can also have the effect of attracting the attention of sometimes unwanted astral entities (little nasties) as we have already discussed. The Rose Cross Ritual, on the other hand, works like a curtain by containing your aura. It will protect you from unwanted outside influences in a different way. Do no substitute the Rose Cross Ritual for the LBRP. Be sure to do the LBRP before any magickal ritual. Use the Rose Cross Ritual for self-enclosure. As an example, if you feel troubled and cannot focus your attention, do the LBRP to banish any outside influences which may be distracting you. Follow this with the Rose Cross Ritual to regain your peace of mind.



Protection through Invisibility

2. The curtaining effect induces a type of invisibility to the world around you. This is not to say that you become invisible in reality. Nor should you infer that people who are looking closely for you will not find you. But if people are not looking for you in particular you will tend to be ignored. Thus, you have the effect of invisibility.

I do not recommend breaking the law to anybody, however I do wish to share this experience with you. One time I was late for an appointment and knew that I would have to speed in my car to get to my appointment on time. I quickly did both the LBRP and the Rose Cross Ritual. I was driving very fast. Suddenly a Highway Patrol vehicle came up from behind and turned on the red light. They pulled over the car next to me, even though we were going at the same speed. The Highway Patrol ignored me as if I never existed!

3. This ritual is a good preparation for meditation. It works by calling forth your higher self. Thus, it can be helpful when doing a problem-solving type of meditation.

4. You can do this ritual with the aim of aiding others who are hurting either physically or spiritually. Simply build up, in your mind, an image of the person you wish to help. Place that image in the center of the room where you will be doing the ritual. Do the ritual with the image of the person you are aiding as the center of the ritual. Draw down the Light upon the image of the person you are aiding. When the ritual is over, command the figure you have mentally created along with its now added peace, serenity and well-being to return to the actual person for whom the ritual is being done. Tell the figure to go back to the real person and take with it the grace of Divinity.

Of course, before doing this you should get the permission of the person and do a divination to learn if the result will be positive or negative.

5. Sometimes you may find yourself in a place where there are "negative psychic vibrations." As an example, you may feel uncomfortable in a house where very negative people live or where terrible things have occurred in the past. This ritual will not so much banish the negativity in the aether as it will protect you from the "invasion" of your psychic body, your astral self.

At this point, re-read the lesson which prepared you for the Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram. Focus on understanding the analysis of the Key Word. It will be used again in this ritual.

At this time I will explain the Tetragrammaton and the Pentagrammaton. The Tetragrammaton is dealt with elsewhere in this course, but due to its central importance to magick and the Kabalah it will avail us to go over it again. The Tetragrammaton is composed of four Hebrew letters: Yud, Heh (superior), Vahv, and Heh (inferior). This four-letter name (Tetragrammaton means "four-letter name") is considered to be the ultimate name of Divinity. No one knows the correct pronunciation of this word. Some of the letters may have been pronounced differently than they are today. The letters may have been a code for other letters. Some of the letters may have been doubled. Today, Jews do not attempt to say this word. Instead, they say "Ah-doh-nye" which means "my lord." There are no vowels in the original Hebrew. They were added much later in the form of points and lines written above, within and below the letters. To insure that no one would try to pronouce the Tetragrammaton by mistake, the vowels for Ah-doh-nye were placed around the holy four letters. If you try to pronounce the four-letter word using these vowels you end up with something like the following: Yahveh, Yahweh, Yehovah or Jehovah. All of these result from an incorrect understanding of Hebrew.

The secret of the Tetragrammaton is in the meaning of its component letters. The Yud represents archetypal masculinity and the Heh (superior) represents archetypal femininity. The Vahv, which looks like an elongated Yud, represents physical masculinity while the second Heh, the Heh inferior, represents physical femininity. Thus the Tetragrammaton signifies that the ultimate secret of the Godhead is that the Divine is the union of all dualities (i.e., male and female) both physically and spiritually. The Divine is everything, and everything comes from and is of the Godhead.

This does not mean, however, that to know the universe is to know the Divine. Merely because everything is of the Godhead does not mean that the Divine cannot be more than everything which exists or could exist. Divinity is more. The source of all is beyond comprehension except for the ways in which the Godhead chooses to be comprehended.

The letter Shin (ש) looks like three small flames. This letter represents the flame of Divinity, what is sometimes called Holy Spirit or Ruach El-oh-heem. It is also known as Chi, Ki, Prana, Kundalini, Mana, Manitou and many others. If the letter Shin is placed in the center of the Tetragrammaton, we get the Pentagrammaton (five-letter name). This new word, Yud, Heh, Shin, Vahv, Heh, is a symbol representing the union of divine masculinity and femininity with physical masculinity and femininity by way of the Holy Spirit. Biblically, any person who would ~~be a~~ savior or messiah to himself or herself must be able to unite Divinity with physicality and unite all opposites by way of the Holy Spirit. Thus, any savior must be this five-lettered name, the Pentagrammaton. If you pronounce the Pentagrammaton in Hebrew, it would be "Yeh-hah-shu-ah" which is usually translated as Joshua. However, in Greek it became Yay-su which in English became "Jesus."

Thus, the name Jesus is a title. Anyone can come to hold the title. The process described by the Pentagrammaton is that each of us must find our own union with Divinity. We cannot have a vicarious atonement. Each of us must be our own savior, our own messiah. Each of us must become "Jesus."

This, by the way, is strict Kabalah. It has nothing to do with Christian theology. In fact, Christian theology tends to disagree with this Kabalistic understanding of the Pentagrammaton. In traditional Christianity, the only reason why Jesus is named Jesus is because it fulfilled a prophecy.

Another form of the Pentagrammaton puts the Shin between the Vahv and the second Heh. This gives the word "Yeh-hoh-vah-shah." It represents the unity of masculine and feminine on the physical plane by way of the Ruach El-oh-heem (Holy Spirit of the Divine) and is presided over by the union of archetypal masculinity and femininity. This is, by the way, one of the secrets of Tantrik Yoga and Sex Magick, but that is left for another lesson.

I also want to assure you that this is not sexist in nature. If you do not like the terms male and female, masculine and feminine, they can be replaced by such terms as Yin and Yang, positive and negative (as in the sense of the terminals of a battery, not in the sense of good and bad), projective and receptive, etc. The reason I use male and female is because it has traditionally been used and also was used by the ancient Kabalists, sometimes in even more anthropomorphic forms. It was their attempt to deal with the dualities which exist everywhere in nature. I am merely following their traditional lead.

Finally, I want to repeat that the symbol known as the cross far antedates the birth of Christianity and should not be considered a Christian symbol when used for magickal purposes. I read somewhere that there were over 200 forms of crosses in use before Christianity began. In this ritual it represents the four elements (the four bars of the cross) and the union of physical (the horizontal bar) and spiritual (the vertical bar). The rose, which in the ritual is indicated by a circle, represents the unfolding of the soul and the evolution of consciousness.

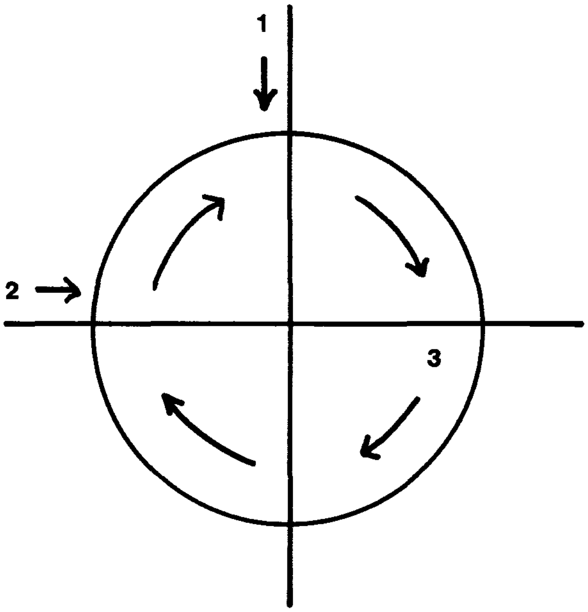
THE ROSE CROSS RITUAL

STEP ONE. Prepare yourself by doing the Relaxation Ritual.

STEP TWO. If it is appropriate, do the LBRP.

STEP THREE. Your tool for this ritual is a lit stick of incense. Any scent you like will do.

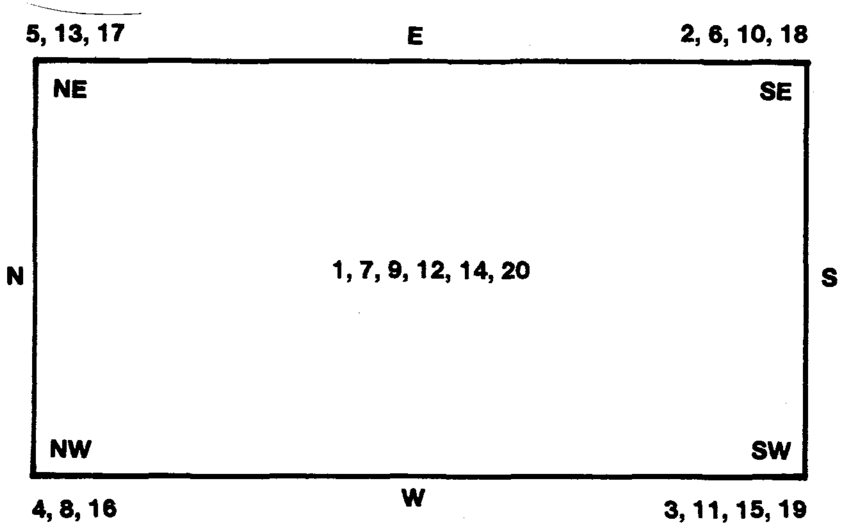
STEP FOUR. Go to the southeast (SE) corner of your area and look away from the center of your circle. Make a large cross and circle as shown below.



As you form the circle (the rose), vibrate the God name

Yeh-hah-shu-ah

You should finish the syllable "shu" as you finish the circle. On the syllable "ah" you should stab the center of the circle with the lit tip of the incense, at the point where the arms of the symbol cross, and feel the energy going out and charging the symbol.



STEP FIVE. Point the incense to the center of the cross. Keeping the lit point of the incense on that level, move to the southwest (SW). Make the cross and rose and stab the center. As before, vibrate

Yeh-hah-shu-ah

STEP SIX. Repeat the process, only this time move to the northwest (NW).

STEP SEVEN. Repeat, moving to the northeast (NE).

STEP EIGHT. In a similar manner, move to the SE, completing the circle. Do not reform the rose cross figure or vibrate the word.

STEP NINE. Again, pointing to the center of the cross in the SE, turn to face the direction diagonally across the room, the NW. Now bring your incense stick high into the air and walk toward the NW. In the center of the room, stop and make the Rose Cross above your head while vibrating the Name as before. Point to the center of the figure, and with the incense still high in the air, move to the NW corner. Bring the top of the incense to the intersecting arms of the cross which you have already created in this corner. Do not reform the figure or vibrate the Name here.

STEP TEN. Now move back to the SE, but with the incense held at arm's length pointing down toward the ground. Stop in the middle of your area and form a Rose Cross and vibrate the name below you, still pointing at the ground. Point again with the incense to the center of this cross, and with the stick pointing down, move to the SE and bring the tip of the incense to the interlacing bars of the cross which you have already formulated at that corner. Do not redraw the Rose and Cross or vibrate the name in this corner.

STEP ELEVEN. Point to the center of the SE cross, then walk in a clockwise direction to the SW corner. Do not redraw the Rose and Cross, but as you point to the center of the Cross, revibrate the Name.

STEP TWELVE. With the incense held above your head, move diagonally to the NE. Stop at the middle to revibrate the word without reforming that symbol above your head. When you reach the NE, point to the center of the figure that is already there, then hold the incense with the lit point down and move back to the SW. Of course, stop at the center to revibrate the name below you.

STEP THIRTEEN. Point to the center of the cross here in the SW. Keeping the incense on this level, go in a clockwise direction around the circle, pointing to the center of each cross. Do not remake the figure or vibrate the Name. Go from the SW to the NW to the SE and return to the SW.

STEP FOURTEEN. When you return to the SW, rest the point of the incense for a moment at the center of the cross. Then, remake the cross, only do it in a bigger size, as big as you can make it. Make the circle bigger, too. As you slowly form the bottom half of the circle, vibrate Yeh-hah-shu-ah. As you form the top half of the circle vibrate Yeh-hoh-vah-shah.

STEP FIFTEEN. Now go to the center of your area, face east, and visualize the six Rosy Crosses around, above and below you. The crosses should be golden in color, and the lines connecting them between the corners and above and below should be brilliant white. The "roses" should be bright red. Thus, you should have a protective "sphere" all around you.

STEP SIXTEEN. Now do the analysis of the Key Word from the BRH. Start from the vibrating of INRI through "let the divine light descend." Be sure to use the appropriate actions as described in that ritual.

Notes: If it feels right, you may omit the analysis of the Key Word, Step Sixteen above. Instead of directing this ritual toward the East, you may face the direction from which you think danger may be coming. As a group working, let one person do this entire ritual while everyone else sits on chairs inside the area where the ritual is performed. Be sure that there is room for the ritualist to make the diagonal, cross-area movements.

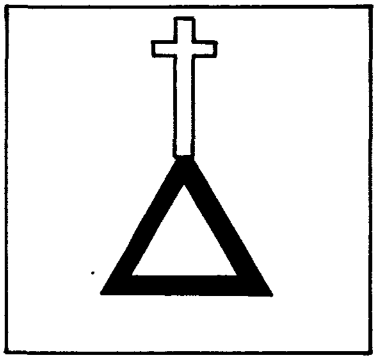
PART FOUR

Those of you who have read this far will have learned by now that magick is work and study. After the next lesson we will be moving on to the realm of Grey Magick. By studying the material you have earned this right. You have become versed in elementary occult philosophy and the Kabalah as well as many other related topics.

Now, because you have reached this point, I want to give you something special. As I said before, I cannot initiate you. And, as I have described, although initiation is not necessary, it can speed up your progress. Even though I cannot initiate you, there is something you can do which can aid in your development. It is a self-dedication, wherein you dedicate yourself to the Great Work: attaining the Knowledge and Conversation of your Holy Guardian Angel (also known as Cosmic Consciousness, enlightenment and unity with Divinity) and the bringing of Spiritual Light to a dark world.

If you choose to do this, you must have an altar as described in an earlier lesson. It sits in the middle of your magickal circle at the conjunction of the four elements which come from the four quarters. It also represents the physical universe, and thus symbolizes the idea that the universe of the magickal circle is far larger than the material plane. If you contemplate the altar you will surely come up with many more things the altar can represent.

On the top of the altar should be two items. These are a red triangle and a white cross. They can be made out of construction paper or felt. The cross represents our vow to follow the great work (our "cross to bear"). The triangle, which should be made so that it looks like three bars rather than one piece with a solid middle, represents all forms of trinities. This includes Isis, Apophis Osiris; Tao, Yin, Yang; Keter, Hochmah, Binah; and especially Light, Life and Love. As you face east from behind the altar, these two symbols should rest on the altar with the cross further east than the triangle:



Be sure to read the dedication vow and make sure that you want to keep all of its provisions before actually doing this ritual. Within the circle you should also have a small cup of water and some burning incense. They should not be on the altar, but to the sides. The incense should be to the south and the water should be to the north. Be sure that the censer is on a fire-proof surface.

THE RITE OF SELF-DEDICATION

STEP ONE. Do the Relaxation Ritual.

STEP TWO. Do the LBRP.

STEP THREE. Do the BRH.

STEP FOUR. If it suits your Will, do the Rose Cross Ritual.

STEP FIVE. Pick up the water cup in the left hand and dip the fingers of the right hand in the water. Sprinkle a few drops from your fingers to the left, then ahead, then to the right. Re-dip the right index finger and make a cross on your forehead with it while saying: I consecrate myself with water! Replace the water cup.

STEP SIX. Pick up the incense and wave it to the left, center and right. Hold it so that you can smell its fumes while saying: I purify myself with fire! Replace the incense.

STEP SEVEN. Hold both hands above shoulder level, palms forward, and bow your head. Say:

Holy art Thou, Lord of the universe!
Holy art Thou, whom nature hath not formed!
Holy art Thou, the vast and mighty one!
Lord of the light and of the darkness!

STEP EIGHT. Now kneel before the altar. Place your right hand on top of both the triangle and the cross. Hold your left hand up in the air. Say the following slowly, meaningfully and with conviction:

I, (state your magickal motto or full name) in the presence of the Lord of the universe who works in silence and naught but silence can express, do hereby dedicate myself to the accomplishment of the Great Work by taking the following vow: I, of my own free will and accord do hereby and hereon most solemnly pledge to keep secret all of my occult knowledge from any and all whom I deem unworthy due to their evil intents or lying ways. I undertake to prosecute with zeal the study of occult sciences for the betterment of myself and the betterment of all humanity. I will not suffer myself to be placed in such a passive state that any person, power or being may cause me to lose control of my thoughts, words or actions. I will not use my occult powers for any evil purposes. I agree to these points generally and severally, upon this sacred and sublime symbol, without evasion, equivocation or mental reservation of any kind whatsoever. I realize that should I willfully break this, my magickal oath, that I shall be known as a perjuring wretch, void of all moral worth and unfit for the society of all right and true persons. Furthermore, should I break this, my magickal oath, may my weapons turn against me or turn to dust, and may all of my magick and rituals be for naught, so help me the Lord of the universe and my own higher soul.

STEP NINE. Do the Middle Pillar Ritual and the Circulation of the Body of Light. When you finish, visualize yourself surrounded by brilliant white light and bask in its spiritual glow.

STEP TEN. Finish with the LBRP.

As you can see, the penalties for breaking this magickal oath are quite severe. You may not wish to take this oath, or you may wish to wait to take it. But if you take it now, the "Powers that Be" will take note of your vow and your dedicated work over the past few months. They will smile upon your efforts and dedication. The result will be faster progress in all of your magickal and spiritual work.

PART FIVE

A topic which deeply concerns many occultists is the "Magickal Memory." To Crowley, the magickal memory was an important part of occultism. And, like many aspects of occultism, under another name it has become a popular topic with the general public. Thus, it becomes hard today to discover anyone who is not familiar with some theory of reincarnation and past lives.

Sooner or later you will have a past life experience as a result of your occult work. It may be in the form of a vision during meditation. Or, perhaps in the midst of a group ritual the appearances of the hall wherein you are working, the clothes and even the faces of the people with whom you are working will alter. You will have the impression that you are in another location and working with other people. These are all signs of a returning magickal memory.

Before discussing the Kabalistic theory of reincarnation, I want to make clear the importance of past life experiences. To be quite frank, I am not convinced that reincarnation is a reality. The scientific evidence for it is too scant and at times silly to take the whole thing seriously. I have met several dozen people who have told me that they were Jesus' disciples in a past life. I do not know where they were hiding in the New Testament accounts wherein only twelve are mentioned. One lady told me in all seriousness that she and I had "studied Kabalah together at Jesus' feet." I found that very interesting as I had done some past life regressions to that time and further back, and according to my experiences had never even been to the Middle East. I even knew two ladies who were lovers, one of whom thought she was an incarnation of Jesus, the other of whom thought she had been Judas! This certainly tells more of a story of their present-day psyches than their past lives. In fact, their present-day relationship resulted in them almost destroying each other mentally and spiritually.

I also know of several people who claim to be the current incarnation of Aleister Crowley. I have a letter from one of these self-avowed incarnations which shows a total lack of knowledge of Crowley's philosophy and an even smaller knowledge of the English language. Even if you think little of Crowley, his mastery of English is beyond question. On the other hand, I have a friend who insists that all of the many people claiming to be Crowley actually may be Crowley. He says there must be at least 33 people making the claim to be Crowley, and they each have about 1/33rd of Crowley's intelligence, talent, skill and wit. Dion Fortune, in her book Sane Occultism (which should be required reading for all occultists), says: "To claim greatness in the past does not so much cast reflected glory on a mediocre present life as suspicion on the intervening lives. . . "

Past life experiences are one of three things:

1. They may be real experiences of actual past lives.
2. They may be fantasies to glamorize a currently bland lifetime.
3. They may be messages which your subconscious needs to give to your conscious, but which your conscious refuses to hear. Thus, the subconscious presents it in a way that can be accepted by the conscious: as a symbolic past life.

The truth is that it does not matter which is the cause of a past life experience. What matters is what you get out of it now, in your current lifetime. If you re-read the section on the soul or personality in an earlier lesson, you will see that the memory is mortal; it ends with the body at the change known as death. Thus, if we do have a past life experience, not only does it tend to be short and incomplete, but it also must be important enough to have made an impression on one of the immortal aspects of our being. And whether it is an important message from our subconscious or an ego-building fantasy, the message of past-life experiences is the same: What can I get from it now?

Frequently, the answer to this question deals with allowing us to learn some way of living better in the present. Sometimes they give cathartic experiences which can free us from phobias and neuroses which are no longer valuable to our mental well-being. Sometimes they tell us more about our inner make-up and desires.

Past life experiences are, always have been, and ever must be very personal in nature. To be of any value at all, we must personally experience them. Sooner or later, as a result of doing the Great Work, experience them you will. Once experienced they can make drastic, positive changes in your life. They can also improve your magickal talents by freeing you from problems which might be holding you back.

Unfortunately, whenever there is something of true value, it seems that there is also either a cold-blooded opportunist trying to make a fast buck or a self-deluded believer who must help everyone . . . and make a few bucks in the process. These people can be found at "psychic fairs" and giving classes or lectures, the main part of which consists in the telling you of your past lives. If you accept these people as entertainers you will get your money's worth. They may actually be tapping into and informing you of real past lives (if such exist). But for magickal purposes they are useless. As I said, you must experience your past lives, not just "hear" about them for them to be of any value to you whatsoever. Luckily, there are now teachers who are helping people to relive their past lives, and your participation in such a class is encouraged. There are also many fine books on the market which tell you how to experience past lives. And as I have already mentioned, the magickal work you are doing will probably result at one time or another in a past life experience.

However, our real interest here is the Kabalistic theory of reincarnation. The Kabalah, remember, is not a static, unchanging theory, but an evolving metaphysical philosophy. The Kabalah has several theories of reincarnation which have evolved over time. None, however, are as simplistic as W. W. Westcott, a founder of the Golden Dawn, expressed when he said that according to the Kabalah people are limited to three incarnations. This has been copied by some authors who were members of the Golden Dawn and by other writers who don't give their sources credit. Before going on, I must add that in another work Westcott does talk about a more advanced Kabalistic theory of reincarnation. This is the Lurianic theory of metempsychosis, the Kabalistic theory of incarnating as a higher or lower life form.

There are two prime Kabalistic theories of reincarnation. The first relates to the Four Worlds. This theory sees four levels (relating to the Worlds), each of which has a series of lessons to be learned. If you do not learn them in one lifetime you must reincarnate until you do. Once you have learned all of the lessons in the lowest level, becoming as spiritual as possible in the lowest World, in your next incarnation you will find yourself at the most unspiritual place of the next of the Four Worlds. As you may have guessed, the lessons and experiences are associated with the Tree of Life, and thus have ten basic areas of concern, although there may be many more sub-categories. It can be seen that according to this system there can be innumerable incarnations.

According to this system, the goal is to traverse all Four Worlds and perfect yourself so that you can reunite with the Divine. However, it is claimed that most people only get to the Tiferet level of B'ri-yah. At this point a person has evolved to such a high state that further incarnations are no longer necessary for evolvement.

The second basic theory is the above-mentioned one of Isaac Luria. Luria was a famous Kabalist who never wrote anything, but whose student's writings make him the father of modern Jewish Kabalism. His system has two basic features which would today be called metempsychosis and Karma.

Metempsychosis, or the transmigration of souls, is the idea that we can incarnate as a lower life form if our current life is not in tune with the working of the universe. But the Lurianic theory goes much further than other theories of this type. In this system you are not punished for evil by becoming a cow. Rather, your next incarnation is dependent upon what you need to learn. Thus, if you need to learn stealth you might incarnate in your next life as a thief or as that thieving bird, the magpie. As you can see, the reason for incarnating into a "lower" life form is very logical.

The Lurianic system not only features this high level of logic, it also features greater depth. If you need to learn patience, for example, you may incarnate as a rock! If you need to learn flexibility you may come back as a reed by a river.

The ideas which come out of this are fascinating. The implication is that plants, rocks, animals are alive and have souls. This also implies that all planets and asteroids are teeming with some form of life. In fact, it means that the entire universe is wonderfully alive, and that we are but a small part of it.

According to this system, we stay in a "lower" form until we have learned the necessary lesson and we have been of some use to a "higher" life form. Thus, in the example given above, you could stay a rock until you learned patience and until you had become useful, perhaps by providing shade to a snake or an insect, or serving as a stool for a human hiker. It is possible that your stay as a stone could last a relatively short time, or it could last for thousands of years. Likewise, you might stay a reed until you learn flexibility and become the food of an animal or perhaps part of a reed boat. As a side note, Dion Fortune urges non-vegetarianism for Western occultists because giving up animal products in the diet may cause a psychic opening too quickly and bring about psychic or physical damage. Those who believe in the Lurianic theory of metempsychosis would argue that you should eat meat as it will help those who have incarnated as animals move up the evolutionary scale. Actually, you should do what's right for you. If you force yourself to do otherwise you will be uncomfortable and unhappy, which is a handicap for psychic development. If you don't want to eat meat, don't; if you do, do. Personally, I choose not to eat meat, fish or fowl. However, if necessity arises, I would eat any of those items without guilt.

The Lurianic system also features a notion of Karma. In Hebrew it is called tee-koon. In English and other Romance languages, words tend to have a specific meaning. In Sanskrit this is not so. In fact, some of the earliest works in Sanskrit, the Tantras, frequently use what is called "twilight language" and are filled with hidden meanings that required a key to understand the twilight language code. Hebrew and other Semitic languages are similar in frequently having broad or imprecise meanings for words. Thus, although tee-koon means "correct," it implies the restoring of the soul to its true identity. Therefore, the reason we reincarnate in other life forms is to correct errors we have made in previous lives. The reason we experience bad in our lives for no apparent reason is for the working out of this tee-koon process. There is a passage in the Bible which says that God punishes a person for his sins unto the third generation. If you do not believe in reincarnation, this implies an incredibly vicious and vindictive deity. If, on the other hand, you believe that this is a type of twilight language and really means that you many have to spend up to three incarnations to learn to "correct" past behavior, it becomes a reasonable and logical statement. This may be the source of Westcott's "three incarnations" error.

Let us assume that you have gone through many, many lifetimes and have achieved as much spiritual perfection as is possible for a person to achieve. You have been corrected. What, then, is the result? To answer this question we must first answer the question of where souls come from.

Simply, the Divine created all of the souls before their first incarnation. Thus, unrecognized, we are all imperfect parts of the Divine Source of all. Many have not incarnated as yet. It is possible that some may never do so. These proto-human souls are referred to as "sparks" in Kabalistic literature. These sparks are androgynous. When the soul is ready to incarnate it is split in two. Each half will go to a member of a different sex. Each soul half watches over the forming fetus, but does not join with it until the first breath is taken. Also, note that according to this system you do not start as a lower life form and work your way up. Rather, you start as a human and can work yourself up or down.

Once you have achieved as spiritual a state as possible in each lifetime, the next step in the tee-koon process is for you to find the other half of your soul. The other half will also have gone through a series of experiences and will be waiting to join with you. It may be that one of you achieves the state of being ready to re-unify sooner than the other and will have to wait several lifetimes for the arrival of the missing half. When the time is right you will be united with your "Soul Mate." This is the Kabalistic understanding of the term. In the interim you should love, marry and have children. When the time is right your Soul Mate will appear. And please do not swallow the "Hey, baby. Don't you know I'm your soul mate?" line. Anyone who says it, isn't.

Once you meet and unite with your Soul Mate, your divided soul will also unify during the time you spend together. This uniting is especially important during sex; however, that is a topic to be discussed later in these lessons. Once your soul is back in one piece, as a result of the tee-koon process, you are fit to reunite with your creator.

> Who works in silence,
> And naught but silence can express.
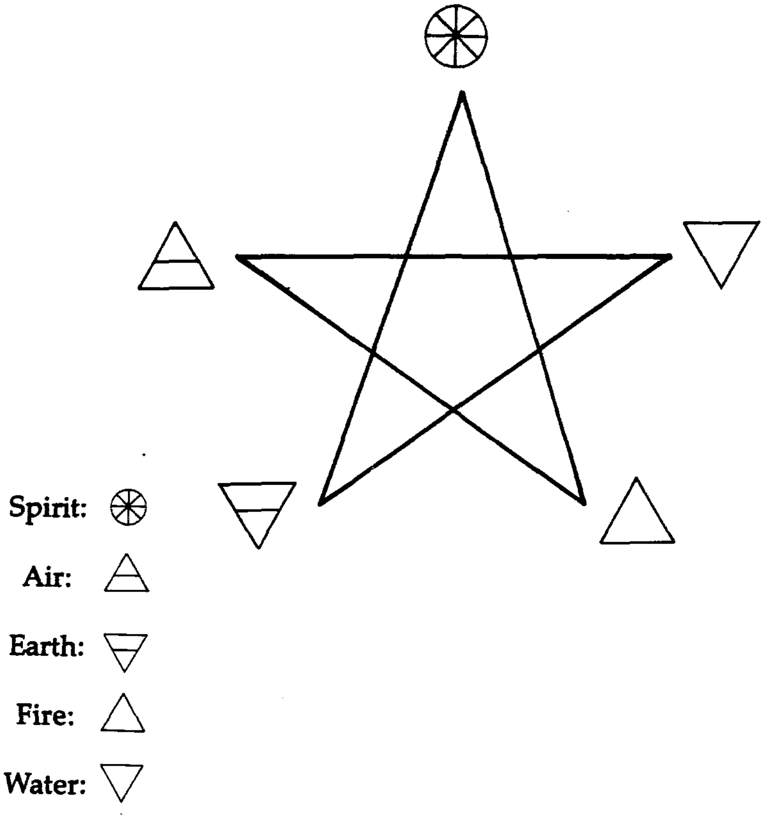
> —Golden Dawn Neophyte Initiation Ritual

PART SIX

I am often amazed at the incompetence of people claiming to be Ceremonial Magicians. Many of those whom I have met seem to think that the LBRP is the highest level of Ritual Magick, then wonder why Pagans criticize them for their "complicated rituals." In fact, some self-described magicians drop the "Lesser" so that the LBRP becomes THE Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram. This is totally wrong and totally in error. The LBRP was given to the members of the Golden Dawn (remember, they were a non-magickal group) to prepare them for the magickal work to come in the Inner Order of that organization. It is hoped that you have been practicing the LBRP for many months. Time will not wait, and it is important that you are fully competent with the LBRP so that you can start practicing this, the Supreme Invoking Ritual of the Pentagram.

As you probably remember, the points of the pentagram represent the five magickal elements: Spirit at the top, then, going counterclockwise, Air, Earth, Fire and Water (see diagram).



In the LBRP you will note that since we start from the lower left we are moving away from the center of elemental Earth. Had we moved from the top toward the lower left corner when making the first line we would be performing the Lesser Invoking Ritual of the Pentagram. Some people advise doing the invoking in the morning and the banishing in the evening. I believe this to be a dangerous practice. The banishing must be learned and effective first. Being able to do the LBRP effectively is a prerequisite for the rest of this course.

There are also four pentagrams associated with the element of Spirit. Instead of invoking, two are called "equilibrating." Instead of banishing, two are called "closing." Both Equilibrating and Closing are divided into active and passive, giving a total of four as shown in the following diagram.

Equilibrating Active start start Equilibrating
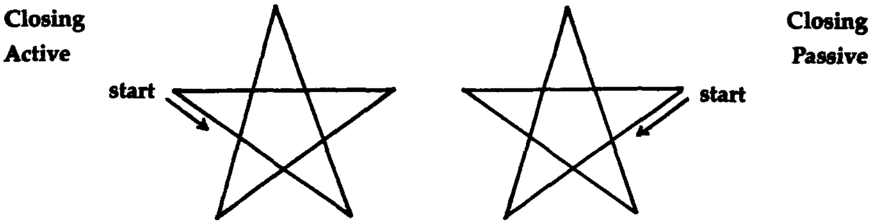
Passive

SPIRIT INVOKING PENTAGRAMS



Closing
Active start start
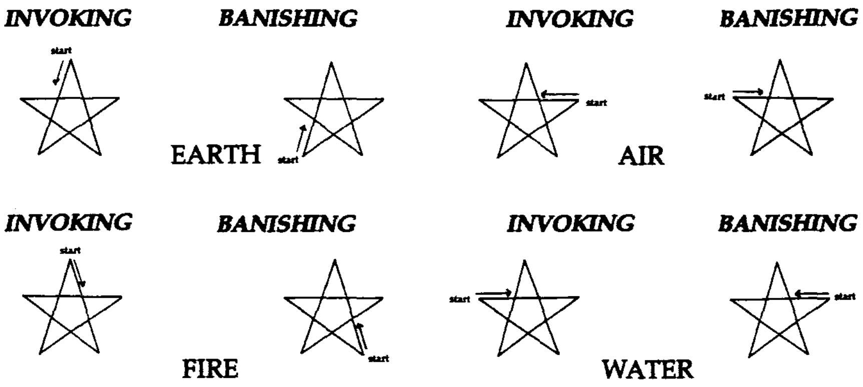
Closing
Passive

SPIRIT BANISHING PENTAGRAMS

Along with the four pentagrams of Spirit, there are also eight pentagrams, two for each of the other elements. Each element has a banishing and invoking pentagram as shown in the diagram below:



INVOKING
BANISHING
INVOKING BANISHING
start EARTH start start
AIR start INVOKING BANISHING
INVOKING BANISHING
start
FIRE start start
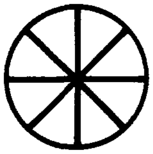
WATER
start

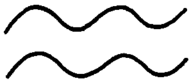
The Supreme Invoking Ritual of the Pentagram is a more powerful version of the Lesser Invoking Ritual of the Pentagram. As you can guess, it can become the Supreme Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram by using the banishing forms of the pentagrams instead of the invoking ones. However, the purpose of this ritual at this time in our work is to bring into our lives all of the forces of the elements. Later, it will take on even more importance.

At this time, practice this ritual only in the morning. When doing this work, at this time in the course, always follow it with the LBRP. Do not perform the Supreme Invoking Ritual of the Pentagram (SIRP) in the evening. This is not because the SIRP is dangerous, but because it can be very invigorating and might cause you difficulty in falling asleep. This is especially true when you are in the learning process and have not perfected the ritual.

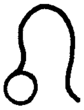
Two other things need to be noted here. First, in the center of each of the pentagrams are drawn figures associated with each element. For Spirit is drawn a wheel with eight spokes:



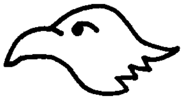
For Air is drawn the symbol of Aquarius, which in spite of its superficial association with Water is actually an Air symbol as any book on astrology will confirm:



The sign for Leo represents the element of Fire:

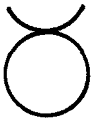


The eagle is associated with Water:



As the symbol of Aquarius seems to be related to Water, so too does the Eagle seem to be related to Air. But here the Eagle is an alchemical symbol for distillation, a process definitely associated with Water.

The sign of Taurus represents the element Earth:



The other thing you will need to know is that some of the words in this ritual are not from the Hebrew, but from the Angelic or Enochian (pronounced "Ee-noh-kee-un") of Kelly and Dee. They are secret names of Divinity, and I will be discussing their system to a small degree in a later lesson. The pronunciation of the Enochian words used here is as follows:

ENOCHIAN	PRONUNCIATION
EXARP	Ex-ahr-pey
ORO IBAH AOZPI	Oh-row Ee-bah-hah Ah-oh-zohd-pee
BITOM	Bee-toh-ehm — check
OIP TEAA PEDOCE	Oh-ee-pay Tay-ah-ah Pay-doh-kay
HCOMA	Hay-coh-mah
EMPEH ARSEL GAIOL	Ehm-pay-hay Ahr-sel Gah-ee-ohl
NANTA	Ehn-ah-ehn-tah
EMOR DIAL HECTEGA	Ee-mohr Dee-ahl Hek-tay-gah

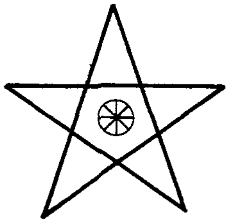
The Hebrew you should already know. Remember YHVH represents, and should be pronounced, Yud Heh Vahv Heh.

THE SUPREME INVOKING RITUAL OF THE PENTAGRAM

STEP ONE. Do the Relaxation Ritual, the LBRP and the BRH. These are optional and need not be done, but they are good for balancing you and preparing you for this ritual.

STEP TWO. From behind your altar (if you have one) face east and perform the Kabalistic Cross from the LBRP.

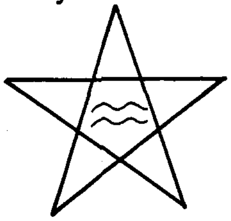
STEP THREE(a). Go to the east of your area. Make the equilibrated Active Pentagram of Spirit. As you do so, vibrate EXARP. This should be done so that the last syllable (pey) is sounding after you finish drawing the pentagram. As in the LBRP, inhale, feeling energy come into you, but exhale as you make the pentagram. Be sure to save enough breath so that you can thrust your hands forward into the center of the pentagram while you vibrate the last syllable, "pey."



STEP THREE(b). While making the sign of Spirit, a wheel, in the center of the already drawn pentagram, vibrate EH-HEH-YEH, again save the breath and last syllable to thrust forward with the hands at the center of the wheel. This symbol should be made by first making a clockwise circle, starting and ending at the top. Next, draw the vertical, then horizontal spokes. Follow this with the two diagonal lines. (Re-read the instruction for the LBRP if you need to be reminded how to send energy out and thrust forward with the hands and left foot. The only difference is that in this ritual you do it at the end of the word of power you are vibrating.)

LVX next.

STEP FOUR (a). Still facing east, and over the figures you have already made, make the Invoking Pentagram of the element Air. In the same manner as above, Vibrate: ORO IBAH AOZP while making the pentagram, saving the last syllable to thrust forward and charge.



STEP FOUR (b). In the same manner, vibrate YHVH while forming the sign of Aquarius in the center of the already drawn pentagram.

(In this ritual, all the vibrating of words of power will be done in the same fashion.)

— Theoricus

STEP FIVE. Move to the south, carrying a white line as you did in the LBRP.

STEP SIX (a). Make the Equilibrated Active Pentagram of Spirit while vibrating: BITOM.

STEP SIX (b). While making the inner Wheel, vibrate EH-HEH-YEH.

LVX

STEP SEVEN (a) Still facing south, over the figures you have already made, make the Invoking Pentagram of Fire. Vibrate: OIP TEAA PEDOCE as you do so.

STEP SEVEN (b). Vibrate: EL-OH-HEEM while making the Leo sigil in the center of the pentagram.

Philosophus

STEP EIGHT. Move to the west, carrying a white line as you did in the LBRP.

STEP NINE (a). Make the Equilibrated Passive Pentagram of Spirit while vibrating: HCOMA.

STEP NINE (b). Vibrate: AGLA while making the Wheel of Spirit.

LVX

STEP TEN (a). Still facing west, and over the figures you already made here, make the Invoking Pentagram of Water while vibrating EMPEH ARSEL GAIOL.

STEP TEN (b). Make the Eagle Head to represent Water in the center of the Pentagram while you vibrate: EL. Practice?

STEP ELEVEN. Carry the White Line to the North.

STEP TWELVE (a). Make the equilibrated Passive Pentagram of Spirit while vibrating NANTA.

STEP TWELVE (b). Vibrate: AGLA while making the Wheel of Spirit.

LVX

STEP THIRTEEN (a). Still facing north, and over the figures you have already made, make the Invoking Pentagram of Earth while vibrating: EMOR DIAL HECTEGA.

STEP THIRTEEN (b). Vibrate AH-DOH-NYE while making the sign of Taurus.

Zelator.

STEP FOURTEEN. Carry the line to the east, completing the circle. Return to your original position behind the altar, facing east.

STEP FIFTEEN. Do the Evocation of the Archangels and the Kabalistic Cross as in the LBRP.

While you are learning this Supreme Invoking Ritual of the Pentagram always end by doing the LBRP. Always! And it will be better if you also do the BRH.

NOTES: As in the LBRP, the pentagrams are blue and the lines connecting them are white. The Wheels of Spirit should also be the same brilliant, pure white light as the lines connecting the pentagrams. The Aquarius sign should be yellow to represent Air. The Leo sigil should be red, for Fire. The Eagle symbol should be blue to represent elemental Water. Finally, the Taurus sign should be shiny black to represent Earth.

If you were doing this ritual in the form of a banishing ritual you would use the same symbols within the pentagrams. However, the pentagrams would use their banishing forms while the Spirit Pentagrams would use their Closing forms.

You may notice that I did not mention a particular tool to use in this ritual. At this time, use the dagger. However, as we progress in this course, you will find that one particular weapon is not associated with this ritual as the dagger is with the LBRP.

On the following page you will find a review for this ritual. The SIRP should be learned, and preferably memorized, but it is not a part of your daily work.

PART SEVEN

I want to return now to a further look at the Kabalistic Four Worlds. These Four Worlds represent four planes or levels of existence. In English we could say that these four planes are the physical, emotional, mental and spiritual.

The physical plane relates to the lowest world of Ahssiah, the emotional plane is asociated with Yetzirah, the mental level equates with the world of B'ri-yah, and the spiritual plane is related to the world known as Atziloot. You might wish to re-read the section on the

THE SUPREME INVOKING RITUAL OF THE PENTAGRAM

1. From behind your altar face east and perform the Kabalistic Cross.

2a. While making the Equilibrated Active Pentagram of Spirit vibrate: EXARP.

2b. While making the Wheel vibrate: EH-HEH-YEH.

3a. Make the Invoking Pentagram of Air while vibrating: ORO IBAH AOZPI.

3b. Make Aquarius symbol and vibrate: YHVH.

carry line to south

4a. Make Equilibrated Active Pentagram of Spirit, vibrate: BITOM.

4b. Make Wheel, vibrate: EH-HEH-YEH.

5a. Make the Invoking Pentagram of Fire, vibrate: OIP TEAA PEDOCE.

5b. Make Leo symbol, vibrate EL-OH-HEEM.

carry line to west

6a. Make Equilibrated Passive Pentagram of Spirit, vibrate: HCOMA.

6b. Make Wheel, vibrate: AGLA.

7a. Make Invoking Pentagram of Water, vibrate: EMPEH ARSEL GAIOL.

7b. Make Eagle sign, vibrate: EL.

carry line to north

8a. Make Equilibrated Passive Pentagram of Spirit, vibrate: NANTA.

8b. Make Wheel, vibrate: AGLA.

9a. Make Invoking Pentagram of Earth, vibrate: EMOR DIAL HECTEGA.

9b. Make Taurus sign, vibrate: AH-DOH-NYE.

carry line to east, completing circle

10. Return to your original position behind the altar, facing East. Do the Evocation of the Archangels and the Kabalistic Cross as in the LBRP.

11. When practicing this ritual, ALWAYS, finish by doing the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

Four Worlds from an earlier lesson at this time.

There are other systems which claim that there are far more planes of existence. Many systems hold that there are seven planes. Others hold that there are 33 or more planes. Some believe that there is only one other plane, and the philosophy known as materialism claims that there is only the physical reality we know in our everyday existence and nothing more. Soon we will be studying Grey Magick, and although the practice of White Magick necessitates the knowledge of all of the Kabalistic Worlds (especially the spiritual world of Atziloot, in Grey Magick there is really only one plane other than the physical plane which is of interest. This is the emotional plane, the Kabalistic world of Yetzirah.

As you should recall, Yetzirah is also considered to be the so-called "Astral Plane." As I said in the lesson discussing the Four Worlds, Yetzirah, the Astral Plane is "the basis for everything which exists in the physical universe." You may have passed over this quote, ignoring it or you may have wondered what was meant by the claim that the Astral Plane was the basis for everything in the physical universe, including of course all people and things in our world. This gives me a chance to urge you to go back occasionally and review past lessons. Each time you read them you will get more out of them. They should not merely be read and forgotten. If you had really thought about it, you might have realized that the quote from that earlier lesson may be the most important thing you will ever read. In fact, it may indicate a turning point in your life.

It tells, in a simple manner, the basis of all Grey Magick. But to fully understand the importance and meaning of it we have to start by looking again at reincarnation. However, this time we will approach it from a different angle. We need to look at the question, "Where did I come from?"

Quite obviously, the human being is more than just flesh, bone and blood. There is also an energy which animates the body. As already stated, in the Kabalah this energy is known as Ruach. But merely having a piece of meat which is animated by Ruach does not make a human being. The thing which really makes you different from other pieces of animated meat is your personality and what is commonly called your "soul."

The soul and personality are not the same. Rather, the personality relates to your ego, or that aspect of the personality known in the Kabalah as the Ruach (not to be confused with the animating energy of the same name). The soul, in Freudian terms, is the superego; in Kabalistic terms it is the Yeh-chee-dah, your higher self.

According to the Kabalah, when you die, the body immediately starts to decay and should go into "Shee-ool." As an interesting side note, Shee-ool is usually translated when it appears in the Old Testament as "ground" or "earth." However, in some instances (when the translators wished to convey the idea that if you are a "sinner" when you die you will be punished), the same word is translated as "hell." The Kabalah does not have any such place of eternal punishment. According to both the Kabalah and correct translation of the Old Testament, there is no hell.

The Kabalistic tradition says that when you go through the change known as death the personality (ego or Ruach) does not realize exactly what has occurred. This is especially true in cases of sudden or traumatic death. The personality of the dead person, suddenly freed from the physical body, tends to wander back and forth between the body (in Shee-ool, the grave) and the previous home of the person for a period of seven days. Traditionally, Jews stay in their home for a week after the death of a member of the household. In Hebrew, the word for the number seven is sheevah, and this practice is commonly known as "sitting sheevah." However, what most modern Jews who follow this practice do not know is the purpose of this ritual. The purpose is the same as the purpose of such books as the Egyptian and Tibetan Books of the Dead: to tell the personality that it has gone through the change known as death and that it is free to move on. It is probable that there may be a lost Hebrew text similar in nature to the Books of the Dead. If so, it was probably lost along with most of the texts concerning Merkabah mysticism.

According to the Kabalah, after about one week the personality begins to realize what has happened and eventually dissolves to nothingness (remember, it is mortal). However, people with extremely strong personalities can will themselves to stay in a shadowy world of semi-existence. This may be one of the causes of what is commonly known as hauntings.

It is not advisable to allow or aid the Ruach-ego to exist for long periods after physical death. This is because there are important links between the Ruach-ego and the Yeh-chee-dah. By keeping the Ruach-ego locked to the physical world, it prevents the Yeh-chee-dah from reincarnating and eventually achieving its far more lofty goal of unity with the Divine. Thus it is that the Kabalah usually frowns upon spiritism and spiritualistic practices. Communicating with our deceased loved ones (if that's who it is we really are communicating with) tends to lock the Ruach-ego near the physical plane. It prevents necessary evolution.

As I have stated earlier, your Yeh-chee-dah is your link to the Divine. Actually, it is more than that: it is a small part of God. That is why it is said that we were made in the likeness of Divinity. The Divine is a part of us. God is not a big old man with a beard, sitting on a throne which rests on a cloud.

But for some reason unknowable to our mortal minds, most of humanity has lost the consciousness of that link. In order to re-establish the fact that there is a part of us that is of the Divine, we must evolve our consciousnesses. This, along with the working out of Karma (Tee-koon), is the purpose of reincarnation.

As stated in an earlier lesson, our memories, like the Ruach-ego, are mortal and die with our physical bodies. But the important things, the lessons we need to learn so that we can again become not just linked with Divinity (Yoga) but actually rejoin the Godhead, are remembered. Unfortunately, one lifetime is usually not enough to learn all of the lessons necessary so that we can become one with the Godhead and need no longer incarnate. Each lifetime on Earth is necessary to learn either one or more lessons. If you do not learn them in this lifetime, then when you reincarnate you will still need to learn them.

Sometimes we are shown the lesson we need to learn but end up flunking the course! Then, after re-taking the lesson we flunk it again! As a Certified Tarot Master, a reader of Tarot cards, I frequently work at psychic fairs. Usually at least once at each fair a young woman, frequently with a baby, will tell me a story like this:

"When I started living with ________, he was very good to me. We have two wonderful children. But after a few years he started drinking, running around with other women, and beating me and the kids. Well, I took this for three years. Then, I finally picked up the kids, moved out and got a job. About six months later I met a really nice guy. He moved in with the kids and me. But recently he has started drinking, running around with other women and hitting me and the kids. What can I do to make him nice again?"

Of course, there are similar situations with men, only they tend to allow themselves to be manipulated until they can no longer take the ego bruising rather than being physically abused. Sometimes, people will tell me the same story has happened to them four or five times!

For the woman above there are many lessons to be learned. Usually such a situation is based upon feelings of lack of worth and the need to develop self-respect, and to treat yourself well. Another lesson illustrated in the above example is to learn what attracts you to these bad situations, and what attracts bad people to you. There are many variations in the exact story, and each reveals more lessons which can be learned.

The Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn advised you to seek your Holy Guardian Angel and find out the lessons you need to learn so you will not have to learn them again in this or a future lifetime. This brings us (finally) to how you were born.

Obviously, the meeting of the sperm and ovum produced both the physical body and in most cases where birth is the end result, instills the zygote with Ruach energy. But where does the soul, the real and eternal you, come from?

Since your soul has a direct link to the Godhead, it is obvious that your soul must also have a link to the total knowledge of the all-knowing deity. After the ego ceases to be, the soul is freed from bondage to the ego. It can freely learn through that link to the Divinity and knowledge exactly what it will need to learn in its next incarnation in order to evolve to that desired state where incarnation will no longer be necessary. Then, not being bound by the physical laws of time and space, your future soul searches for a "house," a body to inhabit, which will allow it to learn the necessary lessons.

According to the Kabalah, the soul joins with the chosen human body when that body takes its first breath, and not before. However, it will watch over and help protect the forming fetus. It may only take hours for the soul to find the appropriate body, but it might take years.

When a woman and man are making love they set up a vortex of energy which attracts souls waiting to incarnate. If the act of sexual intercourse is done spiritually and with love, it will attract a soul needing a nurturing family and be able to develop spiritually. If the "love" act is done with hatred and anger, a soul needing that type of treatment will be attracted. Is it any wonder that most of the people who physically abuse their children were themselves abused as a child? Is it any wonder that most of the people in prison for serious felonies were abused children? This does not mean that a childhood of abuse necessitates a violent life. In fact, it may be that a person needs to learn to overcome violent behavior and incarnates into a situation where he or she learns it so that it can be overcome. By the way, an interesting Kabalistic tradition holds that sometimes several souls will actually argue over trying to get into a particular body!

As mentioned before, your soul, or let us say "soul consciousness," descends in superiority and becomes secondary to your emerging ego and personality. In fact, that soul consciousness descends so far that it becomes what is known as your subconscious.

Thus, it is your subconscious which is your link to Divinity. This is why true meditation which reverses this order and makes the subconscious once again dominant (not the superficial layers of the subconscious as represented by the Freudian id, but the real "soul consciousness"), allows you to know the link between yourself and the Godhead and use that link to all wisdom and all knowledge. It allows you to obtain answers to seemingly insoluble problems. Furthermore, this deep level of your subconscious, your true "soul consciousness," exists on what is called the Astral Plane; the Kabalistic world of Yetzirah. If you had been born with another soul, you would not be the same person. The part of you which exists in the Yetziratic world, the Astral Plane, was in existence before your physical body.

In fact, everything which exists in our physical plane, the Kabalistic world of Ahssiah, has an astral or Yetziratic counterpart. This counterpart is usually known as the Astral Body. Every person has an Astral Body or Astral Double. So does every animal, vegetable or mineral. Everything has a pre-existing Astral Double. You do not have an Astral Body because you have a physical body. Rather, you have a physical body because the Astral Body already existed and wanted to join a new "home." While your soul was waiting to inhabit its physical body with the body's first breath, it was establishing a link between itself and the physical body. This link is the Astral Body. For anything to exist on the physical plane it must first exist on the Astral Plane!

Therefore, in order to create anything and bring it into your life, all you have to do is create it in the Astral Plane. This is the underlying principle of all Grey Magick. The reason why there are so many different types of Grey Magick is because there are many ways of creating things in the Astral Plane. Soon, you will be learning some of them.

At this point in the course I urge you to pause and study, at least briefly, a book by another author. It should be about any of the subjects of this course. A true magician does not blindly follow the words of others. He or she is a scientist and investigates any and all possible avenues. A magician is not locked into any form of dogma or conditioning. This is why a magician is a dangerous person. A true magician does not buy the semi-truths and lies told by religious and civic leaders to keep the masses in tow and in fear. A magician is always free, and freedom always frightens totalitarians.

PART EIGHT

In the next few pages I am going to be discussing a very important part of your magickal training: physical fitness and health. Now before you skip this section totally, let me explain that I am most definitely not talking about hours of arduous exercises with weights until you look like a stand-in for Arnold Schwarzenegger! What I will be talking about here is quite different.

First, let us look at the idea of health. What exactly is health? If you ask an M.D. he or she will tell you things about vital signs, blood pressure, cholesterol and triglyceride levels, etc. But what is really being talked about is not health. Rather these are indications of what constitutes both a lack of disease and disease prevention. You could be without disease in Western medical terms but still not be vibrant and full of health.

HEALTH 2
DISEASE 1
DEATH

Levels of Health

The diagram above shows that although you could be above the point where a disease manifests, you could still be below a really healthy condition (Point 1). Some people get to Point 1, just above the disease line, so that no disease is manifesting. But just a tiny change in conditions could result in slipping below the line and coming down with, perhaps, a cold or flu. Do you know anybody who seems to be coming down with a cold every few weeks or months? It is because they only improve their health to Level One. If, on the other hand, your health stays way up near the health line (Point 2), minor changes will have little effect upon your health. It will take a major change for you to fall all of the way down to below the disease line. It should be obvious, then, that we would want to achieve a state of high-level health. This is especially true for magicians who may have to spend tiring hours in a magickal circle where the temperature can make sudden and radical jumps. Ask your doctor what signs of health are and you get responses which show what disease isn't. What, then, are the signs of health?

In the West, we really do not at this time have a good definition, although holistic health practitioners are working on establishing them. For now, to answer this question, we turn to traditional Chinese medicine.

The ancient Chinese believed that there were eight signs of health:

1. Vitality. This means having a life full of energy. It should show in the way you walk and in the condition of your eyes. There should be a spring in your step and you should have the energy to do whatever is required for you to do.

2. Appetite. This means not only having an appetite for food when you are hungry, but also an appetite for new experiences and for sex. Perhaps a better term would be a lust for life.

3. Deep and Sound Sleep. According to the Chinese you should only need 4-6 hours of sleep a night. This does not mean that a way to health is to start cutting down on the sleep you need. Rather, it indicates that as you get healthier you will need less sleep. If you need 10-12 hours of sleep per night on a regular basis, however, you may want to see a doctor as this could indicate a medical problem.

Notice, too, that it is not just quantity of sleep which was recognized by the Chinese, but also quality. In this tradition "sound sleep" indicates a dreamless sleep. This, of course, is a misnomer. Perhaps it means a sleep with undisturbing dreams. But I know that I have experienced nights where I slept and awoke feeling tired, haven't you? This is certainly not a sound sleep!

4. Good Memory. This is fairly clear and indicates that you should have both a good short-term and long-term memory. In a curious reversal of Western thought, the ancient Chinese believed that as you got older your memory should improve, not deteriorate. Old age was not seen as a cause of poor memory, disease was. Further, the Chinese believed that you should have a good memory of the past, present and future. Present memory referred to what we call short-term memory.

Past memory is long-term memory. Future memory is the ability to remember the plans we made, months and years ago, for our future. It also means that we should still be trying to achieve those goals.

5. Humor. We should have a good sense of humor to be healthy. We should especially be able to laugh at ourselves and the world immediately around us. As a friend of mine said, "Don't take life seriously . . . you'll never get out alive!"

6. Infinite Giving. No, this does not mean that you should give away all of your possessions and money. Rather, it means that to be healthy you should be able to give of yourself to your friends and to those in need. Also, you should be able to give time and effort to yourself.

7. Clear Thinking and Precise Action. This indicates that a sign of health is the ability to quickly see through a problem, make a decision, and act on that decision without an undue length of time. Procrastination and fear are seen as types of diseases associated with imbalances in the body's energy system. There is also the implication that part of being healthy is having intuitive and psychic abilities which are correct more often than not, and our awareness and use of them.

8. Realization of Oneness. This is a state of utmost health. It is indicated by the having of all your dreams instantly realized. Perhaps another way of putting it would be that the healthiest person is a natural magician.

Now please don't start thinking that because you don't have all these eight qualities in large amounts that you are sickly and going to die in ten minutes! These eight signs of health are goals to strive for. They represent optimum health. They may be things for which you wish to strive.

But for our purposes here, we are only concerned with the first quality, vitality. This includes physical vitality and vitality of the energies of the body. For this I need to tell you about a strange manuscript known as The Eye of Revelation.

I had heard about this mysterious manuscript for quite some time and had been looking for it for several years. The exercises in that paper known as the "Five Rites" had been passed along in a sort of occultists' underground for a long time. I knew the rites, but I wanted to find a copy of the original text. A short time ago, an edition of it fell into my hands. This small booklet was written by a man named Peter Kelder and had a copyright date of 1939. It tells a story of an elderly man who visits a Llamasery in India and learns some magickal rites (which are more like physical exercises) which rejuvenate him to such a degree that he is mistaken for his son! Quite frankly, I doubt that this story as presented is true because there are many things in it which sound as if they were made up. But this does not deny the success so many people have had toward improving their health as a result of practicing the Five Rites. It works not only on the physical body, but also on your non-physical energetic system. The instructions for the Five Rites are on the following pages.

As with any exercise program, you should consult an M.D. first and tell him or her that you wish to begin exercising. This is especially true if you have not exercised in a long time or if you are considerably out of shape. You should never strain with these exercises, although you may perspire. Only do as many as you can and advance gradually. Never force anything.

One of the problems with Westerners is the curse of perfectionism. We want everything to be totally perfect. If it is not perfect then we don't want it at all. In the case of these exercises or rites, do the best job with them that you can. But if you cannot do a rite even one time well, do it one time poorly. Just do it.

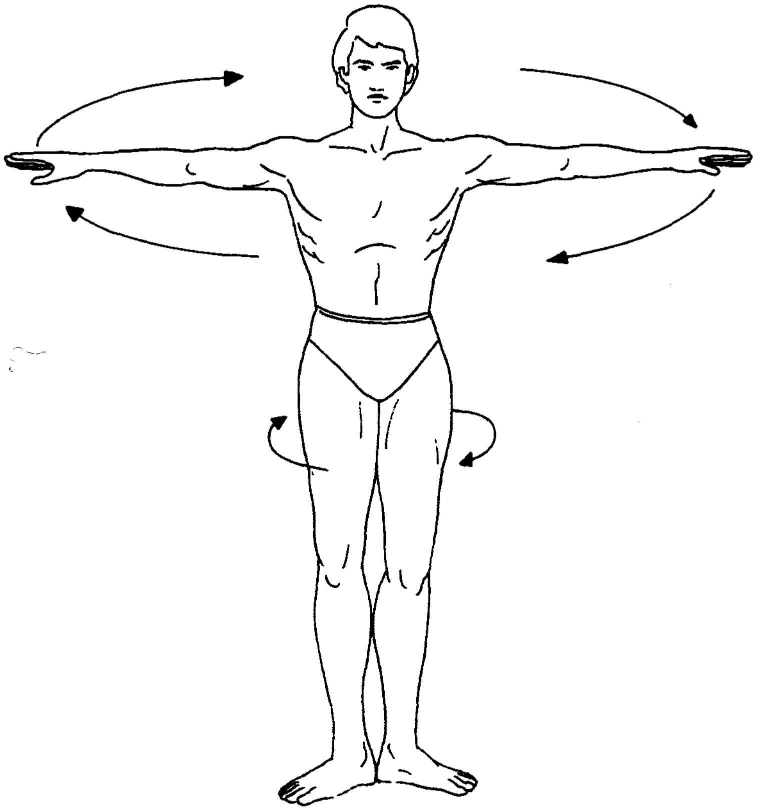
The Five Rites should be done once a day, every day, skipping no more than one day a week. If you are setting goals for yourself and can't quite do all the desired repetition of one particular exercise, do the unfinished number of repetitions later in the day. The full set of exercises should take no more than ten minutes per day once they are learned. When doing the rites remember to breathe! You should exhale whenever your body goes through a contracting part of the exercise and inhale at a stretching or relaxation section. Try not to pant.

As a last thought, many people who become involved with Ceremonial Magick become disappointed rather quickly because they find that due to a lack of knowledge or talent they are unable to do magick quickly. Or they find that there is a great deal of study, practice and work which will take more time than they wish to dedicate. I think that most people have bizarre expectations as to what magick really is because of the silliness seen in movies and on television. It is also due to the lies fostered by fearful religious and pseudo-occult groups. Some people expect that if you say a few weird words, wave your hand in the air and wear a black robe, you can do magick. As those of you reading this lesson know, nothing could be further from the truth.

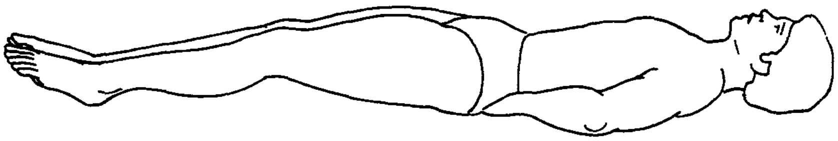
In getting this far in the course you have persevered on the path of magick and occultism when many who have come before you have faltered, failed or given up. You should congratulate yourself.

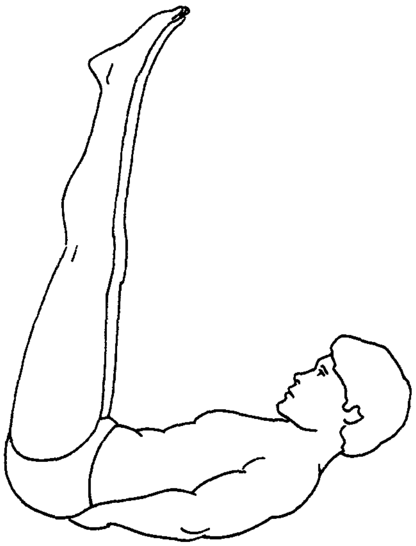
The next lesson will be the last to focus on White Magick. Starting in the seventh lesson we will be going into the techniques and practices of Grey Magick which will allow you to make positive changes in your life and environment.

What you have been practicing in these five lessons and in the next lesson are specifically arranged to prepare you to do Grey Magick. If you are not competent at doing the rituals given in these lessons you will have great difficulty succeeding with Grey Magick. This does not mean that the thousands of people who have practiced Grey Magick over the centuries have been fooled because "it doesn't work." Rather, it means that you need more preparation. And practice!

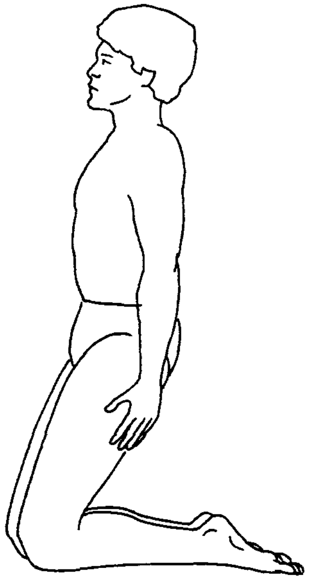


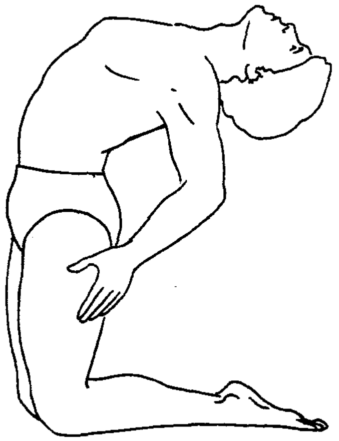
Rite Number One. This is the simplest of the rites, but do not discount its importance. Stand straight with your hands straight out to the sides. Now spin around in a clockwise direction (from left to right) until you become slightly dizzy. When you first try this you may only be able to make three to six turns, but within ten weeks you should be up to 21 circles which is the maximum you need to do.



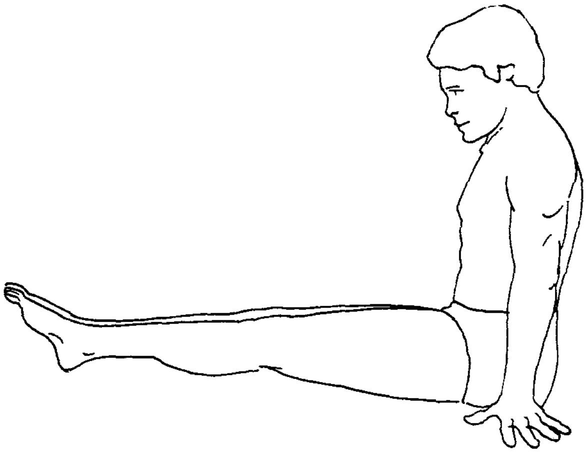


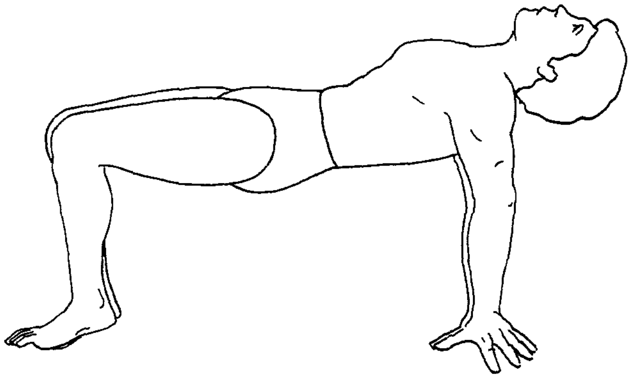
Rite Number Two. In this exercise you lay down, feet together, on a flat surface. Your hands should be palms down with the fingers together, but slightly turned in toward the center of the body (see diagram above). Raise the legs off the floor so that they are straight up, or, better yet, until they are slightly past center. At the same time touch the chin to the chest. Then slowly lower the legs and head and relax. Do this as many times as possible, but don't strain. Your goal is to get up to 21 repetitions. Don't bend the knees, but if you cannot do even one repetition, see how many you can do with your knees bent.



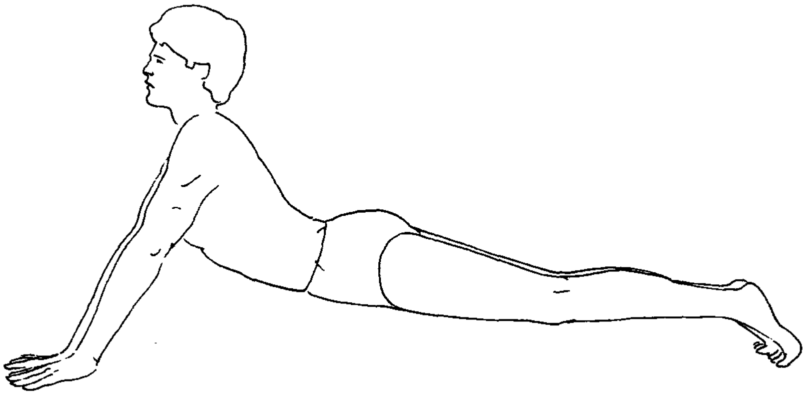


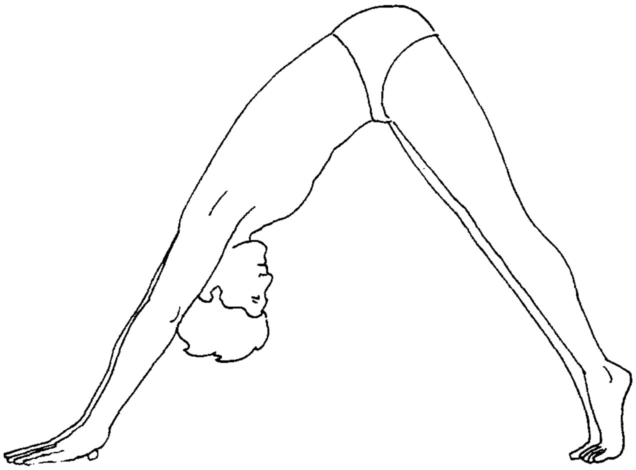
Rite Number Three. This rite should be done immediately after doing the second rite. Simply kneel on a flat surface with your hands by your sides, palms in. Lean forward, as far as you can without losing your balance. Be sure to touch your chin to your chest. Then lean backwards as far as you can, allowing your head to fall back. Repeat this as many times as you can, your goal being 21 repetitions.





Rite Number Four. Sit on a flat surface with your arms down at your sides so that the palms are flat on the ground. Now raise the body and bend the knees so that your torso becomes like a table to the supports of your arms and legs. Before pushing up, your chin should touch your chest. As you move up it should be allowed to gently move back. (See diagram). Return to original position. As with the other rites, your goal is 21 times.





Rite Number Five. Lay face down on the floor with the arms about two feet apart. Your legs should also be about two feet apart. Push the body, especially the hips, straight up as high as possible. Touch your chin to your chest. Now allow the body to come down to a sagging position with the head thrown back. Ideally you should not touch the ground, but if you must that is okay. Again, 21 repetitions is your goal. As with all of the other rites, allow yourself ten weeks to reach this goal.

REVIEW

The following questions are designed to help you determine if you have mastered the information in Lesson Five. Please try to answer them without looking at the text. The answers are in Appendix Two.

1. What are the qualities of elemental Water?
2. List five reasons for doing the Rose Cross Ritual.
3. When can you use the Rose Cross Ritual to replace the LBRP?
4. Ruach El-oh-heem (Holy Spirit) is represented by what Hebrew letter?
5. What three things can the past life experience be?
6. What is the Hebrew word for Karma?
7. What is "sitting sheeva?"
8. Before anything exists on the physical plane, where must it first exist?
9. List the 8 traditionally Chinese signs of health.

The following questions only you can answer.

1. Are you doing all of the necessary rituals?
2. Are you experimenting with the extra rituals and techniques?
3. Are you in control of elemental Water?
4. Have you made your chalice?
5. Have you dedicated yourself to a magickal way of life and the accomplishment of the Great Work by doing the ritual in this lesson?
6. What are your feelings on reincarnation?
7. Do you do some form of physical exercise?

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Bennett, Colin, Practical Time Travel, Aquarian, 1971.
Berg, Dr. Peter S., Wheels of a Soul, The, Research Center of the Kabalah, 1984.
Crowley, Aleister, Magick, Weiser, 1973.
Fortune, Dion, Sane Occultism, Aquarian, 1967.
Gilbert, R.A., Magical Mason, The, Aquarian, 1983.
Kelder, Peter, Eye of Revelation, The, 1939.
Regardie, Israel, Golden Dawn, The, Llewellyn, 1970.
Winkler, Gershon, Soul of the Matter, The, Judaica Press, 1982.
Zohar, The, 5 volumes, Soincino Press.

Lesson

6

PART ONE

In the last three lessons we have been examining the archetypal magickal elements. In this lesson we will continue the pattern by studying the last of the four elements, Fire. I remind you that there is a fifth element, Spirit. The reason it is not discussed in the same way as the other elements is because it is the source of the four archetypal elements. The way to come to know Spirit is by a thorough knowledge and understanding of Air, Earth, Fire and Water. The element Spirit is nothing less than the Spirit (Ruach, energy or Shakti) of Divinity. It is only through those manifestations of Divinity of which the Godhead wishes us to become aware that we can come to know the ultimate deity. The infinitude of the Divine Source of All is beyond the comprehension of our finite minds save the ways in which the Godhead chooses to be revealed to us.

According to the Sepher Yetzirah, Air emanated from Spirit, Primitive Water emanated from Air, and Fire emanated from Water. Earth comes from a division of the Primitive Water into Water and Earth, although some say it is a combination of the other three elements.

If you are not satisfied with your familiarity with any of the three previous elements, continue to work on the exercises for those elements for another week or two, and then as you will. But be sure to begin the exercises for Fire immediately.

The element of Fire has the qualities of being warm and dry.

The following exercises will help you to become more aware of this magickal element in your daily life.

EXERCISE 1. Observe those things around you which have the combined qualities of heat and dryness. Compare the heat and dryness of a fire to that of the Sun. Interestingly, the burning core of the Sun is frequently referred to as "plasma" and is spoken of in terms resembling the way water would be described (such as flowing). Steam has more fire than does ordinary water. Ordinary water has more fire in it than does ice. Thus, to a degree, fire and water can coexist. Yet, they are considered to be total opposites, and should be able to cancel each other out. How can they exist together when they should destroy each other? The answer is in the percentage of each. Much water destroys a little fire, and vice versa. But even a small amount of fire changes water and a small amount of water also has some effect on fire. Try to observe fire in its various combinations with the other elements around you. Keep a record of this in your magickal diary. Do this exercise daily for at least one week.

EXERCISE 2. Find a place which is extremely hot such as a desert or dry sauna (not a steam bath). If those are not possible, find a place where a roaring fire is going. Such a fire could be in a fireplace or a barbecue pit or grill. Remove all of your clothes (or as much of your clothes as is reasonable) and get as close to the heat source as possible without risking a burn. If you are on the desert, make sure that you have an extra heavy layer of sunscreen on any sensitive parts of the body which are exposed. This is especially true for the genitals and, if you are a woman, the breasts. These areas can become painful and hypersensitive when sunburned. This must be avoided.

Once you are in a situation where it is uncomfortably hot (but not painfully or unbearably so) and your perspiration is freely flowing, do the Relaxation Ritual. This may be difficult due to the heat, but it will test you to see how well you can do this ritual. Then focus on your breathing and feel the heat-laden air going in and out of your lungs.

As before, imagine your entire body is nothing more than an enormous breathing apparatus. Imagine that every part of your body only has the function of breathing and nothing else. Know that your skin is a vital part of this system. As you physically breathe in air, imagine that every pore in your body's skin is also breathing in heat and dryness: elemental Fire. Feel the Fire course through your body, cleansing and purifying. Then, as you exhale, feel it leave through your pores, taking with it the body's toxins, pains and sufferings. Repeat the pore breathing until you have mastered it.

Consecrating the Dagger

Caution: Only do this exercise next to a real fire or in a place like a desert once. Do not, under any circumstances, spend longer than 10 minutes doing this exercise in real heat. When doing this type of work it is all too likely that you may lose your sense of time. Have an alarm set to sound after ten minutes or have a friend come and pull you out of the heat. Immediately drink one or two large glasses of cool (not cold) water. Get out of or away from the heat. If you have physical problems dealing with heat, consult an M.D. before doing this. This caution is for your health and safety, and neither the author nor the publisher will be responsible for your errors in this exercise.

Remember, the purpose of this exercise is to pore-breathe the magickal element of Fire. It is not to get you burned to a cinder. After you have done this exercise once next to or in a real heat source, you may repeat it by imagining the heat. Do this at different times of the day and at different locations. Try it in the cool of the night and even in a rain. If you start to perspire, you are being successful. Practice this for up to a week initially, then as you will.

EXERCISE 3. Spend a period of up to three minutes, once a day, imagining that you are the element Fire. Feel the heat and your ability to transmit that heat. If you have a regular lover, ask him or her if your kisses are "hotter" (more on this later). Feel the dryness and as a result, perhaps, stop your perspiration if you are perspiring. Know what Fire feels like, what Fire is. Practice this exercise for one week.

EXERCISE 4. Now that you have learned to "be fire," the next step is to learn how to consciously control this magickal element. Take a moment and again imagine yourself to be fire. Bring the feelings you had in the last exercise into your awareness. Next, hold your hands 9-12 inches apart with the palms facing each other. Visualize between your hands a bottle, cylinder or small cask. Next, as you exhale, imagine all of the Fire element which is in you going out with your breath and being deposited in the container between your hands. Three to five times should be enough to fill it. If it gets too hot to "hold" between your hands, move your hands farther apart. Once it has been filled, simply observe it for a short space of time. Then, with three breaths, inhale it back into yourself and return to your normal consciousness. Spend about a week with this exercise.

The Test. Here is the simple self-test which will allow you to learn whether or not you have become not just in unison with the magickal element Fire, but also if you are its master. This test is to prove something to you, not to me or anyone else. If you do not pass the test, that is okay. It merely means that you need to do more work on the above exercises. Then you can take the test again. In fact, take the test as often as you wish. Just be sure to always record the results in your magickal diary.

The next time you feel as if you are bursting with an overload of energy, so much that it is hard to concentrate due to the fiery energy within you, try this: Form the container of fire as described in the previous exercise. Once you have done this, visualize a large "black hole" in the air in front of you. Now, "throw" the container of fire into the black hole and then see the hole close so that nothing can return. Do this "black holing" three times. Your excess energy should be gone, but you should have enough energy left to do your necessary tasks. Never do this black holing with fire more than three times in one day. Otherwise, you could become so drained that your physical body could be weakened. This could open you up to disease.

The next time you are feeling listless and have a total lack of energy (or for that matter, a lack of desire to do the necessary things in your life), form the fire container, but this time inhale all of the contents of the container. Within a few minutes you should feel energized and revitalized. Try this instead of your morning cup of coffee. If you find that you have too much energy, black hole the excess as already described.

When you have passed both parts of the test to your satisfaction you will know that you are the master of the magickal element Fire. In fact, since this is the last of the four elements, once you pass this test and have passed the other three as well, you will be a master of the elements. To prove this to yourself, here are some suggestions to try:

1. Sit in a room which has no air circulating. Light a candle and place it in the center of the room. Become one with the fire of the candle. Now, move the candle flame by your will, just as you might move your arm. For many people this is surprisingly easy.

2. Become one with the moisture (water) of a cloud. Now add fire to it so that it expands in all directions. The cloud should disappear.

3. On a windy day, find a high spot such as a hill or the top of a tall building. Become one with air until you can almost feel yourself going aloft. Then, start to bring some of the slowing power of Earth into you, and expand it into your environment. The wind should slow or cease in your area. Don't try this for the first time during a hurricane! Try it with a light breeze. Later you might want to try a storm.

You can probably come up with many more experiments to test your mastery of the magickal elements. Notice, however, that I am suggesting rather minor phenomena, not major changes in the environment. This is for two reasons. First, the test needs only to prove to you that you are capable of controlling the elements. Second, causing major changes in the environment is Grey Magick. To affect a large area means that you are interfering with the lives of other people as well as the plans of Mother Nature. You may want a dry day for your picnic and work to end a rain shower. To the farmer awaiting rain it could spell disaster, and ruin the farmer's life. It might also increase the prices for a grocer and even result in some people having to go on welfare to pay for the increased prices of food. A magician must never take his or her actions lightly, especially when they influence or might influence the lives of others.

PART TWO

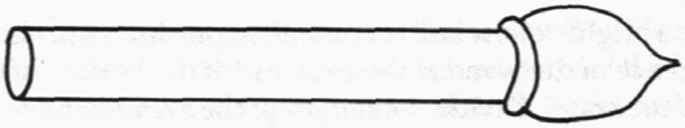
Now we come to the construction of the last of the elemental tools of the magician. It is perhaps the best-known tool of the magician, too. It is the wand. Even stage magicians use wands in their acts and perhaps no other magickal tool has caught the attention of the public more than the wand of the magician.

Curiously, many stage magicians dislike the idea of real magick. In England, they do not even call it "magic," but "conjuring." There a stage magician is called a "conjurer." But even they present a front of real magick. One of the most popular of "magical words" among stage magicians is Hocus Pocus. This is simply a slightly garbled version of the magickal part of the Catholic Mass where the priest holds the sacrament and says in Latin, "Hoc est corpus" (this is the body). Certainly the transformation of a wafer into a body is real magick at its highest.

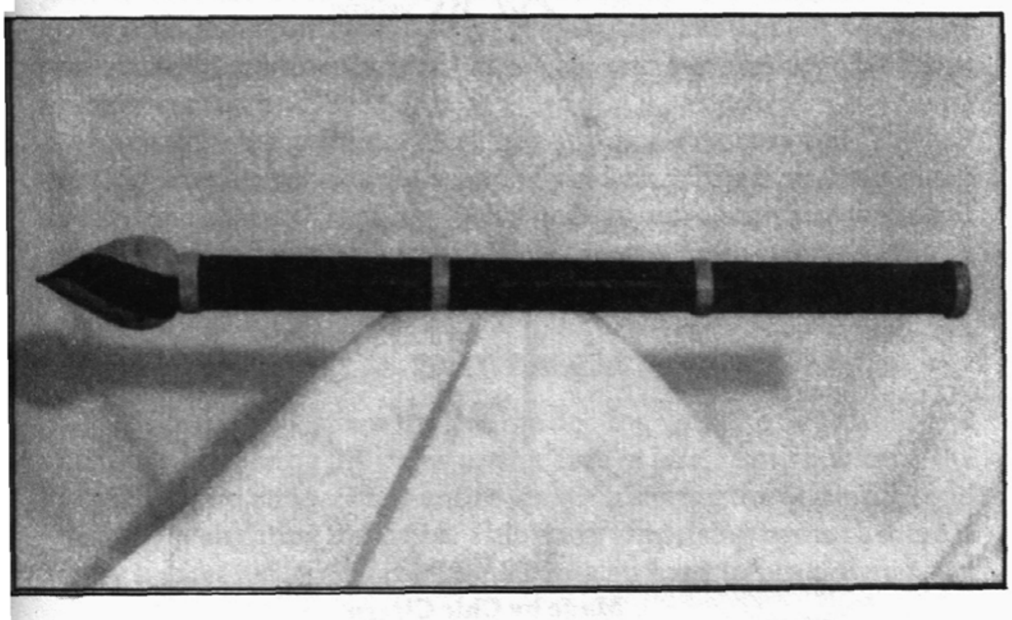
The wand is as closely identified with one who practices magick as Dr. Watson is with Sherlock Holmes. Yet, few people have ever seen a real Ceremonial Magician's Fire Wand. The wand is the tool for controlling or directing two things:

1. The magickal element of Fire.
2. The energy of the magician.

Look at the outline below. It is the outline of the shape of a true magician's wand. Does its outline look familiar? It is quite simply an image of an erect phallus! The energy mentioned above is the psycho-sexual energy which you have been learning to manipulate with the exercises and rituals in the first half of this course. Anyone who denies the psycho-sexual aspect of magick is either not telling the truth, is uninformed, or is not really a magician.

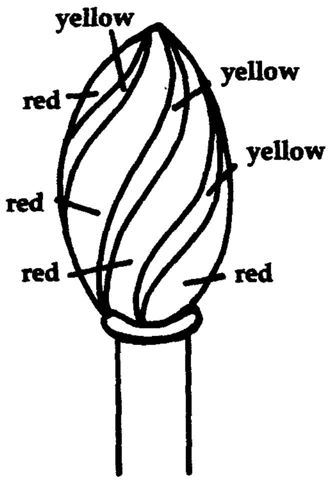


Those who practice magick under the traditions of Paganism, many of whom call themselves Witches, use the dagger as their primary weapon. The name used by many Pagans for this dagger is taken from a Kabalistic book, The Greater Key of Solomon. Ceremonial magicians, on the other hand, use a wand as their primary tool. It is not, however, the Fire Wand, but an even superior wand which will be described later in this lesson.



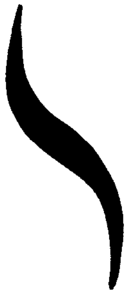
In the meantime, you will need to construct the Fire Wand. Make it out of a dowel. Make it any length and thickness you desire, but remember it must fit on your altar. Some lumber yards or hardware stores may have an end piece for furniture (known generally as a finial) called an "acorn." Attaching this to the end of the wand will yield a perfect shape. Otherwise you can carve a block of balsa wood and attach it to the end of the wand with glue and a dowel pin. If you have access to a lathe, it can be carved out of a thicker dowel. If you use two pieces of wood joined with glue, use two or three extra undercoats and then give it several coats of bright red paint. The multiple coats of paint will help to hold the pieces together. Let this paint dry very well.

Paint a bright yellow stripe one-half to one inch wide around the circumference of the wand at the base and at the bottom of the acorn section of the wand. Divide the length of the wand between the two stripes into three equal sections, and separate those sections with two more stripes. Thus, there should be a total of four yellow stripes and three sections of red paint, plus the top of the acorn (see diagram).



Fire Wand
Made by Chic Cicero

The acorn section should be decorated with elongated yellow "Yuds," the Hebrew letter, as shown below. There should be a total of three Yuds.



Elongated Yud

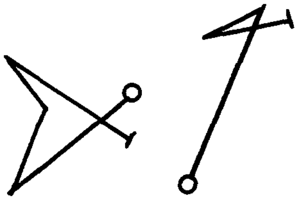
Finally, on the next page you will find a list of the Hebew names and sigils which should be painted on the red parts of the shaft of the wand with bright emerald green paint. If there is not enough room you can also use the red sections on the acorn. When finished, use several coats of a varathane-like product to protect the finish.

Some people insist that there should be a magnetized wire running the length of the wand. This is exceedingly difficult to do as it requires the drilling of a very long hole or splitting the wand and gluing it back together. If you wish to include the wire you might try getting a hollow piece of cane and putting in the wire. Or you could use a light-weight pipe. Then fill the remaining space with a combination of glue and sawdust. The North end of the magnetized wire (it repels the north pole of the compass) should be at the plain end of the wand. The wire should extend only 1/16" at the flat end and through the acorn finial or carved end.

Actually, the wire is not necessary. It represents the "tube of energy" which also goes through the phallus. While it can help direct energy, the shape of the Fire Wand itself is more than adequate. For more information on how to construct the wand you can read Wang's The Secret Temple.

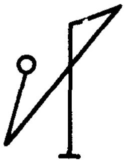
PART THREE

So far we have spent much time dealing with the Sephiroht and very little discussing the paths on the Tree of Life. Many books on the Kabalah spend almost their entire length covering the Sephiroht and ignoring or slighting the paths. This is not surprising because there is a very logical reason for the paths being so hard to pin down.



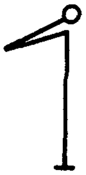
✓

יהוה צבאות
I. YHVH TZABAOTH



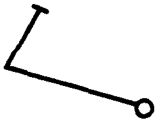
✓

מיכאל
II. MICHAEL



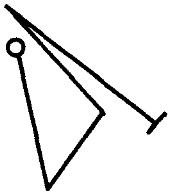
✓

אראל
III. ARAL



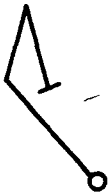
✓

שרף
IV. SERAPH



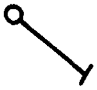
✓

פישון
V. PISON



✓

דרום
VI. DAROM



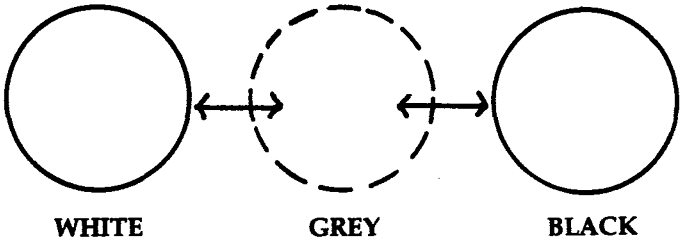
אש
VII. AESCH

VIII. THE MOTTO

The Hebrew and Sigils for the Fire Wand

The Sephiroht, in a sense, are waystations for the energy of Divinity (Ruach El-oh-heem) as it descends toward the Microcosm which is our Universe and our World. As this energy travels through the Tree of Life it changes and evolves (although its inner essence remains constant). By the time it reaches Mahl-koot it is at a level where humanity can deal with it on a day-to-day basis.

Just as the current "punctuated equilibrium" theory of evolution proposes jumps in evolution rather than changes at a steady rate, so too does the energy traversing the Tree of Life change neither slowly nor evenly. In its path from its ultimate pure form to the physical manifestations around us, it changes until it reaches the utmost point of a certain level or quality. Then it goes in a different direction.



In the diagram above you can see how a form of vibrational energy, color, changes from white to black. It can definitely be said that within the circle labeled "white" it looks white, and in the circle labeled "black" it appears black. But what about in between? Where is it pure grey? Where is it light grey? To complicate matters even more, two people seeing the same shade of grey might label it differently.

This is exactly the problem faced when trying to understand and describe the paths on the Tree. The Sephiroht in some Kabalistic literature are called the "vessels." These vessels hold the energy of Divinity until it reaches a maximum in some direction. As an example, the Sephira Gih-boo-rah represents the ultimate manifestation of the strength of the Godhead as typified by the astrological qualities of the planet Mars. Page after page could be spent discussing the Strength of Divinity. But how does one describe the changing energy between Strength and Beauty, between Gih-boo-rah and Tih-fehr-et? It is far more difficult.

It is for this reason that a good Tarot reading can be done using only the Major Arcana of the Tarot. They are associated with the paths on the Tree and thus demonstrate the changing energies in a person's life. The Minor Arcana are associated with the Sephiroht and are thus more related to static situations. The Minor Arcana adds more details. The Major Arcana gives more information as to the direction of a person's life and the forces in play about that life.

The very fact that the paths represent changing energy patterns make them difficult to describe. Later, through the process known as "Path Working," you will learn for yourself the changing qualities of the paths and how they apply to you. For now, however, we will merely look at some of the important correspondences for the paths on the Tree of Life.

On pages 245, 247 and 249 you will find lists of Kabalistic Correspondences for the paths. There are 22 paths numbered from 11 to 32. The first ten "paths" are actually the ten Sephiroht. This, then, points out a preliminary problem in dealing with the paths: their numerations. As I have said, the paths are traditionally numbered from 11 to 32. However, each path is also associated with a Hebrew letter. Since each Hebrew letter also has an associated number, there are, so far, two numbering schemas for the paths. Notice that the unusual numbering system for the Hebrew letters seems to be a mixture between Roman numerals and the Arabic numerals we commonly use.

Spelled out: Three hundred forty-seven.
Roman numerals: CCCXLVII (three hundreds, plus fifty, minus ten, plus five, plus two).
Hebrew numerals: Shin, Mehm, Zy-in (three hundred plus forty plus seven).
Arabic numerals: 347.

Perhaps, then, Hebrew (or its source) is a basis for the numbers we use today.

Of course, the ancient Hebrews did not have separate symbols for their numbers. Each letter also represented a number. We will discuss more of this in a later lesson.

But for now it is enough to see that the 11th path is also the first of Aleph path. The 22nd path is also the 30th or Lah-med path. The 30th path is also the 200th or Resh path.

Note also that the Major Arcana cards, being associated with the paths, also use their numbers to identify the paths. Thus, the 19th path is also the 8th or Strength path. The 30th path is also the 19th or Sun path. We can come up with some rather unusual looking "equations"

KABALISTIC CORRESPONDENCES

The Paths—Part 1

Path	Hebrew Number & Letter			Meaning	Tarot Number & Name		K.S. Colors
11	1	Aleph	א	Ox	0	The Fool	Bright, Pale Yellow
12	2	Bet	ב	House	1	The Magician	Yellow
13	3	Gimmel	ג	Camel	2	The High Priestess	Blue
14	4	Dallet	ד	Door	3	The Empress	Emerald Green
15	5	Heh	ה	Window	4	The Emperor	Scarlet Red
16	6	Vahv	ו	Nail	5	The Hierophant	Red Orange
17	7	Zy-in	ז	Sword	6	The Lovers	Orange
18	8	Chet	ח	Fence	7	The Chariot	Amber
19	9	Teht	ט	Serpent	8	Strength	Yellow, Greenish
20	10	Yud	י	Hand	9	The Hermit	Green, Yellowish
21	20	Kaph	כ	Palm	10	Wheel of Fortune	Violet
22	30	Lahmed	ל	Ox Goad	11	Justice	Emerald Green
23	40	Mehm	מ	Water	12	The Hanged Man	Deep Blue
24	50	Nun	נ	Fish	13	Death	Green Blue
25	60	Sah-mech	ס	Prop	14	Temperance	Blue
26	70	Eye-in	ע	Eye	15	The Devil	Indigo
27	80	Peh	פ	Mouth	16	The Tower	Scarlet Red
28	90	Tzah-dee	צ	Fish Hook	17	The Star	Violet
29	100	Koph	ק	Back of Head	18	The Moon	Crimson (Ultra-Violet)
30	200	Resh	ר	Head	19	The Sun	Orange
31	300	Shin	ש	Tooth	20	Judgement	Glowing Orange Scarlet
32	400	Tahv	ת	Cross	21	The Universe	Indigo

Note: When five of the letters occur at the end of a word they have a different appearance and value. Final Kaph ך=500; Final Mehim ם=600; Final Nun ן=700; Final Peh ף=800; and Final Tzah-dee ץ=900. But this is not important for our purposes here.

which, if you know the secret, make perfect sense. Otherwise they are undecipherable:

Path #		Hebrew		Tarot #
17	=	7	=	6
23	=	40	=	12
32	=	400	=	21

I mention this multiple numeration system here not because it is vital to this course (although we will be making good use of it later), but because so many advanced books throw numbers around left and right, and a beginner could quite easily get lost. Remember, one of the goals of this course is to allow you to read any kabalistic work, and, if it is logical and based on tradition, understand it.

The first column of Correspondences (page 245) is the path number. This followed by the number of the Hebrew letter, the Hebrew letter's name, and the way it appears. This is followed by a translation of the meaning of each of the Hebrew letters. Where I have spelled out the name of the letter, I have done so in a way that you can see how it is pronounced. As an example of this, Zy-in, meaning sword, is frequently spelled "Zain." This leads to people pronouncing it "Zane," which is incorrect. The next column has the number and names of the Major Arcana cards of the Tarot.

In the final column on the first page of Correspondences are the King Scale (K.S.) colors for the paths on the Tree of Life. As you should remember, there are four scales of colors associated with the four Kabalistic Worlds. They are identified with names of the face cards of the Tarot: Princess, Prince, Queen and King. The Sephiroht are, for our purposes, colored according to the Queen Scale. The Paths follow the King Scale colorings. This keeps the inherent sexual balance within the Tree. It also points to the moving energy (archetypal male) of the paths and the contained energy (archetypal female) of the Sephiroht. When a Tree is colored according to this combined system it is called the "Minitum Mundum" or Little World. It will be an important focus of our later work, so you should consider doing one in a very large size. When so done it is referred to as "The Temple Diagram."

Although not vital to the purposes of our course, it would certainly benefit you to color in Trees of Life in each of the color scales. A complete list of these can be found in Regardie's The Golden Dawn or

KABALISTIC CORRESPONDENCES

The Paths—Part 2

Path	Astrology	Animal	Plant
11	Air	Eagle	Aspen
12	Mercury	Swallow, Ibis, Ape	Vervain
13	Luna	Dog	Almond, Mugwort
14	Venus	Sparrow, Dove, Swan	Myrtle, Rose, Clover
15	Aries	Ram, Owl	Tiger lily, Geranium
16	Taurus	Bull	Mallow
17	Gemini	Magpie	Orchid
18	Cancer	Crab, Turtle	Lotus
19	Leo	Lion	Sunflower
20	Virgo	Virgin, Hermit, Anchorite	Snowprop, Lily, Narcissus
21	Jupiter	Eagle	Hyssop, Oak, Poplar
22	Libra	Elephant	Aloe
23	Water	Eagle, Snake, Scorpion	Lotus
24	Scorpio	Scorpion, Beetle	Cactus
25	Sagittarius	Centaur, Horse	Rush
26	Capricorn	Goat, Ass	Hemp, Orchis Root, Thistle
27	Mars	Horse, Bear, Wolf	Absinthe, Rue
28	Aquarius	Man, Eagle	Cocoanut
29	Pisces	Fish, Dolphin	Unicellular Organisms
30	Sun	Lion, Sparrowhawk	Sunflower, Laurel, Heliotrope
31	Fire	Lion	Red Poppy, Hibiscus
32	Saturn	Crocodile	Ash, Yew, Cypress

Crowley's 777.

The second page of Correspondences (p. 247) for the paths begins again with a listing of the path numbers. This is followed by Astrological listings of the planets and the constellation signs plus Air, Water and Fire, the three primary elements according to the Sepher Yetzirah. The next column consists of various animals, both real and imaginary, associated with the plants. An Anchorite was an early Christian Hermit. The other animal names should be clear. Their importance to you will become obvious in a later lesson. So, too, will the next column of Magickal plants. Note that associated with the 29th path are unicellular organisms, which are not animals, but plants.

The third page of path correspondences (p. 249) begins again with the path numbers. The next two columns which associate Stones and Scents or Perfumes with the paths should be clear. The final column lists the Magickal Tools or Weapons. Going from top to bottom we find that the Girdle is listed as a Magickal tool. This is not a device made to hold in a too-large stomach. Rather, it is an ornament which surrounds the waist and which is associated with Venus. It can be used for blindfolding and for fascination rituals. The Horns are frequently worn in Pagan ceremonies to represent the power of the masculine aspect of the deity. Thus, it shows outgoing, archetypal masculine power. The Burin is a tool like an ice pick and is used to carve talismans from wax as well as having other carving duties.

The Preparations are exactly that. The time you put into preparation for a magickal ritual and the time you put in studying to become a practitioner of the magickal arts, is in itself a magickal technique. A tripod was traditionally used to support the incense burner. A furnace is here used in alchemical sense. It means a place of work.

The Disciplines are those which you must go through to be able to do magick. The Cross of Equilibrium or Solar Cross is a symbol of your balancing of nature. The Obligation is the vow you take when you are initiated or in your personal dedication.

The idea of pain being a magickal tool may surprise you, but it is true. I am not talking here about flagellation or other forms of bodily abuse, although some people involve this type of pain in their magickal work. The pain here is more psychological in nature. There will come a time when you will have to decide if the magickal path is correct for you. If you choose the magickal life you will find that huge vistas of non-physical experience will be opened to you along with the

The Paths—Part 3

Path	Stones	Scents	Tools
11	Topaz, Chalcedony	Galbanum	Dagger, Fan
12	Opal, Agate	Mastic, White Sandal, Mace, Storax	Wand or Caduceus
13	Moonstone, Pearl, Crystal	Camphor, Aloes	Bow & Arrow
14	Emerald, Turqoise	Sandalwood, Myrtle	Girdle
15	Ruby	Dragon's Blood	Horns, Burin
16	Topaz	Storax	Preparations
17	Alexandrite, Tourmaline	Wormwood	Tripod
18	Amber	Onycha	Furnace
19	Cat's Eye	Olibanum	Disciplines
20	Peridot	Narcissus	Lamp & Wand, Bread
21	Amethyst, Lapis Lazuli	Saffron	Sceptre
22	Emerald	Galbanum	Cross of Equilibrium
23	Beryl, Aquamarine	Onycha	Cup & Cross, Wine
24	Snakestone	Benzoin	Obligation, Pain
25	Jacinth	Lignum Aloes	Arrow
26	Black Diamond	Musk, Civet	The Secret Force, The Lamp
27	Ruby	Pepper, Dragon's Blood	The Sword
28	Artificial Glass	Galbanum	Censer, Aspergillus
29	Pearl	Ambergris	Magick Mirror
30	Crysoleth	Olibanum, Cinnamon	Bow & Arrow
31	Fire Opal	Olibanum	Wand or Lamp
32	Onyx	Assafoetida, Sulphur	Sickle

love of Divinity showering upon your head. But most people in this world, no matter their professed spiritual beliefs, are die-hard materialists at heart. They cannot keep up with you because they will either fear to do so or refuse to do so. As a result, you may find yourself drifting away from some friends and loved ones. This can be very painful. But those who follow spiritual, magickal paths must go their own way. Choose this path and you may know pain and loss, but the rewards will far exceed the costs. Why else would so many people strive to become magicians? At this point, spend a few moments studying the meaning of the Hanged Man before continuing with this lesson.

The Secret Force is what is commonly known as Kundalini or Ruach or Chi. An Aspergillis is the device used to sprinkle sanctified water. For deeper information on these Magickal Tools, read Crowley's 777 and/or his Book 4 Part II.

At this time it is not necessary to memorize these correspondences, but you should become familiar with them. In some instances there are several associations in one category for each path. It would also be a good idea to make up several filled-in Trees of Life, including the correspondences with the ten Sephiroht given in an earlier lesson.

PART FOUR

Remember that magick is both an art and science. In this part we are going to be studying the basic preparation for all grey magick rituals. So, in a sense, this is the equivalent of a scientist preparing to perform an experiment. As you will see, it employs aspects of the Supreme Pentagram Ritual learned in the last lesson.

Let me repeat, what you are learning here will be used in all of the grey magick rituals which are to follow.

First, however, you need to make five items. For this, get four pieces of poster board at least 8½ x 11 inches. A bigger size would be better. Paint one bright green, another bright orange, another bright purple and the last bright silver. Once these have dried, paint a large bright red triangle on the green board and a bright blue triangle on the orange board. On the purple board paint a bright yellow triangle with a line across it parallel to the base line of the triangle. Paint a similar figure on the silver board with flat (not glossy) black paint (see the diagrams on page 251).

These are going to be your four elemental tablets. Once dry they should be framed and hung in your temple. The one with the red Fire triangle should be in the South. The one with the blue Water triangle should be in the West. The one with the yellow Air symbol should be in the East. The card with the black Earth symbol should be in the North. Unless otherwise noted, have these on the walls in all future rituals, including your daily rituals.

The last of the five items you will need to make is the Tablet of Union. This comes from the magickal system known as Enochian (Ee-noh-kee-yan). This system was discovered by Dr. John Dee (astrologer to Queen Elizabeth I) and his assistant, the mysterious, roguish Edward Kelly. Kelly, who always wore a hat pulled over his head to hide the fact that his ears had been cut off in punishment for a crime, functioned as Dee's seer in a series of magickal experiments in 1581. The result of those experiments is the much talked about and little understood system known as Enochian.

I do not claim to be anything close to an expert in this particular system, but I do know that certain rituals which incorporate Enochian symbolism and techniques are very powerful. There seems to be a magickal quality to the very sounds of the mysterious words.

The Tablet of Union represents the fact that your altar functions as the place where the four magickal elements meet, come together, are united. To make it you simply get a heavy piece of paper or cardboard and make a rectangle four units tall by five units wide. I do not specify the size of the units because you need to make it to fit in the center of the altar. Outline the spacings so the card is filled by 20 boxes: five across and four up and down. This should be done with very dark, black ink. The paper should be white. Fill in the card as below:

E	X	A	R	P
H	C	O	M	A
N	A	N	T	A
B	I	T	O	M

The letters, like the lines, should be as dark as possible. EXARP is the Enochian or Angelic name for the Spirit of Air. HCOMA is the one for the Spirit of Water. NANTA is the name of the Spirit of Earth, which leaves BITOM as the name for the Spirit of Fire. If you can, have the Tablet of Union laminated with a plastic coating or put it in a small frame.

Set up your altar with the Tablet of Union in the center so when you are behind the altar (west of the altar facing east) you can read the Tablet. On each side of the Tablet should be one of the elemental tools you have made. To the east place the Air Dagger. To the south place the Fire Wand. To the west place the Water Cup, and to the north place the Earth Pentacle. There should be water in the Cup.

You will also need another dagger with which to do the LBRP. Candles to light the area are also nice, along with some incense burning. These items can be placed on tables around your area or on the floor. Be sure they will harm nothing nor start a fire. Prepare yourself for this ritual as described for the LBRP, and begin. . .

THE WATCHTOWER RITUAL

STEP ONE. If you have a bell, sound it 10 times thusly:

/// //// ///

Each mark (/) represents a striking of the bell so that in this case you have a 3-4-3 pattern. If you do not have a bell, sound the pattern by striking the top of the altar with the end of the handle of the dagger you are going to use for the LBRP. Then, in a loud, imperious tone, say:

HEKAS, HEKAS ESTE BEBELOI!

This is pronounced "hay-kahs, hay-kahs, ehs-tee bee-beh-loy!" It is a traditional way of announcing that a ritual is about to begin and those (both physical and non-physical) not entitled to witness it should leave the area.

STEP TWO. Sound the bell (or knock) once. Then do the LBRP.

STEP THREE. Sound the bell (or knock) two times. Then do the BRH.

THE OPENING BY WATCHTOWER

STEP FOUR. Sound the bell (knock) ~~nine times~~: /// /// ///

STEP FIVE. Always walking clockwise, go to the south of the altar. Take the Fire Wand and wave it three times, once each to the left, right, then center while facing the south and the elemental sigil there. Now hold the wand with the point up over your head and slowly walk once around the room in a clockwise direction, saying:

> And when, after all the phantoms have vanished, thou shalt see that holy and formless Fire, that fire which darts and flashes through the hidden depths of the universe, hear thou the voice of Fire.

By this time you should be back at the South. Facing in that direction, trace a large circle, clockwise in the air. Visualize it golden. In this circle draw a bright blue invoking pentagram of fire as described in the last lesson. Form the sign for Leo (the Fire Kerub) in the center. Now point to the center with the wand and say:

OIP TEAA PEDOCE

which is pronounced "Oh-ee-pay Teh-ah-ah Peh-doh-kay." The words are three holy names for Fire in Enochian. Now hold the wand up in the air and say:

> In the names and letters of the Great Southern Quadrangle, I invoke ye, ye angels of the Watchtower of the South.

Now spend a few moments visualizing and feeling the pure elemental Fire-filled energy from this side of your circle. Replace the Wand on the altar.

STEP SIX. Move to the West and take the Water Cup from the altar. Face the west and sprinkle some of the water with your fingers to the left, right and middle of the Elemental symbol which is there. Hold the Cup on high and circumambulate once in a clockwise direction, saying:

> So therefore first, the priest who governeth the works of Fire must sprinkle with the lustral water of the loud resounding sea.

Now that you are back facing west, use the Cup to trace a large golden circle in the air and inside of it draw an electric blue invoking Water Pentagram. In the center of this draw the Eagle Kerub. Point to the center, saying:

MPH ARSEL GAIOL

These Holy Enochian Names ruling Water are pronounced "Ehm-pay-hay ahr-sell gah-ee-ohl." Then, holding the Cup high in the air, say:

> In the names and letters of the Great Western Quadrangle, I invoke ye, ye angels of the Watchtower of the West.

Now spend a few moments visualizing and feeling the pure elemental Watery energy from this side of your magickal circle. Replace the Cup on the altar.

STEP SEVEN. Walk clockwise to the east of the altar, take up the Air Dagger and turn outward to where your elemental sigil is placed. Shake the Dagger three times, once to the left, right and center of the elemental sign. Hold the Dagger on high and walk around the altar once, saying:

> Such a Fire existeth, extending through the rushing of Air. Or even a Fire formless, whence cometh the image of a voice. Or even a flashing light, abounding, revolving, whirling forth, crying aloud.

By this time you should be back at the east. Facing east, use the Dagger to trace a large golden circle. Inside the circle draw a bright blue Invoking Pentagram of Air. In the space in the center of the Pentagram draw the sign of Aquarius, representing the Air Kerub. With the Dagger point to the center and say:

ORO IBAH AOZPI

which is pronounced "Oh-row ee-bah-hah ah-oh-zohd-pee." Now hold the Dagger on high with its point up and say:

> In the names and letters of the Great Eastern Quadrangle, I invoke ye, ye angels of the Watchtower of the East.

Now spend a few moments appreciating the power of pure elemental Air coming from this direction. Return the Dagger to its place.

STEP EIGHT. Walk clockwise to the north of the altar. Take the pentacle and, facing north, shake the pentacle three times, once left, right and center, toward the Earth symbol outside the Magickal Circle. Remember to hold it by the black section. Now hold the pentacle on high and say as you circumambulate once:

> Stoop not down into that darkly splendid world wherein continually lieth a faithless depth and Hades wrapped in gloom, delighting in unintelligible images, precipitous, winding: A black ever-rolling abyss, ever espousing a body unluminous, formless and void.

On returning to the north use the Pentacle to make a golden circle as before, only place inside it a bright blue Invoking Pentagram of Earth. Inside of that place the image of the Earth Kerub which is the Astrological sign of Taurus. Point to the center with the Pentacle and say:

EMOR DIAL HECTEGA

Pronounced "Ee-mohr dee-ahl hec-tey-gah." Again hold the Pentacle on high and say:

> In the names and letters of the Great Northern Quadrangle, I invoke ye, ye angels of the Watchtower of the North.

Now spend a few moments sensing the great Earthly power which comes from this direction. Replace the Pentacle. Move in a clockwise direction to the West and face east from behind the altar.

active
Passive part)

STEP NINE. Over the altar and the Tablet of Union, make the sign known as the "Rending of the Veil." This is done by making the sign of the Enterer (left foot forward as hands thrust out), but do it with the palms together. Then separate your hands as if you were parting some make pentagram with rose or [illegible] [illegible].

curtains (or rending a veil). Say:

> OL SONUF VAORSAGI GOHO IADA BALTA.
> ELEXARPEH COMANANU TABITOM.
> ZODAKARA EKA ZODAKARE OD ZODAMERANU.
> ODO KIKLE QAA PIAP PIAMOEL OD VAOAN.

This means "I reign over you, says the God of Justice. (Three Magickal Names who rule over the Tablet of Union.) Move, therefore, move and appear. Open the mysteries of creation: balance, righteousness and truth." It is pronounced in this manner: "Oh-ell soh-noof vay-oh-air-sah-jee goh-hoh ee-ah-dah bahl-tah. El-ex-ar-pay-hay Co-mah-nah-noo Tah-bee-toh-ehm. Zohd-ah-kah-rah eh-kah zohd-ah-kah-ray oh-dah zohd-ah-mehr-ah-noo oh-doh kee-klay kah-ah pee-ah-pay pee-ah-moh-ehl oh-dah vay-oh-ah-noo." The boldfaced words of power should be vibrated in the usual manner.

STEP TEN. Now say:

> I invoke ye, ye angels of the celestial spheres, whose dwelling is in the invisible. Ye are the guardians of the gates of the universe. Be ye also the guardians of this mystic sphere. Keep far removed the evil and the unbalanced. Strengthen and inspire me so that I may preserve unsullied this abode of the mysteries of the eternal gods. Let my sphere be pure and holy so that I may enter in and become a partaker of the secrets of the light divine.

Now spend a few moments trying to sense and balance the four Magickal Elements here at the center of your circle.

STEP ELEVEN. Now move to the northeast corner, facing outward, and say:

> The visible Sun is the dispenser of light to the Earth. Let me therefore form a vortex in this chamber that the invisible Sun of the spirit may shine therein from above.

STEP TWELVE. Now circumambulate three times around your circle. Each time you pass the east make the sign of the Enterer in the direction you are going. That is, you don't point to the east to give the sign, you do it straight ahead of you. As you move around, visualize and feel the building up of a powerful vortex of energy. (Some people like to do this quickly, others like to form these circles of power slowly. Try both and see which is more effecftive for you.) After you make the third pass of the east, go to the west of the altar and face east.

STEP THIRTEEN. Give the sign of the Enterer and say:

Holy art Thou, Lord of the universe.

Give the sign of the Enterer again and say:

Holy art Thou, whom nature hath not formed.

Give the sign of the Enterer once again and say:

Holy art Thou, the vast and mighty One.
Lord of the light and of the darkness.

Now give the sign of Silence (stamp left foot as you bring your left forefinger to your lips as if telling someone to hush.

STEP FOURTEEN. Do your Grey Magick.

STEP FIFTEEN. When you have finished your magickal work, say:

Unto thee, sole wise, sole eternal and sole merciful One, be the praise and glory forever, who has permitted me who now standeth humbly before Thee to enter this far into the sanctuary of the mysteries. Not unto me but unto Thy name be the glory. Let the influence of Thy divine ones descend upon my head, and teach me the value of self-sacrifice so that I shrink not in the hour of trial, but that thus my name may be written on high and my genius stand in the presence of the holy ones.

THE CLOSING BY WATCHTOWER

STEP SIXTEEN. Now circumambulate three times counterclockwise, giving the sign of the Enterer in the direction you are going as you pass the East. As you do this reverse circumambulation, feel the energy you have gathered dissipate.

STEP SEVENTEEN. Do the LBRP.

STEP EIGHTEEN. Do the BRH.

STEP NINETEEN. Say:

I now release any spirits that may have been imprisoned by this ceremony. Depart in peace to your abodes and habitations, and go with the blessings of

YEH-HAH-SHU-AH YEH-HOH-VAH-SHA

Vibrate the above two names.

STEP TWENTY. Ring bell (knock) ten times: /// //// ///. Say:

I now declare this temple duly closed.

Knock (do not ring bell) once.

The ritual is over.

Now, before you tear these pages into little bits and decide to abandon Magick forever because it is so complicated, stop for just a second and notice that this time I have not included a summary. This is because for this ritual you should make up your own summaries. Instead of using regular-sized paper, I used 4x5 index cards. I was able to fit the entire ritual on both sides of three cards. It looks much longer than it really is because of all the added instructions I have given you here. In practice, it takes little more than ten minutes if the LBRP and BRH are memorized.

When you are making up your summaries or cards, be sure to go over how the invoking pentagrams are made. This was described in the last lesson. The Watchtower Ritual is a potent preparation for any Magickal ritual.

Some of you may be familiar with the version published by Israel Regardie in his book, Ceremonial Magick. I must warn you, however, that that book is filled with many errors. This can be verified by checking what is printed in that book against both Regardie's The Golden Dawn and Laycock's Complete Enochian Dictionary. For those of you looking for a good introduction to the Golden Dawn version of Enochian Magick I suggest Gerald Schueler's book, Enochian Magic.

As long as you stay with the Enochian material as presented in this course, you will be able to use it safely and effectively. The material, as presented here, has been tested and practiced for almost 100 years. If you investigate this form of magick further, I urge extreme caution. Some people claim that the reason Aleister Crowley was unsuccessful in his lifetime was because of errors he may have made when doing the "Enochian Calls" form of this magickal system. In any event, the main thrust of this course is toward the Kabalah and not Enochiana.

At this point in your studies it would be a good idea to practice this ritual at least once a week. Notice that I said, practice this ritual, not perform it. Separate it into sections and go over each section several times until you are very familiar with it. It would be best if you could memorize this ritual as it will be a major focus of all the practical or grey magick work which is to follow.

At this point, however, it is not necessary to perform it and work with it over and over as you (should) have been doing with the LBRP, the BRH, the Middle Pillar, the Circulation of the Body of Light, and the Tarot Contemplation Ritual. This is because two other things are needed.

First, the instruments or tools need the appropriate preparation. In a sense, they need to be initiated or dedicated to magickal service. Second, a final, ultimate magickal tool is needed. This ultimate tool must have some sort of universality in its nature so that it can virtually be used for any purpose as opposed to the elemental tools which represent certain singular qualitites. It is with this ultimate tool that the four elemental weapons will be energized, charged and consecrated to their sacred, magickal tasks. More on this tool in a moment.

Meanwhile, it would be a good idea to spend some time thinking about how the Watchtower Ritual could be done with a group. The exact division of parts must be determined by the number of people who will be working with you. If you have at least four people in your group, each person can represent one of the elements throughout the Ceremony. If there are five people, four can represent the elements and the fifth can do the other sections of the ritual which are not totally related to one of the elements; that one person should sit in the East when not actively involved in the Ceremony. This person can be the leader of the group (at least during the Ceremony), and should not take part in the circumambulations. This person represents spiritual wisdom and Light. Light rises, like the sun, from the East, so this person (representing Light) sits while the others circumambulate. As they pass, they salute with the sign of the Enterer in the direction they are going, not to the person. The respect is toward the philosophy and the sacred, secret science of Light, not to a person.

PART FIVE

There is virtually no way to make a single tool which can work with the four elemental forces. Water would counteract the energies of elemental Fire, just as Air and Earth are also antithetical to each other. Therefore, to make a truly universal tool, another basis is needed.

A possible thought would be to make a tool based on the Tarot cards. The problem with this is that it would require a minimum of 22 and possibly 26 (22 Major Arcana plus one for each suit) or more sections. Such a tool would be either too large to be practical or have symbols or sections too small to be useful.

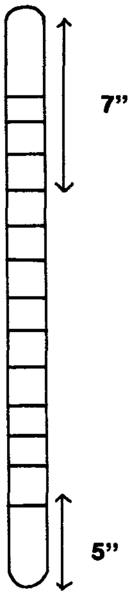
The solution to this problem is to use astrological symbolism. This brings our symbols down to 12, one for each of the signs of the zodiac. To this we add two more for practical purposes as you will see. The Golden Dawn associated this with Egyptian symbolism for the design of a fairly difficult-to-construct Lotus Wand. By removing only the Egyptian aspect, the lotus flower, we are left with our main tool for the performance of practical or Grey Magick: the Rainbow Wand.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE RAINBOW WAND

1. Start with a piece of dowel 3/8"-3/4" in diameter. Judge the best diameter by holding various dowels and sensing which size "feels" best in your right hand (even if you are left-handed). Cut your chosen dowel to 36¼" in length. With sandpaper, round the ends so that the final length is exactly 36 inches. Now lightly sand the rest of your future wand to take off any surface dirt or uneven surfaces. Give the entire wand a white undercoat. Following the directions on your paints, wait the appropriate length of time, then give it a second white undercoat.

2. Measure seven inches from one of the ends. At this point make a dark but narrow black line around the wand. Two inches further from this line (9" from the end), make another black line. Continue making thin black lines until you have drawn a total of 13 lines. The image of your wand at this point is that you have at one end a space of seven inches, at the other end a space of slightly under five inches, and between these two areas twelve spaces of two inches each. A simple way to get straight lines around your wand is by taking a small card, wrapping it around the circumference of the wand at the appropriate area, and using the edge of the card for a guide.

3. Paint the seven inches the brightest white you can find. Paint the five-inch space the darkest black you can find. Paint the rest of the wand as illustrated below:



White	Spirit
Red	Aries
Red-orange	Taurus
Orange	Gemini
Amber	Cancer
Yellow	Leo
Yellow-green	Virgo
Emerald	Libra
Green-blue	Scorpio
Blue	Sagittarius
Indigo	Capricorn
Violet	Aquarius
Crimson	Pisces
Black	Earth

4. Finish by coating the colors with a protective coat such as varathane. In fact, give it several coats of the clear protective. Also, try to find the brightest colors possible for painting this wand. Each color should positively glow.

PRELIMINARY PREPARATION OF THE RAINBOW WAND

1. When doing your daily ritual practice, hold the Rainbow Wand by the white section while doing the Middle Pillar Ritual and the Circulation of the Body of Light.

2. At this point, always hold the Rainbow Wand vertically. The white end should be up; the black end should be down.

3. Upon completion of this practice, wrap the Rainbow Wand in white silk or cotton. Do not use wool or synthetics. Place the wand in a safe place where no one else will touch it.

4. It would also be a good idea to sleep with the Rainbow Wand in your bed next to you. Make sure that the white end of the wand is toward your head.

5. It is in these ways that the wand slowly absorbs the energy you have been controlling and becomes a magickal part of you. Similarly, you become a magickal part of it. Magickally, it more than represents you, it is your magickal counterpart.

The symbolism of the Rainbow Wand is both obvious and deep. First, we can see that white, the color used to represent the element of Spirit, also undercoats the entire wand. It is the basis for everything, even the darkness at the other end of the wand. If there was no light, how could you tell when it was dark?

Second, notice that the color spectrum, the rainbow, only occupies the center part of the wand. In a similar manner, the Wand, as a representation of our magickal power, takes us beyond the physical realms represented by the visible spectrum.

Third, the number of black lines is 13, the number of unity according to Gematria. As such, it also represents a link to the unitary Divinity, to God.

Once you have spent at least one month working with your Rainbow Wand as described above, you will be ready to consecrate it to magickal purposes. Be sure you work with it for at least one month before doing the following consecration.

THE CONSECRATION OF THE RAINBOW WAND

STEP ONE. Do the Watchtower Ritual up to Step Fourteen. Your Rainbow Wand should be resting on the altar with the other tools. Its white end should be facing the East.

Imagine that you are standing on the face of a clock. Twelve faces east, 3 faces south, 6 faces west and 9 faces north. Facing east, take the Rainbow Wand by the red band in your left hand. Since this belongs to Aries, a Fire sign, take the tool of Fire, the Fire Wand, in your right hand. Hold both above you and say:

> The heaven is above and the Earth is beneath. Between the light and the dark do vibrate the colors of life. I supplicate the powers and forces governing the nature, place and authority of the sign ARIES, by the majesty of the divine name YUD HEH VAHV HE, with which, in Earth life and

CHART FOR RAINBOW WAND CONSECRATION

	Color	Tool	Sign	YHVH	Letter	Tribe	Angel
1	Red	Wand	Aries	YHVH	Heh	Gad	Melchidael
2	Red-orange	Pentacle	Taurus	YHHV	Vahv	Ephraim	Asmodel
3	Orange	Dagger	Gemini	YVHH	Zy-in	Manasseh	Ambriel
4	Amber	Cup	Cancer	HVHY	Chet	Issachar	Muriel
5	Yellow	Wand	Leo	HVYH	Teht	Judah	Verchiel
6	Yellow-green	Pentacle	Virgo	HHVY	Yud	Napthali	Hamaliel
7	Emerald	Dagger	Libra	VHYH	Lah-med	Asshur	Zuriel
8	Green-blue	Cup	Scorpio	VHHY	Noon	Dan	Barchiel
9	Blue	Wand	Sagittarius	VYHH	Sah-mech	Benjamin	Advachiel
10	Indigo	Pentacle	Capricorn	HYHV	Eye-in	Zebulun	Hanael
11	Violet	Dagger	Aquarius	HYVH	Tzah-dee	Reuben	Cambriel
12	Crimson	Cup	Pisces	HHYV	Koph	Simeon	Amnitziel

Notes to the Chart for Rainbow Wand Consecration

a. The number refers to the order in which the invocations are performed.

b. The color refers to the band of color on the Rainbow Wand which you hold while doing each invocation.

c. Tool indicates the elemental tool in the right hand for each invocation.

d. YHVH shows the permutations of the holy Tetragrammaton. The source of these permutations is the Sepher Yetzirah, and they are directly related to the astrological signs. Each "Y" is pronounced Yud; each "H" is pronounced Heh; each "V" is pronounced Vahv.

e. The names of the Hebrew tribes and the appropriate angel are fairly clear. Remember, "Ch" sounds like the German "ach."

f. It will probably be easiest to make up 12 cards, each with the appropriate words filled in, for doing the 12 invocations so far in this ritual.

g. Remember to turn one number on the "clock" for each invocation.

---

language, I ascribe the letter HEH to which is alloted the symbolic tribe of GAD and over which is the angel MELCHIDAEL, to bestow this present day and hour, and confirm their mystic and potent influence upon the RED band of this Rainbow Wand, which I hereby dedicate to purity and to occult work. May my grasp upon it strengthen me in the work of the nature and attributes of ARIES.

STEP THREE. Now, visualize the forces of the nature of Aries descending from all around you onto the Rainbow Wand. When you sense this has occurred, or after three minutes, replace the Fire Wand on the altar (Consult any basic book on astrology for more on the qualities of the signs).

STEP FOUR. Move your left hand down to the next stripe of color on the Rainbow Wand. It is red-orange. Turn to face the direction of the number one on the face of the imaginary clock upon which you stand. Take the appropriate elemental weapon according to the list on page 263. Now repeat the invocation from Step Two. However, change the capitalized words for the appropriate words from the list on page 263.

STEP FIVE. Once you have completed the 12 invocations to the powers associated with the signs of the zodiac, you should again be facing east. Place the Rainbow Wand on the altar with the white end pointing toward the East. Raise your hands and say:

> Oh great Goddess of the forces of nature, great one who has been known by a thousand-thousand names since before remembered time, let thy influence descend and consecrate this Rainbow Wand which I dedicate to thee for the performance of the works of the Magick of Light.

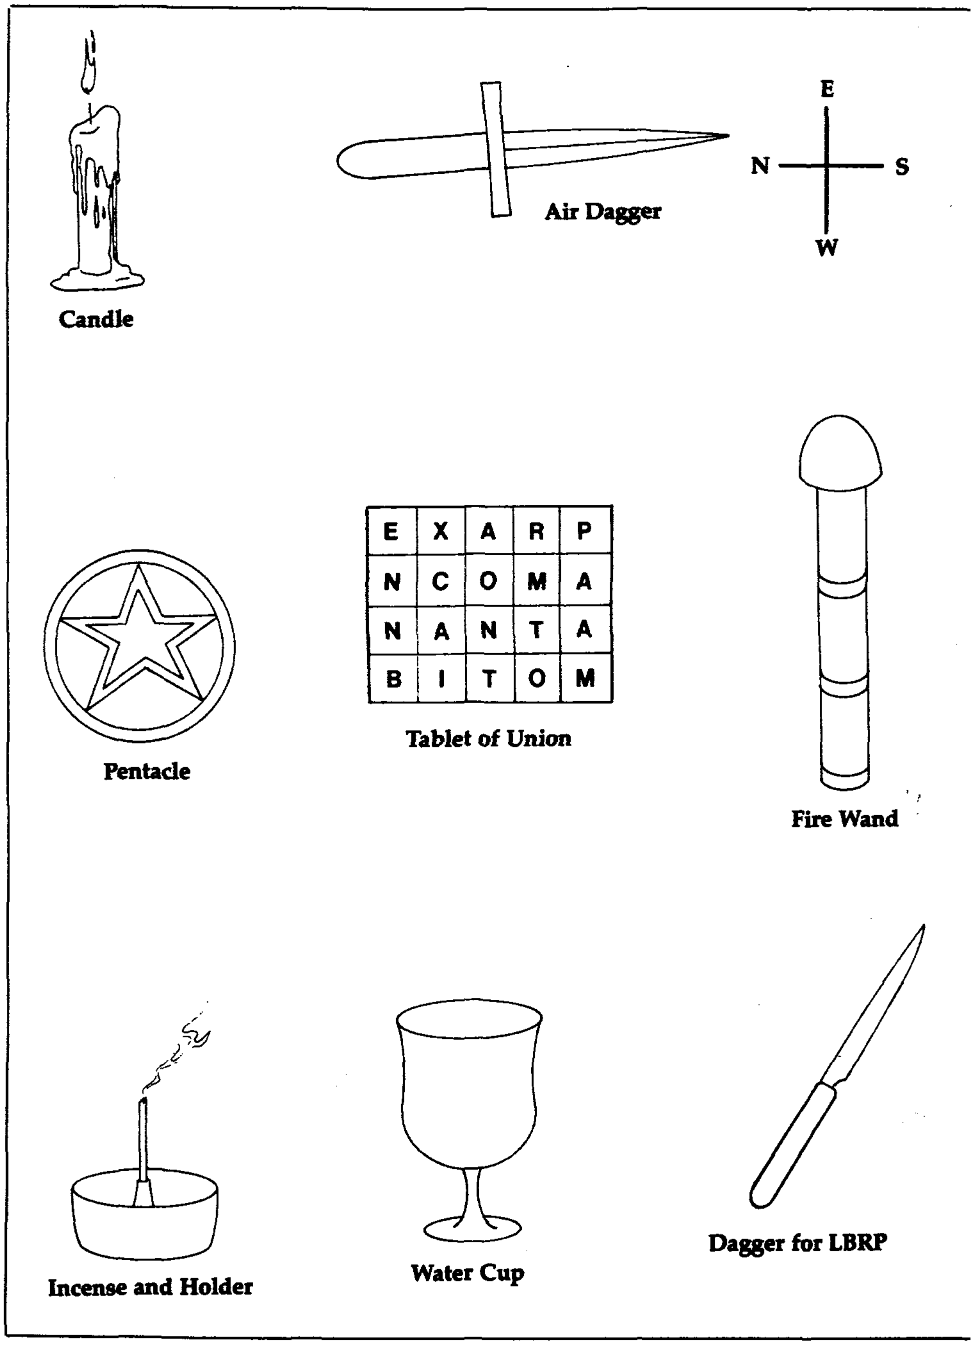
STEP SIX. Wrap your charged and consecrated Rainbow Wand in the silk or cotton cloth which you have for this purpose. From this moment on do not allow anyone else to touch it. Do not unwrap it except when you are going to need it for magickal purposes. Should someone else handle it, it would be a good idea to re-do this entire ritual.

STEP SEVEN. Now close this ritual by doing the Closing by Watchtower, Steps Fifteen through Twenty of the Watchtower Ritual.

Your Rainbow Wand is now ready for magickal usage.

Take a while and make sure that you have the time to do the above ritual correctly. Do not rush it. Also, do not go on to the next section until you have prepared your Rainbow Wand as above, for the next part of the lesson uses the consecrated and empowered Rainbow Wand to charge and consecrate your magickal tools.

On page 266 you will find a diagram of the altar layout for the Consecration of the Rainbow Wand Ritual. You will usually have the elemental tools or weapons placed in the same positions for all magickal rituals. The Dagger should be to the East; the Wand to the South, the Cup to the West; the Pentacle to the North. Candles should preferably be in the color of their quadrant (yellow to the East, red to the South, blue to the West and black, brown or green to the North), or else white.



Candle
Air Dagger
E
N
S
W
E X A R P
N C O M A
N A N T A
B I T O M
Tablet of Union
Pentacle
Fire Wand
Incense and Holder
Water Cup
Dagger for LBRP

Altar Layout for Consecration of Rainbow Wand and other Magickal Operations

PART SIX

I strongly suggest that the following rituals of consecration not be performed on the same night. Rather, do them on four consecutive nights or one a night on two consecutive weekends. At this point there is no real rush to complete these consecrations, as the next lesson will be centered around mental magick and will not require the tools. However, your tools really will need to be completed and consecrated before the eighth lesson in this course. All four of these rituals should only be performed during the waxing of the Moon.

CONSECRATION RITUAL FOR THE PENTACLE

STEP ONE. Do the Watchtower Ritual up to Step Fourteen.

STEP TWO. Face North and hold your Pentacle in the left hand by the black section. Always remember to move and pivot clockwise within your "temple" unless told otherwise. In your right hand hold the consecrated Rainbow Wand by the red-orange stripe, the stripe associated with Taurus representing elemental Earth. The Pentacle should be held horizontally. As you vibrate each magickal word, title or name, trace in the air above the Pentacle the Hebrew letters and sigils which are on the tool. If you have any questions about this, go back to the lesson which showed you how to make the Pentacle. The symbols are drawn over the tool with the Earth (black) end of the Rainbow Wand, representing the making physical of the spiritual forces. These spiritual forces are, of course, represented by the white end of the Rainbow Wand. Thus, you are sending pure magickal energy down into the Pentacle. Say:

> O Thou who art timeless, thou who art Mother and Father of all things, Thou who dost clothe Thyself with the forces of nature as we don a robe, by Thy Holy Divine Name (vibrate as you trace the word and sigil) AH-DOH-NYE where, too, Thou art known in this quarter by the secret name (vibrate and trace word and sigil) TZAPHON. I beseech Thee to grant me strength and inner vision as I search for inner wisdom within Thy hidden light.

STEP THREE. Continue, saying:

I humbly request, as a student of Thy mystic laws, that > Thou mayest cause Thy archangel (vibrate and trace) OH-REE-EL to guide me on my holy journey. Please also direct Thy angel (vibrate and trace) PHORLAKH to watch over me and protect me as I traverse the mystic pathways of the universe.

STEP FOUR. Continue, saying:

> May the ruler of the Earth, the powerful prince (vibrate and trace) KERUB, by the permission of the Eternal One, increase and strengthen the secret forces and virtues of this pentacle so that I may use it to perform those magickal rituals for which it has been fashioned. It is to this end that I now perform this rite of consecration in the presence divine of (vibrate and trace) AH-DOH-NYE.

STEP FIVE. Place the Rainbow Wand on the altar with the white end pointing east. Pick up the dagger you used to do the LBRP and again return to the North. Slowly trace a large Earth Invoking Pentagram (see Lesson 5) in the air over the Pentacle in your left hand while saying:

> By the secret holy names of God borne upon the banners of the North (vibrate, do not trace) EMOR DIAL HECTEGA, I summon Thee, oh great king of the North (vibrate, do not trace) IC ZOD HEH CHAL (pronounced: Ee-kah Zohd-ah Hay Kah-la) to be here now, to increase the effect of this ritual whose purpose it is to consecrate this magickal pentacle. Give it power enow to be more than capable in all works of Earth so that by it I may find a strong defense and powerful weapon to direct the spirits of the elements as is dictated by the One whom naught but silence can express.

STEP SIX. Replace the dagger on the altar and again return to the North. Hold the Pentacle at chest level, facing outward. Say:

> Oh mighty princes of the Great Northern Quadrangle, I invoke you and ask that ye hear my petition and be here now! Bestow upon this pentacle the strength and purity whereof ye are masters so that its outward and material form may be a true symbol of its invoked inner and spiritual force.

STEP SEVEN. Circumambulate in a clockwise direction to the South. Hold the Pentacle above your head, facing out from the center of the circle toward the South. Say:

> O thou glorious angel (vibrate), NAAOM (pronounced Nah-ah-oh-em), thou who rulest the fiery aspects of Earth, I invoke thee. Be here now! Bestow upon this pentacle those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP EIGHT. Wait in the South for a few moments until you sense that your request has been fulfilled or three minutes have passed. Then move to the West and hold the Pentacle in the same way as in the South, only pointing to the West. Say:

> O thou glorious angel (vibrate): NPHRA (pronounced Ehn-frah), thou who rulest the watery aspects of Earth, I invoke thee. Be here now! Bestow upon this pentacle those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP NINE. Wait in the West for a few moments until you sense that your request has been fulfilled or three minutes have passed. Then move to the East and hold the Pentacle facing East in a manner as before. Say:

> O thou glorious angel (vibrate): NBOZA (pronounced Ehn-boh-zohd-ah), thou who rulest the airy aspects of Earth, I invoke thee. Be here now! Bestow upon this pentacle those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP TEN. Wait in the East for a few moments until you sense that your request has been fulfilled or three minutes have passed. Then move to the North and hold the Pentacle as before. Say:

> O thou glorious angel (vibrate): NROAM (pronounced Ehn-roh-ah-ehm), thou who rulest the densest aspects of Earth, I invoke thee. Be here now! Bestow upon this pentacle those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP ELEVEN. Now do the LBRP with two differences:

a. Use the Pentacle instead of the dagger.

b. Trace the Invoking Pentagram of Earth instead of the Banishing Pentagram of Earth.

STEP TWELVE. Replace the now charged and consecrated Pentacle in its appropriate place on the altar. Finish by performing Steps Fifteen-Twenty of the Watchtower Ritual.

The rite is finished.

Before leaving the circle be sure to wrap the Pentacle in a piece of material made of cotton or silk. It should be black; however browns or greens or the universal pure white will do.

Note that in these consecration rituals you should vibrate the names and trace the Hebrew letters and/or sigils when using the Rainbow Wand. When not using the Rainbow Wand you should vibrate the names but not trace the sigils. If you do not sense that your requests for empowering the tool have been answered within three minutes, it does not mean that this has not happened. It only means that you are as yet not psychically aware enough to perceive it. If you continue with your daily ritual work, you will open to impressions from other levels of existence.

On the following evening, or when you have planned to do it, perform the Consecration Ritual for the Dagger. Note: This is for the Air Dagger, not for the dagger used to perform the LBRP. Also, compare this ritual to the previous one for performance information such as which words to vibrate and when to trace sigils. I will be limiting those notes in this and the remaining two rituals.

CONSECRATION RITUAL FOR THE DAGGER

STEP ONE. Do the Watchtower Ritual up to Step Fourteen.

STEP TWO. Face east and hold your Air Dagger in your left hand. In your right hand hold the Rainbow Wand by the orange stripe. This stripe is associated with Gemini and elemental Air. The Air Dagger should be held horizontally. The Hebrew and sigils are traced in the air over it with the black end of the Rainbow Wand. Say:

> O Thou who art timeless, Thou who art Mother and Father of all things, Thou who dost clothe Thyself with the forces of nature as we don a robe, by thy holy and divine name YUD-HEH-VAHV-HEH where, too, thou art known in this quarter by the secret name MIZRACH, I beseech thee to grant me strength and inner vision as I search for inner wisdom within Thy hidden light.

STEP THREE. Continue, saying:

I humbly request, as a student of Thy mystic laws, that Thee mayest cause Thy archangel RAH-FAY-EL to guide me on my holy journey. Please also direct Thy angel CHASSAN to watch over me as I traverse the mystic pathways of the universe.

STEP FOUR. Continue, saying:

May the ruler of Air, the powerful prince ARIEL, by permission of the Eternal One, increase and strengthen the secret forces and virtues of this dagger so that I may use it to perform those magickal rituals for which it has been fashioned. It is to this end that I now perform this rite of consecration in the presence divine of YUD-HEH-VAHV-HEH.

STEP FIVE. Replace the Rainbow Wand on the altar. Pick up the dagger used for doing the LBRP in your right hand and move to the East. Slowly trace a large Air Invoking Pentagram (see Lesson 5) in the air over the Air Dagger (which is still in your left hand) while saying:

By the three holy names of God borne upon the banners of the East, ORO IBAH AOZPI (Oh-row Eh-bah-ha Ah-oh-zohd-pee), I summon thee, oh great king of the East BATAIVAH (Bah-tah-ee-vah-hah) to be here now; to increase the effect of this ritual whose purpose it is to consecrate this magickal dagger. Give it power enow to be more than capable in all works of Air so that by it I may find a strong defense and powerful weapon to direct the spirits of the elements as is dictated by the One whom naught but silence can express.

STEP SIX. Replace the dagger used for the LBRP on the altar and return to the East. Hold the Air Dagger, point up, at chest level. Say:

Oh mighty princes of the Great Eastern Quadrangle, I invoke you and ask that ye hear my petition and be here now! Bestow upon this dagger the strength and purity whereof ye are masters so that its outward and material form may be a true symbol of its invoked inner and spiritual force.

STEP SEVEN. Circumambulate to the South. Hold the Air Dagger, point up, over your head. Say:

Oh thou resplendent Angel EXGSD (Ex-jazz-dah), thou who rulest the fiery abodes of Air, I invoke thee and ask that thou mayest hear my petition and be here now! Confer upon this dagger those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP EIGHT. Move to the West and again hold the Air Dagger on high. Say:

Oh thou resplendent angel EYTPA (Eh-iht-pohd-ah), thou who rulest the watery abodes of Air, I invoke thee and ask that thou hear my petition and be here now! Confer upon this dagger those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP NINE. Move to the East and hold the Air Dagger on high, point up. Say:

Oh thou resplendent angel ERZLA (Eh-rah-zod-lah), who rulest the abodes of pure and permeating Air, I invoke thee and ask that thou hear my petition and be here now! Confer upon this dagger those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP TEN. Move to the North and hold the Air Dagger as before. Say:

Oh thou resplendent angel ETNBR (Eht-en-bah-rah), thou who rulest the densest abodes of Air, I invoke thee and ask that thou hear my petition and be here now! Confer upon this dagger those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP ELEVEN. Now do the LBRP with two differences:

a. Use the Air Dagger instead of the usual dagger.

b. Trace the Invoking Pentagram of Air rather than the Banishing Pentagram of Earth.

STEP TWELVE. Replace the now charged and consecrated Air Dagger in its appropriate place on the altar. Finish by performing Steps Fifteen-Twenty of the Watchtower Ritual.

The rite is finished.

Before leaving the circle, be sure to wrap the Air Dagger in a piece of material made of cotton or silk. It should be yellow, but the universal white will do. Once consecrated, let no one else touch your Air Dagger.

CONSECRATION RITUAL FOR THE CHALICE

STEP ONE. Do the "Opening by Watchtower," the Watchtower Ritual Steps One-Fourteen.

STEP TWO. Take the Cup in your left hand and hold the Rainbow Wand by its amber band with your right hand. The amber band is associated with the astrological sign Cancer and elemental Water. Hold the Chalice in a normal fashion and again use the black end of the Rainbow Wand to trace the letters and sigils in the air above the cup. Say:

Oh Thou who art timeless, Thou who art Mother and Father of all things, Thou who dost clothe Thyself with the forces of nature as we don a robe, by Thy holy and divine name EL, where, too, Thou art known in this quarter by the secret name MEARAB (Me-ah-rahb), I beseech Thee to grant me strength and inner vision as I search for inner wisdom within Thy hidden light.

STEP THREE. Continue, saying:

I humbly request, as a student of Thy mystic laws, that Thee mayest cause Thy archangel GAHB-RAY-EL to guide me on my holy journey. Please also direct Thy angel TALIAHAD to watch over me and protect me as I traverse the mystic pathways of the universe.

STEP FOUR. Continue, saying:

May the ruler of water, the powerful prince THARSIS (Tahr-sis) by permission of the Eternal One, increase and strengthen the secret forces and virtues of this chalice so that I may use it to perform those magickal rituals for which it has been fashioned. It is to this end that I now perform this rite of consecration in the presence divine of EL.

STEP FIVE. Place the Rainbow Wand on the altar as before and pick up the dagger used in the LBRP. Move to the West. With the dagger, slowly trace a large Water Invoking Pentagram (see Lesson 5) in the air over the Cup while saying:

By the three secret holy names of God borne upon the banner of the West, EMPEH ARSEL GAIOL (Em-peh-heh Ahr-sell Gah-ee-ohl), I summon thee, oh great king of the West RA AGIOSEL (Eh-rah Ah-jee-oh-sell) to be here now; to increase the effect of this ritual whose purpose it is to consecrate this magickal chalice. Give it power enow to be more than capable in all works of Water so that by it I may find a strong defense and powerful weapon to direct the spirits of the elements as is dictated by the one whom naught but silence can express.

STEP SIX. Replace the dagger on the altar, and return to the West. Face outward. Hold the Chalice at chest level and say:

Oh mighty princes of the Great Western Quadrangle, I invoke you and ask that ye hear my petition and be here now! Bestow upon this chalice the strength and purity whereof ye are masters so that its outward and material form may be a true symbol of its invoked inner and spiritual force.

STEP SEVEN. Circumambulate to the South and hold the Cup on high. Say:

Oh thou powerful angel HNLRX (Heh-nu-el-rex), thou who rulest the fiery Waters, I invoke thee. Be here now! Endue this chalice with those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP EIGHT. Move to the West, hold cup on high and say:

Oh thou powerful angel HTDIM (Heh-tah-dee-mah), thou who rulest the pure and fluid Waters, I invoke thee. Be here now! Endue this chalice with those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP NINE. Move to the East, hold the cup on high and say:

Oh thou powerful angel HTAAD (Heh-tah-ah-dah), thou who rulest the airy Waters, I invoke thee. Be here now! Endue this chalice with those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP TEN. Circumambulate to the North. Hold the cup on high and say:

Oh thou powerful angel HMAGL (Heh-mah-gee-ehl), thou who rulest the dense qualities of Water, I invoke thee. Be here now! Endue this chalice with those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP ELEVEN. Now do the LBRP with two differences:

a. Use the cup instead of the usual dagger.

b. Trace the Invoking Pentagram of Water instead of the usual Banishing Pentagram of Earth.

STEP TWELVE. Replace the now charged and consecrated Chalice in its appropriate place on the altar. Finish by performing the Closing by Watchtower, Steps Fifteen-Twenty of the Watchtower Ritual. When finished, wrap the cup in a piece of cotton or silk. It should be blue in color, but white will do. Allow no one else to touch it.

The rite is finished.

Finally we move to the last of our consecration rites. While it is true that continual usage of the magickal tools will have the effect of charging and consecrating them, it is also true that doing these rituals, even if you only do them once in your life, will speed up the process many times over. However, it is also suggested that you repeat these rituals occasionally, perhaps once or twice a year. As you develop as a magician, so too will your ability to charge, empower and consecrate your tools.

Another purpose of these consecration rituals is to allow you to see how one basic ritual, through small variations, becomes applicable to other purposes. In this case, a ritual used to consecrate one magickal weapon, by changing a few words and actions, becomes usable for consecrating other tools. In time you will see the importance of this idea.

It is also important to discuss these consecration rituals as they would be performed in a ceremonial situation. That is, how they should be done in group workings. To answer this we must again look back to the Golden Dawn. To that organization, the consecrations were a symbol of a person's passing from the Outer, Mystical Order (The Golden Dawn) and into the Inner, Magickal Order (the R.R. & A.C.). Thus, the person doing the consecrations should either do them privately or only with those who have already done their consecrations. No one else should watch. Those who do watch should add their visualizations to those of the person doing the consecration. It is important that the person doing the consecration do the entire ritual by himself or herself.

CONSECRATION RITUAL FOR THE FIRE WAND

STEP ONE. Perform the Opening by Watchtower.

STEP TWO. Take the Fire Wand in the left hand and hold the Rainbow Wand in your right hand by the red band. This band is associated with Aries and the magickal element of Fire. The Fire Wand should be held horizontally, and, as usual, the tracings in the air should be done with the black end of the Rainbow Wand. Face south and say:

Oh Thou who art timeless, Thou who art Mother and Father of all things, Thou who dost clothe Thyself with the forces of nature as we don a robe, by Thy holy and divine name EH-LOH-HEEM, where, too, Thou art known in this quarter by the secret name DAROM, I beseech Thee to grant me strength and inner vision as I search for inner wisdom within Thy hidden light.

STEP THREE. Continue, saying:

I humbly request, as a student of Thy mystic laws, that Thee mayest cause Thy archangel MEE-CHAI-EL to guide me on my holy journey. Please also direct thy angel ARAL to watch over me and protect me as I traverse Thy mystic pathways of the universe.

STEP FOUR. Continue, saying:

May the ruler of Fire, the powerful prince SERAPH, by the permission of the eternal one, increase and strengthen the secret forces and virtues of this wand so that I may use it to perform those magickal rituals for which it has been fashioned. It is to this end that I now perform this rite of consecration in the presence divine of EH-LOH-HEEM.

STEP FIVE. Place the Rainbow Wand on the altar and pick up the dagger usually used for doing the LBRP. Return to the South. With the dagger make a large Invoking Pentagram of Fire (see Lesson Five) over the horizontally held Fire Wand as you say:

By the three secret holy names of God borne upon the banners of the South OIP TEAA PEDOCE (Oh-ee-pay Tay-ah-ah Peh-do-kay), I summon thee, oh great king of the South, EDEL PERNAA (Eh-dehl Pehr-nah-ah), to be here now; to increase the effect of this ritual whose purpose it is to consecrate this magickal wand. Give it power enow to be more than capable in all works of Fire so that by it I may find a strong defense and powerful weapon to direct the spirits of the elements as is dictated by the One whom naught but silence can express.

STEP SIX. Replace the dagger on the altar and return to the South. Hold the Fire Wand horizontally at chest level and say:

Oh mighty princes of the Great Southern Quadrangle, I invoke you and ask that ye hear my petition and be here now! Bestow upon this wand the strength and purity whereof ye are masters so that its outward material form may be a true symbol of its invoked inner and spiritual force.

STEP SEVEN. Circumambulate once around the circle until you return to the South. Hold the wand above your head with the pointed end up. Say:

Oh thou mighty angel BZIZA (Bay-zod-ee-zod-ah), thou who rulest the four angels of most fiery Fire, I invoke thee. Be here now! Impress into this wand those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP EIGHT. Move to the West and hold the Wand on high. Say:

Oh thou might angel BANAA (Bay-ahn-ah-ah), thou who rulest the four angels of fluid Fire, I invoke thee. Be here now! Impress into this wand those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP NINE. Move to the East, raise the Wand, and say:

Oh thou mighty angel BDOPA (Bay-doh-pay-ah), thou who rulest the four angels of ethereal Fire, I invoke thee. Be here now! Impress into this wand those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP TEN. In a similar manner, upon moving to the North say:

Oh thou mighty angel BPSAC (Bay-pay-zah-cah), thou who rulest the four angels of densest Fire of earth, I invoke thee. Be here now! Impress into this wand those magickal powers which thou dost rule that with it I may also govern those spirits over whom thou art Lord.

STEP ELEVEN. Now do the LBRP, with two differences:

a. Use the Fire Wand instead of the usual dagger.

b. Trace the Invoking Pentagram of Fire instead of the usual Banishing Pentagram of Earth.

STEP TWELVE. Replace the now charged and consecrated Fire Wand in its appropriate place on the altar. Finish by performing the Closing by Watchtower. Use a piece of red or white cotton or silk to cover the Fire Wand.

The rite is finished.

When you have finished performing these rites to your satisfaction (we are harder judges of ourselves than we are of others) you will no longer be a beginner or neophyte in the world of magick. Very few have started down the path leading to a magickal way of life. Fewer go past the first few faltering steps. It is a miniscule number, indeed, who can claim to be true masters of the magickal art.

No, you are by no means a master of Ceremonial Magick even if you have really practiced and learned from these first six lessons. But from my experience, if you have practiced and learned, you probably are more knowledgeable and magickally adept than 75%-95% of those calling themselves magicians. This is true even though you have not as yet done any real practical or Grey Magick.

It is not well-known, but there were really two "inner" Orders in the Golden Dawn. No members of the Outer Order were supposed to know about either of these inner Orders or their workings. One of these Inner Orders only had one degree and taught no magick. It was where people who were judged to have no magickal skills were placed. Even they were not aware of the full meaning of the Magickal Inner Order, the R.R. et A.C. The name is a Latin abbreviation for "Red Rose and Gold Cross." To get into the R.R. & A.C. you needed to be invited. Once invited it was your task to make and consecrate your Magickal Tools.

Entry into a grade of a magickal Order was done by initiation, meaning to start. A person did not have the full abilities of a degree when he or she entered that degree, only (theoretically) when it was left or completed.

Therefore, for all practical purposes, if you have done the work, done the study and understand what you are doing, for all reasonable purposes you have attained (entered) the grade of Adeptus Minor!

Furthermore, so long as you do not claim that grade as a result of initiation into a particular group, I see no reason why you should not consider yourself and describe yourself as an Adeptus Minor. Although rarely used, the appropriate title of this grade for a woman is Adepta Minora.

It is therefore appropriate that you take, for yourself, an obligation to the Magickal Path. Once you have done this you are an Adeptus Minor, a person prepared to be a Wyzard and Magician.

THE RITUAL OF MAGICKAL OBLIGATION

STEP ONE. Set up your Temple and do the Opening by Watchtower.

STEP TWO. Say the following self-obligation:

I, (state your magickal name or motto), do this day spiritually bind myself to a magickal way of life. I will to the utmost lead an unselfish life and will prove myself a faithful and devoted servant to the Divine Source of All, who works in silence and naught but silence can express, the unity beyond duality, the unity beyond comprehensible unity.

I will keep secret all practical and theoretical knowledge from those who in my judgment are not ready to receive it, for to tell the truth to someone who is not ready to accept it is the same as telling that person a lie.

I will not claim to be anything more than I am, a student of the magickal way of life, light, love and freedom. Not being an initiate of an order, I will not initiate anyone.

I will perform all practical magick in a place concealed and apart from the gaze of the outer world. I will not display my magickal implements nor reveal the use of them to those who are not at a level where they need to know of them. I will not make any symbol or talisman for those who are not truly in need of such help. Before those with little knowledge of magick I will only perform simple and well-known techniques, keeping the deeper wisdom and methods for those who are themselves ready to learn.

I further promise and swear that with the Divine permission I will, from this day forward, apply myself to the Great Work—which is to purify and exalt my spiritual nature so that with the divine aid I may at length attain to be more than human, and thus gradually raise and unite myself to my higher and divine genius, and that in this event I will not abuse the great power entrusted to me.

I further more solmenly pledge never to work at any important magickal task without first invoking the highest divine names connected therewith. I especially pledge not to debase my knowledge of practical magick to purposes of evil and self-seeking. If in spite of this pledge I do so, then I invoke the avenging angel HUA that the evil may react on me.

I promise to treat all people with equality, no matter their race, religion or sex. I will not slander. I will not lie. I will not spread rumours.

I undertake to continue my practice of the magickal way of life whether I work with others or am unassisted.

Finally, if in my travels I should meet a stranger who claims magickal knowledge, I will examine him or her before acknowledging that such is the case. I will reveal to that person nothing of the inner wisdom I have gained, save that which I could give to any man or woman, until I am sure that his or her claim to knowledge is true.

Such are the word of this, my obligation as an Adeptus Minor (Adepta Minora), whereunto I pledge myself in the presence of the Divine One, and of the great avenging angel HUA. By my own will, and under their watchful vision, if I fail to keep my magickal obligation, may my magickal powers cease until that time when I can rightfully have them once again given unto me, so help me with my mighty and secret soul!

STEP THREE. Finish with the Closing by Watchtower.

PART SEVEN

One of the rather unique problems of people who spend many hours practicing and studying Magick is dealing with other people concerning your interests. Generally speaking, there are four types of people you will be dealing with in relation to your magickal beliefs.

1. Those who don't care one way or the other. They just figure that this is something you are involved in and so what? They think you're a little bit weird, but they also probably think that everybody has a bit of weirdness in them.

People in this category are usually too concerned with themselves to bother you. If they ask you any questions about what you do, answer them honestly but at their level of understanding. Usually after a few questions they lose interest in that aspect of your life because they find their own life far more interesting.

2. Religious fanatics. These people live a life based on fear and paranoia. Those who live a life filled with fear are the ones who are constantly trying to convert you to their particular religious sect or cult. They see everything as black and white, we and they. "Since we are right, you must be wrong. Therefore, I have to convert you to my faith because that way you will be right and there will be no one around to imply that I (horrors!) could be wrong. For if I am wrong about this, then I could be wrong about everything in my life, and I am too fearful to spend time examining my life." This type of person is frequently (but not always) poorly educated when it comes to religion and philosophy. "It was good enough for daddy, it's good enough to me" is their operative motto. If these people question you as to what you are doing, a good answer might be "studying early Jewish philosophy." Then, immediately tell them that they can help you. Ask them if they study the Bible. When they say yes, respond, "Good. I need to talk with someone who is fluent in Hebrew, Aramaic and Greek." When they hem and haw and finally admit that they really know little if any of those languages, just look at them with surprise on your face and tell them that you hope they will someday really begin to study the Bible. Then walk away. Remember, we are not trying to convert anybody to our magickal point of view, only learn ways to deal with others who do not share it.

The other type of religious fanatic is the one filled with paranoia. These people are usually (but not always) poor and in a lower economic class (although being poor does not automatically make you one of them). They accept the responsibility for nothing in their lives. Their problems are always somebody else's fault. They don't have money because "Jews gypped them out of it" ("gypped" comes from the word Gypsy. Here is another minority group unfairly depicted in modern English). Or else "Blacks took all the jobs." It's always somebody else's fault.

Those with this psychology and a more religious (?) bent blame everything on "demons." Demons cause their addiction to alcohol or tobacco or overeating. Demons keep them impotent or frigid. Demons control the bosses so "I can't keep a job." If this type of person asks you what you are doing, the best answer is, "minding my own business and wondering why you aren't doing the same."

Quite simply, these people cannot be dealt with on any level. Therefore, it is best to get them out of your hair quickly. These people can also be quite dangerous. People with paranoid personalities may become schizophrenic and commit violently anti-social behavior. These are the people who roast their children in order to burn the demons out of them. These people were the sadists of the various Inquisitions. Stay away from them.

3. Third are those who don't want to believe in the possibility of something they can't understand in their own terms. These people, if they discover your interest in magick, will primarily try to mock and make fun of you. They don't have to deal with you if you, and what you believe in, are merely jokes.

You can ignore these people and they will quickly lose interest in trying to antagonize you. On the other hand, if you are quick to anger, a clever repartee can quiet them quickly. If someone asks you to turn them into a toad (ha! ha! how clever), ask them why? After all, it would be redundant! Although I don't really suggest it, if the person is obnoxious, you could add to this by referring to his eating material, flies, and upon what material flies like to sit. Other allusions could be made to the similarity of the person's appearance with that of a frog, etc. If you go this route, the idea is to turn the topic away from you and onto the other person.

4. Finally comes a more or less logically minded person who is interested in what you have to say, but as yet does not understand. What I like to tell this type of person is that I am studying ancient, little-known metaphysical theories. Two thousand years ago these theories included physics, mathematics, geometry, medicine, astronomy, reading, writing and many other things. In those days many of these beliefs were far more subjective than objective. Today this is no longer true.

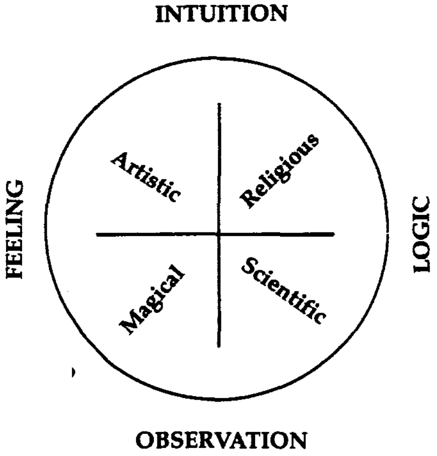
Thus, what I am studying are the subjective philosophies of the present which are destined to become the objective sciences of the future.

I agree with the author of SSOTBME who claims that there are four major viewpoints which we all have to a greater or lesser degree. These are logic, observation, feeling and intuition. Mix intuition with logic and you get a religious bias. Mix feelings with intuition and you get an artistic bias. Mix logic with observation and you get a scientific bias. I choose to mix feelings with observation. The result is a magickal bias.

From this philosophy, everything is relative. If you have a strong religious bias, science and art would appear in some instances to be forms of magick. A stronger scientific bent would have a person see economics and psychology as being more magickal or artistic than scientific. An artistic bias would have a person thinking that astrology and philosophy are very scientific. Who would be right? All of them, from their own particular point of view. Thus, if we can discover where a person's particular bias lies, we can perhaps present our interest in ways which will be most easily understood by the person confronting us.

Remember, the important part of dealing with people who are confronting you is to quickly gain control of the conversation, then turn it around and talk about the other person rather than letting all the discussion be about you.



REVIEW

The following questions are designed to help you determine if you have mastered the information in Lesson Six. Please try to answer them without looking at the text. The answers are in Appendix Two.

1. What are the qualities of elemental Fire?
2. Who is the Archangel of Fire?
3. How can 23=40=12?
4. How was a tripod used by magicians?
5. What is "The Secret Force"?
6. How do you pronounce the Enochian word "AOZPI"?
7. How many colors are on the Rainbow Wand?
8. What are the secret holy names of God borne upon the Banner of the South?

The following questions only you can answer.

1. Are you in control of elemental Fire?
2. Are you still doing all of the rituals?
3. Are you attempting new rituals?
4. Are you constructing your tools?
5. Have you consecrated your tools?
6. Have you taken, or are you going to take your magickal obligation?
7. Have you ever had trouble dealing with people who did not like your interest in Magick, the Kabalah, etc.?
8. Do you understand the correspondences?
9. Do you think you are on your way to becoming a powerful magician? If not, what do you think you need to learn or develop?

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Crowley, Aleister, 777, Weiser, 1977.
Johnstone, Lemuel, SSOTBME: An Essay on Magic, Grey-Turner, 1979.
Laycock, Donald, Complete Enochian Dictionary, The, Askin, 1978.
Regardie, Israel, Ceremonial Magic, Aquarian, 1980.
  Golden Dawn, The, Llewellyn, 1978.
Schueler, Gerald, Enochian Magic, Llewellyn, 1985.
Wang, Robert, Secret Temple, The, Weiser, 1980.

Lesson

7

PART ONE

Back in Lesson Five of this course I shared with you the important occult magickal secret that whatever is created on the astral plane eventually must manifest in our world, the physical plane. This means, of course, that if you can create something in the astral world, it will eventually show up in our day-to-day reality. If you create wealth for yourself on the astral plane, you will become wealthy. If you create a new car for yourself on the astral, you will eventually get that car.

From this it should be obvious that the basis for Grey Magick is the creation of a desired goal on the astral plane. The reason there are many different forms or styles of Grey magick is that there are many ways to implant a creation into the astral or Yetziratic level of reality. Personally, I have always found ritual or ceremonial magick to be the most effective for me. This is because I find the use of intense symbolism mixed with ritual to be highly evocative. When well performed, a ceremony affects me very deeply. Plus, ritual magick also uses the assistance of spiritual entities from other planes of existence. Other forms of Grey Magick I can use successfully, but I find them personally more tedious and less fun.

However, there is another system which is not ceremonial magick per se, but is important to know. A knowledge of this style of magick can aid you in your understanding of how magick works. Also, this system is very simple and effective. With this system you can successfully work magick with no tools other than a pencil and piece of paper.

As I have said, the major differences between various styles of magick are based upon different ways of getting an idea or thing created in the astral plane, or what is Kabalistically known as the Yetziratic world. So, in this simple system, we must first discover how this can be done.

First, we must remember that there are links between the conscious and the unconscious. When our unconscious sends a message to the conscious, it is called "intuition." If the conscious cannot deal with the information given by the unconscious and represses that information, psychological and physical problems can result. In some instances this can result in a person requiring psychological or psychiatric aid. There are also other methods for the subconscious to contact the conscious. If you have forgotten some of these, re-read the previous sections on dreams and past-life experiences.

ASTRAL PLANE
S
U
B
C
O
N
S
C
I
O
U
S
PHYSICAL PLANE

More important for our purposes, however, is the fact that there are also methods which will allow the conscious to contact and send messages to the subconscious. This is important because the subconscious is our direct link to the astral plane. This means that whatever we put into the subconscious must eventually become a physical reality.

There are two common ways for this conscious-to-unconscious communication to occur at will. They relate to the modern right-brain, left-brain theories of mentality. The left hemisphere of the brain is said to deal with logic, mathematics, and deductive reasoning. The right hemisphere deals with intuition, inductive reasoning, feeling and art.

Before going on I am going to interject that I do not believe in the total reality of this theory. Its implication is that the mind, that part of our total self which actually thinks, is nothing more than the few pounds of nervous tissue between our ears. My personal belief is that there is a type of symbiotic relationship that exists between the physical brain and the non-physical mind. An example of this is the fact that the taking of certain drugs and substances can alter the way we think and perceive the universe around us. This has led some people to claim that consciousness is nothing more than a chemical state. But the fact of the matter is that some people have a very tenuous link between their mind and brain. These people may remain entirely unaffected by substances which would have an enormous psychoactive effect on most of us. In this example we can clearly see that altering the chemical make-up of the brain does not necessarily change the workings of the mind. This invalidates the idea that the mind and brain, even though closely linked in most people, are one and the same.

Furthermore, the right-brain, left-brain theory is an oversimplification of the complex reality of the mind-brain unit. Still, as a theory, it does have some value. Primarily it shows that the mind has a type of duality. Perhaps it would be more appropriate to say that a part of the mind deals more with the intuitive while another part deals more with the deductive. Further, these parts of the mind are related to what is commonly called the right-brain, left-brain theory. In order to facilitate your understanding of this course's material I will use the right-brain, left-brain terminology as a concession to popular terms.

The system of magick associated with the left brain is commonly known as "The Use of Positive Affirmations." In this system you merely say over and over what it is you desire. This, in a sense, is an attempt to use your conscious to convince your subconscious through reason logic and rote repetition that "this-or-that" is what you want, desire or need.

The system is related to the right hemisphere of the brain is known as Creative Visualization. In this system you consciously put an image (visualization) into your conscious mind, knowing that eventually this image will be absorbed into the subconscious.

People who use either Positive Affirmations or Creative Visualizations are only using half of their mind/brains in order to create a different reality in their lives. Some people are very successful using either system. Most people practicing one system or the other have only a modicum of success. The simple Kabalistic system which I am going to present uses a very effective combination of both Positive Affirmations and Creative Visualization. Both I and many of my students have found the Kabalistic system to be far more magickally effective than either Creative Visualization or Positive Affirmation by themselves. Also, there is a Kabalistic secret which will help improve magickal success with this and the other two systems. But I will get to that in a few moments.

First, let us assume that someone knows how to create something on the astral plane. Does this mean that this person will always get what is created? Clearly, many people attempt Creative Visualization and/or Positive Affirmations and have no successful result. Perhaps you have tried one of these systems and not achieved the result you desired. Thus, to a casual observer or one who is unfamiliar with the inner secrets of these forms of mental magick, it will seem that the answer to my rhetorical question is "No, a person does not always get what he or she creates on the astral plane." But, once you understand the following information, you will see that the real answer is "Yes, a person always gets what he or she creates on the astral plane."

Let us assume that John Magus is a man who knows how to create things on the astral plane. He spent fifteen minutes this morning creating wealth for himself on the astral plane. Then he spent five minutes worrying about how he was going to pay his bills. Later he spent ten minutes thinking about how little money he had. When he arrived home from work he saw more bills in the mail and worried about them and about how he was going to raise the money to pay for them. So although Mr. Magus had spent fifteen minutes creating wealth, he spent much more time throughout the day thinking about, and thus creating poverty. To repeat, he is creating his own poverty. That is why he is poor.

You see, we are constantly creating on the astral plane! Most of the systems of Creative Visualization or Positive Affirmations which you may read about or study do not take this occult fact into consideration. The Kabalistic system I am about to share with you will show you exactly how to be in control of this process.

If you saw what John Magus was doing and didn't know that we are always creating on the astral plane, you might think that John Magus had failed in his attempt to create wealth. But although it is true that he failed to create wealth, he was successful. . . in creating the poverty he was spending so much time thinking about. Remember, we are always creating on the astral plane, whether or not we are consciously trying to do so.

There are a few other reasons why Positive Affirmations and Creative Visualization may not appear to be successful. First, there is an important cosmic law which forbids waste. One author refers to the effect of this law as "The Sphere of Availability." If you cannot afford food on which to live, yet you use one of the two systems so far described to obtain a car, you may not achieve your goal. This is because you would really not be able to use the car effectively. If you can't afford food, how will you be able to afford fuel, oil, insurance, tires, brakes, etc.? It would be a waste for you to own a car, and cosmic law forbids waste.

A version of this law is used in physics. Since cosmic law forbids waste, this includes wasted space. Thus it is said that "nature abhors a vacuum." It is important to understand that merely because something may look wasteful to you does not mean that on a cosmic scale it would be wasteful. Thus, don't worry about what somebody else is trying to create. Make sure that what you are trying to bring into your life is necessary for you. John Magus should work to get a job before he works to get a car.

Another reason for apparent lack of success may be due to Karmic lessons which you need to learn for your mental and spiritual evolution. If you need to learn a lesson related to poverty, there will be no way for you to break out of that poverty. . . until you have learned the necessary lesson(s) for your evolutionary advancement.

THE KABALISTIC SYSTEM OF MENTAL MAGICK

ONE. Start by writing down on a piece of paper the following statement:

"It is my will to use all of my abilities to obtain the following goal:______."

a. At the end of the statement fill in whatever it is you want. Be simple and

b. Be specific! Most people do not want "money." They want money for a purpose such as a better lifestyle, a better car, etc. If you have a long-term goal, choose the first step towards that goal. If it is your aim to be a teacher, it should be your first goal to get the training necessary for you to teach. If it is your goal to do something noble, such as "to serve," that is very good. But serve in what way? A doctor serves, but so does a garbage collector or a waitress. Each needs a vastly different type of training to become successful in that field.

TWO. Now make a visual picture of yourself involved in that goal. If you want a car, see yourself in that car. If you want a better lifestyle, see yourself wearing something which represents that lifestyle, etc. This image will be used for visualization.

a. Always involve yourself in the image.

b. Remember, some people cannot visualize to an extent where they can "see" something in their mind's eye. If you cannot thus "see," there is still no problem. But you must know that what you are visualizing, if you had better developed astral vision, is really existent on the astral plane; not just believe this to be so, but know it to be so.

c. For help, you can make a "Treasure Map." To do this, simply go through magazines or newspapers and cut out images of your goal. Now paste them together on a piece of cardboard or paper to form a magickal collage. If you prefer, you may draw the images rather than cut them out. Be sure to include yourself in the Treasure Map either by putting a picture of yourself in the Map or writing the word "me" in the center of your Map.

THREE. Every day, for five minutes in the morning just after you awake and for five minutes in the evening just before going to sleep, repeat the phrase you wrote out in Step One in a firm but quiet voice. Do this only once in the morning and evening. Spend the rest of the five-minute period either visualizing the image you made in Step Two, or looking at the Treasure Map you made in that step. See, smell, taste, feel and sense the visualization.

a. Only do this process at morning and at night. However, anytime during the day you realize that you are having thoughts contrary to your goal (as with John Magus), immediately begin repeating your magickal phrase until the contrary thoughts pass away.

FOUR. Silence is also an important factor in this process. Once you have completed your statement and visualization, forget it! Put it out of your mind. Let it go. You are using many cosmic forces in this process. If you talk with others about what you are doing, it sends the energy into discussion rather than into manifestation. If you talk about what you are doing to yourself, such as by wondering about how well you are doing with this Kabalistic system, you are doubting your success. Just do it with all of your heart, know that it will work, and be silent about it.

Aleister Crowley talks about a time he was low on money. He did a ritual to raise the money he needed to pay his rent. He has such a positive attitude about his magick that he went into town and spent some of his remaining meager funds on ice cream. Oh, by the way, he did get the money which was necessary to pay his rent.

FIVE. Here is the Kabalistic secret promised earlier in this lesson. If you re-read some of the earlier material given in this course you will notice that in one place it is mentioned that the astral plane, also known as the Yetziratic World, is related to the emotions. The secret is that the more emotionally involved you can become with your goal, the greater your chances for rapid success. "Sort of" wanting something will not have the success of "gotta have" something. The more worked up emotionally you can get over your desire, especially when stating your desire and doing the visualization, the faster it will manifest.

That, very simply, is the Kabalistic System of Mental Magick. Practice the system daily until you get what you want. Then immediately start anew with another goal. Keep your emotions high and success must inevitably follow.

Some people wonder why the peculiar wording is used for the magickal phrase given in Step One.The choice of words is very important and should always be used. "It is my will. . . " means that you are using your Will, your consciousness, and putting that aspect of yourself in charge of the subconscious. Most people tend to allow their subconscious to control them without even knowing it. These four words indicate a change in your life: that you are no longer an ordinary person. You are becoming a true magician.

" . . to use all of my abilities. . . " is important because it is telling your subconscious that all abilities which you possess, whether you are aware of them or not, are to be used in achieving the goal. Thus, even if you are not aware of your innate psychic powers, your subconscious, as a result of being ordered to do so by your conscious, will order those powers to be put to use to achieve your goal.

". . . to obtain the following goal. . . " Here the important word is "goal." This is not a light-hearted wish or mild desire. This is a goal toward which you will be directing your entire life at this time. If you cannot direct all of your efforts toward that goal, don't even start this process. Let's say that you want an expensive book on magick and you use the Kabalistic System of Mental Magick to obtain it. But then, instead of saving your money, you spend it on some records or tapes. This is a message to your subconscious that you do not really want to achieve the goal of getting the book.

Although in this particular instance I am saying that it is important to save your money for the book, I am not saying that it will be necessary to spend all of that money for the book. Nowhere in the magickal phrase of intent does it say how you are to obtain the goal. Let it come to you as it will. But you must still use all of your abilities to obtain it. In this case, it means saving your money. In the instance of Crowley mentioned earlier, he had done a ritual to obtain money, all of the money he would need so that he could pay a rent bill. What little he had at that time was not relevant since he was not going to go out and get work to earn money.

To recap the Kabalistic System of Mental Magick briefly:

1. Come up with a specific goal and write it down in given form.
2. Come up with a visualization which involves you. Use a Treasure Map if it will help.
3. Recite the goal and do the visualization for five minutes when you awake and five minutes before going to sleep. Become emotionally involved with the goal.
4. If something comes to mind which contradicts your goal during the day, immediately repeat the magickal phrase (like a mantra) until the contradictory thought is gone.

PART TWO

Throughout this course I have held that there are three types of magick: White Magick, which has been the focal point so far in this course; Grey Magick, which we have begun to investigate and which will occupy most of the rest of this course; and Black Magick which will only be discussed in terms of how to avoid doing it either purposely or accidentally. These definitions of types of magick have used the purpose and outcome of a magickal ritual or act to determine the type of magick we are doing. As an example, any techniques or rituals used to help us achieve a closer relationship with Divinity is defined as White Magick, any techniques. So when using the terms White, Grey or Black Magick, purpose (or result) determines definition.

There is another definition of magick which is based upon heredity, the ancient source of the style of magick. There are two major categories based on history. The type of magick we have studied, and for the most part will be studying, is based in the structure of city life. It was in cities where the middle classes first evolved. It was in cities where leisure became possible on a weekly if not daily basis. A merchant who lived in a city could work from "nine to five," whereas those people who lived and worked on farms had to work virtually from before sunrise to after sunset. In the city, people were able to have extra time to learn how to read and study. Thus, the style of magick which has evolved out of city lifestyles tends to include long, precise spells, complicated formulae, and sometimes involved astrological preparations. It is a style of magick which is left-brain, logic oriented.

The city-dwelling middle classes and upper classes had time for leisure and study. They also had enough extra and spendable money to afford ritual items. Some of these ritual tools were made of gold or silver, showing that if some of the magicians were not upper class, then they received support or patronage from a wealthy person or group.

By the Middle Ages, many cities were built on high ground near a source of fresh water. Being on high ground was necessary because it was an easy place to defend against attackers. Also such a city would have a natural drainage system which, especially after rains, would help prevent flooding and the health problems associated with standing, stagnant water. The style of magick which we have been learning in this course, the style of magick which developed in cities located near high ground, is known as High Magick or Art Magick.

Every culture had, has and will have its own magick. Even as you read this, a style of magick known as Brujeria is evolving in the Latino Barrios of major U.S. cities. At the time High Magick or Art Magick was developing in the cities, so, too, were the magickal systems of those people who lived outside of the cities. It was the magick of the farmers and hunters and animal herders which evolved from even earlier magicks of the earliest, prehistoric tribes of hunters and gatherers by way of various state-run religio-magick systems.

Farming life has always been very difficult. In the Middle Ages there were only basic tools and no real insecticides, fertilizers or irrigation systems which worked at the turn of a faucet. True, the Nile culture and the Aztec culture did have irrigation systems. And it is also true that people knew that certain herbs would keep away certain insects and manure could be used to fertilize the soil. Still, the people of 100-4000 years ago had nothing to compare to our modern "green revolution."

These hard working farmers could not take the time to learn how to read or study arcane magickal texts and lore. Instead, they learned the laws of the universe from the gracious Mother Nature. They saw how the Moon affected their lives and crops. They saw the importance of Air, Earth, Heat and Water. Having little knowledge of writing, their magick was passed orally. They developed their own language and codes. They studied and learned the powers of the plants around them. And, following the Roman and Greek Pantheon, they worshipped a beautiful goddess, represented by the Moon, and a strong God of the hunt, represented by the Sun. Although there is no evidence that there was ever a "universal" Goddess religion, there is ample evidence of a Goddess tradition in virtually every ancient culture. According to one respected author, the ancient Hebrews worshipped a Goddess along with their God and even had an altar to Her in the first and second temples, up to 70 A.D. Today, many Christians hold Mary in very high esteem, to the point where some are accused of "Maryolatry." Jews still honor the "Sabbath Bride" and welcome the coming of the Moon. In Hebrew, the word for Moon is "Levannah," which also happens to be the name of an ancient semitic Moon goddess.

Perhaps you remember from your study of History the so-called "right-of-kings." This included such things as the pick of the crops and animals raised by those who lived in their kingdoms, the right to ride through the crops of a farmer who lived in a king's domain, even the right to have sex with a woman before her husband on their wedding night! In return, the king was expected to protect the farmer from foreign invaders. In time of such danger, farmers and their families could run to the king's castle for protection. Thus, they did not need to live and work on high ground. Further, the terracing of hilly areas was a terrible chore. It was far easier to live in lower-lying lands where there was both natural irrigation from rains and the washing of fertile soil from the higher areas by that same rain. The magick which developed from these cultures is known as Natural Magick or Low Magick.

It is important to point out that there is no quality judgement or moral judgement based upon the names High Magick and Low Magick. They are simply different methods of achieving the same goals with the primary differences between them being cultural and technical.

As the centuries passed and the cultures of both city dweller and rural inhabitants developed, problems arose for practitioners of High and Low Magick. Organized religion, especially Christianity in the form of the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy and later even more so by the various Protestant authorities, did not want people who either could work or were believed to work "miracles." Only those who were involved with the various churches were supposed to be able to do this. The High Magick practitioners were able to present a facade of Christian worship in their practices and were, for a while, able to avoid persecution.

Not so for the people who did Low Magick. Not only could they do things that the organized religion did not like (magick), but they also worshipped deities who were not the same as the ones worshipped by those in power. The organized religions tried to wipe these people out, insultingly referring to them as "people of the heath" or heathens. Similarly, in Latin the expression meaning "those of the earth," paganus, became the then-insulting term pagan. Originally the words "pagan" and "heathen" were just descriptions, but they became virtually a rallying cry for genocide.

Initially, the worst problem was not that these people practiced Low Magick, but that they worshipped different gods and goddesses. In the sixth century the Pope wrote, if "heathen temples are well built they should be purified from the worship of demons... In this way the people, seeing their temples are not destroyed, may flock more readily to their accustomed" places of worship. Of course, to the Pope any god which was not his God must be a demon.

But conversion was not enough. So the organized Christian religion took an image of the Roman God Pan, horned, hooved and tailed, and said that this image was the image of their chief source of evil, Satan (try to find that description of Satan anywhere in the Bible). Thus, Heathens and Pagans who still worshipped their God and Goddess were told they were worshipping evil demons. These people, wanting to worship their own deities, became "Satan" worshippers to organized religion. As such, they lost their human status, and were persecuted, tortured in unbelievably foul ways, and killed in numbers which some authorities claim rival or surpass the Jewish Holocaust perpetrated by the Nazis. But the Pagans were not destroyed by the Nazis. They were victims of Catholics and Protestants.

Those Pagans who escaped hid from their persecutors. Their religious aspects went "underground," and those people became known as healers and masters of the herbs. Much of the various traditions was lost. Some of the women who kept up their skills as healers and herbalists also remembered some of the religious aspects which they taught to their daughters and sometimes to others. They became known, quite appropriately, as "wise women." It was said that these people could bend reality to their wills. A word used to describe these people and which means "to bend" is Wicca or Wicce (pronounced "wee-cha"). In English, this word became Witch.

This has been a very brief generalized history of Witches. I make no claim to its perfection in any way, and there are many books which can give you a far more detailed history of this subject than I can do in a few paragraphs. What I do want to make clear is that Witches do not worship the devil, do not perform the infamous Black Mass, do not kiss the devil's hindquarters. These were all fictions created by organized Christianity to cast a bad light on those who worshipped in a different light.

Every schoolchild in the U.S. knows that in "Fourteen hundred and ninety-two, Columbus sailed the ocean blue." What the children are not told is that in the same year Isabella and Ferdinand ordered all Jews to leave Spain, convert to Christianity or be killed. Remember, the Jews held the secrets of the Kabalah which is the source for High Magick.

Some Jews left. Others converted or pretended to do so. Others hid in the countryside, aided by the people of the countryside, many of whom were Witches. The same sort of thing appears to have happened all over Europe, with Witches protecting Kabalistic Jews, and, in some cases, Jews protecting Witches. At this time there came to be a slight mixture between the High Magick of the Kabalists and the Low Magick of the Witches as each shared gratefully with the other.

Some people have asked me how this could be possible, considering that Jews are given the injunction, "Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live." Well, first off, that is an incorrect translation from the Hebrew. But don't take my word for this. Find a translation of the Old Testament in a Jewish bookstore and look it up for yourself (Exodus 22, v.17). The correct translation, you will find, reads "Thou shalt not suffer a sorceress to live." In context, the Hebrew word refers not so much to a sorceress as it does to a poisoner, and is so translated in other parts of the Bible. In other words, this was not an injunction against Witchcraft, but against murder. The Kabalists knew this. They would welcome their magickally oriented brothers and sisters. Also, since Rabbinical Judaism came to the forefront after the destruction of the second temple in 70 A.D., religious tolerance has become a Jewish tradition, although some people claim that this is becoming less and less the reality today.

Here is a brief series of important dates in the history of Witchraft, with a special focus on Britain and the United States. Some of the dates are approximate.

Circa 1500 B.C.E. The Picts, original inhabitants of Britain, built Stonehenge. Their religion was lunar based, with a major emphasis on devotion directed to a Goddess.

Circa 500 B.C.E. The Celts settled in Britain and taught the concept of reincarnation. Their religious leaders, the Druids, were Solar oriented, and major emphasis in worship was placed upon a God. As the Celts and Picts interrelated and intermarried, the God and Goddess became equally adored. From this union evolved traditions which, in a reconstructed form, are today known as Wicca (today commonly pronounced Wik-ka). There are other reconstructions which go back to other areas of Europe, especially Norse-Germanic and Italian traditions.

313 C.E. The Edict of Milan made Christianity the legal religion of the Roman Empire. Christian temples were built on the old sacred gathering places of the Pagans.

447 C.E. The Council of Toledo defined the Devil as the personification of evil in Christian doctrine. It was a simple move to equip him with horns and so identify him with the Horned God of the Hunt worshipped by Pagans, or Pan.

553 C.E. The Council of Constantinople declared the doctrine of reincarnation to be a heresy. Prior to this it had been taught by some Christian sects.

Circa 700 C.E. "Liber Potentialis" of Theodore forbade the practice of dancing in animal masks, especially those of horned beasts. This had been a religious practice of some Pagans.

Circa 900 C.E. King Edgar regretted that the Old Gods were much more worshipped in his dominions than the Christian God.

1100 C.E. The death of William Rufus, who was, it is believed, a Witch.

1303 C.E. The Bishop of Coventry was accused by the Pope of being a Witch.

1324 C.E. The trial of Dame Alice Kyteler in Scotland on charges of witchcraft. She took refuge in England among her highly-placed friends and was acquitted, largely because of her wealth and status.

1349 C.E. Founding of the Order of the Garter by Edward the Third. Many believe that Edward was a Witch and the Order of the Garter (the garter being a Witch symbol) was a Witch order.

1430 C.E. The trial of Joan of Arc for being a Witch.

1486 C.E. The publication of the Malleus Maleficarum. This heralded severe and widespread persecution of Witches.

1502 C.E. Pope Alexander's Act against Witchcraft.

1542 C.E. Henry the Eighth's Act against Witchcraft

1563 C.E. Elizabeth I's Act against Witchcraft.

1584 C.E. First edition of Reginald Scott's The Discoverie of Witchcraft, one of the first books to deny the superstitious ideas concerning Witchcraft, and to treat the subject in a rational manner. James I ordered the books to be burnt by the public hangman.

Circa 1600 C.E. Many Witches come to American to escape religious persecution in Europe and Britain and settle on the East Coast.

1645 C.E. Matthew Hopkins delcares himself "Witch-Finder General" in England, spawning numerous imitators.

1647 C.E. On May 26, the first American Witch hanging took place in Connecticut. Three others followed Alse Young to the gallows.

1692 C.E. The infamous Salem witch trials began. During the summer fourteen women and six men were killed. Trials continued to take place until May of 1693, when more than 150 persons held in prison for the "crime" of Witchcraft were freed upon the order of Governor Phips. A few other trials took place after 1693 in America, but none resulted in death. In all, 36 people were executed.

1712 C.E. Jane Wehman was tried as a Witch in England, but after having a jury find her guilty, the judge procured her release as he did not believe the evidence and disagreed with the jury's verdict. This is thought to be the last trial for Witchcraft in England.

1735 C.E. The Witchcraft Act of 1735, in the reign of King George, stated that Witchcraft did not exist and that there would be no more punishments for it. However, it did specify that anyone who pretended to possess supernatural powers would be prosecuted as an imposter.

1921 C.E. Dr. Margaret Murray's The Witch Cult in Western Europe sparked a revival of interest in Witchcraft both in scholarship and practice. Dr. Murray presented her thesis that the Witchcraft of the persecutions did, in fact, exist and that it was an organized religion descended from ancient fertility cults of the Stone Age Europeans. Many of today's scholars would dispute this claim.

1951 C.E. The Witchcraft Act of 1735 was repealed, and the Fraudulent Mediums Act introduced in England to replace it. The act recognizes the existence of genuine mediumship and psychic powers, and provides penalties for those who pretend to possess such powers for the purpose of making money.

1954 C.E. Witchcraft Today by Gerald Gardner is published, the first book about Witchcraft by a self-avowed Witch. What Gardner describes, valid as it may be, is actually composed from old books, quotes from Aleister Crowley, ideas and poems from Doreen Valiente and his own genius.

1972 C.E. The U.S. Internal Revenue Service grants the Church and School of Wicca tax-exempt status on the basis of Witchcraft having qualified as a religion.

1974 C.E. Mr. Bob Williams, a Kansas Pagan, agreed to help a staff writer for a Wichita paper with an article on a Pagan group if his (Williams') name was not used nor his occupation listed. However, both were revealed in the series of articles. Williams was fired from his job and evicted from his home. A short time later, his life ruined, he committed suicide.

1975 C.E. Z Budapest was arrested for "fortune-telling" at her occult supply store in Venice, California. She received a 180-day suspended jail sentence, two year's probation and a $300 fine. Though not technically charged with Witchcraft, she felt her trial was due to her being a self-proclaimed Witch. This trial caused a national sensation among both Witches and non-Witches.

1985 C.E. A woman in San Diego lost her job because she is accused of being a Witch. In the same year, a bill is defeated in Congress which would have taken away the tax-exempt status of Witchcraft religious groups.

1987 C.E. A lecture by author and Witch Ray Buckland is cancelled after the sponsors receive numerous telephone threats, many of which are from people calling themselves fundamentalist Christians.

Thus we see a pattern of fear, hatred and persecution against a religious group which exists to this day. I recently heard of an occult shop in Southern California which closed down after bricks came through the windows, after which the store was firebombed. Unfortunately, the true study of Witchcraft and its history, not the lies that have been printed about it for hundreds of years, is beyond the scope of this course. Any occult bookstore should be able to recommend some good titles for you to begin with if that is your interest.

Low Magick, the magickal system used by Witches, tends to be simpler and more direct. It is, however, neither better nor worse than the High Magick of the the Ritual Magician. It is just different. For many people the Craft of the Witches is effective, but for others the methods of Kabalistic Art Magick work better. Many people find that the Kabalah appeals to them because people from Western cultures tend to be very logic and left-brain oriented. Witches frequently tend to be more right-brain and intuition oriented.

It will be valuable for you to learn one typical system of Low Magick. I want to point out that there are literally hundreds of different versions of Witchcraft, and some may do something similar to what will be presented later in this lesson, while others may think it bizarre. Witches are different all over the world in practice, but many of the basic beliefs are similar or the same. In the next pages I will discuss what Talismans and Amulets are, and a Pagan system for making them. Following this I will go into the method of making modern Kabalistic Talismans. For this, you will need to have your magickal tools prepared and consecrated in order to make these Talismans into powerful magickal engines.

PART THREE

A talisman is any object, sacred or profane, with or without appropriate symbols, which had been charged or consecrated by appropriate means and made to serve a specific end.

The word "talisman" is said to come from the Arabic words talis ma which means "magick writing." However, there is no proof of this. It may come from the Turkish meaning "one who is learned in divinity; a priest." Likewise, the word "amulet" is believed to be of Arabic origin, but again there is no proof. No one knows exactly where either word came from.

Today, Talismans are used to draw things toward you. Their purposes include obtaining money, luck, health or love. Amulets are used to keep things away. They protect from evil or bad luck, and help keep one from ill health. In this course, "talisman" with a lower case first letter will refer generically to both Talismans and Amulets. Talisman with a capital first letter will refer to an object used to draw something to you. Amulet with a capitalized first letter will refer to an object used specifically to keep something away.

For thousands of years, writing was a magickal art. It was held in secret by the privileged classes and magicians. It was believed that certain symbols had magick power in and of themselves. This tradition has been carried even into modern movies where Count Dracula cringes in fear from the very sight of a cross. Thus, symbols placed upon a rock or piece of parchment were, of themselves, considered to be powerful. This is what I call the "animistic" theory of how talismans work.

Today, many magicians do not believe in this theory. Rather, they take what I call the "energetics" theory of how talismans work. They believe that the charging of the talisman is the important part; putting magickal energy into the object chosen to be a talisman. The time taken to carefully put the proper symbols on the object is a good way to create and send energy. Mix this with the energy raised and directed during a ritual to charge the talisman, and it is no wonder that this technique of magick is powerful.

Do not doubt that talismans, if properly made and charged, are powerful. Here are three instances of which I am personally aware.

1. "M" had been divorced and was looking for a new mate for her life. She followed the instructions in this course. Within days a man came into her life who fit virtually all of her desired characteristics in a man. They dated for a while and were married.

2. "N" was taking my course in the Southern California area. In the class after the one on talismans she told me she would have to drop the class. When I asked why, she replied that she had been trying to sell her mobile home for six months without luck. She tried making a talisman to help her sell her house. The house sold in a few days and she had to prepare to move.

3. "Q" was studying at a major university while he was also taking my class. He asked how the talismans could help him to study and learn for a test he would be having in two weeks. I gave him advice on what type of talisman to make. Later, however, I had to give more help. He had made a talisman to gain knowledge and information, but he had charged it improperly and too soon. He found that his head was filled with data which had nothing to do with the test he was going to take. I gave him some more help and he did very well on the test.

As discussed in the previous section of this lesson, practitioners of the art of Low Magick were closer in spirit to nature than most of their High Magick practicing counterparts. Notice that I used the past tense in the previous sentence. Today, many Low Magicians live in large cities and know little of nature's majesty. Many who call themselves "Witches" or "Pagans" are nothing more than people practicing a simplistic form of High Magick. However, this in itself should be considered a small miracle as most people who consider themselves to be High Magicians do not practice any type of magick! This means that if you practice Magick as described in these lessons you will truly be a unique, a real practitioner of Art Magick.

Looking back at the Pagans of an earlier time, we see that most if not all were in harmony and close communication with nature. They easily saw that all things on this planet were composed of four categories. Everything had degrees of hotness or coldness. Copying the early High Magicians and Alchemists, they called this the element "Fire." Things could also be more or less solid (Earth), had varying degrees of fluidity (Water) and various degrees of compactness or expansiveness (Air).

We have already discussed these four elements. In fact, you should by now not only be in harmony with these elements, but you should also have some degree of success in being able to control them. Although the main focus in this course is High Magick or Ceremonial Magick, being able to work with the elements is a basis for all forms of Magick. To a real magician, terms such as High Magick, Low Magick, Art Magick, etc., are terms used only to help others understand what you are doing and to enable you to better communicate. To a real magician the important question is not whether it is High or Low, but did it work or not?

With this in mind, I want to discuss another disagreement that magicians have with another set of people. These people have their minds open to new ideas. . . as long as those ideas fall into their belief patterns. No, I am not talking about religious fanatics. I'm talking about scientists. As stated before, many scientists tend to scoff at this "simple" four-fold division of matter. Modern science points to its own periodic table of the elements and says "we can prove the existence of about 100 elements." This, according to the modern scientist, makes the old four element theory obsolete superstition. Nonsense!

The four element (really five element) theory does not define element the same way modern science does. The four elements define the properties of matter, not its chemical makeup. Gold is an element in the modern scientific sense. In the four-element theory (or perhaps four-quality theory would be a better phrase), gold has relative amounts of Fire, Air, Earth and Water. Therefore, both the ancient four-element theory and the modern scientific theory of the elements can co-exist with no problem so long as you understand that the word "element" has a different meaning for scientists and for magicians. I feel that it is important to understand these differences, which is why I have re-presented this material at this time.

You have probably heard of a person obtaining the lock of another person's hair to use as a basis for casting a "spell" upon the person from whom the lock of hair was taken. The hair does not merely represent the person from whom it was taken, but is actually said to be "in sympathy" with that person. Here the word "sympathy" has the earlier, somewhat archaic meaning of "being closely related" and not the modern meaning of "feeling sorry for someone" or "having similar feeling or emotions as another person." That is the reason that this type of spellcasting is frequently called "Sympathetic Magick."

Other things could be used to represent and be in sympathy with another person. A picture, a piece of clothing, parings from the person's finger or toenails, a drawing or a doll could all be used to relate to the person. Expanding on this, we can find that there are many things which could correspond to a person. It is in this way that lists of correspondences can be set up, as was the list of Kabalistic Correspondences given in an earlier lesson.

The four elements have correspondences, too. Here is a list of some possible correspondences.

AIR: A feather, incense, the colors blue or gold.

EARTH: A rock, pentacles in the Tarot, the colors brown, black or green.

FIRE: A piece of coal, a match, the color red or reddish-orange.
WATER: A pebble found near or in water, a shell, the colors blue, black or green.

Notice that in the above short list there is duplication in the use of colors corresponding to the elements. This is not a mistake. Rather, it allows you to choose which system of color correspondences you wish to use.

Just as in the above list certain objects correspond to one of the four elements, so, too, can the elements relate to a variety of ideas as is shown below.

AIR: Schooling, memory, intellectualism, teaching, tests, divination, communications, travel, writing, organizing and organizations, groups of all kinds, theorizing, drug addiction.

EARTH: Money, jobs, promotions, business, investments, material objects, fertility, agriculture, health foods, ecology, conservation, stock market, antiques, old age, museums, buildings, construction, progress, the home, the physical world, daily necessities such as food and clothing.

FIRE: Success, sex, banishing some illnesses, military, conflicts, protection, courts, law, police and sheriff's agencies, contests, competitions, private detectives, dowsing, treasure hunting, gambling, athletics, strength, good health, war, terrorism, and on a more personal level anything related to the Freudian "id," the lower emotions of absurd desire and lust (that is, too much desire or lust), anger, violent emotions. Also things having speed.

WATER: Higher forms of love and the deeper emotions such as compassion, faith, loyalty and devotion. Also friendship, partnerships, unions of any kind, affection, contract negotiation, beauty, rest, recuperation, meditation, spirituality, healing wounds, restoring growth, childbirth and children, the home, receptivity, family, swimming, diving, fishing, ancestors, medicine, hospitals, compassion, doctors and nursing, clairvoyance.

Notice that a few of the listings above seem duplicated, appearing in more than one of the four elemental categories. As an example, the home is listed under Earth and Water. Again, this is not an error. Here it allows you to more closely define the terms. Under the element Earth, the home refers to a structure, the building wherein you live. Under the element of Water, the home refers to the qualities of home life: love, stability, support, etc.

You could probably add many other ideas to this list as a result of your working with the elements over the last few months. This is highly advisable. What you might do is start a small book with precise definitions of what the elements represent to you. Use the above list as a starting point and expand upon it. And no, the above list is not written in stone as immutable law in some dank cave in the Himalayas. So, if you want to remove something from the above list or place it under another element, make sure you're right... then go ahead. With the above information you now have a system for the making of talismans.

Do you need help with a test? Make a talisman of Air. Do you need more love? Make a talisman of Water. Is there too much anger and violent emotions in your family life? Make an Amulet of Fire. If you need more money, a talisman of Earth should do the trick.

Now that you know on which element to base the talisman you wish to construct, the next question is "What is the first step for constructing a Low Magick talisman?" Whether you are doing Low Magick, High Magick or any other Magick, if you are doing something to affect yourself or someone else on this plane, that is, if you are doing Grey Magick, ALWAYS begin by doing a divination! I cannot stress this sufficiently.

One law which everything in our world must live by is the law most commonly called Karma, the law of cause and effect. Every action you take has its own consequences which will come upon you whether you are prepared for those consequences or not. Practitioners of Low Magick tend to go one step further than the "as you sow, so shall ye reap" idea of Karma. They say that whatever you do will be returned to you threefold. This threefold law states that if you do something good you will be rewarded with a similar amount of good three times over. However, do something negative and you will be "rewarded" with three times as much bad coming your way. And Karma is carried over from one life to the next. Suicide or death does not expiate Karma.

Let's say you want to leave the country, but need a great deal of money to do so. You make a talisman to get the money. Shortly after you learn that your parents have been in an accident and died, leaving you a large inheritance. You have done Grey Magick and helped yourself on the physical plane by getting the money. But your talisman may have been responsible for the deaths of your parents, so your magick was definitely of the blackest kind.

Karma is amoral, meaning it has no morality. It is perfectly and totally just. There are no exceptions to the law of Karma any more than there are exceptions to the law of gravity. If you do Black Magick, whether or not you originally intended it to be Black, you will pay for it sooner or later. I am therefore urging you never to do Black Magick. I do so not on any moral grounds (although I am ethically against Black Magick), but for self-protection.

In the above case, the talismanist had no way of knowing whether or not the Grey Magick would become Black. What should have been done first, therefore, was a divination to see whether or not it would be a good idea to do the talisman, and what the outcome would be. By doing this you can protect yourself from accidentally doing Black Magick and having to suffer the consequences.

Before doing any Grey Magick always do a divination!

The next step in making a Low magick talisman is to find an appropriate object to use for the talisman. Given just before the above correspondences for the four elements are different objects which can be used for the making of talismans associated with the elements. However, any object may be used. A rock painted red can represent Fire. A necklace or ring can also be used.

Put a coin in your refrigerator for an hour. Take it out with your left hand. Now put it in your right hand. You will find, of course, that the coin has gotten warmer than it was when you removed it from the refrigerator. The coin has been infused with energy in the form of heat. Likewise, virtually anything in this world has been infused with various types and quantities of psychic energies. Perhaps you have gone on a vacation and been in an utterly magnificent hotel room. Yet that room may have felt "cold" and uncomfortable compared to your far less luxurious home. This is because your psychic energies have not infused the room as they have your home. This is why, even if your home is a "dump," crawling with bugs, it still can feel like your home. You would have to live in a place for days, weeks or even months before that new house or apartment becomes your home.

Even small objects pick up psychic charges from their environment. Therefore, before using any object as a talisman, it must first be purified, cleansed of any known or unknown charge of psychic energy.

This is easy to do. Hold the object to be used as a talisman under running water. For this purpose you can use water coming out of a sink faucet or a garden hose, or, more traditionally, a stream. Hold it there for about three minutes while you visualize all energies within the object flowing out of it with the water. Do not use the waves of the ocean for this purpose as the waves keep coming back and would return to the object you have chosen the energies you wished to cleanse.

If the object will not last well under flowing water, bury it in the ground for at least a half hour, preferably overnight. Our Mother Earth has a natural ability to "ground" out energies which are unwanted. We now have an object, painted an appropriate color, if you so desire, which has been purified and is ready to be charged.

The ancient Pagans were too busy working in the day to do magick during the sunlit hours. Holidays might be celebrated during the day, but Grey Magick was not usually done on festivals. Thus it has become traditional to do Low Magick at night. The best sites to do Low Magick are:

First—Outside, with a clear view of the Moon.
Second—Outside, without a view of the Moon.
Third—Inside, with a view of the Moon.
Fourth—Inside, without a view of the Moon.

The Moon, representing the Goddess aspect of divinity, was also seen to be a key force in magick of all kinds. The phases of the Moon were guides as to what your magick could do. During the waxing Moon, the period from first sight of the New Moon to the Full Moon, magick should be done to draw things toward you. Therefore, Talismans should be made during the period of the growing Moon. The strength of the Moon will be at its height at the moment of the Full Moon. Amulets should be made from the day after the Full Moon until the Moon is no longer visible. This phase is known as the waning Moon and reaches its strength during the dark of the Moon, that is, when the Moon is not visible.

If someone is ill and you wish to make a Talisman to aid the person, you can make a Talisman for health during the waxing of the Moon. If the Moon is waning you can make an Amulet to cause disease to leave. Determine the phase of the Moon and plan whether to make a Talisman or an Amulet accordingly.

If you are not familiar with astronomy or astrology, you may wonder how to quickly determine the phase of the Moon. Even if you do not have an astrological calendar which clearly tells you the phase of the Moon* (although you should probably obtain one of these useful tools), there is an easy source for this information: your daily newspaper. Usually near either the weather section or near the sport fishing section you will find some rather silly looking drawings of the "Man in the Moon." These will tell the dates of the full, new and quarter moons. With this information it becomes easy to determine the phase of the Moon.

Most Pagans, both past and present, do not like the morals and ideals of others foisted upon them. As a sign of their independence and freedom, many practitioners of Low Magick prefer to work "sky-clad," that is, wearing only the sky: nude. While this does cut down on clothing bills and cleaning expenses, it can also cause a problem for those who wish to work outside in their backyard, due to prying neighbors. If you cannot work sky-clad, or would feel strange or inhibited working without clothes, then by all means do wear your special magickal clothes or robe.

Set up a small altar. You can use a table, chair, tree stump or flat rock. But orient it so that when behind it you will be facing north, not east. On the altar have the object you wish to use as a talisman, plus candles of the appropriate colors and incense if you like. You are now ready to begin the ritual which will charge the talisman and make it a powerful magickal tool.

Before going on, did you remember to do a divination first? If not, do so now. Remember to word the question of your divination in the form of "What will be the outcome of my making a(n) Talisman/Amulet for the purpose of ______?"

The following ritual is far more mental than verbal. In fact, in this ritual there is little to say, but many things to do.

STEP ONE. First, you should purify yourself and your area. Visualize a brilliant white (some say violet) light coming from the ends of the universe, going through the top of your head and down through your feet into the Earth. As it does so, realize that this pure light is taking with it all problems and impurities which may have been within you and on your mind either consciously or unconsciously. Next, visualize a bright white light forming a ring about your now purified self, at chest height, Now see in your mind's eye the expansion of this light of pure white brilliance so that it forms a circle around you three, five, seven or nine feet in diameter. The size depends upon the space available to you. Finally, this circle should expand above and below so that you are surrounded above, below, behind and to the front with the white light. You should be in the center of a brilliant sphere of white light.

---

* See Llewellyn's Astrological Calendar or Llewellyn's Daily Planetary Guide.

If you prefer more ritualism, you may mix the work in the above paragaph with the following. If ritualism is not that important to you, you may ignore the following four paragraphs.

You will need a stick of incense and a small bowl of salt and another small bowl of water. Light the incense and hold it in front of you. Remember, you should be facing north. Say, Behold! This is the union of Fire and Air! Next put three pinches of salt into the water, or use the tip of your magickal blade to pick up and pour three "measures" of salt into the water. Hold up the mixture and say, Behold! This is the union of Water and Earth!

Now move to the north side of the circle with the stick of incense. Hold the incense in front of you and say, I purify the North with Fire and Air. Walk (clockwise) to the East, hold out the incense and say, I purify the East with Fire and Air. Continue in a similar manner at the South and West. Complete the circle by returning to the North. Now go back to your altar, replace the incense and pick up the mixed water and salt.

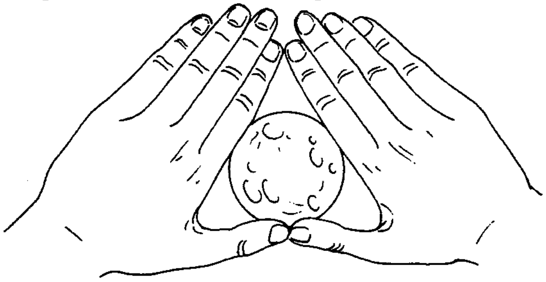
Go to the North portion of the circle. Dip your fingers in the salt and water solution and sprinkle it toward the North three times, saying, I purify the North with Water and Earth. Continue sprinkling as you move to the East. Stop here, sprinkle three times as you say, I purify the East with Water and Earth. Continue in a like manner to the South and West. Complete the circle by returning briefly to the North, then return to the altar.

Now repeat this entire censing and sprinkling process. except instead of using the word "purify," use the word "sanctify." Hence, I Sanctify the North with Fire and Air, etc.

Again, you may mix the two methods of purifying yourself and the area or use either the mental or ritual procedures. You do not have to use both.

As an aside, some self-professed "Pagans" who abhor anything which hints at ritual magick or Kabalism, clear their area with the LBRP! While there is nothing wrong with this practice, it is certainly not part of any ancient Wiccan system. Those who practice magick should be open to all possibilities. People who use Kabalistic methods while decrying Kabalism should seek out the motive for their hypocrisy.

STEP TWO After purifying and clearing your circle, the next step is to "Grab the Moon." Here what you must do is take the essence of the magickal nature of the Moon (the Goddess aspect of Divinity) into your hands and place that nature into the talisman. At the same time you must charge the nature of the Moon with the purpose of the talisman. To Grab the Moon we use the gesture known as "The Triangle of Manifestation" which was described earlier in this course. To refresh your memory, this action is made by holding both hands flat with the thumbs extended at sixty degrees from the fingers. Place the tips of the thumbs together and tips of the first fingers of each hand together. This will form a triangle with the thumbs as the base line and the first fingers forming the sides. See the figure below:



Now hold up this Triangle of Manifestation so that you can see the Moon surrounded by the Triangle. If you are in a place where you cannot see the Moon, visualize it within the Triangle. In a short time there will seem to be two moons. The real (or visualized) Moon will have a second moon next to it. It will appear slightly to the side or "out of phase" with the original Moon. This second moon is the essence of the Moon's magickal power. It is possible that you may not be able to see this second moon, but knowing that it is there will suffice.

STEP THREE. Now you must do two things at once. While concentrating on that second moon, slowly bring your hands down toward the object you are using for the talisman. Try to keep the second moon's image within the Triangle (or know that it is there) and, in your mind, repeat over and over mentally a single word or short phrase which best represents the purpose of the talisman. As an example, the word "health" could be used to represent "I wish to get over this cold and regain my health." Limit any phrase to no more than four words.

As you do these things, bring your hands over, then down around the talisman. The goal is to surround the talisman with the Triangle formed by your hands. The energy of the Moon, impregnated by your will for the purpose of the talisman, is now joining with the object!

In a few seconds you should experience a new sensation. Some people describe it as a sudden lightness in the hands. Others describe it as a rush of energy or a snapping sensation in the hands. Everyone experiences this sensation somewhat differently, so I can't give an exact description. However, as soon as you experience the change, clap your hands or snap your fingers as you separate your hands and say, It is done!

What has happened here is that the energies of the Moon, mixed with your Will, have moved into the object, empowering your talisman. It is now charged and operative.

STEP FOUR. To finish the ritual, in your own words thank the powers of the universe who have aided you in this ritual and bid them depart to "their homes and habitations."

When you have achieved the goal of the talisman, the object needs to be discharged of any remaining energy. This can be done by holding it under water or burying it as before. It can then be reused as a talisman for another purpose. If possible, destroy the object by burning it to ash and getting rid of the ash in the air (by throwing it) or into water. Or, just put it into running water or bury it where it will not be found.

You may charge several talismans for the same purpose at one time. However it is not a good idea to try to energize several talismans for different purposes at the same time or even during the same ritual. Focus on one thing at a time.

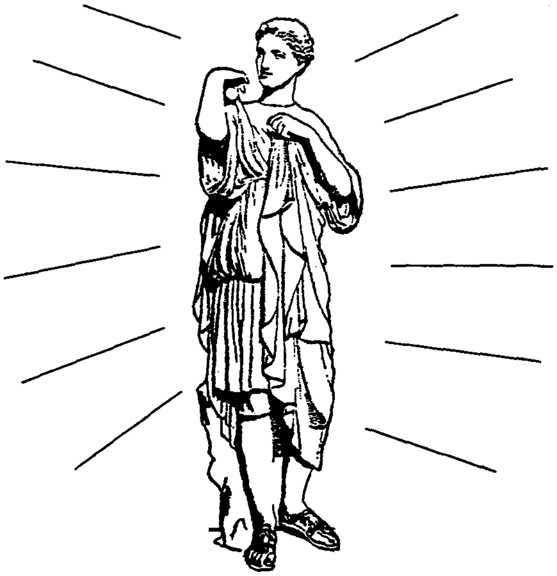
When using a talisman it is a good idea to keep it on you or near you. If you are making the talisman for someone else, tell him or her to keep the talisman on or near their body. Of course, you should ask the person's permission before making the talisman or giving it to him or her. Do not, however, tell the person the intricacies of the ritual and of the construction of the talisman. Tell the person to whom you give the talisman to destroy the object or return it to you once the talisman has achieved its purpose.

The subconscious mind does not think in negatives. Don't make a talisman to "stop smoking." Rather, make one to be "free of smoking."

You may wish to put a time limit on your talisman. In your charging have it planned to achieve its goal in one week or one month or by a certain date. Even if you do not achieve the goal by that date, be sure to purify or destroy the talisman at that time. Then wait two more weeks to see if a result is forthcoming. If not, analyze what you might have done wrong and start over. Chemicals, under the same conditions, always react with each other in the same way. If they do not, the mistake was made by the experimenter. Likewise, magick always works. If not, you have made some error. It is interesting to note that while scientists will readily accept the statement regarding chemicals, they will attempt to refute the similar statement regarding magick. In this case, logic is on our side, not theirs.

Once you have charged your talisman, don't think about it. Your subconscious plays an important part in the magickal process. Constantly bringing the aspect of the mind which connects us to the astral plane down to the physical world will lower the effectiveness of your magickal work. Go back and re-read the section on Creative Visualization.

Be confident that your talisman is charged and will be effective. If you wish, you may recharge a talisman once a month without purifying the object if you are charging it for the exact same purpose and goal.



A Charged Guardian

A small or large statue or objet d'art makes a wonderful protective Amulet (technically called a "Guardian") for a house or apartment. It should be recharged at least once every six months, although monthly would be better. Keep it by the front door. If you have several entryways into your home, use several small statues (or even colorful rocks) overlooking each entry.

PART FOUR

Now we turn our attention back to Kabalistic Magick. As you have seen from the last section, making and charging a talisman using a Pagan system such as the one just presented is direct and fairly easy. There is little you have to prepare. You will find that the Kabalistic system takes more time and thought to construct a talisman. To me it makes a Kabalistic talisman more precise. I personally enjoy that precision and necessary mind-work. My personal experience indicates that a Kabalistic talisman, once charged, takes a little longer to achieve its effect, but that effect is far more intense than a Low Magick talisman. I am inclined to believe, however, that this is due to my own predilection for the Kabalah. In all probability, the Kabalistic talisman is neither more nor less effective than the Low Magick talisman. The difference is based upon the person who makes the talisman. Also note that although the Kabalistic talisman takes more time and effort to create than does a Pagan talisman, it is not more difficult to construct. It just takes some more thought and more time. If you follow the instructions given here you will have no problem in the construction and charging of a Kabalistic talisman.

Before the destruction of the second Temple in 70 A.D., many Kabalistic talismans were made of precious metals which could hang as a pendant on a chain or be attached to clothes. But the most common type of talisman from that time was a long, narrow scroll of parchment. Some of these have been found which were two inches wide and twenty-two inches long. This scroll was covered with writing. In fact, the ancient Kabalistic talismanist frequently used abbreviations to allow for more writing on the strip of parchment. This was then rolled up and placed in a leather, cloth or metal (usually silver) container.

In E.A. Wallis Budge's Amulets and Talismans the author describes a "perfect" Kabalistic talisman. Of course, no such talisman ever existed. Budge examined many ancient Kabalistic talismans and listed what was common to most of them. In a similar manner, musicologists examined all of Johann Sebastian Bach's fugues and, with the help of a computer, came up with an "ideal" Bach fugue. However, when comparing the ideal with the actual they discovered that none of Bach's fugues perfectly matched the ideal.

Budge claimed that the ideal Kabalistic talisman had four sections:

1. The appropriate magickal name.
2. Appropriate Biblical texts.
3. A special prayer which is similar in nature but not identical to types of invocations.
4. The words "Amen" and "Selah" each repeated three times.

Gaster, in the Hastings Encyclopedia, claims the ancient talismans were made this way:

1. The parchment must be specially prepared.
2. The magickal name must be written exactly as it appeared in the Hebrew Old Testament.
3. The rest of the talisman must be written in "Ashuri" (the square Hebrew) letters.
4. No letter may touch another.
5. The talisman must be made in purity and while fasting.
6. It should be wrapped in leather or cloth (after being coiled into a tight roll).
7. It should be worn on the person or attached to his or her clothes.
8. Prayers should be said while constructing the talisman.

Gaster gives even more information and details, but these are not necessary for our study. The important thing to note is the time, care, effort and sacredness that is believed to be part of the construction of ancient Kabalistic talismans.

The early Kabalists did not create their mystic system from out of the air, no matter how romantic that idea may seem. Although the ancient Kabalistic talismans were particularly Hebraic in nature, much of what was done was based on earlier Pagan ideas. Thus, early Kabalistic talismans were not as specific as the ones made today. In fact, there were only about six reasons for making ancient Kabalistic talismans:

1. For generally beneficial and benedictory purposes.
2. For promotion of health.
3. For protection against the "Evil Eye" (curses, black magic, poisoning, etc.)

4. For the prevention of miscarriages.
5. For the promotion of fertility.
6. For the protection of mother and child at the time of birth.

As I have said before, the Kabalah is not something static and unchanging. It has evolved over the past several thousand years. These changes allow us to have a far wider variety of topics and deep precision in choosing the purpose for making our talisman. Also, it allows us to almost "fill in the spaces" according to a simple system once we know the purpose of the talisman we wish to construct.

First, we do not have to worry about the choice of an object to charge. Although precious metals were sometimes used, for eons the object of choice to use as a Kabalistic talisman has been a piece of virgin parchment. Parchment was so strong that it could be washed and used for writing over and over. Thus a used piece of parchment could carry with it various psychic energies which would be unwanted. Virgin (unused) parchment solved this problem. It was also easy to destroy once it had achieved its goal.

Today, real parchment is very expensive and hard to find. Imitation parchment is readily available at most stationery stores. If you are a purist, many occult stores do carry the real thing which is made of the skin of sheep or goats.

But why, other than for tradition, should you use parchment? In the ancient Middle East, wood was a fairly scarce commodity. Parchment was a sturdy and re-usable writing surface. It was an early, standard form of paper. For today's magicians there is nothing wrong with using plain, white, unused and unrecycled paper, except for aesthetic reasons. So, if you wish, you can use imitation parchment from a stationery store or even real parchment from an occult supply store. In this course I will be referring to the object upon which we will be making Kabalistic talismans as "paper," for paper will do just fine.

We will not be using a long scroll of paper. Modern Kabalistic talismans are much smaller and packed with more symbolism than their predecessors. If you cut out a piece of paper so that it is two inches by four inches and fold it in half, you will find that there are four squares: two on the front and two on the back, each exactly two inches by two inches. Each of these four squares is going to be filled with words and symbols. But where will we find them? Obviously, many will come in some way from the Tree of Life, the main symbol of the Kabalah. But how is this done?

TALISMANIC MAGICK

KETER: Basic inventions. Electronics. Radiations such as x-rays, radar, radio or television waves, etc. The unusual. Space vehicles. The far future. Ideas.

CHOCHMA: Radio. Television. Film. Extra Sensory Perception (ESP) and things psychic. Power generators. Magnetism. Static electricity. Rockets. Fireworks.

BINAH: (Saturn) Buildings. The elderly. Funerals. Wills. Reincarnation. Destruction of diseases and pests. Terminations and death. Plans. Debts. Real estate. Inheritances. Excavations. Mines. Trees and paper. Smelting. Fertilizers. Antiques. Concrete. Studying for exams. Acquiring the Astral Plane. The home. Obtaining esoteric knowledge.

HESED: (Jupiter) Speculation. gambling. Acquiring wealth. Abundance. Growth. Plenty. Bankers. Divination of the past. Leadership. Ambition. Career success. Obtaining friendship. Obtaining health. Acquiring honors. Obtaining luck. Law. Materialism. Poverty (the partner of wealth). Money. Expansion.

GIBURAH: (Mars) Conflict. Hunting. Military success. Energy. Vitality. Dentists. Surgeons. Surgery. Barbers. Butchers. Police. Soldiers. All things pertaining to war. Aggression. Physical strength. Courage. Politics. Debates. Athletics. Competition. Men. Lust.

TIFERET: (Sun) Obtain friendship. Obtain health. Create harmony. Obtain luck. Obtain money. Obtain patronage. Obtain peace. Find missing property. Prevent war. Regain youth. Superiors of all sorts. Illumination. Immediacy. Employees. Promotions. Labor. World leaders. Divine power.

NETZACH: (Venus) Beauty. Fostering friendship. Obtaining love. Insuring pleasure. Art. Music. Parties. Luxury. Jewels. Aphrodisiacs. Scents. Perfumes. Partnerships. Women.

HODE: (Mercury) Business and commercial success. Success in exams. Divination of the future. Influencing others. Theatrical success. Authors. Short trips. Writing. Bargain hunting. Schools. Basic medicine. Praxis (putting theory into action). Statistics. Teaching. Predictions. Self-improvement. Celibacy. The mind. Communications. Learning.

YESODE: (Moon) Knowledge of Astral Travel. Safe journeys. Achieve reconciliations. Foods, especially vegetables and flours. Fetuses and infants. Milk and dairy products. Preventing war. The home. The family. Cooking. Clairvoyance. Dreams. The sea. Agriculture. Natural medicine. Herbs.

On the facing page you will find a list of possible wants or desires associated with each Sephira. Read over the chart and see how various ideas relate to the ten Sephiroht. If something is not on the list, you can expand on the ideas list for each Sephira. Can you see, for example, how football would be related to Giburah? Or can you see that poetry is related more to Netzach than to Hode?

Let us say, for example, we wish to create a talisman to obtain a really good friendship. By going over the chart we can see that this would relate to Tiferet. Now check back to your list of Kabalistic Correspondences given in Lesson Three. From that page can be obtained the following list of items which can be put on the talisman. All of these words and items are associated with the Sephira Tiferet:

Tiferet
Gold (or Yellow)
Heart
Breast
Topaz
Divine Physician
Messengers
Intellect
Phoenix
King
Beauty
Olibanum (a scent)
YHVH El-oh-ah V'dah-aht
Sol (The Sun)
Raphael
Malacheem
Ruach
Vahv (of YHVH)
Sunflower and others. . .

This is a large list. But there are even more things which we can use. For instance, we can come up with a numerical representation through one or both of two systems of numerology. Here is the most common system used today. It is known as the Pythagorean System.

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
a	b	c	d	e	f	g	h	i
j	k	l	m	n	o	p	q	r
s	t	u	v	w	x	y	z

As you can see, the letters a, j and s are listed under and equal the number 1; the letters b, k and t equal 2, and so forth. For our talisman, let's use the key word "friendship" and figure out its numerical value according to the chart above:

f r i e n d s h i p
6+ 9+ 9+ 5+ 5+ 4+ 1+ 8+ 9+ 7 = 63 6+3 = 9

Notice that when the total of a word is greater than 9, the digits of the result are summed to get a single digit answer. This is known as "Theosophical Reduction." In our example, the single digit which can be used to represent the word "friendship" is 9. So let's add this number to our list.

A more Kabalistic system, based on the sound qualities of the letters, is as follows:

1 = a, j, i, y.
2 = b, c, k, r, q (The "c" is hard as in the word cat.)
3 = g, l, s, ch, sh (The "S" sounds like "sh" as in the word sugar.)
4 = d, m, t.
5 = e, n, h.
6 = s, u, v, w, c. (The "s" sounds like that in sea; the "c" sounds like that in cent.)
7 = o, z, s, x. (The "s" sounds like a "z" as in scissors; the "x" also sounds like a "z" as in xylophone.)
8 = p, f, x, h. (This "h", as in the German "ach", is rare in English, but occurs in other languages.)
9 = th, tt, s. (This is an "s" which comes before a "w" as in the word switch.)

Now if we take our word, this is the enumeration:

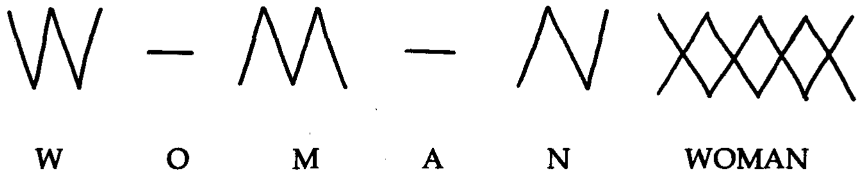
f r i e n d sh i p
8+ 2+ 1+ 5+ 5+ 4+ 3+ 1+ 8 =37 3+7=10 1+0+1

Here you can see that Theosophical Reduction must be done twice to reduce the number down to a single digit. The only time this reduction is not done is if your sum yields 11, 22 or 33, in which case you leave it as a double-digit figure. Books on numerology will explain these "master numbers" in detail.

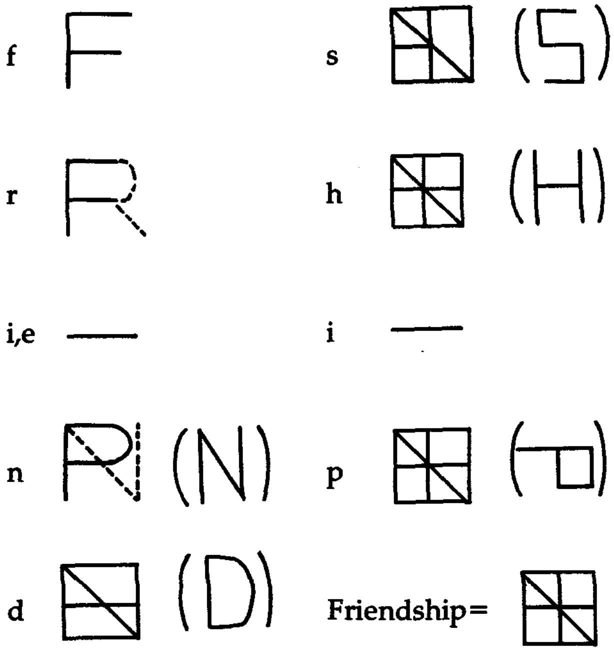
In this more Kabalistic system above we have determined that the value of the word (and idea of) friendship is 1. We can add 1 to our list.

The reason this is a more Kabalistic system of numerology is because the values of the English letters are determined by associating them with the numbers of the Hebrew letters with which they sound identical. Thus, the Hebrew letter Aleph is related to the English letter "a." Since the Aleph equals 1, in this system the "a" also equals 1. The Yud is associated with the English letters "i" and "y," and, according to some people, "j." Thus, these letters are associated with the number 10, the number associated with Yud. By Theosophical Reduction they become related to the number 1. Other possible associations, because they have several possible correspondences with Hebrew, have been moved to those numbers deemed appropriate.

Another system to make up magickal talismans was created by Austin Osman Spare, a contemporary occultist and remarkably talented artist. This derivation of his system is based upon his idea of a "Alphabet of Desire." In this system you take the English letters of a word, delete the vowels (remember, Hebrew has no vowels), and push the remaining letters together to form symbols. Here is how to create a symbol for the word "woman."

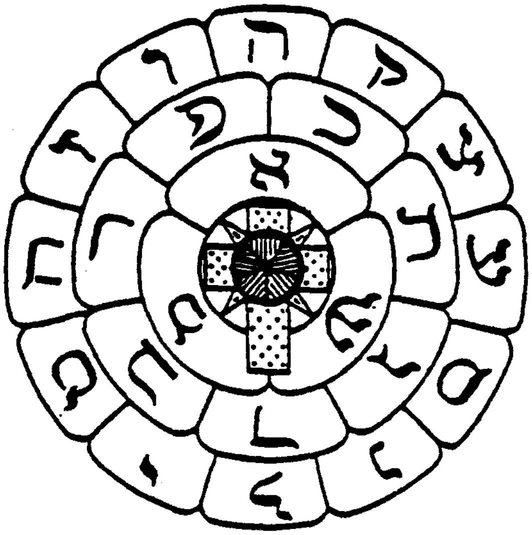


Here is how to create a symbol for "friendship."

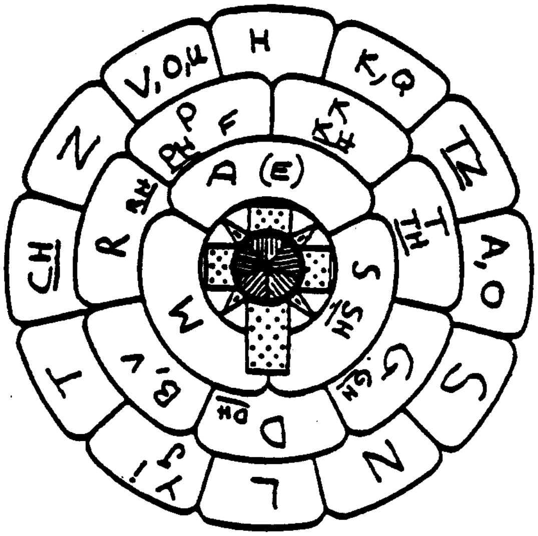


Notice, too, that the letters are made angular and may be turned sideways, as with the "p," or exaggerated as with the evolution of the "r." If you use a little imagination you can get a nice, artistic and somewhat complex symbol to add to our list representing friendship.

Another system you can use to make symbols for use on your talisman is based on the illustration shown below. It is the center of a symbol central to the Golden Dawn called the Hermetic Rose Cross. As you can see, there are three circles of symbols in the figure on the upper left. These, of course, are the Hebrew letters. They are arranged according to a description of the letters given in the Sepher Yetzirah. The transliteration into English is shown in the symbol on the opposite page.



To use this glyph to make mystic symbols, simply lay a piece of thin paper over the figure. Draw a small circle in the section where you find the first letter of the word which you wish to symbolize. From that circle, draw a straight line to the space with the second letter of the word. Continue with this pattern until you have completed the word. Draw a short line across the end of the line to indicate the end of the word. If you have any double letters in your word, simply draw a loop back to the same section as indicated in the example immediately above. Note, too, that there are a few duplicated letters. If you have a word with a letter found in more than one place on the figure, choose whichever design looks most aesthetically pleasing.



H
K,Q TZ
A,O
S
N
L
Y,I
T
CH
Z
V,O,U P
PH
F
K
KH
T
TH
G
GH
D
DH
B,V
R RH
A (E)
S SH
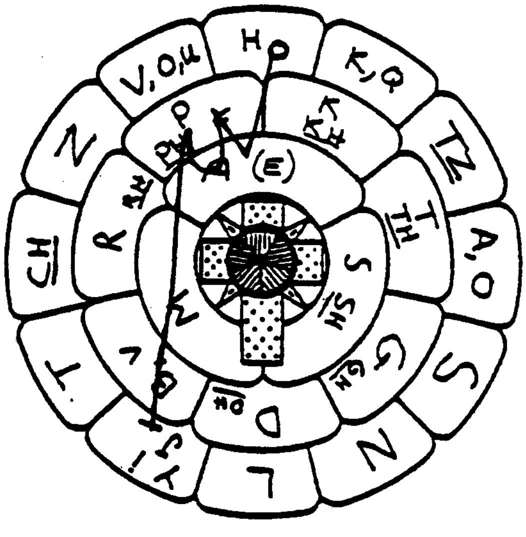
M



H
K,Q TZ
A,O
S
N
L
Y,I
T
CH
Z
V,O,U P
PH
F
K
KH
T
TH
G
GH
D
DH
B,V
R RH
A (E)
S SH
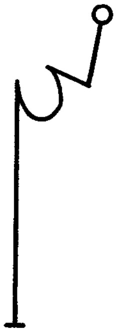
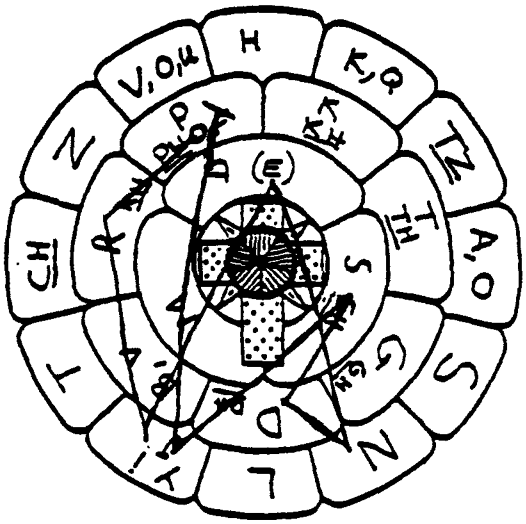
M



Happy

It is okay to have lines cross over each other. See the example below:



H
K,Q TZ
A,O
S Z
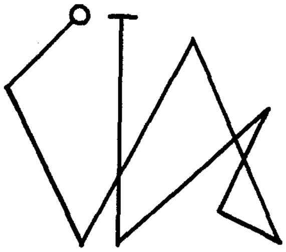
L
Y,I
T
CH
Z
V,O,U
(E)



Friendship

Notice that in the above two samples, for the words "happy" and "friendship" I have shown that the symbol, once designed and understood, may have any dimensions. Thus we have another symbol which can be added to our list of items which can be used to make a talisman.

With what we have thus far, it is possible now to make up quite a nice talisman for friendship. All we need to do is fill up the four squares of our piece of paper with selections from our list. You do not have to use all of the selections from the list, nor should you be limited by the contents of the list.

On the next page is an example drawn from the list we have created. On side one we see a heart, the letter vahv plus the letter name spelled out. We also see the words Ruach and intellect. Again, all of these ideas are from the list we have compiled.

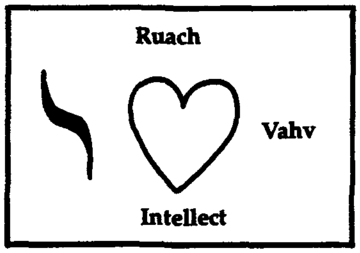
On the second side we see that the whole side has been shaded golden yellow. In the center is the astrological symbol for the Sun, a circle with a dot at the center. Also on this side is the God Name, YHVH El-oh-ah V'dah-aht and the name of the Archangel Raphael who is the Divine Physician.

On side three is the name of the Sephira, Tiferet, and its meaning which is beauty. On either side is found the name of the Order of Angels, the Malacheem which means Messengers. In the center is the symbol derived from the system of A.O. Spare.

Finally, on side four are seen the numerological values of the word "friendship" and the symbol drawn from the center of the Hermetic Rose Cross.

It is not necessary to make your talismans absolutely perfect works of art. Merely draw your best and put all of your energies into the construction of the talisman and you will be successful.

In the next lesson you will learn how to make your piece of paper with symbols on it change into a powerful magickal tool. To do so you will also need something in which to place the talisman once it is charged. The easiest way to do this is by getting a felt square in the color appropriate to the Sephira with which you are working. In this case, yellow or gold would be the correct color. Take the square and cut out a piece three inches by five inches. Fold it in half and staple or sew up two of the open sides. You will have a container which is the right size and into which the charged talisman may be slipped. Don't sew or staple the top until after you have placed the talisman inside! A string may also be attached so that it can be worn as a necklace under your clothes.



Ruach
Vahv
Intellect

SIDE ONE

SHADED GOLDEN YELLOW

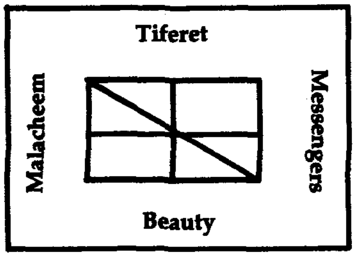
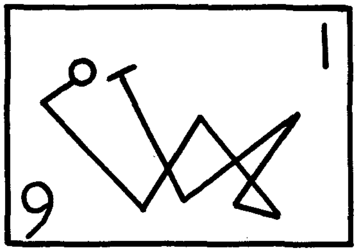
YHVH El-oh-ah
V'dah-aht
Raphael
The Divine Physician

SIDE TWO



Tiferet
Malacheem
Messengers
Beauty

SIDE THREE



SIDE FOUR

It is important for you to understand that you cannot learn magick by just reading. It takes practice, study and thinking. If you have not re-read, studied and thought about the previous lessons in this course, you should do so immediately.

If you have done so you should have noticed that the Hebrew spelling of the Archangelic names used on the elemental weapons always ends with the letter known as the Lahmed. Since this has an "l" sound, and the Archangelic names all end with the syllable "-el," this should be obvious. Now look back to Lesson Three where instructions are given on the symbols for the Pentacle. Auriel is missing the Lahmed when spelled in Hebrew. Did you catch this as you studied your lessons and think it was a typographical error? If so, congratulations! You are well on the way to being a thinking, competent magician.

If not, do not feel bad nor despair. This was not meant to be a trick or a trap. Rather, it is a simple lesson which is better learned here than during the performance of a magickal rite! It is important to be certain that everything you are doing and using is correct.

So go over and restudy the lessons up to this point. Don't just read them. Think about them, question them, take the logic presented in them to the limit and see where it takes you or if it breaks down. In this way you can become an excellent, fearless, powerful magician.

On your Pentacle, you should correct your Hebrew: Auriel looks like this: אוריאל

Supplement to Lesson Seven

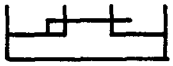
At this time some of you may be thinking that the information I have presented to you on Kabalistic talismans is incomplete. Why didn't I mention that the numeral "6" could also be used for the friendship talisman as Tiferet is the sixth Sephira? And what about all those other talismans one can see in books and for sale in occult shops which look nothing like the talismans I have described?

These are fair questions for which I have two answers. First, the ancient Kabalists made individualized talismans, not mass-produced items. In fact, some are so individualized that various abbreviated Hebrew inscriptions cannot be interpreted even after years of study. Certainly you could copy designs from other sources. But the work and time spent in the designing of your personal talisman is Kabalistically important. Also, many of the pre-fab book talismans have been mutilated and changed over the centuries, making their validity questionable.

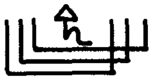
Second, and more importantly, this course is meant to be an introduction to Ceremonial Magick, not the final word. As stated in an earlier lesson, a goal of this course is to allow you to pick up any book on magick, read it, and have enough understanding of it to use what is in the book (I have to add that over the past fifteen years highly advanced magick books have been published which are tremendously difficult for those who do not understand specialized meaning of key words. But, being very advanced, it would not be a good idea to start off with them, anyway). I have numerous books on talismans, and to present all of the information in those books, all of the sigils, symbols and ideas, would take hundreds of pages.

However, I think it only fair to present to you in supplement some other symbolic systems for representing planetary influences. Yes, it will be incomplete, but it will show you where they are derived. If you want, feel free to include them in your talisman making.

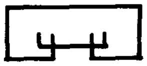
The book the Arbatel of Magick is extremely rare today. It was first published in Latin in 1575 at Basle, and published for the first time in English in London in 1655. It is supposed to contain nine sections, but only one remains (or ever existed). It is known as "Isagogue," or "A Book of the Institutions of Magick." In this work, which is introductory in nature, are given the so-called "Olympian Spirits," each with its own "character" or symbol. Here is a listing of their names, symbols and the planets to which they correspond:



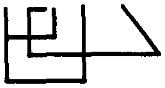
ARATRON (Saturn)



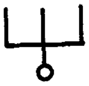
PHALEC (Mars)



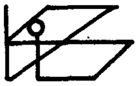
HAGITH (Venus)



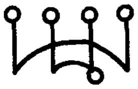
BETHER (Jupiter)



OCH (Sun)



OPHIEL (Mercury)



PHUL (Moon)

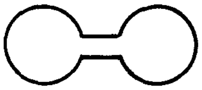
Other symbols you can use on your talisman include the astrological symbols of the planets and their number (which is the same as the number of the Sephira) as follows:

PLANET	NUMBER	SYMBOL
Saturn	3	♄
Mars	5	♂
Venus	7	♀
Moon	9	☽ (◡ or ◠)
Jupiter	4	♃
Sun	6	☉
Mercury	8	☿

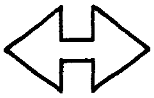
Notice that there is no planet associated with numbers one and two. This is beause the first two Sephiroht are associated with what is called the "first swirlings" and the belt of the Zodiac. Some modern Kabalists do equate these with the outer planets, but this is debatable and there is still too much disagreement to decide for anything other than the ancient sources as given here.

You can also see that the "Talismanic Magick" Chart does not include the tenth Sephira. This is related to the planet Earth and to the magickal elements of which our planet is composed. It is not needed for our system of talisman making.

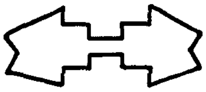
It would also be appropriate to cut your talisman into a shape with the number of sides matching the number of the Sephira or planet. The square design is always appropriate as is the circular design with a hinge as shown below. This design looks like a locket:



In a similar fashion, an appropriate shape for a Saturn or Binah oriented talisman (related to the number three) is the triangular locket design shown below:



A locket made of nonagons would be associated with the Lunar or Yesodic talisman:



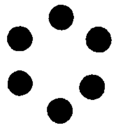
Geomancy is an ancient divinatory art with similarities to the Yi King (commonly spelled I Ching). Originally, dots were made at random with a pointed stick in the soil. The number of these dots was then totaled. If the sum was even, two dots were made to the side. If the number was odd, only one dot was used. A figure made up of four lines of either one or two dots was thus created.

This process was then repeated several times followed by more patterns synthesized from combinations of the original patterns. Finally, all of these figures were placed on a horoscope chart and interpreted according to a set of rules.

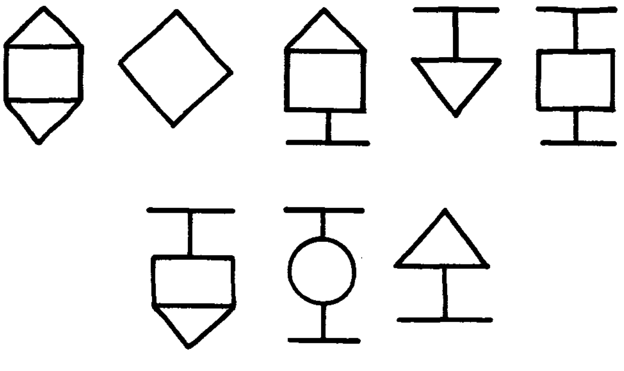
When learning Geomancy, it appears complex and difficult. Actually, one becomes quite facile at it with practice. The rules of Geomancy are available in several books including The Golden Dawn by Israel Regardie and The Equinox by Aleister Crowley.

Each Geomantic figure is related to a particular planet. By playing "connect the dots" with the figure you can make a series of designs related to the planets and based on the Geomantic symbols. This subject is too complex to discuss fully here, but I want to give you an idea of what the symbols look like so you will recognize them in talismans you may see in various pieces of literature and on pre-fab talismans.

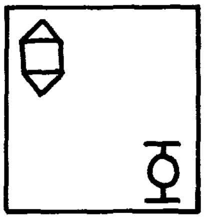
The figure below is the Geomantic figure known as Carcer (kahr-sehr). It is associated with Saturn in its rulership of Capricorn:

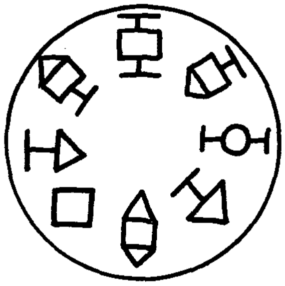


By connecting the dots you can make any of these figures:

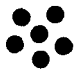


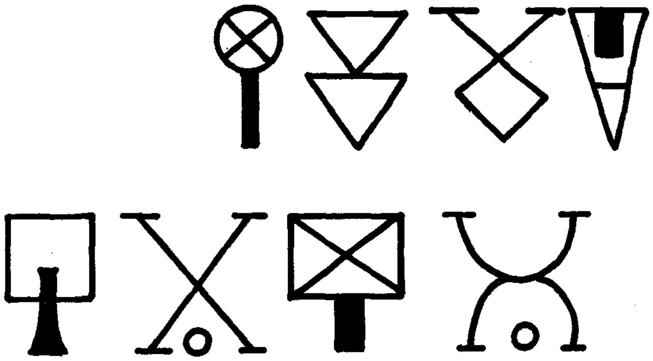
When used on talismans they might be used singly or in groups as shown in the samples below:





A series of more complex figures can be constructed from the Geomantic figure Acquisitio (Ak-kwih-seet-ee-yoh), wherein Jupiter rules Sagittarius:





Geomantic symbols used in talismans all have the same style and "feel" as the ones shown above. They are presented here so you can recognize their appearance when you see them. As an example of this, see the book entitled Raphael's Ancient Manuscript of Talismanic Magic. It contains many typical talismans which use the above Geomantic type symbols. It also uses such things as the written letters of the Enochian or Angelic language (for samples of this language see the Watchtower Ritual).

There are several other books which have examples which you can use as a basis or as a model for your talismans such as The Black Pullet and the pseudo 6th-10th Books of Moses.

However. . . you will never be a true magician if all you can do is copy what others have done before you. It is far better to design your own talismans from scratch. This is the way the ancient Kabalists did it, and it is the way you can do it, too. Therefore, I strongly urge you to ignore talismans you have seen presented elsewhere and create your own for now. Later you can copy or borrow as you will.

In many ways the creation of a talisman is like the designing of a magickal ritual. While there are certain rules and patterns to follow, you are allowed a great deal of leeway within those patterns.

Remember, anybody can copy anything or follow a few rules. But magick is more than just copying and learning rules. That is merely the "science" aspect of magick. What you do within the guidelines is the "art" aspect of magick. The best magicians are not mere copyists. They are creative artists of the highest caliber. I hope that by the time you finish this course you will be well on your way to knowing the rules (being a Magickal Scientist) and being capable of creativity and originality within those rules (being a Magickal Artist). The person who perfects both of these is a powerful wyzard, indeed.

REVIEW

The following questions are designed to help you determine if you have mastered the information in Lesson Seven. Please try to answer them without looking at the text. The answers are in Appendix Two.

1. What is your direct link to the astral plane?
2. How is the Kabalistic System of Mental Magick different from Positive Affirmations and Creative Visualization.
3. Give the ways Witches worship Satan.
4. What happened to the first edition of Reginald Scot's The Discoverie of Witchcraft and why?
5. What book, published in 1921, sparked an interest in Witchcraft?
6. Why was the book Witchcraft Today, by Gerald Gardner, important?
7. Define "talisman."
8. What should you do before performing Grey Magick.
9. What does "sky-clad" mean?
10. How many talismans with the same purpose can be charged at the same time? How many with different purposes can be charged at the same time?
11. What is a house "Guardian?"
12. What is Theosophical Reduction?

The following questions only you can answer.

1. Are you continuing with your rituals?
2. Is your life changing in any way?
3. What are your feelings about the religion of Wicca? Are you prejudiced against any particular religion?
4. Have you made any talismans yet?
5. Are you keeping your diaries up to date?
6. Can you think of a situation where you would be willing to face the problems of negative Karma for doing Black Magick?

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Bach, R., Illusions, The Adventures of a Reluctant Messiah, Bell, 1979.
Crowther, P. & A., Witches Speak, The, Weiser, 1976.
Cunningham, S., Magical Herbalism, Llewellyn, 1982.
Farrar, J. & S., Eight Sabbats for Witches, Hale, 1981.
Gardner, G., High Magic's Aid, Weiser, 1975.
Witchcraft Today, Arrow, 1975.
Johns, June, King of the Witches, Coward McCann, 1969.
Ophiel, Art & Practice of Getting Material Things Through Creative Visualization, The, Weiser, 1976.
Art & Practice of Talismanic Magic, The, Weiser, 1979.
Patai, Raphael, Hebrew Goddess, The, Avon, 1978.
Raven, Book of the Holy Strega, The, Nemi Publications, N.D.
Book of Ways, The, Vol. I, N.D., Vol. 2, 1982, Nemi Publications.
Regardie, I., Golden Dawn, The, Llewellyn, 1978.
How to Make and Use Talismans, Aquarian, 1981.
Sheba, Lady, Grimoire of Lady Sheba, The, Llewellyn (out of print), 1974.
Starhawk, Spiral Dance, The, Harper & Row, 1979.
Turner, R (translator), Arbatel of Magick, Heptangle, 1979.
Valiente, D., ABC of Witchcraft, St. Martins, 1973.
Witchcraft for Tomorrow, St. Martins, 1973.

Lesson

8

PART ONE

In the previous lesson, as in several other lessons, I have indicated that theoretical perfection is not necessary for successful magickal work. All you need to do is your best. This is an important consideration, as otherwise there would be even fewer real magicians in the world today. Visualization work would be limited to those with textbook perfect visualization abilities. Vibration of the names and sacred words would be limited to those with a full knowledge of Hebrew, Latin and Greek (not to mention Egyptian, Chaldean, Enochian and other languages) and who are also professional quality singers. Likewise, no talismans would be made, save by artists of the highest rank.

Thankfully, this is not necessary. What is necessary is that you do your best. But what exactly is your best?

Imagine for a moment that you are somebody's supervisor. They turn in a piece of work to you for your approval. Although it is very good, you believe that the worker is capable of better and you tell the worker so. To this the worker replies, "But this is my best work." You reply that you think the worker is capable of more and want the worker to do the project over. To the pleasure of both of you, the new work is far superior.

This is not just some sort of "strive to do better" philosophy. The fact is that most of us are not even aware of or awake to our capabilities and possibilities.

I have a friend who is a writer. She asked me one time to comment on some writing she had done. I told her I would do so only if I could be very honest. I read the work and gave her my honest opinion: it was awful! Some of the situations were unbelievable. The dialogue was awkward or inappropriate. She was furious with me and I thought she would never speak to me again after my critique.

About a week later I got a call from her. She greeted me with, "You're a mean son-of-a-bitch!" She told me how she had been up all night, upset over what I had said. The next day she had gone to a friend who was a professional writer and asked for his opinion. He apparently agreed with me on several points. She spent hours rewriting the pages. She read them to me over the phone and I was deeply impressed. She knew that her writing was now much better. I still think it is one of the best things I have ever read. I told her, simply, that I knew she was capable of work as fine as this and I would not let her get away with doing less than her best.

Likewise, you should not allow yourself to do less than your best. Many times your best is better than you think it can be. Strive to always do the very best you can.

If you ever have the opportunity to talk with someone who performs and records music for a living, ask them if there is anything they would change on their last album. Having been a musician and knowing many musicians, I will tell you now that to a person they will each tell you that there are many things they would have done differently. They seek perfection, but settle for their best.

Across my room sits a pentacle which I recently made. Quite frankly, it not only is one of the best things I have ever done, but it is also better than most of the similar pentacles I have seen. Some people have told me that it is incredibly well done. But I see the lines which could be better, the letters which could be better formed. It came out better than I thought it ever could, but I am still striving for perfection.

Of course, we can never achieve perfection while we are physically alive. I have heard that when craftspeople make Persian rugs they will always put in a wrong thread somewhere because "only Allah is perfect." I am not saying that you should make imperfections in your designs for talismans. Rather, strive for perfection, but accept your best. Remember, though, that your best may be far better than you think.

Let me make clear, then, that the examples of talismans given in this course are just that: samples. You can adjust them as you will, adding or subtracting from them according to what you think is right. Use them as guidelines only. When you actually construct them, they are no longer samples. They need to be your very best.

With this in mind, let's look at another sample talisman:

After being out of work for six months, Thomas Jones has just gotten a new, well-paying job. But over the last several months his debts have piled up. Unless he can get help soon he may be kicked out of where he lives (the gas, electricity and phone have already been cut off) and have his car repossessed. Thomas decides that he would need a thousand dollars to tide him over until his new paychecks start coming in regularly. Notice that in this instance, the desire for money will cover many problems. Thus, in this type of situation, doing a talisman for more money is appropriate.

First, a Tarot divination is done. The results of this divination are very positive, so a list is made of what figures could be included on the talisman.

A Talisman to Obtain One Thousand Dollars

Key Word: Thousand
Key Symbol: $1,000
Sephira: Hesed
Planet: Jupiter

Selections from Kabalistic Correspondences page:

Sephira number: 4
Color: Blue
God Name: El
Stone: Sapphire; Amethyst
English of Tzadkiel: Justice of God
Angelic Order: Chasmaleem
Sephira meaning: Mercy
Chakra: Heart
Metal: Tin
Archangel: Tzadkiel
Creature: Unicorn
Tool: Wand

English of Chasmaleem: Brilliant Ones

Western (Pythagorean) numerology:

for: T H O U S A N D
2+ 8+ 6+ 3+ 1+ 1+ 5+ 4 =30 3+0 = 3

In Kabalistic numerology:

Th O U S A N D
9+ 7+ 6+ 7+ 1+ 5+ 4= 39 3+9 = 12 1+2 = 3

Interestingly, 3 represents the idea "thousand" in both Western numerology and Kabalistic numerology.

Here is the sigil for "Thousand" taken from the Rose:

or or

Here is the system of Spare:

THOUSAND THSND

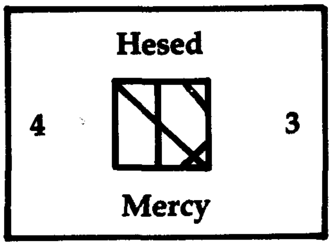
T +
Add H=  (H on its side)

Add S=  (very angular, stylized letter)

Add N=
Add D=  (angular, stylized letter)

Here is the final symbol:
Here is the sigil for the Olympian Spirit Bether:
Here is the astrological symbol of Jupiter: ♃



Hesed
4
3
Mercy

Side 1

El Tzadkiel
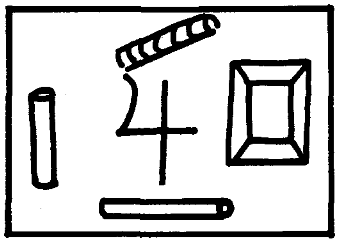
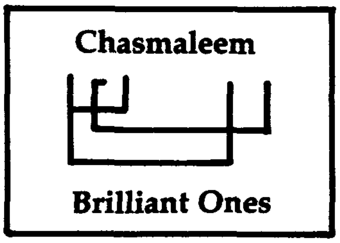
Justice of God

Side 2



Side 3



Chasmaleem
Brilliant Ones

Side 4

Now, with all of the above, let's try a sample talisman to obtain one thousand dollars. On the previous page you will find the sample. Side 1 has the symbol from the system of Spare, the number derived from the numerological systems, the number of the Sephira, the name of the Sephira and its translation.

Side 2 has the sigil from the Rose, the God Name, the Archangelic Name and the translation of that name, plus a heart as the symbol of the heart chakra.

Side 3 has the symbol for Jupiter in the center. Above is an image of a unicorn's horn. Below is a wand and to the left is a tin can. To the right is a gem to represent a sapphire. This whole side is shaded deep blue.

Side 4 has the sigil of Bether plus the name of the Angelic Order above and the translation of that name below.

Thus you can see how easy it is to construct a talisman from the information contained so far in this course. I would urge you at this time to try your hand at creating some sample talismans. Try one to help pass a test, to win at gambling or obtain spiritual wisdom. Figure out what your needs are and then try designing some talismans for those purposes.

At this point in your studies I suggest that any talismans you create should be constructed from the information contained so far in this course. Do not, at this time, go to outside sources. This is not meant to hinder you from looking at other sources. I always encourage looking at the works of other writers.

The fact of the matter is that some books which claim to be showing talismanic symbols give in part or in toto symbols used to "summon up" spiritual beings, entities or powers (call them what you will). As an example of this I call your attention to the small book, Secrets of Magical Seals by Anna Riva. This book gives a wide variety of symbols with "instructions" on how to use them as talismans. One of the largest sections of this book is dedicated to the "Seals of Solomon" and you are told that "an appropriate seal can be found to influence one's special situation or objective."

These "seals" come directly from The Greater Key of Solomon and are actually known as "Medals or Pentacles." Their purpose is to strike "terror into the Spirits and . . . [reduce] them to obedience. . . If thou invokest the Spirits by virtue of these Pentacles, they will obey thee without repugnance, and will fear them, and thou shalt see them so surprised by fear and terror, that none of them will be sufficiently bold to wish to oppose thy will."

These are not figures for use on talismans such as we have been discussing. They are protective devices for use in magickal evocations and invocations.

By the end of this course you will be able to tell the difference between symbols to be used on talismans and symbols to be used for other purposes. At that time freely choose whatever symbols you wish. At this time, stick to what you have been shown. Remember, one of the goals of this course is to allow you to pick up and understand any book of magick by the end of these lessons, not by the middle!

Let's assume that you have constructed your talisman, after, of course, you have done a divination to discover the outcome of making the device. The next step is to empower it, to charge it, to consecrate it. This brings us to the next section of this lesson.

PART TWO

The charging of a Kabalistic talisman requires more preparation and, to my mind, involvement than does the charging of a Low Magick talisman. In common with the Low Magick talisman it may be constructed at any time. Another similarity is that Talismans should be charged during the waxing of the Moon and Amulets should be charged during the waning of the Moon. But the time for the charging of a Kabalistic talisman is far more precisely defined.

The phases of the Moon each last about two weeks. The Kabalah moves down to a daily structure. Each day is associated with a planet. Monday is short for "Moon-day." In French, the name of Tuesday is Mardi, the day of Mars. Tues was the name of a European God who was equated with the God Mars. Similarly, the Northern European's Woden's day became Wednesday. In French it is Mercredi, the day of Mercury. Thor's day became Thursday. Thor relates to the god Jupiter, and in French Jeudi means Jupiter's day and is the name for Thursday. Freya's day became Friday. In French this is Vendredi or the day of Venus. Saturn's day and Sun-day are obvious.

Thus we see that each day is associated with a planet:

Monday = Moon
Tuesday = Mars
Wednesday = Mercury
Thursday = Jupiter
Friday = Venus
Saturday = Saturn
Sunday = Sun

If we are going to make a talisman associated with the Sephira Hesed and the planet Jupiter, it would make sense to charge that talisman on the day associated with that planet, Thursday. But there's more. For the charging of the Kabalistic talisman gets even more precise than moving to a day of the week.

We tend to think of our numerical system as being what is called "base ten," a decimal system. This, however, has not always been the case. At one time base 12 was very important and may have been the dominant mathematical system. There are still many remnants of base 12. There are special names for the first 12 numbers. After that the numbers are combinations such as three-ten (thirteen), four-ten (fourteen), twenty-five, thirty-six, etc. There is no "oneteen" or "twoteen." Furthermore, there are 12 inches in a foot, not 10 inches. There are 12 months in a year even though there are 13 Lunar cycles. There are 12 constellations in the Zodiacal belt, although more or less could have been chosen. As an example, the constellation Cetus, the Whale, is within the Zodiacal belt, but is ignored by most astrologers.

The day is split into 24 hours. Dividing this in half, we find that there are two periods of twelve hours each. It is logical to assume that there are 12 daylight hours and 12 darkness hours. While this is nice to assume on a theoretical basis, the unfortunate fact is that this precise 12-and-12 day only occurs twice during the year: on the Equinoxes.

The ancient Kabalists did divide the day into 24 hours and associated each hour with a planet. There have been several variations on the following list, but I have found the one shown here, taken from The Greater Key of Solomon, to be the most accurate (see table pp. 346-347).

This table of Magickal or Planetary Hours shows that each hour is associated with a planet. If you go back and look at the page of Kabalistic Correspondences in Lesson Three you will see that there are no planets associated with either Keter or Hochma. If you make a talisman associated with either of these two Sephiroht, it can be charged at any hour. Those talismans associated with the other Sephiroht must be charged during the appropriate Magickal or Planetary hour.

It is important that you understand the comments under the Table of Planetary or Magickal Hours. These Magickal Hours are astronomical in nature and are not based upon the ticks or non-audible hum of common clocks. Planetary Hours are not the same as our regular sixty-minute hours.

Here are the steps to find out how long a planetary hour is:

1. Divide the number of minutes between sunrise and sunset by 12. This gives you the length of a daylight hour.
2. Subtract the number of minutes in a daylight Magickal hour from 120 (the number of minutes in two regular hours). This gives you the number of minutes in a darkness Magickal hour.

Example: Let's say that the sun rises at 5:00 A.M. and sets at 7:00 P.M. This gives us a daylight period of 14 hours or (multiply by 60 minutes per hour) 840 minutes. Divide this by 12 and we get a Magickal daylight hour of 70 minutes. This means that the first Magickal hour will run from 5:00 A.M. to 6:10 A.M. The second will run from 6:10 A.M. to 7:20 A.M., etc.

Subtracting 70 (the minutes in a daylight Magickal hour) from 120 (the number of minutes in two hours) you will see that a nighttime Magickal hour on this day lasts 50 minutes. Continuing with the above example, we can see that the first evening Magickal Hour will last from 7:00 P.M. to 7:50 P.M. The second evening Magickal Hour will run from 7:50 P.M. to 8:40 P.M., etc.

Obviously, this entire process could be reversed. You could determine the length of time from sunset to sunrise and divide it by twelve to first find the length of a nighttime Magickal hour. It will work both ways. The important thing to remember is that Planetary Hours are based on the length of time between sunset and sunrise, sunrise and sunset. They are not based on 60-minute hours.

For some reason, many students seem to have difficulty working out the Magickal Hours. Usually this lasts until they try to work out a set of Magickal Hours for one day. If, therefore, the Planetary Hours are not clear to you right away, try working out a day or two. The sunrise and sunset times are listed in most daily newspapers in the weather section. Many sporting goods stores also have lists of these times.

Table of Planetary or Magickal Hours

	Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Weds.	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
Sunrise
1st Hour	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn
2nd Hour	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter
3rd Hour	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars
4th Hour	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun
5th Hour	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus
6th Hour	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury
7th Hour	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon
8th Hour	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn
9th Hour	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter
10th Hour	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars
11th Hour	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun
12th Hour	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus

Table of Planetary or Magickal Hours

	Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednes.	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
Sunset
1st Hour	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury
2nd Hour	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon
3rd Hour	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn
4th Hour	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter
5th Hour	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars
6th Hour	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun
7th Hour	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus
8th Hour	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury
9th Hour	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon
10th Hour	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn
11th Hour	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars	Mercury	Jupiter
12th Hour	Mercury	Jupiter	Venus	Saturn	Sun	Moon	Mars

Comments

Magickal or Planetary Hours are not the same as regular daily hours. Divide the total time between sunrise and sunset by 12. This will give you the length of the Magickal Hours of the day. Dividing the time between sunset and sunrise by 12 will give you the length of the Planetary Hours of the night. The hours of the day and night will be of different lengths except on the Equinoxes.*

---

* Sunrise and sunset tables are given in Llewellyn's Daily Planetary Guide.

Times for Charging Kabalistic Talismans

BEST: On the day and in the hour associated with appropriate planet.
EXCELLENT: On any day, in the hour of the appropriate planet.
NOT ACCEPTABLE: Other times.
EXCEPTIONS: Keter and Hochma, which are not associated with planets.

Phases of the Moon must be observed.

In the last lesson we designed a talisman for friendship which was associated with the planet Sol, the Sun. First let me say that I do know that the Sun is not what we would today consider a planet. However, the word planet means "wanderer." Those bodies in the skies which moved faster than the slow turn of the stars were considered to be wanderers or planets. Thus since the Sun and Moon appear to move faster than the backdrop of stars from our Earth-centered point of view, they are considered planets.

The best time to charge this talisman would be on the day associated with the planet, Sunday, in the magickal Hour of the Sun. But let us assume that today is Monday and we do not wish to wait for Sunday to come around to charge the talisman. Let us further assume that we wish to charge the talisman in the evening.

We can see from the previous chart that on Monday the Sun is related to the seventh Magickal Hour after sunset. If we also go by the example given earlier of 50 minute magickal evening hours and sunset at 7:00 P.M., we can develop the following chart:

After Sunset	Planet	Time
1st Hour	Venus	7:00-7:50 P.M.
2nd Hour	Mercury	7:50—8:40 P.M.
3rd Hour	Moon	8:40-9:30 P.M.
4th Hour	Saturn	9:30-10:20 P.M.
5th Hour	Jupiter	10:20-11:10 P.M.
6th Hour	Mars	11:10 P.M. to Midnight
7th Hour	Sun	Midnight to 12:50 A.M., etc.

So on this particular Monday the evening Planetary Hour of the Sun does not come until the midnight hour. It may happen that this would not be a good time for us to do the ritual. Perhaps we may have to arise early in the morning and do not wish to stay up quite that late.

On Tuesday evening, however, the Planetary Hour of the Sun comes only four Magickal Hours after sunset. Since the times would be very close with only a day difference, this would mean that on this particular Tuesday the evening Magickal Hour of the Sun would last from about 9:30 to 10:20 P.M. with a few minutes' difference at most. In this theoretical example, the Tuesday evening hour works out fine, so we decide to charge the talisman on Tuesday evening.

Remember, a talisman itself is nothing but inert material. It must be activated by the forces of higher planes and guided by our Will. Even if you go to an occult store and buy an expensive (and frequently poorly or incorrectly made) talisman, it is still inert until it is charged. The effect of the following ritual is to endow an inert and impotent "thing" with balanced motion in a given direction.

The Simple Talisman Charging and Consecrating Ritual

Part One:

1. Set up your altar as per your regular ritual practice.
2. Put on your altar the talisman, ready to be charged.
    a. It should already have been designed and constructed.
    b. According to the Moon's phase it should be deemed a Talisman or Amulet.
    c. A bag to hold it, such as already described, should lie next to the talisman on the altar.
    d. A divination must have been done to determine the outcome of the Magickal Operation.
    e. A word or short phrase should be determined to represent the talisman.
3. You should take a ritual cleansing bath as previously described in this course.

Part Two:

At the appropriate hour (in the case of our example, the hour of the Sun) begin the ritual with the following:

1. The Relaxation Ritual.
2. The Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

3. The Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram.
4. The Middle Pillar Ritual (do NOT do the Circulation of the Body of Light).

Part Three:

1. Change the energy flowing through you as a result of the Middle Pillar Ritual by the use of your imagination and Will to the color of the appropriate Sephira. In the case of our example you would use pure Gold or Yellow.
2. Pick up the talisman and hold it between your hands. Direct the energy controlled in the Middle Pillar down your arms, into your hands and thus into the talisman. Feel it flow!
3. Say:

a. Come, oh (vibrate name of the Angelic Order), servants to God. Surround, Consecrate and charge this talisman! (re-vibrate name of Angelic Order.)

b. Oh (vibrate name of Archangel), help thy humble servant and consecrate and charge this talisman! (re-vibrate name of Archangel.)

c. I invoke the power of (vibrate God name)!!! Charge and consecrate this talisman for thy name's sake! (re-vibrate God name.)

In our example, the name of the Angelic Order is "Malacheem" and the Archangel is Raphael. The God Name is Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh El-oh-ah V'dah-aht. These can be found on the first list of Kabalistic Correspondences. I hope you are beginning to see just how important that page of information is.

4. Using the predetermined word or short phrase, say, out loud, the purpose of the talisman.
5. Hold the talisman flat in your left hand. Pick up the Rainbow Wand by the band of color associated with the planet with which you are working. To do this you must know which planet is said to rule which sign.

Sign	Planet
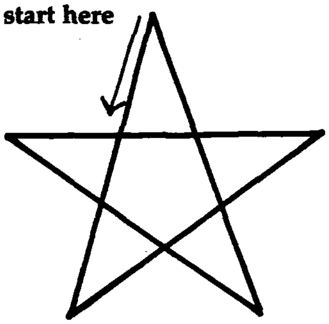
Aries	Mars
Taurus	Venus (loving security, luxury)
Gemini	Mercury
Cancer	Moon

Leo	Sun
Virgo	Mercury (more practical than Gemini)
Libra	Venus
Scorpio	Mars (energy and instability)
Sagittarius	Jupiter
Capricorn	Saturn (outgoing, seeking change)
Aquarius	Saturn (erratic, revolutionary energy)
Pisces	Jupiter (easily changeable, kind, receptive)

As you can see, some of the planets have dual rulership over signs. In the above chart you are given the information necessary to decide which band of the Rainbow Wand to hold. In our example, you would hold the yellow band, the band associated with the sign of Leo, which is ruled by the Sun.

Holding the Rainbow Wand by the appropriate band, make an invoking earth pentagram over the talisman. This pentagram should not be made horizontally, but vertically, like the pentagrams in the LBRP, but smaller. You will find that your Wand is horizontal, parallel to the Earth. The black end of the Rainbow Wand should be slightly lower than the white end. It should never be higher than the white end.



The Invoking Earth Pentagram

If you have not as yet constructed your Rainbow Wand, or if it is an emergency and you do not have your Rainbow Wand handy, you can use the blade with which you performed the LBRP or your right index finger.

6. Now, inhale, and thrust the black end of the Rainbow Wand, (dagger or finger) at the center of the pentagram you have formed while you exhale and vibrate the appropriate God Name. In the case of our example it is Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh El-oh-ah V'dah-aht.
7. Repeat Steps 5 and 6 to total the number of the Sephira with which the talisman is associated. In our example we would perform Steps 5 and 6 for a total of six times, six being the number of Tiferet.
8. Say firmly and meaningfully, SO MOTE IT BE!
9. Place the talisman in the container you have prepared for it.

Part Four:

1. Perform the Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram.
2. Perform the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

The ritual is complete

Notes:

1. Before doing any Grey Magick, such as talismanic magick, always do a divination, such as with Tarot cards, to learn if it is a good idea to do this magick.

2. You can charge several talismans for the same purpose at the same time, but you should not try to charge several talismans for different purposes at the same time.

3. Keep the talisman on your person or very close to you at all times. With a string you can make the bag which contains the talisman into a pendant on a necklace. If you are giving the talisman to another person:

a. ask their permission to do the magick for them first.

b. have that person keep the talisman near or on his/her body.

4. Destroy the talisman (burn and throw the ashes to the wind or place them in running water or bury them) once it has achieved its intended purpose. If you set a limit on the talisman, destroy it at the end of the time limit even if it has not as yet achieved its goal.

This form of magick is quite solitary in nature. Obviously, nobody else is necessary to allow you to perform the charging and consecration of a talisman. However, this Simple Talisman Charging and Consecration Ritual does make a wonderful and powerful group rite.

Rather than repeating the whole ritual, I am just going to give you notes on how this ritual magick can be turned into ceremonial magick.

ONE. Everyone in the group should be informed of the purpose of the talisman. They all should be together when the divination is performed.

TWO. All present should take ritual baths.

THREE. If there is a leader, that person should sit in the East unless the leader is the person charging the talisman.

FOUR. The LBRP and BRH should be performed by the group as described earlier in this course.

FIVE. All present should do the Middle Pillar Ritual.

SIX. When the person doing the charging feels everyone is together (Hint: try to synchronize breathing), he or she should tell everyone to change the pure white energy of the Middle Pillar to the color associated with this talisman.

SEVEN. Let the person doing the charging direct everyone else to send the energy down their arms and into him or her, the person doing the actual charging. When the person doing the ritual senses the energy, that person should recite the invocations. However all present should vibrate the names of the Angelic Order, the Archangel and the God Name.

EIGHT. This idea is continued when doing the Invoking Earth Pentagram. All present should vibrate the God Name. By the way, the purpose of this part of the ritual is to bring into the Earth Plane (hence the invoking earth pentagram) the energies from higher planes.

NINE. All present should be inside the magickal circle. No interested bystanders remaining outside the circle should be allowed.

TEN. Either the BRH and the LBRP may be repeated at the end of the ritual or the leader of the group (not necessarily the one doing the ritual) may come before the altar and say:

> I thank all ye creatures who have watched and joined in our ritual. Return now to your abodes and habitations and harm none on your way. Let there be peace between thee and we. And may the blessings of (vibrate) YEH-HAH-SHU-AH YEH-HOH-VAH-SHA, as you are able to receive them, be upon thee.

Mathers and the Peas

The leader then taps the altar or ground with the bottom (black) end of the Rainbow Wand ten times in a 3-4-3 pattern (/// //// ///) and says:

I now declare this temple duly closed.

ELEVEN. If desired, the BRH and LBRP plus the leader's closing may be used, but unless there are unusual circumstances (such as the atmosphere feeling very "crowded" with energy or entities), both are not necessary.

PART THREE

One of the famous stories concerning S.L. MacGregor Mathers, a founder and driving force behind the Golden Dawn, concerns peas. It seems that he had some enemies within the Order and he wished to get rid of them. So he took some peas and "baptized" them with the same names as the people of whom he wished to be free. Then he swirled them in a sieve with the idea being that as the peas went down the sieve, so, too would his enemies have a downfall.

Several people I know who claim to be occultists have made fun of Mathers over this. They felt that Mathers, the head and guide of the Golden Dawn, should have used ceremonial magick techniques and not what seems like Low Magick. It is certainly possible that the exact details of Mathers' actions were incorrectly reported or misinterpreted, because I doubt that Mathers would have let any uninitiated person watch him perform the ritual. Isn't it possible that Mathers or the initiated person reporting this episode used expressions such as "peas," "baptize" and "sieve" as a trap to non-initiates? Initiates would be able to figure out that these were code words for other ideas, and non-initiates would have a small idea of magickal processes. I think that this is not only possible, but likely.

I have talked before about the meaning of initiation, and wish to bring it up again. In most initiations the candidate is blindfolded, brought into a new and unfamiliar situation, and then taught about his or her new surroundings. This is similar in nature to the birth process. First, everything is dark. Then you are thrust into a new situation about which you need to learn. Initiation is a type of re-birth. In fact, some occultists claim, much to the consternation of Christian fundamentalists, that when the Bible discusses being "born again" what is really being discussed is the idea of initiation. What is baptism if it is not an initiation into a particular religion? Did not, according to the Bible, Jesus tell his inner group (of initiates?) that some things they would understand, but to the masses he must speak in parables? One function of initiation is that of being born a second time into a new, more spiritual way of life. Any valid initiation ritual has this quality. You may wish to look at some books with initiation rituals in them to see whether or not this is correct.

I feel that it is possible that in the story about Mathers, "peas" were used as a code-name for talismans. "Baptize" could be a code word for "initiate" and "sieve" a code word for the process of focusing mind power. Admittedly, this is just speculation. But if it is correct, what Mathers was doing would be strict Golden Dawn style ceremonial magick.

An initiation (or baptism) can give a person a new, a second life. Does it not follow that something inert, something without a life force, can be given a life force, can be born for the first time and given life by the initiation process? The Golden Dawn believed so, and as a result of my personal experience, I agree.

On the next few pages I will be giving a Complete Ritual for Charging and Consecrating a talisman. It will be your longest ritual to date and may take up to two hours to perform, although one to one-and-a-half is more the norm. So, before starting, I want to show you how it works and describe the various sections of the ritual.

First, of course, are the preparations. This means planning out the ritual, gathering all necessary tools, designing and constructing the talisman, doing the divination, preparing the area and yourself (cleansing), setting up the temple, etc. This should all be finished just before the start of the appropriate magickal hour.

The second phase of this ritual is the Watchtower Ritual. This should take at least 20 minutes by itself.

Phase three is not done in the Simple Talisman Charging and Consecration Ritual. In this phase you enliven, you actually give a form of life to the talisman via an abbreviated initiation ritual.

Phase four includes charging the talisman by the names and symbols of the appropriate cosmic forces or beings.

Phase five is the empowering of the talisman by force of Will, to a specific goal.

Finally, phase six concludes the ritual with the Closing by Watchtower as described earlier in this course.

Most rituals reach their highest peak of effectiveness when they are memorized. Thus, memorizing the LBRP, the Middle Pillar and Circulation of the Body of Light, the BRH and Rose Cross Ritual makes them better and more effective. For most forms of Grey Magick, memorization is impractical. Thus, it is a good idea to make up note cards with writing big enough so that you can read the words of the ritual. I use a music stand to support 8½x11-inch card stock sheets for the purpose. Thin sheets of paper tend to slip and fall down. You may wish to do something similar.

If your magickal hour is only fifteen minutes long, how can you fit a two hour ritual into it? The answer is that phases one, two and three can be done just before the start of the magical hour. Phases four and five must occur within the designated planetary hour for greatest effectiveness. Phase six may occur after the end of the Planetary or Magickal hour.

As you follow through this ritual you will find nothing difficult nor unusual with perhaps one exception. At various times you will see the words "ad-lib." This means that at these sections you are to freely add whatever words or actions you deem appropriate.

This is not as hard as it might sound, especially if you have been practicing the teachings of this course. For example, let us assume that there was an invocation followed by the words "ad lib." Here is an example, just pulled off the top of my head, which would be appropriate:

> Oh my Lord AH-DOH-NYE, Thou hast permitted me to venture this far into Thy temple of the mysteries. By Thy glory, do not deny your servant now. Fill this talisman with Thy presence for Thy name's sake, not mine. For to Thee is the kingdom and the power and the glory until eternity fades to nothingness. So mote it be!

It does not have to be long, although it may be. It may seem stilted or artificial, yet it is still a good idea to dress it up with pseudo-Old English. This serves the same function as does the putting on of the robe. The robe indicates that you are not doing everyday things. The affected speech shows that you are not talking with your next-door neighbor.

Finally, the most important part of these ad lib sections is that they must be from your heart and be meaningful and deeply felt. Otherwise they are useless phrases, about as attractive to the gods as are dead flowers to us mortals.

THE COMPLETE RITUAL
FOR CHARGING AND CONSECRATING A TALISMAN

Part One: The Preparations

Begin by physically cleansing your working area. If it has a hard floor, wash it, or at least vacuum. If you have a negative ion generator, a device which rids the air of dust particles, leave it on in your working area for a few hours before cleansing with vacuum and/or water. Wash and polish all of your magickal tools, too. If you have some nice music you can play in the background while you do this physical preparation it would be nice. Gentle, "New Age" music, especially those pieces without strong rhythms or standard harmonies are appropriate.

The whole of these preparations should not be thought of in terms of "work." Rather, you should think of these things in the terms of "getting dressed to go out on a Saturday night." While doing this physical cleaning, you should direct your thoughts to clearing the area of all unwanted or negative influences.

Once this physical cleaning has been completed, set up your working area so that it becomes your temple. Place appropriately colored candles around so that you will have enough light. However, since you will be leaving the area for a while, don't light them yet if there is even a remote possibility of flame or dripping wax starting a fire. Have all of your tools on the altar and, most importantly, have your already constructed talisman and a holder-bag for it on the altar, too. Make sure you have your instructions for the ritual close by.

When you have completed the above work, go to the doorway of the room which contains your prepared temple and look the room over. If it is as perfectly prepared as possible, spend a moment congratulating yourself on a job well done. Then, take a deep breath, and as you exhale, say:

> Thank you, O Lord, Grand Architect of the Universe, for Thy permission to construct this temple as a tiny, pale echo of Thy greater creation. May Thy blessings fall upon it for Thy name's sake. So mote it be!

Then close the door so that nobody else can enter the room. Lock the door if necessary. Note that beside asking for the grace of Divinity upon the temple, we are also calling the temple a small version of the entirety of the Universe; the microcosm to the macrocosm of the cosmos. As above, so below. In this way the altar becomes the exact center of the universe, the meeting place of balance and harmony for all elemental and planetary forces.

The next step is to disconnect the telephone so that its ring will not disturb you. If you live with other people and cannot do this, tell them you do not wish to be disturbed for the next few hours, and should the phone ring and be for you, ask them to please take a message.

Finally, take a ritual cleansing bath as already described. When finished, put on your ritual robe or special clothes reserved for ritual work. If you have any special, magickal jewelry, now is the time to put it on, too. As you put on your garments and jewelry, say:

> Blessed art Thou, O Lord, Maker of the Universe, who usest Thy universe as but a footstool: for Thou hast allowed me to don the robes of the magickal art (or say something similar ad lib).

Upon completion of your ritual bath and donning of the robe, it should be the time to enter your temple. By this I mean it should be the start of the appropriate magickal planetary hour, or early enough so that the important body of the ritual will take place in that time frame. If it is too early it is okay to enter the temple, but you should not begin the ritual. Rather, you should sit in quiet contemplation until the correct beginning time. Think about what you are going to do in a few minutes. Consider the months and hours you have put in practicing the rituals, doing the spiritual exercises and earning yourself the right to do the ritual you will be performing shortly. And, of course, also think about the awe and majesty of the Divine Source of all.

Finally, everything will be ready. You will have already done a divination. The temple is prepared. The talisman is prepared. The phase of the Moon is correct. The ritual you will do is written down so you will not err. And most importantly, you are ready to begin.

Part Two: Banishing and Balancing

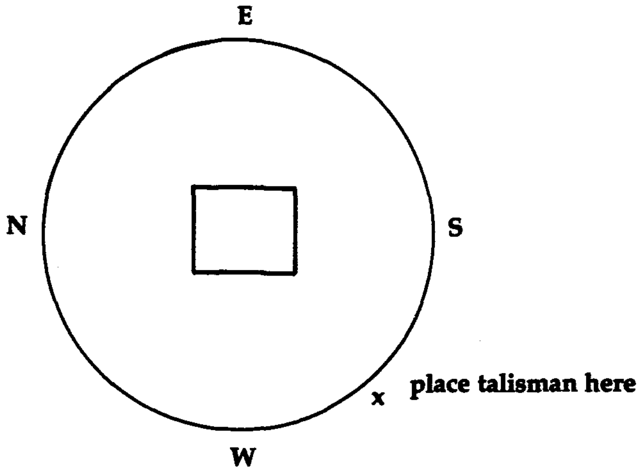
Perform the Watchtower Ritual Opening.

This ritual has the effect of spiritually purifying the temple. It is the astral equivalent to your earlier physical cleansing. It also has the purpose and effect of balancing the Magickal Elemental forces. Thus, upon completion of the Watchtower Ritual, your altar becomes the focus of a perfectly balanced influx of energy from all of the Magickal Elements. Therefore, take your time and do this ritual well.

Part Three: Enlivening and Consecrating the Talisman

STEP ONE. While keeping yourself inside your magickal circle, place the talisman outside the circle between the South and West. Go to the altar and pick up the Rainbow Wand by the colored stripe appropriate to this magickal working with your left hand. Take the dagger used in the LBRP in your right hand. Go to the southwest side of the circle (always remember to walk clockwise in your temple unless there are specific instructions to do otherwise). Face outwards toward where the talisman lies and cross your hands in front of you so that your magickal tools from an "X," blocking entry into the circle. Say:

> Before I entered this magickal circle I was alive yet not alive. Once inside I have been born anew. So too are all things outside this circle without true spiritual life. Hear, now, O Talisman (Amulet if appropriate) that thou mayest enter but may not move on. (If you prefer, this declaration may be done ad lib).



STEP TWO. Using the tip of the dagger, draw the talisman into the magickal circle. Say:

> Now, oh creature of Talismans, become a dwelling place of [purpose of talisman] and be thou a body for the magnificence of [name of Sephira associated with this talisman].

STEP THREE. Pick up the talisman and place it at the foot of the altar so that it is between you and the altar when you face east. Both you and the talisman are west of the altar. Say:

> In the name of [vibrate appropriate God name], and by all the powers and forces invoked here this night (day if done during daylight), I proclaim that I [say your magickal name] shall invoke thee to form a true and potent link between my human soul and that spirit of [give word telling purpose of talisman] summed up in the name of [vibrate name of appropriate Sephira]. To this end I have formed and perfected this Talisman (Amulet if appropriate) bearing the necessary seals, sigils and symbols. I proclaim that this Talisman (Amulet) shall be charged in order that [state purpose of talisman] may be mine so that I may be enabled to perform the Great Work and be better able to assist humanity. May the powers of [vibrate appropriate Sephira] witness this my solemn pledge.

STEP FOUR. Pick up the talisman and place it in the center of the top of the altar. Put the dagger on the altar and hold the Rainbow Wand by the white band of color. Say:

> I now invoke the powers of [vibrate name of Sephira] into this temple. In the name of [vibrate God name], be here now! Know that all is in readiness to consecrate this Talisman (Amulet). Aid me with thy power that I may cause the great archangel [vibrate name of appropriate archangel] to give life and strength to this creature of Talismans in the name of [vibrate God name].

STEP FIVE. Put the Rainbow Wand down on the altar and pick up the dagger used in the LBRP. Now move east of the Altar and face west. As you go through the following speech, draw the appropriate figures (as you drew them on the talisman) in the air with the dagger. They should be drawn over the talisman. Visualize them in bright blue, flecked with shimmering gold. Say:

> I invoke the powers of [vibrate God name and draw it in the air]. Bring [state purpose] to this Talisman (Amulet).
>
> By the powers of [name planet and draw symbol of it] I invoke [state purpose] into this Talisman (Amulet).
>
> By this symbol (draw a symbol you used such as from the system of A.O. Spare) I invoke [state purpose] into this Talisman (Amulet).

Repeat this type of invocation ad lib until you have drawn each and every symbol which is on your talisman. Feel free to turn the talisman over and open it up so that you can see the symbols and words as you draw them in the air. Now move back to the west of the altar and face east.

STEP SIX. Put down the dagger. Pick up the cup and sprinkle the talisman with a few drops of water after dipping your fingers in the cup. Say:

I purify with Water.

If the ink might run, sprinkle toward the talisman, but not on it. Now pick up the incense and wave it over the talisman. Say:

I consecrate with Fire.

Now pick up the talisman in your left hand and the dagger from the LBRP in the right. Tap the talisman three times with the tip of the dagger's blade. Next, hold the talisman and dagger (point up) above your head and stamp your left foot (/) between the following spoken words:

So (/) mote (/) it (/) be (/)!

Finally, knock slowly three times on the altar with the hilt of the dagger.

STEP SEVEN. Still holding the talisman and dagger, move in a clockwise direction, and walk around (circumambulate) the altar once and continue until you just go past the South. Say:

Unpurified and unconsecrated, thou canst not enter the gate of the West.

Put the talisman on the ground and, always moving in a clockwise direction, go to the altar. Place the dagger down and bring the cup to the talisman. Dip your finger in the water and sprinkle a few drops of water on (or towards) the talisman while saying:

I purify the Water.

Go to the altar and replace the cup. Take the incense and bring it to the talisman. As you wave it over the talisman say:

I consecrate with Fire.

Go to the altar and replace the incense. Pick up the dagger and return to the talisman which you also pick up (in your left hand). Say:

> Creature of Talismans (Amulets), twice purified and twice consecrated, thou mayest approach the gateway of the West.

Now move to the West and look out in that direction. Tap the talisman once with the tip of the blade of the dagger and say:

> Before thou canst come into the light, thou must first come out of the darkness. Yet fear not the darkness of the West for there is no place that God and the light of God are not. Therefore, take on manifestation before me without fear. For in the West is he in whom fear is not. And now that thou knowest this truth, pass thou on.

STEP EIGHT. Circumambulate the circle once. Then go around again until you just pass the North. Say:

Unpurified and unconsecrated, thou canst not enter the path of the East.

As in Step Seven, purify with Water and consecrate with Fire, saying the appropriate phrases. Then, pick up the talisman in your left hand (your right hand has the dagger) and say:

Creature of Talismans (Amulets), thrice purified and thrice consecrated, thou mayest approach the gateway of the East.

Move to the East and face outward in that direction. Hold the talisman and dagger on high and say:

To become a Talisman (Amulet), strong and true, thou must pass from darkness into light, from death into life. To do this requires the light which shines from within the darkness, though the darkness comprehendeth it not. By the will of God I can control a speck of that light which ariseth in darkness. I am the exorcist in the midst of the exorcism. Therefore, take on manifestation before me for I am the Wielder of the Forces of Balance. Now pass thou on unto the double cubical altar of the universe.

STEP NINE. Return to the West of the altar and face east. With the dagger used in the LBRP, redraw all of the symbols and sigils drawn on the talisman as done earlier. Repeat, too, the ad-lib invocations, only end by saying:

Thus do I potently conjure and exorcise thee. . .

Quickly put down the dagger and pick up the Rainbow Wand by the appropriate band in your right hand. Hold both the Wand and the talisman on high and cry out:

Creature of Talismans: Long hast thou dwelt in the darkness of unlife. Quit the night and seek the day!

STEP TEN. Place the talisman back on the altar and hold the Rainbow Wand vertically over it. Say:

By all the names, powers and rituals already rehearsed, recited and performed, I conjure upon thee power and might irresistible, Khabs Am Pekht. Konx Om Pax. Light In Extension. As the light hidden in darkness can manifest therefrom, so shalt thou become irresistible.

STEP ELEVEN. Now hold the Rainbow Wand in front of you and perform the Middle Pillar Ritual. Begin to cycle the energy through you, down the front as you exhale and up the back on the inhalation as in the Ritual of the Circulation of the Body of Light. When you feel the energy flowing, make the Sign of the Enterer, as in the LBRP, but toward the talisman resting on the altar. Your right hand should hold the Rainbow Wand on the appropriate color with your index finger pointing along the Wand so that the Wand becomes an extension of your arm and hand.

As you give this sign, look down your arms directly at the talisman. Know that this ritual gesture is also known as "The Projecting Sign" and that you are projecting the energy raised in the Middle Pillar and controlled in the Circulation of the Body of Light. Feel it flow down your arms and out of you. Sense it congeal within the talisman. At the same time, watch the talisman. When you see a twinkle of light or a slight movement of the sigils on the talisman, it will be charged.

STEP TWELVE. Immediately stand straight and tap the black end of the Rainbow Wand three times on the floor. Say:

It is done!

STEP THIRTEEN. Now hold your hands in the air (the Rainbow Wand is in your right hand) and say:

Let the white brilliance of the Divine Spirit descend upon this creature of Talismans (Amulets) and fill it with the glory of thy majesty that it may be unto me an aid to aspire to the Great Work.

Draw an Invoking Earth Pentagram with the Rainbow Wand in the air over the talisman. See it in bright blue. Say:

Glory be unto thee, Lord of the land of life, for Thy splendor flows out rejoicing, even to the ends of the universe.

STEP FOURTEEN. Pick up the talisman in your left hand and hold it so it can be seen from outside the circle. Circumambulate around the circle while saying:

> Behold all powers and forces that are here in attendance. I am pure. I am pure. I am pure. Take witness that I have duly exorcised, purified, initiated, enlivened, consecrated and empowered this creature of Talismans (Amulets) by the power of (stop, vibrate name of planet and form sign of the planet in the air with the Rainbow Wand, then continue on), with the aid of (stop, vibrate and draw the God Name) and by the exaltation of my own higher nature.

STEP FIFTEEN. Return to the West of the altar and face east. Place the talisman in the center of the altar. Pick up the Air Dagger, touch the tip of the blade to the talisman and say:

By the powers of Air...

Replace the dagger and touch the Earth Pentacle to the talisman. Say:

and of Earth...

Replace the Pentacle and touch the Fire Wand to the talisman and say:

and of Fire...

Put down the Fire Wand and sprinkle some water from the Elemental Cup on (or toward) the talisman as you say:

and of Water...

Put down the Cup and pick up the Rainbow Wand by the white band. Hold it on high and say:

> And by the secret names of the divine presence who works in silence and whom naught but silence can express, I declare by my rights earned by my practice of the arts magickal that this Talisman (Amulet) is charged and consecrated. So mote it be!

STEP SIXTEEN. Put the talisman in the bag which you have prepared for it. Place it on your person (whether it is for you or not) and say:

> Not unto me, but unto thee be the power and glory forever and ever and even beyond the ends of time. I thank thee for allowing me to enter even thus far into the temple of thy divine mysteries. (or you may ad lib appropriately.)

Part Four: The Banishings

Perform the Closing by Watchtower.

This ritual is now complete.

All of the rules concerning what to do with talismans after they have achieved their goal or have exceeded their time limit apply to those talismans charged with this ritual.

Until you "break down" all the trappings of your area, it is still a temple and should be treated as such. Until you put everything away be sure to walk clockwise in your temple. The end of the ritual does not end the spiritual qualities of the area.

You will have noticed that the "phases" of this ritual as mentioned earlier do not easily match the parts of this ritual. This is because the phases overlap and do not occur in seclusion and isolated from the other phases. Part of the preparation for a grey magick ritual is total understanding of that ritual. Before performing this ritual you should study it so that you can spot where each of the phases takes place and how they interpenetrate each other.

Before going on to the next lesson in this book I strongly urge the following:

1. Design and create at least two talismans. Charge and consecrate one by way of the Simple Ritual and one by way of the Complete Ritual. You can do more if you like.

2. Spend some time reading at least one book on the Tarot. Look especially for philosophical books rather than "how to give a reading" books. The Bibliography for this lesson lists several of my favorites.

In the next lesson I will explain how to work with the "Grimoires." These are some of the most famous of magickal texts. Unfortunately, many of them are either incomplete, such as The Arbatel of Magic, are questionable, such as the Necronomicon, are too time consuming, such as Abramelin, or are too rare and expensive.

Therefore, I will be basing the lesson on two texts which are reasonably priced and available at many occult book stores. The books are The Greater Key of Solomon and The Goetia, which is a section of The Lesser Key of Solomon. Both are available in more than one edition, and any edition will do since they are virtually copies of each other. If you can, obtain these two books.

I have talked often about how most self-professed "magicians" talk a great deal but do nothing. I know many people who have the Lesser and Greater Keys and have looked through them, but have never practiced the rituals or techniques which are within them. There are many reasons for this, but the primary three reasons are based on fear and egotism:

1. They don't have enough knowledge to do them. They are afraid that if they seek out that knowledge they will learn just how little they know and expose themselves for not being the "great occultists" they claim to be.

2. They fear the rituals and don't even wish to try them. Even worse, they are afraid of what might happen if they are successful and cannot control the powers they summon.

3. They're afraid that if they try them and then fail it will show that they are not as good as they claim to be. Or, it will prove to them that magick is fake and they have wasted years of their lives in its study.

Again, if you do not own these books, I urge you to obtain them. Everything you will need to try out some of the rituals will be printed in the next lesson, but these books give advanced information along the lines of the Kabalistic Correspondence charts. They give lists of powers or entities who are appropriate to deal with when seeking to obtain certain items or qualities.

If you have these books, or if you obtain them soon, do not try any of the rituals before going through the next lesson. You can't get hurt like so many seem to fear, but you will be wasting your time. The next lesson will include the information you need which makes the grimoires workable. Furthermore, these books deal with Magickal Evocation and the bringing to visible appearance entities from higher levels of reality.

Back in the beginning of this course I told you that you would not be "summoning" anything up. How, then, can something be evoked to visible appearance without summoning it up?

I promise you that you will learn all this and more. You will learn the true secret of Magickal Evocation. And you will see that the rituals in the grimoires are the first which are easier to do in groups and harder (but not impossible) to do by yourself—virtually pure Ceremonial Magick!

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Conway, David, Ritual Magic, Dutton, 1972.
Crowley, A., (Uncredited Editor, Mathers translation). Lesser Key of Solomon, the Goetia, DeLaurence, N.D.
Mathers, S.L.M. (translator), Greater Key of Solomon, The, DeLaurence, 1914.
Regardie, Israel, Golden Dawn, The, Llewellyn, 1978.
How to Make and Use Talismans, Aquarian, 1972.

(Philosophical Tarot Books)

Crowley, A., Book of Thoth, The, U.S. Games, 1977.
Hoeller, Stephen, Royal Road, The, Quest, 1975.
Rakoczi, Basil, Painted Caravan, The, L.J.C. Boucher, 1954.
Sturzaker, James, Kabalistic Aphorisms, Theosophical Publishing House, 1971.
Wang, Robert, Qabalistic Tarot, The, Weiser, 1983.

Lesson

9

PART ONE

Magic Works! We can assume that this is true until a time when experience allows us to say not that we assume magick works, not that we believe magick works, but that we know magick works. If this is not true then you are wasting your time reading this course.

Obviously, I do not think that this is so. For, as a result of over twenty years of experience, I know that magick works.

To briefly repeat some information from an earlier lesson, the magickal tradition holds that the Source of All created laws under which we all must live. One such law is gravity. We cannot jump high enough to escape gravity's grip on us. However, once we understand gravity we can build rockets with enough thrust to lift us beyond gravity's hold.

There are many laws which were unknown only a hundred years ago. This includes the laws concerning the weak and strong atomic forces, laws which are a basis of modern physics. Similarly, there are other laws which are still not commonly known. Among these are the laws of magick.

Either these laws are valid and true or they are not true natural laws. Either there is gravity or there is not gravity. There is no in between. Likewise, either the laws of magick are valid or they are not. There cannot be any type of rule saying that sometimes they are valid and other times, under identical conditions, they are invalid. Remember, magick is an art and science, and a basic tenet of science is that under the same conditions an experiment will always have the same result.

Now put this idea on the "back burner" for a moment while I discuss art—not the art of magick, mind you, but the art of motion pictures, fictional novels and short stories. You've read them or seen the films. The wizard casts a spell and out of the mists appears a demon to do the wizard's dirty work. One of the best examples of such a film is a rare black-and-white movie called Night of the Demon by Jacques Tourneur. Also look at the Faust with Burton and Taylor. Read some of the stories by H.P. Lovecraft, who makes Poe sound like Erma Bombeck! Look also at the Dr. Strange comic book.

I'm sure you can think of many more films and stories which have a hero or villain summoning up creatures from some astral netherworld. And, in all honesty, wouldn't you like to do that? Wouldn't you like to have the power to summon up some ghastly beastie to control people, help your friends and punish those who have hurt you?

The possibility of doing that is one of the reasons my interest in magick was maintained over my first few years of study. If only I could find the right book or teacher, I could have the powers of the universe in my grasp! Needless to say, had such a thing happened to me my Karma would be in an awful state! Further, my mystical leanings have led me away from the desire to control others. But still, wouldn't it be nice to evoke a being to our plane of existence just once?

The movies and books and stories I had read greatly influenced me. Taking that influence and combining it with my understanding that magick works led me to totally ignore a very useful grimoire, that part of The Lesser Key of Solomon published as the Goetia.

In the Goetia, at the end of the first conjuration to "call forth" any of the spirits listed in the book, it says, ". . . if the Spirit come not yet, say as followeth." Then the book gives another summoning or evoking conjuration, at the end of which it says, "If He come not yet at the rehearsal of these two first conjurations (but without doubt he will), say on as followeth." This is followed by commands rather than requests for appearance, commands which are filled with and followed by a series of curses.

To me, this just did not make sense. If all entities in the universe follow certain cosmic laws, they must appear when they are called. Otherwise, magick would not be a science and there could be no such thing as a magickal system. Obviously, something must be missing.

In my studies of this and other ancient grimoires, I learned that virtually none of the grimoires, the ancient texts on magick, were complete. A student was not expected to learn magick from a book.

Rather, books were meant to be guidelines for the students, to give in written form those items which could not be quickly memorized nor repeated so frequently that rote memorization would occur. So what are the things which are not included in the ancient texts?

First, you must have a positive attitude. You must know that the magick you are doing is going to work. This does not mean that magick is nothing more than a mental practice. If you are ailing, a doctor can give you medicines, but unless you really wish to get better, there will be a much longer healing period and, in fact, you might not heal at all. This is a mental "will to live" which can affect you on the physical plane. Likewise, the knowledge that your magick will succeed will affect all planes. If you think magick won't work. . . it won't! Again, this is not because magick is all mental, but because part of doing magick is having the right mental attitude.

Two other parts of magick which are not included in the grimoires are the ability to raise energy and control it. This has always been a major focus of magickal studies, and a student would have practiced for hours and would know where in a ritual the energy should be raised and how it should be directed. Thus, these three things need not be included in any book on magick. The student was supposed to know these things. That is why all ancient grimoires are purposefully incomplete.

It took me several years to realize something to which I had never paid attention. There is a version of the translation of the Sepher Yetzirah by Mordell which states that the Yod Heh Vahv Heh of the Tetragrammaton may be a code for duplicated or other letters. Also, a friend pointed out to me that Witches (she is a Wiccan) frequently used codes in their Book of Shadows, books which contain their rituals and instructions. As an example, "baby's blood" was a code for strawberry juice. Thus, if a Witch's Book of Shadows fell into the hands of an uninitiated person that person might be too scared or too offended to try out any information in the book. Unfortunately, the books sometimes fell into the possession of people who actually believed what they read. A history of torture and death is one of the results of this.

I don't remember the exact day, but I suddenly had a flash of intuition and realized that the grimoires had codes so that idiots (like myself some years ago) wouldn't get into trouble doing things for which we were not prepared. I realized that the secrets of magickal evocation were not in the grimoires, or if they were, they were in code. I had to solve this mystery!

I had so many questions. Why did sources call for more than one person to do an evocation? Why is there a circle drawn inside the triangle where the entity manifests? How do the pentacles for magickal evocation work? Why does incense of a particular scent draw entities from other levels of existence to the physical plane? If it is because they like the astral form of the incense as some claim, they could stay on the astral plane and enjoy it without having to materialize. There were too many questions and no answers.

Then, one day a friend who is a very knowledgeable occultist made a passing remark about the foolishness of those who thought that magickal evocation rarely happened. He said that they wrongly believed that entities were only drawn to the local area of the astral plane so that they could be more easily dealt with. Naturally, he had never done any evocations of any sort himself.

And I laughed, too—until I started some research. I discovered that three Crowley oriented groups (one now defunct) believed and practiced magickal evocations only to the astral plane. I found a book, Secret Magick Revealed by two excellent occultists, Nelson and Anne White, who agree with this idea. Finally, really making my understanding sure, I read in Aspects of Occultism by Dion Fortune:

> In the great majority of cases of evocative magick, the form is built up on the astral and can only actually be seen by the clairvoyant, though any sensitive person can feel its influence.
>
> The initiated magician is usually, unless engaged in some special experiment or research, content to evoke to visible appearance on the astral, depending upon his psychic powers for communication with the entity evoked. He does not go to the trouble to evoke to visible appearance on the physical because, if he is an adequate psychic, astral appearance serves his purpose just as well; in fact better, because it is more congenial to the nature of the beings... and places less limitation upon their activities.

Certain substances can be used to induce physical manifestation. Fortune adds that of these substances "... the principal [one] is fresh blood; excreta can be used for the same purpose." However, their ability to give off "ectoplasm" from which these entities can create a physical appearance wears "... off by the time the body heat has departed." This corresponds with the Tantrik belief that semen loses its magickal potency with fifteen minutes after ejaculation.

Since this course is an introduction to Ceremonial Magick we will not be going into the study of evoking entities to the physical plane, and there will be no instructions for blood sacrifices on these pages. But will the idea of evocation only to the astral plane answer the questions we have? Let's go through some of them and see:

1. Are the grimoires lying or in code when they say that by the rituals in them you can evoke a being or entity onto the physical plane? Neither, because they don't say that! They merely say that you can evoke an entity to physical appearance: so that you can see them. Certainly this can and does include seeing them on the astral plane.

2. Why are there usually at least two people present when doing a magickal evocation? So that one can perform the ritual and the other can act as a seer into the astral plane.

3. Why, in the Goetia, is a circle drawn within the triangle wherein entities are supposed to manifest? Because this is where a circular magick mirror is placed. In this mirror the seer may look to aid in being able to see on the astral plane. It is a physical doorway to the astral plane.

4. How do the pentacles for magickal evocation work? The seer contemplates them during the ritual. They set the seer's mind in a state receptive to a particular entity.

5. Why do entities like a particular incense? Whether or not they enjoy it is irrelevant. The scent affects the seer and helps put the seer in a psychically receptive state.

6. Finally, what is the need to call an entity over and over? Shouldn't they obey on the first call if our magick is correct? Yes, if our theory of magick is correct, they need only be called once. Unfortunately, the minds of humans are not so easily controlled. The seer may need large doses of incense, many moments of contemplating the pentacles, and frequent repetition of the evocations to open his or her psychic vision to that level of the astral plane wherein an entity has come to do the magician's bidding.

The fact of the matter is that if we assume that magickal evocation brings entities to communication with us on the astral plane rather than on the physical plane, it virtually solves all of our questions. It will also answer the question you may have had as to how I could teach you how to evoke entities (to visible appearance) without summoning up anything (onto the physical plane).

I have spent several pages sharing how I learned this magickal secret and how it answered all of my questions. When you first started taking this course you may have thought if you said a few words or waved a magick wand something you desired would instantly occur. By now you should know (hopefully by experience) that magick takes time and occurs through totally natural means. Similarly, it is time to disabuse yourself of the false notion that if everything is done correctly, demons will rise out of the haze to do in your enemies. It is time to learn to ignore the fantasies of those who write or make films of occult fiction but have never practiced even one magickal ritual. In all likelihood they do not even believe in the possibility that magick works.

Before going on with this lesson, go back over this first part and read it again, understand how this sane and logical explanation of magickal evocation reasonably resolves all questions concerning the theory of this subject.

The material which is going to be presented in this lesson will not take you into somebody else's fantasy. Rather, it will send you on your own adventure, an adventure which will lead you to the deepest levels of magick and the highest levels of spirituality.

PART TWO

As you have noted, I have consistently used the term "evocation" in the discussion of the type of magick being presented in this lesson. In your readings you may have noticed that there are some authors who use "invocation" as a synonym of evocation. This error is never made by real magicians, and is only presented by writers who either have no practical magickal experience or by those who wish to blur the distinctions of different types of magickal practices. This blurring is usually done in an attempt to make all forms of magickal work seem the same in order to cast negative aspersions on all magick.

If you have been doing the work of this course you will find evocative magick very safe. Its purpose is to allow you to communicate with other intelligences, powers or entities which do not exist on our physical plane. Some people contend that we are only communicating with aspects of our subconscious which are normally hidden. Whether or not this is so I do not know or care. This is because evocative magick functions as if one is dealing with other entities and no matter the source, is treated as if one is dealing with external intelligences.

I have seen many serious problems develop after the use of invocatory magick by those who are not competent in magick. Invocation is the magickal act wherein you allow your body to be temporarily shared by another entity. This is sometimes known as channeling. As long as your banishings are properly done and the magician chooses whom to allow to join in the use of the magician's body, there is no danger. It is when there is little thought or control in the magickal act that problems occur.

I have been to many Wiccan rituals where the aspects of Divinity called generically the God and the Goddess have been successfully and safely invoked. It is quite a remarkable transformation as the facial characteristics of the people into whom the God and Goddess are invoked (usually the High Priest and High Priestess) and even the body's carriage sometimes seems to alter and give a far more regal appearance than the normal, daily appearance of these people. Done properly, this magickal procedure is quite safe and quite thrilling. It should always be done with positive entities (or, if you prefer, positive aspects of our subconscious) and never with unknown or "negative" entities, i.e., those who might give suggestions which if followed would increase our burden of negative Karma.

There are two instances when invocation or channeling can be dangerous or at least very anti-productive. The first is when you perform no banishings and invite absolutely any entity to share your body. Certainly from your readings and practice and thoughts about magick you can see just how dangerous this could be. Yet, a whole religion has developed based on this magickal act! This religion is known as Spiritualism or Spiritism. Most practicing occultists tend to frown on the practices of Spiritism because it allows virtually any entity to communicate with the living. Just because something (usually a very low-astral entity, more on this in a later lesson) says it is Uncle Charlie doesn't mean it's so. There have been instances of damage in seances caused by these low elementals and some mediums have ended their lives as alcoholics.

Furthermore, just because Uncle Charlie died doesn't mean he got any smarter! Yet many, many people change their lives because of messages given by entities claiming to be deceased relatives or friends.

Please understand that I am not condemning the religion of Spiritism nor its philosophy. Certainly everyone is entitled to their own religious beliefs. Nor am I condemning invocatory magick such as that from which seances borrow. What I am condemning is lack of preparation, lack of protection and blind acceptance of frequently wrong or valueless information. If you think that this is unjust, look at the hundreds of books published by "channeled" writers (not all of whom are Spiritists, but who have taken their techniques from Spiritists) who claim to have the real writings of people such as Einstein, Tesla, Nurmi and Edison. In thousands of pages and millions of words, not one thing has ever been presented which could revolutionize life or could not be learned from previous information.

And I have not mentioned the self-deception and outright fraud which has been a part of modern Spiritism since its inception in the middle of the last century.

The second instance of danger occurring in this type of magick is if a "negative" entity is invoked. One of the most fascinating stories concerning Aleister Crowley is how he allowed the "demon Choronzon" to be invoked into his body. Once invoked, the "demon" tried to attack Crowley's assistant using numerous ploys. Some people believe that Crowley's successes began to diminish after this, perhaps because Choronzon was never properly banished.

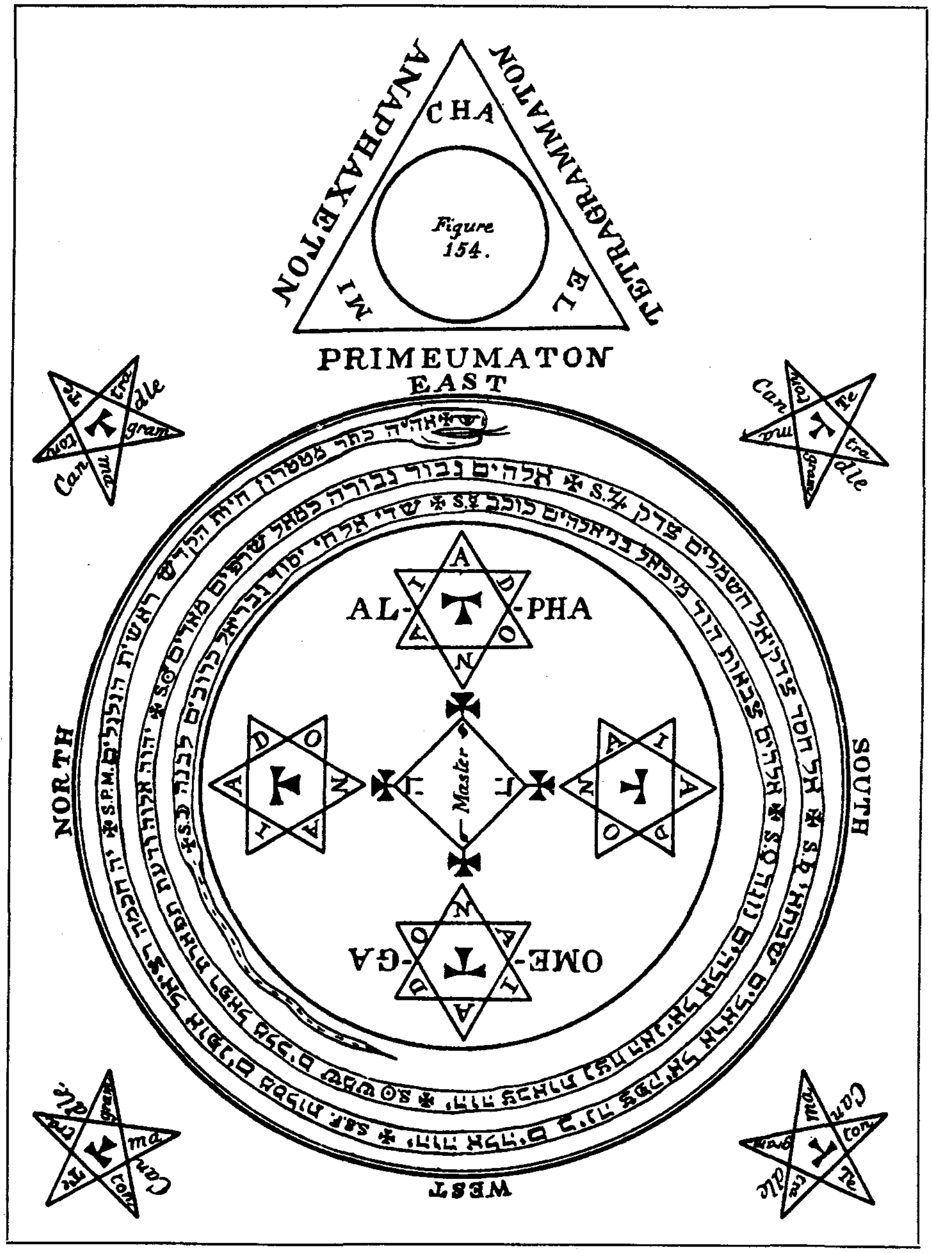
Invocation is a very important part of magick, but for safety it must be done correctly. This will be covered at a later time.

But now, after discussing the difference between evocation and invocation, we turn our attention back to the former and see how it is done. This will show us how to use two of the most commonly available grimoires, the Goetia and The Greater Key of Solomon.

On the following page you will see a diagram of a magickal circle and triangle of the Art wherein entities appear. It is derived from the commonly available edition of the Goetia. Why is there a circle within the triangle of the Art? Understand that this drawing is actually a neatened-up version of the original for publication. This was done either by the unlisted translator, Mathers, or the editor, Crowley. Both are uncredited in the most commonly available edition of the book.

On page 380 is a copy of the original manuscript which shows the diagram. Other than being much sloppier (my guess is that it is a page from a student's notebook), the important thing to notice is that the circle within the Triangle of the Art could easily be filled in as shown. It indicates the presence of a magick mirror.

Magick mirrors are not shiny silver. Rather, they are dark black.



ANAPHAXETON
TETRAGRAMMATON CHA
MI
EL
Figure 154.
PRIMEUMATON
EAST
NORTH SOUTH WEST AL--PHA
OME-
-GA
A D O N A I Master
Can dle gram ma tra con te

Legemeton · Clavicula Salomonis

A figure of the Circle of Salomon that he Made to Preserve himselfe from the Malice: of those Evill Spirits &c.

In another circle in every corner a letter this in in on this: D O T

The triangle that Salomon Commanded the Disobedient Spirits Into; it is to be Made 2 foot off from the Circle. and 3 foot = over

Note. this △: is to be Placed upon that Cost the Spirit Belongeth; the Observe the D in working. &c.

This Circle is to be made 9 foot over & these Names Round in it, in one Line begining at Eheie & so go on to this ✝: marke then Com in at Jehovah Elohim, & from thence to hod & Benelohim & then to Lebanah: &c D. &c.

in another copy was writ Round begining thus Jehovah Elohim Binah · Aralim Sabbathi. S. h. El Hesel Hasmalim Zedeck S. ♃. ✝ Eheie Kether Haioth Hakados metthraton Reschith HaGalgalim P. M. Jod Jehovah hochmat ophanim S. Z. here end the first Round Elohim Gibor Seraphim Camael madim S. ♂. Eloha Tetragrammaton Raphael Schemes S. ☉. Jehovah Sabaoth netza Elohim Haniel Noza S. ♀. Elohim Sabaoth hod Ben Elohim Michael Cochab S. ☿. Sadai Jesod cherubim Gabriel Zevanah S. ☽.

Here are the instructions for making a magick mirror for use in evocative magic.

1. Although heavy cardboard can be used, a better idea would be to use ⅜" to ½" plywood and cut out an equilateral, equiangular triangle. That means, as in the first diagram, the length of each side is equal and each angle of the triangle is exactly 60 degrees. Undercoat it and paint it flat (not glossy) white. Using flat black paint, paint in the Greek names of God along the border of the wood (not outside as mis-drawn in the diagram). Using flat red paint write in the archangelic name MI-CHA-EL (pronounced Mee-chai-ehl). To seal and protect this work, use a flat (sometimes called "satin") clear finish such as a varathane.

Notice that I did not specify a length for each side of the triangle. This is because the size will depend upon the amount of room you have available. About the smallest size you would want to use is one and one-half feet per side. Over about four to five feet there will be too many light-caused reflections in your magick mirror. This, as you will see, is an undesirable situation.

2. Unless you are good at glass cutting and have a circular cutter, go to a store which sells glass and have them cut a flat disc of it for you. The diameter of this disc will depend upon the size of your triangle. It should not cover any of the lettering, although it can be smaller than the diagram indicates. About four inches is the smallest which is easy to use. On the big end, one and one-half to two feet in diameter is about maximum.

Warning: Be very careful when handling cut glass! It will have some edges which are rather sharp and could seriously cut you. Until it is mounted I urge that you wear gloves when handling it. This is true even if you can find a store which has pre-cut circular pieces of glass which have fused edges which are not sharp.

When you have your glass disc, place it under running water and purify it as was done with talismans. If it is small enough this can be done in a sink. Larger pieces will need the use of a stream, bathtub or shower. Be very careful! Next, dry the piece of glass thoroughly with a clean, soft cloth. Place the glass down on several sheets of newspaper or a dropcloth. Make sure that the topmost side is totally dry and free of lint and water spots. Spray paint this side with flat black paint. The best paint to use for this is paint designed for making blackboards, however any flat black paint which will adhere to glass will do. Apply several light coats according to the instructions on the paint. On the last magick mirror I made I used 13 coats of paint. Excess paint will not hurt it, but too little paint will. Allow plenty of time for the paint to dry. Then, turn your mirror over and see if there is any paint on the other side. If so, remove it with paint remover, a paint scraper or razor blade. Again be careful not to cut yourself or scratch the surface of the glass. Wearing soft gloves, now hold the glass up to a light source and see if any light at all can pass through the magick mirror. If it cannot, you have been successful.

3. The final step of the construction is to mount the mirror on the triangle of wood. The best way to do this is to get "mirror mounts" at a hardware store. These are "L" shaped pieces of metal or plastic with a screw or nail going through one of the bars of the "L." Once screwed into the wood it can be pivoted so that the other bar of the "L" is toward the center of the glass. This holds the mirror in place. If the mounts are turned away from the center the mirror may be removed.

You will need to use at least three of these mirror mounts with one toward each corner of the "Triangle of the Art." However, the bigger the glass, the more mounts you should use for safety. Once mounted, paint the mounts flat black using a small brush. If you cannot find these mounts, nails driven into the wood at various points along the circumference of the mirror will do. Of course, the nails should be painted flat black also.

It is important to make very clear that the side of the glass which is painted black should be against the wood of the triangle. In other words, if you are looking at the triangle with the mirror mounted, the unpainted side of the glass should be towards you and the painted side should be the far side of the glass. This will have the effect of making the black paint, seen through the glass, appear quite shiny. Once mounted, your construction of the magic mirror within the "Triangle of the Art" is complete.

Now look again at the diagram from the Goetia. It appears that a complete circle is drawn on the ground. It also appears that outside of the circle the triangle is also drawn on the ground.

I am sure that this will upset many "grimoire purists," but the fact of the matter is that there is no need to draw a physical circle. Should you draw one if it gives you more confidence or makes you feel more secure? Sure, go right ahead. But if you are good with your banishings, as the many months of practice while taking this course should have made you, it is enough. My personal experience and the experience of others proves this to be true. Why, then, are there complex instructions and figures in the diagram? Of course, the writer or copyist of the diagram is not here so there is no way to be sure, but it appears to be merely a cover, a blind to deceive any person into whose hands the document might wrongly fall. And considering the small number of people who have ever attempted the magick of this book against the large number of people who own it, this blind has been very successful.

The Secret of Magickal Evocation

To repeat, if you wish to draw the complete circle on the ground, go ahead. Those who do this usually use chalk. But if you have been following this course doing one lesson a month and have been doing the daily rituals, it is not necessary.

Another consideration is that using the Triangle of the Art with its magick mirror while having it flat on the floor outside of your circle is absurdly difficult. However, placing it in this position assumes that the original artist was an expert at three-dimensional representation. If you look at the copy of the original page, it clearly shows that the artist had trouble with proportions and lines. Is it not possible that the triangle was not meant to be flat on the floor?

Early drawings of Christian figures frequently show a disc behind the head of the religious figure. It is believed that this is meant to represent a halo. Since the artist did not have the development to show it surrounding the head, it is shown behind the head.

In a similar manner, the artist of this work may have wished to show the correct shape and lettering of the Triangle. However, he or she did not have the necessary artistic knowledge or skill to show it in its proper position.

The Triangle of the Art should be placed outside the area of where the circle will be formed. The Triangle should be raised up so that the center of the mirror is at the eye level of the seer (more on the seer, later). Obviously, if there is a chair for the seer the Triangle will be at a different height than if the seer stands. Although the Triangle may hang straight up and down (vertical), more commonly the top is made to lean back so that it is at an angle. This angle may be up to 45 degrees from vertical, but should be no more than this. To achieve this tilt, the Triangle may be rested upon a chair, an artist's easel or a music stand. Make sure that the Triangle is firmly supported and will not fall over. The Triangle should be placed east of where the circle will be formed, but quite close to the edge of where your circle will be. With this, and your regular preparations, most of your physical preparation for using the magick of the Goetia is complete.

PART THREE

As I have shown, most forms of magick can be done by yourself. Indeed, most grey magickal group workings have the group merely observing and adding their visualizations to that of the operator, the magician actually doing the work.

But with the magick of evocation, this is different. Although it is possible to do evocations solo, it is very difficult. Many people trying this type of solo work achieve little if any success. Therefore, it is necessary to have a seer help you with the evocation. Or, if you are going to act as the seer, you will need another person to perform important parts of the ritual.

It is the seer's task to look into the mirror and see the being evoked. The seer then functions as an intermediary between the ritualist and the evoked entity. The ritualist or operator recites the callings which not only call the desired entity to the mirror, but also aid the seer in obtaining the vision necessary to see something in the mirror.

If you are working with a group of people, your first trial at evocative magick should involve as the seer the person who has the most psychic sensitivity. Clues to this are ease at doing divinations, divinations which go far beyond the inherent limitations of the system used (i.e. extreme precision), divinations which prove correct on a very regular basis, a very detailed dream memory, a very strongly emotional or overemotional person, a daydreamer, etc.

I hate to sound sexist, but because of societal influences the fact is that the best seers are usually women. If you have a person such as has been described in your group, be that person male or female, use that person as your seer in your first experiment. If not, try a volunteer. The worst thing that could happen is that your seer will see nothing. This would not necessarily be due to failure of your experiment, but rather because the seer does not have adequately opened psychic vision.

For those of you who have been working solo, here is some very practical advice on how to find a seer. I am giving this advice here, as placing an advertisement in your local paper for a seer is not advisable.

The best place to seek out a seer is at your local occult bookstore or supply shop. Simply "hang out" there for awhile and look for people coming into the store who are interested in magick and divination. When you meet such a person introduce yourself and ask such things as "Do you do divinations? Are they usually correct? Do you have vivid dreams? Do you daydream frequently?"

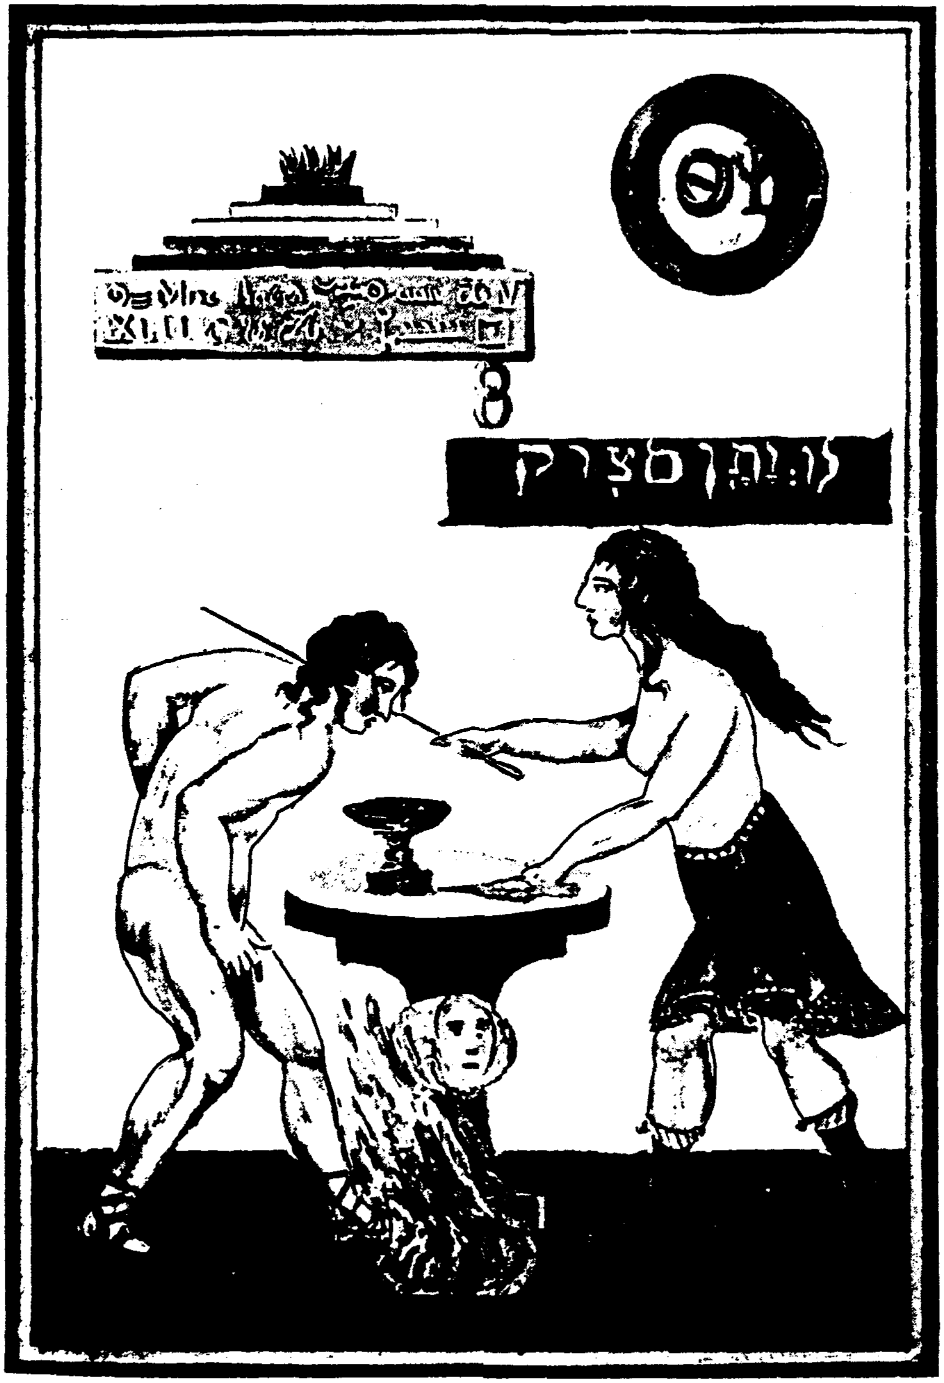
If you are shy about meeting people, remember that you are not trying to "pick someone up" for a romantic situation. You are looking for a co-worker. This should be clearly explained to the person if they are interested in working magickally with you. If the person is interested, perform your daily work with him or her sitting in your circle and see how the person responds. If there seems to be a good working relationship possible between you, if your selected seer seems appropriate, it is time to tell the person what his or her preparations will be.

On the facing page you will see a drawing attributed to Saint-Germain. On the left there is a male seer peering into a goblet used as a magic mirror. The woman ritualist on the right holds a knife and wand. They are surrounded by alchemical symbolism which is irrelevant to this discussion. There is a fire burning directly below the face of the seer.

The inhalation of the smoke will cause a change in the blood chemistry of the seer. Also notice that it is possible that the ritualist is using the wand to hit the seer. This combination of pain and lack of oxygen combines to alter the consciousness of the seer and allow him to more easily observe the sights within the magick mirror.

There is no doubt that an altered state of consciousness is a necessity for the seer. This can be accomplished in a number of ways. A mild state of self-hypnosis will suffice. If a person is not an alcoholic nor allergic to liquor, that person may be allowed to drink to a state of mild intoxication.

There are many natural and synthetic drugs which will alter your consciousness. Although I do not advocate the use of any drug which is not specifically prescribed for you by a licensed doctor, it would be foolish of me to think that none of my students use what are known as "recreational" drugs. I am not going to describe their usage to alter your consciousness for magickal purposes because if you don't already know how they affect you I am not going to suggest that you try them to find out. I will say that some people have told me of great success when they have chemicalized themselves.



The Magick Mirror

Ritualized induction of small amounts of pain, such as implied in the drawing, can also affect your consciousness. The small amounts of pain cause various hormones to flow throughout the bloodstream, and these hormones affect the brain-mind complex. There are drawings at least as far back as Pompeii showing ritual scourging. Some Wiccan groups use this as part of certain of their rituals. Pain is part of spiritual practices in some shamanistic cultures. Even some very mainstream Christian sects have used and use hair shirts and self-flagellation. I personally am against this practice, but there are those who have found it effective.

It is believed that many of the visions seen by seers have been induced by the "demon CO." Here, CO stands for carbon monoxide, the result of fires or incense using up the oxygen in a room. When using incense always be sure to have fresh oxygen coming into the room through an open window or door. Still, the odor of the incense, especially if burned near the seer, can have a remarkable effect on the consciousness of this person. Sexual activity is another means of changing hormonal balance and affecting the brain-mind complex, but that will be discussed in another lesson. Still another way to alter the consciousness is by denying sleep for several days. There are other methods, too. You can probably think of several. In any event, allow the seer the choice of which method(s) he or she wishes to use to alter consciousness. This person should have a medical exam first to be sure that nothing done could possibly damage the seer's health.

Please note that none of the methods mentioned, if done with care, will hurt a healthy person. Further note that they have been done for thousands of years safely, and are still being done in shamanistic cultures. However, also note that nobody is forcing you to do anything. If you try to actually perform evocative magick, using devices illegal or legal, neither the author, publisher nor distributor of this course assume or will have any responsibility for your foolishness or disregard for the law and your health. The following rituals and explanations are presented as educational so that you can see what many people have done and what many people are doing. Should you decide to attempt such a ritual, all responsibility for your health is yours. Further, neither the author, publisher nor distributor in any way condone the use of illegal substances nor the abuse or wrongful use of legal substances or drugs. With this word of warning, we will move into the study of how to do rituals from the Goetia.

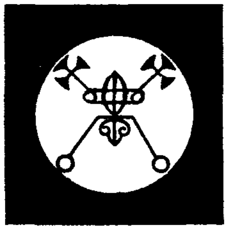
PART FOUR

There are two other things which you need to obtain for this ritual other than your normal tools and the Triangle of the Art. The first is a set of two candle holders with stems long enough that they may be held by the seer while he or she looks into the magick mirror. Alternatively, you may obtain candle stands which reach the floor and are about four or more feet tall. Needless to say, the latter are far more expensive. If you do get the ones which can be hand held, make sure that they have big enough drip protectors so that the seer is not shocked by hot wax suddenly falling on his or her hands. This will also help prevent you from having to scrape wax off your floor or ironing it out of your carpet.

The second necessary item is the Seal of the entity you wish to evoke. For this you must get a copy of the Goetia. Each Seal represents and gives power to deal with an associated entity called a "Spirit." To determine which Spirit to call and which Seal to use you will need to look through the book and see which powers each Spirit offers.

Let us say, for example, that you have reached a point in your life where you do not wish to be bothered by other people and their problems. You want to be alone. This is the true meaning of invisibility when described in the grimoires. Invisibility does not mean that you will become transparent, but that others act as if you are not there. So, looking through the descriptions of the Spirits you find the name Bael (pronounced Bah-ehl).

Bael is said to have the power to "maketh thee to go Invisible. . . He appeareth in divers shapes, sometimes like a Cat, sometimes like a Toad, and sometimes like a Man, and sometimes all these forms at once [!]. He speaketh hoarsely." Further we are told that the Seal must be worn like a necklace by the seer "or else he [Bael] will not do thee homage." The Seal of Bael looks like this:



It may be made on paper as per the lesson on talismans. A string needs to be attached so that it may go around the seer's neck, but it must be long enough that without removing the string from around his or her neck, the seer may pick it up and look at it.

Set up the temple as usual. Place the Triangle of the Art outside the circle in the East. A chair may be placed in the East within the area of the circle for the seer if you feel that the seer may need it. Both of you should be robed and the seer should wear the Seal. The two candelabra should be in the East on either side of the chair (if there is a chair) or to either side of the space where the seer will stand. These two candles should not be lit. You will also want a pencil or pen and some paper to write down any message the seer may give you.

The seer should be in the East of the circle, facing east. There should be incense near the seer so that he or she will inhale much of the smoke.

Perform the Opening by Watchtower. As you do so the seer should pay no attention to the ritual. It is the seer's task to stare at and contemplate the Seal. Any method to alter the consciousness of the seer should already have begun with the exception of self-hypnosis which should wait until after the Opening. If you have enough people, one should be assigned the task of making sure that incense is always flowing toward the seer. Make sure that when casting the circle you walk outside the seer so that the seer is definitely within the magickal circle.

The operator should stand behind the seer and light, or have someone light the seer's candles. Put the candles in the seer's hands. This will force the seer to drop the Seal. Make sure that when it hangs down the Seal is facing out. If you are using floor standing candelabra, tell the seer to let go the Seal and stare into the magick mirror. Tell the seer in a smooth, comforting voice:

> "Stare deeply into the mirror. Do not look at it, but into it. Move the candles so that you can see yourself, but so that you do not directly see the reflection of the candle's flames. Stare deep... deeper... deeper... "

Now it is time to do the first conjuration. When a Spirit's name is mentioned and is capitalized, you should use the appropriate name of the Spirit you are evoking in place of (in this example) BAEL.

I do evocate and conjure thee, O spirit BAEL: and being with power armed from the Supreme Majesty, I do strongly command thee, by BERALANENSIS, BALDACHIENSIS, PAUMACHIA and APOLOGIAE SEDES; by the most powerful Princes, Genii, Liachidae, and Ministers of the Tartarean abode; and by the Chief Prince of the seat of apologia in the ninth legion I do evoke thee, and by evocating conjure thee.

And by being armed with power from the Supreme Majesty, I do strongly command thee, by Him who spake and it was done, and unto whom all creatures be obedient. Also I, being made after the image of God, endued with power from God and created according unto God's will, do exorcise thee by that most mighty and powerful name of God, (vibrate) EL, strong and wonderful, O thou spirit BAEL.

And I command thee by all the names of God (vibrate) AH-DOH-NYE, EL, EHL-OH-HEEM, EHL-OH-HY, EH-HEH-YEH AH-SHAIR EH-HEH-YEH, TZAH-BAH-OHT, EHL-YONE, YAH, TETRAGRAMMATON, SHA-DYE, Lord God Most High. I do exorcize thee and do powerfully command thee, O thou spirit BAEL, that thou dost forthwith appear unto me here before this circle in a fair human shape, without any deformity or tortuosity. And by this ineffable name (vibrate) TETRAGRAMMATON YUD-HEH-VAHV-HEH, do I command thee, at the which being heard the elements are overthrown, the air is shaken, the sea runneth back, the fire is quenched, the earth trembleth and all the hosts of the celestials, terrestrials and infernals do tremble together and are troubled and confounded.

Wherefore come thou, O spirit BAEL, forthwith and without delay from any or all parts of the universe wherever thou mayest be and make rational answers unto all things that I shall demand of thee. Come thou peaceably, visibly and affably, now and without delay, manifesting that which I shall desire. For thou art conjured by the name of the living and true God, HELIOREN, wherefore fulfil thou my commands and persist thou therein unto the end, and according unto mine interest, visibly and affably speaking unto me with a voice clear and intelligible without any ambiguity.

You may repeat this as often as you wish. Pause after the conjuration and ask the seer if he or she sees anything in the mirror. If after a short pause the seer has no vision you should repeat the conjuration. Although you may repeat it as much as you like, I have found that after three or four times my interest wanes. Then you should move on to the next conjuration. If the seer interrupts and claims seeing something in the mirror, finish the conjuration before going on the The Questionings. However, if there is no appearance after the above first conjuration, go on to the second one as follows:

I do evocate, conjure and command thee, O thou spirit BAEL, to appear and to show thyself visibly unto me before this circle in fair and comely shape, without any deformity or tortuosity by the name and in the name (vibrate) YAH and VAHV, which Adam heard and spake, and by the name of God (vibrate) AH-GLAH which Lot heard and was saved with his family, and by the name (vibrate) EE-OHT which Jacob, who was delivered from the hand of Esau, his brother, heard from the angel wrestling with him, and by the name (vibrate) ANN-AH-PHAX-EH-TOHN which Aaron heard and spake and was made wise.

And by the name (vibrate) TZAH-BAH-OHT, which Moses named and all the rivers were turned into blood, and by the name (vibrate) AH-SHAIR EH-HEH-YEH OHR-ISS-TONE, which Moses named and all the rivers brought forth frogs, and they ascended into the houses destroying all things. And by the name (vibrate) EHL-YONE, which Moses named and there was great hail such as had not been since the beginning of the world. And by the name (vibrate) AH-DOH-NYE, which Moses named and there came up locusts which appeared upon the whole land and devoured all which the hail had left. And by the name (vibrate) SH'MAH AH-MAH-TEE-YAH which Joshua called upon and the sun stayed its course.

And by the name ALPHA and OMEGA, which Daniel named and destroyed Bel and slew the dragon. And in the name of (vibrate) EE-MAN-YOU-EHL, which the three children, Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, sang in the midst of the fiery furnace and were delivered. And by the name (vibrate) HAH-GEE-OS, and by the throne of (vibrate) AH-DOH-NYE and by (vibrate) ISS-KEER-OS, AH-THAN-AH-TOS, PAH-RAH-CLEE-TOS, and by (vibrate) OH THEOS, EEK-TROS, AH-THAN-AH-TOS and by the three secret names (vibrate) AH-GLAH, OHN, TETRAGRAMMATON, do I adjure and constrain thee.

And by these names and by all the other names of the living and true God, the Lord Almighty, I do exorcise and command thee, O spirit BAEL, even by God who spake the word and it was done and to whom all creatures are obedient; and by the dreadful judgements of God, and by the uncertain sea of glass which is before the divine majesty, mighty and powerful; by the four beasts before the throne having eyes before and behind; by the fire around the throne, by the holy angels of heaven and by the mighty wisdom of God, I do potently exorcise thee, that thou appearest here before this circle, to fulfill my will in all things which shall seem good unto me, by the name (vibrate) BAS-DAH-THE-AH BAHL-DAHK-HEE-AH and by this name (vibrate) PRIME-UU-MAH-TAHN, which Moses named and the Earth opened and did swallow up Kora, Dathan and Abiram.

Wherefore thou shalt make faithful answers unto all my demands, O spirit BAEL, and shalt perform all my desires so far as in thine office thou art capable thereof. Wherefore come thou, visibly, peaceable and affably, now without delay, to manifest that which I desire, speaking with a clear and perfect voice, intelligibly, and to mine understanding.

Again, ask the seer if he or she sees anything in the mirror. If the answer is yes, proceed to The Questionings. If not, you may repeat this second conjuration or any of those that follow in the grimoire. You may also chant the name of the Spirit you are trying to contact over and over as if it were a mantra. This is especially effective if you have a group of 10 or more people.

Although there are many more conjurations in the Goetia, it has been my experience that the first two will more than suffice. If after reciting them three times each with no result, it is fair to conclude that you are not going to have any luck and that the seer is not capable of learning anything at this time. If the seer informs you that he or she does see something, but it is unclear, everyone should chant the name of the Spirit until the seer says the vision is clear. Once it is clear, proceed on to The Questionings.

The Questionings

1. The first question to ask is directed toward the seer. Simply ask, "What do you see in the mirror?" If the seer says "nothing," or gives no reply, repeat one of the evoking conjurations.

If the seer describes a scene, write down what is reported with the paper and writing implement which was put into the circle for this purpose. If the seer describes an entity, see if it matches the description in the grimoire you are using. In the case of Bael, he normally appears as a cat, toad, man or all three at once.

If the entity appears in a shape so unusual or weird (as will sometime happen) that the seer is frightened or upset, say loudly, and in a firm voice,

> I do evocate, conjure and command thee, O thou spirit BAEL, to show thyself in a fair and comely shape, without any deformity or tortuosity, by the name and powers of (vibrate) EH-HEH-YEH AH-SHAIR EH-HEH-YEH and YUD-HEH-VAHV-HEH EHL-OH-HEEM!

When recited, the figure should change appearance. If it does not, immediately give the License to Depart (which is given later in this lesson) and thoroughly banish the area, for the wrong entity has appeared as a result of your magick.

If the Spirit is of pleasant appearance, or takes on such an appearance at your command, move on to:

2. Ask the Spirit "What is thy name?" The seer should respond by saying "I feel his name is ________" or "He says his name is ____" followed by the Spirit's name.

You will find that the entities we deal with do not lie. However, they do not always give a full answer or one that is intelligible to you. As an example of this, they may give another name by which they are known or may simply refuse to answer. If this should happen, say,

> By the power of (vibrate and spell out the letters with your LBRP dagger in the air and visualize the letters in bright blue) YUD-HEH-VAHV-HEH I command you to tell us your true name without hesitation or equivocation!

At this time you should get the correct reply. If the Spirit gives its name as being the one you are seeking to contact, continue to The Welcome below. If not, give The License to Depart and thoroughly banish the area.

The Welcome unto the Spirit

> Welcome, O most noble spirit BAEL! I say thou are welcome unto me because I have called thee through God whom hast created heaven and Earth and all that is in them contained, and because also thou has obeyed the will of God and mine own will by appearing here now. By that same power by the which I have called thee forth I bind thee for a time that thou remain affably and visibly here before this circle and within this triangle, so long as I shall have occasion for thy presence, and not to depart without my license until thou hast duly and faithfully performed my will without any falsity.

Now, standing behind the seer, point the dagger used in the LBRP directly at the triangle outside the circle and say:

> By the power of God have I called thee! Give unto me a true answer!

Now state what it is you desire of the entity you have summoned. In the case of Bael you would ask,

What are the secrets of invisibility?

Have the seer tell you anything and everything the Spirit says, points toward or does, and copy what the seer says on the paper you have brought for that purpose. Once this part of the evocation is complete, give out loud:

The License to Depart

O thou spirit BAEL, because thou hast diligently answered unto my demands and hast been very ready and willing to come at my call, I do here license thee to depart unto thy proper place. Go now in peace to thy abodes and habitations, causing neither harm nor danger unto humans or beasts. Depart, then, I say, and be thou very ready to come at my call, when duly conjured by the sacred rites of magick. I charge thee to withdraw peaceably and quietly, and may the peace of God be ever continued between thee and me! So mote it be!

Finish the ritual with the Closing by Watchtower.

It is not necessary to have a seer; you can act as the seer yourself. However, it is much easier to have a seer so that one of you can perform the ritual while the other concentrates on the magick mirror.

Also, you will have probably noticed that I did not tell you the appropriate incense to use, nor the appropriate time to do this ritual, nor the appropriate color symbolism. There is an important reason for this. The purpose of this course is not to make you "sort of" familiar with Magick. It is not to have you read and be somewhat familiar with stacks of books on the subject. It is the purpose of this course to make you a practicing magician. Should you merely be able to follow books you will never be more than what a "hack writer" is to literature. And frankly, a few Hemingways, LeGuins and Cervantes are worth a thousand formula novelists. This is not to say that there isn't a place for redundant romance novels or comic book magicians, there is. But it is not what I hope this course will produce.

Yes, the time this ritual is performed is important, the color symbolism is important, the choice of incense important. But at this time I leave it to you to figure out. Go back over these lessons and you should have no problem doing so. As a hint, compare what the Spirit can offer you with the Talismanic Magick chart. From there you should be able to get the planet and Sephira. The rest should be obvious. If it is not, start this entire course over, for you have not really understood the information presented here.

The Goetia has the Seals, names and descriptions of 72 different Spirits, each having various talents and powers which can be shared with you. Much of the book, it is sad to say, has picked up the junk and excrescences of centuries of repression and stupidity. Some sections of the Goetia refer to other books of The Lesser Key of Solomon (of which the Goetia is but one). Unfortunately, there is only one known source for the Complete Lesser Key, and it is rather expensive and of poor quality.

However with the instructions in this course and the commonly available editions of the Goetia you can have virtually years of practical work and experimentation. The most commonly available version is titled The Lesser Key of Solomon: GOETIA: The Book of Evil Spirits. This title, however, is quite misleading, for in this book you are dealing with energies or forces which take on a type of personality. But they are no more "evil forces" than electricity, another force, is good or evil.

Even though evil is not a question in this particular instance, Karma is. Even something which superficially seems to be positive may lead to Karmically negative actions. So before acting on the advice of any Goetic Spirit, be sure to do a divination in order to be positive that you will not be performing any magick or action which would unknowingly lead to deleterious results.

Since this is not a course in Goetic Magick I will not be giving you 72 examples, one for each spirit. Rather, at this time I again urge you to obtain a copy of the book and simply follow the pattern given in the ritual above. Replace the name of BAEL with the name of the Spirit, from the Goetia, you wish to evoke. Use the appropriate Seal as given in that text. Until you can obtain a copy of the book, or if you merely wish to try out some Goetic Magick and see if it appeals to you, in the following pages are a few samples of Goetic Spirits, their Seals, description and purposes.

Above is the Seal of the Spirit AMON. Amon is great in power and is also said to be very stern. He looks like a wolf with the tail of a serpent and breath of fire. At the command of the magician, Amon will change to look like a man with a raven's head. Sometimes there are "dog's teeth" (i.e. fangs) in the head of this raven. Amon will give you information on all things past and things yet to be. Having a neutral nature, he can help reconcile differences between friends. However, he can also cause feuds. Needless to say, care must be taken in asking for what you desire of Amon!

Above is the Seal of the Spirit BUER. Buer should only be evoked during the astrological sign of Sagittarius and appears as the Sagittarian Centaur. He teaches science and philosophy including such things as mathematics, ethics, logic and physics. His specialty is teaching the secret magickal and medicinal powers of herbs and plants. He also has healing powers, especially over psychological pain.

Below is the Seal of the Spirit BOTIS. At first he will appear as an ugly viper, but on the command of the magician changes into the shape of a man with "great teeth" (fangs, again), two horns and carrying a sword of exquisite sharpness and brightness. When evoked, he can offer things similar to Amon (note the similarity with the change of appearance and the fangs). Botis is said to tell all things from the past and those things yet to be. He can also reconcile disagreements between friends and foes.

As an historical document the Goetia is fascinating. Several "spirits" are nothing more than deities of earlier cultures. Thus, the Spirit Astaroth is nothing more than a form of the Goddess Astaroth, also known as Astarte and Isis. Revealing a Judeo-Christian paternal bias, the Spirit Astaroth becomes a male! This certainly helps to validate the sociological theory that the gods and goddesses of any culture become the demons of the following culture. And with the church's influence, even goddesses became male demons.

I recently saw a program on television wherein the studio was decorated to appear as a cave. The speaker was putting forth some bizarre hysteria about how a fantasy role-playing game was resulting in demon possession and people leaving Christianity. Since this program was on a "religious" (i.e. Christian) network, the purpose of this program had to be only to appeal to the paranoia of those who already believe in one form of Christianity. However, another Christian writer, theologian and radio personality says that Christians cannot be "demon possessed." Therefore, this TV program presented a philosophy not even in accord with other Christian apologists. Of course, one good way to keep large numbers of people under your control is to keep instilling fear into them. This seems to be a major function of "Christian" broadcasting. In any event, I disagree totally with the TV program's content as being nothing more than irrationalist, fear-inducing, paranoid superstition.

To be fair, much of occultism is also hidden in the stupidity of paranoia and superstition. A recent book I read on occult topics used the "National Enquirer" and a Hare Krishna magazine as sources for information. And even if the author did not understand that the "National Enquirer" is not necessarily considered an example of journalistic excellence, he should have checked for other sources, too. He also should have realized that the Hare Krishna magazine would present things in order to make their organization look good, truth and reality notwithstanding. So I repeat here,

Don't take my word or anybody else's word for anything in occultism!

Check it out and research it for yourself. Dion Fortune said, "There is no room for authority in occultism" in reference to occult studies. This was succinctly put forth in a bumper sticker which simply read, "Question Authority!"

By now you might be thinking "What does all this have to do with Magickal Evocation and the Goetia?" Well, I want to tell you that I like to think that I am not paranoid, but I have in my possession something which scares me. Although I doubt demon possession is the result of playing simple fantasy role-playing games, I have a similar game which features evocations from the Goetia and playing pieces which are nothing less than miniature versions of the Seals of the Spirits from the Goetia! Although this game has had a rather small circulation and certainly gives no danger to trained occultists, it could be a problem for a person who has latent magickal abilities and spends some time looking at the game pieces. That type of person, with no magickal training or protective preparations could be quite shocked upon seeing a weird figure in a reflective surface.

Such a scare could hurt an unknowing person's psyche and grasp on reality. I fear also that people may become obsessed with certain thoughts and ideas, whether they be along occultic, magickal or other lines. For a person magickally trained, such as you are if you have been following the teachings of this course, obsession or possession is not a problem. For untrained, easily influenced people, care is needed. That is why I hope that copies of the game I possess receive no further circulation than they already have. With this we end our study of the Goetia.

Before moving on to another book of evocational material, I'd like to pause and share another ritual of protection. The focus of this course has been on modern Kabalistic theory, what I have somewhat facetiously called the "WASP Kabalah." This system is based on earlier mystical Judaic traditions which, in turn, had been based on even earlier semitic, pre-semitic and non-semitic sources.

In contradistinction to the WASP Kabalah is what I have called the "Kosher Kabalah," a Kabalistic philosophy which has eschewed many later influences which had de-Judaified Kabalistic tradition. I am personally delighted to see a growing Jewish Kabalistic resurgence in both the West and Middle East. It is hoped that as a result many previously rare and untranslated or poorly translated texts will become available to imperfect students such as myself. As an example of this need, one of the most important Kabalistic magickal texts, a book on talismans known as the Sepher Ratziel, to my knowledge has not been translated into English. I searched out and found a Hebrew copy of it at the University of Judaism in Los Angeles, California. It was about sixty years old and in poor condition. The type used was somewhat dissimilar to the style most commonly used today. That, along with printing which cut off portions of letters, made the book impossible for me to try and translate.

Another important book not yet translated is by the famous Rabbi Isaac Luria. It is called The Revolution of Souls and is about reincarnation. Much of his theory has been presented in these lessons, which I learned from second-hand sources. Perhaps some true scholar of a mystical bent will try his or her hand at the necessary task of translating these two books, as well as many of the others which sit in waiting for a time when they may illuminate the world.

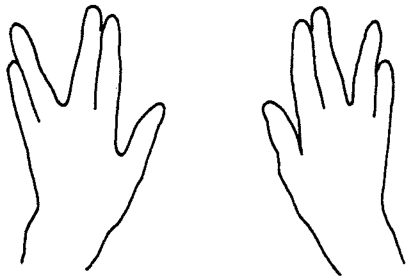
The reason I am again talking about the Kosher Kabalah is that many people have asked me if there are any uniquely Kosher Kabalistic rituals. Of course there are, and I have recently found a good protective ritual of this sort. It is based totally on Jewish sources and most importantly on the Sepher Yetzirah.

In the Sepher Yetzirah we are told that God sealed the various directions of space with various permutations of three letters of the Ultimate Name, those three letters being Yud, Heh and Vahv. Using this as a basis I present a ritual which can be used in place of the Rose Cross Ritual. I call it:

THE YETZIRATIC SEALING RITE

This rite requires only a candle of purest white, a stick of incense, and a match or lighter.

STEP ONE. Face east, and light the candle on the table or altar which is before you. Now, hold the fingers of the hands in three groups each: the little finger and ring finger are together, the middle finger and index finger are together, and the thumb is by itself. It is the traditional hand position of blessing used by the Jewish High Priests (see figure below):



Hold your hands as if blessing the candles and say:

> Blessed art Thou, O Lord (vibrate) YUD-HEH-VAHV-HEH, Ruler of the Universe, Who hath consecrated and commanded us to kindle the sacred lights.

STEP TWO. Take the incense in your right hand and light it from the flame of the candle. While it is still flaming, say:

> Let the whole universe know that the one God who is my God is (vibrate) YUD-HEH-VAHV-HEH!

and blow out the incense so that it only smokes.

STEP THREE (a). Look up, say:

I seal the heights with (vibrate) YUD-HEH-VAHV!

STEP THREE (b). Look down and say:

I seal the abyss with (vibrate) YUD-VAHV-HEH!

Spelling the letters with the incense (יוה).

STEP THREE (c). Looking forward (to the east) say:

I seal the east with HEH-YUD-VAHV!

Again spelling the letters (היו). In a similar manner vibrate and spell the words in the following actions.

STEP THREE (d). In a clockwise direction turn 180 degrees to the west and say:

I seal the west with HEH-VAHV-YUD! (הוי)

STEP THREE (e). Turn clockwise 270 degress to the south, say:

I seal the south with VAHV-YUD-HEH! (והי)

STEP THREE (f). Turn clockwise 180 degrees to the north, say:

I seal the north with VAHV-HEH-YUD! (והי)

STEP FOUR. Turn clockwise 90 degrees back to the east. Reassume the position of priestly blessing as in Step One. Say:

In this way does the microcosm repeat the macrocosm, and the whole world is blessed.
Hallelujah! Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
Selah! Selah! Selah!
Amen! Amen! and Amen!

STEP FIVE. You may now abide in the peace for as long as you wish.

The rite is ended.

PART FIVE

The Greater Key of Solomon is readily available at metaphysical bookstores and occult shops. It is fascinating that many "occultists" claim that the Lesser Key deals with evil spirits and the Greater Key deals with good ones. This is merely a repetition of what other ill-informed writers have claimed. There is not one bit of proof that one Key deals with evil spirits and the other deals with good ones.

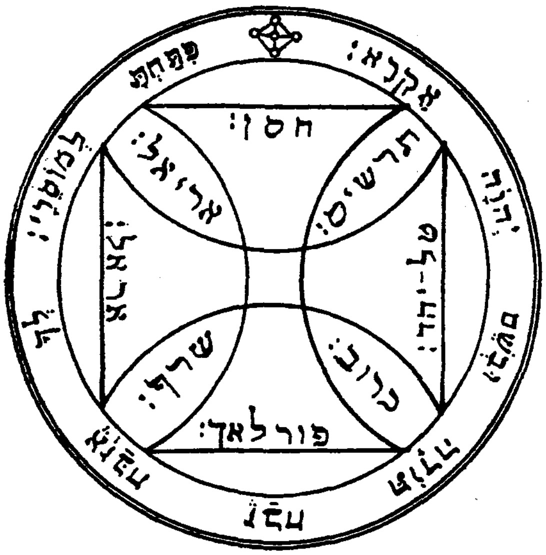
The Greater Key is divided into two major sections or "books." The second of these books describes the various tools or weapons of the magician, including several which do not seem appropriate for the practice of High Magick at all. But this is necessary, as the first book of the Greater Key is a combination of High and Low magickal methods. As an example of the later, the Greater Key includes a method of making oneself invisible using "a small image of yellow wax, in the form of a man... " This type of image magick, sometimes called "poppet" magick, is not in the repertoire of most Kabalistic magicians. This is far more in the realm of Natural or Low Magick.

It is because there are Natural Magickal methods in this grimoire, along with the lack of appeals to Jesus and the Trinity which gives internal evidence of an earlier date for the Greater Key than the Lesser Key. In fact, the earliest written versions of the Greater Key date from the 15th or 16th centuries, while the earliest copies of the Lesser Key are from the 17th century. Of course, oral versions of both of the books may go back much further, and earlier manuscript forms of these books may still be discovered. This did happen with a grimoire called The Picatrix which has never been translated into English. It was thought to be a typical example of writing from the Middle Ages. Recent discoveries show it to be a translation of a much earlier Arabic work.

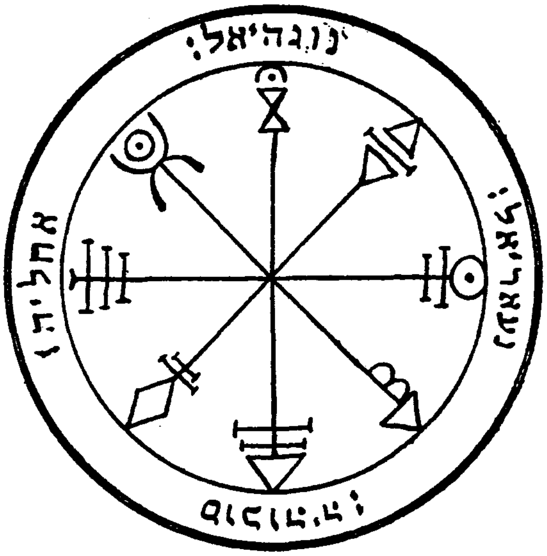
Naturally, it is not my desire to recopy the entire Greater Key of Solomon here. However, the evocational conjurations are similar in form to those of the Lesser Key as given earlier in this lesson. Thus, you could use the evocations from the Lesser Key by changing the phrase "Spirit Bael," as in the earlier example, for "Angel So-and-So." I know that this may infuriate some purists, but the technique and philosophy are the same. If you want to drag yourself through five, single-spaced pages of evocations, such as are given in the Greater Key, you may be my guest!

In the Greater Key we are again confronted with a puzzle to our understanding, a puzzle obviously created to fool those without training. Between Books One and Two of the Greater Key is a section filled with "pentacles" and how they can "bring" you various powers and abilities. This seems to imply that they are actually talismans. However, if you go through Book One and actually study the evocations, you will see that the magician is told to show the pentacles to the Spirit which appears and "demand all that he shall wish from the King of Spirits." As you can see, implying that these symbolic figures are talismans is a cover to prevent their true potential from falling into the hands of the untrained and unprepared.

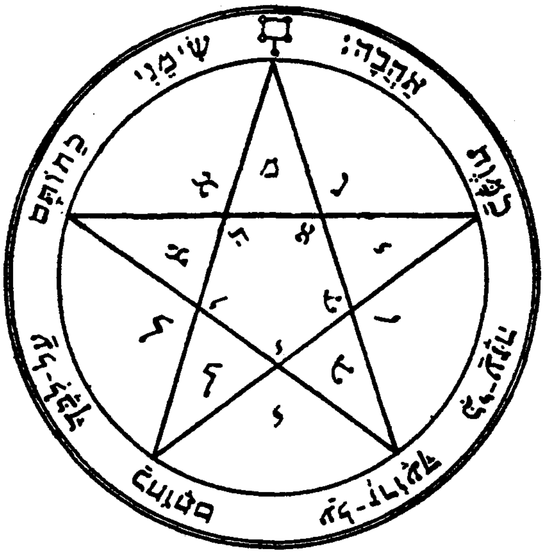
Below is a Pentacle associated with the Sun. Its purpose is to free you from thought patterns which keep you from achieving your desires. The evocation should be done on the day and in the hour of the Sun. If so done, the entity which appears will tell you how to break your (mental) bonds and be free. In your evocation, use the term "Lord Yud-Heh-Vahv-Heh" instead of "Spirit Bael."



Below is a Pentacle for controlling the Spirits of Venus. It would be good for any of the purposes listed under Venus on the talismanic Magick chart. You would want to use the name of the appropriate Archangel instead of "Spirit Bael." Evoke the Spirit of Venus (the Archangel, amongst others) and ask of it what you will as is appropriate to the planet. Of course, do the evocation during the hour of Venus, and, if possible, on the day of Venus.



On top of the next page is another Pentacle associated with Venus. Its purpose is to invoke the Spirit Yohn-ehl to give you information on how to obtain grace and honor. Yohn-ehl comes from the Hebrew outside the central figure, Yud, Vahv, Nun, Alef and Lahmed.



Finally, the Pentacle below is another one of Venus. Its purpose is to learn from the Angel Monachiel how to attract love.

עלמיאל רוח יהוה אדני אחידס מונחיאל

I wish to reiterate here that Magickal Evocation is not just working with your fantasies and imagination. Neither is it a type of Spiritism which seeks contact with any dead souls or entities which happen to be nearby. Rather, it is a very real method of making contact with entities on a higher level of existence. They are always there. It is usually we who are not aware of them. In magickal evocation we not only become aware of them, but choose with whom of the myriad of entities available we desire contact.

In the Greater Key, we obtain some specialized information which is not in the Lesser Key, and, we can assume that it is specifically for use with Greater Key entities. When doing evocations from the Greater Key there is a slightly different method for using the Pentacle. After using the Pentacle to focus your attention (don't confuse this with your magickal tool—the Earth Pentacle), cover the pentacle so that it cannot be seen. Usually a piece of black silk is used for this purpose. Then, when the entity appears in your magick mirror, show the pentacle to the entity. The result is that the entity will be bound by your will. We will use this technique in a similar way, but for another purpose, in a later lesson.

Before going on to another aspect of evocative magick, there is another book I wish to mention in passing. This is a book which was apparently used as a source book by a branch of the Golden Dawn known as The Alpha and Omega. The name of the book, which was translated by Mathers, is The Grimoire of Armadel.

This unusual book, though still in print, is mostly ignored by "magicians" because they do not understand, or dare not try, magick of evocation. Its internal structure (references to Jesus throughout the book) indicates a later work than the Greater Key. In fact, some of the names of Spirits in this book seem to be similar to those of both the Lesser and Greater Keys and another work known as The Arbatel of Magick.

The seals or sigils in The Grimoire of Armadel are far more involved than most other works of this genre. Unless you buy the book and work to understand it, they are rather unusable. This book does not even bother to give outrageous methods to draw a magick circle. Rather it merely says to "see that the Circle be [correctly] formed according to the instructions we have [elsewhere] given."

The meanings of the seals, and the purposes for using them, are hidden in obstruse language. After reading this lesson you should be able to discern the meanings and see through the veils to the uninitiated. If you do buy (or already have) this book, simply remember that the purpose of evocative magick is to allow yourself to see into the astral plane and communicate with entities who can answer questions and give instructions according to their nature.

Although The Grimoire of Armadel does not have instructions on how to make the Magickal Circle, it does have the same kind of protection rituals and conjurations as given in other grimoires of this nature such as the Greater and Lesser Keys. Curiously, this book also has some heavily disguised information on sex magick toward the end. There will be more on sex magick in a later lesson.

PART SIX

Unless you are totally new to magick and occultism, you have probably heard of entities known as elementals. And, if you have a little more knowledge, you probably know that there are different types of elementals. Each type is associated with a different element:

The elemental Spirits of Earth are the Gnomes.
The elemental Spirits of Air are the Sylphs.
The elemental Spirits of Water are the Undines.
The elemental Spirits of Fire are the Salamanders.

These natural elementals are quite unique. Here, on the physical plane, everything is made of a combination of the elements, but the elementals are totally composed of only one element. Thus, they can rarely be seen on this plane except within their element. Salamanders can sometimes be seen weaving around a roaring fire. Sylphs can sometimes be seen as sparkles in the air on a clear day.

The proper place for describing entities whose main appearance is on other planes will come in another lesson. Further, the length of this course does not allow time for learning to do magick with the aid of the elementals. However, there is something which uses a creation similar to elementals and which forms an important part of your magickal curriculum. It is known as the creation of artificial elementals.

An artificial elemental is something which you, by force of will and magickal techniques, create to do your Will. In a sense, this is a type of evocation. Another way of looking at artifical elements is that they are a type of talismanic magick without the talisman. And. . . you already know how to make artificial elementals.

An artificial elemental combines the force of a particular element with a will or direction created by yourself. Thus, if two of your friends were having a disagreement, you might wish to send them a bit of (elemental) water to cool them off. Here you are combining an element (water) with a purpose (calm friends).

Perhaps you have a boyfriend or girlfriend who to your mind is not amorous enough. Sending that person some fire (element) to increase their ardor (purpose) might do the trick. Similarly, if you are a manager with a lazy employee, sending some fire (element) to increase the employee's productivity (purpose) could be what is needed to encourage the employee.

An artificial elemental also has a type of rudimentary consciousness or sense of purpose. This is what you instill in it as will be explained. Much as a cruise missile will move around objects in order to find its target, so too will an artificial elemental discover ways of achieving the goal you give it.

This means that the amount of elemental energy you give it may not be equal to the task you assign it. If the energy is too little, the artificial elemental will not succeed in achieving its goal. If you give it more elemental energy than it needs, and do not tell it how to discharge that excess energy once the goal has been reached, an artifical elemental can become an unthinking (and sometimes uncontrollable) elemental force, sending out its undirected energy at anything and anyone, including its creator, Therefore, when making an artificial elemental for a particular purpose, you should pay close attention to the following rules:

1. You should have firmly in mind what you want the artifical elemental to do.

2. You should not have the artifical elemental affect another person without that person's permission. In the above situations a) employees tacitly give approval for managers to affect them to encourage their productivity; b) the person was already a boyfriend or girlfriend and thus what you would be doing would be to strengthen something already in existence. You are not affecting a new or unknown person; c) you are not affecting the outcome of the argument, merely calming the emotions associated with it so that the two can more easily settle the differences between them.

3. Since this is a type of Grey Magick, you must first perform a divination to see if the outcome of the magickal act would be positive or negative.

4. As part of the magickal process, the artificial elemental must be given the command to disperse all energy with harm to no one when it achieves its goal or by a certain date and time.

RITUAL FOR THE CREATION OF AN ARTIFICIAL ELEMENTAL

STEP ONE. Decide on the purpose and do a divination to determine the outcome. If it is positive, proceed to Step Two.

STEP TWO. Perform the Opening by Watchtower.

STEP THREE. Imagine that you are the element which you wish to form into an artificial elemental (instructions for this are in earlier lessons of this course). Hold your hands nine to twelve inches apart, palms facing each other, Now imagine a bottle or box between your hands. Next, as you exhale, visualize all of the element you are working with going out with your breath and being trapped in the container between your hands. Do this until the container is literally bursting with elemental energy.

STEP FOUR. Take your hands away and let the container float in front of you. Pick up the tool associated with the element with which you are working. Put the end of the tool against the visualized container. Say:

I hereby name thee ________.
Go thou and do (such and such).
When you have completed this task, disperse and reunite with (name of element) everywhere and harm none on your way.
If thou hast not completed thy task by (date and time), then disperse nonetheless and reunite with (name of element) everywhere and harm none on your way.
So mote it be!
Be on thy way!

STEP FIVE. Perform the Closing by Watchtower.

The rite is ended.

Notes:

1. For a name you can use anything. It can be a common person's name or totally made up. However it should apply to the purpose of the artificial elemental. Calling an artificial fire elemental "Water-bearer" is not appropriate.

2. You can add the name to the words of the rite above. Thus the above ritual can be expanded to include "Go thou (name of artifical elemental) and do (such and such).

3. In the space marked "such and such," name the purpose of creating the artificial elemental. Examples include "Go thou and bring peace to my friends," or "Go thou and bring greater ardor to my lover," etc.

4. When giving a date and time for dispersion it is best to give astronomical dates rather than dates invented by humans. So, rather than saying "Tuesday at 4:00 P.M.," it would be better to say, "When the Sun is at its highest on the day of the next Full Moon." Even the more complex "On the next day of Mars when the Sun is halfway between its highest point and its setting" would be good. This last phrase means Tuesday (the day of Mars) at some time between 3:00 P.M. and 5:00 p.m. depending upon the time of year.

5. Although an artificial elemental has a type of consciousness, it is no more alive than a computer with which you play chess. Therefore there is nothing ethically wrong with creating an "imprisoned artifical elemental." These are frequently used as protective devices. They may be put into something solid or something which is hollow but sealed. This may be the source of the genie in the bottle myth.

To do this you would change the second line of the evocation above to say, "Go thou into this (statue, vase, rock, etc.) and do (such and such)." If you are using a vase or bottle which can be sealed, leave it open until after you see or sense that the artifical elemental has entered the bottle. Then quickly and securely seal the container. An example of such a protective artificial elemental would be based on the element Fire and would have the purpose of creating the fiery emotions of fear and paranoia in any who would seek to intrude without permission or honorable intent. Be sure to give it a dispersal date and time. And if your container is hollow, open it at that date and time to allow the imprisoned artificial elemental to disperse.

PART SEVEN

I have already discussed the differences between evocation and invocation, and how invocational magick is the basis for Spiritism. The way a Spiritist does an invocation (becomes a "medium" for an entity claiming to be the spirit of someone deceased) is surprising:

1. The magician protects himself or herself with appropriate banishings, etc. The Spiritist does not.

2. The magician prepares to allow one particular entity to unite and control the magician's consciousness. The Spiritist allows anything which is hanging around to enter.

3. Magicians tend to doubt what they are told by non-physical entities. It took Crowley years before he fully accepted the responsibility of The Book of the Law. Many Spiritists tend to accept anything which "comes from the other side."

Invocational Magick, as done by Ceremonial Magicians, follows a straightforward pattern:

1. Banishings and purifications.

2 & 3. Calling on a particular entity and using words which have the dual purpose of loosing (not "losing") the control of the consciousness and allowing this other entity to "take over" for a time.

4. The identification of the entity.

5. Comments of the entity and questioning the entity.

6. Release of the entity and return to normal consciousness.

7. Final banishings.

Ceremonial Magick invocations are actually too advanced to spend the space fully explaining a ritual invocation in this introductory course. But although I am not going to actually give a ritual for invocation, I will be showing you how to do one according to the pattern given above. With study and practice you should be able to construct your own invocational rituals.

1. For banishings and purifications, the best method I know of is the Opening by Watchtower.

2 & 3. To call on a particular entity requires a vast knowledge of that entity. Very frequently the entities chosen are Gods from various pantheons, archangels, or spirits from various grimoires. You must learn all you can about the particular entity you will be invoking, including the physical position (if any) in which the entity is most frequently visualized. Visualizing yourself in this position is known as "assuming a God-form." Appropriate colors and scents should also be around, and poetry or song and even dance dedicated to the entity should be performed. Sometimes, words which are fairly meaningless to us are repeated over and over, like a mantra. These are frequently (and wrongly) called "the Barbarous Names of Evocation." Together, this combination of calling a particular entity and using devices to alter the consciousness of the magician produces a condition which allows an entity to temporarily displace the consciousness of the magician.

4. Next, the magician will identify himself or herself as the entity. The speech pattern and appearance of the magician may alter at this time.

5. The invoked entity may give comments to those assembled. As with evocational magick, invocational rituals are group acts. Others are needed to take notes or ask questions of the invoked entity. It will later be up to all the people present whether or not they wish to follow the advice of the entity. The group may also wish to ask questions of the entity in order to prove the identity of the entity. This method is explained earlier in this lesson.

6. Since the chosen entity is from a non-physical plane of existence, it will not wish to stay for long. Sometimes an additional rite is added here. This rite will be discussed in the next lesson. Then the entity will freely choose to go and the magician's normal consciousness will automatically return. During the entire ritual, from after the Opening by Watchtower, the Earth Pentacle, a sign of the physical plane should be covered with a thick black cloth, preferably of silk. If the entity does not leave as quickly as desired, or (as I have seen happen), if people in the circle start to have a bad reaction from the extraterrestrial contact, unveil the Pentacle and show it to the eyes of the magician/invoked entity. It will depart to its own abodes. Also give the license to depart as in evocational rituals.

During the time when the non-physical entity is invoked, the consciousness of the magician is not simply gone. Rather, one of two things happen. It may stay on the astral plane near the body of the magician. Otherwise, it may go throughout the astral plane. Sometimes the consciousness of the magician may meet other entities on the astral plane, and the report of experiences by the magician during this period may be of more value to the group than the actual invocation!

7. Do the Closing by Watchtower.

There are many beautiful versions of this type of ritual given in sources both Pagan and Ceremonial. One of my favorites is an invocation to a deity which came before creation, and thus, was not created. In the words of the invocation, the entity is "bornless." Listen to the words of the calling:

Thee I invoke, the Bornless One.
Thee, that didst create the Earth and the Heavens;
Thee, that didst create the Night and the Day.
Thee that didst create the Darkness and the Light...
Thou hast distinguished between the Just and the Unjust.
Thou didst make the Female and the Male.
Thou didst produce the Seed and the Fruit.
Thou didst form Men to love one another...

This is followed by a long section of "Barbarous Names" which is meant to be repeated over and over (although it is not mentioned that you are supposed to do so) until the Bornless One takes over. The best way to allow this to happen is to "enflame thyself with prayer!"

Finally, the magician's personality leaves and the Bornless One identifies himself:

I am He! the Bornless Spirit! having sight in the feet: strong, and the Immortal Fire!
I am He! the Truth!
I am He! who hateth that evil should be wrought in the World!
I am He, that lighteneth and thundereth.
I am He, from Whom is the Shower of the Life of Earth:
I am He, Whose mouth ever flameth:
I am He, the Begetter and Manifester unto the Light:
I am He: the Grace of the World...

Is that not beautiful? Versions of it can be found in The Lesser Key of Solomon: Goetia and in Crowley's Magick in Theory and Practice.

The reason I am not presenting an invocational ritual in full is not because it is dangerous. If you have practiced the rituals given so far in this course and follow the instructions given, you will have no problem. What I wish to present to you is the idea that rituals are not static and unchanging. Is there an entity you wish to invoke? Do the research on that entity, learn all you can about the entity. Find poetry dedicated to that entity or write some yourself. To be successful you must become totally involved with that god, archangel or spirit. And then you must truly want the entity to come to you. To do this you must "inflame thyself with prayer" aimed toward that particular entity.

I want to give you as much information as possible in this course. With evocation and invocation, this task is rather incomplete. This is because the very nature of magickal evocation requires the use of other books, and the nature of invocations requires a great deal of work on your own.

Although these types of magick are very dramatic, you can be a successful magician and never use them. If you do desire to practice these techniques you will have to purchase the appropriate books or do the necessary work.

Remember, one of the goals of this course is to allow you to pick up any book on magick and be able to understand it and work its system. Had I not told you the inner secrets of magickal evocation and invocation, a great quantity of books might not have been as clear to you as they could be. Thus, this lesson serves its purpose.

The instructions on how to create an artifical elemental are a more complete set of magickal instructions. You now know how to create an artificial elemental for any purpose you desire. Although the ritual looks short, in fact it requires much time and effort. It requires that you know the material in the eight previous lessons of this course.

You needed to know the correspondences with the elements.

You needed to know the Watchtower ritual which means that you needed to know the Pentagram and Hexagram rituals.

You needed to know how to generate elemental energy which also requires the knowledge of elemental pore breathing.

In short, this course is cumulative. I cannot stress this too much. To achieve success in magick requires dedication to study and practice. If you want to talk about magick, I think you will enjoy this entire course. If you want to be a magician, a real practicing magician, you must practice the exercises and techniques and rituals given in these lessons. There is no secret pill or formula to become a wyzard overnight. Now is the time to get to work if you have not already begun.

REVIEW

The following questions are designed to help you determine if you have mastered the information in Lesson Nine. Please try to answer them without looking at the text. The answers are in Appendix Two.

1. According to Dion Fortune, entities are evoked to what level and who can see the evoked entities?
2. According to Tantrik belief, for how many minutes does semen retain its magickal value after ejaculation?
3. What is the difference between Invocation and Evocation?
4. What type of magick is difficult to work by yourself?
5. Who is the "Demon CO" and why is this demon dangerous?
6. In an Evocation, what is the first question to be asked?
7. In an Evocation, what is the second question to be asked?
8. What does the Spirit Amon look like?
9. Who is the ultimate authority in Magickal matters?
10. How many directions are "sealed" in the Yetziratic Sealing Rite?
11. What are the names of the four types of elemental spirits and why are they unique?
12. List the seven steps in magickal evocations.

The following questions only you can answer.

1. If you have been doing magick for some time before studying the lessons in this book, did the information on the truth about evocations surprise you?
2. Are you still doing your rituals and keeping your diaries?
3. Do you go back and occasionally study earlier lessons in this course?
4. Have you ever attempted an evocation? Will you in the future? Do you have some of the other source books (such as the various grimoires) needed to do evocations? If not, do you plan to get them?
5. Can you do the Watchtower Ritual by heart yet?

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Anon., Lesser Key of Solomon: GOETIA, The, deLaurence, 1916.
Crowley, Aleister, Magick, Weiser, 1973.
Feldman, Daniel Hale, Clear Magic, Garden of YH-Light, 1984.
Fortune, Dion, Aspects of Occultism, Aquarian Press, 1962.
Mathers, S.L.M. (translator), Greater Key of Solomon, The, deLaurence, 1914.
Grimoire of Armadel, The, Weiser, 1980.
McIntosh, Christopher, Devil's Bookshelf, The, Aquarian, 1985.
Mordell, Phineas, Origin of Letters & Numerals According to the Sefer Yetzirah, The, Weiser, 1975.
Turner, Robert, (translator), Arbatel of Magick, Heptangle, N.D.
White, Nelson and Anne, Lemegeton; Clavicula Salomonis, The Technology Group, 1979. (This is the complete Lesser Key) Secret Magick Revealed, The Technology Group, 1979.

Lesson

10

"Magick is not something you do, magick is something you are." I have said this over and over to students and I have tried to make it clear in these lessons. True magicians realize that since they can work magick and affect their lives, they are really free to do anything they wish. True magicians also realize that they are responsible for their actions. Thus freedom and responsibility are signs of a magickal lifestyle. This attitude is also the basis for a magician's view of sex.

As a magician, I believe that everbody is entitled to have sex any way he or she desires, as long as it does not involve the coercion of anyone else. If you are straight, gay, celibate or promiscuous; if you are into B&D, S&M or just about anything else, that's fine with me . . . as long as you do not coerce someone into something they do not wish to do. Freedom, responsibility and honesty should be a magician's guide. For that matter, these ideas should guide any person's actions.

Unfortunately, various organizations of dubious worth coerce people into various sexual situations. One organization I am familiar with has the leader determine sexual partners. This includes having to be in an adjacent room while your mate has intercourse with another person. This allows you to hear every sound.

Another organization I know of preaches strict celibacy. Married members are only allowed to have sex once a month, and that only for the purpose of procreation. However, I know that many members of this organization do not follow this rule. In fact, one of the vice presidents of this organization, a man who teaches celibacy, had a torrid affair with a woman I know. The organization is aware of his extracurricular activities and moves him from so-called temple to temple but does not expel him.

Another organization's leader told several members to get divorces, which they did. This leader also encourages romantic affairs but is against marriage. This leader's actions have ruined several families. Why do these organizations and their leaders try to control people's sex lives?

The most personal and private thing which we possess is our sexuality. It is impossible to get physically closer to another person than during sexual relations. Therefore, sex is totally involved in our psyches. Control a person's sex life and you can control the person's psyche; you control the person. Control of a person's sex life is a method of "brainwashing."

Perhaps you remember Patty Hearst. She was kidnapped by a group with whose philosophies she did not agree. She later became a member of the group. One of the means used to accomplish this was the control of her sex life. She was forced to have sexual intercourse with several people, including having group sex. This was one of the ways her will was broken down until she lost her own ideals and adopted those of her captors. This is not an attempt to philosophically side with Ms. Hearst or her captors, it is only to show how one method of brainwashing is done.

In the case of the first group I mentioned earlier, controlling the sex life of the members allows the control of the members' minds. Thus, although the organization is supposed to teach each member how to be a unique, independent individual, everyone tends to freely accept the commands of the leader. Also, the members give large amounts of money to the organization, much of which goes to the leader.

Concerning the second group, its current leaders apparently have an incredible thirst for power in terms of control over people and control of money. Thus the leaders ignore their own "spirituality" and attempt to enforce a lifestyle which they do not follow. Still, the members feel guilty if they cannot fulfill the required celibacy and work harder to raise funds for the organization. It quickly becomes easy to believe the "truths" of the leaders who proceed to teach the members how to lie and steal. In fact, this group was recently convicted in court of "wrongful death," libel and kidnapping. A spiritual organization indeed!

The third organization is totally in thrall to its leader. The leader dresses up in bizarre clothes with built-in lightbulbs and makes videotapes of the group's theories, tapes which are so bad that they are unintentionally hilarious. Yet, like controlled robots, none of the leader's followers seem to care or realize how foolish they look. The more people laugh at them when they dress up in clothes that are half Renaissance, half science fiction, the more they become dedicated to the leader who controls their lives.

The reason I am giving you these prefatory notes is to point out that there are organizations which attempt to control your sex life as a means of controlling your will. On a lower level, there are groups which use a guise of spirituality or learning in order to obtain people for sexual exploitation. These types of groups exist in all fields of endeavor, including the study of magick. Some "magickal" groups are nothing more than a cover for one of two things: gaining sexual partners and gaining power over others.

It is indeed a shame that some people feel so weak and helpless that in order to overcome these feelings they must seek to have power over, and control, other people. It is also a shame that some people need "spiritual" facades in order to gain sexual partners.

If you are working with a group of people and it seems obvious to you that sex is going to become a part of that group's activities, stop! Ask yourself if you really want to do this with these people. If these are not people you wish to become sexually involved with, get out before they possibly take control of your life and will.

And please do not think that you are immune to brainwashing or too smart for it. Many cults get a large percentage of their recruits from college campuses. I have seen very bright and intelligent people go and "investigate" cults only to be trapped in cultic double-think and end up as pawns of a ruthless leader.

It is because the control of a person's sex life can be used to get control over that person's life in general that I am taking so much time discussing brainwashing and cults. For the true sign of a magician is freedom of thought and freedom of will. You will never be a magician if you are under some cult's mind control.

Further, brainwashing may not be what you think. You do not have to be tortured and berated day after day, although that is one method. Most groups today use a gradual process which induces you to ignore logic and accept the group's "double-speak." In the bibliography which comes with this lesson I am listing a few books which describe the signs of cults and their brainwashing techniques. I urge you to study them before joining any group which uses sexuality as part of its teachings.

PART ONE

There are several different aspects to sexual magick, and it is difficult to divide them into categories as they overlap a great deal. Even so, it is necessary to make loose categories in order to discuss the subject. Do understand that these divisions are just for communication's sake, and other writers may not follow them

I divide the types of magick which use the sexual energies as a fundamental source into three groups:

1. Thought Control. This is a method of controlling sexual energy via the mind during sexual excitation and orgasm. This may not sound difficult, but it actually requires you to concentrate on something while you are in a state of consciousness where directed thinking is very difficult. This will be explained later, including how to overcome the problem.

2. Inner Alchemy. This is a type of White Magick which could be called White Sex Magick. It is an important part of Taoist Alchemy (also called Taoist Yoga) and Tantrik Yoga. Some purists may be upset that I am introducing Oriental elements into this course. However, as I have said, I am very eclectic. Since the writings of Helena Blavatsky, Oriental mysticism has been incorporated into Western mystical philosophy and practice. Even the Golden Dawn took much from the East. This includes both the ideas of Karma and the "Tatvic Tides," a system which can help in understanding and working with the magickal elements. Also, it is unfortunately true that with the denunciation of sex for anything but procreation as taught by the Christian church for over 1500 years, much of Western sex magick had to be deeply hidden. This was not the situation in the East, and thus there is much more material, even if it is, in many instances, heavily disguised.

3. Outer Alchemy. This is more along the lines of Grey Magick. It uses sexual fluids which have been magickally charged to the end of achieving a chosen goal. Note that this uses tangible elements as opposed to the sexual forces which are the basis of Inner Alchemy. Outer Alchemy is frequently associated with Western "Hermetic" Alchemy as much Western Alchemical literature, once you know the code, is simply disguised instructions in sex magick.

None of these three systems is easy to learn or master. Further, only one hundred years ago the techniques were deep secrets and spoken of in hushed whispers. But we are in a new era, and with the knowledge which may now be shared, along with sincere and dedicated practice, anyone may become proficient at any of the techniques of sex magick.

Many magicians believe that sex magick entirely traces its heritage back to the Tantriks of India and Tibet. While much of sex magick does come from those sources, there are aspects of sex magick which are from traditional Western sources, even if they do have similarities with Eastern practices. An example of this is that sex, and concomitantly sex magick, is a basic part of the Kabalah.

Even stodgy A.E. Waite (with blushing face, no doubt) admits in The Holy Kabalah that, "the Supreme Wisdom [of the Kabalah] is a Mystery of Sex." He also reports that the Zohar makes clear that the best time for a man and woman to have intercourse is on the holiest of days of the week, the Sabbath. It is also stated there that if a man travels away from his wife for a time in order to study the Kabalah, on his return home his first duty and obligation is to make love to his wife.

Of course, there is a difference between sex and sex magick. But by understanding that the sides of the Tree of Life are masculine and feminine, and even the Tetragrammaton is composed of masculine and feminine letters, one can see the inherent sexuality of the Kabalah. But, let's get practical.

There is a Hebrew book called the Iggeret ha-Kodesh which translates as The Holy Letter. This book dates from around the end of the 13th century, and on the surface is a type of medieval Jewish "marriage manual."

Today's marriage manuals are nothing more than sex books giving various positions for sexual intercourse and other sexual activity. In ancient China these were known as "Pillow Books." But marriage manuals were not always such. Many hardly even mentioned sex, limiting discussions to philosophy and simple psychology. This was primarily due to the cultures wherein these books were written and to the censorship rules of that society.

Judaism and Kabalists did not cringe from sexuality as did many cultures. One of the holy books of the Jews, usually called the Song of Solomon, on the surface is nothing more than an erotic love poem. Yet, Rabbi Akibah, a famous mystic (one of his disciples, Simeon Ben Yochai, is said to have written the Zohar) said of this work, "the whole universe is not worth the day that book [The Song of Solomon] has been given to Israel." Further, he said "all the scriptures are holy, but the Song of Songs [actual name of the Song of Solomon] is the most holy." Certainly there is more to the sex of the Song of Songs than mere eroticism!

The Holy Letter discusses sexuality in all of its aspects. This includes mystical and magickal aspects of sex. Thus we read, "when a man unites with his wife in holiness, the Sheckinah is between them in the mystery of man and woman." Since the Sheckinah (pronounced sheh-chen-ah, "ch" as in the German "ach") is equivalent to the idea of God's Holy Spirit or the Tantrik "Shakti" (note the similarity in the sounds of the words), we can see that the author of this book is talking about something special. Indeed, the author is discussing what is commonly called Kundalini Yoga (more accurately Layayoga). This will be discussed when I talk about Inner Alchemy.

The Holy Letter also mentions that aspect of sex magick which I term Thought Control. This type of sex magick may be the most palatable for people from Western cultures. The Holy Letter states, "According to the thoughts you have in intercourse, so will the form come upon the seed." Superficially, this means that if you are thinking spiritual thoughts when having intercourse you will have a spiritual child; if happy thoughts, a happy child, etc. As we all know, however, every act of sexual intercourse does not result in the birth of a child. Or does it?

Certainly I could not deny that the number of times sexual intercourse leads to the birth of an infant human is small compared to the number of times sexual intercourse is performed. But think back to my comments on Creative Visualization. Remember that you are constantly going through the visualization process, whether you realize the fact or not. Likewise, every time you have sexual intercourse you give birth to a "magickal childe," even if no human child is the result. Or, to put it another way, the key idea behind the Thought Control form of sex magick is that the thought held at the instant of orgasm comes to pass. Unfortunately, this is not as easy as it might sound. To understand why this is so we must look at the theories of Dr. Wilhem Reich.

Many professionals in the field of psychology dismiss Reich. They claim that one of his basic theories, that people who were psychologically disturbed could not have an orgasm, is false. It is clear that many people with pathological problems are capable of having an orgasm such as in the instance of violent rape. And, since this is a basis of many of Reich's theories, they must all be wrong.

Well, it is obvious to me that none of these "experts" on Reich ever bothered to read any of Reich's work. For Reich never said that people with psychological problems could not have an orgasm. Reich knew that such a person could have an orgasm. He must have been aware of the important psychological text Psychopathia Sexualis by Krafft-Ebbing. That book had been the physicians' resource on sociopathic sexuality for many years. What Reich said was that a person who was psychologically disturbed was not "orgasmically potent."

Reich believed that during sexual excitation an energy which he called "Orgone" built up in the body. For full mental health this energy needed to be discharged during orgasm. You could compare this to blowing up a balloon. As the sexual excitation increases, more air is blown into the balloon. If you lose control over your consciousness, the air will be safely discharged through the valve on the balloon. If, on the other hand, you do not lose control, the balloon increases in size and pressure until it pops.

Similarly, the natural and healthy in-and-out flow of Orgone energy does not occur, acording to Reich, in a person with a psychological disturbance. This type of person would have a greater or lesser emotional, psychological and/or physical control of him or herself at the moment of orgasm.

This controlled behavior, according to Reich, is not healthy. To be healthy a person needs to be orgasmically potent. This means that during the convulsions of the orgasmic experience a person should not be thinking,"Am I doing this right? Is my partner enjoying this?" Rather, a person should be so caught up in the very animalistic enjoyment of sex that nothing can be thought of. There should be only pure, thought-free experience.

Does this idea of "thought-free experience" sound familiar to you? It should, because going into such a state is exactly what true meditation is! Reich discovered that the moment of orgasm can be identical to true meditation!

Reich believed that being Orgasmically Potent, being able to achieve the thought-free, sense-oriented state described above, was the only way to release Orgone energy. If this was not done, the human "balloon" would pop from over-inflation of Orgone energy. This popping would be in the form of psychological problems. While it is true that this is one way to release the Orgone energy, I must disagree with it being the only way. Tantriks have methods of controlling this energy at will. This will be covered in the section on Inner Alchemy.

Further, it is not true that a person experiencing an orgasm which is Orgasmically Potent is without thought. In fact, such a person is only without conscious thought. The act of sexual intercourse (or other sexual activity wherein a person is brought to orgasm) is so primal that it takes us to a period before our rational consciousness ruled our selves. Thus, it is our unconscious which holds sway over us at the moment we experience an Orgasmically Potent orgasm.

As I've said before, the unconscious is our link to the Astral Plane (also called the Yetziratic World). When you create something in the Astral Plane as a result of your thinking procedures, it must come into existence on the physical plane. Whatever thought is in our mind at the point of orgasm goes directly to the subconscious and into the Astral Plane. It must manifest. That is why the thought held in the mind at the instant of orgasm must come into existence.

But that is also the difficulty. To open up the subconscious we must be Orgasmically Potent. This means we must, temporarily, lose our sense of self, our ego. Unfortunately, that aspect of our being is locked up with our logical, reasoning self. If we lose that, how can we keep an idea in our mind when having an orgasm?

Luckily, there is a way. The subconscious does not think in words, it thinks in symbols or images. You see the word "tree," but the subconscious (and your memory) keeps an image of a tree you have seen or imagined at one time or another. Therefore, all you have to do is make up a symbol to represent what you want. Symbols, shapes and objects can stay with you through an Orgasmically Potent orgasm while words will not. Simply keep the symbol in mind when you have an orgasm. And though this is not difficult, it does require practice.

A SEX MAGICK RITUAL FOR A COUPLE

Let both participants be aware that a magickal act, a spiritual act, is about to be performed, not just a common act of sexual intercourse.

STEP ONE. Let both participants know the purpose of this act. A divination should be done, with both persons present, to insure the "karmic correctness" of the magickal act.

STEP TWO. Let a suitable sigil, representing the purpose of the magickal act, be designed. Although a sigil taken from a grimoire will do, designing an original sigil is a good idea. The system of A.O. Spare is quite good for this.

STEP THREE. Let large versions of the above sigil be made and placed around the room. This must include the ceiling so that no matter which way you look you will see the magickal sigil.

STEP FOUR. A "Place of Comfort" should be established in the center of your area. Most commonly this is a small mattress or pad of some kind. If there is room, place your altar at the head of the Place of Comfort. If there is not enough room let the Place of Comfort be your altar.

STEP FIVE. Both participants should take time now to shower and/or bathe. Do this separately. Use appropriate scents, perfumes and oils on your body after you dry yourself. Oils are especially good for this as different oils can be used on different parts of the body. As you come into your temple, remember that this is a holy place. Perform the Opening by Watchtower.

STEP SIX. Now move to the Place of Comfort and begin to caress and adore one another. Slowly remove each other's robes. If you wish, apply lubricating body oils to each other as you continue to caress each other freely. Explore each other totally with eye, ear, mouth, voice, hand, foot, tongue, etc. At this part of the ritual, think not of the rite. Rather, think of yourself and your partner. Let your sexual imagination run free.

STEP SEVEN. When both people are ready, begin actual sexual intercourse (penis in vagina). As you continue caressing, for a few moments there should be no thrusting motions on the part of either participant.

STEP EIGHT. Begin very slow thrusting motions. As you both become more involved in this part of the rite, observe the sigils around you. Do not concern yourself about their meaning! Your subconscious already knows the meaning. Just look at the symbols.

STEP NINE. Allow your passion to dictate the speed of your movements until the intercourse is quite rigorous. If you wish, change the position of your ritual lovemaking. That is why it is necessary to post copies of your sigil all over the room. No matter where you look, no matter what position you are in, you must be able to see a copy of the sigil. Place as much concentration as possible on the symbols. Continue to orgasm. If the couple has been together for a while and both know each other's sexual responses, it would be best if both could orgasm at about the same time, although the so-called "mutual orgasm" is not necessary.

STEP TEN. Stay coupled (i.e. allow the detumescent penis to remain in the vagina) for as long as possible, to a maximum of 15 minutes. During this time the ritualists may caress each other, but refrain from much speaking.

STEP ELEVEN. Re-robe and do the Closing by Watchtower.

The rite is complete.

Notes on this ritual:

1. The length of time of actual penis-in-vagina intercourse is not critical, but there must be enough time allowed to build up the energy which is released with the symbolic thought at the moment of the active participant's orgasm. A minimum of 10 minutes is appropriate, but over half an hour is unnecessary. Certainly women will not have a problem with this, except possibly soreness due to prolonged intercourse with insufficient vaginal lubrication. This can happen to women who are not used to extended periods of intercourse, and can easily be remedied by the use of a high quality sexual lubricant.

Men, on the other hand, quite frequently have trouble staying erect and not having an orgasm too quickly. Masters and Johnson say that the average period for men between insertion of the penis into the vagina and orgasm is about 2½ minutes. Since this is an average, the implication is that some men will have an orgasm within seconds of insertion. Later in this lesson will be instructions on how a man may delay his orgasm.

2. This ritual may be done with partners of the same sex. It may also be done heterosexually with the penis inserted in the anus or mouth of his partner. (Note: After anal intercourse the penis must be washed thoroughly before vaginal intercourse. Also see page 466).

3. The sexual position held by the couple at the moment of orgasm is important. Here are some tips:

Missionary Position (man on top) is good for situations where magick is done to positively affect the man's environment (i.e., allow him to get a raise, get a better job, etc.)

Woman Superior (woman on top) is for situations where magick is done to positively affect the woman's environment.

Male Behind (laying like spoons with the man behind his partner, also kneeling with the male behind his partner) is for sending energy such as healing to a friend of the man. For a friend of the woman it can once again be with the woman on top, but with her back to her partner's face.

4. This ritual may also be done as an act of oral sex as mentioned. In this instance, there is not a Place of Comfort, but a chair called a Throne. The person who will have the orgasm sits in the Throne while the partner kneels or sits at the foot of the Throne and performs cunnilingus or fellatio. The King or Queen on the Throne needs to hold the symbol in his or her hands and look at it while the partner performs the sexual stimulation. The person fellating a King should swallow all of his semen. The person performing cunnilingus on the woman should lick and swallow all of her sexual fluids.

5. This rite may also be done solitarily. The male may masturbate himself. If this is done he should catch the semen in a small vase which has a copy of the symbol in the vase at the bottom. The vase should then be sealed. Alternatively, he may catch the semen on a dish or plate and consume it. A partner may stimulate the man to orgasm by hand and consume the semen.

Similarly, a woman may stimlate herself by hand or with the aid of a partner or even artifical devices such as penis-shaped vibrators. After orgasm she should douche with a small amount of pure water, all of which should be saved, mixed with wine and consumed.

6. Sexual experimentation and variation can be very enjoyable. But ritual is not the time to try new things. If you feel a sexual position which you have not performed previously with the partner of this ritual is appropriate, it should be practiced beforehand so that both of you know the most comfortable way for you to hold the position for several minutes.

7. Although both the Kabalah and the Tantras disagree with him on this point, those who like Crowley may agree with him that you should choose anyone to do the rite with and they need not know the purpose of the rite. Personally I feel that this is a type of sexual abuse, and, experience has shown that it is not as successful as when both partners are aware of what is happening. I mention it here so that if you like to follow Crowley you will know the difference in his system.

Divinatory Techniques

This ritual is done the same way as the ritual above, however the purpose is strictly for divination. It can also be used as part of the evocation rites of the previous lesson. Read in the previous lesson the characteristics of a person who will make a good seer. It is this person upon whom the technique will be performed.

There are three aspects involved in any divinatory technique. The diviner must:

1. Turn off the outside, turn on the inside.
2. Alter the state of consciousness.
3. Increase the blood flow to the brain.

In this ritual, turning off the outside involves the use of what is called the Yoni Mudra. This is a position wherein the hands actually close down the other senses. It is done this way:

> Put your hands in front of your face so that the fingertips touch and the palms are toward your face. Seal the mouth by locking the lips between the little fingers and ring fingers of both hands. This holds the mouth shut. Seal the nose by pressing against the nostrils with the middle fingers of both hands. Seal the eyes by holding the eyelids closed with the pointer fingers of each hand. Finally, seal the ears by closing the little flap of flesh in front of the ears over the entrance to the ear canals with each thumb.

This position closes most of the external senses and allows the inner senses to come through.

In a previous lesson I gave instructions on how to alter the state of consciousness. Methods include the use of alcohol to produce mild intoxication, lack of sleep, etc.

In this rite the method used to increase the flow of blood to the head is to have the head below the rest of the body during intercourse.

If you have a mattress for the Place of Comfort, the seer may dangle his or her head over the side of the mattress. If the seer is in very good health, pillows may be placed so that the hips and legs are elevated. In fact, if oral sex is used, the position on the Throne can actually be reversed so that the person's legs are over the back of the chair and the person's head is at the foot of the chair. The partner stands behind the Throne and performs oral sex on the genitals which are near the top of the chair's back.

Important: This should not be done if the seer has high blood pressure!

When the seer has achieved orgasm, he or she should be questioned in a manner similar to the techniques in the previous lesson. If information about a particular subject is desired, the seer may look at a symbol which the partners created.

Before moving on, a final point about the Yoni Mudra. Students have told me that they have trouble breathing in this ritual pose. Well, not only is it difficult to breathe in this position, it is impossible! Separate the middle fingers and inhale through the nose. Hold the Yoni Mudra and your breath for as long as it is comfortable. Then separate the ring fingers from the little fingers and exhale through the mouth. When I explained this to students some of them complained that it takes some of the spontaneity out of lovemaking. Please remember, however, that this is not regular lovemaking. It is highly ritualized and formalized. It is for a purpose, not only for pleasure.

Another divination technique which uses sexuality is definitely not for all practitioners. Most will not wish to do it, and that is okay. It is called "Eroto-comatose Lucidity" and does not involve a coupled pair. Rather, this ritual involves one ritualist-seer and several aides who are usually of the opposite sex. After the opening as above, the aides (and the more sexually experienced they are, the better) attempt to exhaust the ritualist sexually by every known means, and arouse the ritualist sexually by every known means. Every device and technique known may be used by the aides. If some of them tire they should be replaced by others.

Finally the ritualist-seer will sink into a deep sleep as a result of utter exhaustion. Now the goal of the aides must be altered. They must try to awaken the ritualist through sexual stimulation alone. But, upon the first signs of the ritualist awakening, all stimulation must cease. This should continue indefinitely until the ritualist is in a state which is between waking and sleeping, "and in which his [or her] Spirit, set free by perfect exhaustion of the body, and yet prevented from entering the City of Sleep, communes with the Most High and Most Holy Lord God of its being, maker of heaven and earth."

The rite is over when the ritualist falls into total sleep, or awakens, has a final orgasm, and falls into an undisturbable sleep. Upon rising after this sleep, the ritualist-seer should immediately write down his or her remembrances.

This ritual of Eroto-comatose Lucidity is from Crowley's works, although it is said that the technique was devised by and given to him by one of his woman students. Another example of sex magick of this Thought Control type is novelized in Crowley's book, Moonchild.

There is one more position for divinatory sex-magick which I will share with you. Let me make clear, however, that it is designed primarily for people who are slender, athletic and strong. It involves a Tantrik sexual position known as "The Crow." After the usual opening and much sexual stimulation, the man, while standing, lifts the woman so that she is upside down and facing him. In this position they may have mutual oral sex. Usually, the woman will lock her legs behind the man's neck or head, depending on the length of her legs. The man will usually support the woman by holding her around her waist. This position can cause the man to tire physically quite easily unless he is in very good shape. The woman, who is completely inverted, will have a great deal of blood flow to her head. This can lead to seership and divinatory experiences.

The only technque that I have not tried nor any of my students confessed to is Eroto-comatose Lucidity. But I can say from personal experience and from the reported experiences of some of my students, that these types of sex-magick techniques are some of the strongest and most effective magickal techniques available.

PART TWO

The next technique I wish to talk about is that which I call Outer Alchemy. Of the three techniques of sex magick it is the easiest in that it requires the least amount of self-discipline.

Sex Magick of Outer Alchemy, unlike the other two forms of sex magick, requires the use of a partner of the opposite sex. Thus it is by its very nature not a technique which can be adapted to male or female homosexual practices. This must lead us to a brief discussion of magick and sexuality.

Anybody can do the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram. It does not matter if you are Jewish, Christian, Moslem, Buddhist, atheist or anything else. All that matters is your ability to perform the ritual.

When I perform the ritual I may visualize God as a concept which exists before the gods and goddesses of creation. Others may see God as the Christian Trinity. Still others may view the source of the energy in the LBRP as Jah of the Rastafarians. It does not matter, if it works for you. The point I am trying to make is that although our magickal practices are spiritual, they need not follow any particular religious viewpoint. True, the Kabalah has an intrinsic Jewish flavor to it, but this is because it has been safeguarded by the Jews for the past few thousand years. One of the things I have tried to do in this course is make the procedures general in spiritual nature, and thus applicable to any religious belief (or lack thereof).

Just as it is possible to separate spirituality from religion, so, too, from a sex-magician's point of view, it is possible to separate sex from love. Please note that I am not saying sex should be separated from love, only that it can be. But the fact of the matter is that sex can be viewed as a form of exercise.

I am not trying to take a "swinger's" point of view that all sex should be based on desire, lust, etc., only, for sex can be based on the relationship which can develop between two loving people. In fact, the most valuable sex magick experiences I have had have been with partners whom I truly loved. But what I am saying is that just as spirituality can be separated from religion, so too can the sex of sex magick be separated from the sex experienced in a love relationship.

This does not mean that you should have sex with a person other than your regular partner using sex magick as an excuse! In fact, I would suggest that you do not do so unless you have told your partner about it and have your partner's approval. And this approval should not come through teeth biting lips due to anger and jealousy. Remember, honesty is vital to a magician.

This means that if you do not have a partner or if you have your partner's willing permission, it is allowable to work with another person when doing sex magick. Please note that what I am saying here is not a license to have sex with anybody because you are doing magick while having sex. Rather, I am saying that certain forms of magickal ritual, including sex magick rituals, can be done with a partner other than one you are involved with in a love relationship.

I personally consider love and established relationships to be very important in a person's life. If your participation in a ritual, including a sex magick ritual, will create a hardship on your relationship, I urge you to reconsider your choice to perform such a ritual. Or perhaps you can achieve the best method which would be to have your partner participate with you.

So if you happen to be a male or female homosexual, and both you and your partner believe that sex can be separated from love, you can perform Outer Alchemy. This will depend on your nature and the nature of your relationship. Perhaps the best way to conceive of a sex magick ritual is as just another ritual, one which happens to use sex organs instead of chalice and wand.

It is the belief of many magicians that the classic texts of Western Alchemy are coded information for the performance of sex magick. The basic idea is that the sperm of the male and the ejaculatory fluids of the female have natural magickal qualities as a result of mental direction and sexual stimulation. The alchemical instructions are simply ways to make these magickal fluids stronger and more powerful.

Although I will be giving a type of Outer Alchemy ritual shortly, I will try to limit some of the precise alchemical terminology. Full alchemical practices, interpreted through the ideas of sex magick, are far too complicated to discuss in this course.

If you decide to investigate traditional alchemical texts as a source for sex magick rituals, it is important to understand two things:

1. Some of the practices given in the alchemical texts are merely chaff to hide the true nature of the techniques and its hidden wheat.
2. Several words commonly used in alchemy are codes for sexual ideas.

Examples:

The Athanor is usually described as a special type of oven used to slowly heat the material with which you are working. According to sex magicians it means the penis.

The Serpent is said to be a result of heating a substance in the Athanor. To a sex magician it is the semen.

The Blood of the Red Lion is also semen.

The Curcurbite, a type of alchemic container, is the vagina. So, too, is the Retort, which is usually described as another type of alchemical container.

The Menstruum or Menstruum of the Gluten is the result of the slow heating of a substance in the Athanor. Sex magicians believe it to be either the female lubricating fluids or ejaculatory fluids or both, depending upon the sex magician you talk with.

The First Matter is described as a mixture of the Serpent and the Menstruum. While this is a rather hazy type of substance to the physical alchemist, its meaning is clear to the sex magician.

Finally the Amrita or Elixir is defined as "the transmuted First Matter." How it is transmuted and how it is used is the secret of Outer Alchemy.

One of the traditional secrets of alchemy is that the process of taking your basic material and heating it must be very slow and take days or even weeks to accomplish. To a sex magician, this means that the best way to work with the male and female fluids is to take a great deal of time in their preparation, possibly hours. This involves having sexual intercourse without orgasm or ejaculation for a very long period. The mental technique used to accomplish this is known as Karezza (pronounced "kahr-etz-ah" with the accent on the second syllable).

The modern technique of Karezza began in the late 1800's. A man named William Lloyd put forth the idea that intercourse which lasted for hours and in which the man did not ejaculate was better for the man, the woman and their relationship. Needless to say, his book on Karezza was quickly banned as being pornographic! Metaphysical thought in many places at this time believed that every drop of semen was equal to 10 or more drops of blood. Therefore, having fewer ejaculations would be better for the man, while the increased intimate contact would be good for the couple and their relationship.

The problem with this, as already stated, is that according to Masters and Johnson, the average length of time for intercourse, from the time of the insertion of the penis to the man's ejaculation, is two and one half minutes. Since this is an average, it means that for every man who can last a mere five minutes without having an orgasm, there is another man who can last barely 30 seconds. Fortunately, there are a variety of techniques available to allow a man to delay his orgasm up to several hours.

The basic Karezza technique for delay of orgasm is to concentrate on the purpose or goal of the intercourse rather than on the physical sensations. In what we are doing here it would mean focusing on the purpose of the magick rather than obtaining sexual gratification, i.e. orgasm. If the man or woman comes too close to an orgasm, he or she should stop the physical motions, and if necessary withdraw his penis from the vagina.

Unfortunately, this primarily mental technique of ejaculation control is not enough for most men who, from adolescence, have trained themselves to have ejaculation as a goal of their sexual activities. Many men believe the lie that they can have physical problems if they do not ejaculate every time they are involved in lovemaking. One woman told me that her boyfriend always insisted that he have an orgasm with her or he would get sick. And while it is true that after many periods of sexual excitation without an orgasm a man may feel some minor discomfort, this is not a dangerous condition and is alleviated by having an orgasm or by the mere passage of time.

The point I wish to make here is that most men will need a combination of mental and physical techniques to be able to control their orgasm. This is especially true considering that some men, such as the boyfriend of the woman just mentioned, believe that orgasm must be their immediate goal in every sexual experience.

Of the physical methods, the most well-known technique, and the one which causes the most problems while you need to practice it, is the Masters and Johnson "squeeze" technique. In this technique, when the man feels that he is about to have an orgasm, but has not yet passed what is called the point of ejaculatory inevitability, he must withdraw his penis from the vagina. Then, either he or his partner must literally grab the penis and apply heavy pressure on the bottom of the penis, just behind the head of the penis until the need for ejaculation passes. After a few weeks of such practice the man can develop good control over his orgasm.

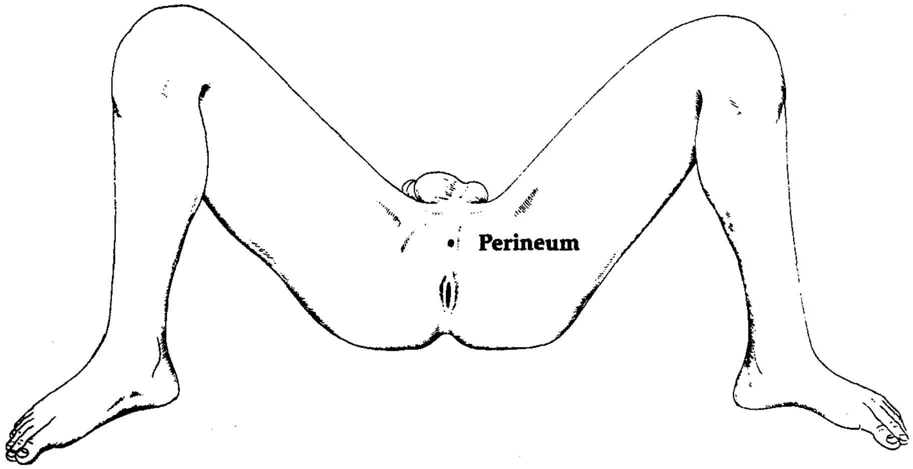
Unfortunately, this is not the most pleasant experience for the man or his partner! Certainly the partner would need to be very understanding while the man trains himself with her help. The following Tantrik system is much better.

The advantage of the Tantrik technique is that it uses several physical techniques simultaneously, and your partner need never know you are doing them. First, just before you reach the point of ejaculatory inevitability, that point after which there is no stopping the orgasm, take a very deep breath and hold it for a slow count of 16. While you are doing this, look, with both eyes, at the tip of your nose.

Second, begin to breathe slowly. As you do so, roll your eyes in a counter-clockwise motion. First up as high as they will go, then straight to the left, then down, then to the right, then up and finally back to where your eyes started. Thus, you are not making a circle, but a large square or rectangle. As you do this, tense the anus muscle (the sphincter) as hard as you can. Once you have completed the counterclockwise motion three times, with an exhalation slowly release the anus muscle.

Repeat the above steps three times, even if the feelings of ejaculatory need have faded. Note that it is totally possible to use this technique without withdrawing from the vagina, and your partner need never know what you are doing.

But the technique which is probably the best for control of orgasm is a Taoist technique and is primarily physical in nature. At the point just before ejaculatory inevitability, stop the thrusting motions and take three deep breaths. Then, using the first two or three fingers of either hand, apply firm pressure on the perineum, the point midway between the testicles and the anus. This point, known in acupuncture as Conception Vessel One, is important to the energy system of the body's reproductive system. Applying firm pressure here changes the energy system which has a resultant effect on the physical organs. This actually causes a change in the valves within the reproductive system of the male with a suction-like effect. Ejaculation cannot occur.



Using one or another of these techniques you should be able to control your orgasm. The Taoist technique has an unusual side benefit which I cannot go into too deeply here, for this technique controls ejaculation only. Practicing with this technique until you learn how to exert mental pressure on the Vessel of Conception Point One will yield a change in the body's energies so that the man can have an orgasm without an ejaculation! Since the result of ejaculation is detumescence in the male, the result of this technique is not only prolonged intercourse, but also the legendary male multiple orgasm. The feeling is much like small orgasms without ejaculation followed by an incredibly huge orgasm when the male does allow ejaculation to occur. Your experimentation with this technique is invited.

Now let us assume that the man has the ability to control his orgasms. The next part to understand is the idea of the Amrita or Elixir. As I said, it is the transmuted or changed First Matter, the First Matter being the combination of the sperm and female fluids. Shortly I will discuss how the transmutation is done, but first I will discuss what is done with the transmuted First Matter, the true magickal elixir.

The basic idea of this type of Outer Alchemy is that the combination of the sexual fluids of a man and a woman (the First Matter) is magickal in nature (becomes the Elixir). The Elixir must then be reabsorbed by the magicians performing this type of sex magick. The easiest way to do this is to simply allow the now flaccid penis to remain in the vagina for a period of fifteen minutes. According to the Tantras, sperm loses its magickal powers after 15 minutes, so a longer period is not needed. These fluids, to a minor extent, will be absorbed through the thin tissues of the vagina and the head of the penis. However, not all of the fluids are absorbed in this manner.

Although many people raised in Western cultures may find the following idea disagreeable, a large number of sex magicians have overcome this phobia and treat the Elixir as a magickal Eucharist. As a friend of mine likes to poetically say,

First 'e loves 'er, then Elixir! (he licks her)

In other words, after orgasm the man performs oral sex upon the woman, taking the combined fluids into his mouth. He may then keep the fluids under his tongue, allowing them to be absorbed, for the most efficacy. Alternatively he may kiss his partner and share the Elixir. Another possibility is to put the Elixir into a small cup of wine and share the Elixir. It is this idea of swallowing the sexual fluids which may turn some people off. However, over the past 20 years there has been an increase in the popularity of oral sex, so this taboo is quickly being overcome.

It should also be noted here that this type of ritual can be done with others present when the cup of wine is used. The Elixir filled wine may be passed among those present. In fact, in some groups another man or woman is chosen as the "cup bearer." It is his or her duty to obtain the Elixir instead of the woman's sexual partner.

Obviously, there are many possibilities for Outer Alchemy. The only additional thing to add here is that the intercourse should last a minimum of 45 minutes to be effective, and after about three hours, depending upon the magicians, a point of negative returns is reached.

The final point before giving a ritual is the procedure of transformation which turns the First Matter into the Elixir. It is done simply by prolonging the act of intercourse for a particular goal rather than for mere physical gratification. This can be accomplished by means similar to those already discussed, i.e. by will power or concentration on sigils.

There is also a system which aligns the magickal workers with the forces of nature and strengthens the transmutation.

Women have a natural menstrual cycle of approximately 28 days, matching the cycle of the Moon. According to occult science, on each one of the 28 days, a woman will secrete a different fluid when she is sexually excited and/or has an orgasm. Therefore, a sex-magick act can be performed on a specific day of the month for a particular purpose. By combining the spiritual forces of humans with the forces of nature, the Elixir becomes an unbelievably powerful magickal fluid.

Here is a copy of a published list of the magickal abilities of the fluids of the 28 days, starting with the New Moon of the woman. That is, beginning with the day after the end of her menstrual cycle (from a list by Sariel):

1. Good Fortune
2. Separation and ill-will.
3. Gaining official favor.
4. Love.
5. Material well-being.
6. Victory in battle.
7. Overcoming illness.
8. Maintaining health.
9. Spirituality
10. Misfortune in love.
11. Harmony in marriage.
12. Separation and divorce.
13. Friendships.
14. Material wealth.

15. Keeping thieves away.
16. Keeping venomous creatures away.
17. Aiding births.
18. Aiding hunters.
19. Dealing with enemies
20. Dealing with fugitives.
21. Destruction.
22. Domesticated animals.
23. Vegetation.
24. Gaining love and favor.
25. Liquids and containers.
26. Water creatures.
27. Destruction.
28. Reconciliation.

Notice that some of the list has very broad topics. They can be affected by the magicians' contemplation during the magickal rite. As an example, the magicians may choose to help or hinder a fugitive by doing an Outer Alchemical sex magick ritual on the twentieth day of the cycle. Of course, since this is a type of Grey Magick, a divination should be done before a ritual of this sort.

I must note here that there are many lists of the magickal qualities associated with each day of the lunar cycle. Sometimes each day is referred to as a "digit of the Moon." If you find other lists you may wish to compare them to the one above and see which one is correct for you.

In the book The Tree of Life by Israel Regardie, the author gives an outline of a ritual called "The Mass of the Holy Ghost." This is, pure and simple, an Outer Alchemical sex magick ritual. Here are his instructions translated into common terms.

1. After the usual preliminaries, the couple should begin their ritual sex.

2. "Through the stimulus of warmth and spiritual fire [lovemaking] to the Athanor [penis] there should be... an ascent of the Serpent [sperm] into the Curcurbite [vagina]."

3. The mixture of the sperm and the fluids of the woman is charged by "... means of a continuous invocation of the spiritual principle conforming to the work in hand."

4. The ritual is concluded by treating the Elixir as the magickal Eucharist or by using it to anoint and consecrate a talisman.

As you can see, there is some overlap with the earlier type of sex magick described in this lesson. At the end of the "Mass" is described a technique of charging a talisman by simply applying some of the Elixir to a talisman. This is a very powerful technique as your experience will come to show.

From what you know it should not be too difficult to create your own sex magick ritual. First do the Opening by Watchtower. Then do the actual sex magick. Follow with the Closing by Watchtower. If there are other people present, they may sit, holding hands, in a circle around the pair practicing the sex magick. In some groups they watch the proceedings, their own excitation enhancing that of the two magicians directly involved. Other groups have the people sitting with their backs toward the center of the circle so that the couple will have a modicum of privacy. Those sitting in the circle should concentrate on the purpose of the ritual. This can be very difficult as watching two people have sex (even if it is sex-magick) for a few hours can become very boring. Thus, learning to concentrate on a desired subject or goal becomes very important. Then, as stated before, the Elixir can be mixed with wine either by the male ritualist or a cup bearer. The wine-Amarita mixture can then be passed around the circle. The couple actually involved in the sex magick should be the last ones to drink so that they get the final drops of the magickal mixture. The pair can each take a small sip, passing the cup back and forth until the fluid is gone. Then, together, they should hold the cup upside down and say,

It is finished.

The two systems of sex magick described so far in this lesson are traditionally Western in nature, although there is ample evidence that both have been used by the ancient Tantriks and Taoists. Similarly, the third form or Inner Alchemy is more traditionally associated with Eastern systems, although it also has a firm foundation in the West.

PART THREE

The reason I call the previous form of sex magick "Outer Alchemy" is because it works with the energy systems of the body and magickally charges substances which are outside of the body part of the time. Inner Alchemy keeps all of the forces within the body and uses the force of magickally directed sexual excitation to strengthen and empower the psychic energies of the body. This Inner Alchemy may be the easiest to work for a magician who has diligently practiced the rituals of this course.

Inner Alchemy, sometimes called "Tantra Yoga" or "Kundalini

Yoga" involves the taking of the sexual excitation and energy and channeling it to purposes other than sexual gratification. When you are quite sexually aroused and stimulated, send the energy up from the groin toward the head. This is sort of a reversed version of the Middle Pillar Ritual.

Important: Until you have mastered the Middle Pillar Ritual, do not try this technique of causing the energy to rise from the sexual center.

Now that I have given the standard introduction on the subject, and you're satisfied that you know as much or more about it than I do, I want to tell you that it's all a bunch of garbage!

I could use stronger words, but I have tried to avoid the scatological slang which so many people have as part of their daily speech. However, let me reiterate that 90% of what you hear about Tantra is just plain wrong, and most of the rest is garbled at best. Let me start by breaking down some popular notions which are totally false.

Tantra yoga is the yoga of sex. False. Tantra is a whole philosophy of which one small aspect is involved with sex. To call Tantra the yoga of sex would be like calling Hatha Yoga the yoga of sitting with your legs crossed.

More and more books are being published which explain the secrets of Tantra. False. The secrets of the Tantriks, especially the sexual secrets, have gone underground and are now kept within various Occult Orders. Most books coming out now are not written by initiated Tantriks. They are either compilations (cut and paste jobs) of earlier works, or the author's errors and fantasies. Remember, many of the early Tantrik texts were written in code, a twilight language similar to the alchemical code described earlier in this lesson. If you don't know the code you can only guess at the true meaning of the words.

Kundalini Yoga is the ancient technique of causing the energy to rise up the spine until you achieve enlightenment. False. First, Kundalini Yoga is a new term, invented by Westerners. The ancient term was Layayoga (pronounced Lie-oh-gah) and was first described over a thousand years ago. The Tantrik who described it also explained that it was only symbolic, and not to be taken as reality. Furthermore, do you know anyone who has achieved enlightenment as a result of Kundalini Yoga? In your readings do the authors tell of anyone who has achieved enlightenment as a result of Kundalini Yoga, or do they merely tell what is supposed to happen. Have the authors of those books experienced it themselves? The answer to all of these questions is "no."

The Kundalini Serpent is coiled three and a half times at the base of the spine. False. All forms of Yoga, to be valid, are true sciences. If proven false they are discarded. Have you ever seen a snake coiled up in the entrails of a human body? Of course not. It's not there. Again, this serpent is symbolic, not actual.

Now that I have dismissed some of the lies about Tantra and Layayoga, let's start rebuilding from the ground up.

There are a large variety of psychic power centers throughout the human body. They are not limited to the five, six, seven or eight you usually hear about. As an example, there are several in the head and others in the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet. This will become important later in this lesson. In the meantime, it is absolutely unimportant to worry about whether or not the heart chakra or the forehead (third eye) chakra is "open." What is important is to learn how to make the energy flow up from the base of the spine.

What I am about to present to you is not some theory which you are meant to visualize, but scientific fact. It is repeatable and verifiable under laboratory conditions. If I did not have to explain it to you in this course I would have you experiment first and discover for yourself what thousands of people know. Further, I do not say this as a result of reading, but rather as a result of my own experience as an initiated Tantrik. Of course, there are certain things which I cannot divulge as a result of my initiation vows, but by making slight alterations as well as coming up with techniques based on secret methods, I will be able to give you more real information on Inner Alchemy than has ever been published in one place.

In order to learn about the energy you must first learn about the breath. According to the ancient Tantrik manuscripts (which may be the oldest spiritual writings in India), a breath lasts about 4 seconds. This means that in a day you breathe 21,600 times. Of course, when sleeping or resting you breathe slower, and when exerting yourself you breathe faster. Therefore, this number cannot be taken as a real or even average figure. Rather, it is symbolic. And since these ancient Tantriks thought enough about the breath to figure out how many times we supposedly breathe in a day, it is logical to assume that the breath was very important to them.

And, in fact, it is. The oldest and original mantra, the repetitious chant, is not that of "OM," but is the sound of the breath.

Put down this lesson and just listen to the sound of your breath for a few seconds. Can you hear the mantra you recite 21,600 times a day? When you inhale, can you hear the sound "Hahm"? And on the exhale can you hear your breath say "Sah"? This mantra Hahm-sah, is repeated unconsciously 21,600 times per day. By controlling it we can learn to control its power.

Hahm-sah is a Sanskrit word which means "swan." It is important to understand that you do not say or chant this mantra. Instead you simply breathe and hear it on your breath. Try it for a few minutes.

Inhale. . . Hahm
Exhale. . . Sah

The less you try to do this, the easier it is to do. Just let it happen. Once you can hear the mantra in your breath you are ready to move on to the next exercise.

Kriya (pronounced Kree-yah) is a Sanskrit term which means action. By doing the following exercise you will experience the "action" of the psycho-sexual energy or Kundalini force. Begin by doing the Relaxation Ritual. Once your body is deeply relaxed, begin a slow breathing and listen for the "swan." As soon as you hear it, on the inhale/Hahm part of the mantra, visualize your breath traveling up your nose, through the top of your head (just inside the skull) and down your spine to the lowest tip of the coccyx. Hold your breath for as long as it is comfortable, then exhale. As you exhale, visualize the breath and energy going back up your spine, around the top of your head (just inside the skull), and out the nose. As it goes, hear the "Sah" part of the mantra. Practice this for ten to twenty minutes. Then return to your normal breathing pattern.

Once you can do this comfortably, instead of holding your breath on the inhalation, just pause for a second. Then use your stomach to help give you several short exhalations. This is accomplished by repeatedly jerking in the stomach muscles. You should hear your mantra saying "Sah, Sah, Sah, Sah" etc. Keep up the visualizations as above, and continue until you need to inhale. Repeat the process for up to twenty minutes.

The first time I did this exercise I had phenomenal results. After about five minutes my body started to jerk about for no apparent reason. It was as if I suddenly got "the chills" or the "heebee jeebees" in a small part of my body, and that part just had to shiver or jerk about. Each little shiver and shake is called a Kriya and is the most common part of the process. Then, the Kriyas suddenly stopped and my body seemed to change. I felt as if my body was taking the shape of a long tube and the sides of my head began to spread out. My body began to sway and my head turned jerkily and irregularly from side to side. At first I got the feeling that I was doing this to see to all sides as a form of protection. But then I realized that what had happened was that I had allowed the Kundalini serpent, the true Kundalini serpent, to become one with me. My body had spiritually assumed the shape of a serpent and my head had opened into a serpent's hood. I was that snake.

Then, suddenly, I buckled over, almost in pain, from the most intensely erotic feelings I have ever experienced. Needless to say, it took quite some time for my breathing to return to normal!

All of these experiences can happen to you. The only real danger is that you may not expect the sensations you receive. Normally, a teacher would not tell you what could happen and would allow you to experience it and then "rescue you" from these unknown experiences. Since I cannot be with you, I am telling you what you may feel and what type of experiences you should expect. You may not feel the sensation of becoming one with the Kundalini serpent or the intense erotic feelings with your first few tries at this Hahm-sah exercise, but you should feel the Kriyas, the jerky motions. If you do not experience them, re-read the instructions for this exercise. Nothing is left out.

Once you have experienced the Kriyas within yourself, it is important to learn how to experience both the Kriyas and the movement of the energy in another person. To do this you need a willing partner. Your partner should preferably already have experienced the Kriyas within himself or herself.

The best position for this exercise is sitting on the floor or on pillows, or possibly on low stools of equal heights. You and your partner should sit, back-to-back, preferably naked, with your backs touching along their lengths. If you prefer not to have nudity, the wearing of thin cotton shirts is fine. Both of you should perform the Relaxation Ritual, then begin the Hamh-sah exercise. You should both breathe at the same time. Feel your energy and your partner's energy go up and down the spine. Although the energy does flow within the spine (it is the spiritual essence of the cerebro-spinal fluid), it also emanates beyond the physical body. The result of this exercise should be that both of your experiences should be intensified.

It is important to realize that all of the forms of working with the breath and working with mantras are nothing but substitutes for sexual activity. The next step is to repeat the last exercise by using sexual activity as a prod for stimulating the Kriyas.

To do this, once again sit back-to-back. In the previous exercise it would have been best if you both were naked. In this exercise it is a necessity. Here the breath no longer holds the same import as you move to tactile stimulation leading to the Kriya sensations. After doing the Relaxation Ritual, both you and your partner should begin sexual self-stimulation. I hesitate to use the term "masturbate" as to many people this implies only penile or clitoral and vaginal stimulation. Rather, begin by caressing yourself. Feel your face, hair and ears. Touch your hands, arms, chest and breasts. Caress your feet, legs and thighs. Learn to sexually stimulate your entire body. However, do not touch your partner except with your back.

Once you are both aroused, both of you should begin intense genital stimulation. This means not only stimulating the penis and clitoris, but also, if you like it, your scrotum, perineum and anus or inner and outer labia, vagina (and "G" spot), perineum and anus. In fact, you can stimulate any part of your body which gives you the greatest excitation. However, neither of you should reach orgasm.

Stop the genital stimulation before orgasm is inevitable, but continue to stimulate other parts of your body. When the feeling of the immediate need for orgasm fades, return to genital stimulation. Continue this process until you experience your own Kriyas and can sense the motion of energy in your partner. Once you have done this you may either have an orgasm via self-stimulation, make love with your partner, or choose not to have an orgasm.

The next step is to vastly increase the flow of energy. This requires the uniting of the energies of both partners in a special way. It is a physical technique which automatically increases the energy flows. For this first technique, both the man and woman should at least be wearing undergarments. Although more clothes may be worn, the genitals of both members of the couple and the breasts of the woman should have some covering. Swimsuits or tights and leotards also work well.

The man sits cross-legged on the floor, on a pillow or on a very low stool or bench. The woman should sit on his lap, facing him, so that they can look at each other. She should wrap her legs around him. Pillows may be arranged to make this position easier to maintain for a period of time.

Exchange of Psycho-Sexual Energy

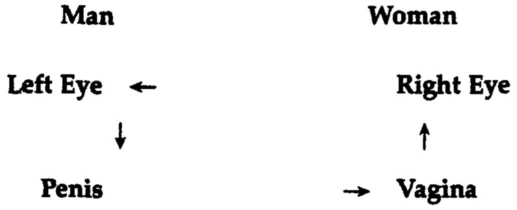
Once you have both become comfortable in this position, it is the time for small talk. Ask if your partner is comfortable, is there anything your partner wants to say, any feelings or emotions of which you or your partner wish to let go. Tell each other your fears and dreams. Unite mentally with each other.

Next, start adjusting your breathing patterns. The closeness of the position will make it easy for each of you to breathe at opposite times. When the woman breathes out, the man breathes in. When the man breathes out, the woman breathes in. It should only take a few moments for both of you to become comfortable with the mutual breathing pattern.

If you have practiced the Middle Pillar Ritual and worked with the mantra Hahm-sah as outlined earlier, you will have very strong effects as you go through the next part of this exercise. However, even if you have not done so, the physical actions will have an effect on you.

The man should look into the woman's right eye and the woman should look into the man's left eye. As she exhales and he inhales, she should sense the energy rising up her spine and leaving through her right eye, while he should feel the energy coming out of her right eye, in through his left eye and down his spine.

As the man exhales and the woman inhales, he should feel the energy continue down his spine and out through his penis. She should feel the energy coming out of his penis, into her vagina and up her spine. This is represented diagrammatically in the figure below:



Flow of Energy

Before moving on to the next technique, you must be able to maintain this posture for a minimum of 20 minutes, although 40 minutes is preferable. If it is too difficult to remain in this posture, there is an easier alternate which will also work well. The major difference is that both partners can stretch out their legs. He can lean back and use his arms to support himself or may even lean up against a wall or some pillows if there is room for his partner's legs. She may choose to leave her legs out or wrap them around her partner below her.

Feel the motion of the energy and how it builds to a level even higher than you have achieved alone or back-to-back. As you practice you may find yourselves shaking from the Kriyas. That is a good sign. However, because of the closeness due to the linked breathing and the circulation of energy between both of you, intense sexual excitation and desire may occur. While this, too, is a good sign, wait until you have finished the exercise (20-40 minutes) before engaging in intercourse or other sexual activity. You may find it to be some of the most ecstatic lovemaking you have ever experienced.

The next step is to repeat the above exercise while unclothed. At this time the penis should not be in the vagina. As the amount of Kriyas increases with this technique, you may be tempted to fiercely hug and caress one another. Resist this temptation! Keep clear and open eye contact with each other. You will quickly learn that the energy field is broken when eye contact is broken. The result is a loss of built-up energy, and it will take many minutes to rebuild the energy level that existed before the break in eye contact.

After you have practiced this technique without clothes to a point where you can maintain the eye and breath contact for a minimum of 20 minutes, you may add physical caresses. Since you do not want to break eye contact, this cannot include kissing and will be limited to the use of the hands. Pay special attention to the parts of the body that are not generally considered highly sensitive to touch. Caress the face and ears (don't block the eye contact), the arms, legs, chest and stomach. The woman can reach under herself to caress his penis and scrotum while he can also caress her breasts, clitoris and vagina. Although neither of you should have an orgasm, it will be a good sign if her lubricating fluids make both of your genitals quite wet. If either of you feels an approaching orgasm, you should tell your partner so he or she will change the method of stimulation. Continue this practice until it can be done for a minimum of 20 minutes, although lasting 40 minutes would be better.

When the caressing is added to the amount of energy cycled between you both it should again increase. The Kriyas may be enough to shake you apart from one another, in which case you should start the exercise over. Once you have completed this exercise, intercourse or other sexual activity may take place.

As you have read, and I hope have experienced, the more intimate the contact, the greater the amount of psycho-sexual energy. The greater the amount of intimate contact, the more powerful are the Kriyas. Also, they are greater in number. The intensity of the energy increases.

If you have accomplished all of the above exercises to your satisfaction, you are ready to proceed to the next ritual. All that I have described in this section has only been preparation for what is to happen.

THE TANTRIK RITUAL OF INNER ALCHEMY

(adapted to Western traditions)

STEP ONE. Have your room dimly lit, preferably with candles. Let there be many sticks of incense burning, primarily of sandalwood, patchouli or musk. Be sure to keep them lit. In the center should be your Place of Comfort, and within arms' reach of it should be some water, wine, meat or dry cereal, fish or ginger and sensual "toys" such as feathers, gloves of fur, scented and/or flavored oils, etc. Most definitely not to be included are vibrators, penis desensitizing creams or sprays, or anything which could inflict pain or punishment. Gentle background music is also appropriate. Once the room is set up, close the door as you leave the room until the next part of the ritual. Remember to make sure that candles and incense cannot start a fire. Take the phone off the hook. Tell anyone not involved that you and your partner do not wish to be disturbed for the next few hours.

STEP TWO. Together, you and your partner should take a long, leisurely bath if at all possible. Scent the water with sandalwood or musk. Light the bathroom with candles. As you wash each other, talk out any problems you had during the day and let the emotional charge associated with these problems fade away. As the problems and their associated emotions fade, feel free to play with one another. Although sexual contact is encouraged, do not have intercourse. If you do not have access to a bath, shower together, then apply a light amount of scented oil or talc to each other. Finally, put on your magickal robes.

STEP THREE. Perform the Opening by Watchtower, or at the very least, do the LBRP.

STEP FOUR. Sit together, the woman to the left of the man, and hold and caress one another. Feed each other with small amounts of the foods and drinks. Caress each other both physically and with words until the sexual excitation becomes so intense that the robes must be removed. Do so. If this step took less than what you figure to be half an hour (but don't have any clocks in the room), you are going too fast. There is no rush.

STEP FIVE. Continue in the same manner. Use the toys you have brought. If either of you nears orgasm, slow down!

STEP SIX. Once the excitation has reached such a state that the man is very erect and the woman is very lubricated, they can assume either position already given in the exercises. However, this time the woman should take the penis and insert it into her vagina.

There is another position which many couples seem to prefer and can be used as an alternative to the previously described positions. The man lies flat on his back and brings his legs up so that they almost touch his chest. The woman, with her back toward his face, literally sits on his exposed penis, making sure that she achieves a deep penetration into her vagina. At this time the man can relax his legs. If the woman pivots to either side slightly, he will find that he will be able to place one foot on the floor and rest the other leg over her hip and leg.

This is a bit difficult to describe, but very easy to achieve. The man can reach up and caress the woman from behind and the woman can easily caress his genitals.

STEP SEVEN. If you have done the practice, you will find that by now you should have reached a stage where eye contact is no longer necessary. But you must keep up the linked breathing pattern. And, most importantly, don't move! That is, there should be no thrusting motions by either the man or woman. The only motions should involve the woman contracting and relaxing the muscles of her vagina and the man flexing the pubic muscles so that the penis will move within the vagina without thrusting motions.

STEP EIGHT. Now, as you do the linked breathing, feel the energy move through and around you. As you will learn, it is the intimate contact which is important. Therefore, since there is no thrusting, it is unimportant if the woman ceases to lubricate or the man loses his erection. Stay still except for the inner genitalia motion described.

STEP NINE. If the woman achieves one or more orgasms, fine. If the man approaches orgasm, let him use the control techniques given earlier in this lesson.

STEP TEN. Let the Kriyas increase until you have a MahaTantra experience (more on this later) or until a minimum of 40 minutes have passed.

STEP ELEVEN. You may then have regular intercourse or engage in other sexual activity. The alchemical Elixir produced will be very strong for a period of 15 minutes, and although it is not necessary for this ritual, you are urged not to waste it.

STEP TWELVE. Do the Closing by Watchtower, or at least the LBRP.

The rite is over.

About the only thing I haven't covered is what I call the MahaTantra experience. "Maha" means "great," and the MahaTantra experience is great indeed! It is nothing less than the experience of a Kriya magnified a million-fold.

For most people, orgasms tend to be a brief climax which only resolves the immediate buildup of sexual energy. Only rarely is it a true, total release. The MahaTantra experience is that ultimate, desired super-orgasm wherein your entire body seems to release the pent-up tension of years. Generally it lasts for only 20 seconds to two minutes, but it may seem like it lasts for hours. It is feelings of joy, power, release, excitement, contentment, unity with all; of being one with the Divine Source of all that is. It is enlightenment. It is an altered state of consciousness that makes LSD look like a grain of sand compared to a desert of ecstatic experience.

You may have an orgasm when you experience MahaTantra and if the man does so he may or may not have an ejaculation of sperm. And although this technique is a form of Inner Alchemy, as was suggested in the ritual, do not waste the Elixir.

Of the MahaTantra experience I can tell you no more. Not because of vows or anything like that, but because there are no real words to describe intensely personal and subjective experiences. Until you have experienced MahaTantra, no words can describe it. Once you have experienced MahaTantra, no words can express it.

There are a variety of positions for ritualized sexual intercourse, but since they are already printed in many sources, I will not repeat them here. I urge you to investigate them from the books listed in this lesson's bibliography.

Let me repeat that the three-fold division of the types of sex magick are quite arbitrary. I have used them merely as a way to make communication of the various techniques easier. In actual practice, those divisions tend to blur. That is why in the technique of Inner Alchemy, a useful result is the Outer Alchemical Elixir.

Some of you may have read that a man should not have an ejaculation at all, or at least as seldom as possible. Different sources have different attitudes toward this, usually depending upon the attitude of the group of which they are a part. So whether or not you decide to totally or partially withold sperm is a matter of choice. Certainly the witholding of the sperm negates some forms of Outer Alchemy. I will make several points on the matter which may help you to decide.

1. The longer a man is sexually excited without having an ejaculation, the more magickally powerful the elixir will be.

2. Even some of those traditions which do not believe a man should withold his orgasm teach that the sperm should be quickly reabsorbed by the man. This can be done by keeping the elixir under the tongue and allowing it to enter the mucous membrane there, by eating the sperm, or through a special hatha yoga technique which causes a suction within the bladder and allows the man to suck the elixir up his penis and into the urinary bladder where it is absorbed.

3. One of the reasons the witholding of sperm is suggested is for birth control. Modern birth control methods are quite effective for this purpose.

4. One of the reasons Karezza was practiced was because it saved the lives of women. A major cause of women's deaths has been complications of the birthing process. While the death rate due to giving birth has dropped remarkably in economically advanced countries over the last 100 years, it is still a problem in many places in the world. However, I dare say that most of you reading this have access to modern birth control methods and birthing procedures. Karezza at this date should not be held as important for saving women's lives.

absorb the qualities of that deity.

I find another similar idea far more enticing. If the essence of a deity can be invoked into food or drink, why not invoke that god or goddess into a person and have sexual relations with that god or goddess? Certainly the myths of Greece and Rome are filled with such ideas. There are some Wiccans or Witches who do practice this, calling it the "Great Rite."

The technique is twofold. First, the appropriate god or goddess must be invoked into a man or a woman. For this see the instructions in Lesson Nine of this course. Second, the other person should first worship the embodied god/goddess and consider what he or she is about to do: make love with a god or goddess! The worshipper should take that attitude and demeanor and realize how privileged he or she is. The worshipper should really be in an almost constant state of awe! Any sexual fluids from the embodied god/goddess are holy and should be considered as a sacrament.

A Taoist Ritual

The ancient Taoists had a ritual similar to Layayoga. It usually took place outside, on a hill, and required the person seeking enlightenment, a sensitive assistant, and usually one or more sexual helpers.

First, through sexual activity and breath control the main participant would reach a state before orgasm and seek to maintain that state with the help of his or her sexual helper(s). The result of this, of course, would be the physical twitches the Tantriks call Kriyas. The sensitive assistant would watch and detect the energy as it begins to move up the spine. To prevent the energy from leaving the body, the assistant would plug the anus with material dipped in wax.

The assistant would watch as the energy moved up the spine. If it seemed to stop, the assistant would pinch and poke the body to make the energy continue to rise. As it approached the head, the assistant would make sure that the head's orifices, like the anus, were plugged up at the right moment so that the energy could not escape. The result would be that the energy would end up "exploding" out the top of the head, through what the Tantriks called the "lotus of 1000 petals," and the result would be Nirvana.

PART FIVE

When I was going to UCLA back in the late sixties and early seventies, people seemed to care more about one another than they do at this time. Granted, this is a generalization, but I have found through interactions with hundreds of college students that their main interests today seem to be how much money thay can earn after they graduate and where the party is that they're going to tonight. From a magickal standpoint these current, more selfish attitudes are a necessary outcome and response to the previous decade of caring about society and the world. I certainly do not, therefore, condemn what I see, though I am saddened. It seems a "media event" must be scheduled before anyone shows how much they "care."

If anything, I must condemn the members of the previous generation who were too directed toward society and could not see the underlying nature of the universe. Every action does have a reaction. In one cycle people try to change society, in another people try to improve their personal wealth. And so it goes. . .

I have yet to meet any group which is perfect. But one group which I have always supported is the loosely knit Women's Liberation Movement. Certainly it had (what I consider to be necessary) excesses in the beginning. But one thing which was very important was their insistence that each woman should be viewed as a unique individual and not as an object. Unfortunately, sexism towards women has not decreased. It may be less overt, but it is still strongly in existence.

To top this off, there is a new prevalence of sexism towards men. In the past I have heard men talk about their dates not in terms of a woman being interesting, intelligent, fun to be with, stimulating, erotic, etc. Rather, they talk about the size of her "boobs" or the shape of her legs. Recently I have heard more and more women, when discussing their dates with men, describe them not as fun, intelligent, gentle, kind, generous, stimulating, etc.; rather, they talk about how he was cute and had "tight buns" or "good pecs."

Far be it from me to criticize beauty. It is a marvelous gift from the Divine, although the Divine is helped quite frequently at the spa and by the plastic surgeon. Still, to judge a person only on their appearance is nothing less than vicious and cruel. It turns people who don't match the norm into sad, unfulfilled and lonely people. And since most of appearance is a gift of birth, it is clearly but a step away from racism.

It is not only those who are oppressed who experience loss as a result of "appearance-ism." Those who do the oppression suffer, too, for they never interact with others who may have a beauty inside which far outshines their appearance. More, the oppressed might be able to add to the life of the oppressor more than the oppressor could even imagine.

I freely admit that I like to be in the company of what I consider to be beautiful women. However, some of the most interesting women I have ever met have not stepped out of a magazine centerfold. In fact, the women who have been my favorite (and most erotically exciting!) lovers have not been overwhelmingly pretty. Those who have studied Crowley's life know that he took exceedingly ugly women for lovers on purpose. But what does all this have to do with sex magick?

Perhaps the most racist and sexist society which ever existed was India's during the Middle Ages. Everyone had strict rules to follow dependent upon parentage. This "caste" system existed for hundreds of years. If you were in an upper class you could be "defiled" by having the shadow of a member of the lowest class, an "untouchable," pass over you! It was a racist, sexist society which makes ours look like pure equality by comparison. But there were freedom fighters then as now.

During the day they obeyed all the rules. But at night, when the curtains were pulled, things were different! Rather than trying to change society, they tried to change themselves. Outside, they acted like anyone else. But in their temples, within the KalaKakra or "magick circle" these Kaula Tantriks treated everyone equally. Caste, appearance, skin color or shade made no difference.

Inside the Tantrik temples all men were gods and all women goddesses. And these Tantriks developed a whole philosophy of beauty, love, understanding, sensitivity, science and art while Western Europe went through the Dark Ages, a period of hate, filth, superstition, ignorance, prejudice and selfish egotism. Naturally, when the Westerners conquered India with their better weapons, they tried to destroy Tantrism for being "evil."

You may have heard of the KalaKakra and its group sex magick ritual. If you and some friends have been practicing the material in these lessons and wish to try the ritual I will present next, you all must adopt the attitude of the Tantriks. It is very unlikely that all of you will appear to have stepped from the pages of Playboy or Gentlemen's Quarterly. You must be able to see the beauty, the Divinity, the "likeness of God or Goddess" within us all. Due to society and the impact of film and television, it is doubtful that a group of ten men and women could do this. Therefore, I suggest starting with this preliminary exercise.

This exercise should be done with a minimum of three men and three women. Five or more of each sex would be preferable. In a large room let there be one of the women and all of the men. There should be a comfortable chair in the center wherein sits the woman. The men sit on cushions in a circle around the woman. Everyone should be naked. The other women should sit outside the circle in darkness and may or may not be dressed.

By pre-determination, let one person do the LBRP and another do the BRH. Similar rituals, although with a Hindu flavor, were done by the ancient Tantriks. Now, one at a time, let each man worship the woman in the center of the circle. For she, like all women, is the embodiment of the feminine aspect of the Divine. Each may worship her in his own way. You may dance or sing in her honor. You may wash her hands and feet or caress her. And yes, this does imply touching or kissing the breasts and genitals. However, it must be treated in the form of worship and awe, not mere sex. Other ways of worship would include chanting her name over and over, giving her gifts, giving her food, rubbing her with scented oils, etc. If she becomes sexually aroused, this must be seen as a sign of favor of the Goddess which she is. Close with the LBRP.

Now, without saying anything, repeat the entire exercise with one of the men in the center and all of the women, now nude, in the circle. He should be worshipped as the male aspect of the Divine. The rest of the men may wait in the darkness outside the circle as the women did before. The man should not be the boyfriend, regular lover, mate or husband of the woman who was previously in the middle of the circle.

Once this is completed, let everyone dress and then gather in a circle and discuss his or her feelings. Special attention should be paid to the feelings, expressions and actions of both the people who were in the chair, acting the roles of the Goddess and God, and their regular romantic partners (if any). Is there any jealousy or anger? Are such emotions hidden just below the surface? If so, these people are not meant for this type of work at this time. This should be repeated for each of the women and men of the group.

The ancient Tantriks had nothing like this. But they did have years of training under the watchful eye of the Tantrik master teacher.

When the teacher decided that a pupil was ready to participate in the KalaKakra ritual, and only then would a student be allowed to join. Since you probably do not have a Tantra master on your block, the above exercise will help weed out those who are not emotionally ready for the group working. This does not make them bad or immature. It merely means that at this time they are not ready to do this work. If one member of a couple is not ready to participate, both should be excluded.

Let us assume that you now have five men and five or more women ready to do this ritual. There may be more women as they are seen as initiatrixes and instructresses and can help the couples in the ritual. Have a room with no furniture but filled with pillows and throws. If it is winter, be sure that the room has plenty of heat. Let there be incense and candlelight and flowers, food, wine and cool water. Let there also be erotic playthings such as scented oils, feathers and soft, furry things. Let all the foods be in bite-size pieces. Let gentle music fill the air.

Let there be two other rooms, one a changing room for the women, and one for the men. Let each change into special outifts. For the men, big, loose peasant shirts and drawstring pants are excellent. Rings and necklaces are appropriate as are small bells on the clothes and jewelry. The same is true for the women, only their clothes should be even more sheer than the men's. They should also apply make-up and even exotic body paints to exaggerate their sexuality. An example of this might be adding some red color to the areolas around the nipples or to the pubic hair. Also use small drops of different scented oils at various spots on the body so that a traveling nose can find different scents wherever it goes. All of the women should wear soft shoes which are easily identifiable from each other.

Let the men go into the main room first and do the LBRP and BRH. Once this is done one man should take the knife used for the LBRP and touch its point to the floor just to the right of the door through which women will enter. He should then pick the blade straight up as high as he can reach and move it over the top of the door and down to the floor by the left of the door. He has thus made a "doorway" in the magick circle to allow the women to enter. A knock on the door will be a signal for them to do so, and once they come into the circle, the actions of the man with the knife should be reversed so that the circle is closed.

The men should sit toward the rim of the circle. The women

To which she replies,

God, thou art mine tonight.
Thou art my husband 'till it be light.

Now the kissing and caressing and use of erotic toys can increase and the clothes can gradually come off. From here there are two alternatives:

1. When intercourse begins, the couple should take a comfortable posture and not thrust. They should synchronize their breathing until they have the MahaTantra experience and reach Nirvana.
2. Realizing that the Deities of Tantra appreciate the energies of love, the couple may have prolonged active intercourse (with much thrusting) in honor of the Gods.

When finished, each couple may sleep or rest together and may repeat option 1 or 2 until it is light. When the first light of dawn is seen, the LBRP and BRH should be repeated and everyone should return to the dressing rooms and re-clothe.

Notes on this ritual:

1. It should start at midnight and end at daybreak.
2. Unless you happen to pick your regular partner for the KalaKakra ritual, you should not seek out your husband/wife-for-the-night for future sexual encounters unless you are both unattached.
3. Traditionally, there may be extra women in the circle. They may guide things (one of them may be the woman who claps the time for the men) and also aid the couples by bringing them food, drink and erotic toys. They may also caress and kiss the couples while the couples are engaged in intercourse. However, they do not actually have intercourse with the couples, nor should the couples seek to caress or kiss these women. In the beginning of the ritual they are treated like the other women as the men go around the circle, feeding the women and playing with them.
4. The method of picking partners given here is a traditional one. Another way is to have the women form a circle inside the circle formed by the men. Then one woman claps while the circles move in opposite directions. When the clapping stops, each person becomes a couple with the member of the opposite sex nearest him or her.
5. Although this is based on an ancient Tantrik ritual, not all Tantriks practiced it. Similarly, most Protestants don't worship in the same way Catholics do. So if someone tells you that he or she is a Tantrik and they don't do that sort of ritual, it may be true. But. . . find out the Tantrik tradition they belong to and who initiated them into Tantra. Chances are they speak with little knowledge.

This is a very dangerous ritual! Many good relationships have broken up because of it. Or, more appropriately, many relationships which seemed good have broken up after this ritual because the relationship was not really stable nor secure nor ready to handle the freedom of the KalaKakra. Because of this possible danger, should you or any reader attempt this ritual, neither the author, publisher nor distributor will be responsible for the outcome.

If you have any doubts at all after trying the preliminary exercise, don't do this ritual! The ritual of the KalaKakra has been included primarily for purposes of completeness and for people who are capable of dealing with this much freedom.

But just as those of you who have practiced ceremonial magick in a group have no doubt discovered that increased numbers do increase the power of the ritual, so too will those who practice this version of the KalaKakra ritual find the nearness of others doing sex magick will increase your own abilities and successes.

Postscript to Lesson 10

As I described at the beginning of this course, I did not merely sit down and write this set of lessons. Rather, they began after years of study followed by over ten years of giving lessons and writing. But times have definitely changed.

When I began, the sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) of the time were controllable through drugs. Later came genital herpes, a disease which at the time of this writing is still incurable. Even so, it would frequently go into remission, staying that way either permanently or for years at a time.

But over the past few years a new STD has appeared, seemingly from out of thin air. Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, AIDS, is transmitted through the sharing of bodily fluids, especially blood and semen. There may be other modes of transmission, but they are not currently known or agreed upon. The really dangerous part of this disease is that it takes five or more years after infection to become aware of it, and it is almost always fatal.

Throughout this course I have stressed the idea that a magician takes responsibility for his or her actions. Therefore, if you decide that you wish to have more than one sexual partner, you must accept the responsibility for that action. If you choose to share bodily fluids with your partners, you must also accept the responsibility for that action.

But let me suggest an alternative. Most of the techniques and rituals described in this chapter can be performed by a loving, mutually dedicated couple. In fact, practicing many of the techniques described here can enhance and empower your relationship. It is therefore suggested that you work the various forms of Sex Magick with one partner. If you choose to have multiple partners, you do so at your own risk, at least until a cure for AIDS is discovered. I hope that for those who are currently afflicted, and for those who feel angry because they must alter their actions in fear of this disease, that an effective cure, or method to induce remission, is soon discovered.

REVIEW

The following questions are designed to help you determine if you have mastered the information in Lesson Ten. Please try to answer them without looking at the text. The answers are in Appendix Two.

1. What level of intelligence do you need to have before you are immune to being brainwashed?
2. What are three major divisions of sex magick?
3. What happens to a thought held in the mind at the moment of orgasm?
4. What did Reich discover about the moment of orgasm?
5. According to Masters and Johnson, how long is the average duration of intercourse before the man has an ejaculation?
6. What three things are involved in any divinatory technique?
7. Many people believe that books on alchemy are simply codes for what?
8. What, according to sex magicians, is the Menstruum, or Menstruum of the Gluten?
9. How many people achieve enlightenment by reading books on Kundalini Yoga?
10. Working with breath and mantras are substitutes for what?
11. Why is the ritual of the KalaKakra dangerous?

The following questions only you can answer.

1. Are you still doing the regular rituals and keeping records? Have you experimented with other rituals and techniques? Do you meditate?
2. Would you do sex magick? Do you find it fascinating or repulsive?
3. Do you think you could never be brainwashed?
4. If you wouldn't do sex magick, is it OK for others to do sex magick?
5. Since beginning this course, have your feelings about life in general changed? How?

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Avalon, Arthur, Tantra of the Great Liberation, Dover, 1972.
Chan, Pedro, Sex Secrets from China, Chan's Corporation, 1984.
Conway, Flo and Siegelman, Jim, Snapping, Dell, 1978.
Crowley, Aleister, De Arte Magica, Neptune Press, N.D.
Culling, Louis, Sex Magick, Llewellyn Publications, 1971.
Devi, Kamala, Eastern Way of Love, The, Simon and Schuster, 1977.
Douglas, Nik, Tantra Yoga, Munshiram Manoharlal, 1971.
Douglas, Nik and Slinger, Penny, Sexual Secrets, Destiny Books, 1979.
Garbern, James Y., Birth Control at Your Finger Tips, 3-R Publishing Co., N.D.
Grant, Kenneth. Any books by this author are difficult but unique to this subject.
King, Francis (ed.), Secret Rituals of the O.T.O., The, Weiser, 1973.
King, Francis, Sexuality, Magic and Perversion, Citadel, 1972.
Lloyd, William J., Karezza Method, The, Phoenix House, 1973.
Mumford, Jonn, Ecstasy Through Tantra, Llewellyn, 1988.
Omega, Kane, Cosmic Sex, Lyle Stuart, 1973.
Reich, Wilhelm, Function of the Orgasm, The, Pocket Books, 1975.
Saraswati, Swami Janakananda, Yoga, Tantra and Meditation, Balantine, 1975.
Stockham, Alice, Karezza, Stockham Publishing Co., 1896 (?).
Topper, Michael, Real Tantra and the Supreme Secret of Sex-Magick, Self-published, 1984.
Verdier, P.A., Brainwashing and the Cults, Wilshire Book Co., 1977.
"Mezla," Several issues, P.O. Box 851, Ithaca, NY 14851.
"Shadow's Edge, The," Vol. 3, No. 2, Nemi Enterprises.
The grade papers of AMOOKOS, the Western Order of Naths (a Tantrik order). 18 Grafton Road, Harrow, Middlesex, HA1 4QT, England.

Lesson

11

There is an old legend that when Moses first ascended the mountain, God gave to him the secrets of the Kabalah. This told humanity what it could do. Moses, upon seeing the worship of another deity when he descended, destroyed public knowledge of these secrets, saving them only for the High Priests of Israel. When Moses again returned to the top of the mountain, he came back with the Decalogue, the Ten Commandments. These were filled with "thou shalt nots," telling people what they must not do. The people were truly "Children" of Israel. They were not yet able to accept the freedom which is inherent in the Kabalah.

Today, most people are still not able to be free. They are infected with following various "isms," sometimes to their death. People follow the doctrinal line of religious groups, political groups and peer groups, or blindly follow one or more political, religious, military or economic leaders. The common person is unable to think for himself or herself. This is a symptom of the current Piscean Age mentality, and I fear will be with us for many years to come.

But there is hope. There are some people who are beginning to think, who are beginning to wake as if from a long sleep. These are the people who are the advance guard of the coming Aquarian Age. These are the people who are not members of various dogma-filled organizations. For the most part they work by themselves or in very small groups of like-minded persons. They are the wave of the future and the hope of tomorrow.

Is this an elitist attitude? Absolutely yes. . . and absolutely no. For while there is an Aquarian Age elite, it is not limited to those with money or political power as were previous elites. No, it is an open elite which anyone can join at any time, and make eddies, ripples and waves in the ocean of our coming world.

If you have been studying and practicing the lessons of this course, you are well on the way to becoming a full-fledged member of the Aquarian Age, if you are not one already. But you should not, you must not, look down on others who have not advanced as far as you have. They may one day jump into the future at a rate accelerated even above your own.

It is said that the true deep secrets of magick cannot be told. It is said that the true secrets of magick are hidden and shown only to initiates of secret occult bodies such as the true Rosicrucians or Illuminati, and then only after the student has spent years of study and practice and has passed serious and even life-threatening tests.

All of this is true. From this point on I can show you no more. I can teach you no more magickal secrets.

Yet, there are still many pages more in this book. Why should this be? To answer this question I have to teach you what I consider to be the ultimate secret of true magick.

There are three things needed to work any magick:

1. The ability to raise, control and direct magickal energy.
2. The knowledge of what to do with this energy (ability does not equal knowledge).
3. A positive attitude of self-assurance.

In the past lessons I have described these things and given you exercises and rituals to help you develop all three of the above talents. It is interesting to note that no books on magick ever clearly state all of the above three points. The famous magickal texts or grimoires of the past only discuss the second point. This is because they were meant to be used as workbooks by experienced mages or magicians-in-training who already know these things from personal lessons and experience.

If you have been practicing the rituals given in this course you have been following an easy, tested system. This system has taught you to have a good attitude which is part of the result of working with the Tarot cards and doing the Middle Pillar Ritual. It has also taught you many ways to raise and control the psychic energy needed to perform magick. And, if you have been studying and practicing the techniques and rituals of these lessons, you will also be prepared to take the next step in your magickal advancement.

The ultimate magickal wisdom cannot be communicated to you by any person or group. Any person or group which claims this ability is lying to you. Each person must seek it individually. The so-called "lost word" or secret name of God can never be communicated to you by another person. You must learn it by yourself. One way to do this is by following various systems or schools of magick. You are encouraged to find one that particularly fits your needs. However, if you have been doing the rituals of this course, you should be prepared to discover that information, and take the next step in learning the true, innermost secret of magick.

If you have been regularly practicing the techniques, exercises and rituals, you, at the very least, should have or be beginning to achieve good control of magickal energy. The LBRP, BRH, Middle Pillar Ritual and the Circulation of the Body of Light are all techniques which train a person in the ability to raise and control magickal energy. If you have made a talisman which has achieved its goal, you have proved to yourself the successfulness of your ability to raise and control Willed magickal energy.

The important part of this is your ability to use your conscious and unconscious Will to control magickal energy and put it to the uses you desire. Perhaps you have seen books with other exercises on how to raise and control magickal energy. Some are very good. But it is my feeling that repetition of a few basic exercises with millenia of development will work much better than spreading out your personal energies by memorizing large numbers of practices with fewer repetitions of each exercise.

A positive attitude, as mentioned, should be being developed as a direct result of the Tarot card contemplation practice. Its development will also be aided by the study of the harmony of the universe as indicated by the balance of nature and shown on the Tree of Life. The more successes you have in Grey Magick, the more confident you will become in your own magickal abilities and the more positive your attitude will become.

There are many books with spells, rituals, ceremonies, philosophy, theory and information which could help add to your knowledge of where to direct the raised and controlled energy. In fact, I could teach you much more. But I feel no need to do so as it is intermediate information. Instead I will teach you how to obtain higher information, the knowledge of true magickal secrets, for yourself.

This knowledge is not available on the physical plane of Earth! It can only be learned from entities on higher planes.

Sometimes these "entities" are called aspects of the higher self, the Yeh-chee-dah. Some people call these entities manifestations of God. The process of how to reach and communicate with these "entities" will be discussed later in this lesson. I wish to stress that there is nothing to fear from the beautiful, natural techniques that you will soon be learning. The best is yet to come.

If you look over the hundreds of pages of this book which you have followed so far, you will know that we have covered a tremendous amount of material. Perhaps most importantly I have tried to show you how to be a magician; how to think, act and feel like a true wyzard or wyzardess. With this knowledge you should be able to construct your own rituals and ceremonies rather than being locked into the printed words of dead hands.

One of the most important topics I have covered in these lessons are the applications and methods of White and Grey Magick, and how to avoid falling into the pit of Black Magick. Remember, too, that I have always maintained that not all authorities agree with my three divisions of magick. I gave them only so that we could communicate better. For in spite of what any authorities say, there is no such thing as White, Black, or Grey Magick! To explain why this is so requires some more information.

Part of the process of becoming a magician is learning to discern "reality" from "actuality." Occultists have always maintained that everything is made up of vibrational energy. Modern scientific thought has finally come to the same conclusion, calling it "wave theory."

Yet, a wall is still a wall. A desk is still a desk. Both are really, truly solid. They support the weight of objects. I cannot place my hand through them without damage to the wall, the desk and/or my hand. That is their reality. Still, both science and occultism insist that the wall and desk (and my hand) are only vibrational energy. That is their actuality. What is actual may not appear real. What is real may or may not be actual.

Likewise, some things may appear to be true, and may in reality be true. But their actuality may be false. It is really true that the Sun rises every morning even if the clouds prevent me from seeing it. That is the reality. But the actuality is that the Earth spins, giving the appearance that the Sun rises. In actuality, the Sun never rises.

Most of us will agree that killing is bad and evil. But people who believe this is so go to war and kill every day. Are they evil? From a magickal point of view I would have to say "no."

For a true magician there is no good or evil. There is no morality. Yet, a true magician is usually far more "moral" than his or her non-magician friends and neighbors, especially those professing to be highly moral. How can this be so?

It is because a true magician understands the law and workings of Karma. A magician realizes that he/she is totally free to choose to do whatever is desired. However, the true magician will invariably choose the path of Light, what is called by non-magicians the "morally correct choice." The true magician chooses the path of Light not for moral purposes. Rather, this path is chosen because the magician realizes that whatever is done will come back to him or her. Such is the universal law of Karma.

Thus, for the true magician there is no such thing as White, Grey or Black Magick. There is only. . . magick. Period. It so happens that because of the understanding of the law of Karma, a true magician will assiduously avoid what non-magicians or beginning magicians would call Black Magick.

People who are not aware of the law of Karma behave "morally" because they are given a code of morals or a set of laws to follow. Because they cannot see an immediate effect from breaking that code there is always the possibility that they will do so. Thus, people who claim to be "moral" are far more likely to break their own moral code than is a magician who does not believe in a set of laws to govern morality.

Are there black magicians? Most definitely yes. But they should never be considered true magicians because they do not understand the functioning of a fundamental rule of magick, the law of Karma. If they did, they would not do "Black Magick."

There is still another aspect to what some people might call Black Magick. If you were dying of a painful, incurable disease, might there not be the possibility that you would commit suicide? Some of you reading this will say, "Yes, it is a possibility." Others will think, "No. No way." But there are some "moralists" who would consider it wrong to commit suicide under any conditions. I am not trying to encourage suicide. I am merely saying that it is impossible to consider an action "good" or "bad," Black Magick or otherwise, unless we know the Karmic result of the action.

Most of us would agree that it would be bad for us to cut off the arm of a good friend. But suppose the arm was gangrenous and the friend would die if the arm was not removed. It would be Karmically bad for us not to help by removing the arm. Of course, it might be the Karmically correct time for the friend to go through the transition known as death. Then it would be Karmically bad for us to save the friend's life! As you can see, there are many complexities in determining the Karmic "correctness" of an action. This is why doing a divination is so important before performing a magickal act which will affect you or your environment.

In the Biblical story, Jonah was told by God to go and preach. He chose not to do so and the Karma of that action put him in the belly of a "great fish." The Karmically correct decision would have been to preach. Had a thousand people barred his way, it still would have been Karmically bad for him not to preach, even if he had to fight his way through those people.

If you communicate with a higher, spiritual entity and decide to follow or not follow the advice of that entity, you will be responsible for the Karmic result of your action. If you decide to do something which agrees with instructions from higher entities, and someone tells you "No," it is Karmically correct for you to disagree with that person and even push him or her out of the way if need be. But remember, you will be Karmically responsible for whatever happens. Especially because you are a magician, you must accept responsibility for all of your actions. What you are now is a direct result of what you do today. As you sow, so shall you reap.

Discovering things from higher, spiritual entities on other planes of existence and deciding to do them is called "finding your True Will." And, as St. Augustine, Rabelais and Aleister Crowley said, "Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the law."

This is not a license for hedonism and what some people may call immorality. In fact, just the contrary is true. In reality it is a call to become responsible for your own actions, to become united with Divinity and to do God's Will. Your actions will require that you ever tread the path of Light. And the guide on that path is love. For as Crowley added, "Love is the law, love under will."

Every once in a while, the sensationalistic press will tell the story of a man or woman who did something terrible such as beating a spouse or child to death because their victim "was possessed by the devil." Some add that "God told me to do this." The training in this book does not increase the possibility that you may become demented enough to do such a thing. In fact, it helps prevent it! We are not dealing with mediumship or possession. We will be dealing with communication.

Furthermore, there is always a simple way to decide if something is correct for you. You should have noticed that over the past few months, as you have been practicing the rituals and techniques of this course, your intuition has improved. This is a natural result of the rituals and exercises which you have been doing. So if something doesn't seem right or feel right to you, don't do it! It's that simple.

If you have a feeling that someone you know may be "possessed by the devil" and you have a desire to make that devil leave by doing bodily harm to the person "possessed," it is you who needs help.

The systems which I will share with you are quite safe. Since some people are concerned about direct communication with higher, spiritual entities, as opposed to the somewhat indirect communications of magickal evocation, let me repeat here: nothing in this or any other lesson will be dangerous or could cause danger to you or others if you follow instructions. Nothing taught in these lessons could lead you to what general morality might consider evil.

I have written on other pages about the "little nasties" and how they can be bothersome. I discussed earlier in this lesson that when you come into contact with higher spiritual entities, you should listen to what they have to say. As you may have guessed, I did not mean that you should obey the little nasties! Little nasties, being denizens of what some people call the Lower Astral Plane are not Higher Spiritual Entities. What I mean by Higher Spiritual Entities are three things: direct manifestations of the Divine (the gods), the Archangels and the Orders of Angels. Furthermore, you may need to make tests to see if these entities are the spiritual beings they claim to be. How to do this will be explained later.

But first, let's look at entities which, though ethereal and existing primarily on other planes, are not Higher Spiritual Entities.

Etheric Body: This is an emanation of all created things. It is not the true astral double and is something like "halfway between astral and physical." It sometimes can take on the appearance of a person on a higher plane, but is always attached to a living being.

Astral Body: This is a manifestation of the spiritual aspect of a living entity. Again, it is always attached to an incarnate being. When detached, it quickly moves to higher planes of existence in order to reincarnate. In this disattached condition they are too busy to occupy your time. When attached to some individual ego, they can be seen as such. Higher Spiritual Entities are not linked to a particular ego.

Azoth: This is also known by the Sanskrit term "Akasha" (correct pronunciation: ah-kash) or the Astral Light. It appears as brightness and is changeable according to a person's will. The past, present and future can be seen within the Azoth, but it does not have an independent personality. Since futures are only possible futures, getting lost in the Astral Light can lead to your ignoring the present. This can lead you to the home for "Space Cadets." Remember to keep your feet firmly planted in the present.

Artificial Elementals: These are entities created by human forces and are composed of only one element. They are focused toward one purpose, so if you leave them alone they will ignore you. Depending upon the strength of the will of their creator, they will appear more or less gaunt when seen on the Astral plane.

The Empty Ones: If you live in a large city, these entities can be seen in physical form in the "skid row" section of town. They look human, but they have no soul and no hope for the future. They can sometimes show great humor and daring, but quickly fade into the depths of despair. Their eyes show either madness or emptiness. These poor creatures also exist on higher planes. Their touch brings despair and fear.

Elementaries: These are the Gnomes of Earth, Undines of Water, Sylphs of Air and Salamanders of Fire. They are usually improperly called "elementals." Although composed of only one element, they have their own will and usually do not bother humans. In fact, they prefer it if humans ignore them.

Larvae: These are also known as lemures. It is believed that they live off the essence of blood. They "feed," so to speak, on sick or injured people. They can be dispersed easily by a projection of pure spiritual white Light.

Ghosts: When the Astral Body separates from the ego, it normally moves to a position where it can reincarnate. Sometimes a strong desire for the physical world keeps an Astral body in the lowest of the spiritual planes. In this condition they are known as Ghosts. They tend to be quite sorrowful as they refuse to evolve. Encouraging their evolution may or may not be successful, but it will give you karmic "brownie points."

Pseudo-Ghosts: These are not related to true ghosts. They're closer to the little nasties. They "feed" off any energy given to them and will imitate the actions of ghosts in order to get people to pay attention and give them energy. By reading the Astral Light they can know your past and probable future, and thus may appear at seances under the guise of a deceased loved one. They are more bothersome on the physical plane than on any higher plane.

These and other entities exist on the higher planes. Those of a single mind will not harm you unless you try to stop them from their goal. Those connected to entities on the physical plane are usually too involved with the physical plane to bother you. There is one type of entity which exists on higher planes which can be problematical: your own thought forms.

Here, "form" is the key word. On higher planes thoughts do take on various forms representing their nature, and, unfortunately, you do not have to consciously create them.

Thus, on higher planes you may come into contact with ugly, foul monsters of hideous appearance who attempt to stop you from achieving your goals. They are only your own fears, angers, prejudices, etc. They will not harm you themselves, for to harm you would cause their own destruction. But because most people are too frightened to examine or even look at the darker side of themselves, most people will run in terror at the sight of their own negative thought forms. This can keep you from accomplishing your goal of direct communication with Higher Spiritual Entities.

Visualizing a pentagram of bright blue light specked with brilliant gold flecks and "shooting" it out at them will keep them away. The only way to really get rid of them is to face them and your fear, and overcome the negative aspect of yourself which created them. Few magicians are ever really psychically attacked. Through banishings, the attack may be temporarily stopped, but it will not end until the magician has dealt with and conquered the inner source of the negative thought form.

Please understand that I am not encouraging you to stay and face the monsters of your own inner self, monsters which we all have. In this type of battle it is a wise person who runs away and "lives to fight another day." At some time, sooner or later, you will have to face and conquer your own demons, and you will be happier for it.

PART TWO

In Part One of this lesson I explained that I would teach you how to learn the ultimate secrets of magick, although I cannot teach you the actual secrets. This is because each person must learn them for him/herself and prove his or her worth and readiness. Also, the secrets are of a very subjective nature. What may be the ultimate secrets of magick for you might not be for another aspirant.

However, if you think that you will begin to learn the techniques for this discovery in this lesson you will be wrong. You will not begin to learn the techniques here because you have already begun to learn them from the very first lesson of this course!

Up to this time, without dwelling on it, I have been directing you in the method of how to obtain the desired information and secrets. I have not dwelt upon it because some people seem to fear what is represented by two small words. Frankly, I cannot understand this fear because the process named by those two words is something these same people do every day of their lives. However, they do it without control. When this process is controlled by a firm Magickal Will (something you have been developing by following these lessons and doing the rituals and exercises), however, it seems to scare some people. This is foolish as there is nothing to be afraid of from something which you ordinarily do so easily. It is quite common. And the two words which describe it are: Astral Projection.

Don't feel uncomfortable with the idea of Astral Projection. You do it every time you daydream, and very frequently when you dream in your sleep.

Astral Travel, which follows Astral Projection, is also very common and natural. In fact, you probably had to unlearn how to Astral Travel when you were a child. It is very common for parents to tell their children not to play in invisible scenes and with invisible playfriends. These were scenes and entities on and from the astral plane.

You may remember some of this type of childhood experience in a very superficial way. Very few people remember their extreme youth in detail. Because elders would tell you, "Come back to reality!" and "Don't play foolish games!" and, worst of all, "Quit pretending!", it was eventually impressed into your conscious to forget those invisibles which are "see-able" on the astral plane. This process of causing yourself to forget those things which would be uncomfortable or unacceptable to your current state of consciousness is what psychotherapists call "motivated forgetting." It is one of the reasons why most people remember little of their infancy; it was so childish and embarrassing not to be able to walk, communicate, take care of yourself or even control your bowels that you want to forget.

As you may recall, I said at the beginning of this course that your daily ritual practice would become shorter. This is because you will be able to do all of your regular daily ritual work totally astrally! Remember, the physical actions of a ritual work to impress the subconscious and reinforce the conscious with what is being done in the astral plane. Therefore, you can begin by passing the physical and go directly to the astral plane by doing the following ritual.

ASTRAL LESSER BANISHING RITUAL OF THE PENTAGRAM

Preparation: Until you have practiced this at least twenty times, begin by doing a regular, physical LBRP. If time allows, also do the BRH.

STEP ONE. Sit in the center of your circle and relax with some steady deep breathing and the Relaxation Ritual. You should be facing the East. Your eyes should be closed and your arms and legs should not be crossed.

STEP TWO. Visualize yourself (or, if you prefer, an idealized image of yourself) standing, facing you. Take some time and get the best image possible in your mind.

STEP THREE. Once your double (frequently called a doppleganger) is complete, use your will power and have it turn to face the East, the same direction in which you are looking. This procedure should take no special ritual techniques. Simply tell it silently to turn about and it will. Of course, it should still be standing.

STEP FOUR. Now, without audibly saying anything, will your twin to do the entire Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram. Your physical body should be in the center of the area, the position where your physical altar would normally be located. Try to hear, feel, smell, sense and visualize everything your double does. Keep your physical eyes closed.

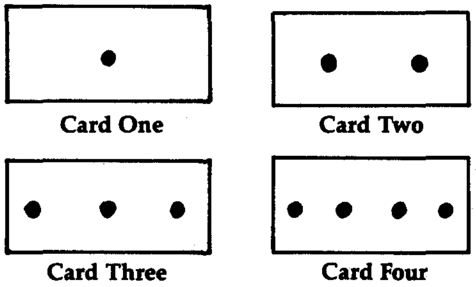
STEP FIVE. Once you have completed this astral performance of the LBRP, have your double sit in your lap and allow yourself to re-absorb it. Take some deep breaths to unite yourselves. Clap your hands loudly three times. The sound will help bring you back to normal consciousness. Now you may open your eyes.

Postscript: After you have done the Astral Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram, be sure and perform the LBRP physically. Do this until you have performed the Astral version at least 30 (not 20) times.

The Astral LBRP sounds quite easy to do from the description above. Actually it sounds a great deal easier than it really is. This ritual takes as much or more concentration than any rituals you have done so far in this course. If you find yourself getting lost or falling asleep, just stop where you are and perform the LBRP physically. Simply follow the directions and add nothing to them. Nothing "bad" can happen to you.

If you have trouble concentrating to a level where you can do the entire LBRP in this above, Astral fashion, try practicing the following concentration exercise:

Needed: a timer and four cards. On the first card place a large dot, and on the second place two dots side by side. On the third card make a row of three dots and on the fourth card, a similar row of four dots (see below):



Card One

Card Two

Card Three

Card Four

Concentration Exercise Cards

Set the timer for five minutes. Look at card one until you have a very good idea of that single spot. Now close your eyes and only think of that spot. If any other thoughts come into your mind, simply bring back your focus to that one spot. Cease the exercise when the timer goes off. Your goal in this exercise is to keep that single spot visualized for five minutes and allow nothing else to interfere with your concentration.

When you have very few breaks in your concentration, move on to card two with the two spots and repeat the exercise. Continue this practice until you can keep the two dots in your mind for the full five minutes. When you can do this with card four and its four dots, you will have excellent concentration abilities.

Although this exercise sounds easy, it is not. The first time I tried it, I broke out into a sweat and was drenched within five minutes. Do not underestimate its difficulty.

On the other hand, if you find that the Astral LBRP is easy for you to do, add to it an Astral version of the BRH, the Middle Pillar Ritual and the Circulation of the Body of Light. Eventually you should be able to do all of these Astrally. Then, even a few minutes with your eyes closed should equal what is now taking you much longer on the physical plane. Although your daily ritual work should still be done every day, you will reach a time when you will rarely have to do them physically. You will, of course, do most of the so-called Grey Magick rituals on the physical plane, and also those rituals wherein you delve into the deepest realms of the Magickal Arte.

Some of you who have read about or practiced Astral Projection and Astral Travel may be thinking, "Wait a minute, what he described isn't Astral Projection at all!" and I confess, this is true.

There are two techniques which are frequently called Astral Projection. The first one is frequently mistaken for Astral Projection but is nothing of the kind. It is actually Mental Projection. In Mental Projection you send your mind and senses away from your body by force of will. You still will retain your consciousness and some sense awareness in your physical body. Another name for this is bi-locationality.

In true Astral Projection the consciousness almost totally leaves the physical and joins the Astral Double. The physical body appears to be sleeping or in a coma. If you have forgotten about how the Astral Plane works, and how everything has an Astral Double, now is the time to re-read Lessons Five and Seven.

In the Astral LBRP just described, all you are doing is using your powers of visualization and your imagination. You are not doing Astral or even Mental Projection. But look again at Step Four: "Hear, feel, smell, sense and visualize everything your double does." By doing this, eventually, and quite naturally, you will experience bi-locationality. This will occur when you are open and ready for it. You will have an awareness of both your physical self and your astral body.

Or, your consciousness may seem to jump back and forth between the two forms.

Then, once again only when you are ready for it, you will notice that you are no longer aware of your physical body. It is at this time that you are experiencing true Astral Projection. When this occurs, do not rapidly seek to return to your physical body. Rather, try to get comfortable in your Astral form and get used to the way it feels to be out-of-body. This will make the projection of the Astral body easier as time goes on.

If you would like to try some other methods for projecting your Astral Body and travelling on the Astral Plane, here are some good ones. Remember, however, to always perform the LBRP (and BRH if time allows) before doing any projection. This cannot be overemphasized.

Method One:

Start off by placing some markers around your room or home. These markers could include such things as a rose, a bowl of cold water, a shoe, etc. Now lie down on your bed. Next, get up and make a circle, going from one marker to the next and back to your bed. Involve yourself with each of the markers. Smell the rose. Feel the cool wetness of the water. Feel the texture of the rubber of the sole of the shoe. When you return to the bed, lie down in your original position.

The next step is to visualize above you a cloud of purest white. It may remain as a cloud or you can form it into the shape of your own body (idealized if desired). You may notice a connection between your physical body and your double in the form of an umbilical-like cord at your navel, solar plexus, third eye area, or at the top of your head. People experience this cord in different places.

Now, will the cloud or double to circle around the markers following the same path that you had taken earlier. If you noticed the cord, you can see that it will stretch indefinitely. Have the double or cloud smell the rose, feel that water and feel the shoe, just as you did earlier. Eventually this imaginary tour will change to bi-locationality and finally to Astral Projection. Once you have attained these states, there is no need to limit yourself as to where you can go. Feel free to visit a friend's home. Remember that you are learning a new skill, so don't try to go too far until you are very comfortable with the experience.

Even if you are only using imagination, always re-absorb the double or cloud back into your physical body when you have com pleted your journey. Also, always end with a banishing ritual.

Method Two:

This is similar to method one. Either lie down or sit in a chair. Begin by visualizing a cloud in front of you (or over you if you are lying down). If you wish, you may form it into a double of yourself.

Now, firmly desire to transfer your consciousness to the double. If you feel a sudden change in your body, described by some as a lightening or vibrating feeling, will yourself to open your eyes. Do not try to physically open your eyes by using your muscles. Just will yourself to see. Do not be surprised when you see your physical body in front of you.

Spend no more than three minutes concentrating on trying to cause your consciousness to leave your body and join your Astral self. If it works, fine. If it doesn't work in about three minutes, that is fine too. Relax, take some deep breaths, and try again tomorrow.

The key to succeeding with this system (and with all of the methods, really) is the urgent desire to leave your physical body. When you succeed, be sure to re-absorb the double into your physical body at the end of the projection. Of course, do banishings before and after.

Method Three:

Lie naked on a bed. Have a friend or relative put a folded heavy bedspread on your feet. Now, have your aide slowly drag the folded spread up your body until it reaches the top of your head. Then the person helping you should quickly lift the spread up and away from you and quietly leave the room.

Now duplicate the process in your mind's eye. Only instead of a bedspread, feel your Astral body rising up. First your feet rise, then your ankles, calves, knees and so forth to the top of your head. At the point where the bedspread was lifted from your physical body, imagine your consciousness going with the Astral body. When finished, re-absorb the double into your body.

Method Four:

Hear the musical note D natural above middle C in your mind. A little practice with a piano, pitch pipe, or a friend with a musical instrument will make this pitch familiar to you. Now, double the frequency of the pitch in your mind so that you hear a pitch an octave higher than the first note. If you are not a musician, a friend with musical knowledge can help you with this.

Again hear the tone, only an additional octave higher, then hear it an octave above that. Continue this process until you are far above a piano's range.

You will notice that you are feeling lighter as the note goes up in pitch. You may sense a vibration in your head. Let the sound rise higher and higher as you feel the sound rise toward the ceiling of your room. When you sense that the sound is as high as it can go, both as a pitch and within the confines of the room, will your eyes to open. Again, don't be surprised if you see your physical body below. When finished, allow the double to be re-absorbed into the physical body. This method is particularly good for musicians. It was the method I used when I first had a willed out-of-body experience.

The methods of Astral Projection and Astral Travel presented here are enough for anyone to learn from. If you desire more information, look at some of the books in this lesson's bibliography. But be aware that each of the books are limited by preconceived notions of the authors. Set yourself no limits and you will have none. And besides, it is far better to learn by doing than by reading.

Some students have expressed concerns about "being lost in the Astral" and not being able to come back to their physical bodies. If you follow the instructions given in this lesson it simply cannot happen. You have a direct link to your body via the cord mentioned earlier. This is true even if you, like some people, are not aware of the existence of the cord. The only time "getting lost" can occur is if you stray too far from your physical body. The relative expression "too far" is not a question of yards or miles. For lack of a better comparison, I like to say that it refers to hundreds of light years. Simply stay near your body while you are learning and you will have no such problem whatsoever.

In fact, the biggest problem for most people is not getting back, but getting out in the first place and then staying out. You must truly desire to leave your body and approach the entire idea of the Astral by knowing that it is beautiful, stimulating, safe, exciting and fun!

There is one problem, rarely mentioned due to its lack of seriousness. It can occur to beginners and long-time veterans of Astral Projection and Travel. It is what is known as "Astral Whiplash." Sometimes, when you are out-of-body, something can jar your physical body enough to suddenly draw your Astral body back into your physical self. This can be from a knock on the door, a phone ringing, a car backfiring or a friend nudging you and asking you, "Hey, are you asleep?"

The result of this whiplash back into your physical body is that you may feel groggy, sore all over, tired, and you may get a headache. When you project, astral "substance" (it has gone under many names) comes out of your physical body and unites with your Astral Body by way of the aforementioned cord. Coming back too quickly can result in your leaving some of this "substance" still out on the Astral Plane. It is this loss which causes the minor physical problems mentioned above. This is one reason why you should always allow the double to be absorbed by the physical body after you finish your projection.

I experienced Astral Whiplash on my first successful attempt at Astral Projection. When I willed my eyes to open, I suddenly realized that I was floating at the top of the room and could see my body below me. The excitement and exhilaration was too much, and Wham! I was back in my body. Luckily, I had not gone too far and I only ended up a little groggy. Some deep breathing and a drink of cool, fresh water fixed that.

If you ever have a problem with Astral Whiplash, and you were not really close to your body when the whiplash occurred, there is a simple remedy for any of the symptoms associated with it. Re-project yourself to the same place to which you went when you were interrupted. Then return to your physical body in your normal fashion. You will automatically collect whatever substance was lost. If you do not have a chance to re-project, the feelings resulting from Astral Whiplash will fade in a few hours or after you have a good sleep.

Perhaps the best solution to Astral Whiplash caused by an interruption from an outsider would be prevention. Before attempting any projection, take the phone off the hook and tell anybody else in your home that you are not to be disturbed for the next hour.

At this time there is no need for you to travel far once you have the knack of projection. However, it is important to include in your Tarot Contemplation Ritual the aspect of imagining yourself in the chosen card and looking beyond the edge of the card if you are not doing so already. This and Astral Projection come together in the next part of this lesson. You may wish to practice both the advanced Tarot Contemplation Ritual and Astral Projection for a few days or weeks until you have a minimal efficiency before moving to the next part of this lesson.

PART THREE

So far I have explained techniques for Mental and Astral Projection plus the very beginning techniques of working magickally while in the Astral Plane, what is commonly known as Astral Traveling.

I have also advised you to spend some time, days or even weeks, before going on to this section. I remember how excited I got when I first projected and how I quickly wanted to move on with my practices. So if you are quickly going ahead there is no need to apologize.

You are not expected to have achieved immediate success with the techniques. Very few people I have talked with do, and I know that it took me quite some time to get any real control. They may take you weeks or even months of daily work to perfect. It is better to practice for fifteen mintues, or even only five minutes, every day, than it is to practice for one hour once a week. Persevere and you will succeed.

But, so what? Once you able to freely project your consciousness into your Astral Body and travel around in that state, what good will it do you? Why even learn how to Astral Project in the first place? Sure, it is fun and exhilarating, but going to a movie can be fun and going dancing can be exhilarating. And movie-going and dancing take a great deal less preparation.

There are many books which discuss how wonderful it is to be out-of-body. But once you achieve the ability of Projection, few of the books discuss what to do with it. Some say you can contact friends or visit the Moon or any other of a variety of more or less mundane things.

Why bother? I can call my friends on the phone or drive over and visit them. And although visiting the Moon might be interesting, it is not at the top of my "things to do" list. And why, if the goal of Astral Projection is so relatively mundane, have occult schools and fraternities from the earliest dates of recorded history stressed the import of learning how to project?

As I have made clear, the purpose of this course is to introduce you to various magickal topics so that you can direct yourself in your life-long study of the occult. This lesson is specifically focused toward being a guide for your future study of metaphysics. In this lesson you are learning techniques which can give you every magickal secret known and unknown to humanity!

With these techniques you can achieve whatever you want in life, both spiritually and materially. Few people know about it because real magicians have tried to keep it a secret from mere dabblers in the occult sciences.

It has been necessary to withold this ultimate secret of magick from you until now for two reasons:

1. You had to prove your readiness to receive the information by sticking through this course. Right now, if you study not one more word of this course, nor read any other book, you probably know more about the theory and practice of traditional Western magick than most of those who claim to be ceremonial magicians. You have earned the right to have this information by your diligence. This is especially true if you have been practicing the exercises and rituals.

2. According to Eliphas Levi, telling the truth to someone who cannot accept it is the same as telling that person a lie. I could have given you information in the first lesson of this course, but you would not have been able to use it. Thus, it would have been meaningless or a lie to you. In order to make use of this knowledge, you need to develop all of the techniques and talents given so far in this course. This course is cumulative.

The technique I will be sharing involves the use of the Tarot, Kabalistic Correspondences, understanding how to do Ritual Magick, how to raise, control and direct the magickal energy, plus the ability to project to the Astral Plane. In fact, this technique is the reason for learning Astral Projection. It has long been kept a secret. It is called Pathworking.

Right now I am typing at my desk surrounded by glass-fronted cases which are filled with occult books and manuscripts. For those of you who are heavily involved in buying (and, I hope, reading) occult books, you may have noticed that in the past few years several books have been published dealing with Pathworking. All of them include examples of working the Paths. They seem to make Pathworking into a mythologized journey through archetypal images in the imagination. While this may certainly be a type of Pathworking, one of which I was unaware until these books began to be published, it is not the type of Pathworking I am familiar with, nor is it the Pathworking system which I will be sharing here. To my knowledge, this is the first time this system of Pathworking has been published.

Before discussing how to do Pathworking, there is some preliminary information which you must have. One of the best writers on magick and the Kabalah claims that the Tree of Life is just a convenient tool for memorization and categorization. While to an extent this is true, it does not go far enough, for the Tree of Life is also a map of the psychic planes! Magicians can use this map to chart their ways to meeting with higher spiritual entities, non-physical consciousnesses capable of giving any information needed. This is why the study of the Tree of Life is so vitally important to all Western Ritual or Ceremonial Magicians.

Pathworking, quite simply, is the process of using this map to go to the location of some Higher Spiritual Entity. On the Astral road you may encounter any or all of the appropriate Kabalistic correspondences for a particular path or Sephira. You may also encounter any of the lower non-physical beings described earlier in this lesson. Each journey up and down the Tree of Life will be unique, although it may have similarities with other such journeys. Therefore, you cannot depend upon what others have written. "There is no room for authority in occultism" (Dion Fortune). What you can depend upon is your own Kabalistic knowledge and magickal ability. Now, perhaps, you can see more clearly one of the reasons I have had to wait until this lesson to describe this technique.

I think that the best way to show you what Pathworking is like is to give you an example of a Pathworking experience. Please remember that merely because someone else has done this does not mean that it will be correct for you. Pathworking, like our physical world, is real, and like the physical world, it is interpreted through our senses and our minds. Therefore, it becomes highly subjective. True, for the person experiencing it, the Pathworking is real. Merely because something is real does not mean that it is actual. It only means that it is our present interpretation of what is actual.

Because Pathworking is so intensely personal and important, none of my students have ever told me that they were willing to have their Magickal Record of a Pathworking published. I feel the same way about my own Pathworking experiences. Therefore, as an example of a Pathworking, I am going to present to you a version adapted from a rare book called The New Dimensions Red Book. Although this was a group working, it has some valid points which make it very similar to the Pathworking I will be describing. I have altered it greatly to make it more similar to a Pathworking you may have.

An Example of Pathworking

It is a bright night. The Moon is full and the air is clear and cold. The date is ______. I have relaxed and performed the LBRP, the BRH and the Ritual of the Rose Cross.

My temple is lit with nine purple candles and I am using the general purpose incense of combined myrrh and frankincense. My four consecrated tools, the wand, chalice, knife and pentacle are on my altar which is in the center of my temple. I am sitting in a chair behind the altar, facing East. I have already drunk some comfrey tea and I hold a piece of quartz crystal in my hand. I am excited, but feel prepared.

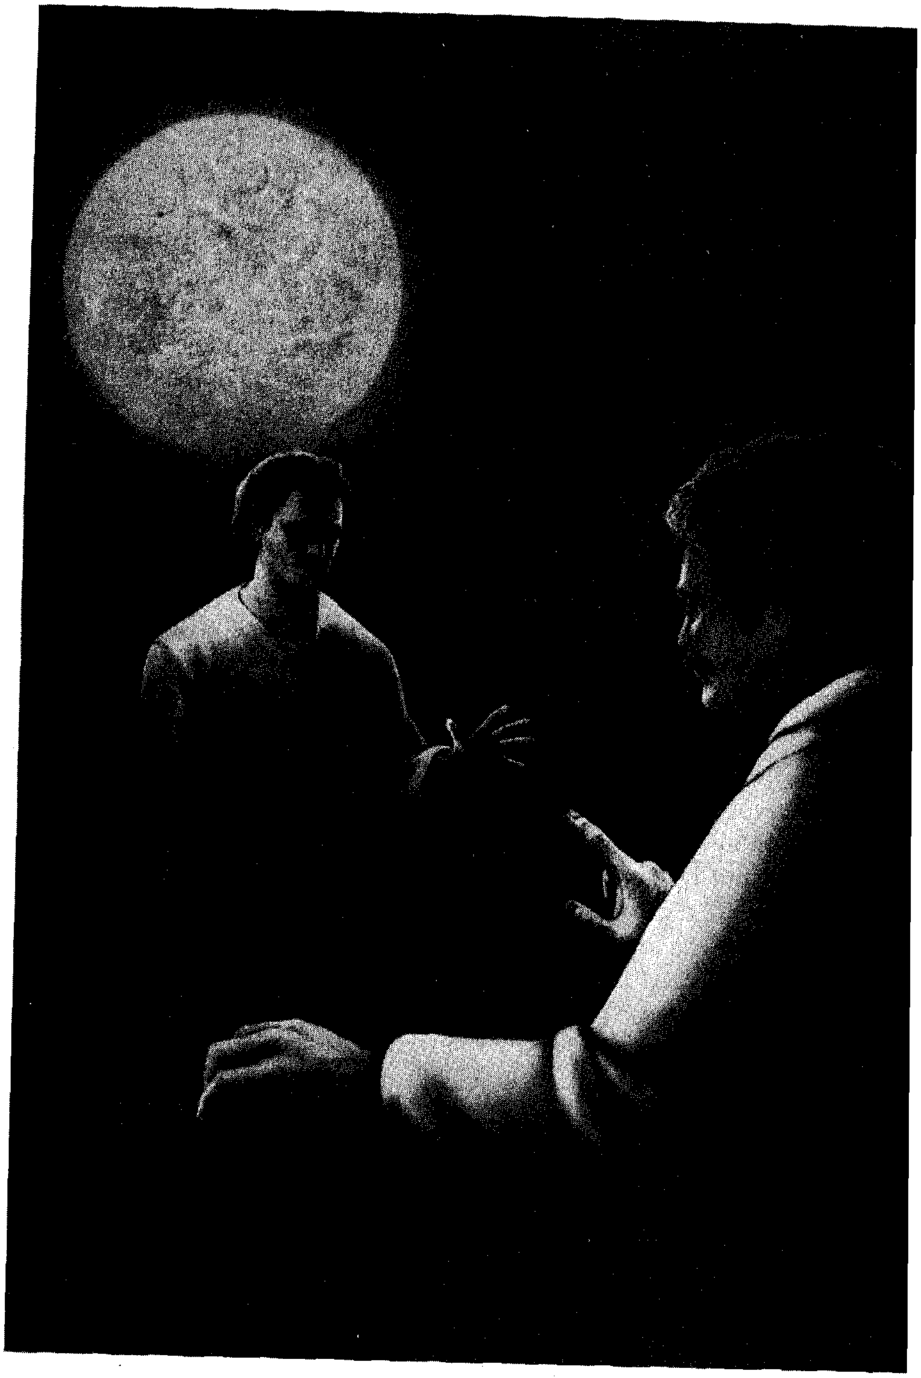
I form a body which is a duplicate of myself standing in front of me. I project my consciousness into my Astral Double and will my eyes to open.

I realize that I am now looking around at my Astral Temple duplicate of my physical temple. Everything is here, but it seems more intense, more glowing, and also more ethereal. The walls of the room, however, are nowhere to be seen as they seem to be shrouded in mists. This room may be the same size as my physical room, or it may be infinitely large. I have no way of knowing. Frankly, this scares me a bit and to calm myself I perform the LBRP. I see new and very bright blue stars and luminescent white lines going over those which I had already created. Then I perform the Rose Cross Ritual. It gives me a feeling of quiet calmness.

To the east, from out of the mists, I see three doors appear. The door to my left is a huge card of the Tarot, card 20, Judgement. To the right the door is card 19, the Moon. Due east, between the other card-doors, is a door upon which is card 21, The Universe. Ahead also is an enormous figure. It is my personal temple's guardian, whose name is ________. I know that I can leave both my temple and my physical body safely entrusted to my guardian's care.

This night I have chosen to work up the path of The Universe. It will take me from Mahlkoot, our Earth and my temple, to Yesode, the Sphere of the Moon. I step toward the middle door. The door seems to grow until it is all that I can see. Instead of opening it, I will myself to become the figure in the card. Instantly, we are one.

I am floating in a cloud-filled void, but I feel no fear, only joy. I am surrounded by a huge green wreath, and the only other entities I can see are the Kerubic creatures of Ezekial's Revelation: a Bull, an Eagle, a



Pathworking

Lion and a Man. I look around and eventually a path becomes clear. I walk away from the wreath and the four creatures, and I move down the path.

The path is straight, but to either side it is very dark. Every so often I see an image, a tableau of great interest, on either side of the path. But rather than tarry, I continue along the straight and narrow.

After a long walk, I come to a sort of ocean or lake. There is something shimmering in the distance, but I cannot make out what is there. In front of me is large, flat-bottomed boat. Its oarsman is the strongest looking person I have ever seen. He would make almost every body builder hide in shame. He beckons me onto the boat, so I enter and carefully sit down. He rows swiftly toward the glittering in the distance.

When we arrive, I see that it is a brilliant, white island. I tell the oarsman to approach, but instead he stares at me as if expecting more from me. I do not know what he wants. Rather than approaching the island he rows around it. Quickly coming into my vision is the most beautiful young woman I have ever seen. She looks like she is perhaps twenty years old. Her body has not yet fully matured but is still excellent to behold. About the only thing whiter and more pure than her skin is her unusual white hair. Her blue eyes look questioningly beyond me, as if trying to learn the mysteries of the universe. She is both virginal and sexy at the same time. I am virtually breathtaken at her youthful beauty.

As we move further around the island, another woman comes into view. I can't guess her age, for she could pass as any age between her late twenties and late fifties. She is magnificently beautiful, too, but her beauty is not that of a young girl. Everything about her says "woman."

Her body is full with large but firm breasts and hips jutting out from a slender waist. Her skin is incredibly pure, and her white hair is puffed out to form a huge halo about her face. Her eyes are of the deepest azure. Almond shaped, they turn down slightly at the outside giving an impression both of knowledge, wisdom and insight; and also sheer eroticism. This lady is by no means a virgin, but few have dared to love her except from afar. Even her posture breathes sensuality and eroticism, unlike the mere sexiness of her younger neighbor. She is surrounded by many animals and she stands on a highly fertile plane filled with grains and ripe fruits and vegetables. As the oarsman rows on I begin to weep, as I do not wish to ever leave this Lady of Light. I start to sing a song to her...

"Lady of Magick,
Lady of Light,
Breaker of gloom
In the midst of the night. . .
In your heart, in your soul
A part of me lives.
A part without which I'm alive—but don't live.
Alive—but don't live. . . "

Soon, I can see her no more.

As we move further, another woman comes into view. She is much older, and at first glance her appearance is hag-like. But as I look at her I see a hidden sense of vitality which shines from within her eyes. I see that she has lived a full and meaningful life. Even though her time grows short, she regrets not one day of her existence. In my mind I can almost see her beauty when she was young, and the exuberance which accompanied that youth. As I look at her, I see what I at first considered to be a hag-like appearance now has a beauty of its own. A beauty of time and experience. A beauty of age. She also has a sort of majesty about her which gives her a beauty beyond her appearance.

We continue around the island, and I realize that what I have seen are the faces of the three-fold lunar Goddess of Paganism. This is natural, since before I started to study the Kabalah I had only studied Wicca or Witchcraft. We finally return to the first spot where we came upon the island. I bid the oarsman to cease his labors and wait here for a few moments.

In my heart I say, "Oh Diana, Goddess of the Moon and beyond, I beg that if you have a message for me that I might now receive it." A beautiful figure approaches from somewhere on the island. She stands with one foot in the water and speaks to me. Although we are separated by about one hundred feet of water and she speaks quietly, I am able to hear her perfectly. She says __________.

Now the oarsman takes us back the way we came. I notice things which, in my excitement, I had not noticed on the trip out. I see at the dock where I met the boatman a huge structure of rock which formed the last Hebrew letter, Tav. I see distantly in the sky the planet Saturn, clearly discernible by its spectacular rings. As I walk back down the path by which I had come, I see trees of Ash and Yew, along with Cypresses. Leaning against a yew I see a large sickle, and I get a small whiff of what smells like rotten eggs. Thankfully, the scent quickly is gone. I walk back down the path until ahead I finally see the wreath and the four mystical creatures. I enter the wreath and immediately see my temple and its guardian. I walk into the temple and sit in the lap of my physical body. I open my eyes and say a silent prayer, thanking both Diana and my temple's guardian. I once again perform the banishing rituals. When I look at a clock I am surprised to see that only 37 minutes have passed. It has seemed like many hours.

The important thing to notice in the above story is that the Astral Traveler could not enter the island. The island, of course, was Yesode. You will be given the secret of how to enter the higher Sephiroht in the next part of the lesson. However, once again I urge you to wait for a few days or even a week and experiment with the simple methods of Astral Projection as presented so far. If you wish, you may even work with going into the last three cards of the major Arcana and see what is on those paths, the three lower paths on the Tree of Life. However,

1. Do not attempt to enter a higher Sephira at this time.
2. Do not stray from the paths.
3. Return to your temple the same way you came, following the same path.
4. Will the Astral (or Mental) double to be absorbed by the physical body when you are through.

Be sure to always absorb the doppelganger. This is usually done by having the double sit in your lap, or, if you are lying down, by having it lay on top of you and sink into you. Also, notice the symbols mentioned at the end: Saturn, certain types of trees, a scythe and the Hebrew letter Tav. These are all associated with the 32nd path, the path of the Tarot card "The Universe." It is impossible for me to list all of the appropriate correspondences here. Besides, they have already been listed in the book 777 by Aleister Crowley. This dictionary of occultism, 777, is a vital book for all practicing magicians, and if you wish to improve your magickal knowledge, I suggest you obtain a copy.

The way the Tarot fits onto the Tree of Life is, as you can see, very important. It is the key for moving from one Sephira to another. You should become familiar with the pattern as given out in Lesson Three, if you have not already done so.

If you experiment with Pathworking as in the example above, you may use either Mental or Astral Projection. Again, your experience in Pathworking may be quite different from the example above. It was only meant to be an example of the types of things which may occur. Follow the four rules above and you will experience no problems.

PART FOUR

The purpose of Pathworking is for information gathering. By questioning Higher Spiritual Entities it is possible to learn new rituals, new magickal techniques and new mystical information. It is important to remind you that this information is for you and you alone. Although it may require others to help you in performing a ceremony, it might not be appropriate for anyone else in the universe to perform for him or herself.

This presents an opportunity to repeat Dion Fortune's important point, "There is no room for authority in occultism." Merely because someone reports that he or she had success with an originally devised ritual does not mean anyone else will have success with it. Similarly, a great many books on supposedly occult topics are nothing more than the fantasies of the authors. I know of one book which has been through a great many printings and claims that the reason you can hear other people's thoughts (clairaudience) is because people actually "speak" through their ears when they think of something. The idea makes perfect sense to the author, but it seems ridiculous to me. I know of another well-respected author who wrote a book concerning a lost civilization. The author made up the book and used his real name for the main character. He also used his wife's magickal name in the text. For the pseudonym listed as the author of the book, he switched around the words "not really" to make up a name! And this book, I understand, has been very successful.

But what I have talked about in the previous paragraph refers particularly to what you or anyone else might learn from Higher Spiritual Entities as you Pathwork your way around the Tree of Life. What I want to share with you now is how you get to a location where you can meet those entities.

This technique uses virtually all of what you have learned so far in this course.

THE RITUAL OF THE PATHS

This ritual is composed of eight basic steps:

1. Purifications.
2. Banishings.
3. Projection and Pathworking.
4. Verifications:
    a. of your location(s).
    b. of the identity of entities.
5. Request for magickal aid from the Higher Spiritual Entities.
6. Payment.
7. Return.
8. Banishings.

The only other thing which you will need to know is the key to gaining entrance into the higher Sephiroht; the password. Since each Sephira is overseen by an Archangel, you need to know that Archangel's name in order to enter. This is similar to the idea of having to give the name of a friend in order to get into a private club. In other words, the name of the Archangel of a particular Sephira is the password for gaining admittance into that Sephira. Knowing these passwords will allow you to enter any Sephira.

Preliminaries:

First, with the help of the Talismanic Magick chart, decide what the purpose of the Pathworking is to be and which Sephira you are going to visit. As an example, let us say that we feel low on vitality and wish to increase our energy. The Sephira involved is Giburah, and it is to Giburah we must go. Next, as before any act of Grey Magick, do a divination to see what the probable outcome of the ritual will be. Let us assume that the divination indicates that the outcome would be very positive. The next step is to decide the proper time to do the ritual. Let's choose the fourth magickal hour after sunset on a Thursday during the waxing of the Moon. This was determined from the table of Magickal Hours.

It may be that your purpose would be only to communicate with a Higher Spiritual Entity and become "friendly" with that Entity. In this case it is not really Grey Magick and needs no divination. However, doing a divination first will indicate the probability of success and could save you a great deal of wasted time.

The next step is to prepare the area. It is a good idea to give the temple area a good cleansing. Dust, wash, vacuum, whatever is appropriate. Then, you must also have an altar and the magickal tools or weapons. These include the four elemental tools and the Rainbow Wand. You will also need a piece of black material, suitable for covering the pentacle. The material should preferably be made of silk, but natural fibers such as cotton or wool will suffice. Stay away from nylons and polyesters. Also needed is a "road map."

A road map simply lists everything which you will need to know for the ritual. For this ritual we will need to know the correspondences for Yesode, Tiferet and Giburah. We will also need to know the correspondences for the paths on the Tree of Life which unite these Sephiroht. This includes knowing the Tarot cards which are associated with the paths we are going to traverse. For this example the cards are The Universe, Temperance and Justice.

Note that the path we are taking is from Mahlkoot (Sephira number 10) to Yesode (9), to Tiferet (6), to Giburah (5). We could have gone from Mahlkoot to Yesode to Hode (8) to Giburah, which would go up the left Pillar. Or we could have chosen to go from Mahlkoot to Yesode to Netzah (7) to Tiferet to Giburah. This would be a longer way, but one which would still get us to the goal. In any event, for Grey Magick always begin by going first to Yesode from Mahlkoot. This is because Yesode is associated with magick. Since our example is Grey Magick, we first proceed to Yesode. Had our goal of the ritual simply been to gain knowledge and not ask for either a change in the physical world, or information which would allow us to create that change, we could have followed a path directly up the Left Pillar without first stopping at Yesode.

STEP ONE. Purifications.

Begin with cleaning your area if you have not done so. Take a ritual bath or shower as has already been described. Robe yourself.

Next, purify your tools. True, their use in ritual work along with their dedication to the magickal arts has purified them, but a little extra never hurts.

Facing east, take the Rainbow Wand and hold it by the white band with the black end facing down. Visualize pure, white, light-filled energy coming from above your head, down through the Rainbow Wand, and out through the black end and into the ground. Say meaningfully,

By the power of Ah-Doh-Nye, be pure! be pure!
I exorcize thee, Creature of Will!

Place the Rainbow Wand back on the altar.

Now take the Air Dagger and hold it in your hands. Generate energy as you would in the Middle Pillar Ritual, but feel the energy run down your arms into your hands and into the Dagger. As you visualize all the impurities leaving the Dagger, say meaningfully,

I exorcize thee, Creature of Air!

Replace the Air Dagger on the altar.

Take the Fire Wand in your hands and face south. Generate energy as for the Dagger, and as you visualize all impurities leaving the Fire Wand say meaningfully,

I exorcize thee, Creature of Fire!

Replace the Fire Wand on the altar.

Take the Chalice (cup), which should be filled with wine or water, in your hands and face west. Again generate energy, visualize all impurities leaving the chalice, and say meaningfully,

I exorcize thee, Creature of Water!

Take a sip from the chalice and replace it upon the altar.

In a similar manner, treat the Pentacle. However, you should be facing north when you say meaningfully,

I exorcize thee, Creature of Earth!

Wrap the pentacle in the black cloth which you have for the purpose and replace it on the altar.

If you have not done so already, at this time light the appropriate number and color of candles. In this example ritual you should use five red candles, five being the number and red being the color of the Sephira to which we wish to travel. Incense should also be lit. Tobacco is commonly used for this Sephira. Other sharp, acrid scents will do, and of course you can always use frankincense and myrrh.

STEP TWO. Banishings.

Perform the Opening by Watchtower.

STEP THREE: Projection and Pathworking.

Using the system described in earlier parts of this lesson, either mentally or astrally project out-of-body. Look around your temple until you find the Universe door. Enter the card as described and look for a path ahead of you. Will yourself to move along this path which will move you up the Tree toward Yesode. Because your intention is different, your trip may be different from the one described.

Eventually you will come to a blocked door or pathway. There will be a guardian or several of them at this point. They are the Order of Angels associated with this Sephira. In the case of Yesode, they are the Kerubeem. To pass them and enter Yesode, use the password "Gabriel" (pronounced Gahb-ree-ehl), the Archangel of Yesode.

Once you are allowed to pass into this Sephira, look around and make sure that you are in Yesode (part of Step Four) by comparing correspondences. As an example, if you see elephants, you are in Yesode. However, if you see an Hermaphrodite you have somehow gotten into Hode. If you run into any problems or uncertainties, simply go back the way you came.

Eventually you will come to a door (or perhaps a curtain or painting) which appears to be a huge version of the card Temperance. Project into this card and look for its largest and most apparent path. When you eventually see this path, begin to travel along it. Soon you will find a blocked door or gate or path or entry of some kind. It will be blocked by the Malacheem, the angels of the Sephira Tiferet. To pass, use the password "Raphael" (pronounced Rah-fah-ehl).

In a similar way to Yesode, now get used to Tiferet. Make sure you are here by the use of correspondences. Next, look for the Tarot card Justice. Project into this card, look for the path, and move until your way is blocked. Here the guardians are the Serapheem and the password is "Khamael" (pronounced Kah-mah-el). Again, make sure you are in Giburah by correspondences and by Gematria.

STEP FOUR: Verifications.

To verify that you are in the appropriate Sephira, you can use the correspondences as already described. However, an even better way to do the verifications is via Gematria. This can only be done if you come into contact with entities capable of communication. Ask who they are. Since you are above the lowest Astral levels, you do not have to worry about the creatures here having egos and thus being liars. Spiritual creatures have no true will of their own and cannot lie, but they do not have to spell out their answers in plain language. They may test you.

According to the Kabalah, Hebrew is the true language of the angels, and they may reply in Hebrew. On the next page you will see a chart with the Hebrew letters. You will also see that each Hebrew let-

Hebrew Letter	English Equivalent	Numeration		Name of Letter
א	A	1		Aleph
ב	B, V	2		Bet
ג	G	3		Gimel
ד	D	4		Dalet
ה	H	5		He
ו	O, U, V	6		Vav
ז	Z	7		Zayin
ח	Ch	8		Chet
ט	T	9		Tet
י	I, Y	10		Yod
כ	K	20, 500	ך	Kaph
ל	L	30		Lamed
מ	M	40, 600	ם	Mem
נ	N	50, 700	ן	Nun
ס	S	60		Samekh
ע	A	70		Ayin
פ	P, Ph	80, 800	ף	Pe
צ	Tz	90, 900	ץ	Tzaddi
ק	K	100		Koph
ר	R	200		Resh
ש	S, Sh	300		Shin
ת	T, Th	400		Tav

Hebrew for Gematria

ter is associated with a number. Therefore, each Hebrew word has a numerical value. Since 5=5, according to the Kabalah and Gematria, any Hebrew word whose letters equal a certain value is related to any other Hebrew word whose letters have that same total.

As an example, perhaps when you think you are in Tiferet you come upon an entity and you ask who that entity is. The entity says, "Shavat." This means "rod" in Hebrew, and the letters come to a total of 311. The number of Raphael is also 311. Therefore, you are in Tiferet and are before the Archangel Raphael. You have been tested by Gematria and know how to pass some of the test. If you are unsure at any time, simply return the way you came.

Notes to the previous page:

The first column shows the way the Hebrew letters appear when printed.

The second column gives the sounds associated with each of the letters. Notice that some English sounds and letters are not included. There is no "E." Nor is there an "F," although the Pe does have a "Ph" sound which for all practical purposes equates with the "F." Although the letter "A" is traditionally given as the sound for Aleph, the Aleph really has no sound. It is merely a placeholder for vowels which in ancient days were understood and in modern Hebrew are indicated by points and lines written around each letter. The Koph is sometimes spelled "Qoph" and is said to be represented in English by the letter "Q." However it is always pronounced like a "K." The "Ch" of the Chet is pronounced like the "ch" of the Scottish word "loch."

The third column contains the number value of each letter. Note that after ten it goes to twenty, thirty, etc. Likewise, after ninety it goes to 100, 200, etc. Eleven is made by the combination Yud-Aleph or Aleph-Yud. Twenty-two is made by the combination Kaph-Bet or Bet-Kaph. Three hundred forty-seven is made by any combination of the letters Shin, Mem and Zayin.

Columns four and five show the special enumeration and appearance of five letters known as "finals." The letters in column five show how these letters look when they appear at the end of a word. Their values at the end of a word are given in column four, and appear after the commas of column three.

Column six gives the name of each letter in transliteration.

The best book on the subject of Gematria is Godwin's Cabalistic Encyclopedia (now out of print), by David Godwin, published by Llewellyn. Also good is Crowley's Sepher Sephiroht found in some versions of 777. Both books are really vital to a practicing magician.

STEP FIVE: Request for Magickal Aid.

Once you are positive you are in the correct Sephira, request (by willing) the presence of the Archangel of the Sephira. In the case of this example, it is Khamael. When an entity appears, make sure that it is Khamael via Gematria. If, for example, the entity identifies itself by the "name" 91, you will know that you are communicating with the correct entity because by Gematria Khamael equals 91.

Next, request what it is that you desire. Keep it simple. In the case of this example, you can use the words, "energy and vitality."

STEP SIX: Payment.

Nothing can be obtained without some sort of payment in return. Here, the payment is energy. There are several ways to give this spiritual energy:

a. Raise energy via the technique of the Middle Pillar Ritual and send the energy out your arms toward the Archangelic figure.

b. Repeat a word or phrase over and over. In this example the word "energy" would be good. Or perhaps you could use the Archangel's name. Let it speed up as you repeat it. You should feel energy increase within you and around you as you repeat the word or phrase. When it reaches a peak, say it one more time, but do it slowly and "loudly" toward the figure. Feel all of the energy raised leave with your "breath" and go into the entity. This is a system similar to what is called Mantra yoga in Eastern systems of magick.

Of course, your Astral or Mental body does not really "breathe" nor speak "loudly." However, the sensation is the same as if you did these activities physically.

c. If you are familiar with martial arts, any method of raising and sending ch'i or ki will work.

d. If you are using mental projection you can use Inner Alchemy sex magick, and when you have the MahaTantra experience, let the energy go to the Archangel. Do not worry about having a physical orgasm.

e. If you are mentally projecting you can run or dance in a circle and feel the energy build as a result of the physical exertion. When it reaches a peak, release it in the direction of the Archangel. This, of course, needs the close cooperation of the physical and mental bodies as it is the mental body which directs the energy taken from the physical body. If you choose to use this system, be sure to stay within your protective magickal circle while you run and/or dance.

The energy given, while called a "payment," must really be given freely. The Archangel may or may not choose to accept the energy, and whether or not the energy is accepted has no bearing on whether or not the Archangel will aid you in your magick. However, nothing can be had for free, and even if the payment is not used, it is still a payment.

It may also seem odd that in this case energy is given in order to receive more energy. This is a secret of the alchemists who said that you must have gold in order to make gold. In the same way, any energy given here can be returned a millionfold if need be.

STEP SEVEN: The Return.

Using your own words, thank the Archangel kindly for any help which it may choose to give. Then start back down the Tree. If you go back the way you came you will not find any guardians blocking your way. Why should they stop you from entering a place to which you have so recently proved that you are entitled to be admitted? Besides, their purpose is to block unentitled people from going up the Tree of Life toward Divinity, not from leaving the Tree.

It is possible to go down the Tree in a direction other than that by which you arrived. If you do so you will run into new guardians who may want to hear a password for a Sephira which you have not entered on this Pathworking. As you can see, it is easiest just to descend the way you came. Unless you have a deep, memorized knowledge of the Correspondences on the Tree of Life, I suggest you leave searching around for later Pathworking experiments.

When you make your way back into your temple, re-join your physical body.

STEP EIGHT: Banishings

Give the "License to Depart" by saying the following, or something which contains all of its ideas:

> Because you have been obedient and obeyed the commandments of the Creator, feel and inhale this grateful odor, and afterwards depart ye unto your abodes and retreats. Be there peace between thee and me. Be ye ever ready to come when ye shall be cited and called. And may the blessings of God be upon ye. And now, let any and all spirits called by this rite return to their abodes and habitations, and harm none on thy way. Be ye all obedient and prompt to come unto me without undue difficulty on my part when thou art called upon according to the traditions given by the Divine to us. Amen.

Of course, the "grateful odor" is the incense which you have been burning. Thus, if you are alone, you would add some more incense to the burner at this time. As you probably realize, non-physical entities do not have noses and cannot "smell" incense. But by tradition Spiritual Entities do seem to enjoy the Astral Double of the incense.

Clap your hands together loudly three times. This helps bring you "down to Earth" quite literally. Finish by doing the Closing by Watchtower.

The rite is finished.

If at any time you feel uncomfortable or "watched" or anything else which gives you an unpleasant feeling while performing this ritual, work your way down the Tree immediately and re-join your physical body. Then, take the cover off the pentacle and, starting in the East, show it all around the circle while you move in a clockwise direction. Follow this by doing the usual closing. Then open all of the windows and air out the room. This will protect you from any unknown problems which might arise during this ritual. If you follow the instructions given, you have all of the help you need right at your fingertips.

This ritual also points the directions which you must study for the future. To successfully perform this ritual do you need to work on Gematria? On Correspondences? On familiarity with the Tree of Life? On the Tarot? On Astral Projection? There are virtually months or even years worth of study and development ahead. By coming back to this lesson you will always know exactly what you need to study. You will always have a focus for future development.

Remember, the beginning of wisdom is the knowing of what you are ignorant. With this ritual as a guide you will always know exactly what you need to study, exactly what you need to learn. And that will continue until you reach your ultimate goal, until you are no longer just a student of the magickal arts, but are indeed a true, successful and accomplished magician.

PART FIVE

There are two more considerations which need to be met concerning the previous ritual. One of these is how to perform the ritual as a ceremony; a group working. The other is how to find your personal temple's guardian.

If you have reached a state where Astral Projection is either possible or even easy, you already have a guardian. Before I explain this I have to give a bit of background information.

You may have read of organizations which claim to speed your psychic development or of exercises which can do this. No matter how many exercises you perform or organizations you join, you will not be able to project under the control of your Will until you are ready to do so. A necessity for this is becoming totally aware of the physical plane. That is a reason why early in these lessons you were given exercises to develop your control of the elements, for the magickal elements are the very basis of the physical plane. Once you are aware of the ins and outs of the physical plane, you become ready to explore other areas and projection become simple. Also, things start to "flow" more positively for you. This is in part due to your harmony and "friendship" with the archangel of the physical plane, Sandalphon.

As one function, Sandalphon oversees the "temples" of all Astral Travelers. Note that I put the word "temples" in quotation marks. This is because not everyone who projects has a clearly established temple. For most people who project, the temple is nothing more than the place from which they start. And most people have no map of the Astral Plane such as you have with the Tree of Life. Have you ever been lost in a big city with no map and no friends? It is no wonder that some of these people return from their Astral Wanderings with absurd tales of terror. What they see is nothing more than their own fears brought to Astral life.

For those people who are aware of the nature of the universe, such as I hope you are learning to be, Astral travel becomes a fun and liberating experience. Guarding your temple and your physical body so that neither will come to harm on the physical plane is Sandalphon. The Astral duplicate of your temple is protected by your banishing rituals.

Sandalphon is an Archangel, and frequently does not do things "in person." Rather, Sandalphon can send one or more members of the Order of Angels under "his" command (actually, angelic beings are usually androgynous). Thus, rather than Sandalphon, your guardian may be one of the Asheem, the Angelic Order whose name means "Souls of Fire." The next question is, "How do you find out this angel's name?" The answer: just ask!

When you project, you will see your guardian angel. Ask this being by what name it wishes to be called. Ask for the best way by which it can be called. Ask for any special rituals which can help in this. Sometimes, call your guardian just to "say hello" and give gifts of energy (see previous ritual) or incense. Build a bond and your guardian angel will never let you down. Don't forget to thank Sandalphon for sending or assigning you this particular angel.

Changing the Ritual of the Paths to the Ceremony of the Paths is quite easy, but there is an important warning. Once again, it does not come from me, but from Dion Fortune: "There is no room for authority in occultism." Merely because someone said something doesn't make it so. The best way to learn Pathworking is by doing it. I know of at least two "teachers" who advise not to try Pathworking unless you are under their supervision, and then all they do is lead you through some guided imagery. Teachers such as myself and others can start you in this work, but you must do the work yourself. Nobody can do it for you.

So, is a group working possible? Yes, but it may not be the same as what you have read or heard. The beginning is done much the same as any other ceremony, with the parts divided as has been suggested in past lessons. When this is finished, all must sit in a circle holding hands. This holding of hands is very important as it links you together both physically and psychically. You must have decided beforehand to which Sephira you will all be going and by which paths. Everyone must go by the same directions.

If a member has trouble projecting, the physical and spiritual link within the circle will help that person. Also, if one person is slower than the others, he or she will automatically be pulled ahead to keep up with the group. If one or more persons would exceed the speed of the group on their way up the Tree, they will be slowed down by being part of that group. This happens automatically. The path for each person will seem shorter or longer depending upon their natural speed in the Astral Plane and the average speed of the group.

Once the journey is complete and everyone is back in their respective bodies within the physical temple, a leader should ask each person what he or she experienced. This may be done orally or each person can write the experience down and the journals can be compared.

Listen and look for similarities. Differences should not be thought of in terms of being wrong. They are simply items which an observer experienced due to his or her personal psychological makeup. Information which is identical among several people should be considered important. Information which is similar between people should also be thought of as significant. The inconsistencies are simply personal variations on a basic reality.

If this is a first time for a group working together, it may be beneficial to have one or more persons as observers within the circle. He or she can watch out for any unknown problems, and, if need be, summon everyone back by calling in a loud voice:

I summon all back from the Tree to their home in this magickal temple. Come home now!

If you have a group leader, he or she should hold the Rainbow Wand if there is only one such Wand in the group. If everyone has such a Wand, each should be held between the clasped hands of the people in the circle. The fingers should primarily be on the band of color associated with the Sephira to which they are going.

If you have a member of the group who is functioning as an observer, he or she should keep the candles lit and the incense burning. When energy is to be sent to a Higher Spiritual Entity, it can be the duty of this person or persons to raise and direct the energy. Thus, they may dance or run to raise the energy and then direct it up through the top of the Rainbow Wand while holding the appropriately colored band of the Wand. If sex is to be used as a means of raising energy, the sex magick may be performed by one or more couples who are not going on the Pathworking rather than having to break the circle. Direction of the energy is again controlled by holding the Rainbow Wand as above.

Although I personally have not participated in such a ceremony, I have it from a reliable source that if you have a group of people, only one person may choose to do the Pathworking while the rest supply the raised and directed energy. This, it is claimed, can be very powerful magickally.

The point I am trying to make with this discussion of group workings is that within certain limitations (the schematic or order of the ritual), nothing is necessarily dictated or set. Feel free to experiment and see what works the best for you and your group.

You may have noticed that as this course has progressed, instructions for rituals have become skimpier and more schematic in nature. I have tried to give you the forms and the background information so that you can fill in the details and make up your own rituals and ceremonies based on, and in harmony with, traditional Western Ceremonial Magick. At the same time, I have attempted to show you how to be original and thoughtful.

I have tried to give you the basics of Western Ceremonial Magick so that you can think, act and be a magician. If I have done this and move you along the path of the Great Work, then I have succeeded.

REVIEW

The following questions are designed to help you determine if you have mastered the information in Lesson Eleven. Please try to answer them without looking at the text. The answers are in Appendix Two.

1. Where can the highest magickal secrets be obtained?
2. To a real magician, what is the true difference between White, Black or Grey Magick?
3. What is a simple way to decide if a certain ritual, style of magick or magickal group is right for you?
4. What are Pseudo-Ghosts?
5. What is "Astral Whiplash?"
6. What common mystical symbol is also a map of the psychic planes?

The following questions only you can answer.

1. Now that you have completed this course, will you continue the practices and really be a magician?
2. What did you think of this course?
3. Will you do the study necessary to be a Pathworker?
4. Was anything in this course unclear to you?
5. Would you want to start a study group with friends using this book as the text?
6. Do you know someone who would make a good seer for evocations?

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Baker, Douglas. Practical Techniques of Astral Projection, Weiser, 1977.

Conway, David, Ritual Magic, An Occult Primer, Dutton, 1972.

Crowley, Aleister, 777 and other Qabalistic Writings of Aleister Crowley, Weiser, 1977.

Denning, Melita and Phillips, Osborne, Llewellyn Practical Guide to Astral Projection, The, Llewellyn, 1979.

Magical States of Consciousness, Llewellyn, 1985.

Godwin, David, Godwin's Cabalistic Encyclopedia, Llewellyn, 1979 (out of print).

King, Francis (ed.), Astral Projection, Magic and Alchemy, Weiser, 1971.

Mathers, S.L.M. (trans.), Greater Key of Solomon, The, De Laurence, Scott & Co., 1914.

Moser, R.E., Mental and Astral Projection, Esoteric Publications, 1974.

Ophiel, Art and Practice of Astral Projection, The, Weiser, 1961.

Regardie, Israel, Golden Dawn, The, Llewellyn, 1986.

Weed, Joseph, Wisdom of the Mystic Masters, Reward Books, 1973.

White, Nelson and Anne, Index and Reference Volume to the Lemegeton of Solomon, The Technology Group, 1980.

White, Nelson and Anne (eds.), Lemegeton: Clavicula Salomonis: Or The Complete Lesser Key of Solomon the King, The Technology Group, 1979.

Wilby, Basil (ed.), New Dimensions Red Book, Helios, 1968.

Appendix

1

The following is a ritual which you may wish to attempt. Its end result would be increasing your magickal abilities and talents many times over.

STEP ONE. Make a sigil representing Magickal Power.

STEP TWO. Perform the Opening by Watchtower.

STEP THREE. Sit down and work on visualizing a calendar in front of you. See the pages turn so that you go back in time, back into the past.

STEP FOUR. When you go back a minimum of ten years or half your age, see the pages stop turning. Now visualize yourself, as you looked at that date. Take time to make the visualization as complete as possible.

STEP FIVE. Now concentrate on the image of the sigil which you created. When it is as strong as it possibly can be, visualize it going onto the forehead of your imaged younger self. See it virtually "tattoed" on the younger you's forehead.

STEP SIX. Immediately cease this visualization and return to the calendar. Now see the pages moving the other way so that you move forward to the present day.

STEP SEVEN. End with the Closing by Watchtower.

This ritual will have the effect of causing a sudden and notable increase in your magickal abilities. By altering the design of the sigil you may affect exactly how this ritual increases your magickal abilities. Although this ritual will not change your level of magickal knowledge, it will make you more receptive to magickal information. It will increase your ability to memorize and your understanding of that material.

Appendix

2

Here are the answers to the self-tests at the end of each lesson. Please try to answer the questions before you look up the answers here.

Lesson One:

1. The four things that can occur when you dream are astral work, psychological messages, play, and a combination of the three.
2. Your personal, secret, magickal text is your ritual diary.
3. You should read other books on subjects such as the Kabalah or Magick in order to get different views of the material and in order to get a more in-depth study of a particular subject.
4. Arthur C. Clarke believes that any sufficiently advanced technology will appear to be magick to those with lesser technologies.
5. White Magick is the science and art of causing change to occur in conformity with will, using means not currently understood by traditional Western science, for the purpose of obtaining the Knowledge and Conversation of your Holy Guardian Angel. Black Magick is the science and art of causing change to occur in conformity with will, using means not currently understood by traditional Western science, for the purpose of causing either physical or non-physical harm to yourself or others, and is done either consciously or unconsciously.

Grey Magick is the science and art of causing change to occur in conformity with will, using means not currently understood by traditional Western science, for the purpose of causing either physical or nonphysical good to yourself or others, and is done either consciously or unconsciously.

6. You can avoid accidentally doing Black Magick by doing a divination before doing any Grey Magick.

7. The first historical mention of the Tarot was in 1332.

8. Fortune-telling says that something must happen. Divination indicates what will probably happen if you continue on the path you are currently traversing.

9. Three reasons for doing the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram are to know yourself, to expand your aura, and to remove from your immediate area any unwanted influences.

Lesson Two:

1. The four parts of the LBRP are The Kabalistic Cross, The Formulation of the Pentagrams, The Evocation of the Archangels, and the repetition of The Kabalistic Cross.

2. AGLA is an abbreviation for Ah-tah Gee-boor Lih-oh-lahm Ah-doh-nye which means Thou art great forever, my Lord.

3. The Archangel of the North is Ohr-ree-el.

4. The "Great Voice" means speaking silently.

5. The sign of water is made by forming a downward pointing triangle with the hands, which are held in front of the stomach.

6. The three "literatures" of the ancient Hebrews were the Torah, the Talmud and the Kabalah.

7. Eliezer ben Yehudah made Hebrew into a modern language.

8. Vahv was probably originally pronounced like the English "W."

9. The earliest form of Hebrew mysticism was known as Heh-cha-lot or Merkabah mysticism.

10. Eliphas Levi (born Alphonse Louis Constant) began the French Occult Revival. By the way, his full pen name was Eliphas Levi Zaed.

11. The four main branches of the Kabalah are the Dogmatic Kabalah, the Practical Kabalah, the Literal Kabalah and the Unwritten Kabalah.

12. "Ain Soph" is Hebrew for "without limit."

13. Little Nasties are entities from a higher plane which become visible as your magickal work allows your astral vision to open. They cannot harm you, but they may surprise you.

Lesson Three:

1. The element Earth is dry and cool.

2. The Three Pillars are the Pillar of Severity, the Pillar of Mercy, and the Pillar of Mildness.

3. The three Triangles are the Celestial Triangle, the Moral Triangle, and the Mundane Triangle.

4. The Four Worlds are Ha-oh-lahm Atziloot, Ha-oh-lah B'ri-ya, Ha-oh-lahm Yetzirah, and Ha-oh-lahm Ahssiah. These are, respectively, the World of Emanations, Creation, Formation, and Action.

5. The goal of true meditation is to silence the inner voice and link with the Divine: White Magick.

6. The three steps of true meditation are relaxation, contemplation and negation.

7. You will never become a real magician if all you can do is blindly follow obsolete patterns. Tradition should only be your guide.

8. According to the Kabalah, the heavenly order is the unknowable divinity, the 10 aspects of divinity, the archangels, and lastly the Orders of angels.

9. It is never permissible to heal a person who has not given you permission to do so.

10. It is not necessary that you have any weird experiences or unusual sensations as a result of the practice of the rituals in this course. If the rituals are done properly, the desired results must inevitably occur.

11. A concave Pentacle will return all energy from any source back toward the direction from which it came.

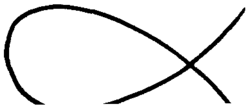
12. Three benefits of joining a magickal group are camaraderie, the ability to specialize, and increased levels of magickal power.

13. I.O.B. means identify, objectify and banish. It is a powerful method of ridding yourself of unwanted habits or problems.

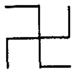
Lesson Four:

1. Elemental Air is warm and moist.

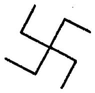
2. Probably the first Christian symbol was the fish drawn with one line:



3. A true, mystical swastika looks like a square with horizontal and vertical lines, and it appears to turn in a clockwise direction:



The Nazi swastika is on a point and appears to rotate in a counterclockwise direction.



4. The Archangel of Air is Raphael.

5. It is difficult to remember past lives because the memory is mortal and lost at physical death.

6. The techniques necessary to do the LBRP effectively are the basis for all magickal techniques.

7. The BRH clears unwanted positive influences from your area.

8. The order for doing at-home rituals is: The Relaxation Ritual, LBRP, BRH, Middle Pillar, Circulation of the Body of Light, Tarot Contemplation Ritual (Advanced Version), and the completion of the Ritual Diary.

9. The three things you need to do to succeed at Ritual Magick are practice, practice and practice.

10. The Three Necessities of Grey Magick are Positive Attitude, Knowledge, and Knowing How to Generate and Control Magickal Energy.

Lesson Five:

1. The element of Water has the qualities of being cool and moist.

2. Five reasons to do the Rose Cross Ritual are: it is an excellent banishing ritual, it gives you a type of invisibility, it is a good preparation for meditation, you can use it to aid others who are hurting physically or spiritually, and it will help protect you from negative psychic "vibrations."

3. The Rose Cross Ritual should never be used to replace the LBRP.

4. Ruach El-oh-heem is represented by the Hebrew letter Shin (pronounced "sheen").

5. Past life experiences may be real past lives, fantasies to glamorize a currently bland lifetime, or messages from your subconscious to your conscious which your conscious does not want to hear. (Note:

some people think past lives may also be a tapping into a sort of universal or race memory, what the psychologist Jung called the Collective Unconscious. That is why many people may have "memories" of being the same historical character. This loosely fits in the last category, since it is the conscious tapping into a level of the subconscious.)

6. The Hebrew word for Karma is Tee-koon.

7. Sitting shivah is the Jewish practice of staying in the home for a week after the death of a member of the household. It is based on the Kabalistic idea that a soul will move from the grave to the home for a week before it realizes that it has died. This is especially the case in situations of sudden death.

8. Before anything exists on the physical plane it must first exist on the astral plane.

9. The eight traditional Chinese signs of health are vitality, appetite, deep and sound sleep, good memory, humor, infinite giving, clear thinking and precise action, and realization of Oneness. These names are a simplification and you are urged to study this section of the chapter to understand the eight signs in their fullness.

Lesson Six:

1. Fire has the qualities of being warm and dry.

2. The Archangel of Fire is Michael.

3. The 23rd path on the Tree of Life equates with the Hebrew letter Mehm, which has a numerical value of 40. On this path is the Tarot card The Hanged Man, which is the 12th card. Therefore, 23=40=12. Note that if you do not include the 10 Sephiroht when counting the paths, you would get the number 13, making the equation 23=40=12=13.

4. A tripod was traditionally used to support an incense burner.

5. "The Secret Force" is the same as Kundalini, Ruach or Chi.

6. AOZPI is pronounced ah-oh-zohd-pee.

7. The Rainbow Wand has 14 colors, including the white and black.

8. The secret holy names of God borne upon the Banner of the South are OIP TEAA PEDOCE (pronounced Oh-ee-pay Tay-ah-ah Peh-do-kay).

Lesson Seven:

1. The subconscious is our direct link to the Astral Plane.

2. Not only does the Kabalistic System of Mental Magick include the best from Positive Affirmations and Creative Visualization, it also energizes the technique by using the emotions.

3. Witches do not worship Satan in any way. They do not even acknowledge that Satan exists.

4. The first edition of The Discoverie of Witchcraft was burned by the public hangman because it denied superstitious ideas concerning Witchcraft.

5. The Witch Cult in Western Europe sparked a revival of interest in the Craft of the Witches.

6. Witchcraft Today was the first book about Witchcraft by a self-avowed Witch.

7. A talisman is any object, sacred or profane, with or without appropriate symbols, which has been charged or consecrated by appropriate means, and made to serve a specific end.

8. Always do a divination before performing Grey Magick.

9. Sky-clad means wearing only the sky: nude. Many, but not all, Witches prefer to do rituals and magick sky-clad.

10. You can charge as many talismans with the same purpose at the same time as you desire. As a general rule, you should not charge talismans having different purposes at the same time. However, as you become a better and better magician, you may well be able to do this. I suggest that you wait until you have charged many talismans at separate rituals before trying to charge different talismans at the same ritual.

11. A house Guardian is a powerful protective amulet, usually in the form of a statue or objet d'art.

12. Theosophical Reduction is the process of adding the digits of a number together until you get a single digit. For example, 195 becomes 15 which becomes 6. This can be used as a technique for coming up with symbols.

Lesson Eight:

1. Jupiter is associated with Thursday.

2. The Planetary Hours are 60 minutes long on the Equinoxes.

3. Before it is activated by the forces of higher planes and guided by our Will, a talisman is nothing but a piece of inert, lifeless material.

4. The expression "baptize," when used concerning the Peas and Sieve incident involving Mathers, may have meant "initiate."

Lesson Nine:

1. According to Dion Fortune, entities are evoked to the astral only, and can only actually be seen by a clairvoyant, though a sensitive person can feel the presence of the evoked entity.

2. There is a Tantrik belief that semen loses its magickal potency within fifteen minutes after ejaculation.

3. Invocation is the magickal act wherein you allow your body to be shared temporarily by another entity. Evocation is the magickal act where an entity is communicated with, but stays outside of your body.

4. Evocations are difficult to do by yourself.

5. The "Demon CO" is a name for carbon monoxide. Too much burning incense in a closed room can result in too much of CO and not enough oxygen. Needless to say, a lack of oxygen can be highly dangerous!

6. The first question asked of the seer in an evocation is, "What do you see in the mirror?"

7. The second question asked in an evocation is directed toward the entity. It is "What is thy name?"

8. The Spirit AMON looks like a wolf with the tail of a serpent and breath of fire. At the command of the magician AMON will change to look like a man with a raven's head, sometimes having fangs.

9. There is no ultimate authority in Magick except experience. Don't take anybody's word for anything in Magick. Experiment yourself. Question authority.

10. In the Yetziratic Sealing Rite six directions are sealed.

11. The spirits of Earth are Gnomes, of Air are Sylphs, of Water are Undines, and of Fire are Salamanders. They are unique because normally on the physical plane everything is a combination of elements, but the elemental spirits are totally composed of only one element.

12. The seven steps in a magickal invocation are banishing and purifications, calling the entity and "loosing" the control of consciousness, allowing the entity to "take over" for a time, identification of the entity, comments by the entity and questioning the entity, release of the entity and return to normal consciousness, and the final banishings.

Lesson Ten:

1. There is no proof that any level of intelligence can protect you from brainwashing.

2. Three major divisions of sex magick are thought control, inner alchemy and outer alchemy.

3. The thought held at the instant of orgasm comes to pass.

4. Reich discovered that there can be a thought-free experience at the moment of orgasm. This is identical to true meditation.

5. Masters and Johnson say that the average duration of intercourse before the man ejaculates is about 2½ minutes.

6. Three things involved in any divinatory technique are the turning off of the outside and turning on of the inside, altering the state of consciousness, and increasing the blood flow to the brain.

7. Many people believe that books on alchemy are codes for sex magick.

8. The Menstruum, or Menstruum of the Gluten, is either the female lubricating fluids, her ejaculatory fluids, or both, depending upon the sex magician you talk with.

9. Very few people, if any, ever achieve enlightenment by reading and studying books on Kundalini Yoga. These books are usually written by non-initiates who have never done any practice themselves.

10. Working with the breath and mantras are substitutes for sexual activity.

11. The ritual of the KalaKakra is dangerous because some people and/or relationships are not able to handle the freedom of the KalaKakra.

Lesson Eleven:

1. The highest magickal secrets can be obtained from entities on higher planes.

2. To a real magician there is only magick—the notion of White, Grey or Black magick is simply a way of communicating with those who are not magicians. A true magician would not do what is thought of as Black Magick because of the karmic result. Nobody shoots himself or herself in the foot on purpose, unless they have mental problems.

3. The simple way to determine if it is right for you to do a certain ritual, a certain style of magick, or join a particular magick group is by listening to your feelings. If it doesn't feel right, don't do it!

4. A Pseudo-Ghost is more like a "Little Nasty" than a true ghost. Pseudo-Ghosts "feed" off energy given to them and they will imitate the actions of ghosts in order to get people to pay attention to them and give them energy.

5. "Astral Whiplash" is the name of what happens when your astral body, while traveling on the astral plane, is suddenly jerked back to the physical body by a disturbance in the area of the physical body. It can easily be fixed by astral projecting to the place you were when you were disturbed and slowly returning to the physical body in a normal fashion.

6. The Kabalistic Tree of Life is a map of the psychic planes.

SELF-INITIATION into the
GOLDEN DAWN TRADITION

A Complete Curriculum of Study for Both the Solitary
Magician and the Working
Magical
Group

CHIC CICERO
SANDRA TABATHA CICERO

Llewellyn's Golden Dawn Series

SELF-INITIATION
into the Golden Dawn Tradition

A Complete Curriculum of Study for Both the Solitary Magician and the Working Magical Group

Chic Cicero
Sandra Tabatha Cicero

1998
Llewellyn Publications
St. Paul, Minnesota 55164-0383, U.S.A.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION xiii

CHAPTER ONE: THE NEOPHYTE GRADE 1

The Godforms of the Visible Stations. Primary Officers of the Outer Grades. The Initiation Ceremony. The First Knowledge Lecture. Section 1: The Elements. Section 2: The Zodiac. The Triplicities. The Quadruplicities. The Signs. Section 3: The Seven Ancient Planets. The New Planets. Section 4: The Qabalah. Section 5: The Sephiroth. Section 6: The Hebrew Alphabet. An Aditional Side Lecture—The Pillars. Ritual Work for the Neophyte. The Outer Wand of Double Power. The Qabalistic Cross. The Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram. Uses of the Pentagram Ritual. The Adoration to the Lord of the Universe. Meditation for the 0 = 0 Grade of Neophyte. Daily Adorations. The Berakah. The Rite of Elemental Equilibration. Body Awareness Exercise. Extra Sensory Awareness Exercise. Suggested Reading. Examinations.

CHAPTER TWO: THE ZELATOR GRADE 97

Godforms of the Outer Order Grades. Archangelic Forms of the Zelator Grade. The Initiation Ceremony. The Second Knowledge Lecture. Section 1: Basic Astrology. The Houses. The Meridians. Section 2: Basic Alchemy. Alchemical Terms and Symbols. Section 3: The Elementals. Section 4: Tetragrammaton and the Kerubim. Section 5: Qabalah. The Hebrew Letters. The Four Worlds and the Ten Heavens. The Divine Names Attributed to the Sephiroth. The Zodiacal Hierarchies. Section 6: Correspondences of Earth. Precious Stones and Minerals. Earth Deities. Section 7: Divination and Geomancy. Section 8: Correspondences of Malkuth. Section 9: Ritual Images and Diagrams. An Additional Side Lecture—The Tribes of Israel and the Zodiacal Signs. Ritual Work for the Zelator. Meditation for the 1 = 10 Grade of Zelator. Relaxation Exercise. A Meditation on the Four Qabalistic Worlds. An Invocation of the Element of Earth. Suggested Reading. Some Final Suggestions. Examinations.

CHAPTER THREE: THE THEORICUS GRADE 223

The Kerubic Forms of the Theoricus Grade. The Initiation Ceremony. The Third Knowledge Lecture. Section 1: Basic Astrology. The Aspects. Erecting a Natal Chart. Interpreting a

Horoscope. Aspecting. Section 2: Basic Alchemy—Alchemical Operations. Section 3: Spiritual Entities. Section 4: Qabalah—The Parts of the Soul. Section 5: Correspondences of Yesod. Section 6: Correspondences of Air. Perfumes and Incenses. Beings and Deities of Air and Sky. Section 7: Correspondences of Luna. Lunar Deities. Complementary Planet—Saturn. Section 8: Plants and Herbs. Plant and Nature Spirits. Section 9: Admission Badges and Diagrams. Additional Side Lecture—The Moon and the Tree of Life. Ritual Work for the Theoricus. Meditation for the 2 = 9 Grade of Theoricus. Rhythmic Breathing. The Purifying Breath. Mind Awareness. Speech Awareness. A Simple Card Divination Exercise. A Meditation on the Parts of the Soul. The 32nd Path of Tau. A Journey on the 32nd Path of Tau. An Invocation of the Element of Air. Suggested Reading. Some Final Suggestions. Examinations.

CHAPTER FOUR: THE PRACTICUS GRADE 325

The Samothracian Mysteries. Godforms of the Kabiri. The Chaldean Oracles. The Initiation Ceremony. The Fourth Knowledge Lecture. Section 1: Admission Badges and Diagrams. Section 2: Lineal Figures and Magical Squares. Polygons and Polygrams. Magic Squares. Section 3: Literal Qabalah. Gematria. Aiq Beker. Notariqon. Temurah. Section 4: Correspondences of Hod. Section 5: Correspondences of Water. Beings and Deities of Water. Section 6: Correspondences of Mercury. Mercurial Deities. Complementary Planet—Jupiter. Section 7: The Olympic Planetary Spirits. Section 8: The Tarot—An Introduction. Qabalistic Associations of the Tarot. The Twenty-two Trumps. A Description of the Tarot Trumps. Notes on the Tarot. The Minor Arcana. The Court Cards. Additional Side Lecture—On the General Purification of the Soul. Ritual Work for the Practicus. Meditation for the 3 = 8 Grade of Practicus. Concentration and Mantra. Psychic Development. The 31st Path of Shin. A Journey on the 31st Path of Shin. The 30th Path of Resh. A Journey on the 30th Path of Resh. An Invocation of the Element of Water. Suggested Reading. Some Final Suggestions. Examinations.

CHAPTER FIVE: THE PHILOSOPHUS GRADE 471

The Biblical Passages. The Godforms. The Initiation Ceremony. The Fifth Knowledge Lecture. Section 1: Qabalah—The "Body" of the Divine. Qabalistic Correspondences. Section 2: The Shem Ha-Mephoresh. Section 3: Correspondences of Netzach. Section 4: Correspondences of Fire. Beings and Deities of Fire. Section 5: Correspondences of Venus. Venusian Deities. Complementary Planet—Mars. Section 6: Qabalah—The Qlippoth on the Tree of Life. Section 7: Alchemy. The Tools of Practical Alchemy. Alchemical Principles on the Tree. The Astrological and Alchemical Symbols of the Planets. Section 8: Admission Badges and Diagrams. Section 9: The Greek Alphabet. Section 10: Tarot Divination. The Celtic Cross Spread. The Ten Card Spread. The Fifteen Card Spread. Additional Reading—The Tattwas of the Eastern School. Ritual Work for the Philosophus. Meditation for the 4 = 7 Grade of Philosophus. Devotion. Sacred Ground. The 29th Path of Qoph. A Journey on the 29th Path of Qoph. The 28th Path of Tzaddi. A Journey on the 28th Path of Tzaddi. The 27th Path of Peh. A Journey on the 27th Path of Peh. An Invocation of the Element of Fire. Suggested Reading. Some Final Suggestions. Examinations.

CHAPTER SIX: THE PORTAL 603

The Godforms of the Portal Grade. The Initiation Ceremony. The Sixth Knowledge Lecture. Section 1: On the Work to be Undertaken in the Portal. The Thesis. The Crosses. A Drawing of the Tree of Life. Control of the Aura. The Tree of Life in the Aura. The Exercise of the Middle Pillar. Tattwas and Triangles. Astrology. Divination. Self-Exploration. Regression Exercise. Section 2: Correspondesnces of Spirit. Section 3: Wands, Lamens and Admission Badges. Section 4: Ritual Diagrams. Ritual Work for the Portal Grade. Meditation for the Portal Grade. Development of the Will. The Practice of the Divine Essence. A Guided Visualization for the Portal Grade. Additional Work for the Portal Grade. Suggested Reading. Work for the Advanced Magician. The Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram. The Opening by Watchtower. The Ritual of the Rose Cross. Invoke Often.

AFTERWORD by Mitch Henson 701

APPENDIX 1: Examination Answers 705

APPENDIX 2: Tziruph Tables 735

BIBLIOGRAPHY 739

Introduction

Initiation means "to begin" or embark upon something new. It is the beginning of a new phase or outlook on life; the passage into a distinctly new type of existence. The characteristics of this event are marked by an expansion of the mind to include an awareness of higher levels of consciousness. Initiation represents spiritual growth; the commencement of a new life committed to an entirely new set of principles from those of mundane society. Initiation is the precursor of immortality. Humankind has the potential for immortality, but only obtains it when men and women align themselves with that immortal spiritual essence that underlies all aspects of the manifest universe; that same spiritual essence which is too often ignored by the great majority of humanity. Obtaining that rare and splendid essence is the supreme objective of that part of the Western Esoteric Tradition known as magic. The goal of all magical processes is the purification of the natural human being—that is, the extraction of the pure gold of spiritual Selfhood from the husk of the outer personality.

Magic is a spiritual science. It is a specialized system of discipline which has a spiritual rather than material goal. This is a personal science that is based upon the fundamental knowledge of the true human being which lies beneath the illusion of the outer, secular human. Ceremonial magic incorporates a process of memorization and ritual which results in the direct stimulation of the Will and the exaltation of the Imagination. The final objective of all this is the purification of the lower personality and the realization of an elevated state of consciousness, wherein the magician's ego enters into a union with his/her own Higher Self and ultimately with the Divine. Every action, idea and utterance in any ceremony is designed to bring about this final conclusion. Each and every detail of the ritual itself, including banishings, circumambulations, evocations and invocations, serves to remind the operator of this single goal. "For the assault on the Holy City, every sense and every faculty is deliberately mobilized, and the whole individual soul of the operator must enter into the act."[1] Every impression, by means of a Hermetic and Qabalistic system of associated ideas, is made the beginning of a sequence of related thoughts which culminate in the ultimate aim of the ceremony. When emblem after emblem has infiltrated the mind of the magician, and the ritual act has stimulated his/her emotions to a fever pitch, then the absolute moment of spiritual ecstasy is attained. A clear and open channel is created between the mind and the soul, concluding in an increased concentration of magical abilities and the exaltation of the true and divine nature of the magician.

---

[1] Israel Regardie, The Tree of Life, pg. 107.

To accomplish these lofty goals in the tradition of the Golden Dawn, memorization of certain materials known collectively as "Knowledge Lectures" is very important. The Hermetic Art is a true science and would-be magicians must commit the rudimentary knowledge of the system to memory, just as if s/he were a student entering a school of medicine or engineering. Physicians and engineers require years of training to achieve their career goals. This training naturally includes much memorization of materials that are important to the specific trade. Training and study are no less imperative for the magician who seeks to journey between the astral realms and explore the inner workings of the human mind. Magic is real. It is not something that should be toyed with by "dabblers" who know next to nothing about the subject, but assume that it would be fun to "make something happen." Surgeons who practice medicine without a license often end up in jail. Superficial occultists who occasionally manage to open psychic doors without knowing what to do next sometimes end up in mental hospitals.

This is what makes the Golden Dawn's curriculum of study so important to any student of the Western Magical Tradition. Memorization of a large amount of information is required. This material is fundamental to building a solid foundation of knowledge that will steadily become second-nature to the magician, enabling him/her to perceive more clearly the astral influences that permeate the physical world—influences which the average person cannot perceive. The conscious commitment to learn the symbolic (magical) alphabet of the unconscious mind results in the cultivation of psychic reflexes which aid the magician and make all ceremonial work flow more smoothly. But more importantly than this, the memorization of magical data changes the very structure of the psyche, which is gradually infiltrated by holy symbols that speak on a subconscious level to the Divine Being in each of us. The mind of the magician is steadily purified by this process as an increasing percentage of mundane thoughts are supplanted or transformed by spiritual thoughts.

Initiation is the preliminary step in the realm of magic. A true initiation is the inner and hidden essence which pushes the student to seek the Path of Knowledge with a tenacity that cannot be denied. This initial step is the enfolding of the Divine Light; the gentle nurturing of the spark of consciousness within the Inner Self. Attaining this point of growth requires peace of mind, awareness of one's subconscious impulses, persistent hard work and a certain degree of self-sacrifice. When the secret recesses of the Inner Self have been reached, communication with the universal Power is then possible. And by the single act of one student tapping into this Divine Power, the whole of humanity is enriched.

The word "mystery" plays an important role in the drama of initiation. It is derived from the Greek word mysteria, meaning "that which is reserved for initiates only." Several magical groups and secret societies have a tradition of tracing their ancestral roots back to the mystery cults and religions that flourished in the ancient world. Many people were drawn to these mystery religions because of the sense of spiritual vitality and rapture they provided through elaborate induction ceremonies. To be an initiate means that one is accepted into an inner circle whose teachings and rituals are meaningful only to other members of the group who share this common experience. It confers a sense of status and belonging, and of having been uplifted through the disclosure of divinely inspired wisdom. The candidate seeking admittance must first prove him/her self worthy of inclusion into the group or magical tradition. The ritual of initiation is meant to purify and prepare the candidate to receive the secrets and teachings of that tradition or current. A new initiate does not receive the total volume of knowledge immediately, but in gradual stages. This process of spiritual evolution begins at the bottom of a hierarchical ladder, each step of which is accompanied by an additional initiation ceremony and further study.

Initiation is also a wonderfully fulfilling experience. A candidate entering the temple for the first time is in a heightened state of awareness; adrenaline is pumping through the body, the senses are amplified—the whole being of the candidate is poised and ready to receive an influx of energy. All of this is brought about by the conscious decision to be initiated. We have seen some candidates moved to tears or fainting with joy from the energy of an initiation ceremony. This is the power of the decision to begin a spiritual Path.[2]

"Long hast thou dwelt in Darkness, Quit the Night and Seek the Day." This one sentence from the Neophyte Ritual of the Golden Dawn encompasses the primary goal and aspiration of the student of the Mysteries; to exchange the mundane for the Divine. That goal is based upon a journey of self-discovery and spiritual attainment. It is not just the awareness of the Divine, but also the bringing forth of divinity into daily life. The very name of the Order—The Golden Dawn—alludes to the shining brilliance of the Eternal and Divine Light, breaking through the confines of Darkness to herald the birth of a new day in the evolution of humankind. The aim of all the rituals and practical magical work of the Golden Dawn is to create a spiritual bond between the magician and the Immortal Self.

The purposes for which the G.·.D.·. was formed were twofold; first, through study, teaching, and organization, to serve as guardian of the Western Esoteric Tradition, and second, to initiate, educate, and nurture those individuals called to carry on the Great Work (that is, to become more than human, and to achieve union with the Divine). For those individuals who are called to the Western Esoteric Mysteries, the Golden Dawn system presents itself as a vital, consistent, and secure method for spiritual enhancement.

The fundamental practices and techniques of the Golden Dawn's system of psychic development are threefold; the first is initiation (astral and physical), the second is assimilation of Qabalistic and Hermetic knowledge (the basic alphabet of the magical language), and the third is personal ritual work. All three are prerequisites for advancement into the Golden Dawn Tradition. Initiation by itself is pointless without the repeated practice of ritual techniques and individual ceremonial work. Likewise, performance of advanced Golden Dawn rituals, such as the consecration of Elemental weapons without the knowledge of certain fundamentals such as the Hebrew Alphabet, is similar to constructing a building without first pouring a foundation—the project is likely to collapse. All three aspects of the G.·.D.·. system must be undertaken equally in order for the system to work the way that it was intended to work.

---

[2] For one of my initiation ceremonies, I had undertaken a three-day fast and frequent meditations beforehand. During the ritual, the smell of the incense, the symbols, the sounds, the speeches of the officers, and every single aspect of the ceremony was so powerful and overwhelming to me that at a moment of supreme realization and influx of energy, my knees began to fail me and I had to be supported by one of the officers as the ritual continued. It was without a doubt one of the turning points in my life.—STC

There is no need for us to present a history of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn here, since that subject has already been covered at length by various authors. The Magicians of the Golden Dawn by Ellic Howe, The Golden Dawn: Twilight of the Magicians by R. A. Gilbert, Sword of Wisdom by Ithell Colquhoun, and Ritual Magic in England by Francis King should all be consulted for the light that they shed on the history of the G.·.D.·. and its various offshoots. The history of the modern incarnation of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn has been succinctly covered in the Epilogue of our book Secrets of a Golden Dawn Temple. This book will concentrate instead upon the techniques that are essential for the solitary student to be able to initiate him/her self into the Golden Dawn's current of magic from Neophyte through the Portal grade, providing a complete curriculum of study for the Outer Order grades.

Self-initiation into the G.·.D.·. current of magic has been a subject of much speculation and discussion. However very little practical information has been presented upon the subject. Israel Regardie was a vocal champion of the idea that a student could initiate him/her self through the grades of the Golden Dawn. He put forth the opinion that by repeated performance of such rituals as the Opening by Watchtower and the Middle Pillar Exercise, the aspiring magician could effectively be considered an initiate of the G.·.D.·. current. (Note: These rituals are provided in Chapter Six of this book.) However, he also stated that this hinged upon the student's own persistence, hard work and determination. The responsibility for spiritual progress is placed squarely on the shoulders of the student. There is only one person to blame if indolence keeps spiritual growth from occurring.

The need for Self-initiation is born out of the fact that it is not always possible for prospective students to live in an area that is close to an officially recognized initiatory temple. Especially here in the U.S., students have often had to spend a lot of money on transportation to an official temple in order to receive an initiation. Since there is a total of no less than seven initiation ceremonies required to become an Adeptus Minor, it is easy to see how expensive the process of traveling to a temple can become. This has led to various magical groups offering correspondence courses and astral initiation by proxy. However, these too are often highly expensive undertakings which do not address the solitary student's basic need to monitor his/her own psychic growth in a meaningful and spiritually fulfilling manner. (Some groups even bestow instant Adepthood with virtually no Outer Order training whatsoever; for a fee, almost anyone can get a certificate proclaiming one to be an Adeptus Minor [or even an Adeptus Exemptus!]. The spiritual value of grades obtained in such a manner is, of course, highly questionable.)

It was Israel Regardie's wish that students of the Golden Dawn tradition quietly and patiently continue the Order work and goals as instituted by Mathers and Westcott, without a lot of hoopla or fanfare. Regardie was a man of strong convictions who was adamantly opposed to several of the factors which historically tear magical groups of all traditions apart and shift the focus of such groups away from spiritual concerns—including schisms, egotistic pontificating or self-aggrandizement on the part of group leaders, the idea of soliciting money in return for grade initiations, and pointless bickering between this group and that group. And for all that Israel Regardie has done to singlehandedly keep the G.·.D.·. tradition alive and available to all, some people now claim that Regardie had no lineage to the Golden Dawn, in the same manner that some Wiccans have tried to denounce Gerald Gardner after all he had done for Wicca. There are even some individuals, who after supposedly self-initiating themselves into high degrees, now claim that self-initiation is not possible for others—that the prospective student must go to them for a proper initiation. Not all magical groups or fraternities manage to maintain their high spiritual ideals under the onslaught of such integrity-killers as ego or profit-making.

Another problem with correspondence courses is that although they offer genuinely good material, it is often presented in a manner that is unrelated to the original Order teachings. Some groups add Thelema, Eastern esoteric practices, Odinism, or other elements which are totally unconnected to the established teachings of the Golden Dawn. This often results in a hybrid curriculum which no longer resembles that of the Golden Dawn, either in content or in essence.

Although most of the Golden Dawn's curriculum from Neophyte through the sub-grade of Zelator Adeptus Minor has already been published, there is no reason for Neophytes to be instructed to perform Inner Order rituals such as the Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram and the Rose Cross Ritual.[3] This problem originated from the fragmentary presentation of the Outer Order grade work given in Israel Regardie's The Golden Dawn. The Knowledge Lectures presented by Regardie are in reality little more than a student's lecture notes, which were originally supplemented by oral Order teachings. To "flesh out" the Outer Order curriculum as presented in The Golden Dawn, many magical correspondence groups have taken what was traditionally the Inner Order curriculum (study work and rituals) and transferred it to the grades of the First Order. The end result is Neophytes and Zelators being asked by their instructors to perform unnecessary busywork, complex Second Order studies,[4] and advanced work such as the construction of the Elemental weapons,[5] or the painting of several Trees of Life in the various Qabalistic color scales—work which is traditionally undertaken by the Adeptus Minor as part of his/her gradework.[6] By overloading the Outer Order student with Inner Order work, a curious thing often happens—the student is overwhelmed and eventually drops out. Moreover, there is certainly ample Order material to be found which is suitable for the Neophyte and Elemental grades, without having to loot the Inner Order curriculum and deprive the Adeptus Minor of his/her proper gradework.[7] [3] The Hexagram Ritual and the Rose Cross Ritual were traditionally taught in the Second Order, the R.R. et A.C., not in the First Order of the Golden Dawn.

---

[4] Such as Enochian. While I was in the Practicus grade, I once informed Regardie that I was taking up the study of the Enochian Alphabet. Regardie told me in no uncertain terms to "cease and desist." He was adamant in his belief that Outer Order students should leave Enochian alone.—STC

[5] The construction of these tools (Earth Pentacle, Air Dagger, Water Cup and Fire Wand) is part of the gradework of a Neophyte Adeptus Minor. That is why they are referred to as the tools of a Z.A.M.—(Zelator Adeptus Minor). They are never used in the Outer Order. A student who makes these tools during the Elemental grades will often express the desire to remake them in the Adept grade, due to

It is not that we condemn such practices or that we wish to brow-beat students into refraining from work that is "beyond their grade" (a phrase which often reeks of egotism and suggests that the teacher might be trying to conceal his/her own lack of knowledge). The point we are trying to make is that by adopting Second Order study work into the First Order curriculum, the student is no longer following the traditional teachings of the Golden Dawn in the manner in which they were intended to work. The First Order of the Golden Dawn was and is a solid foundation where the student gathers the tools, building materials and information necessary to: (1) receive an influx of Divine Light, (2) establish an alignment upon the Tree of Life and correspondingly imprint the Tree within the psyche, (3) stabilize the unbalanced portions of the psyche through Elemental equilibration, and (4) create the groundwork and solid substructure necessary for further magical work in the Adept grades. Teachings taken from the higher grades and given to Outer Order members often obscure the original goal of the Golden Dawn—that is to carefully and steadily build a firm bedrock of knowledge that will ground the student and insure that s/he will grow to be a psychically balanced and knowledgeable Adept who is then fully capable of safely performing advanced Elemental, Planetary, Zodiacal and Sephirotic workings. Many Neophytes and Zelators are simply not ready to take on Adept-level work in which the Golden Dawn system's built-in psychic safeguards are disregarded or abandoned.

We are not implying that the curriculum of the Golden Dawn has remained stagnant and unchanged for one hundred years, extolling the weary cry of "Tradition! Tradition!" Nothing could be further from the truth. The teachings of the Golden Dawn have evolved, are evolving, and will continue to evolve as modern Adepts add to the Golden Dawn's pool of knowledge. The Golden Dawn Companion by R. A. Gilbert provides good examples of how something as essential as the Neophyte obligation has changed over the years to better serve the needs of added insights gained through initiatory experience. However, some of our temples still suggest that students construct these tools in the Elemental grades. Our advice to students who wish to make these implements in the Outer grades is this: paint all names and sigils on the implement except for the magical motto, which can be added after completion of the Portal grade—when the initiate traditionally changes his/her motto. It would be problematic to have a Second Order Implement with an Outer Order motto inscribed on it.

---

[6] This is part of the grade work for the Hodos Chamelionis, an Adeptus Minor who is on the Path of the Chameleon—or the Path of Mixed Colors.

[7] Our position on this matter is as follows: We never dissuade any responsible student from taking on study work or performing rituals that are beyond their grade, particularly if the student is already magically advanced and balanced—however, we do not encourage it either. We simply do not promote Second Order work in the First Order as Outer Order gradework. (Our one exception is the Middle Pillar exercise which Regardie advocated as a highly important exercise for maintaining psychic balance.)—CC & STC.

initiates. The teachings of the modern day Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, established by Israel Regardie, have also evolved and adapted to meet the needs of today's students; and new information on Egyptian magic, Coptic magic and more, continues to be discovered by archeologists and magicians—information that was simply not available in MacGregor Mathers' day.

One such modern change in Golden Dawn instruction is the teaching of Geomancy in the Earth grade of Zelator, rather than in the Water grade of Practicus where it was taught a century ago.[8] Another change is the re-introduction of basic Astrology into the Outer Order. The formal teaching of Astrology was at one time dropped from the Order, since it was then felt that the student could find ample information on the subject from sources outside the Golden Dawn. Although such reasoning is quite true, we have nonetheless seen fit to add this basic information back into the Outer Order curriculum, because it becomes all too easy for students to skip over information that they are not presented with up front.

Oftentimes students come into our Order with previous knowledge of advanced ritual work from the back of Regardie's The Golden Dawn. Inevitably they advance through the grades and discover that through the discipline of the traditional Outer Order curriculum, they experience completely new insights concerning the Golden Dawn that they never imagined beforehand.

This brings us to the idea of "legitimacy." Does a student who is working alone need to be a member of a legitimate initiatory temple of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn? The answer is no. Whether or not one is a member of an officially recognized temple has no bearing on his/her spiritual and magical growth. With the Golden Dawn's curriculum and most of its important papers already published, the tools for advancement into the G.·.D.·. current are already at the aspirant's fingertips. It is possible today for the student to become his/her own initiator. Any individual or group that claims sole ownership of the Hermetic Tradition or claims to be the official "Grand High Muckety-Muck of the World" is doing occult students a great disservice by blowing off a good deal of hot air. The same is true for anyone who claims to know magical "secrets" that can only be bought for a high price. The student needs to use discretion and put some measure of trust in his/her own latent spiritual abilities. Questions of the legitimacy or heredity of a magical group can in fact get in the way of spiritual progress if a student becomes more interested in buying or otherwise obtaining a magical merit badge from a recognized group, rather than securing union with one's Holy Guardian Angel. Empty gestures and hollow proclamations of high degrees and titles mean little or nothing to one's own Higher Self. The intent and determination to achieve union with the Divine is the only important consideration in advancing to the path of an initiate. And to do this, one need not be a member of any recognized magical group.

What is a magical tradition or current? This is a concept which may hold different meanings for different people. Here we will refer to the current of the Golden Dawn as a specific stream of energy that has empowered the Western [8] The practice of Geomancy or "Earth Divination" is more appropriate to the grade of Zelator.

---

Magical Tradition since ancient times. This magical current has surfaced at various times and places in history as different magical groups with similar ideas, teachings, techniques and goals. As we have already stated, anyone can tap into this current by studying and applying oneself to the magical work of the current. An egregore is a specialized aspect of a current. The word egregore comes from a Greek word meaning "watcher." Whereas the current can be likened to a large river, the egregore is like a small adjoining stream. The current is the raw power—somewhat of a blind force—compared to the egregore, which is a more interactive and personal force. When we speak of a group egregore, we are talking about the distinctive energy of a specific group of magicians who are working together. The single current can sustain several different group egregores.

As indicated earlier, there are two forms of initiation: astral and physical. The first type occurs on the subtle planes of the astral and is not always perceived by the initiate until after the fact, although s/he can also sometimes be aware of it as it is occurring. This type of initiation is conferred upon a person directly by spiritual archetypes within the psyche. A physical initiation is just what it sounds like—an actual ceremony carried out by officers in a physical temple. Some might think that the astral initiation is the only kind that matters—the physical one being only an outward reflection of an inner process. This is simply not the case. A physical initiation reaffirms the candidate's spiritual intent and Will by the act of submitting him/her self to the process of the initiation ceremony. It is a physical proclamation to the manifest universe of one's desire to follow the path of an initiate of the Mysteries. Depending upon the candidate, it is sometimes unlikely that an astral initiation would ever occur without the physical initiation and the skill of the participating initiator. What is clear, however, is that one form of initiation, astral or physical, almost always precedes or occurs simultaneously with the other form. Both are important.

Any discussion of initiation into the G∴D∴ tradition must include a description of the various grades or levels of initiation. The grades of the Golden Dawn correspond to the Sephiroth on the Qabalistic Tree of Life. These grades are further divided into three separate groups known as the First, Second and Third Orders. The list of the grades (from lowest to highest) is as follows:

Grade	Corresponding Sephirah	Element
Neophyte $0^{\circ}=0^{\square}$	——	——
Zelator $1^{\circ}=10^{\square}$	Malkuth	Earth
Theoricus $2^{\circ}=9^{\square}$	Yesod	Air
Practicus $3^{\circ}=8^{\square}$	Hod	Water
Philosophus $4^{\circ}=7^{\square}$	Netzach	Fire
Adeptus Minor $5^{\circ}=6^{\square}$	Tiphareth	——
Adeptus Major $6^{\circ}=5^{\square}$	Geburah	——
Adeptus Exemptus $7^{\circ}=4^{\square}$	Chesed	——
Magister Templi $8^{\circ}=3^{\square}$	Binah	——
Magus $9^{\circ}=2^{\square}$	Chokmah	——
Ipsissimus $10^{\circ}=1^{\square}$	Kether	——

The First Order consists of the grades from Neophyte through Philosophus. The grade of Neophyte is a probationary period which is not assigned a Sephirah on the Tree of Life. The grades from Zelator through Philosophus are known as the Elemental grades and are each attributed to one of the four Elements (Fire, Water, Air, Earth). Advancement through the grades of the First or Outer Order is designed to convey to the student an understanding of the four Elemental principles of nature. But, more importantly, the student must learn to realize and balance these four Elements as indispensable ingredients of his/her own psychological and spiritual make-up. We once read a criticism of the Golden Dawn by an author who claimed that the G∴D∴ taught its members to try to control the Elements in the outer world rather than controlling the Elements within. He couldn't have been more wrong. Equilibrating the Elemental components within is the primary goal of the Outer grades. The key objective of the First Order could be summed up in the phrase "learn to balance."

The Portal grade is another probationary period between the First and Second Orders. During this initiation, the candidate is introduced to the fifth and final Element of Spirit, thus completing the component parts of his/her Elemental constitution. The Portal is the final initiation ceremony that we will present in this book. Although Israel Regardie suggested that the Outer Order ceremonies could be converted over into self-initiation rituals, he was convinced that to do so with the Adeptus Minor Ceremony was impossible. (See The Complete Golden Dawn System of Magic, page 10.) Initiation into the Second Order grades (starting with Adeptus Minor) still requires an authentic initiator and a physical Vault of the Adepti. However we agree with Regardie in his belief that continued and persistent repetition of the Opening by Watchtower Ceremony over a long period of time can result in the acceptance of the performer as an Adept in the astral realms.

The various grades of the Order also correspond (in a general way) to the various stages of an initiate's life. The Outer Order grades fittingly correspond to the aspirant in his/her twenties. The minimum ideal age for Adeptus Minor would be around twenty-five to thirty, because a distinctive change of consciousness occurs when full adulthood is entered. It is difficult to conceive of a twenty-year-old Adept, unless the person is absolutely extraordinary, because at that age the student has simply not lived long enough to have gained the practical experiences of life. The grade of Adeptus Major would be most appropriate for someone from the age of forty to fifty, mature enough to have acquired some of life's scars—an experienced leader, warrior, and magician. Adeptus Exemptus is the highest grade of the Order and is to be ideally conferred upon someone who exemplifies the old and wise master magician—a person who has perfected his/her magical workings in this lifetime.[9] Keep in mind that these ages are given as suggested archetypal ages. They are not necessarily the actual ages of initiates in those specific grades.

---

[9] In the Golden Dawn, the Adeptus Minor grade was divided into the sub-grades of Neophyte Adeptus Minor, Zelator Adeptus Minor, Theoricus Adeptus Minor, Practicus Adeptus Minor, and Philosophus Adeptus Minor. The curriculum for these grades was extensive and required a minimum of six years to complete. (To say nothing of the time required in the grade of $6^{\circ}=5^{\square}$!) The Stella Matutina simplified the curriculum so that the studies for the higher grades of Adeptus Major and Adeptus

The Third Order consists of the grades from Magister Templi to Ipsissimus. These grades are not attained by living initiates; therefore we need not discuss them here.

The effectiveness of an initiation ceremony depends almost entirely upon the initiator. This is no less true of the self-initiator. In a fully operating temple of the Golden Dawn, an initiating Hierophant is required to have attained the grade of Zelator Adeptus Minor. To have reached that point, s/he will have undergone an extensive period of training in the grade of Neophyte Adeptus Minor and will have passed a series of examinations, written, oral, and practical. The power to confer a successful initiation comes from either having had it awakened internally by another proficient initiator or, in the case of self-initiation, by undertaking a great deal of magical and meditative work.

The goal of initiation is to bring about the illumination of the human soul by the Inner and Divine Light. A true "initiate" is an individual whose Higher Self (or Higher Genius) has merged with the Lower Personality and actually incarnated into the physical body. The Personality is left in charge of the day-to-day routines of living and working, but the Higher Genius is free to look out at the world through the eyes of the initiate. Through this experience, the individual is given a permanent extension of consciousness which is impossible to mistake. Many times a student of the mysteries is drawn to a particular mystical current without knowing it. A series of "coincidences" and synchronicities will often direct (or sometimes shove) a person toward that current through books or through meeting other people who also have a connection with the current. During this time, the student's psychic faculties are still relatively undeveloped, yet the inner spark has been ignited. However, a full initiation, or dawning of the Inner Light, is evident when the entire aura is illuminated.

The Higher Self, also called the Augoides or Body of Light, comes into manifestation in the material body when true initiation occurs. But a great deal of preparation is necessary prior to this. Before it is possible for the Higher Genius to manifest in the consciousness, the Lower Personality must be tuned to the same wavelength as that of the Inner Self. The Genius carries out its existence in the higher spiritual realms in the same manner that the Lower Personality carries out its functions in the secular world. The desire of the Higher Self is to maintain equilibrium with the Light Divine, while the ambition of the Lower Self is to maintain an alignment with the mundane world. In order for a spiritual initiation

---

Exemptus were actually based upon the work previously undertaken in the sub-grades of Adeptus Minor. By re-designing the curriculum, the magicians of the Stella Matutina were able to claim ever higher grades with ever less justification.

Although Regardie preferred the later format, we feel that the original curriculum is the better one. It is less subject to ego exploitation and better aligned to the archetypal energies which correspond to those grades. (It is amusing to consider that since Regardie's death a few years previous to the writing of this book, a plethora of individuals claiming the lofty degree of $7^{\circ}=4^{\square}$ (and even $8^{\circ}=3^{\square}$ have suddenly appeared in this country. If these individuals have not merely given themselves honorary degrees then surely, they have discovered H.G. Wells' Time Machine!) to take place, the Lower Personality must be reoriented and realigned with the aspirations of the Higher Self. This requires a total shift in outlook and a single-minded devotion for the Divine Union. It also requires self-sacrifice on the part of the Lower Personality—the part of the psyche which is ruled by the principles of "me first" and "I want." To the average secular person, sacrificing the needs of the Lower Personality seems foolish, but the submission of the Lower to the Higher Divine Self truly results in the attainment of something which is far more satisfying and durable than momentary wants and desires.

The act of initiation is of prime importance to spiritual growth and personal evolution. As the Personality is gradually taught through magical studies, and moved into an alignment with the Higher Self through purification and ritual work, the Divine Light begins to permeate the aura (the sphere of sensation) of the individual. The seed that an initiation plants within the soul of the magician is a perpetual one that will remain intact throughout many different incarnations, growing stronger as the person rediscovers his/her psychic abilities with each new life cycle. None of this mystical knowledge is ever lost when an initiate undergoes physical death; it is recovered at the appropriate time in the next incarnation, and the process of mystical growth continues from the point where it left off. Spiritual evolution can take many life cycles to fully complete. The ultimate goal of an initiate undergoing this progression lifetime after lifetime is total and perfect union with the Divine Self, which frees him/her from the karmic wheel and the need to incarnate further into a physical body. At this pinnacle of spiritual attainment, the initiate has the choice of remaining in the glory of the Godhead or returning to physical form in order to teach and help other initiates who are "less evolved."

Spiritual growth is an essential step in human evolution. In the not-so-distant past, animal species that failed to evolve in order to meet the challenges of a changing environment died out. Humanity, too, needs to evolve in order to confront the difficult challenges of a world which is experiencing great ecological threats, a skyrocketing population explosion, and rampant violence committed against human beings in the name of race, religion, and resources. As the primary cause of all these problems, it is humanity's obligation to evolve spiritually and wisely, in order to correct them. If we as a species fail to evolve in this fashion, then we truly run the risk of extinction.

Failure to achieve an initiation on whatever level in any given spiritual path or current is usually due to the unwillingness of the individual to sacrifice the petty needs and wants of the Lower Personality for that which is Higher. The Personality and its attendant mental archetypes are quite comfortable in the mundane world and will often put up a fight when threatened with change—intensifying their needs and desires in order to distract the initiate from the spiritual path. The Higher Powers who keep guard over certain magical currents can also place obstacles (both mental and physical) directly in the path of the student, not merely to discourage, but to test the mettle of the would-be initiate. (In a materialistic society, the pocketbook of the student is a favorite target of these guardians.) Those students who quickly crumble under the weight of such deterrents will inevitably fail, while those who bear the burden with tenacity and fortitude will triumph in the end. Indolence can play a role here as well, for the work of an initiate is not easy and requires much dedication and perseverance.

In deciding to write this book, we were faced with certain problems. How does a person initiate him/her self into a current of magic that calls for a complex ceremony performed by a team of competent initiators? How does someone who is not yet a Neophyte satisfactorily perform a ritual that is traditionally executed only by someone who holds the rank of Adept? It seemed like a Catch-22—an impossible scenario. Our solution was to supply the barebones of the rituals and provide step-by-step instruction in the necessary visualizations as they occur in the ceremonies. We revised the rituals so that they could be performed by a solitary individual. We also expanded and emphasized the role of the godform of Thmê (Mêet or Maat) as the Introducer and Mediator between the candidate and the other energies present during the initiation. It seemed only natural that the aspiring student who is working alone and unaided should call upon the reconciling attributions of Thmê to assist in his/her climb up the mountain of initiation. All advanced ritual gestures and techniques are carried out by the student only under the authority and dispensation of the Higher Self, not under the lower will or ego of the student. This is true of every initiation ceremony presented in this book, from Neophyte through the Portal grade; all of them are based upon this premise in order to circumvent, as much as possible, any tendency for ego-inflation (a primary scourge of many an unvigilant magician). Prior to any self-initiation, a dialogue must be established between the student and the godform of Thmê in order to set up a conscious link between the candidate (as the Lower Personality) and the goddess of Truth (as the Higher Self). A series of meditations for establishing this communication is given at the end of this introduction.

In designing these rituals we have tried as much as possible to give the student an initiatory experience that is as complete and fulfilling as any bestowed by an initiating team. We have chosen to retain certain long speeches in the Elemental grade ceremonies, due to the fact that reading them aloud insures that the student will focus on them and not simply skim over them.

One of the things that Israel Regardie was adamant about was that the occult student should seek out a course of psychotherapy as a safeguard against inflation of the ego and other problems that might possibly crop up as a result of the increased activation of the psyche through magical training. We also hold this view, but have found that it is not always possible for students to find a good therapist who is sympathetic to the magical arts. The solitary student is particularly at a disadvantage here, not having a group of temple-mates to consult if problems arise. Therefore we have liberally selected several good psychology books for suggested reading in each grade of this course.

We have already stated that magic is a spiritual science. The curriculum of the Golden Dawn represents, if you will, the academic program of one of the mostly highly acclaimed universities of that science. By the time a student reaches the end of the Portal grade in this course, s/he will have committed to memory the basics of Qabalah, Astrology, and spiritual Alchemy. The student will also know how to construct a natal or horary Astrology chart, perform divination by Geomancy and Tarot, and understand the fundamental techniques of ritual, including vibration, visualization, skrying, and assumption of godforms.

Regardie's The Golden Dawn, although an excellent source book which contains much of the Order's teachings, is often too complex and overpowering for beginning students. All of the Golden Dawn's traditional Knowledge Lectures for the First Order are given here; expanded upon in a format designed to increase the student's comprehension of them. The Knowledge Lectures are not to be merely dismissed offhand as dry intellectual information. Study work is the foundation of the Hermetic science of magic. Just as a surgeon cannot be expected to perform an operation without having committed to memory the rudiments of medical knowledge, so too the magician cannot expect to perform an effective ceremony without understanding the fundamentals of magic. In this book, we have also incorporated much basic Astrological and Alchemical information in the Knowledge Lectures that is unavailable in Regardie's The Golden Dawn. In actual Golden Dawn temples, examinations are given to initiates before they can advance to the next grade. Here we have provided quizzes on the Knowledge Lectures and other materials, so that the student can test him/her self at a convenient pace. In addition, extensive ritual and meditative work is provided for each grade.

In Chapter One the reader will find a ritual detailing self-initiation into the grade of Neophyte in addition to gradework and examinations suitable to the $0^{\circ}=0^{\square}$. Chapters Two, Three, Four and Five cover the Elemental grades from Zelator through Philosophus. Chapter Six focuses on ritual and study work for the Portal grade, the apex of this course.

We suggest that the student who elects to assume the route of self-initiation first read the material at the beginning of the chapter appropriate to the grade about to be entered. Then the performance of the initiation ceremony can be undertaken. This ritual may be performed more than one time, since proficiency will increase with practice, and proficiency is, after all, what will determine the effectiveness of the initiation. After that, the Knowledge Lectures must be put to memory. A certain amount of time must be spent in each grade in order to absorb both the written knowledge as well as the initiation. This is especially important for the solitary student, who, without the support of an official temple and the help of peers, may have a tendency to rush through all of the work presented here in a ridiculously short period of time. Any reader thus disposed must remember that the process of spiritual growth is not a race, and it cannot be accomplished in a matter of weeks or months, but rather in terms of years and lifetimes. Keep in mind the old axiom of Solvitur Ambulando—solve your problems as you proceed. One does not have to rush through in order to prove one's intelligence or spiritual prowess. Because of this tendency to hurry through the grades, we recommend that solitary students in particular spend sufficient time in the various grades in order to fully assimilate the effects of each initiation. We suggest that the student of this course spend approximately four months as a probationer prior to any attempt at self-initiation into the Neophyte grade. The student should take this time to prepare for initiation by practicing the meditations and exercises given at the end of this introduction. Six months should be spent in the grade of Neophyte, and six months in each of the grades from Zelator through Practicus. Seven months should be spent in the Philosophus grade, while the duration of the Portal grade should be nine to twelve months. Ceremonial work provided in each grade is to be performed daily (though sometimes weekly depending upon the ritual). Finally the student can test his/her knowledge with the quizzes provided.

Although the main focus of this book is on the solitary practitioner, there is no reason why two people cannot undertake the same course of study and progress together. It is certainly easier for two people to study the Knowledge Lecture material and quiz each other. However, each person must spend the probationary period separately while establishing his/her own dialogue with the godform of Thmê. The initiation ceremonies presented here may be performed together so long as each person takes part in the visualizations and ritual gestures. The longer speeches may be divided between the two participants. Another technique which may prove helpful to one or two people undertaking this route is to pre-record some of the longer speeches and guided visualizations presented for later playback in the rituals. Hearing one's own voice speaking the words of the gods can have a powerful initiatory effect.

There is also no valid reason why students who may already belong to a Golden Dawn temple should not perform these self-initiatory rituals, for performance of them can only serve to increase the student's knowledge and proficiency. The Knowledge Lectures and meditations given here can also be used to supplement any student's existing gradework.

If the student perseveres through this study course and the rituals furnished here for self-attainment, we have no doubt that the result will be the birth of an initiate of the Golden Dawn tradition of magic. It is our sincerest hope that, through this book, individuals who previously have had no opportunity to do so may initiate themselves into the Western Mystery Tradition.✡

Preliminary Meditative Work

Daily Awareness Exercises:

Darkness Technique: Before the commencement of any meditation, breathe deeply and rhythmically. Cover your eyes with the palms of your hands; overlapping the fingers of one hand with the other. You should experience total darkness.

Sense Awareness Techniques: For the duration of a week, take a daily walk and make a mental note of everything you see, not focusing on anything in particular. Do not attempt to analyze or make judgments; merely observe. Keep a journal of your observations.

For the following week, take a daily walk and stop, deliberately focusing in on one particular object. Take note of everything concerning this object.

On the following week of daily walking, try to look for a single color each day. On Sunday look for orange; Monday—blue, Tuesday— red, Wednesday—yellow, Thursday—violet, Friday—green, Saturday—blue-violet (indigo).

For one week concentrate on the various sounds that are heard on the daily walk. Stop at certain times and close your eyes, so that the faculty of sight does not interfere with this exercise. Do not attempt to analyze or make judgments; merely take note.

For the following week, take a daily walk and stop, deliberately focusing in on one particular sound. Take note of everything concerning this sound.

For one week, take note of different tactile or touch sensations that you encounter during the course of a day. Stop at certain times and close your eyes, so that the faculty of sight does not interfere with this exercise.

For one week, take note of every taste that you encounter during the course of a day. Stop at certain times and close your eyes, so that the faculty of sight does not interfere with your sense of taste. For the following week, focus on one particular taste.

For one week, take note of every smell that you encounter. Stop at certain times and close your eyes, so that the faculty of sight does not interfere with your sense of smell. For the following week, focus on one particular smell.✡

Exercise:

It is vitally important that in the quest to exalt the health of the Spirit, the student does not neglect the health of the body. Physical well-being and endurance are essential to the magician who wishes to perform lengthy rituals as well as Astral work. During this probationary period, the student should begin a regular discipline of exercise to maintain physical fitness. We leave the choice of exercise to the individual student; swimming, biking, jogging, martial arts, aerobics, yoga or some other. Israel Regardie recommended that the student perform certain exercises that are designed to raise both the physical and psychic vitality of the practitioner. They are taken from a small pamphlet by Peter Kelder called The Five Rites of Rejuvenation or The Eye of Revelation. These exercises can also be found in Donald Michael Kraig's book Modern Magick (pages 222–229).

Whatever form of exercise is undertaken, the student should never overwork to the point of strain. If one is not used to exercise, begin slowly and gradually. If health concerns are an issue, consult a doctor before commencing any form of physical exertion.✡

Visualization Exercise:

Spend a few moments of each day in this exercise. Begin with the eyes closed and relax, breathing deeply and rhythmically. Then open your eyes and gaze into the palm of your left hand. Imagine a small yellow lump of a non-sticking substance formulating in your hand. It is somewhat clay-like and elastic in consistency. Cup your right hand over the other and press this yellow substance as if you were making a hamburger patty. Then begin to roll the substance between your hands as if you were making a meatball. When the image of the yellow ball of astral substance is very clear within your mind, place it somewhere near you. Repeat this technique three more times, forming next a red ball, a blue ball and finally a black ball.

When finished, place all four balls in a row. Visualize them strongly. Then concentrate on dissolving the balls one by one, starting with the black ball, followed by blue, red and finally yellow. See the area where the balls were placed as totally clear of the astral substance.✡

An Introduction to the Godform of Thmê

The next series of meditations is designed to open a working dialogue between the aspiring student and the archetypal part of the candidate's mind symbolized by the godform of Thmê (pronounced Tah-may). The Greek form of this deity is Themis, and in the Egyptian Pantheon, she is Mēet or Maat. This godform will act as the candidate's introducer and guide throughout all of his/her initiatory experiences in this course. Here Thmê acts as a portion of the candidate's own Higher Self, which conducts him/her along the initiatory path toward the eventual goal of full conversation with the Holy Guardian Angel. It is important that the aspirant establish a firm link of communication with Thmê before the act of self-initiation. We suggest that the student perform these meditations daily for a period of four months prior to self-initiation into the Neophyte grade. Meditation 1 is recommended for the first month, Mediation 2 is suggested for the second month, and Meditation 3 is to be performed during the remaining two months before initiation. If after four months the student still does not feel in touch with the godform, the entire series of meditations should be repeated for three additional months prior to self-initiation.

We should stress that at this early stage of development, the student is not asked to assume the godform of Thmê or any other godform. Assumption of godforms is not taught until much later in this course. The aspirant needs to concentrate instead on visualizing and becoming comfortable with the godform. A one-on-one dialog with the godform is encouraged but do not attempt to let the godform control your words or actions. (If the godform makes demands, asks you do something against your will, or simply gives you information which you know to be false, then you probably are not in dialogue with Thmê or your Higher Self—you are more than likely in touch with some lesser archetype that is playing games with you. In that case, banish the figure and start over.)✡

Vibration:

Certain names or Words of Power when properly vibrated or intoned attract certain energies which are associated with them. A technique known as the Vibratory Formula is a method by which divine names and words are spoken forcefully and with authority in a "vibration."

The student should first imagine a glowing white Light above the head, and then visualize this Light descending to the level of the heart. The letters of the name to be vibrated should be imagined in white within the heart center. Then the name is slowly pronounced so that the sound vibrates throughout the chest cavity and is felt throughout the entire body. The student should imagine that the sound reaches into every corner of the universe. The Vibratory Formula of pronouncing names normally produces a slight sense of fatigue combined with exhilaration if performed correctly. (Note: only Divine or Angelic names are to be vibrated in this fashion.)✡

First Month—Meditation 1: Themis

Take a ritual bath and perform a ritual of relaxation. Be seated comfortably in your temple space, bedroom or any other area where quiet and solitude may be maintained. Light a yellow candle in the center of your temple space. Burn incense or scented oil, preferably frankincense or cinnamon.

Perform the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram, also known as the LBRP. (See Chapter One, pp. 82-84.)

Perform the Adoration to the Lord of the Universe. (See Chapter One, page 85.) Then give four knocks. Close your eyes and imagine yourself sitting in a violet ovoid shape. Say:

> Through the Divine Name of Tetragrammaton, YHVH, (Yode-Heh-Vav-Heh) I, (state name) proclaim myself to be a humble seeker after the Light of Wisdom and the Splendor of the Divine. From this day forward I shall strive ever to prove myself a true and worthy candidate for initiation into the Mysteries. To this end I seek the guidance of the goddess THEMIS, that she might reveal herself to me and intercede on my behalf before the Guardians of the Sacred Knowledge.

Again give the Battery of four knocks. Intone the name of the goddess THEMIS a number of times. As you do so, the violet ovoid shape surrounding you changes to brilliant yellow.

Visualize the form of a tall goddess standing before you. She has short, dark hair and dark eyes. Imagine this figure in flowing white Greek robes trimmed with yellow and violet. Her features are austere and her expression denotes seriousness. In her left hand she holds a pair of scales. In her right hand she holds a golden chalice. Visualize strongly the form before you. Say:

> O thou radiant goddess of Wisdom and Oracles! THEMIS! Thou whose name means the Steadfast One! Thou Incorruptible One who defendeth those who are Just! Thou who presideth over the feasts of the gods on Olympus! Revealer of Laws! THEMIS! Thou who art the collective conscious and the Keeper of Order! Thou who art called the Lady of Justice and the Protectress. SOTEIRA! EUBOULOS! Thou who gives good counsel and advice! Interpreter of the Will of the gods! Let thine Oracle portray me in a favorable light. Thou goddess of the Scales! See thou that my heart is true, and that I am indeed a true Seeker after the Stone! Defend me as thou > wouldst defend all worthy Aspirants on the Path of Wisdom! Speak on my behalf before the assembly of the gods! Counsel and guide me in my quest for the Light Divine! This I ask in the Name of the Ineffable One!

Visualize the form strongly. See it breathe with life. The goddess places her scales over your body—the two halves of the scales balancing from your right shoulder to your left shoulder. The scales are absorbed into your body—into your shoulders and arms—merging into the flesh. The balance point of the scales is absorbed into your heart center, becoming one with it. You feel strengthened by this blending.

The goddess Themis then hands you the golden chalice of nectar to drink from. You taste its pure sweet essence. A sensation of warm white Light washes over you. The drink invigorates you and leaves you with a feeling of calm and balance.

Meditate for a few moments on the godform of Themis before allowing her to fade gently from your sphere of awareness.

Slowly dissolve the yellow ovoid surrounding you. When you are ready, perform the Adoration to the Lord of the Universe, followed by the Battery of four knocks and the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

Keep a written record of any impressions or insights gained during the meditation.✡

Second Month—Meditation 2: Maat

Take a ritual bath and perform a ritual of relaxation. Be seated comfortably in your temple space. Light the yellow candle in the center of your temple space. Burn incense or scented oil, preferably frankincense or cinnamon.

Perform the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

Perform the Adoration to the Lord of the Universe. Then sound the Battery of four knocks. Close your eyes and imagine yourself sitting in a violet ovoid shape. Say:

> Through the Divine Name of Tetragrammaton, YHVH, (Yode-Heh-Vav-Heh) I, (state name) proclaim myself to be a humble seeker after the Light of Wisdom and the Splendor of the Divine. From this day forward I shall strive ever to prove myself a true and worthy candidate for initiation into the Mysteries. To this end I seek the guidance of Themis in her more ancient form as the goddess MAAT, that she might reveal herself to me and intercede on my behalf before the Guardians of the Sacred Knowledge.

Again give the Battery of four knocks. Intone the name of the goddess MAAT a number of times. As you do so, the violet ovoid shape surrounding you changes to brilliant yellow.

Visualize the slender form of a goddess standing before you. Her black nemyss barely conceals her long dark hair. She is clothed in a glittering tunic of green and gold, with some flashing undertones of yellow, red and blue. Her collar is also composed of several colored beads and ornaments. Attached to her arms are a pair of great white wings, like those of an eagle. A red headband binds a large white ostrich feather to the crown of her head, atop her black nemyss. Her golden skin and darkly-painted eyes cannot hide the fact that she is one and the same as Themis of the Greeks. She holds a Lotus Wand in one hand, and an ankh in the other. Visualize strongly the form before you. Say:

> O thou shining goddess of Justice and Truth! Thou who standeth between illusion and reality, between good and evil! Thou who replaced Chaos with Light! Thou who art upright and true! Thou who weighest the hearts of men and women in the Hall of Judgment! Thou Lady of Heaven and Queen of Earth! Thou mistress of the Underworld! Thou point of balance upon which the whole of the universe is poised! Hear my confession and judge me aright! Lady of the Feather, see thou that my heart is true, and that I am indeed a true Seeker after the Stone! Defend me as thou wouldst defend all worthy Aspirants on the Path of Wisdom! Speak on my behalf before the assembly of the gods! Counsel and guide me in my quest for the Light Divine! This I ask in the Divine Name of YHVH!

Visualize the form strongly. See it breathe with life. The goddess Maat takes a white feather from one of her wings and presses it to the crown of your head. She points the head of the Lotus Wand at your forehead and, as she does so, the feather is absorbed into your flesh. Uniting with the feather of Maat brings you a sense of harmony and inner peace. The goddess then points the ankh at your head, base of your throat, heart, groin and feet in turn. As she focuses on each of these five points of your body, you are aware of an influx of Light-energy, followed by a gentle sense of balancing. The sensation reminds you of stones tossed into a pool of water—the ripples subsiding into delicate wave patterns. Once again, you feel strengthened by the encounter.

Meditate for a few moments more on the godform of Maat before allowing her to fade gently from your sphere of awareness. Slowly dissolve the yellow ovoid surrounding you. When you are ready, perform the Adoration to the Lord of the Universe, followed by the Battery of four knocks and the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

As always, keep a written record of your impressions of this meditation whenever it is performed.✡

Third and Fourth Months—Meditation 3: Thmê

Take a ritual bath and perform a ritual of relaxation. Be seated comfortably in your temple space. Light the yellow candle in the center of your temple space. Burn incense or scented oil, preferably frankincense or cinnamon.

Perform the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

Perform the Adoration to the Lord of the Universe. Then sound the Battery of four knocks. Close your eyes and imagine yourself sitting in a violet ovoid shape. Say:

> Through the Divine Name of Tetragrammaton, YHVH, (Yode-Heh-Vav-Heh) I, (state name) proclaim myself to be a humble seeker after the Light of Wisdom and the Splendor of the Divine. From this day forward I shall strive ever to prove myself a true and worthy candidate for initiation into the Mysteries. To this end I seek the guidance of the goddess of Balance in her Coptic form as THMÊ, the name by which she was known in the Graeco-Egyptian world. Grant that she might reveal herself to me and intercede on my behalf before the Guardians of the Sacred Knowledge.

Again give the Battery of four knocks. Intone the name of the goddess THMÊ a number of times. As you do so, the violet ovoid shape surrounding you changes to brilliant yellow.

Visualize the slender form of a golden-skinned goddess standing before you. At this stage of your dialogue with her, the goddess reveals her initial (simplified) form to you. Her nemyss is striped black and white, while her tunic has become pure glittering white. Her large pectoral collar is made of bands that are black and white. Her wristbands are similarly colored. She holds a yellow Phoenix Wand. Her painted eyes are the same as the eyes of Maat. Visualize the form strongly before you. Say:

> O Thou beautiful one of Truth, Balance and Order! Reconciler between the Darkness and the Light! Thou who art the Eye of Ra and the seat of Justice between the Pillars! Guardian of the Threshold and Preparer of the Way for the Enterer! Dweller in the Hall of Dual Manifestation—the Hall of Two Truths! Divine Mediator of opposites who breathest forth Equilibrium and Truth in the Reconciling Air! See thou that my heart is true, and that I am indeed a true Seeker after the Stone! Defend me as thou wouldst defend all worthy Aspirants on the Path of Wisdom! Speak on my behalf before the assembly of the gods! Counsel and guide me in my quest for the Light Divine! This I ask in the Divine Name of YHVH!

Visualize the form strongly. See it breathe with life. The goddess Thmê gestures for you to hold out both of your hands. You do so. The goddess places a small ceramic jar in your right hand as a symbol of your heart and your spiritual essence. In your left hand she places the white shu feather of Maat. She speaks:[10]

> My feather is that which is weighed against every human heart. Thy heart must be measured and judged to be true and just. Thy heart and thy soul must be made Maat. Let not thy scales tip either to the right or to the left, for either unbalanced is not good. Seek ever the center, for only the straight and narrow path between the Pillars can lead you to the Stone of the Wise. This is the great Truth which hath never been broken since the time of Osiris. Remember thou that God will judge the just.

The white shu feather and the ceramic heart are absorbed into the flesh of your hands. Thmê holds the yellow Phoenix Wand before you. The Wand bursts into flame within her hand. From the ashes of the Phoenix Wand a new Wand emerges. It is a red and yellow-gold Wand crowned by a split miter-head. A small red cross ornaments the head of the scepter. Thmê speaks:

> This is the Scepter of Wisdom which shall conduct thee always on the Path of Knowledge. It symbolizes religion and spiritual desire which guides and regulates life. Remember to hold all religions in reverence, for there is none but contains a ray of the ineffable Light that thou art seeking. Remember that the goddess who now stands before thee is a living symbol of those higher aspirations of the soul which should guide its action.

Meditate for a few moments more on the godform of Thmê before allowing her to fade gently from your sphere of awareness. Slowly dissolve the yellow ovoid shape surrounding you. When you are ready, perform the Adoration to the Lord of the Universe, followed by the Battery of four knocks and the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.✡

Bringing Down the Light

In all Golden Dawn ceremonies, the initiating Hierophant, acting as a living "channel" brings the Supernal Light down into the temple through a complex formula. The student of this course, acting as his/her own initiator, must use a greatly simplified method of bringing the Divine Light into the temple. A technique for accomplishing this is presented here. This exercise should be practiced for at least three months prior to self-initiation into the grade of Neophyte.

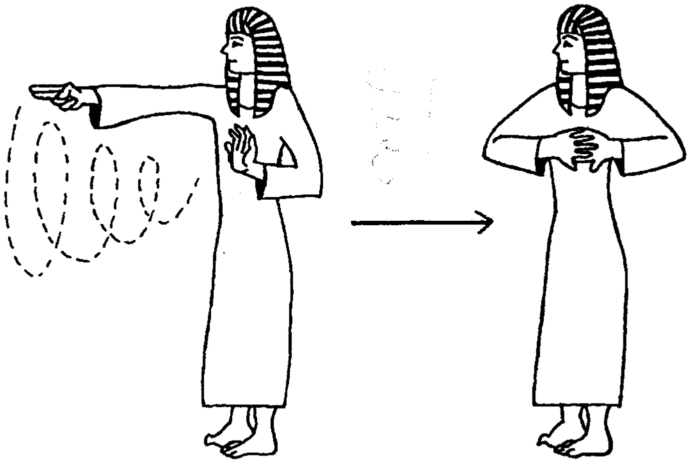
After taking a ritual bath, sit quietly for a few moments of meditation, facing the Eastern part of your temple space. When you feel ready, stand and place both of your hands over your heart center, one hand crossing the other. Visualize a great brilliant Light which occupies a space that is both above you and beyond you in the East. As you contemplate this Light, visualize the figure of a white triangle traced in the brilliance before you. The white of the triangle shimmers and pulses iridescently.

---

[10] Please note that this ritual, as well as the initiation rites in the following chapters, contains passages which are set in a sans serif typeface, to indicate speeches that are "spoken" astrally by the godforms—not physically by the magician—and are "heard" internally.

When the vision is very strong, bring your right hand straight out in front of you and your left hand just in front of your heart area, palm outward. With your right hand, trace a large spiral in the air in front of you (begin at the outer left-hand edge of the spiral and go clockwise). Bring the spiral slowly in toward you as you trace it. When your right hand reaches your left hand, join both hands together with the fingers interlocking and turn them so that the knuckles of your hand touch your heart area, and the palms face outward. This is the Sign of the Spiraling Light. (Please note that this is not a traditional grade Sign of the Golden Dawn, but one that we have provided for the purpose of this course.) As you perform this, visualize the Divine Light spiraling in a funnel shape toward you. Say the words, "Let the white brilliance of the Divine Spirit descend!" As you do so, feel a flood of the Divine Light course through your entire body—from your head to your feet. The Light then centers itself at your heart area. Be aware of the connection that exists between your body and the universal Light. Equilibrate this Light through your body by performing the Qabalistic Cross.

Then say the words, "Khabs Am Pekht, Konx Om Pax, Light in Extension." Make three complete clockwise circuits around the boundaries of your temple space, all the while envisioning that you are carrying the Divine Light around the temple in a spiral of energy from the area of your heart. After completing the third circumambulation, return to the East and face West. Imagine the white triangle of Light firmly established in the center of your temple space. See it vividly.



The Sign of the Spiraling Light

Continue meditating for as long as you like, but when you are finished, make three counter-clockwise circumambulations of the temple all the while envisioning the white triangle in the center of the room disintegrating. Imagine the Divine Light from the triangle flowing back through your heart center and up into the greater triangle of Light above you. At the end of the circumambulation, turn again toward the East and, with your hands interlocked over your heart, begin the Reverse Spiral of Light, which is simply the total reversal of the Sign of the Spiraling Light. Pause and perform again the Qabalistic Cross for equilibration. This ends the rite.

It is important to record all your meditations and ritual workings in every grade in order to have a tangible yardstick by which to measure your spiritual growth. It is equally important to record your perceptions of all your experiences within the grades, so that you may return to them time and time again for examination. In this course of study, as in many other aspects of life, you are the only one gauging your own progress.

In closing, there will always be some individuals who will simply read this book and fail to follow either the necessary workload or the minimal amounts of time suggested in each grade. Within a couple of months of having purchased this book, some will claim to have "done it all" and self-proclaim themselves as Adepts of this course. However, it will be far easier for such people to mislead and impress beginners than it will be for them to hoodwink those aspirants who truly undertake this work. It will be especially difficult for these individuals to fool their own Higher Selves. The Holy Guardian Angel will be able to tell the difference between bravado and true aspiration.

You have no one to blame but yourself if you fail to press onwards. But likewise, if you succeed, you have yourself to thank. The rewards are yours to enjoy.✡

Unto Thee Sole Wise, Sole Eternal, and Sole Merciful One,
be the praise and glory forever.
Who hath permitted me,
who now standeth humbly before Thee,
to enter thus far into the sanctuary of thy mystery.
Not unto me, Adonai,
but unto thy name be the glory.
Let the influence of thy Divine ones descend upon my head, and teach me the value of self-sacrifice
so that I shrink not in the hour of trial.
But that thus my name may be written on high,
and my Genius stand in the presence of the Holy One.
In that hour when the Son of Man is invoked before the Lord of Spirits and his Name before the Ancient of Days.

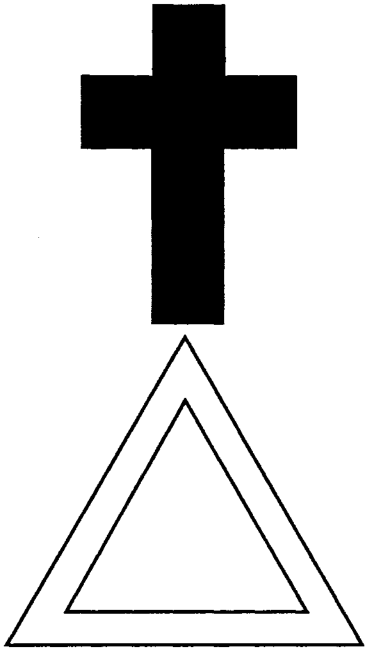
Chapter One



The Neophyte Grade

⓪ = $\boxed{0}$

Of all the initiation ceremonies of the Golden Dawn, the Neophyte Ritual stands apart from the rest. The Neophyte grade is called the $0^{\circ} = 0^{\square}$ grade because it is not attributed to any of the Sephiroth on the Tree of Life. This ceremony is a preliminary rite which contains all the fundamental magical formulae and techniques of the Order. It is based almost entirely around the idea of the Divine Light and the spiritual magnetism which draws that Light into the temple to be implanted in the aspirant's sphere of sensation. The word Neophyte comes from the Greek word neophytos or "newly planted."

In a traditional Neophyte Ceremony with a full initiating team, the Hierophant, the main officer of the ritual, acts on behalf of the Divine Self of humanity—the supreme spiritual Soul. As the physical embodiment of the godform of Ousiri (Osiris), he is stationed in the East, the place of the dawning sun and the symbolic direction of the Supernal Light of Kether. It is through Ousiri, represented by the Hierophant, that the Light is brought into the temple.

The Hegemon, who is the personification of the godform of Thmê, symbolizes the higher part of the candidate's mind—the highest part of the Ruach or reasoning mind working in combination with the Neshamah, the Divine Soul. The Keryx[11] represents the lower part of the Ruach functioning in obedience to the Will. The Hiereus is the active will of humanity, the guardian against evil. The Hegemon is the aspiring, compassionate and intuitive consciousness which seeks to bring about the Rise of the Light. (It is for this reason we have elaborated the role of godform of the Hegemon, Thmê, in the initiation rituals presented here.)

The primary objective of the student who wishes to initiate him/her self into the grade of Neophyte is twofold. First the Divine Light must be brought into the temple. Second, through a magnetic charge, this Light must be attracted to and implanted within the psyche of the aspirant. What must be remembered here is that the Higher Self rarely leaves its lofty abode, except when the Lower Self intentionally opens up to the Higher by an act of genuine aspiration or self-sacrifice. This action alone makes the descent of the Light into mind, heart and soul possible. Therefore the self-initiated must ever strive steadfastly in the utmost desire for the Light. This spiritual energy can be magnetically attracted to the candidate through the disciplines of rhythmic breathing, vibration, sincere aspiration, prayer and many other methods.

---

[11] The old-fashioned spelling of this word was kerux, which transliterated the Greek letter upsilon as a "u." However this same letter is also transliterated as a "y" in such words as "mystery" and "sympathy," which are both of Greek origin.

All of the various symbols and movements in the Neophyte Ceremony are designed to enhance and reiterate the purpose of the ritual—the quest for the Light. Not all of the intricate symbolism is fully comprehended by the candidate, but that makes little difference in the long run, because the inherent value of such symbolism is that it has an auto-suggestive effect on the aspirant which is perceived at a deep subconscious level.

The objective of the Neophyte Ceremony as a whole is the purification of the personality. Purification and Consecration of both the temple and the candidate (who is the living temple) are a source of constant focus throughout the ritual. The Elements of Water and Fire are employed to this end until at length the aspirant is placed between the two Pillars of Light and Dark, in the position of Equilibrium, where a bond is formed between the Personality and the Higher and Divine Genius.

The ceremony of the $0^{\circ} = 0^{\square}$ symbolically occurs in the Hall of Judgment which is described in the 125th chapter of the Egyptian Book of the Dead. This depicts the "Weighing of the Soul" in which the deceased (who represents the Initiate) is brought into the Hall of Truth by Anubis, the god of the Underworld. After having undergone extensive interrogation and purification, the initiate makes the long negative confession and is asked to explain the complex symbolism of the Hall. The Soul of the initiate then watches the weighing of its actions on Earth against the feather of Truth in the mystical scales of Maat. The ibis-headed god Thoth records the judgment as a devouring beast stands ready to seize the soul if the initiate has led an unworthy life. When this ordeal has passed, Horus introduces the initiate to the god, Osiris, who sits enthroned within his shrine. Before him is a lotus flower, the emblem of metamorphosis. The deceased is then united with Osiris the Redeemer in an infinite Light. Thus the entire story of the Weighing of the Soul can be said to represent the advance and purification of the initiate in the Neophyte Hall.

Although many people respect the Neophyte Ceremony as a vital and sublime ritual replete with essential magical techniques, oftentimes these same individuals do not respect the Neophyte grade. No sooner do they become Neophytes and take that all-important first step into the current of the Golden Dawn than they wish to rush headlong into the $1^{\circ} = 10^{\square}$ grade of Zelator, as if the rank of Neophyte were somehow undesirable or demeaning compared to higher grades. We cannot overstate how foolish this supposition is. Advancement into the higher grades should not be likened to a race. It is a life-long commitment to complete the Great Work. A certain amount of time must be spent in each grade to thoroughly ingest and balance out the effects of initiation. Advancing through the grades too quickly is apt to result in imbalance and egotism. In the Western Mystery Tradition we are all Neophytes no matter what our outer rank might be. All of us have much to learn on the quest for spiritual growth. A suitable amount of time spent in the Neophyte grade (through self-initiation) should be approximately six to twelve months.

The aspirant will also need to choose a magical motto. A motto is usually a phrase that is descriptive of the magician's spiritual goal. It is rendered in Latin, Hebrew, or any language other than the aspirant's everyday speech, in order to set the magical name apart from secular life.

In the initiation ceremonies of the Golden Dawn, various participants known as officers assume certain godforms (i.e., take on the astral appearance and qualities of a god or goddess) who carry out specific duties in the ritual. True godform assumption should not be attempted by anyone who is not yet an Adept.[12] In a self-initiation rite these various godforms are built up in the imagination of the candidate where they represent different parts of the aspirant's psyche. These godforms are therefore microcosmic reflections of specific macrocosmic god-forces to which they are linked. They are each called upon and orchestrated by the candidate's own Higher Self through the desire for the Light. The solitary aspirant does not actually assume the godforms created in the temple, but instead acts upon their behalf by taking on the various offices in the temple under the watchful guidance of the god-forces. An officer-form, so to speak, is a lesser extension of a godform which serves to carry out specific functions within the temple. It is the officer-forms, not the godforms themselves, that are assumed by the solitary aspirant of this course. When the officer-forms are not being assumed by the candidate, they are returned to the full authority of their respective godforms.

The combined activities in the ritual, especially the activities of the various godforms and officer-forms, symbolize the component parts of the candidate's own mind, which work together to effect initiation. However, preparation must be done prior to self-initiation into the Neophyte grade. It is very important for the student to have previously opened up a channel of dialogue with Thmê by practicing the exercises given in the introduction. We suggest that the aspirant study the section here entitled "The Godforms of the Visible Stations" and the diagrams of the temple provided for this rite. The reader is also advised to commit to memory the section of this chapter which describes the primary offices of the Neophyte grade and their officer-forms. All information required for the rise and circulation of the Light in the ritual, as well as the necessary visualizations, will be explained step-by-step in the ceremony given here.

The following manuscript describes the appearance of the various godforms of the Neophyte Hall, especially in terms of color. The colors of the Three Chiefs reflect their corresponding Sephiroth: Chesed, Geburah, and Tiphareth. The colors of these three officials are seen to "flash" with their respective vibratory energy.[13] Their high placement on the Tree of Life indicates the importance of these officers in guiding the current of magic from its source (the Supernal Triad) into the temple.

The remaining officers who do not occupy a seat on the Dais are each assigned two visible forms, the initial form and the advanced form. The initial forms are appropriate for beginning students. The more advanced forms should not be envisioned until after the student has become proficient in the art of godform visualization.

---

[12] Students who take on godforms before they are ready to do so may endanger themselves through psychic imbalance and deception.

[13] "Flashing Colors" are complimentary colors that are located directly opposite each other on a standard artist's color wheel. One of the two colors is active, the other passive. Two colors that "flash" are linked together with the same vibratory energy.

The throne of each godform is also ornamented with the flashing pair of colors that reflect that officer's particular Elemental or Sephirotic affinity. Each throne is considered a receptacle or dwelling place for the Divine Powers of the god. They are batteries of specific energy forces.

The wands, swords and other implements associated with the various godforms in the Hall are also heavy with symbolic meaning. These items act to reinforce the respective potencies of the godforms.✡

The Godforms of the Visible Stations

Copyright © 1991 Adam P. Forrest

General Note

The human portions of the godforms follow the coloring conventions of Egyptian iconography in that the skin tone of women is represented as a rich yellow-gold and that of men as a warm reddish-brown.[14]

Above each of the godforms of the officers on the Dais may be envisioned a circled cross of white Light (like the lamen of the Hierophant) symbolic of the Inner Order, and above each of the other godforms of officers in the Hall may be envisioned a cross and triangle of white Light symbolic of the Outer Order. Above the godform of the Phylax[15] in the Pronaos may be envisioned a triangle of white Light (like the sash badge of the Neophyte) symbolic of the Light extended into the Darkness of the outer and uninitiated world.

The Godforms

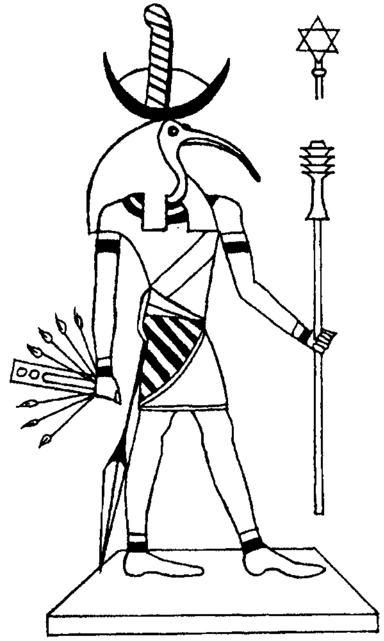
Praemonstrator or Praemonstratrix

[Egyptian Iset, Coptic ⲎⲤⲈ Êse (Ay-say), Graeco-Egyptian Isis] Isis has a human head, and wears a nemyss striped blue and orange. Her linen gown is blue. Her

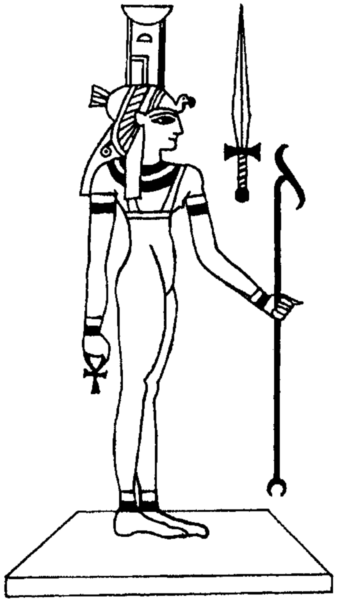
---

[14] The colors given here are different from those given in a manuscript published in Regardie's The Golden Dawn. That paper, entitled "The Egyptian Godforms of the Neophyte Grade" was written by someone in the Stella Matutina, and was never a part of the original Z documents by Mathers. The colors it assigns to the officers are in reality colors that apply only to the godforms in the game of Enochian Chess, and not to the godforms of the Neophyte Hall. It lists, for example, the colors of Nephthys as being primarily black—the color of Earth. In Enochian Chess Nephthys represents the Element of Earth, but in the Neophyte Hall she represents the Sephirah of Geburah and her colors would correspond to that sphere—primarily red. The other godforms would also be colored in accordance with their roles in the Neophyte Hall; the Hegemon's godform would be primarily yellow because of her role as the Reconciler.

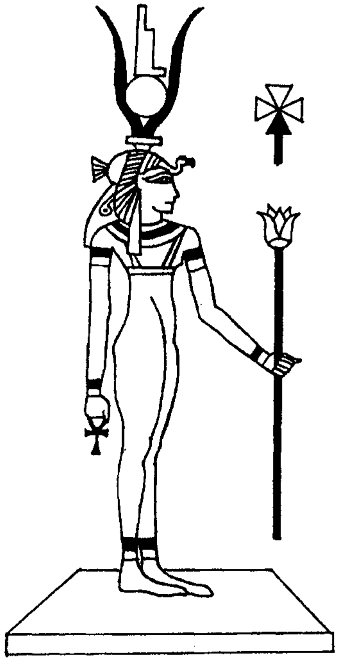
[15] The Sentinel of the old G.·.D.·. documents.



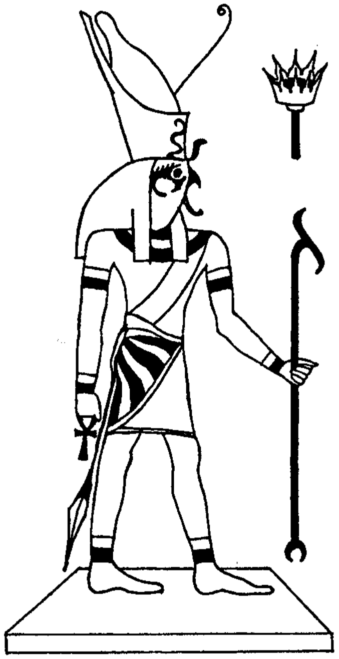
Thoth



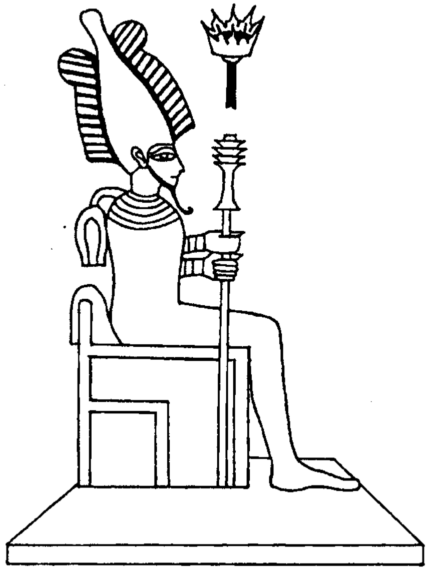
Nephthys



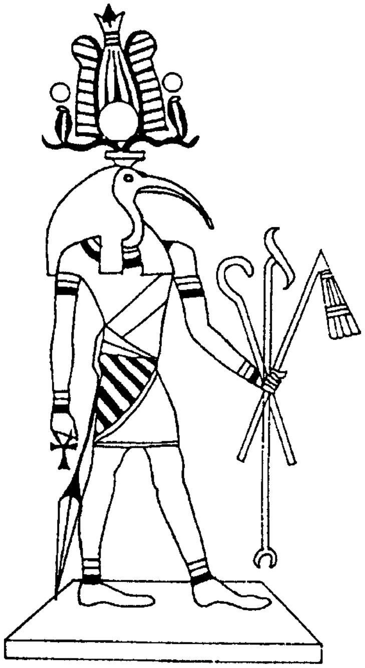
Isis



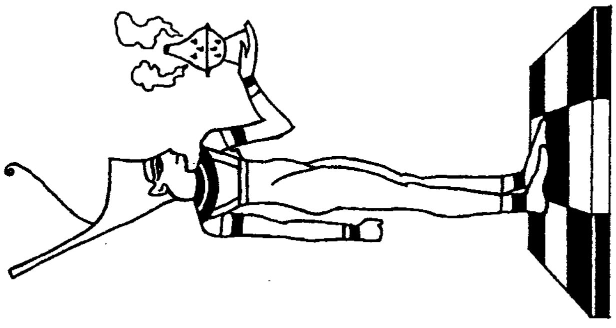
Haroueris



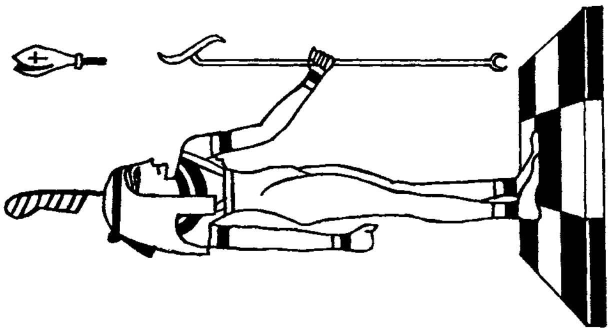
Osiris



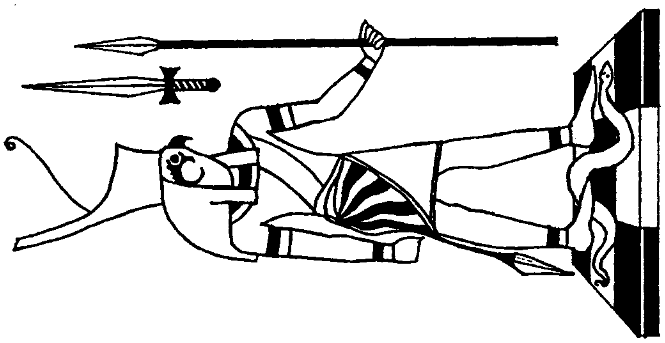
Thoth as the Three Chiefs



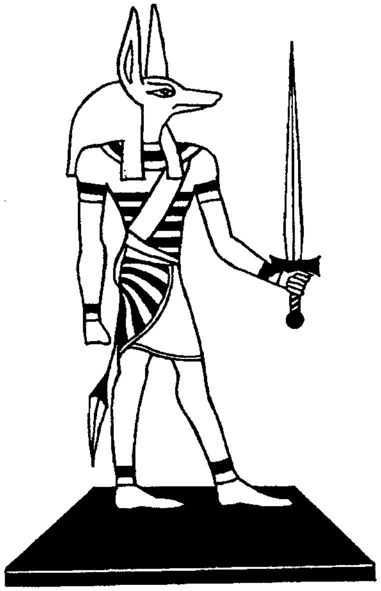
Neith



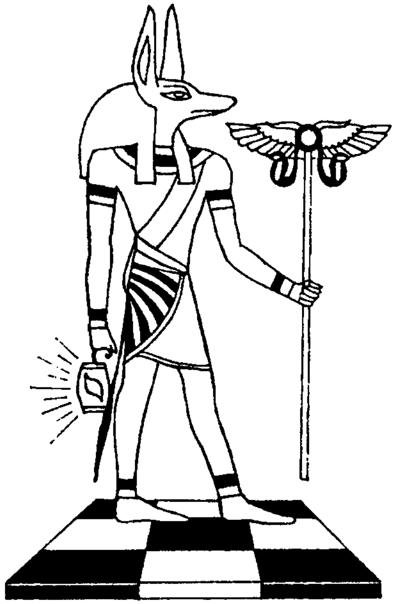
Thmê
(Mêet)



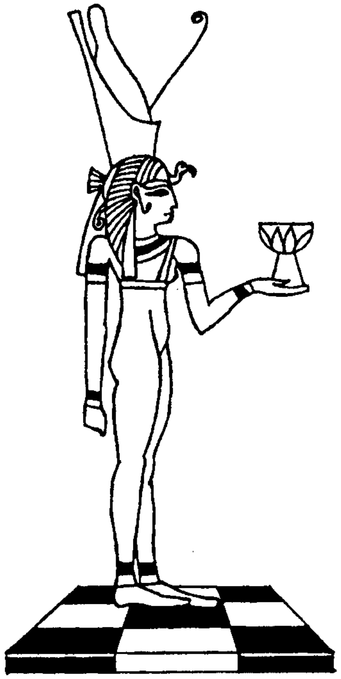
Horus



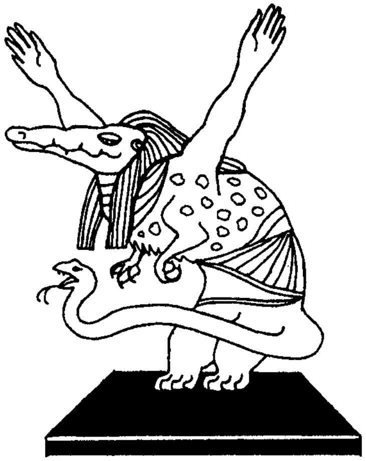
Ophois



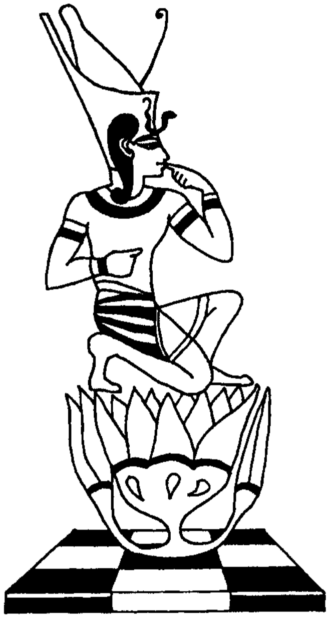
Anoubis



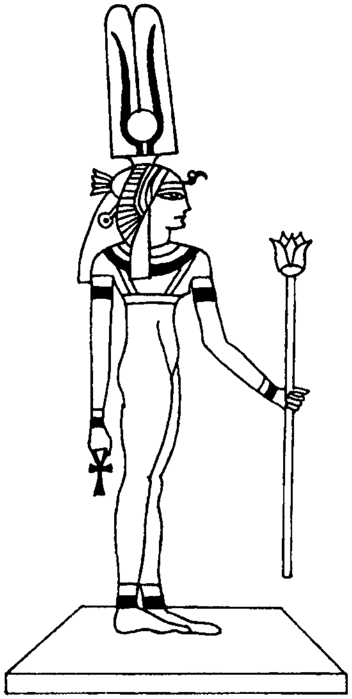
Auramoouth



Ouammoout peSatanas



Hoor-peKroti
(Harparkrat)



Ahathoor

pectoral collar is banded orange, blue, orange. Her wristbands are banded blue and orange.

Isis bears either a blue Lotus Wand or the blue wand of the Praemonstrator. The goddess sits upon a throne of blue ornamented in orange, which stands upon a white pavement.

Imperator or Imperatrix

[Egyptian and Coptic ⲛⲉⲃⲑⲱ Nebethô (Neb-et-ho), Graeco-Egyptian Nephthys] Nephthys has a human head, and wears a nemyss striped red and green. Her linen gown is red. Her pectoral collar is banded green, red, green. Her wristbands are banded red and green.

Nephthys bears either a red Phoenix Wand or the red sword of the Imperator. The goddess sits upon a throne of red ornamented in green, which stands upon a white pavement.

Cancellarius or Cancellaria

[Egyptian Djehoti, Coptic ⲑⲱⲟⲩⲑ Thôouth (Toh-oh-t) or (T'hoh-t), Graeco-Egyptian Thôth] Thoth has the head of a white ibis and wears a nemyss striped yellow and violet. His linen kilt is white, and his overkilt is striped yellow and violet. His pectoral collar is banded violet, yellow, violet. His wristbands are banded yellow and violet.

Thoth bears either a yellow Djed Wand or the yellow scepter of Cancellarius. He may also bear a yellow scribal pallet with brush-pens of the seven rainbow colors. The god sits upon a throne of yellow ornamented in violet, which stands upon a white pavement.

The Three Chiefs

[Egyptian Djehoti, Coptic ⲑⲱⲟⲩⲑ Thôouth (Toh-oh-t) or (T'hoh-t), Graeco-Egyptian Thôth] As the Z Rituals teach us, Thoth may also appear as the synthesis of the Three Chiefs.

As the synthesis of the Adept Triad, Thoth has the head of a white ibis and wears a nemyss striped yellow and white. His linen kilt is white, and his overkilt is striped yellow and white. His pectoral collar is banded red, yellow, blue. His wristbands are banded red, yellow, blue.

Thoth bears a yellow Phoenix Wand, a blue crook, and a red scourge. The god sits upon a throne of yellow ornamented in blue, red, and yellow, which stands upon a white pavement.

Hierophantês (Hierophant) or Hierophantissa

[Egyptian Osir, Coptic ⲟⲩⲥⲓⲣⲓ Ousiri (Oo-seer-ee), Graeco-Egyptian Osiris] Form: Osiris has a human head and wears a nemyss striped white and yellow, surmounted by the white Stenu crown of the Upper Regions. He is mummy-wrapped in white except for his head and hands. His pectoral collar is banded white, red, blue, yellow, black. His wristbands are banded yellow and white.

Osiris bears a white Djed Wand or a white crown-headed scepter of the Hierophant. The god sits upon a throne of white ornamented in yellow, which stands upon a white pavement.

Past Hierophant or Past Hierophantissa

[Egyptian Hôr Wêr, Coptic Hôôr Ouer ϩⲱⲱⲣ ⲟⲩⲏⲣ (Hoor-wehr) or (Hoh-or-wehr), Graeco-Egyptian Harouêris] Haroueris has the head of a hawk, and wears a nemyss striped yellow and violet, surmounted by the dual red and white Skhenet (Graeco-Egyptian Pschent) crown of the Upper and Lower Realms. His linen kilt is white, and his overkilt is striped yellow and violet. His pectoral collar is banded violet, yellow, violet. His wristbands are banded yellow and violet.

Haroueris bears a red Phoenix Wand or the red crown-headed scepter of the Hierophant. The god stands upon a white pavement when upon the Dais and upon a black and white pavement when in the lower Hall. When seated, the god sits upon a throne of yellow ornamented in violet, which stands upon a white pavement.

Hiereus or Hiereia

[Egyptian Hôr, Coptic ϩⲱⲱⲣ Hôôr (Hoor) or (Hoh-or), Graeco-Egyptian Hôros, Latinized Greek Horus] Initial Form: Hôros has the head of a hawk and wears a nemyss striped black and white. His linen kilt is white, and his overkilt is striped black and white. His pectoral collar is banded red, black, red. His wristbands are banded black and white.

Hôros bears a red sword. The god stands upon a black and white pavement. When seated, the god sits upon a throne of black ornamented in white, which stands upon a black and white pavement.

Advanced Form: Hôros has the head of a hawk, and wears a nemyss striped black and red, surmounted by the red Desheret crown of the Lower Realms. His linen kilt is white, and his overkilt is striped black and red. His pectoral collar is banded red, black, red. His wristbands are banded black and red.

Hôros bears a red lance or the red sword of Hiereus. The god stands upon a black and white pavement. Beneath his feet, he tramples a red dragon, serpent, or crocodile. When seated, the god sits upon a throne of black ornamented in red, which stands upon a black and white pavement.

Hêgemôn or Hêgemonê

[Egyptian Mêet, Coptic ⲑⲙⲏ Thmê (Tah-may), Greek Themis] Initial Form: Mêet has a human head and wears a nemyss striped black and white. Her linen gown is white. Her pectoral collar is banded black, white, black. Her wristbands are banded white and black.

Mêet bears a yellow Phoenix Wand or the miter-headed sceptre of Hegemon. The goddess stands upon a black and white pavement when in the Hall and on a black pavement when in the Pronaos. When seated, the goddess sits upon a throne of white ornamented in black, which stands upon a black and white pavement.

Advanced Form: Mêet has a human head and wears a nemyss striped yellow and violet. About her nemyss is bound a violet headband from which a white shu feather stands tall and straight. Her linen gown is yellow. Her pectoral collar is banded red, yellow, and blue. Her right wristband is banded yellow and blue, and her left wristband is banded yellow and red.

Mêet bears a yellow Phoenix Wand or the miter-headed scepter of Hegemon. The goddess stands upon a black and white pavement when in the Hall and on a black pavement when in the Pronaos. When seated, the goddess sits upon a throne of yellow ornamented in violet, which stands upon a black and white pavement.

Dadouchos or Dadouchê

[Egyptian Neit, Coptic ⲑⲁⲩⲙ ⲏϣ ⲛⲏⲓⲑ Thaum-Êsh-Nêith (Thom-aesh-nay-eet), Graeco-Egyptian Nêith] Initial Form: Nêith has a human head and wears a nemyss striped black and white. Her linen gown is black. Her pectoral collar is banded white, black, white. Her wristbands are banded black and white.

Nêith bears a red censer. The goddess stands upon a black and white pavement. When seated, the goddess sits upon a black throne, which stands upon a black and white pavement.

Advanced Form: Nêith has a human head and wears a nemyss striped red and green. Her linen gown is red. Her pectoral collar is banded green, red, green. Her wristbands are banded red and green.

Nêith bears a red censer. The goddess stands upon a black and white pavement. When seated, the goddess sits upon a throne of red ornamented in green, which stands upon a black and white pavement.

Stolistês

[Egyptian Mut, Coptic ⲁⲩⲣⲁⲙⲟⲟⲩⲑ Auramoouth (Aura-maht) or (Ow-rah-maht), Graeco-Egyptian Mouthis] Initial Form: Auramoouth has a human head and wears a nemyss striped black and white. Her linen gown is black. Her pectoral collar is banded white, black, white. Her wristbands are banded black and white.

Auramoouth bears a blue cup. The goddess stands upon a black and white pavement. When seated, the goddess sits upon a black throne, which stands upon a black and white pavement.

Advanced Form: Auramoouth has a human head and wears a nemyss striped blue and orange. Her linen gown is blue. Her pectoral collar is banded orange, blue, orange. Her wristbands are banded blue and orange.

Auramoouth bears a blue cup. The goddess stands upon a black and white pavement. When seated, the goddess sits upon a throne of blue ornamented in orange, which stands upon a black and white pavement.

Kêryx or Kêrykissa

[Egyptian Anup em Yebet, Coptic ⲁⲛⲟⲩⲡ ⲙⲡⲉⲓⲉⲃⲧ Anoup empelebet (Anoup-em-pay-yeb-et), Graeco-Egyptian Anoubis of the East, Latinized Greek Anubis]. Initial Form: Anoubis has the head of a black jackal or wolf and wears a nemyss striped white and black. His linen kilt is white, and his overkilt is striped white and black. His pectoral collar is banded black, white, black. His wristbands are banded white and black.

Anoubis bears a Wand terminating in the Khi or Wer Wadjeti symbol (the winged solar Disk from which depend two uraei). He also bears a violet lamp whose flame burns in the form of a red Yod. The god stands upon a black and white pavement when in the Hall and on a black pavement when in the Pronaos. When seated, the god sits upon a black throne, which stands upon a black and white pavement.

Advanced Form: Anoubis has the head of a black jackal or wolf and wears a nemyss striped violet and yellow. His linen kilt is white, and his overkilt is striped violet and yellow. His pectoral collar is banded yellow, violet, yellow. His wristbands are banded violet and yellow.

Anoubis bears a wand terminating in the Khi or Wer Wadjeti symbol. He also bears a yellow lamp whose flame burns in the form of a white Yod.

The god stands upon a black and white pavement when in the Hall, and on a black pavement when seated in the Pronaos. When seated, the god sits upon a violet throne ornamented in yellow, which stands upon a black and white pavement.

Phylax or Phylakissa

[Egyptian Opowet, Coptic ⲟⲫⲟⲟⲩⲓ Ophooui (Ah-paw-ee), Graeco-Egyptian Ophois; also Egyptian Anup em Amenet, Coptic ⲁⲛⲟⲩⲡ ⲙⲡⲉⲙⲛⲧ Anoup emp Emenet (Anoup-em-pay-men-et), Graeco-Egyptian Anoubis of the West, Latinized Greek Anubis]. Initial Form: Ophois has the head of a black jackal or wolf and wears a black nemyss. His linen kilt is white, and his overkilt is black. His pectoral collar is banded black, white, black. His wristbands are black.

Ophois bears a red sword. The god stands upon a black pavement. When seated, the god sits upon a black throne, which stands upon a black pavement.

Advanced Form: Ophois has the head of a black jackal or wolf and wears a nemyss striped black and white. His linen kilt is striped black and white. His pectoral collar is banded white, black, white, and his overkilt is striped black and white. His pectoral collar is banded white, black, white. His wristbands are banded black and white.

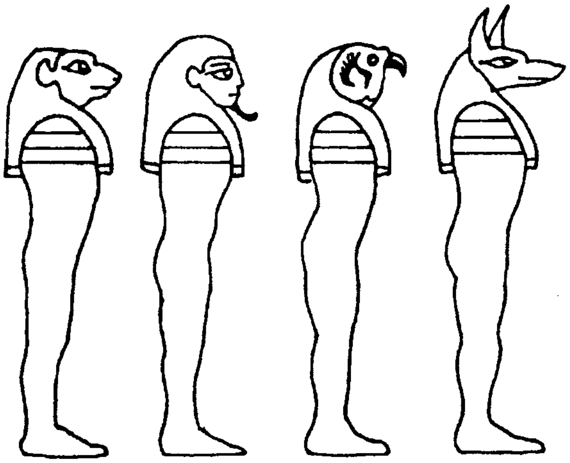
Ophois bears a flaming red sword. The god stands upon a black pavement. When seated, the god sits upon a black throne ornamented in white, which stands upon a black pavement.✡ —APF

The Invisible Stations

It is not necessary for the student of this course to be preoccupied with the godforms of the invisible stations, since the study of these godforms comprises Adept-level work. However, we will list them here for later reference:

The Stations on the Path of Samekh

Ahathoor (A Great goddess)—stationed in the East of the Hall behind the throne of the Hierophant.



The Sons of Horus

Hoor-peKroti (god of Silence)—stationed in the exact center of the Hall.
Ouammoout peSatanas (The Evil Persona; Power of the Mouth of the Power of Destruction)—the devouring beast represented in the story of the Weighing of the Soul is stationed at the East of the Altar.

The Kerubim

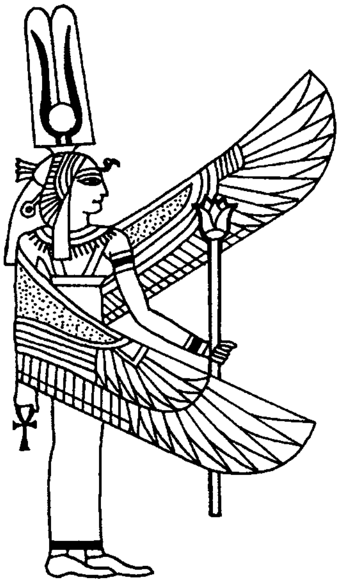
Ahathoor (Human-headed) AIR—stationed in the East.
Tharpesh (Lion-headed) FIRE—stationed in the South.
Thoum Moou (Eagle-headed) WATER—stationed in the West.
Hap-Ouer (Bull-headed) EARTH—stationed in the North.

The Sons of Horus

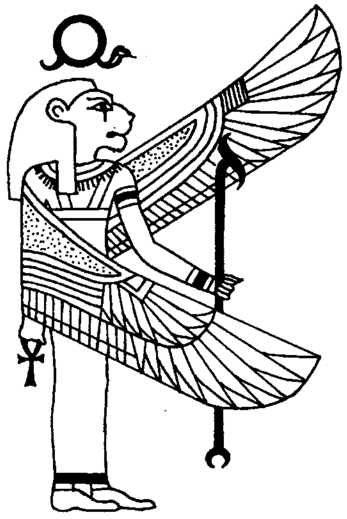
Amset (Man-headed) AIR—stationed in the Northeast.
Toouamaautef (Jackal-headed) FIRE—stationed in the Southeast.
Kabehsonef (Hawk-headed) WATER—stationed in the Southwest.
Ahaphi (Ape-headed) EARTH—stationed in the Northwest.

The Forty-Two Assessors

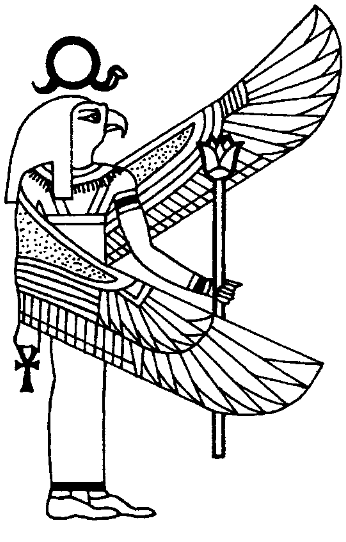
These forms are situated around the circumference of the room. They are the witnesses in the Hall of Judgment who make the Sign of the Enterer as the candidate passes by them. ✡



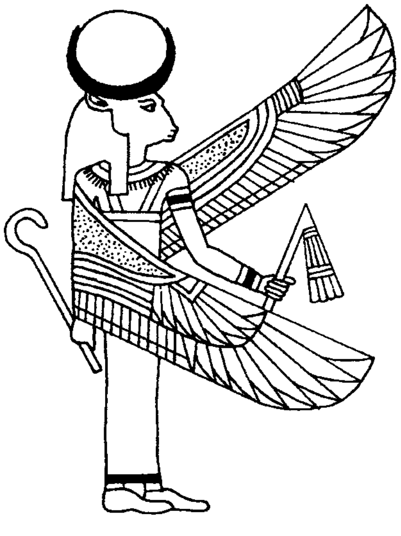
Kerub of Air



Kerub of Fire



Kerub of Water



Kerub of Earth

Primary Officers of the Outer Grades

This section defines the different officers in the Golden Dawn's current of magic. In all of the initiation rites presented in this book, the aspirant will have to assume some of the various officer-forms that correspond to these descriptions. The student should therefore commit these descriptions to memory.

The Three Chiefs[16]

Imperator (Latin meaning: commander, leader): The feminine form is Imperatrix. Purification by Fire. The lawgiver and figure of authority, who symbolizes the Element of Fire and the Sephirah of Geburah. The symbols and insignia of the Imperator are: the white robe, the red mantle (cloak or tabard) of Fire bearing a cross and triangle of white on the left breast, the red and green striped nemyss, a green collar from which hangs a red and green lamen depicting the circled cross, and red sword.

Praemonstrator (Latin meaning: a guide and/or one who prophesies): The feminine form is Praemonstratrix. Purification by Water. The teacher, who symbolizes the Element of Water and the Sephirah of Chesed. The symbols and insignia of the Praemonstrator are the white robe, the blue mantle (cloak or tabard) of Water bearing a cross and triangle of white on the left breast, the blue and orange striped nemyss, an orange collar from which hangs a blue and orange lamen depicting the circled cross, and the Maltese Cross Wand.

Cancellarius (Latin meaning: one who stands at the bar in a court, chancellor, or high official in a church or university): The feminine form is Cancellaria. Purification by Air. The keeper of records, who symbolizes the Element of Air and the Sephirah of Tiphareth. The symbols and insignia of the Cancellarius are the white robe, the yellow mantle (cloak or tabard) of Air bearing a cross and triangle of white on the left breast, the yellow and violet nemyss, a violet collar from which hangs a yellow and violet lamen depicting the circled cross, and the yellow hexagram-headed scepter.

Past Hierophant: Refer to the Hierophant.

Hierophant (Greek meaning: initiating priest, one who teaches spiritual matters, especially in regard to adorations and sacrifices): The feminine form is Hierophantissa. Expounder of the Mysteries in the Hall of Dual Manifestation of the goddess of Truth. The symbols and insignia of the Hierophant are the throne of the East, the red mantle (outer cloak or tabard) bearing a white cross on the left breast, a white collar from which hangs a red and green lamen depicting the circled cross, the crown-headed scepter, and the Banner of the East.

Hiereus (Greek meaning: priest, one who performs sacrifices in the temple): The feminine form is Hiereia. Avenger of the gods, Guardian of the Sacred Mysteries. The symbols and insignia of the Hiereus are the throne of the West, the black mantle [16] Students of this course will not be assuming the officer-forms of the Three Chiefs, who represent Potencies on a higher level of working. These forces act to direct the G.·.D.·. current, but they are governed by even higher Powers. The descriptions of the Three Chiefs are provided here for the purpose of study only.

---

(outer cloak or tabard) bearing a white cross on the left breast, a red collar from which hangs a white and black lamen depicting a triangle, the Sword of Strength and Severity, and the Banner of the West.

Hegemon (Greek meaning: guide, leader, one who proceeds first on a path): The feminine form is Hegemone. Guardian of the Threshold of Entrance and Preparer of the Way for the Enterer. The symbols and insignia of the Hegemon are the white mantle (outer cloak or tabard) bearing a red cross on the left breast, a black collar from which hangs a black and white lamen depicting a cross, and the miter-headed scepter.

Keryx (Greek meaning: herald, one who announces, calls the meeting to order, and delivers messages): The feminine form is Kerykissa. Watcher for the gods. The Watcher within the temple. The symbols and insignia of the Keryx are the red lamp, a black collar from which hangs a white and black lamen depicting a Caduceus, and the Caduceus Wand.

Stolistes (Greek meaning: preparer, decorator, one who sees that all ritual clothing and ornamentation are in readiness. Comes from the root word stolos which indicates preparation of ships for war, by water): The feminine form is also Stolistes. The Affirmer of the Powers of Water. The Light shining through the Waters upon Earth. The symbols and insignia of the Stolistes are a black collar from which hangs a white and black lamen depicting a cup, and the chalice of Water.

Dadouchos (Greek meaning: torch bearer. In the Eleusinian Mysteries, the woman who holds the torch as a symbol of the way by which Demeter searched for her daughter): The feminine form is Dadouche. The Affirmer of the Powers of Fire. Perfection through Fire manifesting on Earth. The symbols and insignia of the Dadouchos are a black collar from which hangs a white and black lamen depicting a Swastika or Fylfot Cross, and the censer of incense.

Phylax (Greek meaning: sentinel, guardian): The feminine form is Phylakissa. The Watcher without the temple. The symbols and insignia of the Phylax are a black collar from which hangs a white and black lamen depicting an eye, and a sword.

The ceremonies in this book are challenging in the respect that a certain amount of the ritual work presented is physical and a certain amount is astral. Among the physical temple implements that the student will have to provide are the altar, cross and triangle, pillars,[17] banners, chalice, censer of incense, Elements for the altar, five candles in the Elemental colors, a sword, lamp, wands for the Hierophant, Hegemon, and Keryx, and the lamens of all the officers.[18]

The stations of all the officers are to be marked within the temple by the placement of the cardboard lamens. Most of the ritual work dealing with the officers and the godforms who govern them is done on the astral level. The aspirant will be [17] At this stage in the student's spiritual development, it is not required that s/he construct a fully accurate set of pillars. The pillars may be simple large cardboard tubes, one black and the other white. The pillars may even be fashioned out of long single strips of cloth hung from the ceiling.

---

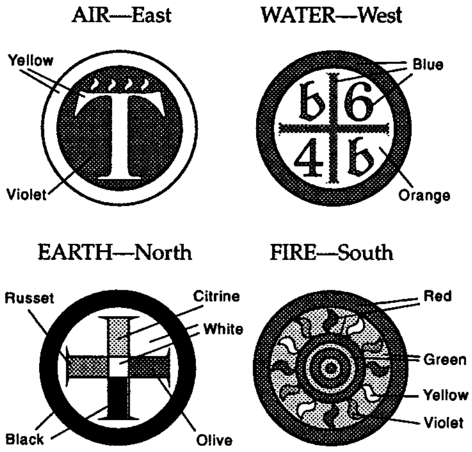
[18] The aspirant may elect to paint the symbols of the banners, cross and triangle, and lamens on sheets of posterboard or paper in the appropriate colors. The wands can be fashioned out of dowels with simple cardboard wand-heads. See our book Secrets of a Golden Dawn Temple for more information about making these implements.



AIR—East

WATER—West

EARTH—North

FIRE—South

Yellow
Violet
Blue
Orange
Russet
Citrine
White
Black
Olive Red
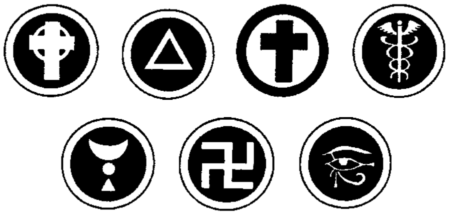
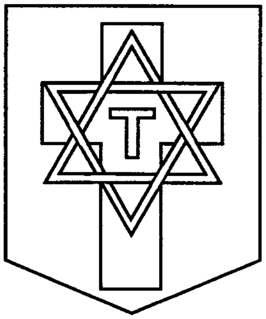
Green
Yellow
Violet

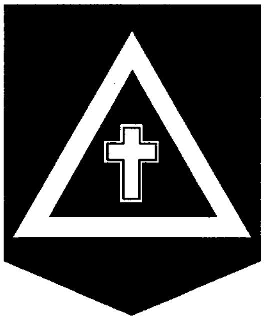
Elemental Symbols for the Four Quarters of the Temple



The Outer Order Lamens



The Banner of the East
Field—white; Cross—gold; Upper Triangle—red; Lower Triangle—Blue; Tau Cross—White



The Banner of the West
Field—black; Triangle—white; Cross—red; Outline of Cross—gold

The Wands and the Sword required to visualize each godform and be able to maintain the visualization for as long as it is called for. The student will also be required to visualize the various officer-forms within the temple—these forms are not the same as the godforms, although they are lesser extensions of them. (The officer-form of the Hierophant would appear as just that—a human being dressed in the robes and insignia of a Hierophant. The same is true for all of the officer-forms.) As stated earlier, it is the officer-forms who carry out specific functions within the temple, not the godforms themselves, that are assumed by the solitary initiate. When assuming an officer-form, the student inaugurates a separation of a particular godform and its corresponding officer-form. The two are clairvoyantly seen to be separated, although an etheric link between them remains. The officer-forms are returned to the dominion of their respective godforms when not in active use by the aspirant. When this is the case, the godform can be seen to absorb or overshadow the lesser form of the officer.

To summarize, a large part of the initiation rites in this book are to be carried out on a physical level, with actual temple symbolism (banners, lamens, altar, wands, etc.), to be constructed by the student. The astral work performed in these rituals revolve entirely around visualization of godforms, officer-forms and certain guided meditations.✡

THE NEOPHYTE CEREMONY

Temple Set-up: The aspirant will need to set up the Hall beforehand in accordance with the temple diagram. The black cubical altar is to be placed in the center of the room. Upon it are the symbols of the cross and triangle (the red cross is above the white triangle). The pillars are to be placed just East of the altar. The Banners of the East and West are placed in their respective quarters. A cup of Water should be placed in the North, and a censer of incense belongs in the South.

Around the circumference of the room are to be placed four candles: yellow in the East, red in the South, blue in the West, black in the North. In the Easternmost part of the temple should be placed a white candle. The aspirant should try to obtain glass candle holders which have two parts: a bottom which holds a colored votive candle and a glass cover (colored or opaque) with a hole in the top which acts to shade the candlelight.

A lantern should be placed in the Southwest. The four Elements of the Mystic Repast are to be placed on top of the altar near their respective quarters: a rose in the East, a red candle in the South, a chalice of wine in the West, and a paten of bread and salt in the North. The aspirant will need to have constructed beforehand the Hierophant's Wand, the Hegemon's Wand, and the Keryx's Wand. A convenient sword should also be procured for the station of Hiereus. The aspirant will need a finished Neophyte sash placed in the East of the temple. Elemental symbols may be placed in the four quarters. (See diagram.)

Ritual preparations: It is suggested that the aspirant fast for a period of 12 hours prior to the ritual. A ritual bath is required, after which the aspirant may put on the black Tau robe and red sandals or slippers. A black cord is to be wrapped three times around the waist. The aspirant must then spend a period of time (10 to 20 minutes) in a darkened room or antechamber to the temple seated in quiet meditation while wearing a hoodwink or blindfold. During this period of time, darkness and silence are to be maintained. The aspirant should imagine him/her self under the watch of Anubis of the West. After this period of silence, the hoodwink may be folded under the black cord tied around the waist. The aspirant may then enter the temple and begin the ritual. As you enter the temple, imagine that you are leaving your physical body outside as a sentinel to guard the temple—your spiritual self is free to receive initiation.

PART 1: The Opening

Enter the temple and walk clockwise to the East. With the sword, perform the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

Give one knock with the pommel of the sword against the floor or altar and say "HEKAS, HEKAS, ESTE BEBELOI!" (Hey-kass, Hey-kass, es-tay Bee-beh-loi).

Put the sword aside and go to the West of the temple, facing East. Kneel down and invoke the godform of Thmê (pronounced Tah-may) as follows. Vibrate strongly:

> THMÊ! THMÊ! THMÊ! Lady of the Feather by which all souls are measured! Thou daughter and eye of RA! Lady of Heaven, Queen of Earth and mistress of the Underworld! Great Lady of all the gods and goddesses. Thou whose name is MAAT! Lady of Truth! Goddess of Justice and Order! Mediator between Darkness and Light, Chaos and Order! THMÊ! THMÊ! THMÊ! Great Lady whose Name rules this temple—the Hall of the Dual Manifestation of MAAT, goddess of Truth! Thou who assesseth the heart of every man and woman in the Hall of Judgment before Ousiri and the assembly of the gods. Thou who art the eye and heart of balance! THMÊ! THMÊ! THMÊ! I invoke thee!

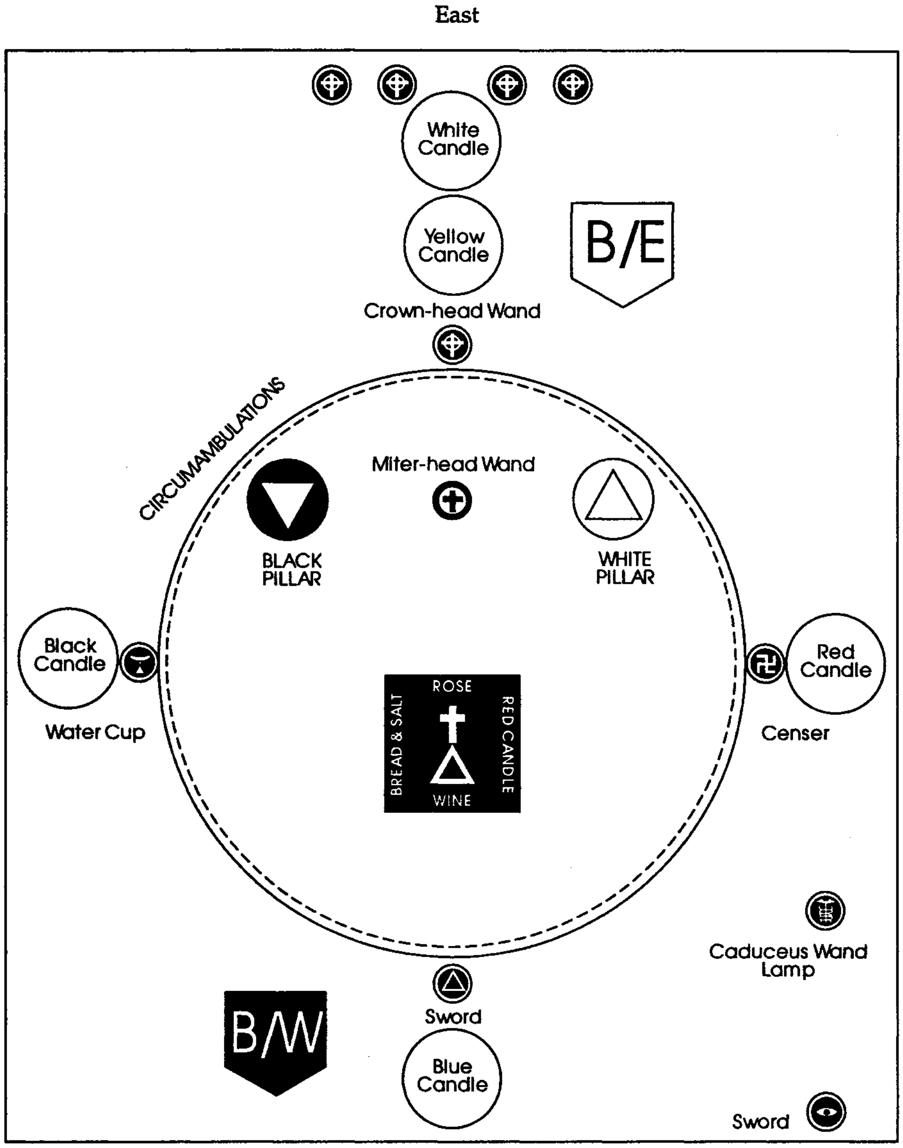
Sigil of Thmê

Visualize the image of the goddess Thmê before you, with human head and yellow-gold skin. She wears a black and white nemyss and a white linen gown. She carries the mitre-headed scepter of the Hegemon. Above her head is the glowing white outline of the cross and triangle, the symbol of the Outer Order of the G.·.D.·..



East
White Candle
Yellow Candle
B/E
Crown-head Wand
CIRCUMAMBULATIONS
Miter-head Wand
BLACK PILLAR
WHITE PILLAR
Black Candle
Water Cup
Red Candle
Censer
ROSE BREAD & SALT
RED CANDLE
WINE
Caduceus Wand
Lamp
Sword
B/W
Blue Candle
Sword

Neophyte Temple for Self-Initiation

Slowly and with much feeling, perform the Qabalistic Cross, drawing the light down from the Kether of the universe into the Kether at the crown of your head as you continue the QC (saying "ATAH, MALKUTH, VE-GEBURAH, VE-GEDULAH, LE-OLAHM, AMEN"). Strongly visualize the cross of Light you have formed in the center of your body. Trace within your heart the Hebrew letters of the name THMÊ in glowing white. Project a white ray of thought from your heart toward the image of Thmê you have created before you. See the figure breathe in life as your thought-ray animates it. Address the form:

> THMÊ! Beautiful One of the Feather of Truth! I beseech thee to act upon my behalf in this my quest for the Light Divine! Guide me, O thou who art none other but my own Higher Self. Aid me and escort me in this Hall of Judgment. I am a true and willing Seeker of Light and Knowledge. Act as my overseer and reconciler. Speak for me amidst the assembly of the gods and the guardians of this temple. My intentions are honest. I am ready to undergo test and trial. I wish to be purified and consecrated to the Light. Grant that my heart is made MAAT! Grant that my Will is made MAAT! Merciful THME! Let me be judged aright! Grant that this humble aspirant before you be not turned away from that resplendent Light which resides in the East. Award me entrance into the Hall of Two Truths! Let me penetrate the Threshold in the Path of the Enterer!

Thmê speaks to you in your own mind:

> I am the representative of your Higher and Holy Self. It is only through my intervention that thou canst even approach this sacred Hall. The Higher must arbitrate on behalf of the Lower, elevating it by virtue of association. In this Hall I am thy tongue, thy heart, and thy eye. Fear not, for I shall guide and conduct thee through the Hall of MAAT. Fear not, for I shall speak for thee in this assembly of the gods and the current of the Light.

Imagine the goddess Thmê communicating in silence with the energies in the East. She is the representative of your Higher Self, interceding on your behalf with the guardians of the Hall. You hear her voice as she calls out the names of other godforms in the East of the temple: ESE, NEBETHO, THOOUTH and another, HOOR OUER. You have a vague impression of four figures in the East, seated before a veil. As Thmê continues to address the figures, the scene becomes hazy, and it appears that the goddess stands not before the seated figures in the East, but before the gigantic form of Thoth—Djehoti—the ibis-headed god of Wisdom. Thmê continues a silent discussion with the god. After a few moments Thmê turns toward you, salutes with the Neophyte Signs toward the West and says silently:

> Thou mayest proceed, O aspirant; thou art MAAT.

> (Rise and salute with the Projection [Enterer] Sign and say:) I ask that the number of officers in this degree and the nature of their offices be proclaimed, that the Powers whose images they are may be reawakened in my sphere and in the sphere of this current—for by Names and Images are all Powers awakened and reawakened. (Give the Sign of Silence.)

Thmê again gives the Signs. She then holds out the palm of her hand, upon which rests a single white feather. The goddess of Truth inhales sharply and breathes upon the feather, which drifts lightly through the air toward you. The feather is absorbed into your heart center. Say:

> Breath is a symbol of Life. The letter "H" is a symbol of the ancient Greek aspirate or breathing, and breath is the evidence of Life. There are three chief officers in this grade, and they all commence with the letter "H": the Hierophant, the Hiereus, and the Hegemon. There are three lesser officers besides the Phylax; the Keryx, the Stolistes, and the Dadouchos.

Thmê takes you by the hand and leads you clockwise to the North, where she traces the figure of the cross and triangle with the miter-headed wand. As she does so, you vibrate the name, "AURAMOOUTH" (ow-rah-maht). The beautiful astral form of Auramoouth takes shape before you. She bears a blue cup. Visualize the figure strongly. The godform of Auramoouth traces in the air before you the figure of a cup. She then hands you her chalice of Water. Picking up the Water cup in the North, you take on the office of Stolistes that the goddess has bestowed upon you and turn to face the altar. Say:

> I am the Stolistes of the temple. My station is in the North to symbolize cold and moisture. My duties are to watch over the cup of lustral Water and to purify the Hall and the candidate with Water.

THE NEOPHYTE SIGNS

The Projection Sign The Sign of Silence

As the Stolistes, go clockwise to the East of the Hall. With the cup trace a cross in the air toward the East. Then sprinkle Water thrice in the form of an invoking Water triangle (tracing clockwise starting with the bottom point of the triangle). Trace this same figure in all four quarters, going clockwise around the room. Upon returning to the East hold the cup on high and say "I purify with Water." Return the cup to the North. Step out of the office of Stolistes and return the officer-form to the dominion of Auramoouth.

Thmê again takes you by the hand and leads you clockwise to the South. Once there she uses the miter-headed wand to trace the figure of the cross and triangle while you vibrate the name of, "THAUM-ESH-NEITH" (Thom-Aesh-Nay-eet). The goddess begins to formulate in the South. Neith bears a red censer. Visualize the figure strongly. The goddess Thaum-Esh-Neith traces in the air before you the figure of the swastika or Fylfot Cross. She then hands you her censer. Picking up the censer in the South, you take on the office of Dadouchos that the goddess has bestowed upon you and turn to face the altar. Say:

> I am the Dadouchos of the temple. My station is in the South to symbolize heat and dryness. My duty is to watch over the lamps and Fires of the temple, to watch over the censer and the incense, and to consecrate the Hall and the candidate with Fire.

As the Dadouchos, go clockwise to the East of the Hall. With the censer trace a cross in the air toward the East. Then wave the censer thrice in the form of an invoking Fire triangle (tracing clockwise starting with the top point of the triangle). Trace this same figure in all four quarters, going clockwise around the room. Upon returning to the East hold the censer on high and say "I consecrate with Fire." Return the censer to the South. Step out of the office of Dadouchos and return the officer-form to the dominion of Thaum-Esh-Neith.

Thmê again takes your hand and leads you clockwise to the Southwest. Once there she uses the wand to trace the figure of the cross and triangle while you vibrate the name of, "ANOUP EMPEIEBET" (Ah-noop-em-pay-yeh-bet). Anubis of the East begins to formulate there in the Southwest. The jackal-headed Anubis carries the Khi Wand or Caduceus and a violet lamp containing a red Yod of flame. Visualize the figure strongly. The god Anubis traces in the air before you the figure of the Caduceus. He then hands you his wand and lamp. Picking up the Caduceus Wand and lantern in the Southwest, you take on the office of Keryx that the god has bestowed upon you, and turn to face the altar. Say:

> I am the Keryx of the temple. My place is within the portal. I am the guardian within as the Phylax who represents ANOUP EMPEMENET (Ah-noop-em-pay-men-et) is the guardian without. I watch over the reception of the candidate. My duties are to lead all Mystic Circumambulations carrying the lamp of my office, and to make all reports and announcements.

> My lamp is the symbol of the Hidden Knowledge and my wand is the symbol of its directing Power.

Return the lamp and wand to the Southwest. Step out of the office of Keryx and return the officer-form to the dominion of Anubis.

Thmê takes you clockwise to her own station between the two pillars. Once again you vibrate the name of, "THME" as she makes the sign of the cross and triangle on herself. The goddess Thmê traces in the air before you the figure of a cross. She then hands you her miter-headed wand. Picking up the wand between the pillars, you take on the office of Hegemon that the goddess has bestowed upon you, and turn to face the altar. Say:

> I am the Hegemon of the temple. My station is between the two Pillars of Hermes and Solomon and my face is towards the Cubical Altar of the Universe. My duty is to watch over the gateway of the Hidden Knowledge, for I am the reconciler between Light and Darkness. I watch over the preparation of the candidate and assist in his (her) reception and I lead him (her) in the path that conducts from Darkness to Light. The white color of my mantle is the color of purity, my ensign of office is a miter-headed scepter to symbolize religion which guides and regulates life, and my office symbolizes those higher aspirations of the soul which should guide its action.

Return the wand. Step out of the office of Hegemon and return the officer-form to the dominion of Thmê. The goddess of Truth leads you clockwise to the West. Again she traces with her wand the figure of the cross and triangle as you vibrate the name of "HOOR" (Hoor or Hoh-or). Horus appears in the West. The hawk-headed god bears a red sword. Visualize the form strongly. The god traces in the air before you the figure of a triangle. He then hands you his sword. Picking up the sword and the banner of the West, you take on the office of Hiereus that the god Horus has bestowed upon you and turn to face the altar. Say:

> I am the Hiereus of the temple. My station is on the throne of the West and is a symbol of increase of Darkness and decrease of Light, and I am the Master of Darkness. I keep the gateway of the West and watch over the reception of the candidate and over the lesser officers in the doing of their work. My black mantle is an image of the Darkness that was upon the Face of the Waters. I carry the Sword of Judgment and the banner of the evening twilight, which is the Banner of the West, and I am called Fortitude by the unhappy.

Return the sword and the banner to the West and step out of the office of Hiereus. Thmê then takes you to the Eastern part of the Hall where she traces the symbol of the circled cross. Vibrate the name of "OUSIRI" (Oo-seer-ee) as the godform begins to formulate in the East. The mummy-wrapped Osiris wears a tall white Stenu crown and bears a white crown-headed scepter. Visualize the form strongly. The god traces in the air before you the figure of the cross and circle. He then hands you his scepter. Picking up the wand and the banner, you take on the office of Hierophant that Osiris has bestowed upon you, and turn to face the altar. Say:

> I am the Hierophant of the temple. My station is on the throne of the East in the place where the Sun rises, and I am the Master of the Hall, governing it according to the laws of the current, as he whose image I am is the Master of all who work for the Hidden Knowledge. My mantle is red because of uncreated Fire and created Fire, and I hold the banner of the morning light which is the Banner of the East. I am called Power and Mercy and Light in Abundance, and I am the Expounder of the Mysteries.

The goddess Thmê returns to her place between the pillars as Hegemon. Replace the banner but retain the wand. Turn to face the East. Give the Sign of the Spiraling Light. Say, "Let the white brilliance of the Divine Spirit Descend!" Feel a flood of Divine Light course through your body from the Kether of the universe. Equilibrate this Light through your body by performing the Qabalistic Cross, loudly vibrating the Hebrew names. Then replace the crown-headed wand. Step out of the office of Hierophant and return the officer-form to the dominion of Osiris. Go clockwise to the Southwest and take up the lantern and wand there. Step into the office of Keryx. Walk deosil (clockwise) to the Northeast and say:

> The visible Sun is the dispenser of Light to the Earth. Let me therefore form a vortex in this chamber that the invisible Sun of Spirit may shine therein from above.

Circumambulate the temple three times, carrying the equilibrated light with you around the temple. Salute the banner of the East with the Neophyte Signs for each circumambulation. After the third pass, return to the West and give the Projection Sign at the symbols upon the altar. Visualize the Divine Light that you have circulated around the temple flowing from your heart center and entering the red cross and the white triangle—empowering them with the divine current. Say:

> The Mystic Circumambulation symbolic of the Rise of Light is accomplished.

Perform the Adoration to the Lord of the Universe, saluting after the first three lines with the Projection Sign. After the final line, give the Sign of Silence:

> Holy art Thou, Lord of the Universe! (Salute.)
> Holy art Thou, Whom Nature hath not Formed! (Salute.)
> Holy art Thou, the Vast and the Mighty One! (Salute.)
> Lord of the Light and of the Darkness! (Sign of Silence.)

Imagine the three astral officer/godforms of the Hierophant, Hiereus and the Hegemon, raising their implements in a salute to the Light and then slowly lowering them.

Still in the office of the Keryx, go to the Northeast with wand and lamp. Hold the implements high and proclaim:

> In the Name of the Lord of the Universe, who works in silence and whom naught but silence can express, I declare that the Sun has arisen and the shadows flee away!

Return the implements to the Southwest and step out of the office of Keryx. Return control of the officer-form to Anubis. Walk to the West of the altar facing East. Give three knocks. Then repeat the following words, giving a knock before each word is spoken:

> KHABS. AM. PEKHT. KONX. OM. PAX. LIGHT. IN. EXTENSION.

Give the Neophyte Signs toward the altar.

PART 2: The Initiation

Before continuing, take the rose, red candle, cup of wine, and bread and salt off the altar and place them in their associated quarters. Visualize all the astral officer/godforms at their respective stations. Give one knock. Still standing West of the altar say: "This candidate seeks for entrance." Give a second knock and say:

> I vow that within this mystic sphere, I shall henceforth lose my name and be known in this temple as (state magical motto). I am the inheritor of a dying world, arisen and entered into Darkness. The Mother of Darkness hath blinded me with her hair. The Father of Darkness hath hidden me under his wings. My limbs are still weary from the wars which were in Heaven.

Anubis of the East speaks to you within your mind:

> Unpurified and unconsecrated, thou canst not enter our Sacred Hall.

Go clockwise to the station of Stolistes in the North. Visualize Auramoouth holding out the chalice of Water for you. She traces the sigil of the cup. Take up the cup and dip your thumb or index finger into the Water. Trace a cross upon your forehead. Then trace the Water triangle upon your brow, starting with the bottom point of the triangle. Say, "I am purified with Water." Return the cup.

Go clockwise to the station of Dadouchos in the South. Visualize Thaum-Esh-Neith holding out the censer for you. She traces the sigil of the Swastika. Take up the censer and trace with it a cross in front of your forehead. Then trace the Fire triangle in front of your brow, starting with the top point of the triangle. Say, "I am consecrated with Fire." Return the censer and walk to the West of the altar facing East.

Visualize the goddess Thmê appearing at your right side. Also imagine the godform of Osiris in the East. In your mind you hear him ask:

> Inheritor of a Dying World, why seekest thou to enter our Sacred Hall?
>
> (You answer:) My Soul wanders in Darkness and seeks the Light of the Hidden Knowledge. I believe that in this sacred temple of the Mysteries, knowledge of that Light may be obtained. I am truly willing to take a solemn obligation in the presence of this assembly to uphold the sacred Mysteries and the current of the Light.
>
> I understand that there is nothing contrary to my civil, moral or religious duties in this obligation. Although the magical virtues can indeed awaken into momentary life in the wicked and foolish hearts, they cannot reign in any heart that has not the natural virtues to be their throne.

Osiris speaks to you:

> He who is the fountain of the Spirit of man and of things, came not to break, but to fulfill the law. Are you ready to take this oath?

Say: "I am ready to take this oath." Kneel down and place your right hand on the cross and triangle on the altar. Imagine the astral forms of the six primary officer/godforms gathering around you to form a hexagram. The Hegemon is already at your right. The Hierophant as Horus the Elder comes down from the East, pinning a black serpent under his foot as he comes to the East of the altar. Hiereus appears at your left. Behind you are Stolistes, Keryx and Dadouchos. The Hierophant, who has taken on the godform of HOOR OUER takes your left hand in his.

At this point in the ritual you are aware that the Hall seems much more crowded now with godforms than before—godforms that you can barely perceive. In the East the colossal form of Thoth remains in the Sign of the Enterer. Winged Kerubic deities mark the four cardinal points of the temple. Additional Egyptian figures are stationed at the sub-quarters. But you are mostly aware of forty-two silent figures who line all sides of the temple walls. However your attention is captured by the four colored candles which designate the boundaries of your temple circle. In their place are four enormous pillars of fire and cloud. The pillar to your right and the one in front of you are dual pillars of Light. The pillar to your left and the one behind you are the twin pillars of Darkness. After a pause, repeat the oath:

> I (legal name) in the Presence of the Lord of the Universe, who works in silence and whom naught but silence can express, and in this Hall of the Neophytes of the current of the Golden Dawn, do, of my own free will, hereby and hereon, most solemnly promise by and on this holy symbol of the Light, to dedicate my life to the pursuit of the mysteries of the Golden > Dawn tradition of magic and to the completion of the Great Work. I solemnly promise to persevere with courage and determination in the labors of the Divine Science, even as I shall persevere with courage and determination through this ceremony which is their image. I pledge from this day forward to strive with enthusiasm and devotion, in the study of the Hermetic Arts, seeing that such teachings are not given to those who wish only a cursory knowledge thereof.

>
> I undertake to maintain a kindly and benevolent relation with all true seekers of the Light. I will respect all religions, seeing that all faiths contain a ray of the ineffable Light which I seek.
>
> I pledge that I will not suffer myself to be placed in such a state of passivity, that any person, power, or being may cause me to lose control of my words, thoughts, or actions.
>
> I vow that I will not debase my mystical knowledge in the labor of Evil magic at any time tried or under any temptation.
>
> I solemnly promise not to flaunt or parade any knowledge I may acquire to those who are not seekers of the Light, lest our sacred Knowledge be profaned through my error, vanity, or neglect.
>
> I swear upon this holy symbol to observe all these things without evasion, equivocation, or mental reservation. Furthermore, if I break this my magical obligation, I submit myself by own consent, to a punitive stream of power, set in motion by the Divine Guardians of this current, who live in the Light of their perfect justice, and before whom my soul now stands.

Hierophant, Hegemon and Hiereus officer/godforms whisper:

> They journey upon the winds, they strike where no one strikes, they slay where no one slays....
>
> (Say:) And as I bow my neck under the sword of the Hiereus, (visualize the sword on the nape of your neck) so do I commit myself unto their hands for vengeance or reward. So help me my mighty and secret Soul, and the Creator of my Soul who works in silence and whom naught but silence can express. (Give a knock.)
>
> Rise Neophyte of the 0 = 0 grade of the Golden Dawn.

Visualize the officer/godforms returning to their stations. In the East the colossal figure of Thoth gives the Sign of Silence. Take up the cup of Water and the censer. Thmê takes your hand and leads you to the North facing East. Anubis comes forward with wand and lamp to the Northeast. Say:

> The Voice of my undying and secret Soul said unto me—"Let me enter the path of Darkness and, peradventure, there shall I find the Light. I am the only being in an abyss of Darkness; from an abyss of Darkness came I forth ere my birth from the silence of a primal sleep."
>
> And the Voice of Ages answered unto my Soul—"I am he who formulates in Darkness—the Light that shineth in Darkness, yet the Darkness comprehendeth it not."
>
> Let the Mystical Circumambulation take place in the Path of Knowledge that leadeth unto the Light, with the lamp of Hidden Knowledge to guide me.

Visualize the Keryx and the Hegemon leading you sunwise around the temple. As you pass the Hierophant for the first time, imagine a loud knock and mentally intone the name of "BINAH." As you pass the Hiereus in the West, you also hear a loud knock. The second time you pass the Hierophant in the East, imagine a loud knock and mentally intone the name of "CHOKMAH." As you reach the South, the Keryx stops you. Anubis speaks:

> Unpurified and unconsecrated, thou canst not enter the Path of the West!

Auramoouth steps forward and draws the sigil of the cup before you. With the Water, mark your forehead with the symbols of the cross and Water triangle as before. Say: "I am purified with Water."

Thaum-Esh-Neith steps forward and draws the sigil of the Swastika before you. Wave the censer in front of your forehead in the figures of the cross and Fire triangle. Say: "I am consecrated with Fire."

Thmê speaks:

> Child of Earth, twice purified and twice consecrated, thou mayest approach the gateway of the West.

Continue to the West where the fierce form of the Hiereus stands. The fiery-eyed Horus with red sword and black banner bars your advance:

> Thou canst not pass by me, sayeth the Guardian of the West, unless thou canst tell me my name.
>
> (Say:) Darkness is thy name, thou great one of the Paths of the Shades. Before all things are the Chaos and the Darkness and the gates of the land of Night. Thou art he whose name is Darkness. Thou art the Exorcist in the midst of the Exorcism. I stand before thee without trepidation, for fear is failure, and I am without fear.

Horus speaks:

> Thou hast known me now, so pass thou on. Fear is truly failure, and he who trembles at the flame and at the flood and at the shadows of the Air, hath no part in God.

Give a knock. Visualize the Keryx and the Hegemon continuing to lead you in the procession. As you pass the Hiereus in the West, imagine a loud knock. When you pass the Hierophant, another knock is heard, and you mentally intone the name of "KETHER." As you reach the North, the Keryx stops you again. Anubis speaks:

> Unpurified and unconsecrated, thou canst not enter the path of the East!

Auramoouth steps forward and traces the symbol of the cup in the air before you. With the Water, mark your forehead with the symbols of the cross and Water triangle as before. Say: "I am purified with Water."

Thaum-Esh-Neith steps forward and traces the symbol of the Fylfot Cross in the air before you. Wave the censer in front of your forehead in the figures of the cross and Fire triangle. Say: "I am consecrated with Fire."

Thmê speaks:

> Child of Earth, thrice purified and thrice consecrated, thou mayest approach the gateway of the East.

Continue to the East where the form of the Hierophant stands. The great god Osiris with crown-headed wand and white banner bars your advance:

> Thou canst not pass by me, sayeth the Guardian of the East, unless thou canst tell me my name.
>
> (Say:) Light dawning in Darkness is thy Name, the Light of a Golden Day. After the formless and the Void and the Darkness, then cometh the knowledge of the Light. Thou art that Light which ariseth in Darkness. Thou art the Exorcist in the midst of the Exorcism. Unbalanced Power is the ebbing away of life. Unbalanced Mercy is weakness and the fading out of the Will. Unbalanced Severity is cruelty and the barrenness of mind. Thou art the wielder of the forces of Balance.

Osiris speaks:

> Thou hast known me now, so pass thou on to the Cubical Altar of the Universe.

Return the cup and the censer to the stations in the North and South. Thmê leads you to the West of the altar facing East. She remains on your right side. Hiereus comes to your left side. Stolistes, Keryx and Dadouchos form a triangle behind you. The Hierophant descends from the East in the godform of HOOR OUER, Horus the Elder. He holds the crown-headed wand and the Banner of the East. As the godform advances between the pillars, say:

> Come thou in the Power of the Light. Come Thou in the Light of Wisdom. Come Thou in the Mercy of the Light. The Light hath healing in its Wings.

Kneel down and visualize all the officer/godforms except the Hierophant doing likewise. For a moment, close your eyes and visualize before you the godform of HOOR-PEKHROTI (Hoor-Pay-Khroh-tee) the child-god of Silence seated upon a white lotus. The Hierophant then gives a knock. Say the following invocation and imagine all the godforms repeating the invocation along with you:

> Lord of the Universe—the Vast and the Mighty One! Ruler of the Light and the Darkness! We adore thee and we invoke thee! Look with favor upon this Neophyte who now kneeleth before thee. And grant thine aid unto the higher aspirations of his (her) soul, so that s/he may prove a true and faithful Frater (Soror) Neophyte. To the glory of Thine Ineffable Name. Amen.

Rise and envision the officer/godforms doing likewise. Visualize the three main officers crossing their implements over your head. They speak:

> Inheritor of a dying world, we call thee to the living beauty. Wanderer in the wild Darkness, we call thee to the gentle Light. Long hast thou dwelt in Darkness—Quit the Night and seek the Day! We receive thee into the current of the Golden Dawn.
>
> (Say:) KHABS. AM. PEKHT. KONX. OM. PAX. LIGHT. IN. EXTENSION.

Feel a white Light forming over your head in the shape of a triangle. The officers take down their implements.

> (Say:) In all my wandering the lamp of the Keryx went before me, though it was not seen by mine eyes. It is the symbol of the Light of the Hidden Knowledge.

Thmê leads you to the East of the altar, where you visualize that you are treading down a black serpent, a symbol of your own evil and unbalanced persona. Thmê remains on the outside of the white pillar. The astral form of Horus steps forward between the pillars to instruct you in the step, signs, grip, and words of a Neophyte.

Prompted by the godform, you give the step, by advancing your left foot a short space, as if entering a portal. Then give the First or Saluting Sign (Projection Sign) which alludes to your condition in a state of Darkness.

Give the Sign of Silence by placing the left forefinger on your lip, in the position of Harpocrates. (The First Sign is always answered by the Second.)

Exchange the grip or token with the officer/godform by advancing your left foot to touch his, toe and heel. Extend your hand to grasp his, fail and try again, succeeding in touching the fingers only (referring to your seeking guidance in Darkness). Give the Grand Word HAR-PAR-KRAT by whispering it to the astral officer, mouth to ear in exchanged syllables. It refers to the Egyptian god of Silence.

Horus then places you between the pillars. He takes up a position on the outside of the black pillar. You reach out to touch the columns. After a pause, say: "Let the final consecration take place."

Go to the station of the Stolistes. Auramoouth again traces the sigil of the cup before you. Take up the cup of Water. Return sunwise to the East of the temple and trace a cross in the Air with the implement. Sprinkle Water thrice towards the East in the form of the invoking Water triangle. Go clockwise around the temple and repeat in all four quarters. Upon returning to the East, step between the pillars and face East. Dipping into the Water, mark your forehead with the cross and Water triangle. Hold the cup high and say: "I am purified with Water."

Return the cup to the North and walk deosil to the South—the station of Dadouchos. Thaum-Esh-Neith traces the sigil of the Fylfot Cross before you. Take up the censer and walk to the East. With the censer, trace in the air the symbol of the cross and the invoking Fire triangle. Do this in all four quarters. Upon returning to the East, step between the pillars and face East. In front of your forehead, trace with the censer the symbols of the cross and the Fire triangle. Hold the censer high and say: "I am consecrated with Fire." Return the censer to the South and stand once more between the pillars. Visualize the four pillars surrounding you again, but this time they are strongly seen and felt.

Remove the black cord and hoodwink that was previously tied around your waist and throw them aside. Say: "The last remaining symbols of the Path of Darkness are removed." Pick up the Neophyte sash and put it on over your left shoulder. Say:

> In and by the actions of my Higher and Divine Self, I hereby invest myself > with the badge of this degree. It symbolizes Light dawning in Darkness.
> Let the Mystic Circumambulation take place in the pathway of Light.

Visualize all the astral officer/godforms except the Hierophant (who stands holding wand and banner) lining up in the Northeast. The Hegemon takes you behind the black pillar to stand in the procession. Following the lead of the Keryx, the circumambulation begins. All salute with the Signs when passing the Banner of the East. As you pass the station of the Hierophant, imagine the figure of a red cross formulating above your head—over the white triangle formed upon your brow. The Hiereus drops out after one pass of the East, and the Hegemon drops out of the procession after two passes. You and the visualized forms of the others follow the Keryx in a third pass. All the astral officers return to their places.

At this point, you replace the rose, red candle, cup of wine, and bread and salt to the top of the altar. Stand West of the altar. Again imagine the godform of Hoor peKhroti. Repeat the following:

> The threefold cord which was bound about my waist was an image of the threefold bondage of mortality, which amongst the initiated is called earthy or material inclination, that has bound into a narrow place the once far-wandering Soul; and the hoodwink was an image of the Darkness, of ignorance, of mortality that has blinded men and women to the happiness and beauty their eyes once looked upon.
>
> The Double Cubical Altar in the center of the Hall is an emblem of visible Nature or the Material Universe, concealing within herself the mysteries of all dimensions, while revealing her surface to the exterior senses. It is a double cube because, as the Emerald Tablet has said, "The things that are below are a reflection of the things that are above." The world of men and women created to unhappiness is a reflection of the world of Divine Beings created to happiness. It is described in the Sepher Yetzirah or The Book of Formation, as "An Abyss of Height" and "An Abyss of Depth," "An Abyss of the East" and "An Abyss of the West," "An Abyss of the North" and "An Abyss of the South." The Altar is black because, unlike Divine Beings who unfold in the Element of Light, the Fires of created Beings arise from Darkness and Obscurity.
>
> On the Altar is a white triangle to be the image of that immortal Light, the Triune Light, which moved in Darkness and formed the world of Darkness and out of Darkness. There are two contending forces and one always uniting them. And these three have their image in the threefold flame of our Being and in the threefold wave of the sensual world.

Stand in the form of the Tau Cross and say: "Glory be to thee, Father of the undying. For Thy glory flows out rejoicing, to the ends of the Earth!" Put your arms down and continue the speech as before:

> The red cross above the white triangle, is an image of him who was unfolded in the Light. At its East, South, West, and North angles are a rose, fire, cup of wine, and bread and salt. These allude to the four Elements, Air, Fire, Water, and Earth.

The Mystical Words—KHABS AM PEKHT—are ancient Egyptian, and are the origin of the Greek "KONX OM PAX" which was uttered at the Eleusinian Mysteries. A literal translation would be "Light rushing out in one Ray," and they signify the same form of Light as that symbolized by the staff of the Keryx.

East of the Double Cubical Altar of created things are the Pillars of Hermes and of Solomon. On these are painted certain Hieroglyphics from the 17th and 125th chapters of the Book of the Dead. They are the symbols of the two powers of day and night, love and hate, work and rest, the subtle force of the lodestone and the eternal out-pouring and in-pouring of the Heart of God.

The lamps that burn, though with a veiled light, upon their summits show that the pathway to Hidden Knowledge, unlike the pathway of Nature—which is a continual undulation, the winding hither and thither of the Serpent—is the straight and narrow way between them.

It was because of this that I stepped between the Pillars to receive the Light and to receive the fourth and final consecration. Two contending Forces and one which unites them eternally. Two basal angles of the triangle and one which forms the apex. Such is the origin of Creation—it is the Triad of Life.

The throne of the Hierophant at the gate of the East is the place of the Guardian of the Dawning Sun. The throne of the Hiereus at the gate of the West is the place of the Guardian against the multitudes that sleep through the Light and awaken at the twilight. The throne of the Hegemon seated between the columns is the place of Balanced Power, between the ultimate Light and the ultimate Darkness.

The wand of the Keryx is the beam of Light from the Hidden Wisdom, and his lamp is an emblem of the ever-burning lamp of the Guardian of the Mysteries.

The seat of the Stolistes at the gate of the North is the place of the Guardian of the Cauldron and the well of Water—of cold and moisture. The seat of the Dadouchos at the gate of the South is the place of the Guardian of the Lake of Fire and the Burning Bush.

Go to the Southwest to face the astral figure of Anubis of the East. The god traces the sigil of the Caduceus before you. Take up the Caduceus Wand and the lantern. Walk deosil to the Northeast and say:

In the name of the Lord of the Universe, who works in silence and whom naught but silence can express, hear ye all, that I (give magical motto) proclaim to have duly initiated myself into the Golden Dawn current of magic as a Neophyte of the 0 = 0 grade.

Replace the wand and the lamp in the Southwest. Return to the West of the altar. Say:

> I shall remember my obligations to keep secret this knowledge from those who are not Seekers of the Light—for strength is in silence, and the Seed of Wisdom is sown in silence and grows in darkness and mystery.
>
> I will hold all religions in reverence, for there is none but contains a ray from the ineffable Light which I seek. I will remember the penalty that awaits the breaker of the oath, and the mystery I have received, and that the secret of Wisdom can only be discerned from the place of Balanced Powers. I shall study well the Great Arcanum of the proper equilibrium of Severity and Mercy, for either unbalanced is not good. Unbalanced Severity is cruelty and oppression; unbalanced Mercy is but weakness and would permit Evil to exist unchecked, thus making itself, as it were, the accomplice of that Evil.
>
> I shall remember that things Divine are not attained by mortals who understand the body alone, for only those who are lightly armed can attain the summit.
>
> YHVH alone is our Light and the bestower of perfect Wisdom. No mortal power can do more than bring one to the pathway of that Wisdom, which he could if it so pleased him, put into the heart of a child. For as the whole is greater than the part, so are we but sparks from the insupportable Light which is in the Godhead. The ends of the Earth are swept by the borders of his garment of Flame—from him all things proceed and unto him all things return. Therefore I invoke him. Therefore even the Banner of the East falls in adoration before him.

Visualize Horus coming around to the East of the altar. You hold out your right hand to him. Imagine that the godform pricks the tip of your finger with his sword, causing a small drop of blood to appear. Stand in the position of the Tau Cross and say:

> If my oath be forgotten and my solemn pledge broken, let the hue of blood remind me that if I fail in this my oath, my blood may be poured out and my body broken, for heavy is the penalty exacted by the Guardians of the Hidden Knowledge from those who willfully betray their trust.

PART 3: The Closing

Give one knock. Go to the Northeast and say: "HEKAS, HEKAS, ESTE BEBELOI!" Return to the West of the altar and give four knocks. Give the Neophyte Signs.

Walk to the station of Stolistes in the North where Auramoouth traces the sigil of the cup before you. Take on the office of the Stolistes. Pick up the cup of Water. Go clockwise to the East of the Hall. With the cup trace a cross in the air toward the East. Then sprinkle Water thrice in the form of an invoking Water triangle. Trace this same figure in all four quarters, going clockwise around the room. Upon returning to the East hold the cup on high and say "I purify with Water." Replace the cup in the North, and return control of the officer-form to Auramoouth.

Walk to the station of Dadouchos in the South where Thaum-Esh-Neith traces the sigil of the Fylfot Cross before you. Pick up the censer. Take on the office of Dadouchos. Go clockwise to the East of the Hall. With the censer trace a cross in the air toward the East. Then wave the censer thrice in the form of an invoking Fire triangle. Trace this same figure in all four quarters, going clockwise around the room. Upon returning to the East hold the censer on high and say "I consecrate with Fire." Replace the censer in the South and return control of the officer-form to Thaum-Esh-Neith. Stand once more by the West of the altar. Say:

> Let the Mystical Reverse Circumambulation take place in the pathway of the Light.

All of the astral officer/godforms except the Hierophant (who stands holding wand and banner) line up in the Southeast. The Hegemon takes you by the West and South to stand in the procession. Following the lead of the Keryx, the counterclockwise circumambulation begins. All salute with the Signs when passing the Banner of the East. Imagine the Light that had been drawn into the temple slowly beginning to fade. The Hiereus drops out after one pass of the East, and the Hegemon drops out of the procession after two passes. You and the others, follow the Keryx in a third pass. Perform the Reversal Sign of the Spiraling Light. All the astral officers return to their places.

When finished, return to the East. Osiris traces the sigil of the cross and circle in the air before you. You step into the office of Hierophant that Osiris has bestowed upon you and take up the crown-headed scepter. Imagine the Divine Light that you have brought into the temple being withdrawn from the symbol upon the altar—back into your heart center and toward the Kether of the Universe. Perform the Qabalistic Cross to equilibrate the energies within you. Say:

> The Mystical Reverse Circumambulation is accomplished. It is the symbol of the Fading Light.

Facing East, perform the Adoration to the Lord of the Universe, saluting after the first three lines with the Projection Sign. After the final line, give the Sign of Silence.

> Holy art Thou, Lord of the Universe! (Salute.)
> Holy art Thou, Whom Nature hath not Formed! (Salute.)

> Holy art Thou, the Vast and the Mighty One! (Salute.)
> Lord of the Light and of the Darkness! (Sign of Silence.)

Imagine the three officers (Hierophant, Hiereus, and the Hegemon) raising their implements in a salute to the Light and then slowly lowering them. Step out of the office of Hierophant, returning the officer-form to the authority of Osiris. Say:

> Nothing now remains but to partake of the Mystic Repast, composed of the symbols of the Four Elements.

Go to the West of the altar, facing East. The goddess Thmê comes to the East of the altar, facing West. You give the Sign of the Enterer. Thmê answers with the Sign of Silence. Say:

> I invite all Beings present to inhale with me the perfume of this Rose, as a symbol of Air. (Smell the rose.)
>
> To feel with me the warmth of this sacred Fire. (Put your hand over the flame.)
>
> To eat with me this bread and salt as types of Earth. (Dip the bread into the salt and eat.)
>
> And finally to drink with me this wine, the consecrated emblem of Elemental Water. (Make a cross in the air with the cup and drink the wine.)

Once the wine is finished, place the cup upside-down between the cross and triangle. Say: "It is finished!" Thmê returns to her station between the pillars.

Give one knock and say, "TETELESTAI!" Give two more knocks. Then repeat the following words, giving a knock before each word is spoken: "KHABS. AM. PEKHT. KONX. OM. PAX. LIGHT. IN. EXTENSION." Give the Neophyte Signs toward the altar. Say:

> May what I have partaken maintain me in my search for the Quintessence, the Stone of the Philosophers. True Wisdom, Perfect Happiness, the Summum Bonum.

Thmê comes to your side once more. The both of you walk to the South where Thmê traces the form of the cross and triangle. The godform of Thaum-Esh-Neith salutes with the Projection Sign, Thmê answers with the Sign of Silence. The godform of Thaum-Esh-Neith slowly fades away. In this same manner she releases all the astral godforms in the hall: Auramoouth, Anubis, and Horus. She releases Osiris, and even the great form of Thoth in the East by tracing the symbol of the circled cross. All the astral beings in the hall begin to fade from view.

Thmê herself is the last to dissolve. You thank the goddess for her beneficent guidance and trace the figures of the cross and triangle before her. She salutes you with the Projection Sign. You answer with the Sign of Silence. Withdraw the white ray which had activated Thmê back into your heart center. Perform the Qabalistic Cross to equilibrate the energy.

Take up the sword and perform the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram. Say:

> I now declare this temple duly closed. So mote it be!✡

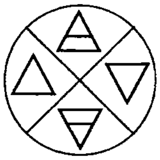
The First Knowledge Lecture

This is the work to be undertaken by the magician who has undergone the preceding initiation into the Neophyte grade. The lecture is divided up into six sections that make it easier for the reader to digest the knowledge. An examination for each section of the Knowledge Lecture is given at the end of this chapter.

SECTION 1: The Elements



There are four basic magical Elements: Fire, Water, Air, and Earth. (The final unifying Element of Spirit will be discussed in another chapter.) These four primary Elements are regarded as realms, kingdoms, or divisions of Nature. They are the basic modes of existence and action—the building blocks of everything in the universe. All that exists or has the potential to exist contains one or more of the these energies. (These Elements are not to be confused with the scientist's table of elements, which are only the most materialized expressions of the Elements in the physical plane.)

The four Elements of the ancients are assigned the dual combination of two of the four qualities of heat, cold, dryness, and moisture. They are:

Qualities	Name	Symbol
Heat and Dryness	FIRE	△
Cold and Moisture	WATER	▽
Heat and Moisture	AIR	🜁
Cold and Dryness	EARTH	🜃

The Element of Fire

(Egyptian—Ash or Ish, Hebrew—Asch, Latin—Ignis, Greek—Pyr.) Qualities of Fire: active, masculine, spontaneous, quick, initiating, initializing, vitalizing, and energetic.

The most physical expression of Fire is the visible, active phase of combustion manifesting in heat and light. The Element of Fire was seen by the Alchemists as an Element which operates at the center of all things, as well as the "agent of transmutation" because all things are derived from and return to Fire. This Element is seen as the great Supernal Father energy—the "seed" force of the universe. It is an Element with two purposes: (1) it is an expression of spiritual energy and the determination of the Spirit, (2) it purifies, burns, and destroys the old so that the new may emerge. Thus it is a symbol of transformation and regeneration. There is a direct parallel between the concepts of Fire and Life. Fire is an image of energy found at the level of animal passions as well as on the plane of spiritual fortitude. Its action is quick and unpredictable. To pass through Fire is symbolic of transcending the human condition. The direction or cardinal point assigned to Fire is South.

The Element of Water

(Egyptian—Mu, Hebrew—Maim, Latin—Aqua, Greek—Hydor.) Qualities of Water: passive, feminine, receptive, sustaining, subconscious, creative, fluidic, and generative.

In a mundane physical sense, water is a liquid compound of hydrogen and oxygen molecules. In an esoteric sense, the concept of Water implies all liquid materials. Furthermore, the primeval Waters, the image of all primal matter, contain all solid bodies before they obtain rigidity and form. The so-called "fluid body" of man is translated by modern psychology as a symbol of the unconscious or the archetypal feminine side of the personality. Water is seen as a symbol of the Maternal, the Great Mother, as well as the great unfathomable and mysterious well of Wisdom contained within the subconscious mind. In short, Water symbolizes the infinite realm of possibilities, which precede all form and all creation. It is limitless and immortal—the Waters of Creation. Submersion in Water alludes to a return to the pre-formed state. Like the Element of Fire, Water also symbolizes the ideas of transfiguration and regeneration. The direction or cardinal point assigned to Water is West.

The Element of Air

(Egyptian—Nef, Hebrew—Ruach, Latin—Aer, Greek—Aer.) Qualities of Air: active, masculine, intellectual, ethereal, abstract, and communicative.

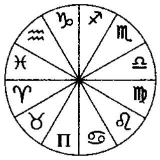
The physical expression of Air is that of a mixture of gases which forms the atmosphere of the Earth. Symbolically, Air is related to the creative breath of Life, and, therefore, speech. Light, flight, and weightlessness, as well as scent and smell are all related to the Element of Air. It is connected in many mythologies with the idea of creation and as a medium for movement and the emergence of life processes. Air is a volatile Element which is considered by the Qabalists to be the offspring of the Parental Elements of Fire and Water (thus creating steam). It is the Reconciler between the rival Elements of Fire (male) and Water (female)—balancing and equilibrating these two parental opposites. Air also alludes to the human intellect and thought processes, which are quick, changeable, and abstract. The direction or cardinal point assigned to Air is East.

The Element of Earth

(Egyptian—Ta, Hebrew—Aretz, Latin—Terra, Greek—Ge.) Qualities of Earth: passive, feminine, solid, materialization, physical, stable, slow-moving, and grounded.

In a technical sense, earth is the dry land surface of the planet, made up of solid organic and inorganic particles. Allegorically it is much more than that. Earth represents the physical, materialized universe in which we live. It is the tangible world around us that we can touch and feel. Earth is the Daughter of Fire and Water, just as Air is the Son. This Element encompasses all activities of productivity, fertility, growth, and regeneration. Earth is the fourth and final Element and the result of the actions of the other three. The direction or cardinal point assigned to Earth is North.✡

SECTION 2: The Zodiac



What is Astrology and why is it important? Astrology is a science that examines the action of celestial bodies upon all living beings, non-living objects, and earthly conditions, as well as their reactions to such influences. The study of the stars is in fact one of the oldest sciences known to humankind, tracing its origins back to ancient Sumer and even earlier. The Astrological arts were also well known to the Egyptians, Hindus, Chinese, Persians, and the great civilizations of the ancient Americas.

Astrology is the progenitor of astronomy, and for many years the two existed as one science. Nowadays, astronomy is considered an "objective" science of distances, masses, speeds, etc., while Astrology is a "subjective" and intuitive science which not only deals with the astronomical delineation of horoscopes, but can also be called a philosophy which helps to explain the spiritual essence of life.

There are in reality two branches of Astrology. The first is Exoteric Astrology which includes the mathematics of the art involved with charting a horoscope and the predictive arts. The second is Esoteric Astrology which deals with mysteries of the universe itself, the spiritual, moral, intellectual and physical dynamics of the cosmos. Esoteric Astrology reveals the universal pattern of living and the means by which human beings can align themselves with the spiritual fabric and pattern of the universe. It is a system for understanding celestial energies and a method for viewing the universe as a symmetrical whole.

Of great importance to the art of Astrology is the Zodiac. This is a circle or belt, which anciently was said to extend eight or nine degrees on each side of the ecliptic (the Sun's apparent path around the Earth, or the orbit of the Earth as viewed from the Sun.) The Zodiacal "wheel" is a flat chart which is divided into twelve houses, each of which is said to be ruled by one of the twelve Signs.

The twelve Signs of the Zodiac are distributed among the four Triplicities (or sets of three Signs). Each of these triplicities is attributed to one of the four Elements, and they represent the operation of the Elements in the Zodiac. The twelve Signs are also divided into three Quadruplicities (or groups of four Signs). Each of these Quadruplicities is attributed to one of the three qualities of Cardinal, Mutable, and Kerubic (Fixed).

The Triplicities (grouped by Element)

Fire Signs

Aries, Leo, and Sagittarius. Positive traits: fiery, impassioned, eager, spontaneous, independent, and enthusiastic. Negative traits: They can be too forceful, domineering, and overbearing.

Water Signs

Cancer, Scorpio, and Pisces. Positive traits: intuitive, receptive, emotional, sensitive, compassionate, and complex. Negative traits: They can be moody, easily influenced, self-pitying, and wavering.

Air Signs

Libra, Aquarius, and Gemini. Positive traits: able to communicate well, intellectual, logical, open-minded, idealistic, and objective. Negative traits: They can be cold, insensitive, and impractical.

Earth Signs

Capricorn, Taurus, and Virgo. Positive traits: stable, earthy, practical, dependable, conservative, and sensual. Negative traits: They can be dull, slow, possessive, and overly materialistic.

The Quadruplicities (grouped by quality)

Cardinal Signs

Aries, Cancer, Libra, and Capricorn. These Signs are known as Cardinal because they rule the change of seasons: Aries—spring; Cancer—Summer; Libra—Fall; and Capricorn—Winter. These Signs are also attributed to the four cardinal points of the compass: Aries—East; Cancer—North; Libra—West; and Capricorn—South. Positive qualities: Cardinal Signs are active, fervent, independent, enthusiastic, ambitious, and initiating. Mentally they are quick and insatiable. Negative qualities: They can be impetuous, domineering, thoughtless and without the ability to follow through with projects they have started.

Kerubic Signs

Leo, Scorpio, Aquarius, and Taurus. These Fixed Signs govern the middle month of each season. Unlike the Cardinal Signs which herald the transition between seasons, the Kerubic Signs are solidly established in the heart of each season. Positive qualities: These Signs are stable, determined, persevering, able to concentrate, and accumulative. Their goals are reached slowly but steadily. They are perceptive and have excellent memories. Negative qualities: They can be egotistical, obstinate and too firmly ingrained in their ways and opinions.

Mutable Signs

Sagittarius, Pisces, Gemini, and Virgo. These Signs rule the closing month of each season. Also called Common Signs, they govern the completion of the work of one season while looking ahead to the next season. Positive qualities: adaptable, versatile, changeable, subtle, intuitive, and understanding. Mentally, they are clever and flexible. Negative qualities: They can be unreliable, fickle, deceptive, and cunning.

To get a better understanding of each Sign, we will present a more in-depth look at each one in turn.

The Signs of the Zodiac

Symbol	Name	Image	Triplicity	Quadruplicity
♈	ARIES	the Ram	Fire	Cardinal
♉	TAURUS	the Bull	Earth	Kerubic
♊	GEMINI	the Twins	Air	Mutable
♋	CANCER	the Crab	Water	Cardinal
♌	LEO	the Lion	Fire	Kerubic
♍	VIRGO	the Virgin	Earth	Mutable
♎	LIBRA	the Scales	Air	Cardinal
♏	SCORPIO	the Scorpion	Water	Kerubic
♐	SAGITTARIUS	the Archer	Fire	Mutable
♑	CAPRICORN	the Sea Goat	Earth	Cardinal
♒	AQUARIUS	the Water-bearer	Air	Kerubic
♓	PISCES	the Two Fish	Water	Mutable

♈ ARIES (March 21–April 19)

Sigil: Ram's horns Triplicity: Fire Quality: Cardinal
Key phrase: I AM Key word: ACTIVITY

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
quick	quick-tempered
initiating	overbearing
pioneering	violent
executive	intolerant
eager	egotistical
courageous	impatient
independent	abrupt
dynamic	doesn't follow through impulsive	hasty
competitive	"after ME"
lives in the present

♉ TAURUS (April 20–May 20)

Sigil: Bull's head Triplicity: Earth Quality: Kerubic
Key phrase: I HAVE Key word: STABILITY

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
stable	short-tempered
dependable	bull-headed practical	slow-moving
thorough	quarrelsome
domestic	possessive
conventional	greedy
aesthetic	selfish
sensual	materialistic

♊ GEMINI (May 21–June 20)

Sigil: Roman Numeral 2 Triplicity: Air Quality: Mutable
Key phrase: I THINK Key word: VERSATILITY

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
versatile	changeable
adaptable	alternating
sociable	scatterbrained
dual	conniving
expressive	fidgety
inquisitive	short attention span inventive	lacks follow-through dexterous	lacks powers of concentration intelligent literary quick-witted

♋ CANCER (June 21–July 22)

Sigil: Crab's claws Triplicity: Water Quality: Cardinal
Key phrase: I FEEL Key word: DEVOTION

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
nurturing	self-pitying
maternal	self-centered
domestic	moody
traditional	sulky
emotional	negative
sensitive	overcautious
understanding	indolent
supportive	manipulative
retentive	overly emotional excellent memory

♌ LEO (July 23–August 22)

Sigil: Lion's tail Triplicity: Fire Quality: Kerubic
Key phrase: I WILL Key word: MAGNETISM

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
romantic	egotistical
charismatic	conceited
dramatic	bombastic
distinguished	pompous
proud	childish
ambitious	status conscious
enterprising	domineering
self-confident	cruel
idealistic	tyrant charitable

♍ VIRGO (August 23–September 22)

Sigil: Greek word for virgin Triplicity: Earth Quality: Mutable
Key phrase: I ANALYZE Key word: PRACTICALITY

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
practical	faultfinding
analytical	critical
discriminating	picky
scientific	cynical
systematic	stuffy
exacting	snobbish
diligent	hypochondriac
industrious	self-centered perfectionist neat

♎ LIBRA (September 23–October 22)

Sigil: The scales Triplicity: Air Quality: Cardinal
Key phrase: I BALANCE Key word: HARMONY

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
sociable	indecisive
tactful	ambivalent
amicable	inconsistent
cooperative	sulking
persuasive	easily deterred
peace-loving	lover of intrigue sophisticated	peace at any cost diplomatic fair

♏ SCORPIO (October 23–November 21)

Sigil: Scorpion's Tail Triplicity: Water Quality: Kerubic
Key phrase: I DESIRE Key word: INTENSITY

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
intense	temperamental
profound	irritable
penetrating	intolerant
resolute	domineering
motivated	violent
resourceful	jealous
passionate	resentful
aware	distrustful
investigative	secretive

♐ SAGITTARIUS (November 22–December 21)

Sigil: Archer's arrow Triplicity: Fire Quality: Mutable
Key phrase: I UNDERSTAND Key word: VISUALIZATION

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
freedom-loving	exaggerating
honest	quarrelsome
straightforward	talks too much
open-minded	blunt
philosophical	tactless
religious	impatient
educated	procrastinating
ethical	self-indulgent
optimistic	pushy
enthusiastic	hot-headed
charitable	a risk-taker

♑ CAPRICORN (December 22–January 19)

Sigil: Sea-goat's horn and tail Triplicity: Earth Quality: Cardinal
Key phrase: I USE Key word: AMBITION

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
ambitious	stubborn
hardworking	sulking
serious	egotist
businesslike	status-conscious
conservative	overbearing
pragmatic	unforgiving
prudent	fatalistic
responsible	inhibited
scrupulous	mind over heart

♒ AQUARIUS (January 20–February 18)

Sigil: Waves of water Triplicity: Air Quality: Kerubic
Key phrase: I KNOW Key word: IMAGINATION

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
imaginative	unemotional
inventive	aloof
progressive	dispassionate
independent	temperamental
scientific	unpredictable intellectual	shy
logical	eccentric
individualistic	extremist
understanding	unruly benevolent	fixed in opinions philanthropic

♓ PISCES (February 19–March 20)

Sigil: Two fish tied together Triplicity: Water Quality: Mutable
Key phrase: I BELIEVE Key word: UNDERSTANDING

Positive traits:	Negative traits:
understanding	negative
intuitive	pessimistic
instinctive	melancholy
introspective	procrastinating humanitarian	hesitating compassionate	chatterbox
charitable	lazy
sympathetic	impractical
emotional	unrealistic
sacrificing	fearful
artistic	fainthearted
musical	feels misunderstood
sensitive	emotionally constrained

SECTION 3: The Seven Ancient Planets

♄ To the Ancients, five Planets were known besides the luminaries of the Sun and the Moon. The Planets, like the Zodiacal Signs, each have a set of characteristics assigned to them. Each Planet is said to rule one or more of the Signs. The energy of a Planet is strong in the Sign(s) that it rules (the Sign of the Planet's dignity). In addition every Planet also has one Sign, aside from the one it rules, where it expresses itself in a compatible fashion (the Sign of the Planet's exaltation). When a Planet is in the Sign directly opposite to the one it rules, it is in the Sign of its detriment. Also, when a Planet is in the Sign opposite of its exaltation, it is in the Sign of its fall. Thus a Planet's dignity and its exaltation are harmonious with its energy, while its detriment and its fall are contrary to the Planet's energy. To get a better idea of the energies and associations of each Planet, the following explanations are provided:[20]

☽ LUNA (The Moon)

Rules: Cancer Exaltation: Taurus
Detriment: Capricorn Fall: Scorpio
Represents: domestic, nurturing urge
Key word: EMOTIONS

Luna is a Roman name identified with Diana, goddess of the Moon. The Moon embodies the primary female principle and women in general. It encompasses instincts, moods, feelings, habits, the subconscious, tides, phases, reflexes, reflections, alternations, and receptivity. Luna rules needs, desires, personal interests, magnetism, liquids, impressionability, fertility, and growth. The Moon's action changes and fluctuates.

☿ MERCURY

Rules: Gemini, Virgo Exaltation: Aquarius
Detriment: Sagittarius, Pisces Fall: Leo
Represents: intellectual, expressive urge
Key word: REASONING POWERS

Mercury is named after the fleet-footed Roman messenger god. Mercury governs communication, reason, intellect, rationalization, awareness, perceptions, adroitness, opinions, transmission, words, speaking, writing, mailings, and means of expression. In addition Mercury deals with family, children, siblings, social contacts, day-to-day activities, travel, and transportation. This Planet's action is rapid, unpredictable, and explosive.

♀ VENUS

Rules: Taurus, Libra Exaltation: Pisces
Detriment: Scorpio, Aries Fall: Virgo Represents: social urge, values
Key word: AFFECTION

Venus, the Planet of Love, named after the Roman goddess, was in ancient times nicknamed the Lesser Benefic. It governs pleasure, natural love, sensuality, sociability, attraction, interaction, art, music, poetry, drama, song, culture, beauty, possessions, jewelry, candy, sentiments, color, marriage, and unions. Its action is mild and harmonious.

---

[20] Note that here the Planets are given in the order of their speed, whereas in most other Golden Dawn listings they are given in a reverse order according to their attribution to the Sephiroth descending the Tree of Life.

☉ SOL (The Sun)

Rules: Leo Exaltation: Aries
Detriment: Aquarius Fall: Libra
Represents: Power urge, ego, personality
Key word: INNER SELF

Sol is the Roman name of the invincible Sun deity. It is the origin of the word "Solar." Sol represents the primary masculine principle and men in general. It is also the fundamental expression of the individual, displaying qualities of success and leadership. Sol governs health, vitality, personal fulfillment, energy, essential principles, authority, command, rank, office, title, advancement, identity, and capacity for experience. The Sun's action is energizing and stimulating.

♂ MARS

Rules: Aries (co-rules Scorpio) Exaltation: Capricorn Detriment: Libra (Taurus) Fall: Cancer
Represents: Aggressive urge, initiative, action
Key word: ENERGY

The Planet Mars, named after the Roman god of war, was referred to by the Ancients as the Lesser Malefic. It governs desires, sexual energies, focused energies, dynamic action, animal nature, force, power, strife, strain, adversity, work, achievement, competition, and death. Mars also rules weapons, war, accidents, violence, surgery, tools, iron, and steel. The action of this Planet is sudden, forceful, and disruptive. The energy of Mars can be used violently and destructively or with valor and fortitude.

♃ JUPITER

Rules: Sagittarius (sub-rules Pisces) Exaltation: Cancer Detriment: Gemini (Virgo) Fall: Capricorn
Represents: compassionate, protective urge
Key word: EXPANSION

Jupiter, named after the primary Roman god was called the Greater Benefic by the ancients. Jupiter is the lawmaker, the judge, and the benefactor of humankind. This Planet rules leisure time, wealth, growth, prosperity, opportunity, assimilation, indulgence, optimism, big business, morality, the higher (abstract) mind, higher education, ambitions, philosophy, and luck. Jupiter's action is orderly and efficient and fosters growth and increase.

♄ SATURN

Rules: Capricorn (sub-rules Aquarius) Exaltation: Libra
Detriment: Cancer (Leo) Fall: Aries
Represents: security, safety urge
Key word: THE TEACHER

Saturn, named after the Roman god of agriculture, was called the Greater Malefic in earlier times. This Planet is known as the taskmaster of the horoscope. It rules organization, discipline, responsibility, structure, goals, career opportunities, limitations, conservatism, crystallized focus, restrictions, delays, theories, orthodoxy, tradition, depth, time, patience, truth, wisdom, aging, and solidification. Saturn's action is slow and enduring.

The Ancients also assigned certain Planetary values to the North and South Nodes of the Moon, that is, the points in celestial longitude where the Moon crosses over the ecliptic or path of the Sun. Luna's North Node is listed by its position in the ephemeris and the South Node is always its exact opposite, having the same number of degrees and minutes, but of the converse Sign. The Nodes of the Moon are called:

CAPUT DRACONIS (The Head of the Dragon) North Node ☊
CAUDA DRACONIS (The Tail of the Dragon) South Node ☋

The North Node is a point of gain, increase and added self-assurance. The South Node is a point of release, decrease, and letting go.

The Days of the week are attributed to and (in some cases) named after the seven ancient Planets and the gods who represented them. They are:

Norse	Latin	Saxon	English
	Sol	Sun's Day	Sunday
	Luna	Moon's Day	Monday
Tyr	Mars	Tiw's Day	Tuesday
Wotan	Mercury	Woden's Day	Wednesday
Thor	Jove (Jupiter)	Thor's Day	Thursday
Freya	Venus	Frigg's Day	Friday
	Saturn	Seterne's Day	Saturday

The New Planets

Uranus was discovered on March 13, 1782. Neptune was discovered on September 24, 1846, and Pluto on January 21, 1930. These outer Planets did not have a prominent place in early Order teachings, although the effect of Caput Draconis was said to be similar to that of Neptune, and the influence of Cauda Draconis was supposed to be similar to that of Uranus. Because these Planets are slow moving in their orbits around the Sun, they are regarded as symbols of eras. These Planets, which are also referred to as the Transcendental Planets, do not enter into the ancient sevenfold scheme of the Heptad of the Planets, which is a vital aspect of the Golden Dawn system of magic. Because of this, the outer Planets will rarely be referred to elsewhere in this book. They are mentioned here because it is important that today's student have a thorough grounding in the basics of modern Astrology.

♅ URANUS

Rules: Aquarius (with sub-ruler, Saturn) Exaltation: Scorpio
Detriment: Leo Fall: Taurus
Represents: Freedom urge ("divine discontent")
Key word: THE AWAKENER

Uranus was the god of the starlit sky, the progenitor of the gods. The Planet Uranus rules science, electricity, lightning, the stroke of genius, suddenness, magic, the occult, Astrology, x-rays, inventions, discoveries, originality, and psychology. It is intellectual, progressive, futuristic, humanitarian, egotistical, rebellious, eccentric, unorthodox, unconventional, and utopian. This Planet rules sudden change, individualism, independence, autonomy, and natural disasters. It is considered to be the upper octave of Mercury. Uranus's action is sudden, unforeseen, and usually violent.

♆ NEPTUNE

Rules: Pisces (with sub-ruler, Jupiter) Exaltation: ——
Detriment: Virgo Fall: ——
Represents: spiritual or escapist urge
Key word: INTUITION

The Planet Neptune is named for the Roman god of the Sea. It rules liquids, all marine activities, glamour, the stage, movies and television, the fantastic, dreams, psychic powers, intuition, illusion, delusion, mystique, spirituality, ideals, things we take for granted, fog, mystery, intangibles, immateriality, fragrances, trances, drugs, addictions, hypnosis, and sleep-walking. Neptune is said to be the upper octave of Venus. Its action is subtle and imperceptible, yet sometimes insidious.

♇ PLUTO

Rules: Scorpio (with co-ruler, Mars) Exaltation: ——
Detriment: Taurus Fall: ——
Represents: Fusion, destroying or reforming urge
Key word: TRANSFORMATION

The Planet Pluto was named after the god of the Underworld. It governs all things that are secret or hidden from view, such as the subconscious mind. Pluto also rules replication, conception, generation, regeneration, degeneration, birth and death, beginnings and endings, bacteria, viruses, slow growth, turmoil, rejuvenation, transfiguration, reorganization, phobias, obsessions, subversion, atomic power, crime, exposure, isolation, perspective, awareness of the masses, covert activities, and the exclusive. Many consider it to be the higher octave of Mars. Pluto's action is slow, ponderous and inescapable.

Finally, we must refer to the Earth which is not usually portrayed along with the other Planets. This is because the Earth as a Planet never leaves our sphere of experience. It is terra firma—a constant that is always with each of us, here and now, under our feet (so long as modern man does not destroy her). It represents the physical plane and mundane matters. In astrological terms the Earth is tentatively ruled by Taurus. Its Key word is Reality. In a horoscope, the Earth is always the exact opposite of the Sun by Sign, degree, and house placement. It alludes to the individual's mission in life.✡

Table of Essential Dignities

Planet	Dignity	Detriment	Exaltation	Fall
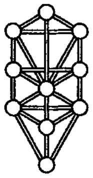
Saturn	♑,♒	♋,♌	♎	♈
Jupiter	♐,♓	♊,♍	♋	♑
Mars	♈,♏	♎,♉	♑	♋
Sol	♌	♒	♈	♎
Venus	♉,♎	♏,♈	♓	♍
Mercury	♊,♍	♐,♓	♒	♌
Luna	♋	♑	♉	♏
Uranus	♒	♌	♏	♉
Neptune	♓	♍
Pluto	♏	♉

SECTION 4: The Qabalah



Qabalah is a Hebrew word which means "tradition." It is derived from the root word qibel, meaning "to receive." This refers to the ancient custom of handing down esoteric knowledge by oral transmission. What the word Qabalah encompasses is an entire body of ancient Hebrew mystical principles that are the cornerstone and focus of the Western Esoteric Tradition. Virtually all Western spiritual systems can trace their roots to the Qabalistic Tree of Life. The exact origins of the Qabalah are unclear, but it certainly contains some vestiges of Egyptian, Greek, and Chaldean influence.

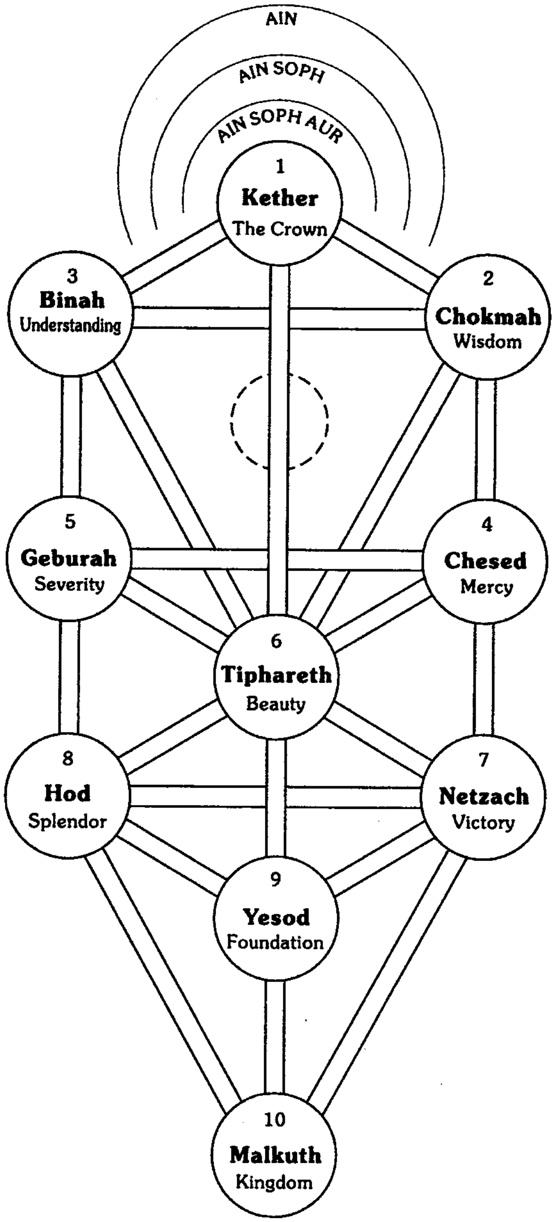
By its nature, mysticism is knowledge that cannot be communicated directly but may be expressed only through symbolism and metaphor. Like other esoteric systems, Qabalah also draws upon the mystic's awareness of the transcendence of the eternal deity. Another element of Qabalah is that it seeks to reveal the hidden mysteries of the Divine as well as the connection between the divine life on one hand and the life of humans on the other. The goal of the Qabalist is to discover and invent keys to the understanding of arcane symbols which reflect the eternal mysteries.

Israel Regardie stated that, "Qabalah is a trustworthy guide, leading to a comprehension of the universe and one's own self." It is all this and more. This "Tradition" was never restricted to instruction in the mystical path alone; it also includes ideas on the origins of the universe, of Angelic hierarchies, and the practice of magic. Qabalah is the foundation upon which the art of Western magic rests. Magic has been defined by Aleister Crowley as "the science and art of causing change to occur in conformity with Will." To this Dion Fortune added "changes in consciousness."

The Qabalah, which Dion Fortune called "the Yoga of the West" reveals the nature of certain physical and psychological phenomena. Once these are rightly understood, the student can use the principles of magic to exercise control over the conditions and circumstances of his/her life. Magic provides the practical application of the theories supplied by the Qabalah.

The Qabalah as it exists today is a vibrant, living and dynamic philosophy which includes ideas on the origin of the entire Cosmos, the eternal mind of God, and the spiritual development of humankind. It is a precise mystical system that describes universal laws and shows us how to utilize spiritual principles in everyday life. By firmly fixing Qabalistic symbols such as the Tree of Life in one's mind, the aspirant has access to a balanced group of archetypes that the Inner Self can more easily relate to, thus making true spiritual growth more readily attainable. As the Hermetic student begins to contemplate and experience the energies of the Sephiroth (the ten emanations of the Qabalistic Tree of Life) s/he will find that they develop into genuine Forces that become animated within the psyche. These newly awakened Forces will initiate a process of reorganization in the mind of the student, gathering up disjointed elements of the Divine Powers which lay dormant in the average person. They begin to structure themselves in accordance with the Sephiroth, permitting the student to tap into a previously unknown source of Divine Inspiration which is kept alive and prolific through meditation and active ritual work. The Qabalah has often been called the "Ladder of Lights" because it not only depicts Cosmic generation, which is the descent of the Divine into the physical, but also defines how the individual may employ it for spiritual ascent by purifying both body and mind through ceremony, contemplation, and prayer, until at length one achieves that pristine state of consciousness that is necessary to attain union with the Higher Self, which is the emissary to the Divine Self represented by the first Sephirah of Kether.

Some people who have a brief encounter with the Qabalah come away with the idea that it is a purely patriarchal or male-oriented philosophy simply because of its Hebrew origins. Nothing could be further from the truth. Take for example a word which is common throughout Qabalistic teachings, "Elohim." This a word formed from a feminine noun, "Eloah" and a masculine plural "im." You are left with a word that has both male and female characteristics which literally means "gods"—the creative principle formed from the perfect and equal union of



AIN
AIN SOPH
AIN SOPH AUR
1 Kether
The Crown
3 Binah
Understanding
2
Chokmah
Wisdom
5 Geburah Severity
4 Chesed Mercy
6 Tiphareth
Beauty
8
Hod Splendor
7 Netzach
Victory
9
Yesod Foundation
10 Malkuth
Kingdom

The Tree of Life

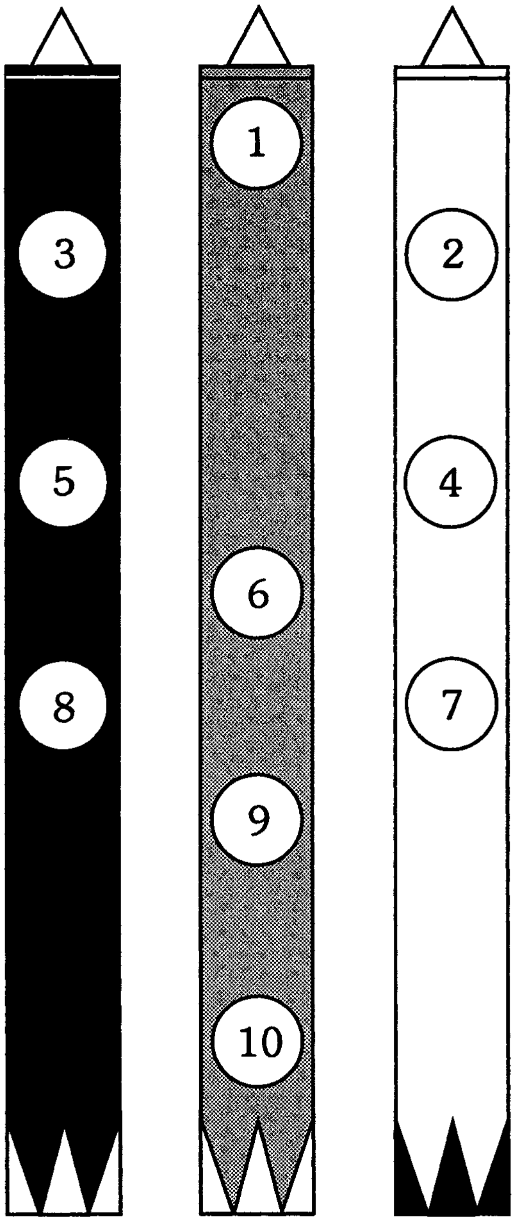
the divine male and the divine female principles. Read in this context, the Qabalistic origins of the first five books of the Old Testament (the Pentateuch) give an entirely new meaning. The first sentence of Genesis, which in Hebrew begins as "Berashith bara Elohim Ath-ha-Shamaim w'Ath ha-Aretz," can be interpreted as "In the beginning, the gods (the united Male and Female aspects of the Divine) created the Heavens and the Earth." This idea of the equality of the divine male and divine female principles, although suppressed for centuries by male-dominated societies, is carefully hidden in Qabalistic doctrine, although at times it has slipped out unforeseen in almost all translations of the Pentateuch, such as in Genesis 1:26 and 1:27: "And God went on to say let us make man in our image, according to our likeness," "And God proceeded to create the man in his image, in God's image he created him; male and female he created them."

Another example is the word Sephiroth, which is used to describe the ten emanations of the Divine. Here we have a feminine noun Sephirah being joined to a feminine plural "oth." This again points to the importance of the feminine in Qabalah. The Sephiroth themselves are generally considered feminine because they structure and give form to the emanations of deity. Thus anyone who seriously studies the Qabalah for any length of time will see that it is a very balanced system for spiritual growth.

The Qabalah is usually classified under four heads which overlap each other in some instances. They are:

1. THE DOGMATIC QABALAH—the study of ancient Qabalistic books such as the Written Torah also called the Pentateuch, the Zohar, the Bahir, and the Sepher Yetzirah.
2. THE PRACTICAL QABALAH—deals with the construction of talismans used in ceremonial magic.
3. THE LITERAL QABALAH—deals with Gematria; the relationships between numbers and the letters of the Hebrew alphabet, which yield many hidden meanings of Hebrew words and names.
4. THE UNWRITTEN QABALAH—refers to the correct knowledge of the sacred symbol known as the Tree of Life (Etz-ha-Chayim). This is the only branch of the Qabalah that the Neophyte of this course will need to study for now.

We will not at this time describe the long history and evolution of the Qabalah as espoused and elucidated by various teachers and sources down through the ages. To do so would be to place an undue burden upon the Neophyte. However, for ambitious students who like to take on burdens, we highly recommend a book by Gershom Scholem called simply Kabbalah published by Dorset Press (New York). This book gives an excellent and detailed account of the various schools of Qabalistic thought.



1
3
2
5
4
6
8
7
9 10

The Pillars

SECTION 5: The Sephiroth

The Hebrew Qabalists referred the highest and most abstract ideas to ten emanations of deity which are called the Sephiroth (sef-eer-oth). Singularly they are called Sephirah. When arranged in a certain manner, the ten Sephiroth and the twenty-two paths which connect them form the Tree of Life. Together, the Ten Sephiroth and the Twenty-two Paths comprise what are called the Thirty-two Paths of Wisdom.

The Tree of Life is the single most important symbol of the Qabalah. Just a glance at its diagram will reveal it to be a system of perfect mathematics, symmetry, and beauty. It is represented as ten circles or orbs known as the Sephiroth, which is said to mean "Numbers," "Spheres" and "Emanations."[21] Some have seen the Sephiroth as divine powers or vessels. Others regard them as divine tools or instruments of the Eternal (although not separated from the Eternal like human tools are). All agree, however, that the Sephiroth express divine attributions or essences that are organized into an archetypal pattern which is the model for everything that has come into the manifest universe. The relationships implied in the Tree of Life underscore the whole of existence, and so the attributes of the Sephiroth may be found in any branch of knowledge. Although their basic definition confirms them as characteristics of the Divine, they can be described in terms of human experience because men and women are formed as stated before, in the image of the Divine.

One essential aspect of the Sephiroth is that they are placed upon the Tree of Life in perfect juxtaposition, so that each Sephirah counterbalances one on the opposite side of the Tree. The ten Sephiroth emanate from the Three Negative Veils of Existence (various abstract stages of "nothingness") in succession as if "one candle were lit from another without the Emanator being diminished in any way" and in a specific order. They are not seen as being separated from the Source. The Qabalists agree that there are ten because ten is a perfect number, one which includes every digit without repetition, and contains the total essence of all numbers. The number ten is therefore an all-embracing number. Outside of ten there exists no other such number, because what is beyond ten returns again to units.

The Pillars

The most important configuration which occurs on the Tree is that of three pillars formed by the natural succession of the Sephiroth. The left-hand pillar, also called the Pillar of Severity, consists of the spheres of Binah, Geburah, and Hod. The right-hand pillar, known as the Pillar of Mercy, is comprised of the spheres of Chokmah, Chesed, and Netzach. The central spheres of Kether, Tiphareth, Yesod, and Malkuth form the Middle Pillar, or the Pillar of Mildness.

The right-hand or white pillar is described as masculine, positive and active. It is also known as the Pillar of Force. The left-hand or black pillar is feminine, negative and passive. This pillar is called the Pillar of Form. The black and white pillars represent the two great contending Forces in Nature, and their descriptions are not meant to imply that one is good and the other evil, but rather that magnetic energy exists between these two universal opposite forces. The whole of the cosmos depends upon the perfect balance of these energies.

---

[21] The word Sephirah is derived from the root word ספר, from which come sepher—"book," siphar—"number," sippur—"story," and sipper—"to tell."

The Middle Pillar is the pillar of balanced forces; the equilibrium of the other two columns. (In Golden Dawn temples only the left and right pillars are physically symbolized by actual pillars. The Middle Pillar is represented by the aspirant standing between the other two.)

Sexual Polarity on the Tree

There are numerous schools of Qabalistic thought that ascribe masculine or feminine attributes to each of the Sephiroth. Often times these various sources disagree with one another. Disagreements over Qabalah insure that the system is kept alive, dynamic, and expanding. (The minute everyone totally agrees with all the precepts of a specific esoteric system is the minute that system dies.) We too have often felt strongly about the sexual polarity of certain Sephiroth, only to change our minds later as our view of Tree of Life expanded. For the most part, each Sephirah is an abstraction that contains certain aspects which are characteristic of both sexual polarities. No one Sephirah is simply all masculine or all feminine. Here we will discuss the sexual polarities of the spheres as they relate to the three primary Elements of Fire, Water, and Air. As far as the spheres of the Tree are concerned, Fire is masculine, Water is feminine, and Air is neutral or androgynous.

The Ten Sephiroth

No.	Name	Transliteration	Hebrew	Translation
1.	Kether	KThR	כתר	The Crown
2.	Chokmah	ChKMH	חכמה	Wisdom
3.	Binah	BINH	בינה	Understanding
4.	Chesed	ChSD	חסד	Mercy
5.	Geburah	GBVRH	גבורה	Severity
6.	Tiphareth	ThPhARTh	תפארת	Beauty
7.	Netzach	NTzCh	נצח	Victory
8.	Hod	HVD	הוד	Splendor
9.	Yesod	YSVD	יסוד	Foundation
10.	Malkuth	MLKVTh	מלכות	The Kingdom

KETHER (Keh-ther or Kay-ther)

Translation: THE CROWN
Key word: SOURCE
Yetziratic Title: The ADMIRABLE or HIDDEN INTELLIGENCE
Physical Representation: The FIRST MOTION
Symbols: A Crown, a Point, a Swastika, or Fylfot Cross

The first Sephirah at the edge of the Three Negative Veils is Kether, the Crown. The number 1, which encloses within itself the remaining nine digits of the decimal scale, was described by Pythagoras as the undividable Monad. It cannot be divided, yet it can be defined. By the process of reflection (1 + 1 = 2; 1 + 2 = 3; etc.), the Monad defines and generates all the other numbers. Kether is the point; it is the moment that the universe as we know it was conceived. Kether is the initial Spark or first Breath of the Divine. This sphere is placed at the summit of the Middle Pillar on the Tree of Life, at the apex of Equilibrium.

The Sepher Yetzirah, or Book of Formation, says of Kether: "The First Path is called the Admirable or the Hidden Intelligence (the Highest Crown), for it is the Light giving the power of comprehension of that first principle which has no beginning; and it is the Primal Glory, for no created being can attain to its essence." The words "Hidden Intelligence" imply a hint of the unmanifest nature of Kether. The purest seeds of life (the Divine Spark) are found only at the level of the First Emanation, where they have always been—removed from the concept of having a "beginning point." The Divine Life Essence, as it descends the Tree of Life, is merely undergoing a process of transformation, from one form of energy to another (as explained in the teachings of Alchemy). The Sepher Yetzirah also indicates that no created being can hope to attain to the pure spiritual Light and Essence of Kether; that would be akin to an adult human being returning to the womb to become a fertilized egg. No being using a physical organism as its vehicle of consciousness can attain to the essence of Kether. However, if consciousness has been purified to the point where it transcends thought, it receives from the "Primal Glory" the power of comprehension of the First Principle.

Kether is the sphere that contains all that was, is, and will be—it is the place of first emanation and ultimate return. The Crown is the sphere of pure spiritual being; the point of absolute Unity without division—ultimate peace and oneness. Kether is the dwelling place of the Divine White Brilliance, the Godhead which is androgynous, but that which contains the purest potentials of both male and female. It is the Source of All and the Highest Divine Essence of which we can conceive; the Primum Mobile or First Whirlings of Manifestation—a phrase which aptly describes the activity of the cosmic energy at the time the universe was created. All comes from Kether and all will ultimately return to Kether.

CHOKMAH (Chohk-mah)

Translation: WISDOM
Key word: SUPERNAL FATHER
Yetziratic Title: The ILLUMINATING INTELLIGENCE
Physical Representation: The ZODIAC
Symbols: The Line, the Phallus, the Yod

Chokmah is the second Sephirah, and its name means Wisdom. Chokmah is almost an extension of Kether—the overflowing of the Divine into a second, which is a reflection of the First. From the Absolute Unity of the One now comes the Two, the first active expression of polarity and the balance of opposites which forms the matrix of the manifest universe.

According to the Sepher Yetzirah: "The Second Path is that of Illuminating Intelligence; it is the Crown of Creation, the Splendor of the Unity, equaling it, and it is exalted above every head, and named by the Qabalists the Second Glory." Chokmah is clearly confirmed here as the essence of Illumination; not the same as that Brilliant Spark of Kether which exists on a higher plane, but as Wisdom—perfect knowledge and understanding that has developed as a result of the reflection of Kether into a second sphere; a mirror of the First, enabling the Divine Spirit to both emanate from itself and behold itself. The "Crown of Creation" indicates that Chokmah was "created" from the Crown (Kether). Again we are presented with the idea that the Primal Spirit is not diminished in any way through the succession of the Sephiroth; "the Splendor of UNITY, equaling it." That, "it is exalted above every head," alludes to Chokmah's high position on the Tree along with the other Supernals above the Abyss.

As the first Sephirah to develop polarity, Chokmah is placed at the summit of the Pillar of Mercy or the right-hand pillar. If Kether can be described as a point, then Chokmah could be portrayed as a straight line, an extension of the point into space. The energy of Chokmah is dynamic and outpouring, for it is the great Stimulator of the universe. Within Chokmah lies the first masculine (Fire) expression as opposed to the androgynous expression of Kether. Whereas Kether is the calm center point of the universe, Chokmah is complete action and movement—the vital energizing element of existence. It is the archetypal Positive and the Great Supernal Father, Abba. However, Chokmah is not simply a masculine sexual energy, but rather the root essence of masculine or dynamic Force.

BINAH (Bee-nah)

Translation: UNDERSTANDING
Key word: SUPERNAL MOTHER
Yetziratic Title: The SANCTIFYING INTELLIGENCE
Physical Representation: The sphere of SATURN
Symbols: The Womb, the Cup, the Triangle, the letter Heh

Binah, the third Sephirah, whose name means "Understanding" is the feminine counterpart of Chokmah. This sphere is situated at the summit of the left-hand pillar on the Tree of Life. Binah is the Supernal Mother Aima, the Great Negative or Female (Water) Force. (By negative we mean receptive in a purely scientific way, like the positive and negative parts of an atom, not as a value judgment.) Positive and Negative are inseparable properties; one cannot properly function without the other. Receptivity is a feminine attribute, and just as in the case of Chokmah (masculinity), we are again referring to sexual functions in the most basic and unmanifested of concepts. Chokmah, the Sephirah of duality, by necessity overflows into a third sphere in order for another natural polarity to occur.

Binah, the number three, is a sphere which builds Form (another feminine function). Binah receives the overflow of the dynamic current of energy from Chokmah and organizes it for the first time under the concept of Form. Force and Form are respective male and female properties which occur over and over again on the Tree of Life, but this is where they begin. It must be remembered that at this level on the Tree, the concept of Form exists only as a polarity and as the merest essence of the capacity to build Form, stemming from the excess negative (receptive) energy that has spilled over from Chokmah. Binah as Ama is the Disciplining Mother, restricting and structuring the free-flowing energy from Chokmah into what will ultimately be borne into organized Form. The first letter of Binah is Beth, which means "house." Beth is also the archetypal symbol of all containers.

Together, Chokmah and Binah are the two polarizing facets of manifestation, the Supernal Father and the Supernal Mother, whose union results in the birth of the universe. Together, Chokmah and Binah are the "Elohim," the Creator gods referred to in Genesis. They are the two primal building blocks of Life, the archetypal proton and electron, that comprise the whole of creation.

The Sepher Yetzirah states this about Binah: "The Third Path is the Sanctifying Intelligence: it is the foundation of Primordial Wisdom, which is called the Creator of Faith, and its roots are AMN; and it is the parent of Faith, from which doth Faith emanate." Here the Yetziratic text implies that Binah is still in a hallowed or blessed state because it remains above the Abyss in an unmanifested condition. Sanctification expresses the idea of that which is holy and set apart. It is given the title, "Primordial Wisdom," because it is the primary source of organization at this stage of divine emanation where a distinct polarity has been defined on the Tree of Life. Binah is here referred to as the "Creator of Faith." Faith rests upon understanding, whose parent is Binah. Faith is also defined as belief and veneration, but in the light of mystical consciousness, faith can be defined as the conscious result of superconscious experience. The average personality is not aware of this faith, but is nonetheless effected and modified by it, possibly with great feeling and emotional intensity. The statement that the roots of Binah are in AMN (Amen—meaning "firm," "faithful," and "so be it") refers to Kether. This clearly indicates that, although Binah issues from Chokmah, the source of ultimate Faith or Truth is from the Crown of Kether.

Although Wisdom is the quality of Chokmah, Understanding is assigned to Binah. Wisdom alludes to complete and infinite knowledge, while Understanding imparts the notion of an ability to grasp the ideas that are intrinsic to Wisdom.

The Abyss

Between Binah and the rest of the Sephiroth is a great chasm known as the Abyss. This marks a distinct separation between the higher and lower parts of the Tree, a difference in levels of being. The three Supernals of Kether, Chokmah, and Binah symbolize higher states of consciousness that transcend human awareness. The lower Sephiroth operate within the realm of ideas and thus are the only ones we can comprehend with our normal consciousness. In order to understand the intangible essence of the Supernals, one must cross the Abyss, which means leaving the earthly personality and the physical body behind in order to reach the Divine Self. Within the gulf of the Abyss is what is known as the "Invisible Sephirah" of Daath, which is not a true Sephirah, but which can be likened to a passageway across the Abyss.

CHESED (Cheh-sed)

Translation: MERCY
(sometimes called Gedulah meaning "Greatness")
Key word: BUILDER
Yetziratic Title: The COHESIVE or RECEPTIVE INTELLIGENCE
Physical Representation: The sphere of JUPITER Symbols: The Pyramid, the Square, the Orb, the Equal-armed Cross, the Crook, the Scepter

Chesed is the fourth Sephirah; its name means "Mercy." This is the first sphere below the Abyss, the second Sephirah on the right-hand pillar. It is therefore the first sphere of our physical universe. In Chesed can be found the structural support of all that is manifested. Chesed receives the current of divine energy which has been modified and disciplined by Binah and gives it another influx of energy. This begins the process of materializing the abstract energies of the Supernals (Kether, Chokmah, and Binah). Chesed is the matrix upon which the archetypal ideas will later be built into tangible form. The fourth Sephirah is also the first sphere thus far that may be comprehended by the human mind, because it is the solidification of the abstract ideas formulated by the Three Supernals.

The patterns of the Tree of Life repeat themselves after the initial three spheres are formed; therefore Chesed is the same type of energy as Chokmah, but on a lower, more manifest level. While Chokmah may be likened to an All-Knowing, All-Powerful Father, Chesed is the benevolent, loving and protective Father, who is unselfish and forgiving. However the functions of Chesed are essentially feminine, the aptitude for form-building and materialization. This is because for the first time on the Tree, the idea of manifestation below the Abyss is beginning to coagulate, and the concepts of masculine and feminine (positive and negative) are here beginning to blend together as the process of evolution down the Tree continues. But it must be remembered that Chesed is a Water potency, and that it is the daughter of Chokmah and Binah. As such Chesed shares some similarities with Tiphareth, the offspring of Chesed and Geburah. The Sepher Yetzirah says: "The Fourth Path is named the Cohesive or Receptacular Intelligence; and it is so-called because it contains all the holy powers, and from it emanate all the spiritual virtues with the most exalted essences: they emanate one from the other by the power of the Primordial Emanation, the Highest Crown, Kether." The term cohesive again refers to Chesed's capacity to gather together all the unmanifested energies (the holy powers) it has received from the Supernals across the expanse of the Abyss. Again these powers or emanations are not in any way diminished as they descend the Tree and continue on the path of materialization.

GEBURAH (Geh-boo-rah or Geh-voo-rah)

Translation: SEVERITY / STRENGTH
Key word: ENERGY
Yetziratic Title: The RADICAL INTELLIGENCE
Physical Representation: The sphere of MARS
Symbols: The Pentagon, the Tudor Rose of Five Petals, the Sword, the Spear, the Scourge

The fifth Sephirah, positioned below Binah on the left-hand pillar, is called Geburah, which translates as "Strength" or "Severity." Other titles given to this sphere are "Justice" and "Fear" (Pachad). Geburah is without a doubt the least understood and most feared Sephirah on the Tree. However, the natural order of the universe depends upon the concept of opposites in balance, thus the benevolence, mercy, and form-building qualities of Chesed are now equilibrated by the harsh, destructive actions of the fifth sphere. Geburah's duty is to break down the Form issued by Chesed and apply discipline in the manner of a purging Fire. Any energy that makes its way down the Tree of Life into the material world must be tested and tempered by the opposites of Mercy and Severity. It must be cleansed in the fires of Geburah. All impurities must be burned away, just as the blade of a strong sword must be tested by the fires of the metalsmith's furnace. Only in this way can the energy be fashioned as a sturdy vehicle for manifestation. Geburah is the strong arm of God, commanding respect and burning away all that is useless or outmoded. The harsh, destructive action of this sphere is absolutely vital to further evolution. The energy of Geburah is not an evil force unless its essence spills over from justice to cruelty. Geburah is essentially a conciliatory power which restricts the merciful love of Chesed. Without the powerful force of Geburah, the mercies of Chesed would deteriorate into frivolity and weakness.

Just as Chesed is the same energy as Chokmah on a lower level, Geburah is a lower form of Binah (the sphere which restricts and disciplines). However, Geburah displays Fire or masculine potency as opposed to Binah's Watery nature. On the other hand some sources insist that Geburah is primarily a feminine energy. It is only recently in our culture that the strength and determination of the feminine side are receiving notice and appreciation. (Nothing is more aggressive and ferocious than a Mother defending her child.) The same is true of Geburah, which aggressively deals with anything that corrupts the Divine current of energy from Kether. Again at this level on the Tree, the mixture of masculine and feminine traits in each sphere is becoming more and more evident. Geburah seems much more harsh and restrictive than Binah, simply because it is below the Abyss, and its effects are more easily seen by us in the manifest universe.

According to the Sepher Yetzirah: "The Fifth Path is called the Radical Intelligence, because it resembles the Unity, uniting itself to Binah or Intelligence which emanates from the Primordial depths of Wisdom or Chokmah." The word radical here implies basic or fundamental. Here the text tells us that Geburah, the Radical Intelligence, resembles Unity (one of the titles of Kether). Geburah's dynamic action overflowing into the world of form bears a close relationship to the overflowing force of Kether, which is the source of all manifestation. In addition, Unity also implies the uniting of a new and distinct polarity in the spheres of Chesed and Geburah. Geburah "unites itself with Binah" because it is the same restrictive feminine energy of Binah on a lower, more manifest level.

TIPHARETH (T'-fair-eth)

Translation: BEAUTY
Key word: MEDIATOR
Yetziratic Title: The MEDIATING INTELLIGENCE
Physical Representation: The sphere of SOL Symbols: The Calvary Cross, the Rose Cross, the Truncated Pyramid, the Cube, the letter Vav

The sixth Sephirah is called Tiphareth or "Beauty." Tiphareth lies at the very center of the Tree of Life on the Middle Pillar (the column of Equilibrium) and receives the powers of all the other Sephiroth. This sphere strikes the harmony between the Mercy of Chesed and the Severity of Geburah; therefore it contains the perfect balance of both benevolent and aggressive energies. Because of its position on the Tree, in line with Kether, Tiphareth mirrors much of the pureness of the Crown, but on a deeper, more manifest level. By the union of Mercy and Justice, Beauty is obtained.

The Sepher Yetzirah says: "The Sixth Path is called the Mediating Intelligence, because in it are multiplied the influxes of the emanations, for it causes that influence to flow into all the reservoirs of the Blessings, with which these themselves are united." This again refers to Tiphareth's position on the central pillar, mediating between the Pillars of Mercy and Severity. As a mediator, Tiphareth is also seen as a connecting link between higher and lower states of being (the Higher Self and the Lower Self). This sphere is a "two-way switch" which both receives the influxes of the emanations from above, and "causes that influence to flow into all the reservoirs of the blessings." Tiphareth's neutral position on the central pillar along with its androgynous nature allows the influences to combine, multiply and increase. It is the outward manifestation of the higher and subtler Sephiroth, as well as the spiritual principle behind the lower and more manifest spheres.

Until this point, we have described each Sephirah in abstract terms of Force and Form, Macrocosmic archetypes which are somewhat remote from us. But in Tiphareth, this changes, because the sixth Sephirah lies well within the range of human experience. The rest of the spheres from Tiphareth on down can be increasingly described by the effects they have on human consciousness, than by polarities alone, since the four lowest Sephiroth are symbolic of the Lower Self or Personality (at least on the level of the Microcosm in Malkuth of Assiah).[22]

The center of the Tree of Life is the place of the Reconciler or Redeemer. Godforms of this energy include Christ, Buddha, and Osiris. This is because Tiphareth mediates between the Godhead in Kether and the rest of the material universe. The sixth Sphere is a link or point of transition. It reconciles That Which is Above to That Which is Below. Tiphareth intercedes between these different levels of Being.

The sixth Sephirah is essentially a mystical sphere. The spiritual experience that takes place in Tiphareth is the Vision of the Harmony of Things. This is due to the fact that the Higher Self, or Holy Guardian Angel, of every individual sits in Tiphareth; referring again to Tiphareth as the mirror of Kether—the Divine Self. The goal of all spiritual experience is the search for the Light, which is obtained by devotion to the Great Work. Tiphareth is the sphere of Illumination and of Healing. This is why the so-called Christ-consciousness is placed here.

NETZACH (Net-zäch)

Translation: VICTORY
Key word: EMOTIONS
Yetziratic Title: The OCCULT INTELLIGENCE
Physical Representation: The sphere of VENUS
Symbols: The Girdle, the Rose, the Lamp

The Hebrew name of the seventh Sephirah is Netzach, which means "Victory." It is the final sphere on the right-hand pillar. As we have already stated, the lower spheres of the Tree can be described in terms of human consciousness and experience. This is especially true of the four remaining Sephiroth beginning with Netzach. The sphere of Netzach is the dwelling place of human instincts, emotions, and desires. It is the "feeling" side of the personality that can be likened to the right side of the human brain. This is where human creativity is born. Once again the idea of polarity comes into play, because Netzach is considered primarily a Fire (masculine) sphere which has an opposing (Water) Sephirah to balance it. But at this level on the Tree (in the world of Assiah), we are truly discussing negative and positive sides of the human mind.

Netzach is a dynamic force which inspires and drives us. This sphere is a reflection of the Fiery energy of Geburah, but at the level of the human personality, mediated by Tiphareth, Fire becomes desire and emotion. Art, music, dance, and poetry are all expressions of Netzach energy. In this sphere we find all expressions of beauty and love, but also the less understood emotions of anger and hate, because all emotions dwell here. It is for this reason that the energies of Netzach must be balanced by its opposite, Hod. The seventh sphere is the home of the "Group Mind," the storehouse of images and symbols in all of us, which inspires the artist, the dancer, and the musician.

---

[22] The level of humanity in the lowest Qabalistic World of Assiah. See Chapter Two for more information about the four Worlds of the Qabalah.

The Sepher Yetzirah says: "The Seventh Path is the Occult Intelligence, because it is the Refulgent Splendor of all the Intellectual virtues which are perceived by the eyes of the intellect, and by the contemplation of faith." The Occult Intelligence obviously refers to Hidden Intelligence. This is something hidden deep within ourselves that we must uncover—our Divine Nature that is kept hidden from us by mundane obstacles. The Refulgent or Brilliant Splendor of the intellectual virtues is the Divine White Light mediated through the prism of Tiphareth, reflected into many-rayed hues (aspects of manifestation). The One Light has been reduced to the many for the purpose of manifestation into form. The phrase "eyes of the intellect" alludes to the Wisdom of Chokmah at the apex of the Pillar of Mercy while the passage "contemplations of faith" refers to the act of devotion, the impetus behind all spiritual attainment.

HOD (Hohd)

Translation: SPLENDOR
Key word: INTELLECT
Yetziratic Title: The ABSOLUTE or PERFECT INTELLIGENCE
Physical Representation: The sphere of MERCURY Symbols: Names of Power, the Apron (Masonic)

Hod is the eighth Sephirah, situated at the bottom of the Pillar of Severity. Its name means "Splendor" or "Glory." Just as Netzach symbolizes raw animal instincts, Hod represents the intellectual part of the mind to which the "left brain" can be assigned. It is the rational Mind which organizes and categorizes. All expressions of writing, language, communication, science, and magic are assigned to Hod. All words and Names of Power have their origins in this sphere. We also find the idea of the "Individual Mind" here, as opposed to the Group Mind, which is in Netzach. It is the Individual Mind of Hod which makes one aware of one's personal relationship to the Divine.

Hod is a lower form of the energy found in Chesed but mediated through Tiphareth. The energy of Hod is Watery (feminine) and fluidic. Hod and Netzach cannot function properly one without the other. The Eighth Sphere is where the emotions and instincts of Netzach take form and come into action. Intellect needs the balance of emotion to drive it; otherwise the words and science of Hod become mere rational labelings, dead and uninspired. Likewise, emotions need the discipline of intellect to stabilize and ground, to keep the dynamic energy from being squandered. The relationship between Hod and Netzach is symbiotic. In terms of the individual, the two spheres must be in harmony in order to maintain a healthy personality.

According to the Sepher Yetzirah: "The Eighth Path is called the Absolute or Perfect Intelligence, because it is the mean of the primordial, which has no root by which it can cleave, nor rest, except in the hidden places of Gedulah, Magnificence, from which emanates its own proper essence." It is the Perfect Intelligence because it is the mean (median) of the primordial. This implies a position halfway between two extremes: Force and Form. Hod is also the seat of the Intellect. To borrow the terms of Astrology, this correlates to the idea of Intellect being in the house of its "dignity"—a placement which is advantageous, or "perfect." Hod's root, from which it cannot be separated, is the watery sphere of Chesed, also called Gedulah or magnificence.

YESOD (Yeh-sohd)
Translation: FOUNDATION
Key word: ASTRAL LIGHT
Yetziratic Title: The PURE INTELLIGENCE
Physical Representation: The sphere of LUNA
Symbols: Perfume, Sandals

The ninth Sephirah, Yesod, whose name means "Foundation," is the third Sphere on the Middle Pillar. It is the result of the union between Netzach and Hod. The spiritual experience of Yesod is the vision of the machinery of the universe. What this implies is that Yesod is the sphere of the astral Light, also known as the Akasha. This is the etheric substance which underlies all dense matter. It is the astral matrix upon which the physical universe is built. Yesod is the receptacle of influences from all of the preceding Sephiroth, which are then combined into a type of blueprint made from the astral Light. This blueprint is the "Foundation" or Etheric Double upon which the earthly plane is constructed. All events, whether natural or man-made, occur in the aethers of Yesod before they occur in the physical world. The ninth Sephirah is that last push which activates the final manifestation of Form. In the same manner, all the Planets were born out of the mind of God, and all man-made inventions first appeared as ideas in the Yesodic part of the inventor's mind. Yesod is the seat of intuition in humankind. In addition, most magical operations take place in the sphere of Yesod, because the magician seeks to effect changes in the physical world by manipulating the subtle currents of the astral.

Like Kether and Tiphareth, Yesod is androgynous, yet the energy here is also sexual, because in Yesod the sexes are for the first time given the form that they will take in the Earthly plane. At this level on the Tree, Yesod is like a pregnant mother about to give birth. Sired by the whole of the Sephirotic influences above it, the child born is the manifest universe itself.

According to the Sepher Yetzirah: "The Ninth Path is the Pure Intelligence, so called because it purifies the Numerations, it proves and corrects the designing of their representation, and disposes their unity with which they are combined without diminution or division." The text states clearly that it is Yesod's duty to purify and correct the emanations. Although the emanations which flow down the Tree are intrinsically pure, they may need to be proven or corrected in order to fit them into a vehicle of dense matter. Yesod also disposes (orders) the unity of these emanations, so that only the most worthy manifested vehicles are designed for the reception of the divine energy, which is brought into the physical universe without becoming diminished in any way from its essential purity.

MALKUTH (Mahl-kooth)

Translation: KINGDOM
Key word: COMPLETION, STABILITY
Yetziratic Title: The RESPLENDENT INTELLIGENCE
Physical Representation: The sphere of the EARTH Symbols: The Equal-armed Cross, the Mystic Circle, the Triangle of Art (Evocation), Heh Final

Malkuth means "The Kingdom." It is the tenth and last sphere on the Tree of Life which is located at the bottom of the central pillar. This is the ultimate sphere of Form and of final manifestation, the material universe as we know it. Malkuth is essentially the sphere of humanity, and of sensation. The physical representation of Malkuth is the Planet Earth, our own terra firma. It is the seat of matter. Yet Malkuth is more than simply the ground beneath our feet, it is also the Sephirah in which all four Elements are based. Therefore when discussing Malkuth (in Assiah), we are really talking about the physical manifestations of Fire, Water, Air and Earth. There are three states of matter which correspond to the elements: solid—Earth, liquid—Water, and gas—Air. (Fire is assigned to the principle of electricity.) The sum of all physical phenomena are classified under the four Elements in order to comprehend their character. All of these Elements are used to describe the material nature of Malkuth.

Malkuth is the ultimate receptacle for the combined currents of energy on the entire Tree of Life. While the other Sephiroth are basically kinetic and mobile, Malkuth is the only sphere that has achieved stability and inertia (a period of rest). It is also the only sphere which is not a part of a triad. The tenth and final sphere receives the etheric framework of manifestation (the influences from Yesod) and completes the building process by grounding the energy in matter. Malkuth is the container for the emanations of the other nine Sephiroth.

As the absolute Sphere of Form and passivity, the fertile Malkuth is also known as the Inferior Mother (as opposed to the Great Mother, Binah), the Bride, and the Queen. Another title is the Gate, which implies that we as physical beings live out our lives in the realm of Malkuth, only to pass through the Gate upon leaving our bodies behind.

The tenth Sephirah is seen as the completion of the Tree of Life in one sense, and the beginning of a new Tree in another, because Malkuth is a lower reflection of Kether, and is in fact the Kether of another Tree.

According to the Sepher Yetzirah: "The Tenth Path is the Resplendent Intelligence, so called because it is exalted above every head, and sits on the throne of Binah. It illuminates the splendor of all the Lights, and causes an influence to emanate from the Prince of Countenances, the Angel of Kether." The title "Resplendent Intelligence" implies a close relationship between Malkuth and Kether, the first and last sphere of the Tree. At this point the emanations are completed and the result is the brilliance of the unified Tree of Life. Malkuth now becomes Kether of another Tree on another level. The mention of the throne of Binah implies another close relationship; Binah, the Great Mother, is the primordial giver of Form, while Malkuth, the Lesser Mother, is the final giver of Form.✡

SECTION 6: The Hebrew Alphabet

א

The Hebrew Alphabet was originally designed as a pictorial or hieroglyphic alphabet similar to that of the Egyptians. Each letter is a visual representation of an object. In addition to this however, Hebrew is the primary alphabet of Western magic. Not only does each letter have a literal meaning, but also an esoteric meaning, a numerical value, a color, a sound and various other hidden correspondences associated with it. The letters of the Hebrew Alphabet are sacred symbols which attract real forces that the magician can orchestrate by the techniques of visualization and vibration. These letters can also have a psychological influence on the aspirant who meditates upon them—affecting changes in consciousness. The importance of memorizing the Hebrew alphabet cannot be stressed enough, for it is one tool that the magician will use constantly throughout his/her ceremonial workings.

The twenty-two letters of the Hebrew alphabet correspond to the twenty-two Paths of the Tree of Life. Unlike English, Hebrew is written from right to left. In addition to this, all of the Hebrew letters are consonants; there are no vowels. At times the letters Yod and Vav may function as vowels, and the silent letters Aleph and Ayin can be used to indicate the position of a vowel, but again none of these letters are vowels. It was not until well into the Christian era that a system for indicating vowels with a dagesh (or pointing) was developed in order to standardize pronunciation. We will not enter into a discussion concerning the pointing system here, but such information is readily available in modern Hebrew texts.

Please note that five of the Letters (Kaph, Mem, Nun, Peh, and Tzaddi) have two forms associated with them. The second versions of these letters are called Finals, and they are used whenever the letter occurs at the end of a word. These Final letters also have different numeric values.

Letter	Power	Value	Final	Name	Meaning
א	A	1		Aleph	ox
ב	B	2		Beth	house
ג	G, Gh	3		Gimel	camel
ד	D, Dh	4		Daleth	door
ה	H	5		Heh	window
ו	O, U, V	6		Vav	pin, hook
ז	Z	7		Zayin	sword, armor
ח	Ch	8		Cheth	fence, enclosure
ט	T	9		Teth	serpent
י	I, Y	10		Yod	hand
כ	K, Kh	20—500	ך	Kaph	fist, palm of hand
ל	L	30		Lamed	ox goad
מ	M	40—600	ם	Mem	Water
נ	N	50—700	ן	Nun	fish
ס	S	60		Samekh	prop
ע	Aa	70		Ayin	eye
פ	P, Ph	80—800	ף	Peh	mouth
צ	Tz	90—900	ץ	Tzaddi	fishhook
ק	Q	100		Qoph	back of the head
ר	R	200		Resh	head
ש	S, Sh	300		Shin	tooth
ת	T, Th	400		Tau	cross

Concerning Pronunciation

During MacGregor Mathers' time, there were two principle dialects in the Hebrew language. They were the Ashkenazic, a dialect employed in Germany, Poland, and Russia, and Sephardic, which was used in Spain and the Mediterranean. The Golden Dawn teachings stress the Sephardic pronunciation.

Hebrew words are almost never accented on the first syllable, but usually on the final syllable with secondary accents falling on every other syllable before the final one. The following chart shows the general pronunciations of transliterated Hebrew letters:[23]

Transliterated Letter	Usual transliteration of	Pronunciation
a	vowel point	a as in Father or a as in cat
b	Beth	b
c	Kaph	k
ch	Cheth (sometimes Kaph)	ch in German nacht
d	Daleth	d

---

[23] Adapted from information given in David Godwin's Cabalistic Encyclopedia, Third Edition (St. Paul: Llewellyn Publications, 1994, pgs. xxii–xxiii.)

dh	Daleth	th in the (hard th) e	vowel point	e as in met or e as in grey, a as in sofa
f	Peh	f
g	Gimel	g as in gamble (never like j)
h	Heh (sometimes Cheth)	h
i	vowel point; Yod	i as in fin i as in gasoline; as a consonant, y
j	Yod	y
k	Kaph	k
kh	Kaph	ch in German ich
l	Lamed	l
m	Mem	m
n	Nun	n
o	vowel point, Vav	o as in not or o as in obey (as Vav always the latter)
p	Peh	p
ph	Peh	f
q	Qoph	k
r	Resh	r
s	Samekh, Shin	s
sh	Shin	sh
t	Teth, Tau	t
th	Tau	th as in thin (soft th)
ts	Tzaddi	ts as in tsar, cats
tz	Tzaddi	ts as in tsar, cats
u	vowel point, Vav	u as in cut or u as in glue (as Vav, always the latter)
v	Beth, Vav	v (or in the case of Vav, may be w) w	Vav	w
x	—	not used
y	Yod	y
z	Zayin	z

As we have already stated, the letters of the Hebrew alphabet are both hieroglyphs and Holy Symbols which represent real forces. In addition to the literal meaning and numerical value of each letter, a brief investigation of the archetypes and abstract symbolism behind the Hebrew alphabet will yield many arcane insights:

ALEPH (Ah-lef) meaning—ox, value —1. Aleph is the dual principle that represents all that exists and all that does not exist, the positive and negative, life and death. It represents humanity as a collective unity and as the Ruler of the Earth. Aleph is the glyph of power and stability. The ideas that it expresses are those of unity and of the principle by which it is determined.

BETH (Beth) meaning—house, value—2. Beth is the symbol of all habitations and receptacles, of anything that "contains." It is virile and paternal; a glyph of active and interior action.

GIMEL (Gi-mel) meaning—camel, value—3. Gimel is the activity, the motion of contained, limited existence or nonexistence; it is Aleph in Beth. The throat. A canal. Gimel is an glyph which signifies organic development and produces all ideas originating from the corporeal organs and from their action.

DALETH (Dah-leth) meaning—door, value—4. Daleth is the archetype of physical existence. It is the glyph of nature, divisible and divided, expressing every idea that proceeds from the abundance born of division. The breast: every abundant, nutritive object: all division, all reciprocity.

HEH (Heh) meaning—window, value—5. Heh is the principle of universal life. Feminine. The breath; all that which animates: air, life, being.

VAV (Vahv, also Vah and Waw) meaning—pin or hook, value—6. Vav is the archetype of all fertilizing substances. It is the image of a knot which unites, or the point which separates nothingness and being. The Son. It is the universal, convertible glyph which makes a thing pass from one nature to another. The ear: all that is related to sound, noise, and wind.

ZAYIN (Zah-yeen) meaning—sword or armor, value—7. Zayin is the completed fertilizing act. Every object leading to an end. A symbol of luminous refraction. A staff or arrow.

CHETH (Chayth) meaning—fence or enclosure, value—8. Cheth is the enclosure of all unevolved cosmic energy. A field. An image of natural or elementary existence; all that which requires work, labor, and effort.

TETH (Tayth) meaning—serpent, value—9. Teth is the symbol of the initial female energy. A place of surety; a refuge, haven or shelter. An aim or goal. A glyph of resistance and protection.

YOD (Yode) meaning—hand, value—10. Yod is the opposite of Aleph; it is a steady state, continuity. The finger of a person, the extended hand. Masculinity. All that which indicates the directing power and which serves to manifest it. It is the image of potential manifestation, of spiritual duration, and of the eternity of time.

KAPH (Kahf) meaning—fist/palm of the hand, value—20 (Kaph Final—500). Kaph is the archetype of receivers. The hand of a person half closed and in the act of taking. An assimilative glyph which receives and makes all forms. Kaph Final is the cosmic final attainment of individual existences.

LAMED (Lah-med) meaning—ox goad, value—30. Lamed suggests everything which is extended, raised, or displayed. It is the glyph of expansive movement, including all ideas of extension, elevation, occupation, and possession. Lamed is the image of power derived from elevation.

MEM (Mem) meaning—Water, value—40 (Mem Final—600). Mem is the archetype of the maternal creative principle. Woman or femininity: all that which is fruitful and creative. An image of passive active. Mem Final is the cosmic state of fertility in humanity, both in mind and body.

NUN (noon) meaning—Fish, value—50 (Nun Final—700). Nun is the archetype of all individual and corporeal existences. The offspring of woman: a child, any fruit whatsoever, every produced or reflected being. Nun Final is the symbol of interplay of cosmic energies.

SAMEKH (Sah-mehk) meaning—prop or support, value—60. Samekh is the archetype of female fertility, the ovum. An image of all circumscription. It is a glyph of circular movement.

AYIN (Ah-yeen) meaning—eye, value—70. Ayin is the illuminating principle behind the act of impregnation. It is a glyph of material meaning and physical relations.

PEH (Pay) meaning—mouth, value—80 (Peh Final—800). The mouth of a person as an organ of speech. Anything relating to speech.

TZADDI (Tzah-dee) meaning—fish hook, value—90 (Tzaddi Final—900). Tzaddi is a symbol of womanhood in a social sense. Indicates movement toward an end or solution. Tzaddi Final is the archetype of womanhood in a mythical sense.

QOPH (Kohf) meaning—back of the head, value—100. Qoph is an exalted state of Aleph, transcending the negative or death aspect. A positive arm: all that which serves, defends or makes an effort for humanity. An image of restraint, compression and force.

RESH (Raysh) meaning—head, value—200. Resh is the archetype of universal or cosmic "containers." The head of a person. All that which possesses in itself a proper and determining movement. It is a glyph of all proper movement, good or bad: an image of the renewal of things and their movement.

SHIN (Sheen) meaning—tooth, value—300. Shin is the "spirit" of God. A glyph of relative duration and of movement connected therewith.

TAU (Tau) meaning—cross, value—400. Tau is the archetype of all cosmic existence. A symbol of symbols. An image of that which is mutual and reciprocal. Perfection.✡

Israel Regardie was adamant about the idea that Neophytes should be able to draw the Hebrew letters to the best of their ability. To this end he provided our temples with Hebrew practice sheets for students. Regardie suggested that the student use a calligraphy pen to draw the letters. For the sake of ease and simplicity, we suggest that the Neophyte use a writing instrument called a lettering pen or calligraphy marker. This type of marker has a felt tip which is wide along one edge. The marker can be held with the wide edge of the tip perpendicular to the lines on the practice sheets. The upward/downward and left-to-right movement of the marker across the page will result in the thin vertical lines and the thick horizontal lines.

Always remember that the Hebrew letters are holy symbols and as such they should be carefully and faithfully rendered. The letters are all the same height except for Lamed (which is taller than the other letters) and all of the Finals

א	ב	ג	ד	ה	ו
Aleph	Beth	Gimel	Daleth	Heh	Vav
ז	ח	ט	י	כ	ל
Zayin	Cheth	Teth	Yod	Kaph	Lamed
מ	נ	ס	ע	פ	צ
Mem	Nun	Samekh	Ayin	Peh	Tzaddi
ק	ר	ש	ת
Qoph	Resh	Shin	Tau
ך	ם	ן	ף	ץ
Kaph Final	Mem Final	Nun Final	Peh Final	Tzaddi Final

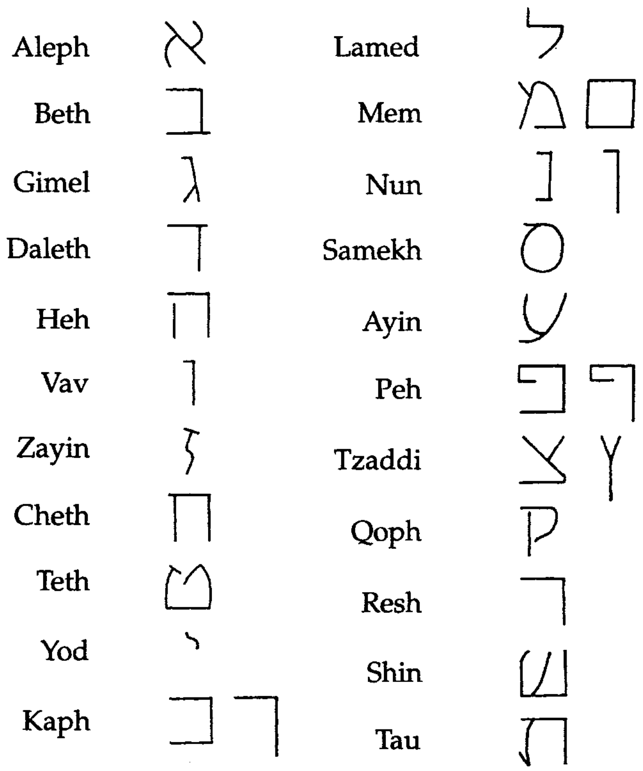
(except for Mem), which have tails that extend below the other letters. Mem Final is distinguished by being the only oblong letter, thicker in width than in depth. The general idea behind the Hebrew letters is the square formation. The letters should be drawn repeatedly until the student is proficient in recreating them.

On the previous page we have provided a chart that can be consulted when drawing the letters. We have also furnished a chart below that depicts a simple manner of drawing the Hebrew letters. This will prove useful to the student when a quick rendition of the letters is desired. We like to call this form Simplified Hebrew.✡

Simplified Hebrew



Aleph
Beth Gimel
Daleth
Heh
Vav
Zayin
Cheth
Teth
Yod
Kaph
Lamed
Mem
Nun
Samekh
Ayin
Peh
Tzaddi
Qoph
Resh
Shin
Tau

This concludes the Knowledge Lecture. The information contained therein is to be put to memory. Examinations on the material covered in this section are given at the end of this chapter. The exams will include questions about the initiation ritual as well. ✡

An Additional Side Lecture

THE PILLARS

(from a manuscript lecture by MacGregor Mathers)[24]

In the explanation of the Symbols of the Grade of Neophyte, your attention has been directed to the general mystical meaning of the Two Pillars called in the Ritual the "Pillars of Hermes" of "Seth" and of "Solomon." In the 9th chapter of the Ritual of the Dead they are referred to as the "Pillars of Shu," the "Pillars of the Gods of the Dawning Light," and also as "the North and Southern Columns of the Gate of the Hall of Truth." In the 125th Chapter, they are represented by the sacred gateway, the door to which the aspirant is brought when he has completed the negative confession. The archaic pictures on the one Pillar are painted in black upon a white ground, and those on the other in white upon a black ground, in order to express the interchange and reconciliation of opposing forces and the eternal balance of Light and Darkness which gives force to visible nature.

The black cubical bases represent darkness and matter wherein the Spirit, the Ruach Elohim, began to formulate the Ineffable NAME, that Name which the ancient Rabbis have said "rushes through the universe," that Name before which the Darkness rolls back at the birth of time.

The flaming red triangular capitals which crown the summit of the Pillars represent the Triune manifestation of the Spirit of Life, the Three Mothers of the Sepher Yetsirah, the Three Alchemical Principles of Nature, the Sulphur, the Mercury and the Salt.

Each Pillar is surmounted by its own light-bearer veiled from the material world.

At the base of both Pillars rise the Lotus flowers, symbols of regeneration and metempsychosis. The archaic illustrations are taken from vignettes of the 17th and 125th chapter of the Ritual of the Dead, the Egyptian Book of the Per-em-Hru or the Book of Coming Forth into the Day, the oldest book in the world as yet discovered. The Recension of the Priests of ON is to be found in the walls of the pyramids of the Kings of the 5th and 6th Dynasties at Sakarah, the recension of the 11th and 12th Dynasties on the sarcophagi of that period, and the Theban recension of the 18th Dynasty and onward is found on papyri, both plain and illuminated. No satisfactory translation of these books is available, none having been yet attempted by a scholar having the qualifications of mystic as well as Egyptologist.

The Ritual of the Dead, generally speaking, is a collection of hymns and prayers in the form of a series of ceremonial Rituals to enable the man to unite himself with Osiris the Redeemer. After this union he is no longer called the man, but Osiris, with whom he is now symbolically identified. "That they also may be One of us," said Christ of the New Testament. "I am Osiris" said the purified and justified man, his soul luminous and washed from sin in the immortal and uncreated light, united to Osiris, and thereby justified, and the son of God; purified by suffering, strengthened by opposition, regenerate through self-sacrifice. Such is the subject of the great Egyptian Ritual.

---

[24] From Regardie's The Golden Dawn.

The 17th Chapter of the Theban recension consists of a very ancient text with several commentaries, also extremely old, and some prayers, none of which come into the scheme of the original text. It has, together with the 12th chapter, been very carefully translated for the purpose of this lecture by the V.H. Frater M.W.T [Marcus Blackden], and V.H. Soror S.S.D.D. [Florence Farr] has made many valuable suggestions with regard to the interpretation. The Title and Preface of the 17th Chapter reads:

"Concerning the exaltation of the Glorified Ones, of Coming and Going forth in the Divine Domain, of the Genies of the Beautiful land of Amentet. Of Coming forth in the Light of Day in any form desired, of Hearing the Forces of Nature by being enshrined as a living Bai."

And the rubric is:

"The united with Osiris shall recite it when he has entered the Harbour. May glorious things be done thereby upon earth. May all the words of the Adept be fulfilled."

Owing to the complex use of symbols, the ritual translation of the Chapter can only be understood by perpetual reference to the ancient Egyptian commentaries, and therefore the following paraphrase has been put together to convey to modern minds as nearly as possible the ideas conceived by the old Egyptians in this glorious triumphal song of the Soul of Man made one with Osiris, the Redeemer.

"I am TUM made One with all things.

"I have become NU. I am RA in his rising ruling by right of his Power. I am the Great God self-begotten, even NU, who pronounced His Names, and thus the Circle of the Gods was created.

"I am Yesterday and Tomorrow. I can never more be overcome. I know the secret of Osiris, whose being is perpetually revered of RA. I have finished the work which was planned at the Beginning, I am the Spirit made manifest, and armed with two vast eagle's plumes. Isis and Nephthys are their names, made One with Osiris.

"I claim my inheritance. My sins have been uprooted and my passions overcome. I am Pure White. I dwell in Time. I live through Eternity, when Initiates make offering to the Everlasting Gods. I have passed along the Pathway. I know the Northern and the Southern Pillars, the two Columns at the Gateway of the Hall of Truth.

"Stretch unto me your hands, O ye Dwellers in the centre. For I am transformed to a God in your midst. Made One with Osiris, I have filled the eye socket in the day of the morning when Good and Evil fought together.

"I have lifted up the cloud-veil in the Sky of the Storm. Till I saw RA born again from out the Great Waters. His strength is my strength, and my strength in His strength. Homage to you, Lords of Truth, chiefs who Osiris rules. Granting release from Sin, Followers of Ma where rest is Glorious. Whose Throne Anubis built in the day when Osiris said:

"Lo! A man wins his way to Amentet. I come before you, to drive away my faults. As ye did to the Seven Glorious Ones who follow their Lord Osiris. I am that Spirit of Earth and Sun.

"Between the Two Pillars of Flame. I am RA when he fought beneath the Ashad Tree, destroying the enemies of the Ancient of Days. I am the Dweller in the Egg. I am he who turns in the Disc. I shine forth from the Horizon, as the gold from the mine. I float through the Pillars of SHU in the ether. Without a peer among the Gods. The Breath of my mouth is as a flame. I light upon the Earth with my glory. Eye cannot gaze on my darting beams, as they reach through the Heavens and lick up the Nile with tongues of flame. I am strong upon Earth with the strength of RA. I have come into Harbour as Osiris made perfect. Let priestly offerings be made to me as one in the train of the Ancient of Days. I brood as the Divine Spirit. I move in the firmness of my Strength. I undulate as the Waves that vibrate through Eternity. Osiris has been claimed with acclamation, and ordained to rule among the Gods. Enthroned in the Domain of Horus where the Spirit and the Body are united in the presence of the Ancient of Days. Blotted out are the sins of his body in passion. He has passed the Eternal Gate, and has received the New Year Feast with Incense, at the marriage of Earth with Heaven.

"TUM has built his Bridal Chamber. RURURET has founded his shrine. The Procession's completed. HORUS has purified, SET has consecrated, SHU made one with OSIRIS, has entered his heritage.

"As TUM he has entered the Kingdom to complete union with the Invisible. Thy Bride, O Osiris, is Isis, who mourned Thee when she found Thee slain. In Isis, thou art born again. From Nephthys is thy nourishment. They cleansed thee in thy Heavenly Birth. Youth waits upon thee, ardour is ready at thy hand. And their arms shall uphold thee for millions of years. Initiates surround Thee and Thine enemies are cast down. The Powers of Darkness are destroyed. The Companions of Thy Joys are with Thee. Thy Victories in the Battle await their reward in the Pillar. The Forces of Nature obey Thee. Thy Power is exceeding great. The Gods curse him that curseth Thee. Thine Aspirations are fulfilled. Thou are destroyed who barred Thy way."

The 125th Chapter is concerned with the entry of an Initiate into the Hall of the Two Columns of Justice, and commenced with a most beautiful and symbolic description of Death, as a journey from the barren wilderness of Earth, to the Glorious Land which lies beyond. The literal translation of the opening lines is as follows:

"I have come from afar to look upon thy beauties. My hands salute Thy Name of Justice. I have come from afar, where the Acacia Tree grew not. Where the tree thick with leaves is not born. Where there come not beams from herb or grass. I have entered the Place of Mystery. I have communed with Set. Sleep came upon me, I was wrapped therein, bowing down before the hidden things. I was ushered into the House of Osiris. I saw the marvels that were there. The Princes of the Gates in their Glory."

The illustrations in this chapter represent the Hall of Truth as seen through the open leaves of its door. The Hall is presided over by a God who holds his right hand over the cage of a hawk, and his left over the food of eternity. On each side of the God is a cornice crowned by a row of alternate feathers and Uraei symbolising justice and fiery power. The door leaf which completes the right hand of a stall is called "Possessor of Truth controlling the Feet," while that on the left is "Possessor of strength, binding the male and female animals." The 42 Judges of the Dead are represented as seated in a long row, and each of them has to be named, and the Sin over which he presided has been denied.

This chapter describes the introduction of the initiate into the Hall of truth by ANUBIS, who, having questioned the aspirant, receives from him an account of his initiation, and is satisfied by his right to enter. He states that he has been taken into the ante-chamber of the temple and there stripped and blind-folded, he had to grope for the entrance of the Hall, and having found it, he was reclothed and anointed in the presence of the Initiated. He is then asked for the Pass-words and demands that his Soul should be weighed in the Great Balance of the Hall of Truth, whereupon ANUBIS again interrogates him concerning the symbolism of the door of the Hall, and his answers being found correct, ANUBIS says: "Pass on, thou knowest it."

Among other things the Initiate states that he has been purified four times, the same number of times that the Neophyte is purified and consecrated in the ceremony of the Neophyte. He then makes the long Negative Confession, stating to each Judge in turn that he is innocent of that form of Sin over which he judges. Then he invokes the Judges to do him justice, and afterwards describes how he had washed in the washing place of the South, and rested in the North, in the place called "Son of the Deliverers" and he becomes the Dweller under the Olive Tree of Peace, and how he was given a tall flame of fire and a sceptre of cloud which he preserved in the salting tank in which mummies were swathed. And he found there another sceptre called "Giver of Breath" and with that he extinguished the flame and shattered the sceptre of cloud, and made a lake of it. The initiate is then brought to the actual Pillars, and has to name them and their parts under the symbol of the Scales of a Balance. He also has to name the Guardian of the Gateway, who prevents his passage, and when all these are propitiated, the plea of the Hall itself cries out against his steps, saying "Because I am silent, because I am pure," and it must know that his aspirations are pure enough and high enough for him to be allowed to tread upon it. He is then allowed to announce to Thoth that he is clean from all evil, and has overcome the influence of the planets, and THOTH says to him: "Who is He whose Pylons are of Flame, whose walls of Living Uraei, and the flames of whose House are streams of Water?" And the Initiate replies "Osiris!"

And it is immediately proclaimed: "Thy meat shall be from the Infinite, and thy drink from the Infinite. Thou art able to go forth to the sepulchral feasts on earth, for thou hast overcome."

Thus, these two chapters, which are represented by their illustrations upon the Pillars, represent the advance and purification of the Soul and its union with Osiris, the Redeemer, in the Golden Dawn of the Infinite Light, in which the Soul is transfigured, knows all, and can do all, for it is made One with the Eternal God.

KHABS AM PEKHT. KONX OM PAX. LIGHT IN EXTENSION. ✡

Ritual Work for the Neophyte

Aside from the memorization of the First Knowledge Lecture, the Neophyte should begin regular practice of the rituals and meditative techniques provided here. These rites create a firm groundwork of ceremonial methods that the student will utilize throughout his/her entire magical life. They also serve as constant reminder of the goal of the path of an initiate.

The Outer Wand of Double Power

This is a simple wand that is employed in the basic Golden Dawn techniques of invoking and banishing. It consists of a dowel that is approximately 20" in length. Half of the wand is painted white for invoking and half is painted black for banishing.✡

THE QABALISTIC CROSS (QC)

Stand and face East. Imagine a brilliant white Light touching the top of your head. Reach up with the index finger or blade of a dagger to connect with the Light and bring it to the forehead.

Touch the forehead and vibrate, "ATAH," (Ah-tah—meaning "Thou art").

Touch the breast and bring the dagger blade or index finger down till it covers the heart or abdominal area, pointing down to the ground. Imagine the Light descending from the forehead to the feet. Vibrate "MALKUTH," (Mahl-kooth—meaning "The Kingdom").

Touch the right shoulder and visualize a point of Light there. Vibrate "VE-GEBURAH," (v'ge-boo-rah—meaning "and the Power").

Touch the left shoulder and visualize a point of Light there. See the horizontal shaft of Light extending from the opposite shoulder to join this point of Light. Vibrate "VE-GEDULAH," (v'ge-doo-lah—meaning "and the Glory").

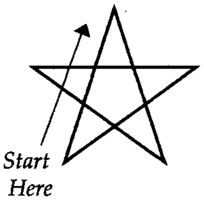
Imagine a completed cross of Light running from head to feet and shoulder to shoulder.

Bring the hands outward, away from the body, and finally bring them together again, clasped on the breast as if praying. Vibrate "LE-OLAHM, AMEN," (lay-oh-lahm, ah-men—meaning "Forever, unto the ages").✡

THE LESSER BANISHING RITUAL OF THE PENTAGRAM (LBRP)

Stand and face East. Perform the Qabalistic Cross.

Facing East, use the index finger of the right hand, a dagger, or the black end of the Outer Wand of Double Power to trace a large banishing pentagram of Earth. Thrust the dagger/wand tip or index finger through the center of the pentagram and vibrate "YHVH." (Yode-Heh-Vav-Heh). (Keep the right arm extended throughout; never let it drop. The pentagrams should be visualized in either a flaming blue or brilliant white Light.)



Turn to the South and trace the same pentagram there. Charge the figure as before, intoning "ADONAI" (Ah-doh-nye).

Turn to the West and trace the pentagram. Charge it with "EHEIEH" (Eh-hey-yay).

Turn to the North and draw the pentagram, intoning "AGLA" (Ah-gah-lah).

Keep the arm extended. Turn to face the East. Extend both arms out in the form of a cross and say, "Before me RAPHAEL" (Rah-fahy-el). Visualize before you the great Archangel of Air rising out of the clouds in flowing yellow and violet robes, carrying a Caduceus Wand.

Behind you visualize another figure and say "Behind me GABRIEL" (Gah-bree-el). See the Archangel stepping out of the sea like the goddess Venus, dressed in robes of blue and orange, with cup in hand.

See to your right another figure in flaming red and green robes carrying a sword. Say "On my right hand MICHAEL" (Mee-chai-el).

See another great Archangel at your left, who rises up from the vegetation of the Earth in robes of citrine, olive, russet, and black, holding stems of ripened wheat. Say, "On my left hand URIEL" (Ur-ee-el).

> (Say:) "For about me flames the pentagram, and in the column shines the Six-rayed Star."

Repeat the Qabalistic Cross. ✡

Uses of the Pentagram Ritual

This simple yet powerful cleansing ritual can be used as a protection against the impure magnetism of others. It is also a way to rid oneself of obsessing or disturbing thoughts. Give a mental image to your particular thought or disturbance and visualize it before you. Project it out of your aura with the Saluting Sign of a Neophyte, and when it is away from you, prevent its return with the Sign of Silence. Then imagine the form in the East and perform the LBRP. See the form dissolving on the outside of your ring of flaming pentagrams.

The LBRP can be used as an exercise in concentration. While seated or lying down, formulate yourself standing up in robes and holding a dagger. Place your consciousness in this astral form and go to the East. Make yourself "feel" there by touching the wall, opening your eyes, stamping on the floor, etc. Let your astral form perform the ritual, circumambulating the room and mentally vibrating the words. Finish in the East and try to see your results astrally, then walk back and stand behind your physical body and let your astral body be re-absorbed.

The LBRP is to be performed daily for no less than a period of six months. In fact, it should be practiced daily regardless of one's grade. The Golden Dawn manuscripts advocated doing the invoking form of this ritual in the morning and the banishing form at night. However we feel that the Neophyte needs to concentrate solely on the banishing form, since s/he has a tendency to light up on the astral and unknowingly attract all manner of Elementals at this early stage of the Work. It is far more important for the Neophyte to know how to banish rather than to invoke. Anyone can attract an Elemental or an energy. Getting rid of the same can be more difficult.✡

ADORATION TO THE LORD OF THE UNIVERSE

Face East and say, "Holy art Thou, Lord of the Universe!" Give the Projection Sign. Say, "Holy art Thou, whom Nature hath not formed!" Give the Projection Sign. Say, "Holy art Thou, the Vast and the Mighty One!" Give the Projection Sign. Say, "Lord of the Light, and of the Darkness!" Give the Sign of Silence. (Note: This affirmation should be done daily.)✡ for the 0 = 0 grade of Neophyte[25]

MEDITATION

Let the Neophyte consider a point as defined in mathematics—having position but no magnitude—and let him note the ideas to which this gives rise. Concentrating their faculties on this, as a focus, let him endeavour to realise the Immanence of the Divine throughout Nature, in all her aspects.

Begin by finding a position, balanced, but sufficiently comfortable. Breathe rhythmically until the body is still and the mind quiet. Keep this state for a few minutes at first—and for longer as you get more used to preventing the mind from wandering. Think now of the subject for meditation in a general way—then choose one thought or image and follow that to its conclusion.

The simplest rhythm for the beginner is the Fourfold Breath.

1. Empty the lungs and remain thus while counting 4.
2. Inhale, counting 4, so that you feel filled with breath to the throat.
3. Hold this breath while counting 4.
4. Exhale, counting 4 till the lungs are empty.

This should be practised, counting slowly or quickly till you obtain a rhythm that suits you—one that is comforting and stilling. Having attained this, count the breath thus for two or three minutes, till you feel quiet, and then proceed with the meditation. (Note: this should be done daily for no less than six months.)✡

---

[25] From Regardie's The Golden Dawn.

DAILY ADORATIONS

It is important for a magician to feel a link with the Divine Source of the universe every single day. In our modern secular society, human beings can easily become detached from that which is spiritual. In order to reaffirm our awareness of ourselves as beings who are a part of a greater Divine Self, it is important to make a ritual gesture confirming a link between the Eternal and ourselves. This Eternal Self is readily symbolized by the luminary of Sol, the Sun; the symbol of both Light and Life on Earth.

Although the Divine Self is encompassed by the idea of One, Sol, as a visible representation of the Divine is referred to four daily positions: East—Dawn, South—Noon, West—Sunset, and North—Midnight. Consequently, an adoration is directed towards Sol at each of these four positions.

Israel Regardie suggested that the student perform the four adorations from Aleister Crowley's Liber Resh vel Helios. We will present these adorations (adapted to include the Neophyte Signs in all four quarters) followed by our own alternative version, Kheperu Nu Ra. The choice of which adorations to use is left to the reader.✡

LIBER RESH VEL HELIOS

At Dawn, face East. Make the Sign of the Enterer and say:

Hail unto Thee who art Ra in Thy rising,
Even unto Thee who art Ra in Thy strength,
Who travelest over the Heavens in Thy bark
At the Uprising of the Sun.
Tahuti standeth in His splendor at the prow
And Ra-Hoor abideth at the helm.
Hail unto Thee from the Abodes of Night!

Give the Sign of Silence and stamp the left foot on the ground. At Noon, face South. Give the same gestures as before.

Hail unto Thee who art Hathor in Thy triumphing,
Even unto Thee who art Hathor in Thy beauty,
Who travelest over the Heavens in Thy bark
At the mid-course of the Sun.
Tahuti standeth in His splendor at the prow
And Ra-Hoor abideth at the helm.
Hail unto Thee from the Abodes of Morning!

Give the Sign of Silence. At Sunset, face West. Give the same ritual gestures as before.

Hail unto Thee who art Tum in Thy setting,
Even unto Thee who art Tum in Thy joy,
Who travelest over the Heavens in Thy bark
At the down-going of the Sun.
Tahuti standeth in His splendor at the prow
And Ra-Hoor abideth at the helm.
Hail unto Thee from the Abodes of Day!

Give the Sign of Silence. At Midnight or when retiring, face North. Give the same gestures as before.

Hail unto Thee who art Khephera in Thy hiding,
Even unto Thee who art Khephera in Thy silence,
Who travelest over the Heavens in Thy bark
At the Midnight Hour of the Sun.
Tahuti standeth in His splendor at the prow
And Ra-Hoor abideth at the helm.
Hail unto Thee from the Abodes of Evening!

Give the Sign of Silence.✡

KHEPERU NU RA

The Evolutions of Ra

At Dawn, facing East, stand in the Sign of the Enterer.

Praise be to thee, O Khepera in thy rising,
Yet unto thee, O Khepera in thy birth,
Hail, thou Disk, Lord of Rays, Lord of Might!
Hail, thou Reborn One, Lord of Life, Lord of Light!
Isis and Nephthys salute thee
O Risen One of the Sky,
Homage to thee, O Khepera, who art the morning's Eye.

Give the Sign of Silence. At Noon, facing South, stand in the Sign of the Enterer.

Praise be to thee, O Ra in thy Zenith,
Yet unto thee, O Ra in thy Strength,
Hail, thou Disk, Lord of Rays, Lord of Might!
Hail, thou Shining One, Lord of Life, Lord of Light!

Isis and Nephthys salute thee
O Brilliant One of the Sky,
Homage to thee, O Ra, who art the Midday's Eye.

Give the Sign of Silence. At Sunset, facing West, stand in the Sign of the Enterer.

Praise be to thee, O Temu in thy setting,
Yet unto thee, O Temu in thy peace,
Hail, thou Disk, Lord of Rays, Lord of Might!
Hail, thou Subsiding One, Lord of Life, Lord of Light!
Isis and Nephthys salute thee
O Fading One of the Sky,
Homage to thee, O Temu, who art the Evening's Eye.

Give the Sign of Silence. At Midnight, facing North, stand in the Sign of the Enterer.

Praise be to thee, O Amon in thy hiding,
Yet unto thee, O Amon in thy veil,
Hail, thou Disk, Lord of Rays, Lord of Might!
Hail, thou Eternal One, Lord of Life, Lord of Light!
Isis and Nephthys salute thee
O Concealed One of the Sky,
Homage to thee, O Amon, who art the Midnight's Eye.

Give the Sign of Silence.✡

Whichever version of the four adorations you choose should be made a regular part of everyday life and practiced until it becomes second nature. Other exercises described in this book may be perform for varying periods of time, but the fourfold adorations are to be integrated permanently into the student's daily routine.✡

THE BERAKAH

(Blessing)

This is a rite of consecration for a meal or feast. The purpose for doing this short ritual is the same as that for the adorations; that is, to constantly remind one of the spiritual nature behind all aspects of life. It is to be performed before eating the main meal of the day. Here the rite is presented so that it may be performed by two people, but it may be just as conveniently performed by one person.

1st Person gives one knock.

2nd Person give one knock.

1st Person give a final knock.

> 1st: KHABS.
>
> 2nd: AM.
>
> 1st: PEKHT.
>
> 2nd: KONX.
>
> 1st: OM.
>
> 2nd: PAX.
>
> 1st: LIGHT.
>
> 2nd: IN.
>
> 1st: EXTENSION!

1st person makes a cross over the meal with his/her right hand and says:

> May this food, grown in the soil of the Kingdom, maintain our bodies and nourish our souls. Thus sustained, we reach ever toward the heights of Kether.

2nd person makes a cross over the meal and says:

> Thus sustained, may we follow the Path of Knowledge that leadeth unto the Light.

1st Person gives one knock.

2nd Person give one knock.

1st Person give a final knock.

> 1st: KHABS.
>
> 2nd: AM.
>
> 1st: PEHKT.

2nd: KONX.

1st: OM.

2nd: PAX.

1st: LIGHT.

2nd: IN.

1st: EXTENSION!✡

THE RITE OF ELEMENTAL EQUILIBRATION

One objective of the Outer Order is to bring to the initiate an awareness of the inner Elemental make-up of his/her own psyche. This awareness also includes the ability to experience the Elements and balance them in equal portion within the mind.

It is vitally important that the solitary student, working without the aid of an established temple, be able to consciously equilibrate those psychic Elements. Beginning with the Neophyte grade and especially in the higher grades of the Outer Order, the student must be constantly on guard against Elemental imbalance. The simple rite of the Qabalistic Cross is very useful for this purpose; however, we suggest that the student also perform the following Rite of Elemental Equilibration to actively combat such imbalances that may occur during the transformative process of self-initiation. This is a ritual that should be performed regularly, regardless of one's grade status.

Stand facing the East and perform the Fourfold Breath a number of times until you feel relaxed. Imagine a brilliant Light above your head. Reach up with your right hand as if to touch this Light and bring the Light down to your forehead. Imagine the yellow triangle of Air (apex up) superimposed over the upper part of your body. Vibrate, "SHADDAI EL CHAI" (Shah-dye El Chai).

Then picture the black triangle of Earth (apex down) covering the lower portion of your body. Bring your hand down as if pointing to the ground and vibrate, "ADONAI HA-ARETZ" (Ah-doh-nye Hah-Ah-retz).

Visualize the red triangle of Fire (apex up) superimposed over the right side of your body. Touch your right shoulder and intone, "YHVH TZABAOTH" (Yode-Heh-Vav-Heh Tzah-Bah-oth).

Imagine the blue triangle of Water (apex down) covering the left side of your body. Touch your left shoulder and intone, "ELOHIM TZABAOTH" (El-oh-heem Tzah-Bah-oth).[26]

Bring both hands together, interlocking the fingers, palms outward, and touch the area of your heart with the your knuckles. Imagine the sigil of the Spirit Wheel in white at the center of your body, uniting the four Elemental triangles. Imagine the Brilliant Light above your head connected with this sigil of Spirit. Vibrate, "ETH."

Continue the Four-fold breath and add the following visualizations:

INHALE—imagine the Fire triangle.
FULL HOLD—imagine the Water triangle.
EXHALE—imagine the Air triangle.
EMPTY HOLD—imagine the Earth triangle.

Strongly imagine all of the Elemental triangles within your aura balanced and in harmony under the guidance of Spirit.✡

BODY AWARENESS EXERCISE

One of the primary aims of any system of spiritual growth is the procurement of self awareness or perception. The only way to increase sensitivity is to become aware—aware of that which is within, as well as that which is without.

Sitting comfortably or lying down, merely attempt to observe what is happening with your own body. Simply watch your physical body and its various sensations. Do not do anything special; breathe normally and don't try to relax or control wandering thoughts. Just try to notice what happens.

After a few moments, find a comfortable position, then stay in it, without moving or consciously fidgeting in any way. Remain perfectly still. At first this exercise should be practiced for no more than ten minutes. Gradually increase the time spent in practice so that by the end of the student's time in the Neophyte grade, this exercise is extended to half an hour. Obviously, this exercise will be simple to some, terribly difficult to others. Any urge to wiggle and release tension should be resisted.

---

[26] This arrangement relates to the four colors of the sphere of Malkuth as projected onto the body of the aspirant. The Fire of Geburah (right shoulder) is reflected across the Tree to Netzach (YHVH Tzabaoth) and reflected back again into the russet quarter of Malkuth. Likewise the Water of Chesed (left shoulder) is reflected across the Tree to Hod (Elohim Tzabaoth) and reflected back again to the olive quarter of Malkuth.

The powers of concentration should also be developed as this awareness exercise is practiced. If the mind begins to wander, gently bring it back. Your powers of concentration will gradually but steadily become enhanced.

During this practice, you may become aware of itching sensations in various parts of your body. Do not attempt to scratch. Merely observe. Simply be aware of various body sensations without trying to alter or ignore them. Do not make judgments or criticisms about these sensations. Accept them as a part of you.

Sensations will come and go in different areas of the body. Study them. It is sometimes a good idea to verbally express what you are feeling or experiencing.

This exercise will result in a profound relaxation of nervous tension. Daily practice will heighten the function of self-awareness, something that is vital to the work of an initiate. All complex ceremonies and rituals actually begin with this heightening of self-awareness.

No special time period needs to be found to practice this. Lying in bed at night or in the morning is certainly an excellent time to rehearse body awareness. This exercise should be done twice daily while in the Neophyte grade. In addition to this, short periods of temporary pause from activity can be taken throughout the day during bathing, shaving or dressing, etc., in order to sharpen one's perceptions and observe what is happening within.✡

EXTRA SENSORY AWARENESS EXERCISE

Obtain a set of ESP cards such as those developed in the parapsychology laboratory at Duke University (for sale at most occult bookstores). The drawings on these cards are simple symbols—one symbol per card.

Shuffle the cards. Place the cards face down and place your hand upon the top card. Make your mind as blank as possible and attempt to guess what image is on the front of the card (square, circle, cross, waves, or star). Go through the entire deck in this fashion, at least once daily. Do not get discouraged if you do not often guess correctly. Record your results.✡

Suggested Reading

Introduction to the First Edition of The Golden Dawn by Israel Regardie

Introduction to the Second Edition of The Golden Dawn by Israel Regardie

A Garden of Pomegranates by Israel Regardie

The Mystical Qabalah by Dion Fortune

The Training and Work of an Initiate by Dion Fortune

The Kybalion by Three Initiates

"The ABC's of Qabalah" by Harvey Newstrom, published in The Golden Dawn Journal, Book II, Qabalah, Theory and Magic

"The Tree of Life, Jacob's Extending Ladder" by Gareth Knight, published in The Golden Dawn Journal, Book II, Qabalah, Theory and Magic

Introduction to The Golden Dawn Journal, Book III, The Art of Hermes

"Logos Revealed" by Madonna Compton, published in The Golden Dawn Journal, Book III, The Art of Hermes

Examinations

(Answers for all exams are given in the back of this book.)

QUIZ 0 (The Ritual)

1. Which officer carries the sword of Judgment?
2. What implement is carried by the Dadouchos?
3. Which officer is the Expounder of the Mysteries?
4. How many times is the candidate purified and consecrated?
5. What does the lamp of the Keryx symbolize?
6. What does "Konx Om Pax" mean?
7. What symbols are upon the altar?
8. What does the hoodwink symbolize?
9. What does the black cord symbolize?
10. Why is the altar a double cube?
11. What does the Mystic Circumambulation signify?
12. Which officer watches over the Gateway of the Hidden Knowledge?
13. Who is the Guardian of the Cauldron and the Well of Water?
14. What does the First or Saluting Sign refer to?
15. What do the two pillars represent?
16. The seed of _______ is sown in Silence and grows in darkness and mystery.
17. By _________ and __________ are all Powers awakened and reawakened.

18. Who is Har Par Krat?
19. What does the wand of the Keryx symbolize?
20. What does the Grip of the Neophyte refer to?
21. Which officer is the herald?
22. Which officer is called "Darkness" and "the Great One of the Path of the Shades?"
23. Which officer is referred to as "Light dawning in Darkness?"

QUIZ SECTIONS 1, 2, and 3 (The Elements, the Zodiac, and the Planets)

1. List the four Elements and draw their symbols.
2. What is the Element of Heat and Moisture?
3. What is the Element of Cold and Dryness?
4. What is the Element of Heat and Dryness?
5. What is the Element of Cold and Moisture?
6. What is the English name for the Element IGNIS?
7. What is the English name for the Element RUACH?
8. Which Element signifies the human intellect?
9. Which Element signifies the unconscious?
10. List the twelve Signs of the Zodiac and draw their symbols.
11. What is the Sign of Mutable Earth?
12. What is meant by the term "triplicity?"
13. A Quadruplicity of Signs is grouped by _____________.
14. List the Signs of the Air Triplicity.
15. List the Signs of the Earth Triplicity.
16. What Signs rule the change of seasons?
17. List the Kerubic Signs.
18. What Signs are also called "Common" Signs?
19. What Signs are also called "Fixed" Signs?
20. Name the Sign whose Key word is Practicality.
21. Name the Sign whose Key word is Versatility.
22. Name the Sign whose Key word is Activity.
23. What is the Sign of Cardinal Air?
24. What is the Sign of Mutable Fire?
25. What Sign is dramatic, self-confident, and romantic?
26. What Sign is nurturing, maternal, and sensitive?
27. What Sign is intense, resourceful, passionate, and aware?
28. What Sign is introspective, charitable, intuitive, and artistic?
29. What is the Sign of Cardinal Earth?
30. What Sign is philosophical, open-minded, and straightforward?
31. List the seven ancient Planets and draw their sigils.
32. What is the Planet of emotions?
33. What is the Planet of expansion?
34. What Planet is known as the Lesser Malefic?
35. What Planet is known as the Greater Benefic?
36. What Planet's action is energizing and stimulating?

37. What Planet is known as "The Teacher?"
38. Give the appropriate sign for:
    a. Venus's exaltation
    b. Luna's detriment
    c. Mars's dignity
    d. Sol's exaltation
    e. Jupiter's fall
    f. Saturn's dignity
    g. Mercury's detriment
    h. Luna's exaltation
    i. Venus's dignity
    j. Uranus's detriment
    k. Neptune's dignity
    l. Pluto's detriment
39. What is the Planet of organization and discipline?
40. List the three "New" Planets and draw their symbols.
41. What is the Head of the Dragon?
42. What is the Planet of transformation?
43. What Planet is known as "The Awakener?"
44. What is the Planet of drug addiction and sleepwalking?
45. What is the Planet of the Inner Self?
46. Name the Planet whose action is sudden, forceful, and disruptive.
47. What is the Tail of the Dragon?
48. What Planet represents the primary feminine principle?
49. What Planet represents the primary masculine principle?
50. Which Element is called hydor in Greek?
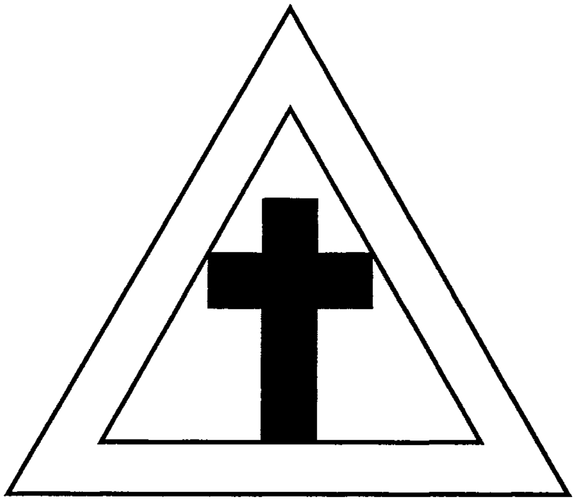
51. Which Element was seen by the Alchemists as that which operates at the center of all things?
52. What is the English name for the Element MAIM?
53. What is the English name for the Element ARETZ?
54. Which Element signifies materialization?
55. Which Element is the "son" of Fire and Water?
56. What is the Sign of Kerubic Air?
57. List the Signs of the Water Triplicity.
58. List some of the characteristics of the Mutable Signs.
59. List some of the characteristics of the Kerubic Signs.
60. List some of the characteristics of the Cardinal Signs.
61. Which Planet rules the Sign of Virgo?
62. Which Planet rules the Sign of Libra?
63. Which Planet rules the Sign of Taurus?
64. What is the Planet of affection?
65. What is the Planet of competition?
66. Which Planet rules "Frigg's Day?"
67. Which Planet rules "Woden's Day?"
68. Which Planet rules "Tiw's Day?"

QUIZ: SECTIONS 4, 5, & 6:

(The Qabalah, the Sephiroth and the Hebrew Alphabet)

1. What does the word Qabalah mean?
2. The Qabalah is usually classified under four heads. What are they?
3. List the Ten Sephiroth and give their English translations. Also write out the names of the Sephiroth in Hebrew.
4. Which Sephirah is represented by the line, the phallus, and the Yod?
5. Which Sephirah is also called Gedulah?
6. Which is the Mediating Sephirah?
7. Name the Sephirah whose symbols are the Names of Power and the Apron.
8. Name the Sephirah whose physical representation is the Zodiac.
9. Name the Sephirah of the First Motion.
10. Name the Sephirah which represents the "left brain" and the Individual Mind.
11. Name the Sephirah which represents the "right brain" and the Group Mind.
12. Name the Sephirah whose keyword is energy.
13. Name the Sephirah of the astral Light.
14. Name the Sephirah whose physical representation is Sol.
15. Name the Sephirah of completion and stability.
16. Name the Sephirah whose symbols are the Calvary Cross and the cube.
17. Which Sephirah is also called Pachad?
18. Name the Sephirah whose physical representation is Luna.
19. Name the Sephirah whose symbol is the point.
20. Name the Sephirah whose physical representation is the sphere of Saturn.
21. Name the Sephiroth on the Pillar of Severity.
22. Name the Sephiroth on the Pillar of Mildness.
23. Name the Sephiroth on the Pillar of Mercy.
24. The Dogmatic Qabalah involves the study of the Torah. What is another name for the Torah?
25. Which two Hebrew letters have the power of "t?"
26. Which two Hebrew letters have the power of "s?"
27. Which Hebrew letter means "enclosure?"
28. Which Hebrew letter means "back of the head?"
29. Which Hebrew letter means "house?"
30. Name and draw the twenty-two letters of the Hebrew alphabet along with their English equivalents (powers). Also list their numeral values and literal meanings. Include the final letters.

CHAPTER TWO



The Zelator Grade

① = $\boxed{10}$

The four Elemental grades beyond Neophyte represent an understanding of the Elements within the psychological and spiritual makeup of the candidate. The initiation ceremonies of these Elemental grades are those of the Zelator, Theoricus, Practicus and Philosophus,[27] which are each referred to one of the four Elements of the Tetragrammaton: Earth, Air, Water and Fire. As a group, these four grades represent the essential work of the Golden Dawn, that is to equilibrate the Elemental forces within the psyche of the aspirant. These "inner Elements" can be characterized as distinct sections of the subconscious mind. The process undertaken by an initiate advancing through the grades is truly an alchemical one; the psychic mechanism of the candidate undergoes a kind of dissolution during the ceremony of the Neophyte. The integral Elements are awakened and purified through the Elemental grade ceremonies, until at length all of the base components are consecrated and integrated back into the psyche of the Initiate.

The first step is of course to awaken the Elemental portions, for unless their existence is realized, the work of alchemical transformation cannot take place. Through symbol and ceremony, the initiation rites of each grade summon forth the spirits and entities of a particular Element. Contact with a specific Elemental force produces a kind of magnetic attraction, whereby the corresponding Elemental energy is awakened within the sphere of the aspirant. Only then can further advancement and growth take place. Thus aroused, the Elemental portions of the mind become consecrated to union with the Higher Self and ultimately to the consummation of the Great Work. This process allows the initiate to bring vast amounts of energy and inspiration from the formerly untapped subconscious depths into the domain of the conscious mind where it can be utilized for further spiritual growth.

The Element offered for the act of transmutation in this grade is Earth—specifically the Earthy part of the aspirant's psyche. This ritual is the first to truly confer the title of initiate upon the candidate, symbolically launching his/her initial step onto the Tree of Life. Thus do the numbers 1 = 10 refer to this important first step onto the Tenth Sephirah, Malkuth. The Zelator Grade lays the foundation for all subsequent Elemental transmutations within the aspirant's sphere of sensation. The name Zelator comes from a Greek word for "zealot."

---

[27] All of these names, along with that of Neophyte, are titles of traditional Rosicrucian grades.

The only Planet assigned to this grade is Terra Firma, the Planet Earth beneath our feet. This is perhaps only one of the reasons why the Zelator grade has such a profound effect on those who attain it. The Zelator Ritual is also meant to ground the candidate firmly in the stabilizing Element of Earth. One of its primary functions is to strengthen the candidate in both mind and body for the difficult work of alchemical transformation which lies ahead. In fact the Zelator Ritual is often said to be the only true initiation ceremony out of all the Elemental grades—the rest being advancements which continue the process started in the 1 = 10. This is due to the fact that the Zelator ritual establishes the aspirant firmly in Earth of Malkuth, and the three grades beyond the 1 = 10 explore the other sub-Elements of Malkuth.

The task of a Golden Dawn magician is not an easy one—the very act of advancing through the grades will accelerate any stresses (physical, personal, or mental) that lie dormant within the candidate. Any such difficulties must be confronted and resolved before taking any further grade initiations. This is one of the reasons why we suggest that the student of this course spend a good deal of time in each grade.

The 1 = 10 is also well known as the grade that will separate the wheat from the chaff. Many of those individuals who reach this level, but whose primary motives for getting involved in magic are questionable (escapism, cravings for power or title, or adherence to the current magical "fad") will drop out because of the "filter" effect of the Zelator Ceremony. All of the Elemental grades act to screen out those who cannot bear the task of transformation, but the main thrust of this filtering effect will be felt in the 1 = 10 grade. Israel Regardie often stated that if a magician couldn't function in the Earthy material World of Malkuth, then he had no business attempting to reach the Higher Realms.

The ceremony of the Zelator can be briefly summarized as follows: As in all of the initiation ceremonies presented in this book, the goddess Thme, representative of the candidate's Higher Self, is called upon to safely arbitrate between the divine powers and the aspirant. (Note: A hexagram is formed by the positions of the astral officer/godforms twice in the ceremony, both at the opening and at the closing when the Elemental powers of Earth are being addressed.) After the forces of Elemental Earth are invoked, the candidate is tested on the secrets of the Neophyte grade. The aspirant then swears a further oath and is ceremonially brought to two stations—that of Evil and that of Good. At both of these stations, the Guardians of the Paths repel the unprepared candidate. The aspirant then takes the Middle Path of Equilibrium where s/he is again barred by the Guardians, but eventually the way is cleared by the Guardian of the Celestial Soul. It is during this journey along the path of balance that the stabilizing Element of Earth is established within the aura of the aspirant, so that eventually s/he may prove to be a worthy vessel of the Divine Spirit. The aspirant is at this point a living cross of manifestation within the white triangle of art formed by the officer/godforms and represented by the diagram at his/her feet.

In the beginning of this ritual the altar occupies a position much farther East than its previous position in the Neophyte Hall. The pillars are moved well toward the West of the temple. The officers' stations in the Zelator Hall are six in number: Hierophant, Hiereus, Hegemon, Keryx, Stolistes, and Dadouchos. (The station of the Phylax remains outside the Hall.) During the initial part of the ceremony, the stations of these six officers form a triangle, the emblem of Supernal revelation and the symbol of magical evocation. The three lesser officers compose the base, Hiereus and Hegemon (representatives of the opposing Light and Darkness) are beside the altar, and the Hierophant, who personifies the higher powers, is situated at the apex. This triangle, apex upwards, is also a triangle of Fire, which points out a curious relationship that exists between the letters Yod (Fire) and Heh Final (Earth) of Tetragrammaton. (Keep in mind that the group of Angels assigned to Malkuth is known as the Ashim, or the "Souls of Fire." The Admission Badge of this grade, the Fylfot Cross or Swastika, is another key to the puzzle, because it is formed from seventeen squares out of a square of twenty-five lesser squares. Twenty-five is also the number of squares attributed to the Qamea of Mars.) Thus initiation into the Earthy Zelator grade and the sphere of Malkuth indicates that a certain amount of Fire energy is also involved. Since advancement through the Elemental grades symbolizes an Alchemical process of examination and dissolution within the aspirant, it is no surprise that we find a fiery undercurrent infiltrating this initial step onto the Tree of Life.

In the next portion of the ceremony the candidate is then allowed to enter the sanctuary, where s/he symbolically treads the path of a Priest of the Hebrew mysteries. The symbolism of the ancient Tabernacle in the Wilderness, the first physical Qabalistic temple in Malkuth, is gradually revealed to the aspirant. This and other symbolism relating to the Earth grade are disclosed until finally the Earth powers are released.

During this segment in the ritual, the stations of the officers form a cross. The shaft of the cross is created by the three primary officer/godforms in alignment with the altar, while the stations of Stolistes and Dadouchos compose the crossbar. This cross formation stresses the four Elements as a balanced "whole" within the manifest universe, as well as the four sub-Elements of Malkuth. It also implies the need for the balance of psychic Elements within the candidate as well. (Note that the cross surrounded by a circle is the symbol of Malkuth.) The fact that the cross here is composed of five officers (not four or six) alludes to the pentagram, the number of man—the microcosm, and the initiate. But it also refers to the fifth Element of Spirit which surmounts and guides the other four.

Godforms of the Outer Order Grades

Unlike the Neophyte grade, the specific godforms to be employed in the remaining Outer Order grades are not set and carved in stone. In the Hermetic community there are differing opinions as to which godforms are present in the Elemental grades. For the purposes of this course, we have chosen to use the godforms first introduced in the Neophyte grade: Hierophant = Osiris, Hiereus = Horus, Hegemon = Thme, etc.

The Zelator initiation ceremony introduces three important Archangelic forms to the candidate. They can be visualized during the ritual using the following descriptions.

Archangelic Forms of the Zelator Grade

SAMAEL: (Hebrew meaning poison of God) Although described in the Zelator Ritual as an Archangel, Samael is more often described as an Archdemon, or as the Qlippotic force of the Sephirah of Hod on the black pillar. In this ritual Samael is portrayed as the guardian of the Path of Evil who prevents the candidate from journeying upon the Path of Darkness. Samael may be visualized as a black winged bird-like entity with glowing eyes. He wears a robe, tabard and nemyss, all black. He holds a large black sword.

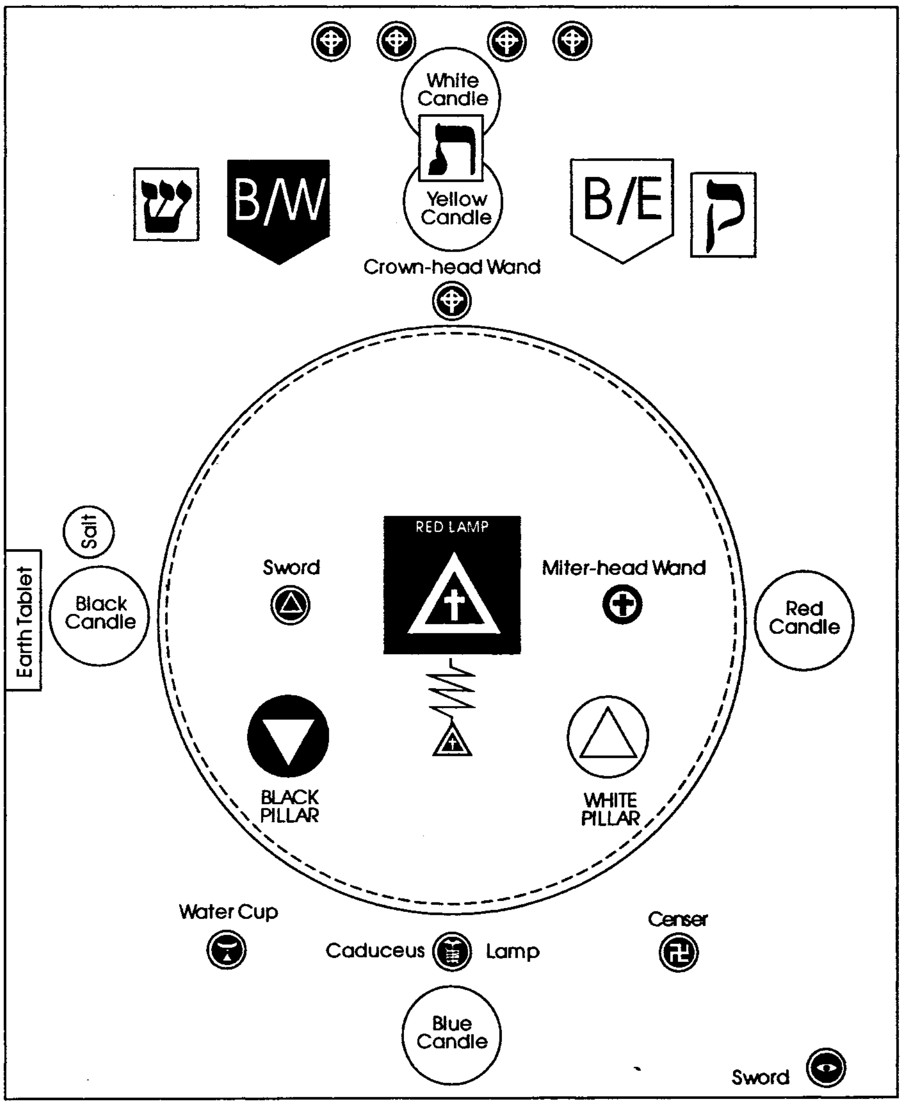
METATRON: (Hebrew. Possible Greek meaning: near thy throne) Metatron is usually described as the most powerful Archangel of Kether. In the Zelator ceremony, Metatron is the Guardian of the Path of Good, and the Kerub of the right-hand pillar. He bars the candidate from entering the Path of Good. Metatron is visualized as a horned male figure with dark hair and beard. He is dressed in a robe, tabard and nemyss, all white. He holds a miter-headed scepter.

SANDALPHON: (Hebrew. Possible Greek meaning: Lord of Height) Sandalphon is described as the Archangel of Malkuth and the Kerub of the left-hand pillar. In the Zelator ceremony, she is the Reconciler for Earth, mediating between Good and Evil on behalf of the candidate. Sandalphon is visualized as a tall horned female figure dressed in a black robe. She wears a tabard in the four colors of Malkuth and a white nemyss. She bears a crown-headed scepter.

In the months that follow the 1 = 10 initiation, the aspirant must strive to thoroughly absorb knowledge which relates to the Element of Earth. Much of this is presented in the Second Knowledge Lecture given in this chapter, along with other material for the Zelator to study, including sections on the Astrological houses, Alchemy, Geomancy, gemstones and metals, and the Qabalistic hierarchies. The task of the Zelator is to thoroughly assimilate this knowledge and to awaken the stabilizing Element of Earth within, so that further spiritual transmutation of the psychic Elements can take place. The aspirant must never forget the potent statement given in the Ceremony of the 1 = 10: "Except Adonai build the house, their labor is but lost that build it..."✡

THE ZELATOR CEREMONY

Temple setup: The aspirant will need to set up the Hall beforehand in accordance with the temple diagram. The black cubical altar is placed in the center of the room. Upon it are the symbols of the cross and triangle (the red cross is within the white triangle). A red lamp or candle is placed on the Eastern side of the altar. On the front of the altar should be a large diagram of the Flaming Sword and the Kerubim. Just in front of the altar on the floor should be a diagram of the cross within the triangle. The pillars are placed just West of the altar. The three Hebrew letters of Shin, Tau and Qoph are shown on large plaques in the East. In this ritual,



White Candle
B/W
Yellow Candle
B/E
Crown-head Wand
Salt
Earth Tablet
Black Candle
RED LAMP
Sword
Miter-head Wand
Red Candle
BLACK PILLAR
WHITE PILLAR
Water Cup
Censer
Caduceus
Lamp
Blue Candle
Sword

Zelator Temple for Self-Initiation: First Setup both the Banners of the East and West are located in the East.[28] The Enochian Tablet of Earth is placed in the Northern section of the temple.[29] In front of the Tablet should be a platter of salt and a black lamp or candle for Earth. Place the lamens in accordance with the temple diagram, in the positions of the officer-forms. Place the implements of the officers, the wands, swords, cup and censer, next to the respective lamens.

As in the previous ritual, all of the Elemental candles should be placed around the circumference of the room, with a white candle in the East. The lights on the pillars should be unshaded.

Ritual preparations: As before, it is suggested that the aspirant fast for a period of 12 hours prior to the ritual. During this time the candidate should prepare a small piece of paper upon which is written a particular vice or failing that the aspirant wishes to be rid of. A ritual bath is required after which the aspirant may put on the black Tau robe and red slippers. The sash will need to be decorated with the Zelator designs, but it is not to be worn by the candidate at this time.[30] Place the sash inside the altar. Two diagrams will have to be on hand for the second part of the ritual. They are the Seven-branched Candlestick and the Table of Shewbread. (These diagrams can be found in the following pages of this chapter.)

The aspirant must meditate for a certain length of time on a drawing of the symbol of Earth—an Earth triangle (apex downward) in black. Next s/he must spend a period of time (20—30 minutes) in a darkened room or antechamber to the temple seated in quiet meditation while wearing a hoodwink or blindfold.) The Admission Badge for the grade of Zelator, the Fylfot Cross, should be held in the right hand throughout this period. A small candle is to be the only source of light in the room. During this time, darkness and silence are to be maintained. The aspirant should imagine him/her self under the watch of Anubis of the West. After this period of time, the hoodwink may be removed. The aspirant may then enter the temple and begin the ritual.

Upon entering the temple, imagine that you are leaving your physical body outside as a sentinel to guard the temple, so that your spiritual self has the freedom to accept initiation.

---

[28] The Banner of the West is shown in the East to block the energies of the three Paths from entering into the temple.

[29] Instructions on how to make this and the other Enochian Tablets are given in our book Secrets of a Golden Dawn Temple.

[30] The Aspirant should ornament his/her sash to reflect the Zelator grade. In our temple we have "generic" sashes that candidates may borrow (the Neophyte sash for the beginning of the Zelator grade, for example). At one point in the ritual the Neophyte sash is removed and the candidate is invested with his/her own newly embroidered Zelator sash. However, the solitary student can't afford to make different sashes for different grades. In this case the aspirant will have to forego wearing a sash at the beginning of the ceremony.

PART 0: The Opening

Enter the temple with the Admission Badge of the Fylfot Cross. Salute the Banner of the East with the Neophyte Signs. Leave the cross at the station of the Keryx. Once inside walk deosil to the East. With the Hiereus' sword, perform the LBRP.

Give one knock with the pommel of the sword against the floor or side of the chair and say "HEKAS, HEKAS, ESTE BEBELOI!"

Put the sword aside and go to the West of the temple, facing East. Kneel down and invoke the godform of Thmê as in the previous initiation. Vibrate strongly:

> THMÊ! THMÊ! THMÊ! Thou daughter and eye of RA! Lady of Heaven, Queen of Earth and mistress of the Underworld! Great Lady of all the gods and goddesses. Thou whose name is MAAT! Lady of Truth! Goddess of Justice and Order! Mediator between Darkness and Light, Chaos and Order! THMÊ! THMÊ! THMÊ! Thou who assesseth the heart of every man and woman in the Hall of Judgment before Ousiri and the assembly of the gods. Thou who art the eye and heart of balance! THMÊ! THMÊ! THMÊ! I invoke thee!

As in your previous initiation rite, visualize the image of the goddess Thmê before you, with human head and yellow-gold skin. She wears a black and white nemyss and a white linen gown. She carries the miter-headed scepter of the Hegemon. Above her head is the white glowing outline of the cross and triangle, symbolic of the outer magical current of the Golden Dawn.

Slowly and with much feeling, perform the Qabalistic Cross, drawing the Light down from the Kether of the universe into the Kether at the crown of your head as you continue the QC. Strongly visualize the cross of Light you have formed in the center of your body. Trace within your heart the Hebrew letters of the name THMÊ in glowing white. Project a white ray of thought from your heart toward the image of Thmê you have created before you. See the figure breathe in life as your thought-ray animates it. Address the form:

> THMÊ! Beautiful One of the Feather of Truth! I beseech thee to act upon my behalf in this my quest for the Light Divine! Guide me, O thou who art none other but my own Higher Self. Aid me and escort me in this Tabernacle in the Wilderness. I am a true and willing Seeker of Light and Knowledge. Act as my overseer and reconciler in the temple of Malkuth. Speak for me amidst the assembly of the gods and the guardians of this sacred Hall. My intentions are honest. I am ready to undergo test and trial. I am willing to offer sacrifice in the Courtyard before the Holy Place! I wish to be purified and consecrated to the Light. Grant that my heart is made MAAT! Grant that my Will is made MAAT! Merciful THMÊ! Let > me be judged aright! Grant that this humble aspirant before you be not turned away from that resplendent Light which resides in the East. Award me entrance into the Courtyard of the Sanctuary! Permit me to make an offering of atonement at the Brazen Altar! Grant that I may wash away all impurities in the Laver of Brass! Bestow upon me the right to offer incense upon the Golden Altar before the Veil of the Holy of Holies! Let me penetrate the Threshold in the Path of the Enterer!

Thmê speaks to you in your own mind.

> Except Adonai build the house, their labor is but lost that build it. Except Adonai keep the City, the Watchman waketh in vain. I am the representative of your Higher and Holy Self. It is only through my arbitration that thou canst even approach the Sacred Tent. In this Hall I am thy tongue, thy heart and thy mind. Fear not, for I shall guide thee through the temple of Malkuth. I shall direct thee in the courtyard before the Tabernacle in the Wilderness! Fear not, for I shall speak for thee in this assembly of the gods before the powers of Adonai and the current of the Light.

Imagine the goddess Thmê communing in silence with the energies in the East. She speaks on your behalf to the divine guardians of the Hall. You hear her voice as she calls out the names of other godforms in the East of the temple: ESE, NEBETHO, THOOUTH and another, HOOR OUER. You have a vague impression of four figures in the East, seated before a veil. Thmê continues to address the figures, and the scene becomes hazy. It appears that the goddess stands not before the seated figures in the East, but once again before the gigantic form of Thoth—Djehoti—the ibis-headed god of Wisdom. Thmê continues a silent discussion with the god. After a few moments Thmê turns toward you, salutes with the Signs toward the West and says silently:

> Thou mayest proceed, O aspirant; thou art MAAT.

Go the Northern side of the altar and make one loud knock with the sword of the Hiereus. Say:

> Let the temple be consecrated and purified by Fire and by Water.

Thmê takes you by the hand and leads you clockwise to the Southwest, where she traces the figure of the cross and triangle with the miter-headed wand. As she does so, you vibrate the name "THAUM-ESH-NEITH" (Thom-Aesch-Nay-eet) The fiery form of Neith takes shape before you. She bears a red censer. Visualize the figure strongly. The godform of Thaum-Esh-Neith traces in the air before you the figure of a Fylfot Cross. She then hands you her censer. Picking up the censer in the Southwest, you take on the office of Dadouchos that the goddess has bestowed upon you and advance to the center of the Hall from the South side of the white pillar.

With the censer, trace a cross in the air. Then wave the implement thrice in the form of the invoking Fire triangle. Say: "I consecrate with Fire."

Return sunwise to the Southwest. Step out of the office of Dadouchos and return the officer-form to the dominion of Thaum-Esh-Neith. Thmê again takes your hand and leads you to the Northwest where she traces the figure of the cross and triangle with the miter-headed wand. As she does so, you vibrate the name "AURAMOOUTH" (ow-rah-maht). The beautiful form of Auramoouth takes shape before you. She bears a blue cup. Visualize the figure strongly. The godform of Auramoouth traces in the air before you the figure of a cup. She then hands you her chalice of water. Picking up the Water cup in the North, you take on the office of Stolistes that the goddess has bestowed upon you and advance to the center of the Hall from the North side of the black pillar.

With the cup, trace a cross in the air. Then sprinkle thrice in the form of the invoking Water triangle. Say: "I purify with Water."

Return sunwise to the Northwest. Step out of the office of Stolistes and return the officer-form to the dominion of Auramoouth.

Return clockwise to the West. There Thmê traces the figure of the cross and triangle with the miter-headed wand. As she does so, you vibrate the name "ANOUP EMPEIEBET" (Ah-noop-em-pay-yeh-bet). The Jackal-headed Anubis begins to formulate in the West. Visualize the figure strongly. Anubis traces in the air before you the symbol of the Caduceus of Hermes. He then hands you his wand and lamp. Picking up the wand and lamp in the West, you take on the office of Keryx that Anubis of the East has bestowed upon you and advance to the center of the Hall from between the two pillars. Say, "The temple is cleansed." Salute the Banner of the East with the Neophyte Signs.

Return sunwise to the West. Step out of the office of Keryx and return the officer-form to the dominion of Anubis.

Thmê goes to the station of the Hiereus and traces the figures of the cross and triangle. As she does so vibrate the name of "HOOR" (Hoor or Hoh-or). The Hawk-headed god takes shape.

Thmê goes to the South and traces the figures of the cross and triangle at her own station, the station of the Hegemon. She then walks clockwise to the East and traces the cross and triangle at the station of the Hierophant. As she does this you intone the name of "OUSIRI" (Oo-seer-ee). The figure of the reborn god formulates there.

Thmê leads you between the pillars. Say:

> Let the Element of this grade be named that it may be awakened in my sphere, in the spheres of those beings who are present, and in the sphere of > this magical current. The Element is EARTH. Let us adore the Lord and King of Earth!

Visualize the symbol of the Earth triangle that you meditated on before entering the hall. Imagine its presence in your sphere of sensation around your feet and ankles. Imagine that this same image is activated in all the various officer-forms of the Hall. Then visualize a ball of white Light reflected into your Kether center—at the crown of your head.

Thmê leads you to the East of the temple. Visualize the mummy-wrapped form of Osiris strongly. The god traces in the air before you the figure of a cross and circle. He then hands you his crown-headed scepter. Picking up the Wand of Power, you take on the office of Hierophant that Osiris has bestowed upon you. Give the Sign of the Spiraling Light, then say, "Let the white brilliance of the Divine Spirit Descend!" Feel a flood of Divine Light flow through your body from the Kether of the universe. Equilibrate this Light through your body by performing the Qabalistic Cross, loudly vibrating the Hebrew names. Give one knock with the scepter. Say:

> ADONAI HA-ARETZ. ADONAI MELEKH. Unto thee be the Kingdom and the Power and the Glory. (Make the cross on yourself with the head of the wand.)
>
> Malkuth, Geburah, Gedulah. (Make the cross and circle in the air with the scepter as these names are spoken.) The Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley, Amen.

As the Hierophant, go deosil to the North and sprinkle salt before the Tablet in the form of the invoking Earth triangle. Say: "Let the Earth adore Adonai!"

Stand facing the center of the Tablet. Visualize the rest of the astral officer/godforms (except for Keryx) falling into a hexagram position behind you. Hiereus takes his place to right and slightly behind you. Hegemon takes her place to the left and slightly behind you. Stolistes lines up behind Hiereus and Dadouchos lines up behind Hegemon. (Your own position marks the apex of the Fire triangle of the hexagram which points North, while the apex of the inverted Water triangle is marked by the position of the altar.)

Through the authority of the office of Hierophant bestowed upon you by Osiris, invoke the powers of the Earth Tablet. Give a knock, then trace with the scepter of Power a large circle in front of the Tablet. Then draw the invoking pentagram of Spirit Passive. As you do so, vibrate "NANTA" (en-nah-en-tah). Trace the sigil of the Spirit wheel in the center and intone "AGLA" (Ah-gah-lah). Give the Sign of the Spiraling Light. Then trace the invoking pentagram of Earth. As you do so, vibrate the name "EMOR DIAL HECTEGA." Draw the sigil of Taurus in the center and intone "ADONAI." Give the Sign of Zelator. Then say:

U.

b	O	a	Z	a	R	o	P	h	a	R	a v	N	n	a	x	o	P	S	o	n	d	n
a	i	g	r	v	n	o	o	m	a	g	g o	r	P	m	n	i	n	g	b	e	a	l
r	s	O	n	i	z	i	r	l	e	m	v
i	z	i	n	r	C	z	i	a	M	h	l
M	O	r	d	i	a	l	h	C	t	G	a
O	C	a	n	c	h	i	a	s	o	m	t
A	r	b	i	z	m	i	i	l	P	i	z
O	P	a	n	a	L	a	m	S	m	a	P
d	O	l	o	P	i	n	i	a	n	b	a r	x	P	a	o	c	s	i	z	i	x	P
a	x	t	i	r	V	a	s	t	r	i	m

The Enochian Tablet of Earth start here

start here
start here
start here

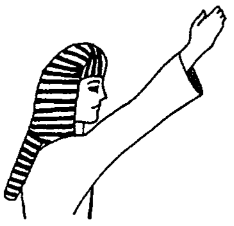
Invoking Spirit Passive

Invoking Earth

Banishing Spirit Passive

Banishing Earth

The Pentagrams of Earth



The Zelator Sign

And the Elohim said, "Let us make ADAM in our Image, after our likeness and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea and over the fowl of the air and over the cattle and over all the Earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth over the Earth." And the Elohim created Eth-ha-Adam in their own Image, in the Image of the Elohim created they them. In the name of Adonai Melekh and of the Bride and the Queen of the Kingdom, Spirits of Earth adore Adonai!

Visualize the officer/godform of the Hiereus handing you his sword. Take up the sword of the Hiereus but remain in the officer-form of the Hierophant. Trace with it the sigil of Taurus in the center of the Tablet. Say:

> In the Name of Uriel, the Great Archangel of Earth, and by the sign of the Head of the Ox—Spirits of Earth, adore Adonai!

Return the sword. Visualize the officer/godform of the Hegemon handing you her scepter. Go clockwise to the station of Hegemon and take up the wand. Return to the Tablet and trace with the Hegemon's Wand the symbol of the cross. Say:

> In the Names and Letters of the Great Northern Quadrangle, Spirits of Earth, adore Adonai!

Return the Hegemon's Wand. Visualize the officer/godform of the Stolistes handing you her cup. Go clockwise to the station of Stolistes and take up the chalice. Return to the Tablet and trace with the cup the symbol of the cross. Then sprinkle thrice in the form of the invoking Water triangle. Say:

> In the Three Great Secret Names of God, borne upon the banners of the North—EMOR DIAL HECTEGA—Spirits of Earth, adore Adonai!

Return the cup. Visualize the officer/godform of the Dadouchos handing you her censer. Go clockwise to the station of Dadouchos and take up the censer of incense. Return to the Tablet and trace with the censer the symbol of the cross and wave the implement thrice in the form of the invoking Fire triangle. Say:

> In the name of IC ZOD HEH HAL, Great King of the North, Spirits of Earth adore Adonai!

Return the censer. Take up the Hierophant's Wand and return to the East to face West. Imagine all astral officer/godforms returning to their stations.

At this point visualize that the powers of Earth have been fully awakened in the temple, although they have not yet entered into your own sphere of sensation. The Earth energies remain vigilant and ready to follow the dictates of the Hierophant. Say:

> In the name of ADONAI HA-ARETZ, I declare this temple duly opened in the 1 = 10 grade of Zelator.

Give the following knocks with the pommel of the scepter: a set of four, followed by three, followed by another three. |||| ||| |||

Visualize the officer/godform of Hegemon repeating the Battery of knocks: 4—3—3. Visualize the officer/godform of Hiereus sounding the knocks: 4—3—3.

Step out of the office of Hierophant and return the officer-form to the dominion of Osiris. Go clockwise to the North and take up the platter of salt. Place it at the foot of the altar. The goddess Thmê leads you to the West of the temple.

PART 1: Advancement—First Segment

Visualize all of the officer/godforms at their respective stations. At this point, the temple has been opened under the guidance of the Guardians of the Hall. You have played an enormously active role in the opening of this Hall, more so than in the previous initiation, and you have already done a great deal of visualization needed to activate the Element of Earth in your sphere of sensation. However at this point, you should take a few moments to re-establish yourself as a candidate who seeks for entrance into this hall. Perform the Qabalistic Cross to maintain a psychic balance of all the Elements within your aura. Recall the experience in the antechamber, where you were blindfolded in the darkness. Restore the persona of the aspirant within you.

Take up the Fylfot Cross in your right hand. Give the Battery of knocks 4—3—3. Stand in the Western part of the temple, facing East and say:

> This candidate seeks for entrance. I vow it to be true that I (state magical motto) have made such progress in the Paths of Occult Science to have enabled me to pass certain examinations in the required knowledge. Having accomplished this, I am now eligible for advancement to this grade. Let me enter the Portal of Wisdom.
>
> Except Adonai build the house, their labor is but lost that build it. Except Adonai keep the City, the Watchman waketh in vain. I seek admission to the 1 = 10 grade of Zelator in the current of the Golden Dawn by the guidance of Adonai, by the possession of the necessary knowledge, by the signs and tokens of the 0 = 0 grade, and by this symbol of the Hermetic Cross.

Visualize the godform of the Keryx as he approaches you and gestures for the Fylfot Cross. You place it at his station. Osiris in the East speaks to you:

> Give the Step and Signs of a Neophyte. (You do so.)

Anubis as the Keryx stands before you and says:

> Give me the Grip of the Neophyte.

You exchange the grip with the Keryx.

> Give me the Word.

You exchange the Grand Word of the Neophyte grade with the Keryx, in alternating syllables: "HAR PAR KRAT."

> Give me the Password. (You give the word you have chosen.)

The form of the Keryx turns toward the Hierophant and salutes. The goddess Thmê approaches you from her station and takes you by the right hand. She places you directly between the pillars facing the East. You hear the voice of Osiris:

> Are you ready to take this oath of the 1 = 10 grade?
>
> (You answer:) I am ready to take this oath. (Say:) I (state magical motto) pledge to maintain and uphold the mysteries of this grade, just as I am pledged to maintain those of the 0 = 0 grade, never to flaunt or reveal them to those who are not true seekers of the Light Divine.

Thmê assists you to kneel before the altar. Say: "I swear by the Earth whereon I kneel."

Still kneeling you take up the platter of salt at the foot of the altar. Take some of the salt in your left hand and cast it to the North and say: "Let the Powers of Earth witness my pledge."

Rise and replace the platter of salt in the North. Say: "Let my pledge be confirmed with Water and with Fire."

Thmê takes you by the hand and leads you clockwise to the Southwest, where Thaum-Esh-Neith traces in the air before you the figure of a Fylfot Cross. Picking up the censer, return to the threshold between the pillars. With the censer, trace a cross in the air before your own forehead. Then wave the implement thrice in the form of the invoking Fire triangle. Say: "In the name of the Lord of the Universe who works in silence and whom naught but silence can express, I am consecrated with Fire." Replace the censer.

Thmê leads you to the Northwest, where Auramoouth traces in the air before you the sigil of the cup. Picking up the chalice of Water, return to the threshold between the pillars. Dip your index finger into the water and mark your forehead with the symbol of the cross. Then sprinkle thrice in the form of the invoking Water triangle. Say: "In the name of the Lord of the Universe who works in silence and whom naught but silence can express, I am purified with Water." Replace the cup and return to a position between the pillars. Say:

> The 0 = 0 grade of Neophyte is a preparation for other grades, a threshold before discipline, and it shows by its imagery the Light of the Hidden Knowledge dawning in the Darkness of Creation. I am now about to begin to analyze and comprehend the Nature of that Light. To this end I stand between the pillars, in the Gateway where the secrets of the 0 = 0 grade were communicated to me. I shall now prepare to enter the Immeasurable region.
>
> And Tetragrammaton Elohim planted a garden Eastward in Eden, and out of the ground made Tetragrammaton Elohim to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight and good for food; the Tree of Life also, in the midst of the Garden, and the Tree of Knowledge of Good and of Evil. This is the Tree that has two Paths, and it is the Tenth Sephirah Malkuth, and it has about it seven columns, and the Four Splendors whirl about it as in the Vision of the Merkabah of Ezekiel; and from Gedulah it derives and influx of Mercy, and from Geburah an influx of Severity, and the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and of Evil shall it be until it is united with the Supernals in Daath.
>
> But the Good which is under it is called the Archangel Metatron, and the Evil is called the Archangel Samael, and between them lies the straight and narrow way where the Archangel Sandalphon keeps watch. The Souls and the Angels are above its branches, and the Qlippoth or Demons dwell under its roots.

The officer/form of the Hierophant speaks:

> Let the Neophyte enter the Pathway of Evil.

The officer/godform of the Keryx steps in front of you and leads you in a North-Eastern direction to the station of the Hiereus. The form of the Hiereus rises up before you with a threatening attitude. He lunges between you and the Keryx—his sword at your chest. No longer does he have the appearance of Mighty Horus. He has instead taken on the countenance of a dark menacing bird-like being with flaming ruby colored eyes.

> Whence comest Thou? (He snarls.)
>
> (You answer:) I come from between the two pillars and I seek the Light of the Hidden Knowledge in the Name of Adonai.

The dark Angel seems somewhat appeased.

> And the Great Angel Samael answered and said: I am the Prince of Darkness and of Night. The foolish and rebellious gaze upon the face of the created World, and find therein nothing but terror and obscurity. It is to them the Terror of Darkness and they are as drunken men stumbling in the Darkness. Return for thou canst not pass by.

Keryx leads you back the way you came. The voice of the Hierophant is again heard:

> Let the Neophyte enter the Pathway of Good.

The Keryx leads you in a Southeastern direction to the station of Hegemon. The figure of the Hegemon rises in a majestic attitude like the crest of a mighty wave. No longer do you recognize the familiar face of Thmê. The officer has taken on the appearance of a powerful and brilliant white being with horns of Light and velvet hair and beard. His miter-headed wand comes down between the Keryx and yourself like a wall of ice falling from a glacier.

> Whence comest thou? (He thunders.)
>
> (You answer:) I come from between the pillars, and I seek the Light of the Hidden Knowledge in the Name of Adonai.
>
> (The figure replies:) The Great Angel Metatron answered, and said: I am the Angel of the Presence Divine. The Wise gaze upon the created world and behold there the dazzling image of the Creator. Not yet can thine eyes bear that dazzling Image. Return for thou canst not pass by.

Keryx takes you back the way you came. The Hierophant speaks:

> Let the Neophyte enter the straight and narrow Pathway which turns neither to the right hand nor to the left hand.

Keryx leads you straight up the center of the hall. When Anubis is near the altar he stops and steps aside, leaving you to face the altar unobstructed. Stand upon the cardboard diagram of the cross and triangle on the floor as if you are the cross of the Elements which is to be evoked within the triangle of art.

The Hiereus and Hegemon as Samael and Metatron cross their weapons before the altar to bar you.

> Whence comest thou? (They demand.)
>
> (You reply:) I come from between the pillars and I seek the Light of the Hidden Knowledge in the name of Adonai.

Visualize the Hierophant advancing toward you. No longer do you recognize the face of Osiris. The officer has taken on the appearance of a very tall feminine Archangel with horns upon her head. She is dressed in the four colors of Malkuth. She approaches the altar and suddenly thrusts her scepter beneath the crossed implements of the Hiereus and the Hegemon. With a powerful upward motion, she raises her wand to an angle of 45 degrees, knocking the crossed implements of the other officers to either side. She speaks:

> But the Great Angel Sandalphon said, I am the reconciler for Earth, and the Celestial Soul therein. Form is alike in Darkness and in blinding Light. I am the left hand Kerub of the Ark and the Feminine Power, as Metatron is the right hand Kerub and the Masculine Power, and I prepare the way to the Celestial Light.

Imagine the forms of the Hiereus and the Hegemon stepping back respectively to the North and South of the altar.

The Archangel Sandalphon takes your right hand in her left hand and instructs you to examine the diagram on the front of the altar. As you do so say:

> And Tetragrammaton placed Kerubim at the East of the Garden of Eden and a Flaming Sword which turned every way to keep the Path of the Tree of Life, for He has created Nature that humanity being cast out of Eden may not fall into the Void. He has bound Man with the Stars as with a chain. He allures him with scattered fragments of the Divine Body in bird and beast and flower, and he laments over him in the Wind and in the Sea and in the birds. When the times are ended, He will call the Kerubim from the East of the Garden, and all shall be consumed and become Infinite and Holy.

Sandalphon comes around to the West of the altar to give you the secrets of the 1 = 10 grade. Prompted by the figure, you give the 6 x 6 step, which is similar to that of the Neophyte, but with the addition of bringing the right foot even with the left, showing that you have passed the Threshold. Then give the Zelator Sign by raising your right hand to an angle of 45 degrees. Sandalphon speaks:

> This was the Position in which I interposed for you between the Hiereus and the Hegemon. The Token is given by grasping fingers, the thumb touching thumb to form a triangle. It refers to the Ten Sephiroth.

You exchange the Token with the Archangel. She continues:

> The Grand Word is ADONAI HA-ARETZ, which means "the Lord of the Earth," to which Element this grade is allotted. The Mystic Number is 55, and from it is formed the Password Nun Heh. It means ornament, and when given is lettered separately.
>
> (You repeat the words:) The Grand Word is ADONAI HA-ARETZ. The Mystic Number is 55. The password of the grade is NUN-HEH.
>
> (Sandalphon continues:) The Badge of this grade is the sash of the Neophyte with the narrow white border, a red cross within the white > triangle, and the numbers one within a circle and ten within a square, also white, one on each side of the triangle.

Open the altar and remove the Zelator sash. As you put it on, visualize the Archangel Sandalphon investing you with the sash. She then points to the three Hebrew letters in the East of the Hall and says:

> The three Portals now facing you in the East are the Gates of the Paths which lead to the three further grades. They represent the Paths which connect the Tenth Sephirah Malkuth with the other Sephiroth. The letters Tau, Qoph and Shin make the word Qesheth—a Bow, the reflection of the Rainbow of Promise stretched over our Earth, and which is about the throne of God.

Visualize the Hegemon as she points out the diagram on the front of the altar. Examining it you say:

> Before me is a drawing of the Flaming Sword of the Kerubim. It is a representation of the Guardians of the Gates of Eden, just as the Hiereus and the Hegemon symbolize the Two Paths of the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and of Evil.

Imagine the form of the Hiereus gesturing at the emblems upon the altar. Observing it you say:

> In this grade, the red cross is placed within the white triangle upon the Altar, and it is thus the symbol of the Banner of the West. The triangle refers to the Three Paths and the cross to the Hidden Knowledge. The cross and the triangle together represent Life and Light.

The Hierophant as Sandalphon points out the Tablet of the North. She takes you by the hand and leads you to the North. As you inspect it say:

> This grade is especially referred to the Element of Earth, and therefore, one of its principal emblems is the Great Watchtower or Terrestrial Tablet of the North. It is the Third or Great Northern Quadrangle or Earth Tablet, and it is one of the four Great Tablets of the Elements said to have been given to Enoch by the Great Angel Ave. It is divided within itself into four lesser angles. The mystic letters upon it form various Divine and Angelic Names, in what our tradition calls the Angelic secret language. From it are drawn the Three Holy Secret Names of God, EMOR DIAL HECTEGA, which are borne upon the banners of the North, and there are also numberless names of Angels, Archangels and Spirits ruling the Element of Earth.

Go to the station of the Keryx and visualize the form of Anubis handing you the Fylfot Cross. Take up the cross and return with it to the West of the altar. Say:

> The Hermetic Cross, which is also called Fylfot, Hammer of Thor, and Swastika, is formed of 17 squares out of a square of 25 lesser squares. These 17 represent the Sun, the four Elements, and the Twelve Signs of the Zodiac.
>
> (Observe the pillars and say:) In this grade the lights on the pillars are unshaded, showing that I have abandoned the Darkness of the outer world.

Sandalphon returns to the East where she transforms once again into the godform of Osiris. The outer appearances of the Archangels Metatron and Samael are also shed to reveal the forms of Thmê and Horus. Thmê speaks to you:

> You have entered into the Immeasurable region where the Kerubim guard the Gates of Eden. Prepare this temple to reflect the ancient temple in the Wilderness, the Tabernacle of Adonai. Prepare thyself to pass through the Threshold of the Divine Wisdom.

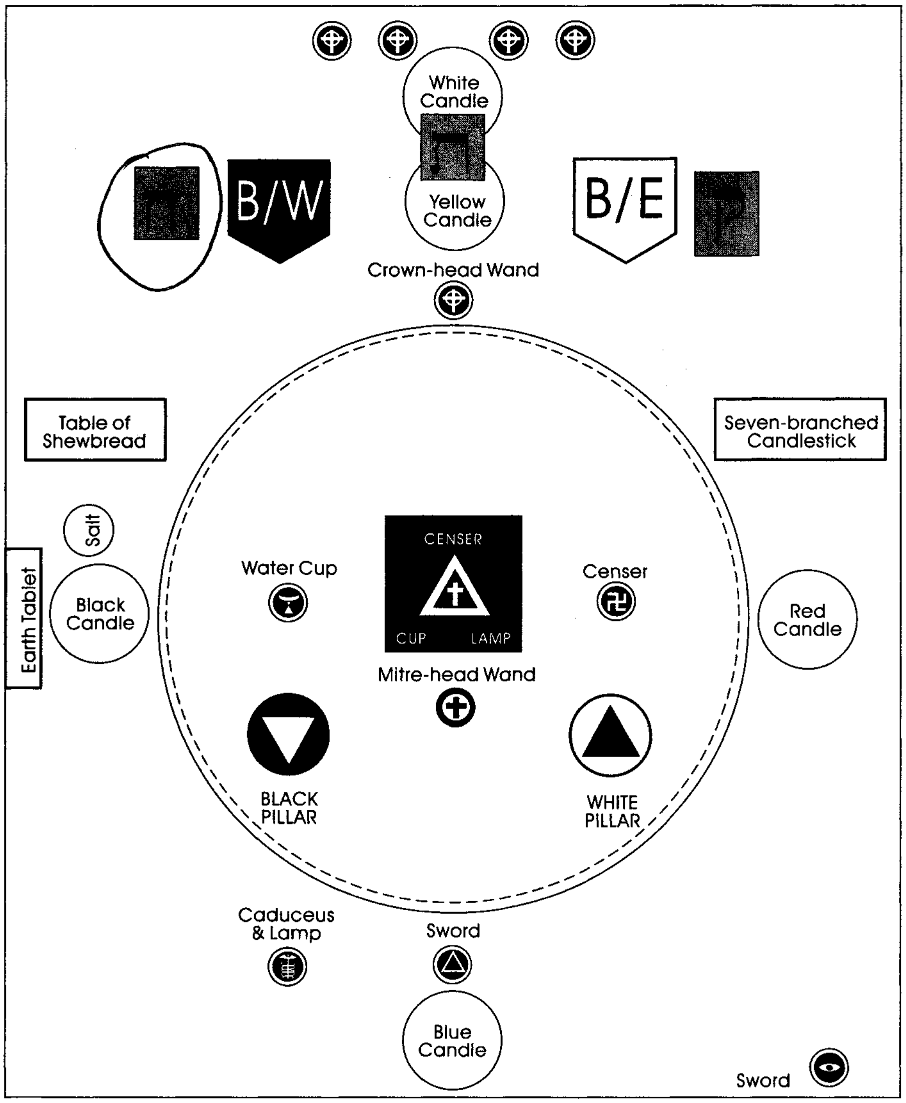
Anubis leads you out into the antechamber where you spend a few moments rehearsing the Fourfold Breath and meditating on the image of the Flaming Sword. Perform the Qabalistic Cross to once again equilibrate the Elemental energies within your aura. When ready, set up the temple in accordance with the final part of the ritual.

Changes in the temple setup for the second segment of the ritual: pillars are moved to the West of the altar. Remove the diagram of the Flaming Sword. The diagram of the Table of Shewbread should be placed in the Northeastern part of the Hall, while that of the Seven-branched Candlestick belongs in the Southeast. Upon the altar should be the cross within the triangle, a cup of water to the left, a red candle or lamp to the right, and a censer of incense at the apex of the triangle. The station of the Hegemon is on the Western side of the altar. The station of the Hiereus is in the West of the temple. The station of the Stolistes is behind the black pillar. The station of Dadouchos is behind the white pillar. The station of the Keryx is in the Northwest. The Phylax is without the Hall. Leave the Water cup of Stolistes and the censer of Dadouchos in the West of the temple just inside the door. Have the piece of paper that you prepared earlier close at hand.

PART 2: Advancement—Second Segment

After setting up the hall, spend a few moments in relaxed meditation in the antechamber. Visualize the Earth triangle once more and perform the Qabalistic Cross. When finished, stand just outside the temple door and give the Battery of knocks: 4—3—3. Visualize all of the astral officer/godforms at their respective stations. Anubis bids you to enter. Remain just inside the door. The voice of Osiris speaks to you from the East:

I hope this was a typeo....



White Candle
B/W
Yellow Candle
B/E
Crown-head Wand
Table of Shewbread
Seven-branched Candlestick
Salt
Earth Tablet
Black Candle
Water Cup
CENSER
CUP LAMP
Censer
Red Candle
Mitre-head Wand
BLACK PILLAR
WHITE PILLAR
Caduceus & Lamp
Sword
Blue Candle
Sword

Zelator Temple for Self-Initiation: Second Setup

> Frater/Soror ______, as in the grade of Neophyte, you came out of the world to the Gateway of Hidden Knowledge, so in this grade you pass through the Gateway and come into the Holy Place.
>
> (Say:) I am now in the Court of the Tabernacle, where stood the Altar of Burnt Offering, whereon were offered the sacrifices of animals, which symbolized the Qlippoth or Evil Demons who inhabit the plane contiguous to and below the Material Universe.

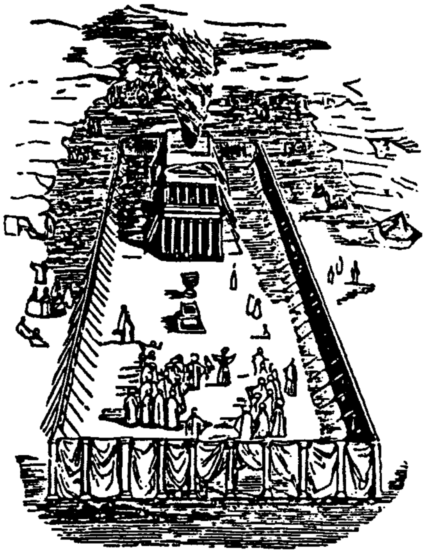
Visualize the godform of Thaum-Esh-Neith leaving her station near the pillar. She approaches you and traces the symbol of the Fylfot Cross in the air before you. The goddess then hands you her censer. Picking up the censer you trace the symbol of a cross in front of your own forehead. Then trace the three points of the invoking Fire triangle.

At this point, picture in your mind's eye the Courtyard of the Tabernacle as it existed in the time of the ancient Hebrews. Take some time to imagine the following guided visualization:

> The Courtyard is oblong in shape, approximately 150 by 75 feet in size. The walls of the Courtyard are composed of great curtains of blue, violet and red, supported by brass pillars with capitals of pure silver. There are twenty pillars running along each side of the courtyard's length, and ten pillars along the sides comprising the width. At the far end of the Courtyard is the Tabernacle or Sacred Tent of YHVH. But in the middle of the Court stands the Altar of Burnt Offering.
>
> The altar is a large hollow case approximately seven and a half by four and a half feet in size. It is made of wood and overlaid with plates of brass. In the center of the top side of the altar is a grating of brass upon which several pieces of wood have been placed. At the four corners are projections known as "horns." On the sides of the altar are brass rings through which bars are placed to carry the altar.
>
> Still watching with your mind's eye, you witness a Priest of the Hebrew mysteries about



The Courtyard of the Tabernacle

The Altar of Burnt Offering to make the perfect sacrifice to the Almighty One on behalf of the entire congregation of the Camp. A bearded High Priest with a tall triple miter-headdress, jeweled breastplate and embroidered robes oversees the entire operation as several people lay their lands upon the garland-covered head of an ox, confessing their personal sins and shortcomings. At the appropriate time in the ceremony, the officiating priest slays the animal, and its blood is caught in basins by other attendant priests. The sight of the animal being slaughtered startles you—you are not accustomed to witnessing such archaic and bloody practices of worship. But you realize that what you are watching is something that happened ages ago when everything concerning human existence was a struggle, and often a bloody one. You are secure in the knowledge that today, in your own time, such blood sacrifices are no longer essential to spiritual beliefs that the idea of sacrifice is a symbolic one that can entail the sacrifice of one's lower personal desires to higher goals.

Prayers are recited continuously as the ox is cut into twelve pieces, all of which are placed upon the burning wood of the altar. The blood of the slain animal is sprinkled around the base of the brazen altar and smeared upon the four horns at the corners. The entire animal is consumed by the flames, as if sent to God on wings of fire. The flame burns continuously; never is it allowed to go out.

As you continue to meditate on the Altar of Burnt Offering, place your personal offering of paper into the censer of Dadouchos until it is wholly consumed. Contemplate this action as part of your desire to become more than human. Imagine yourself taking up a golden censer at the foot of the altar. See yourself taking some of the coals from the brazen altar and placing them within the censer along with some incense.

When you feel ready, bring your consciousness back to the Zelator Hall. Put down the censer of Dadouchos and say:

> Between the Altar and the entrance to the Holy Place, stood the Laver of Brass wherein the Priests washed before entering the Tabernacle. It was the symbol of the Waters of Creation.

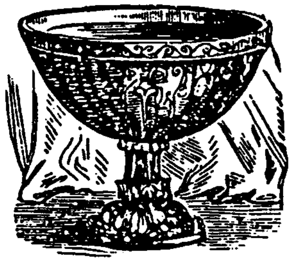
Visualize the godform of Auramoouth leaving her station near the pillar. She approaches you and traces the symbol of the chalice in the air before you. The goddess then hands you her cup. Picking up the Water cup you dip your fingers into the fluid. Trace the symbol of a cross on your own forehead. Then trace the three points of the invoking Water triangle.

At this point return in your mind's eye to the guided visualization of the Courtyard of the Tabernacle in the Wilderness and imagine the following:



The Laver of Brass

> Past the brazen altar where the remains of the sacrifice are still burning, you see before you a huge Laver or vessel made of brass. It is quite large and round, standing upon a square brazen foot. The foot forms a hollow basin for receiving water which falls from several faucets on the main body of the Laver. The entire surface of the Laver is adorned with figures of Kerubic creatures and palm trees.
>
> As a new sacrifice is prepared for the altar, several priests come forward to wash pieces of the slain beast for a more perfect offering. Other priests use the water from the Laver's spigots to wash their feet and hands before entering the Holy Place. Their prayers are incessant, along with the sound of splashing water.
>
> As you continue to meditate on the Brazen Laver, dip your finger into the cup of Stolistes. Mark in succession a small cross on your forehead, breast, right shoulder and left shoulder while performing the Qabalistic Cross. (Think of this action as part of your desire to unite with the Divine Self.)

When you feel ready, bring your consciousness back to the Zelator Hall. Put down the cup and say:

> Having made offering at the Altar of Sacrifice, and having been cleansed at the Laver of Brass, the Priest then entered the Holy Place.

The astral officer/godforms of Stolistes and Dadouchos return to their stations. Anubis as the Keryx leads you to the West of the temple. He then leads you forward toward the imposing figure of the Hiereus (Horus) who guards the Path between the pillars and who now threatens you with his sword. Horus speaks:

> Thou canst not pass the Gateway which is between the pillars, unless thou canst give the Signs and Words of a Neophyte.

You give the Projection Sign and the Sign of Silence. Then you give the Step and exchange the Neophyte Grip, along with the Grand Word "HAR-PAR-KRAT" with the Hiereus. Satisfied with your performance, the Hiereus steps back to his position in the West of the temple. Instructed by the Keryx, you advance between the pillars. The form of the Hegemon (Thmê) rises East of the pillars to bar your further progress into the temple with her scepter. Thmê speaks:

> Thou canst not enter the Holy Place, unless thou canst give the Sign and Grip of a Zelator.

You give the Zelator Sign and Step. You then exchange the Grip of the grade with the officer/godform. Thmê nods as Anubis returns to his station. She speaks:

> Having made Offering at the brazen altar, having been cleansed at the Laver, and having passed the tests prescribed for thee, thou mayest enter the Holy Place.

Take a step forward toward the altar. At this point return in your mind's eye to the guided visualization of the Courtyard of the Tabernacle in the Wilderness. Imagine the following:

> Past the Laver of Brass is the entrance to the Tabernacle. The structure itself is a large and magnificent tent supported by boards of wood overlaid with gold and silver. Four successive coverings of curtains cover the sides of the Tabernacle. The three outer curtains are constructed from goats' hair, badger skins and red-dyed ram skins. The entrance into the sanctuary is composed of curtains hung from seven mighty pillars.
>
> In your mind's eye you enter the outer chamber of the Tabernacle known as the Holy Place. The inner curtain is a sensuous linen embroidered with the figures of the Kerubim in blue, violet and red. Surrounded on all sides by such rich decorations, you notice that to your left is a low table of bread, to your right is a large candelabrum, and in the center of the room is a golden altar, beyond which is a curtain of sumptuous cloth that veils the innermost Sanctuary, as yet concealed from you. The scent of Frankincense fills the room.
>
> The officer/godform of the Hegemon takes you by the hand and leads you Northeast of the altar, where a diagram is located. In your mind's eye you picture an oblong golden table with legs. Upon this table are placed twelve > cakes of bread in two rows of six each, with frankincense between each loaf. In addition to the Sabbath bread, there are golden bowls, vessels of wine and two small censers of burning incense.

The Table of Shew-bread

Thmê brings your focus back to the diagram at hand. (See diagram page 196.) Examining it you say:

> To the Northern side of the Holy Place stood the Table of Shew-bread. The drawing before me represents its occult meaning. On it twelve loaves were laid as emblems of the Bread of Life, and it is an image of the Mystery of the Rose of Creation. The twelve circles are the twelve Signs of the Zodiac, while the lamp in the Center is symbolic of the Sun, which is the source of heat and life. The Four triangles whose twelve angles each touch one of the twelve circles are those of Fire, Earth, Air, and Water, and allude to the four Triplicities of the Zodiacal Signs. The triangle inscribed within each of the twelve circles, alludes to the three Decanates, or phases of ten degrees of each Sign. On one side of each triangle is the permutation of the Divine Name, Yod Heh Vav Heh, which is referred to that particular Sign, while on the opposite side of it is the name of one of the Twelve Tribes which is also attributed to it.
>
> The twenty-two sounds and letters of the Hebrew alphabet are the foundation of all things. Three Mothers, Seven Double and Twelve Simples. The Twelve Simple letters are allotted to the twelve directions in space, and those diverge to Infinity, and are in the arms of the Eternal. These Twelve letters He designed and combined, and formed with them the Twelve Celestial Constellations of the Zodiac. They are over the Universe as a King traversing his dominions, and they are in the heart of man as a King in warfare.
>
> The Twelve loaves are the images of those ideas, and are the Outer Petals of the Rose, while within are the Four Archangels ruling over the Four Quarters, and the Kerubic emblems of the Lion, Man, Bull and Eagle.
>
> Around the great central lamp which is an image of the Sun, is the Great Mother of Heaven, symbolized by the letter Heh, the first of the Simple Letters, and by its number five, the Pentagram, Malkah the Bride, ruling in her kingdom Malkuth, crowned with a crown of Twelve stars.
>
> The twelve circles further represent the twelve Foundations of the Holy City of the Apocalypse, while in Christian symbolism the Sun and the twelve signs are referred to Christ and his Twelve Apostles.

The Candlestick

The Hegemon leads you back to the officer/godform of the Hiereus in the West. The Hiereus then brings you Southeast of the altar to the diagram of the Seven-branched Candlestick. Continue the guided visualization of the Tabernacle as before. Imagine the following:

(In your mind's eye you return to the Holy Place where a large golden candelabrum is located opposite the Table of Shewbread. The implement is huge, nearly six feet in height and almost as wide, weighing about one hundred pounds. Made of beaten gold, the candlestick is composed of a base with a shaft rising out of it, six arms which come out by threes on opposite sides of the shaft. The arms and the shaft are ornamented with seventy-two almond-shaped cups, apples and flower blossoms. Each of its seven lamps ends in a cup-shaped depression supplied with cotton and olive-oil, enough to burn through the night until morning.)

The Hiereus brings your focus back to the diagram at hand. (See diagram on page 198.) Examining it you say:

> On the Southern side of the Holy Place stood the Seven-branched Candlestick, wherein was burned pure olive oil. It is an image of the Mystery of the Elohim, the Seven Creative Ideas. The symbolic drawing before me represents its occult meaning. The Seven circles which surround the Heptagram represent the Seven Planets and the Seven Qabalistic Palaces of Assiah, the Material World—which answer to the Seven Apocalyptic churches which are in Asia or Assiah—as these again allude to the Seven lamps before the throne on another Plane.
>
> Within each circle is a triangle to represent the Threefold Creative Idea operating in all things. On the right-hand side of each is the Hebrew Name of the Angel who governs the Planet, on the left-hand side is the Hebrew Name of the sphere of the Planet itself, while the Hebrew letter beneath the base is one of the duplicated letters of the Hebrew alphabet which refer to the Seven Planets.
>
> The Seven Double Letters of the Hebrew alphabet each have two sounds associated with them, one hard and one soft. They are called "Double" because each letter represents a contrary or permutation: Life and Death, Peace and War, Wisdom and Folly, Riches and Poverty, Grace and Indignity, Fertility and Solitude, Power and Servitude.
>
> The Seven letters point out seven localities, Zenith, Nadir, East, West, North, South, and the Place of Holiness in the midst sustaining all things. The Archetypal Creator designed, produced, combined and formed with them the Planets of the Universe, the Days of the Week, and in Man, the Gate of the Soul. He has loved and blessed the number seven more than all things under his throne. The powers of these seven letters are also shown > forth in the seven Palaces of Assiah, and the Seven Stars of that Vision are the seven Archangels who rule them.

The Hiereus leads you to the West of the altar facing East. The form of Osiris descends from the Dais and stands just East of the altar. He traces in the air before you the symbol of the circled cross, endowing you with the office of Hierophant.

You take up the censer from the altar and trace with it the symbol of the cross, and give three forward swings. Replace the censer. Continue the guided visualization of the Tabernacle. Imagine the following:

> In your mind's eye, return to the Holy Place in the Tabernacle, where you stand before a golden altar. This is the altar said to stand before Adonai in front of the Veil of the Most Holy Place. It is made of wood overlaid with pure gold and is in the shape of a double cube. Like the Altar of Burnt Offering, it has four horns at its corners which are of one piece with the rest of the altar. It has a top or roof on which the incense is laid and lighted. The altar also has a cornice of gold and four golden rings to receive wooden staves for carrying it. The incense burned thereupon every morning and evening is a sacred composition of spices. The scent of the perfumed smoke fills you with renewed vitality.

> (Say:) Before the Veil of the Holy of Holies, stood the Altar of Incense, of which this Altar is an Image. It was of the form of a double cube, thus representing material form as a reflection and duplication of that which is spiritual. The sides of the Altar, together with the top and bottom, consist of ten squares, thus symbolizing the Ten Sephiroth of which the basal one is Malkuth, the realization of the rest upon the material plane, behind which the others are concealed. For if this cube were raised in the air immediately above my head, I would but see the single square forming the lowest side, the others from their position being concealed from me. Just so, behind the Material Universe, lies the concealed form of the Majesty of God.

The Altar of Incense

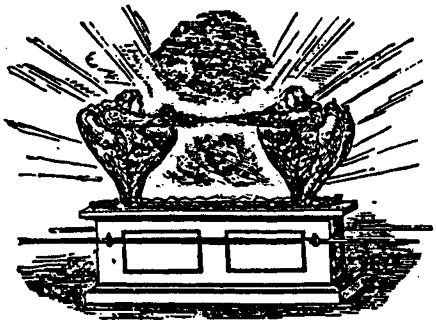
> The Altar of Incense was overlaid with Gold to represent the highest degree of purity, but the Altar before me is black to represent the terrestrial Earth. I must learn then to separate the pure from the impure, and refine the Gold of the Spirit from the Black Dragon, the corruptible body. Upon the Cubical Altar are Fire, Water and Incense, the Three Mother Letters of the Hebrew alphabet, Aleph, Mem and Shin. Mem is silent, Shin is sibilant, and Aleph is the tongue of a balance between these contraries in equilibrium, reconciling and mediating between them. In this is a great Mystery, very admirable and recondite. The Fire produced the Heavens, the Water, the Earth, and the Air is the reconciler between them. In the year, they bring forth the hot, the cold and the temperate seasons, and in man, they are imaged in the head, the chest, and the trunk.

Return to the guided visualization. See yourself in the Holy Place before the altar. Take the golden censer that you obtained at the Altar of Burnt Offering and pour out the coals and incense upon the golden altar. As you visualize this, perform the Qabalistic Cross.

Then direct your attention to the Most Holy Place beyond the Altar of Incense. This is the Holy of Holies—the most sacred portion of the Tabernacle. It is separated from the Holy Place by a Veil which is always kept closed and shrouded in darkness. The Veil is made from fine linen, richly embroidered with blue, violet, and red, and ornamented with figures of the Kerubim. Not yet are you permitted to enter this most sacred chamber—this privilege is granted but once a year on the Day of Atonement to the High Priest who has passed through the mysteries by right of initiation. However within your mind's eye, you are able to visualize the inner chamber, which contains only the Ark of the Covenant.

The Ark is an oblong chest of wood inlaid with gold, with a golden miter around the top. The upper side or lid is a plate of pure gold comprising the Mercy Seat. Two golden Kerubim are placed at either end of the lid. These beings are composite creatures who assume a stooping position over the Ark, overshadowing and protecting it with their expanded wings. They are the Right-hand and Left-hand Kerubim of the Ark, Sandalphon and Metatron. Within the Ark itself are the Stone Tablets of the Law, and above the whole arrangement the Glorious Light of God is said to reside.



The Ark of the Covenant

As you meditate upon the Holy of Holies and its contents, imagine that you have now firmly established yourself as an initiate of the mysteries. The Light above the Cover of the Ark signifies that you have passed through the Threshold of the Enterer with your > feet steadfastly anchored to the sphere of Malkuth in Assiah represented by the Tabernacle in the Wilderness. The Light of the Supernal Kether is reflected into your own Kether (Kether of Assiah), forming a connecting link. The sub-Element of Earth in Malkuth has been established within your aura and within your psyche.

Bring the focus of your conscious mind back to the Zelator Hall. Perform the Adoration to the Lord of the Universe toward the East. Return the office of Hierophant to the dominion of Osiris in the Eastern part of the Hall. Hear the voice of the god speaking to you:

> I now confer upon you the Mystic Title of Periclinus (Pericline)[31] de Faustis, which signifies that on this Earth you are in a Wilderness, far from the Garden of the Happy. And I give you the symbol of ARETZ which is the Hebrew name for Earth, to which the grade of Zelator is referred.
>
> (Visualize the triangle of Earth. Then say:) The word Zelator is derived from the ancient Egyptian Zaruator, signifying "Searcher of Athor," goddess of Nature, but others assign to it the meaning of the Zealous student whose first duty was to blow the Athanor of Fire which heated the Crucible of the Alchemist.

Go to the Southwest to face Anubis of the East. The god traces the sigil of the Caduceus before you. Take up the Caduceus Wand and the lantern. Walk to the Northwest and say:

> In the Name of ADONAI MELEKH, hear ye all, that I (state magical motto) proclaim to have duly initiated myself to the 1 = 10 grade of Zelator, and that I have obtained the Mystic Title of Periclinus (Pericline) de Faustis and the symbol of Aretz.

Replace the wand and the lamp in the Southwest. Return to the West of the altar and face East. Visualize the following:

> In your mind's eye see yourself standing and facing the Gate to the astral temple of Malkuth. A large door is in front of you. The door is divided into four colors: citrine, olive, russet, and black. The colors form triangles which come together in the center of the door. Carved into this door is the letter Mem painted in white. The two Archangels of Samael and Metatron stand before you, blocking your final passage into Malkuth with their implements. You hold up the Fylfot Cross and proclaim that you have received the Mystic Title of Periclinus de Faustis. The Archangel Sandalphon appears and knocks the > implements of the other Archangels aside with her mighty scepter. She permits you final entrance into the Earthy temple of Malkuth. Astrally, you give the Neophyte Signs followed by the Sign of a Zelator and then step through the door into Malkuth.

---

[31] Pericline is the feminine form.

>
> The temple is a great ten-sided chamber with walls built from heavy earthen bricks. The floor is divided into black and white tiles. Enormous oak columns support the ceiling of pure rock crystal. On the Southern side of the temple is a great roaring hearth, and to the West is a fountain in the shape of an eagle—water flowing from its open mouth. To the North is a large black ox turning a mill which slowly grinds out crushed grain. In the East is a large brazier of incense. The scent of Dittany fills the air. In the middle of the chamber stands a black altar carved out of oak. It is covered by a cloth which is divided into the same colors as the door to the temple. The center of the altar top is white, and upon it is a bright burning flame.
>
> The Archangel Sandalphon remains at your side. This is her abode. She is the guardian of the Gateway into the many unseen worlds. Sandalphon has brought you here and you instinctively know that you will see her many more times during your initiatory journeys.

Bring the focus of your conscious mind back to the Zelator Hall. Say the following:

> In the Zelator grade, the symbolism of the Tenth Sephirah Malkuth is especially shown, as well as the Tenth Path of the Sepher Yetzirah. Among other Mystic Titles, Malkuth is called SHAAR, the Gate, which by metathesis becomes ASHUR, meaning the number ten. Also in Chaldee it is called THRAA, the Gate, which has the same number as the Great Name ADONAI, written in full: Aleph, Daleth, Nun, Yod, which both equal 671 in total numeration. It is also called the "Gate of Death," "The Gate of Tears," and the "Gate of Justice," the "Gate of Prayer," and "The Gate of the Daughter of the Mighty Ones." It is also called "The Gate of the Garden of Eden" and the Inferior Mother, and in Christian symbolism, it is connected with the Three Holy Women at the foot of the cross. The Tenth Path of the Sepher Yetzirah which answereth to Malkuth is called "The Resplendent Intelligence," because it exalts above every head and sitteth upon the throne of Binah. It illuminateth the Splendor of all the Lights—the ZOHAR MEOUROTH—and causeth the current of the Divine Influx to descend from the Prince of Countenances, the Great Archangel Metatron.

PART 3: The Closing

Go to the Eastern part of the Hall. There the godform of Osiris traces before you the symbol of the circled cross, bestowing upon you the office of Hierophant. Taking on the officer-form of the Hierophant, you knock and say:

> Let us adore the Lord and King of Earth. (Turn to the East and visualize the Earth triangle. Say:) ADONAI HA-ARETZ, ADONAI MELEKH, Blessed be Thy name unto the countless ages. Amen. (Give the Sign of Zelator.)

Go Deosil to the North. Stand facing the center of the Earth Tablet. Visualize the rest of the officer/godforms falling into a hexagram position behind you. Hiereus takes his place to right and slightly behind you. Hegemon takes her place to the left and slightly behind you. Stolistes lines up behind Hiereus and Dadouchos lines up behind Hegemon. The Keryx is behind you. Recite the Prayer of the Gnomes or Earth Spirits:

> O Invisible King, Who, taking the Earth for Foundation, didst hollow its depths to fill them with Thy Almighty Power. Thou whose Name shaketh the Arches of the World. Thou who causest the Seven Metals to flow in the veins of the rocks, King of the Seven Lights, Rewarder of the subterranean Workers, lead us into the desirable Air and into the Realm of Splendor. We watch and we labor unceasingly, we seek and we hope, by the twelve stones of the Holy City, by the buried talismans, by the Axis of the Lodestone which passes through the center of the Earth—O Lord, O Lord, O Lord! Have pity upon those who suffer. Expand our hearts, unbind and upraise our minds, enlarge our natures.
>
> O Stability and Motion! O Darkness veiled in Brilliance! O Day clothed in Night! O Master who never dost withhold the wages of Thy Workmen! O Silver Whiteness—O Golden Splendor! O Crown of Living and Harmonious Diamond! Thou who wearest the Heavens on Thy Finger like a ring of Sapphire! Thou Who hidest beneath the Earth in the Kingdom of Gems, the marvelous Seed of the Stars! Live, reign, and be Thou the Eternal Dispenser of the Treasures whereof Thou hast made us the Wardens.

Through the authority of the office of Hierophant bestowed upon you by Osiris, banish the powers of the Earth Tablet. Trace with the Scepter of Power a large circle in front of the Tablet. Then draw the banishing pentagram of Spirit Passive. As you do so, vibrate "NANTA" (en-nah-en-tah). Trace the sigil of the Spirit wheel in the center and intone "AGLA" (Ah-gah-lah). Give the Reversal Sign of the Spiraling Light. Then trace the banishing pentagram of Earth. As you do so, vibrate the name "EMOR DIAL HECTAGA" (Ee-mor Dee-ahl Hect-tay-gah). Draw the sigil of Taurus in the center and intone "ADONAI." Give the Sign of Zelator.

> (Give the License to Depart by saying:) Depart ye in peace unto your abodes. May the blessing of Adonai be upon you. Let there be peace between us, and be ye ready to come when ye are called. (Return the office of Hierophant to the godform of Osiris.)

The goddess Thmê comes to your side. Both of you walk to the station of Dadouchos where Thmê traces the figure of the cross and triangle. The godform of Thaum-Esh-Neith salutes with the Projection Sign—Thmê answers with the Sign of Silence. The godform of Thaum-Esh-Neith slowly fades from view. In this manner, Thmê releases all the godforms in the Hall: Auramoouth, Anubis, Horus, Osiris, and the godforms on the Dais. All the astral entities in the Hall begin to fade from view.

Thmê herself is once again the last godform to dissolve. You thank the goddess for guiding you in the Zelator Hall. You then trace the figures of the cross and triangle before her. She salutes you with the Projection Sign. You answer with the Sign of Silence. Withdraw the white ray which had activated the godform back into your heart center. Perform the Qabalistic Cross one last time to equilibrate all energies within your sphere of sensation.

Take up the sword and perform the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

(Go to the East and say:) In the Name of ADONAI MELEKH, I declare this temple to be duly closed in the grade of Zelator. (Give the Battery of Knocks: 4—3—3. Go to the station of Hiereus and give the Battery: 4—3—3. Do the same at the station of Hegemon: 4—3—3. Give the Zelator Sign when exiting the temple.) The rite is finished.✡

The Second Knowledge Lecture

SECTION 1: Basic Astrology—The Houses

A "house" is an arc (a portion of a curved line) which is one-twelfth of the Zodiacal wheel. Spatially, the houses are 30 degrees each, one-twelfth of the 360 degree circle. Whereas the Signs in a horoscope are fixed divisions of the heavens, the houses are relative sections of the heavens which depend on the time and place of an individual's birth. The Earth's rotation causes the Planets and the Signs to pass daily through all of the twelve houses. The first house begins at 0° of the Ascendant.

A house symbolizes a basic area of activity. The interpretation of the houses varies when they are inhabited by Planets.[32] Each house is ruled by one of the Planets and is influenced by one of the Zodiacal Signs.

---

[32] Keep in mind that although a house may not always contain a planet, it does not mean that there is no activity in that region.

The Sign that is on the Eastern horizon at the time of birth is called the Rising Sign or the Ascendant. Since the houses never alter their position, with respect to the Earth, the Ascendant or first house cusp is always on the Eastern horizon, where Sol rises daily. The Descendant or seventh house cusp is always on the Western horizon where Sol sets.

The Midheaven (Latin: medium coeli), also called the MC, is the tenth house cusp at the top or Southern point of a Zodiacal chart. Opposite to this is the IC (from Latin: imum coeli, the lowest heavens) or fourth house cusp at the lowest or Northernmost point on the chart.

Cusp: A Cusp is an imaginary line which separates a Sign from adjoining Signs, and a house from its adjoining houses. It is a small arc in close proximity to the boundary line between neighboring Signs and houses, which causes uncertainty as to the Planet's location and influence at a particular moment. A Planet in a cusp between houses can be influenced by both houses (and Signs) affected by the cusp. A birth Planet is stronger in a cusp than in the later degrees of a house.

Decanate or Decan: A ten degree arc or subdivision of the Zodiacal wheel. A house contains three decanates, which are called the first, second and third decan. There are a total of 36 decanates in a Zodiacal wheel.

House Division by Element

Since each house is ascribed to one of the twelve signs, the houses can be categorized in accordance to the ruling Element of the signs:

Fire Houses

First, fifth and ninth houses. Individuals with several Planets in Fire houses are energetic, motivated, enthusiastic, spiritual and inspirational.

Water Houses

Fourth, eighth and twelfth houses. Individuals with several Planets in these houses are emotional, intuitive, and sensitive.

Air Houses

Third, seventh and eleventh houses. Individuals with several Planets in these houses are sociable, communicative, intelligent and interested in others.

Earth Houses

Second, sixth and tenth houses. Individuals with several Planets in these houses are stable, practical, and hardworking.

House Division by Quality

The houses, like the signs, can be defined by quality into three groups of four houses each. These qualities conform with those of the Cardinal, Kerubic and Mutable Signs, but in the houses they are called Angular, Succedent and Cadent.

Angular Houses

First, Fourth, Seventh and Tenth houses. These correspond to the Cardinal Signs. The "angles" refer to axes of the Horoscope or the four Cardinal Points (including the Ascendant, Descendant, MC and IC). When a Planet is in an Angular house, its influence is magnified and has great potential for vigorous action.

Succedent Houses

Second, Fifth, Eighth and Eleventh houses. The word "succedent" implies that they succeed or follow the Angular houses. Like the Kerubic Signs, they give steadiness and resolve. They are known as the Financial houses.

Cadent Houses

Third, Sixth, Ninth and Twelfth house. These correspond to the Mutable Signs. They are neither dynamic like the Angular houses nor stable like the Succedent houses, but are adaptable and accommodating. These are often labeled the Mental houses.

FIRST HOUSE

Element: Fire Quality: Angular
Natural Sign: Aries Natural Ruler: Mars
Key word: IDENTITY

The first house cusp is one of the most important points of a Natal chart. It is a house of beginnings and appearances. It shows natural disposition and personality, and represents the physical body and the primary outlook on life.

SECOND HOUSE

Element: Earth Quality: Succedent
Natural Sign: Taurus Natural Ruler: Venus
Key word: VALUES

The second house alludes to resources, possessions, values, earning ability and financial affairs. It refers to inner talents, self-worth, individual freedom and material gain or loss.

THIRD HOUSE

Element: Air Quality: Cadent
Natural Sign: Gemini Natural Ruler: Mercury
Key word: AWARENESS

The third house portrays communication, transportation, short trips, mental skills, learning ability, primary education, and brothers and sisters. It represents the conscious and objective portion of the mind.

FOURTH HOUSE

Element: Water Quality: Angular
Natural Sign: Cancer Natural Ruler: Luna
Key word: SECURITY

The fourth house depicts home, parents, character foundation, heritage and ancestry. It shows property, real estate, the parent who had the greater influence on an individual, the closing years of life, and endings.

FIFTH HOUSE

Element: Fire Quality: Succedent
Natural Sign: Leo Natural Ruler: Sol
Key word: CREATIVITY

The fifth house is the house of love given to another, romance, pleasure, love affairs, amusements, sports, speculations, originality and creativity. It shows children, social affairs, and artistic abilities.

SIXTH HOUSE

Element: Earth Quality: Cadent
Natural Sign: Virgo Natural Ruler: Mercury
Key word: DUTY

The sixth house characterizes work, service given, employment, health, diet, hygiene, clothing, and personal habits. It also shows dependents, pets, aunts and uncles.

SEVENTH HOUSE

Element: Air Quality: Angular
Natural Sign: Libra Natural Ruler: Venus
Key word: COOPERATION

The seventh house describes marriages, partnerships, contracts, agreements, and all dealings with the public. It shows cooperation or lack of cooperation with others, personal agents, open enemies and grandparents.

EIGHTH HOUSE

Element: Water Quality: Succedent
Natural Sign: Scorpio Natural Ruler: Pluto (and Mars)
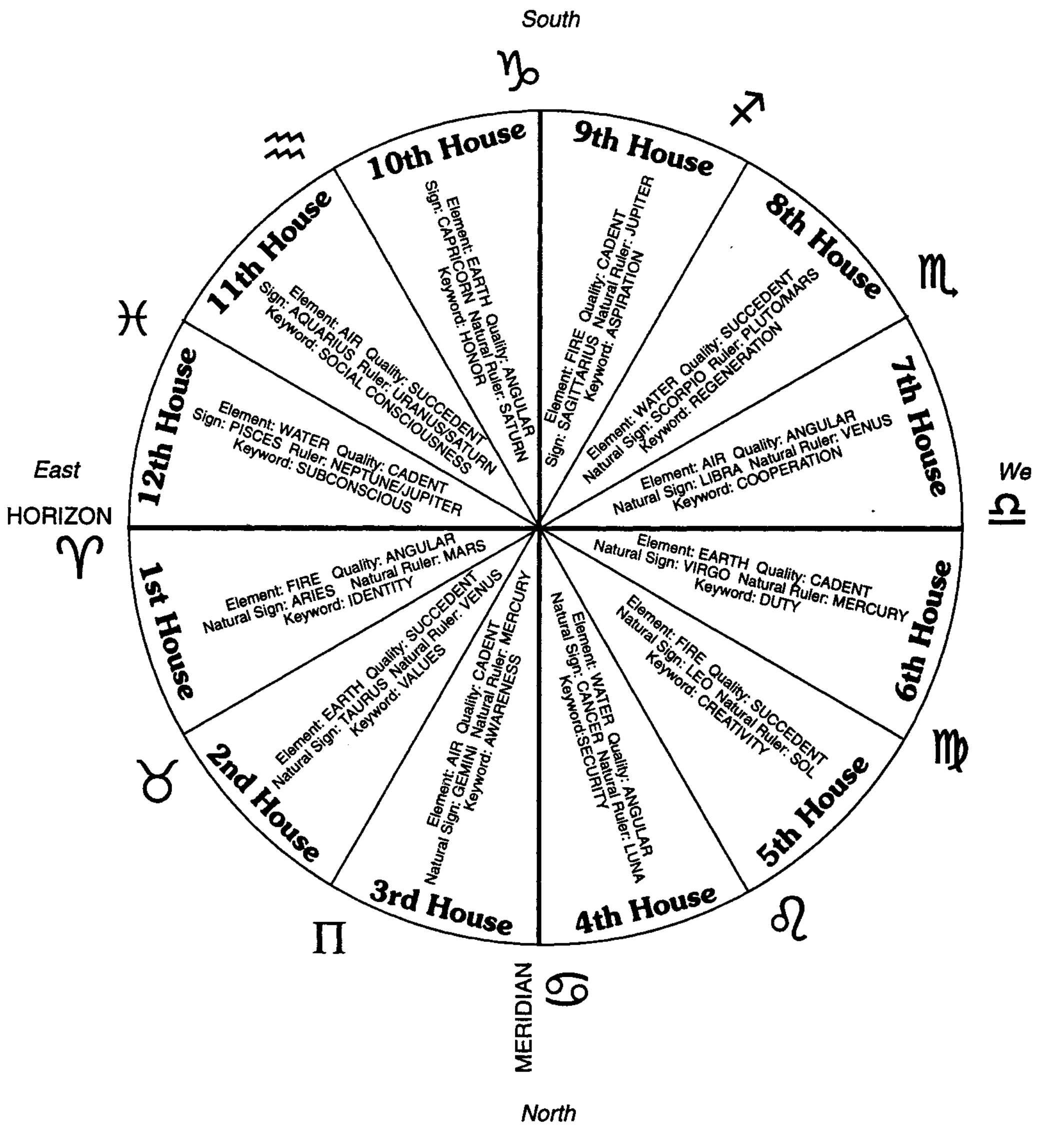
Key word: REGENERATION

The eighth house delineates spiritual and physical regeneration, secrets, occult matters, hidden factors, sex, rebirth, degeneration and death. It shows moral, financial and spiritual support received from others, as well as inheritance, wills, trusts and partner's assets. It is known as the house of surgery and in conjunction with the Sixth house, it describes types of illness.



South
♑
♐
♏
We
♎
♍
♌
MERIDIAN
♋
North
♊
♉
East HORIZON
♈
♓
♒
10th House
Element: EARTH Quality: ANGULAR
Sign: CAPRICORN Natural Ruler: SATURN
Keyword: HONOR
9th House
Element: FIRE Quality: CADENT
Sign: SAGITTARIUS Natural Ruler: JUPITER
Keyword: ASPIRATION
8th House
Element: WATER Quality: SUCCEDENT
Natural Sign: SCORPIO Ruler: PLUTO/MARS
Keyword: REGENERATION
7th House
Element: AIR Quality: ANGULAR
Natural Sign: LIBRA Natural Ruler: VENUS
Keyword: COOPERATION
6th House
Element: EARTH Quality: CADENT
Natural Sign: VIRGO Natural Ruler: MERCURY
Keyword: DUTY
5th House
Element: FIRE Quality: SUCCEDENT
Natural Sign: LEO Natural Ruler: SOL
Keyword: CREATIVITY
4th House
Element: WATER Quality: ANGULAR
Natural Sign: CANCER Natural Ruler: LUNA
Keyword:SECURITY
3rd House
Element: AIR Quality: CADENT
Natural Sign: GEMINI Natural Ruler: MERCURY
Keyword: AWARENESS
2nd House
Element: EARTH Quality: SUCCEDENT
Natural Sign: TAURUS Natural Ruler: VENUS
Keyword: VALUES
1st House
Element: FIRE Quality: ANGULAR
Natural Sign: ARIES Natural Ruler: MARS
Keyword: IDENTITY
12th House
Element: WATER Quality: CADENT
Sign: PISCES Ruler: NEPTUNE/JUPITER
Keyword: SUBCONSCIOUS
11th House
Element: AIR Quality: SUCCEDENT
Sign: AQUARIUS Ruler: URANUS/SATURN
Keyword: SOCIAL CONSCIOUSNESS

The Houses

NINTH HOUSE

Element: Fire Quality: Cadent
Natural Sign: Sagittarius Natural Ruler: Jupiter
Key word: ASPIRATION

The ninth house characterizes philosophy and the higher consciousness. It depicts ideals, ethics, religion, intuition, spirituality, visions, higher learning and mental study. It also portrays long-distance travel, grandchildren, in-laws and foreign affairs.

TENTH HOUSE

Element: Earth Quality: Angular
Natural Sign: Capricorn Natural Ruler: Saturn
Key word: HONOR

The tenth house reveals status, reputation, fame, profession and community standing. It portrays the ego, ambition, achievements, honors, promotion, influence, authorities, social and business activities. Here we find the parent other than the one indicated in the fourth house.

ELEVENTH HOUSE

Element: Air Quality: Succedent
Natural Sign: Aquarius Natural Ruler: Uranus (and Saturn)
Key word: SOCIAL CONSCIOUSNESS

The eleventh house indicates friends, acquaintances, all nonemotional relationships. It shows goals, desires, hopes and wishes, love received, humanitarian interests, foster children, organizations which relate to career, and circumstances beyond one's control.

TWELFTH HOUSE

Element: Water Quality: Cadent
Natural Sign: Pisces Natural Ruler: Neptune (and Jupiter)
Key word: SUBCONSCIOUS

The twelfth house depicts hidden strengths, dangers and weaknesses, as well as limitations, sorrows, secrets, hidden enemies, self-undoing, places of confinement and clandestine affairs. It is the house of the subconscious and of karmic debt. The Twelfth house is known as the dust-bin of the horoscope because it is here that people tend to hide their problems.

The Meridians

The meridians are lines drawn on a zodiacal chart which help to further interpret the Horoscope. The horizontal axis of the chart is known as the horizon or equator, and the vertical axis is known as the meridian. Each axis divides the chart in half.

The Horizon axis alludes to awareness. It separates the Horoscope into Day and Night sections, because it partitions the chart along the Dawn-Dusk (East-West) axis from 6 A.M. to 6 P.M. As a general rule, the Day half (upper half) of the chart symbolizes objectivity and extroverted tendencies, while the Night half alludes to instinct, subjectivity and introverted tendencies.

The Meridian or vertical axis refers to strength. It separates the chart into Eastern and Western sections from noon to midnight. This axis divides the Planets into Rising Planets and Setting Planets. A large number of rising Planets in the Eastern half denote a free and strong Will—it is the embodiment of a planting or sowing incarnation. Numerous setting Planets in the Western half indicate flexibility and involvement with the future of others —it is an indication of a harvesting incarnation.✡

SECTION 2: Basic Alchemy

The word Alchemy is an Arabic term comprised of the article al and the noun khemi. The later word relates to Khem the Coptic name of Egypt. Alchemy thus means "that which pertains to Egypt." Thus the words Alchemy and chemistry are a reminder of the scientific legacy of Egypt. Another possible origin of the word is the Greek cheo which means "I pour" or "I cast": a word often used in reference to the ancient Greek metalworkers who used many Alchemical formulae.

Together, Alchemy and Astrology are two of the oldest sciences known to humanity. The specialized fields of herbalism, mineralogy, natural science, chemistry and medicine all evolved from the mother science known as Alchemy.

Legend has it that the god Hermes was the founder of Alchemy. The most significant early alchemical text was the Emerald Tablet of Hermes Trismegistus, also called the Tabula Smaragdina. No one is quite sure who the first alchemist was, although the first group to learn and work with the art were metalsmiths. Perhaps the best known of the alchemists was Paracelsus, who announced that the major goal of Alchemy should be to cure illness. He started what would later become the science of pharmacology.

The outer body of Alchemy is chemistry. It is in fact the ancestor of modern chemistry. But in addition to being a science, this ancient art is also a philosophy. Alchemy is a science that is based upon multiplication and the natural phenomenon of growth—it is the process of increasing and improving that which already exists. Alchemy is evolution—the raising of vibrations.

Practitioners of the art considered Nature to be the greatest alchemist of all, causing the latent seeds of all life to multiply and grow through the act of transmutation. One objective of the Alchemists was to carry out in the laboratory, as far as possible, the processes which Nature carries out in the Earth plane. Not only did they try to duplicate these natural operations, they tried to reproduce them in a comparatively short period of time—speeding up processes which Nature takes vast amounts of time to manifest.

The basic tenets of Alchemy are as follows:

1. The universe has a divine origin. The cosmos is an emanation of One Absolute Divine Being. Therefore All is One.

2. All physical manifestation exists by virtue of a Law of Polarity or Duality. Any concept can be sufficiently defined in relation to its opposite: male/female, sun/moon, spirit/body, etc.
3. All physical manifestation, whether Vegetable, Animal or Mineral (the so-called Three Kingdoms), is composed of Spirit, Soul, and Body: the three Alchemic Principles.
4. All Alchemical work, whether practical laboratory work or spiritual Alchemy, consists of three basic evolutionary processes: Separation, Purification, and Cohobation (or recombination). These three evolutionary processes are also the work of Nature.
5. All matter is composed of the four Elements of Fire (thermal energy), Water (liquid), Air (gas), and Earth (solid). The knowledge and skillful use of the four Elements is an essential part of Alchemical work.
6. The Quintessence or Fifth Essence is contained with the four Elements but is not one of them. It is one of the Three Essential Principles, also called the Philosophic Mercury.
7. Everything moves towards its preordained state of perfection.

In its popular (limited) definition, Alchemy is an empirical science which concerns itself with the transmutation of base metals into gold. For many the word Alchemy conjures up an image of a crude laboratory where foolhardy pseudo-scientists labor to turn lead into gold so that they may spend their lives living in a state of luxury. However Alchemy's true definition encompasses the doctrine of the transformation of humanity to a higher stage. The treatises of Alchemy are not only chemical in nature, but also mystical and magical. Certainly many Alchemists left behind a vast amount of information to prove the fact that one version of Alchemy was primarily practical and chemical in nature. On the other hand, the principal interest of many Alchemical philosophers was spiritual. These Alchemists did not look merely for the substance of gold, they sought to give the quality of gold to their own being—to transmute the base metals (gross and impure parts of their own nature) to spiritual gold (wisdom). To them gold, the metal which never tarnishes and cannot be corrupted by Fire or Water, was a symbol of illumination and salvation.

Alchemy is the Art and Science of transformation. This is not an easily understood art, because the primal medium of Alchemical expression is through the use of allegory and mythological symbols, which can be interpreted simultaneously both at a material and a spiritual level. The primary goal of Alchemy is to bring all things, including humanity, to its preordained state of perfection. To that end the Alchemical theory states that Eternal Wisdom remains latent, dormant and obscure in humanity so long as a mundane state of ignorance and superficiality exists. The objective of Alchemy is the uncovering of this Inner Wisdom and the removal of the veils and obstacles between the mind and its intrinsically pure Divine Source.

It is this spiritual Alchemy, as opposed to the purely chemical art, that the Golden Dawn stresses. The initiation of an aspiring magician into the Neophyte grade commences the spiritual Alchemical process. The Neophyte is the base material which is to be transmuted by the Work (or Art) of the Hermetic Path. Further initiations into the Elemental grades are analogous to the processes of separation and purification. Initiation into the Portal and Adept grades represents the cohobation or recombination of the Elemental constituents of the magician's psyche into a purified whole. However, the process does not end there. The Adept must incorporate the Quintessence into his/her being, an endeavor which may take a lifetime to achieve. This Great Work or quest for spiritual gold is a long undertaking. Although the goal may be distant, every step along the Path is infinitely rewarding.

The stages of the philosophical process of alchemical transmutation are symbolized by four different colors: black (guilt, origin, latent forces) for "Prime Matter," a symbol of the Soul in its original condition, or the Elementary organization of inherent possibilities, white (minor work, first transmutation, quicksilver), red (sulfur, passion), and finally gold (spiritual purity).

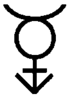
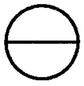
There are three fundamental substances in the science of Alchemy which exist in all things. The names and Alchemical symbols of these Three Principles (Tria Principia) of Nature are:

Sulfur



Mercury



Salt

These substances are not to be confused with ordinary substances of the same name. This triad of Principles may be considered as an undivided whole. However, this unified state exists only before the purification of the Alchemical art (the process of learning), one intention of which is to differentiate between these principles and their homogeneous base. The three components are then purified through the art and recombined into a more exalted whole.

The Principle of Sulfur

(Coptic—Then, Greek—Theion, Latin—Sulfur) This is the dynamic, expansive, volatile, acidic, unifying, masculine, paternal, and fiery principle. Sulfur is the emotional, feeling and passionate urge which motivates life. It is symbolic of the desire for positive change and of vital heat. The entire act of transmutation depends upon the correct application of this vibrant principle. Fire is the crucial Element in the science of Alchemy. Sulfur is the essential Soul.

In practical Alchemy, Sulfur is usually extracted from Mercury by distillation. Sulfur is the stabilizing aspect of Mercury, from which it is extracted and dissolved back into.

In mystical Alchemy, Sulfur is the crystallizing aspect of the inspiration commenced by Mercury.

The Principle of Salt

(Coptic—Hemou, Greek—Hals, Latin—Sal) This is the principle of substance or form, conceived of as a heavy, inert mineral body that is part of the nature of all metals. It is the hardening, fixed, contractive tendency, as well as crystallization. Salt refers to the vehicle in which the properties of Sulfur and Mercury are grounded. Salt is the essential corpus or Body. It is sometimes referred to as Earth.

The Principle of Mercury

(Coptic—Thrim, Greek—Hydrargos, Latin—Mercurius) It is sometimes called Quicksilver. This is a watery, feminine principle that relates to the concept of consciousness. Mercury is the universal Spirit or vital Lifeforce that permeates all living matter. This fluid and creative principle is symbolic of the act of transmutation—it is the transforming agent of the Alchemical process. Mercury is the essential Spirit, the most important of the Three Principles, which mediates between the other two, modifying their extreme tendencies.

In practical Alchemy, Mercury has two states, both of which are liquid. The first (volatile) state is prior to the removal of Sulfur. The second (fixed) state is after the Sulfur has been returned. This final and stabilized state is sometimes referred to as the Secret Fire or Prepared Mercury.

The Alchemical Elements

Primus—TERRA: The First Element of Earth. Life-essence. It is a product of Nature.
Secundus—AQUA: The Second Element of Water. Eternal life through the fourfold division of the universe.
Tertius—AER: The Third Element of Air. Power through a connection with the Element of Spirit.
Quartus—IGNIS: The Fourth Element of Fire. Transmutation of matter.

The Metals

The metals attributed to the Planets in Alchemy are as follows:[33]

Symbol	English	Latin	Planet
♄	LEAD	Plumbum	Saturn
♃	TIN	Stannum	Jupiter
♂	IRON	Ferrum	Mars
☉	GOLD	Sol	Sol
♀	COPPER/BRASS	Cuprum	Venus
☿	QUICKSILVER	Argentum Vivum	Mercury
☽	SILVER	Argentum	Luna

---

[33] The Alchemical sigils of the metals are the same as those of the planets.

The Alchemist's view on metals is very different from that of the metallurgist. The former sees metals as living things equal to animals and vegetables. And like all things in nature, they undergo natural evolution of birth, growth and increase. Metals contain their own "seed" for further growth. Under different conditions, this seed can be transformed, but only through nature. That is why in many Alchemical treatises, the practitioner is told time and time again to let the work of transformation proceed at various stages naturally, "without the laying on of hands."✡

Alchemical Terms and Symbols

ACETUM PHILOSOPHORUM: A synonym for "virgin's milk," Philosophic Mercury, or "Secret Fire."

ADAM: The archetypal man. The animus.

ADAMIC EARTH: The "Primal Element" or the "true oil of Gold" which is only once removed from the pure homogenous Element.

ADROP: Philosophic lead or antimony.

AERIS: Elemental Air.

AES HERMETIS: A term for Mercury. Said to be "the thing containing the thing contained."

AESCH MEZAREPH (Hebrew): "The Purifying Fire." An Alchemical/Qabalistic work collected from The Kabalah Denudata of Knorr Von Rosenroth.

AID: Steam or vapor.

AIR: In practical Alchemy this refers to the vapor arising from metals.

ALCHEMICAL MARRIAGE: The completion of the Great Work. The union of the King and Queen.

ALBEDO: A state where matter is stainless and no longer liable to decay.

ALKAHEST: Secret Fire. A universal liquid solvent.

ALEMBROTH: Philosophical Salt. Salt of Art. Part of the nature of metals.

ALLOY: Combination. The union of Fire and Water, male and female.

ALOOHOPH: The Earth Element in its incorporeal state. Also Earth of Spirit.

AMALGAM: Mixture of metals through fusion.

AMRITA: The First Matter transmuted.

AN: The Father, or Sulfur.

ANIMA: The feminine portion of the masculine psyche. The inner personality.

ANIMUS: The masculine portion of the feminine psyche.

ANSIR: The Son, or Mercury.

ANSIRARTO: The Holy Ghost of the Trinity, or Salt.

ANTIMONY: A poison which in certain doses acts as a powerful medicinal remedy. This substance is also a chemical paradox, having all the properties of a white metal while at times appearing as a non-metal. It is obtained from a sulphide known as Stibnite by heating it with iron. (There are four forms of antimony: a gray metal, a black soot, an unstable yellow and an explosive silver.)

APR (Hebrew): Powder or Ash.

AQUA: Elemental Water.

AQUA PERMANENS: The "Imperishable or Enduring Water." The Mercury of the Philosophers. Sol and Luna dissolved and united.

AQUA VITAE: Alcohol. Feminine secretions.

AQUILA PHILOSOPHORUM: The "Eagle of the Philosophers." The Mercury of metals described as a "metallic nature reduced to its First Matter."

ARCHAEUS: The hidden essence in the First Matter which must be drawn out.

ARGENT VIVE: "Secret Fire," Philosopher's Mercury; also called "living silver," the universal solvent of all metals.

ATTENUATED: Made thin.

AUR (Hebrew): Light.

AZOTH: The Universal Medicine to which all things are related, containing within itself all other medicines. It is also the term for the Mercury of any metallic body. Also considered as a living Spirit. The Quintessence. Water of Spirit.

AURUM ALBUM: White gold.

BAETYLUS: A living Stone containing a Spirit.

BALSAMUM VITAE (The Balsam of Life): A combination of natural heat and radical moisture. In mystical Alchemy it symbolizes compassion, love and revitalization.

BASILISK: A creature with the body of a serpent or dragon and the head and claws of a rooster. Symbolizes a dual nature or conflicting Elemental nature.

BAT: Androgyny. Double-natured.

BATH OF VENUS: Vagina.

BATHING: Purification through cleansing.

BEAR: The Nigredo of the First Matter.

BEE: Soul. Purity. Rebirth.

BEHEADING: Understanding which is forced on the Soul by nature through trial and suffering. Separation which surmounts the physical body.

BENNU: The Egyptian Phoenix. A symbol of the Philosopher's Stone.

BLACK DRAGON: Death, putrefaction, decay.

BLOOD: Spirit.

BLOOD OF THE RED LION: Masculine fluid.

BOOK: Universe.

BOW: Male and female combination. Crescent of Luna as the feminine, the issuing of the arrow as the masculine.

BREATH: Life-essence.

CADUCEUS: The power of transformation. Union of Opposites.

CAPUT MORTEM: The Tail end of the matter. Waste product.

CAUDA PAVONIS: The tail of the peacock.

CAULDRON (Kettle, cup or chalice): Fertility. The Womb. Transforming Power.

CHAIN: That which binds.

CHAOS: The Void. The fourfold division of the First Matter.

CHILD: Potential.

CHMO: Fermentation.

CHOL: Sand.

CINNABAR: The product of the productive interaction between the masculine and feminine principles. The Living Gold.
CLOUD: Gas or vapor.
COLEUM: Perfect living Being. Also called Virtus.
CONJUNCTIO SOLIS ET LUNA: The union of the Sun and the Moon. Union of opposites.
CORPOREAL STATE: Materiality or physical state of existence.
CORPUS: Alchemical substance. The unconscious.
CROSS: Descent of Spirit into matter. A balanced fourfold division. A symbol of man.
CROWN: Kingship or sovereignty.
CROWNED CHILD: The Stone of the Philosophers.
CROWNED ORB: The Philosopher's Stone.
CRUCIFIXION: Cleansing of all impurities.
CUPELLATION: Metallurgical process for testing Gold.
CYPRESS: Death. Male organ.
DAGGER: That which pierces and breaks down matter.
DIENECH: Fixed Water.
DOG: Philosophical Mercury.
DOG AND WOLF: The dual nature of Mercury.
DOUBLE-HEADED EAGLE: Masculine and feminine Mercury.
DOVE: Life Spirit.
DRAGON'S BLOOD: Cinnabar. Sulphide of Mercury.
DRYNESS: Solar Fire. Male Principle.
EAGLE (Also hawk or falcon): Sublimation. Mercury in its most exalted state. An emblem of knowledge, inspiration, and a sign of the completed Work.
EARTH: In practical Alchemy, metals are often referred to as Earth.
EGG: The sealed Hermetic Vessel wherein the work is completed. Symbol of creation.
ELECTRUM: A metal containing all the metals attributed to the seven Planets.
ELIXIR OF LIFE: Derived from the Philosopher's Stone, the Elixir is said to confer immortality and restore youth.
EMPEROR: The King. The active volatile principle.
EMPRESS: The passive, fixed principle.
EVE: The archetypal female. The anima.
FATHER: The Sun or male principle.
FILTH: The waste products and impurities extracted from the matter. Caput Mortem. The Gross.
FISH: Arcane substance.
FISH EYES: The stone in the early stages of evolution.
FLESH: Matter.
FLIGHT: The act of transcendence. Ascent to a higher level.
FLOWER OF GOLD: Spiritual rebirth. Elixir of Life.
FOETUS SPAGYRICUS: The stage of the alchemical process when matter inherits Spirit.

Mindless crap introduced by Cicero's. Why as a 1=10 do you need to lean this?

No idea myself....

FORGE: The transmuting power of the sacred Fire of the furnace.
FOUNTAIN: The source of Eternal Life. Maternal source.
FRUIT: Essence. Immortality.
FROG: The First Matter. The origin of physical matter.
GARDEN: Paradise.
GIRDLE: That which binds.
GLUTEN: Feminine fluids.
GLUTINUM MUNDI: The glue of the world. That which unites body and mind.
GOAT: The male principle.
GOLD: The goal of the Great Work. Perfection and harmony. Complete balance of masculine and feminine.
GOOSE: Nature.
GRAIL: The Stone of the Philosophers. Immortality.
GRAIN (Barley, kernel, seed): The seed of life. The renewal of life. The core.
GREAT WORK: The attainment of the highest possible degree of perfection. The Union of the Smaller Universe with the Greater Universe (Microcosm and Macrocosm).
GREAT KING: The completion of the Magnum Opus. Attainment.
GREEN LION: The Stem and Root of the Radical Essence of the Metals. Raw and unpurified energy of nature. Symbol of the living force that must be sought in the First Matter. Relates to the Fire of Venus and Philosophic Mercury. The beginning of the work.
HAIR: Strength. Life Essence.
HERMAPHRODITE: Union of masculine and feminine.
HERMES: Mercury.
HIEROS GAMOS: Divine union. Conjunction.
HONEY: Initiation. Immortality.
HOURGLASS: Fleeting passage of time
HUMIDUM RADICALE: Radical Moisture. Moisture as a balsam.
HYDROLITH: Water Stone. The Philosopher's Stone.
HYLE: The Prima Materia or First Matter. The Primal substance from which the whole of the universe is created. It is a fusion of the four Elements and is regarded to be the same as the Philosopher's Stone.
INCREATUM: Self-generating.
IGNIS AQUA: Fiery Water. Alkahest.
IGNIS LEONIS: Elemental Fire or the "Fire of the Lion."
IGNIS ELEMENATARIS: Alchemical Sulfur.
JOY OF THE PHILOSOPHERS: Refers to that stage of the Great Work just prior to the victorious production of the Stone of the Wise. Success is virtually assured.
KIBRIC: The First Matter of Mercury and all fluids. That from which Mercury is derived.
KING: Red—The Qabalistic Son of the Supernal Father and Mother. The king is also known as Microprosopus or "Lesser Countenance" which is centered in Tiphareth. Analogous to Gold and the Sun. (Relates to the Red Tincture.)

LAC VIRGINIS: Virgin's milk. A term for Mercurial Water.
LAMP: A continuous spiritual Fire.
LANCE: Masculine energy.
LAPIS LUCIDUM ANGULARIS: "The cornerstone of Light." The supreme Essence.
LAPIS PHILOSOPHORUM: The Philosopher's Stone. In practical Alchemy this is a powder and not a stone.
LATON: The Matter of the work. The production of the Philosopher's Stone at the white stage.
LEO RUBEUS: The Red Lion.
LEO VIRDIS: The Ore of Hermes. The Blood from Sulfur. The first Mercury of Gold, altered by means of Luna. Sometimes called Green Water. Also sometimes refers to Vitriol.
LILY: The female principle.
LION: Heat and sulfurous action.
LUNA: The Planetary name for Silver (but in practical Alchemy this often refers to a mixture of antimony and iron).
LUNA PHILOSOPHORUM: The pure living Alchemical Spirit of Silver—the refined Essence of Heat and Moisture.
MAGNESIA: Sometimes used for talc, but often this term is used in reference to a mixture of metals.
MAGISTERIUM: A quality treated as a substance, or an operation to cultivate or emphasize a quality. (Example: The Magisterium of Principles—Separation. The Magisterium of Weight—to exalt in weight.)
MAGNUM OPUS: The Great Work or masterpiece. It is the goal of the Alchemic process—that is, to reach a purified state of spiritual perfection. The creation of the Philosopher's Stone. Illumination.
MARE NOSTRUM: Our Sea. The physical body.
MARRIAGE: Union. Conjunction.
MATER METALLORUM: The "Mother of Metals," also known as Living Silver.
MATERIA LAPIDIS: Tincture.
MATRIX: The place where a substance is developed. The womb. An essential component of realization, without which Spirit cannot be joined to matter.
MEDICINA CATHOLICA: Universal Medicine. The anima.
MENSTRUUM: That original material from which all metals are derived. This term is also used to describe Mercury wherein gold has been dissolved. Usually describes a solvent in the corporeal process of the purification of the gold. Any fluid that dissolves a solid, sometimes a catalyst. Constant mild heat that is continued for forty-two days.
MODERATE FIRE: Sexual passion.
MYSTERIUM: The Essence of the Interior Nature.
MYSTERIUM MAGNUM: The Great Mystery. The First Matter of All Things. The Mother of all finite living things.
NATURA ABSCONDITA: The Hidden Nature or Essence.
NITRE: Saltpeter.

OAK: A constituent of the Secret Fire.

OPUS: The work. To bring Order out of Chaos.

ORB: The world.

OUROBORUS: The serpent which bites its own tail. Indicates the cyclic quality of the Work.

PANACEA: The Universal Medicine obtained from the Stone.

PATER ET MATER REGIS: "The Father and Mother of the King." The combining of opposites required for the production of the Philosopher's Stone.

PEACOCK: A symbol which heralds the fact that transformation is occurring. The brilliant colors of the peacock's tail (Cauda Pavonis) mark the beginning of the process of integration, the formation of Philosophic Mercury. The varied colors that arise during the course of the work which resemble the colors of petroleum on a wet surface. (Also a symbol of Elemental Air.)

